For an opening hockey tilt, this game was very physical and with 14:08 left in the game, an onrush of UMass players boiled over Salem goalie Vin Caporiccio, who had to be sent to the showers. The break in the action afforded a chance for both benches to get in some ice time, and in what seemed like a very sportsmanlike gesture, Coach Canniff replaced P.J. Flaherty in our goal. Soph "Chicky" Rheault came in to do a fine job.

The rest of the game was a joke as the Redmen destroyed Salem. At 9:59 Eric Scrafield received an assist from Nickerson and got a chance to show some of his moves he learned in Canada by firing an angle shot in. Lonnie Avery got blown with 10 minutes left as he was there for a rebound off Bartholomew's hard slap shot. The ref arbitrarily disputed what everyone at Orr Rink thought was goal number 1.

At this point, the fourth line got hungry and sophs Lynch and Coleman fed Donovan to make it officially 8-1. Scrappy Al Nickerson then contributed a tally with a shot that was fired from 50 feet and looked picture perfect.

The token 10th goal came with only nine seconds left as Dennis Grabowski wanted to make it double figures.

The only remark Coach Canniff had to make following the game was "This one's over, we're looking to take the big game on Saturday against Vermont."

It sure is over, and like last year's Lowell Tech tilt, it turned into quite an extravaganza of offensive punch. It's great to start a season with a big win like this, but let's hope they can do the same against stiffer Division II competition.

Skaters Face Big Weekend See Tomorrow's MDC

Frosh Play Same Tune As Varsity

By FRED ROSENTHAL

Led by Jim Burke and John Murphy the UMass freshman basketball team opened up a close game midway through the first half and rambled on to a 91-69 victory over the St. Anselm's JV's at the Cage last night. The game was the season opener for both teams.

St. Anselm's played a very patient, slow down type of offense from the start of the contest. But with the UMass frosh playing a tight pressure defense the Little Redmen held a 14-11 lead as neither team's offense could seem to get moving.

Then with Burke and Murphy leading the way UMass opened up to a twenty point lead towards the end of the half. Guard Bill Endicott started the surge with a three point play on a nice feed from Mike Flanagan.

Burke and Murphy then went on to score six of the next seven UMass baskets. And after 6'1 guard Rick Boron hit two free throws with a minute and a half left in the first stanza the Little Redmen led 43-23. The score at the half was 45-29.

The second half was more of the same with Endicott heating up and Murphy continuing his fine play on both boards. Endicott who did not shoot well from the outside in the first half heated up in the second and both he and Murphy accounted for most of UMass' scoring while the Little Redmen were building up a 38 point lead.

Not to be discounted in the win though is reserve forward Dave Dibble. Dibble came into the game and played well when starter Tom Gillams got into early foul trouble. Gillams received his third personal after only seven minutes were gone in the first half.

It was an impressive win for the frosh against one of the smaller and weaker teams they play all season. But on Saturday the Little Redmen will take a step up in competition when they host the Dartmouth frosh.

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Whether?: 99% chance of sulphur dioxide poisoning from spewing smoke stacks.

VOLUME XCIX, ISSUE 59 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS FRIDAY, DECEMBER 3, 1971

Spewing Smoke Sparks Spat

Sticking toward the sky--Is the black smoke that has been seen spewing from this stack pollution? You bet it is! You should be able to get a good taste of it from the top of the new library. (MDC photo by Gib Fullerton)

By DON GLICKSTEIN

The Massachusetts Department of Public Health has notified the University that smoke being emitted from the central power plant has violated maximum amounts of pollution allowed by law.

Mr. Edward R. Gilbert, Chief Engineer at the Physical Plant Department at UMass has denied any DPH violations. He told the Collegian yesterday, "As far as I'm concerned, we're not polluting, and we have proof of it."

In a letter dated November 19, 1971, an official of the DPH warned Gilbert that further violations of the alleged anti-pollution regulations would lead to legal action against the University.

Stephen F. Joyce, Director of the DPH's Pioneer Valley Air Pollution Control District in Springfield, charged in the letter that the amount of smoke being spewn from the westerly stack of the power plant was greater than those amounts allowed by District rules.

An official observation of the plant had occurred during the afternoon of November 7, 1971. This was 12 days after Chief Engineer Gilbert had declared in a Collegian interview:

"We don't like to see a lot of smoke coming out of our chimneys any more than the students or any ecologically concerned person does, but you see, we have a job to do here, and that is to keep everything running, and in order to do that, of course, we must continually be providing power. I firmly believe that the Amherst air is more threatened by surrounding farmers spreading chemicals and dust on windy days than by the pollution that is emitted from the UMass physical plant."

According to the notice of violation, smoke seen coming from the power plant was greater than or equal to Number 2 on the Ringelmann Chart. The Ringelmann Chart is the basic scale used by the U.S. Bureau of Mines to determine smoke darkness. On a scale of 5, the Number 2 measurement is smoke that is approximately 40% dense. The maximum standard the law allows for the Pioneer Valley area is smoke that measures Number 1 on the Chart.

John Desmond, a staff member of the area Air Pollution Control District, acknowledged that the University was building a new power plant near Tillson Farm off of East Pleasant Street, but said yesterday that even while the new plant was being constructed, the University would have to comply with the law.

Should the power plant commit another violation, the DPH would hold a show-cause hearing, in which the University would have to present plans that would ameliorate the situation. If, after the hearing, the University continued to violate the law, the evidence would be turned over to the Attorney General for further prosecution. Violations are punishable by fine.

Smoke produced by the power plant consists of chiefly sulphur dioxide and ash, caused by burning coal and oil. The sulphur oxides, according to John C. Esposito, author of the Nader's Raider's book on air pollution, are "noxious contaminants" that have been "implicated as a leading killer in every air pollution episode of the last half-century." Even low-level concentrations, according to Esposito, are thought to be kin to many ailments.

The new Tillson Farm power plant will use sulphur oxide-producing fossil fuels, rather than more monetarily expensive, yet less environmentally expensive natural gasses or nitric oxide.

Student reaction to the DPH warning has been consistently positive. Student Senate Internal Vice-President John Hogan told the Collegian:

"It's very nice to say that one doesn't 'like to see a lot of smoke coming out of our chimneys', etc. This, however, is not what is needed either here at the University or anywhere else.

"Of course, power must be continually produced for normal maintenance of operations. But we can no longer place the blame on Amherst farmers or Springfield factories. If we are at fault, then we must begin to provide the solution ourselves."

Robert Chiller, Chairman of the Senate Rents and Fees Committee, echoed Hogan's sentiments.

"We pay for the rent, the rent pays for the utilities, and students should not be forced to pay for pollution", he said. Chiller added that it was "about time" that the State University stop being exempt from environmental accountability. "It is the responsibility of the University to set the standards, not to live up to them."

On The Inside:

● Earle Butz Nominated See page 2

● Poor Richard's See page 8

Prof. M.A.K. Halliday of Brown University, speaking last night at the Campus Center on "Learning How to Mean". Using his own child as a subject, he has observed the progression of sounds into language. Halliday feels the development of a working language is possible in the short span of six weeks. He was introduced by Donald C. Freeman, Chairman of the Linguistics Department.

The Price Of Being Jewish

By ED SLOAN

Money is desperately needed to save Jews in Russia and those left in Arab lands who wish to go to a place where they can live in dignity and lead "Jewish" lives.

In effect, they want to go to Israel, according to Mark Edell, spokesman for the Student Coordinating Committee for the Israel Emergency Fund. He spoke Monday night to a small gathering in a Campus Center room.

He said: "It costs $1,000 for a Jew to leave Russia (including $500 just to obtain a passport); it costs $3,500 for a Jew to leave Syria and more than $6,000 to exit from Iraq. It is expected that 8,000 Jews will emigrate next year from these lands, but that more than 250,000 want to leave." "Despite the distaste American students have for discussing matters of materialism," the speaker continued, "Money still talks and in this situation, can save lives."

Edell proposed the beginnings of a student-sponsored, national fund-raising drive among Jewish campus students. Edell believes that the definitions of what being "Jewish" means, vary and as a result, communication between Jewish students is lacking. "Some Jews define being Jewish in a religious way; others define it culturally; I even spoke with one who said that he was Jewish, gastronomically," Edell remarked.

"Although American Jews have been able to assimilate into an American culture, he believes the vast majority of Jewish students are still looking for the key to an involvement which will show a Jewish expressiveness-an expressiveness that they really do not want to lose. This is especially true at this time when rights for every imaginable minority group are sought," he indicated.

"In a similar manner," as Edell pointed out, "Jews must seek and find a "new emerging Jewish identity" or accept the fact that they will become assimilated beyond recognition."

Quicksilver
57 North Pleasant Street
LIVE MUSIC
Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday Nites
OLDIES NITE
Monday
STONES NITE
Wednesday
RESTAURANT
Open 24 Hours

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus, zip code 01002. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 549-1311 (editor).

Second class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods; three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 3, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $6.00 per semester, $10.00 per year.

Butz Nomination Confirmed

WASHINGTON (AP)-The Senate voted today to confirm the nomination of Dr. Earl Butz as secretary of Agriculture.

The vote was 51 to 44.

Confirmation came after a debate marked by many expressions of misgivings about the future of American agriculture.

Confirmation came after a debate marked by many expressions of misgivings about the future of American agriculture.

Republicans denounced Democratic critics, who included presidential aspirants, for using the nomination as a kick-off of a campaign to win voted in the Farm Belt.

Opponents said they viewed President Nixon's choice of the 62-year-old Purdue University dean as a bow to corporate farming and a setback to small farmers, environmentalists and supporters of hunger and poverty programs.

Shortly after Butz' nomination was confirmed, the White House arranged for him to be sworn in in Nixon's Oval Office today. A spokesman indicated Nixon would make brief comments at that time.

Four Republicans voted against the nomination. They were Sens. Marlow W. Cook, (R-Ky.), John Sherman Cooper, (R-Ky.), Jack Miller, (R-Iowa) and Milton R. Young, (R-N.D.).

Sen. George McGovern, (D-S.D.), said the Butz nomination has met with "unprecedented grass roots opposition."

"It is bad news for every farmer in America," McGovern said.

But Sen. Robert Dole, (R-Kan.), who has expressed some reservations on the nomination, said it was really good news-news that Nixon has decided to take steps to improve the income of all farmers.

"I want to assure this great body that Dr. Butz will be a great secretary of Agriculture and will carry forward the President's program with great wisdom and energy," Dole said.

Many senators said the President should in almost all cases be given the men of his own choice as his Cabinet advisers.

The outcome of the confirmation fight was indicated in advance.

Amherst Recycling Center Open

By CHARLIE BERKOW

The Amherst Recycling Center is ready for business. Glass and paper now deposited at the A.P.L.A. will be recycled; the glass being sold to a firm in Connecticut and the paper being sold to a junkman in Northampton.

Men have been working on the center, on and off, for the past couple of weeks. They have been building four bins, three for glass and one for paper. The three bins for glass will be color-coded-the white bin is for clear glass, the brown bin is for brown glass and the green bin is for green glass.

A source in the Amherst Public Works Department said that the project has been initiated by students in Amherst Regional High School. He said that the town actually has very little to do with the recycling, but town trucks will be used to transport the trash to the recycling companies and the town built the bins.

The source at the Public Works Department said that bottles have been collecting near the bins for some time. He said that men have been working this week sorting the bottles and removing the metal bands.

Town Manager Allen Torrey told this reporter the people who bring their trash to be recycled will have to sort and prepare it themselves. The glass company will accept only glass which has been sorted out by color. The metal rings around the necks of bottles with twist-off caps must be removed, but the paper labels can be left on. The paper should be bundled, for ease of handling, and to assure that it won't be blown away.

The center is located at the Amherst Pelham Landfill Area, on Belchertown Road near the Amherst Auto Shop. Signs will be erected at the site, with instructions on how to dispose of the paper and glass.

Torrey said that the paper and glass will be sold, but he admitted that he doesn't expect the program to pay for itself. In fact, he said that if the recycling program is successful (if enough glass and paper is collected) the town may even have to buy a glass crusher. He estimated that this would cost at least $300, and possibly up to $3,000, depending on the size of the crusher needed.

A course open to UMass students, entitled "American Diplomacy At The Crossroads," is to be offered at AIC in Springfield. Registration will be January 5th, with the first of nine class sessions to be held Jan. 6. The course will run until Feb. 3.

Two professors from UMass, Dr. Edward Driver (Sociology) and Falih Al-Shaikly, a candidate for a PhD in Agriculture and Food Economics, will participate in the course. Falih Al-Shaikly will speak on "Money And the Monetary System."

Charge for the course will be fifty dollars. Additional information can be obtained by a call to the office of the registrar located in Lee Hall, AIC, Springfield.

Program Council presents a Lecture by
Robin Morgan
Female Liberationist
Tuesday, December 14
8 p.m. S.U.B.

OPEN HOUSE
Phi Mu Delta
Frat/Sor Park
After Redman Basketball vs. Vermont
Dec. 4, Saturday

Fac-Sen

Discrimination Against Women Alleviated

By DON POUTRY

The Faculty Senate passed two motions yesterday afternoon that are designed to alleviate the problem of discrimination against women at UMass.

The first motion was presented by the Committee on the Status of Women and stated that the Senate should recommend that the University appoint a permanent administrator, not lower than an Associate Provost, whose main task would be to coordinate and administer programs relevant to improving the condition of women on this campus.

There was some debate on whether minority groups should be included in this motion, but it was decided that since their problems are different, they should be considered separately.

The second motion had as its main concern that there be no job discrimination against women.

The motion stated that there should be no discrimination against women because of age. Due to discrimination in the past, many women may now be older than men applying for the same position.

It also stated that women should be considered for a job despite their place of residence, marital status, or number of dependents.

Any vacancies in the University's professional staff are to be advertised in the appropriate professional journals, giving everyone an equal chance to apply.

Correspondence concerning hiring should contain no preference of one sex.

Also included in the motion was that a written policy should be formulated to prevent anyone from being penalized for taking parental leave. Parental leave is taken in the case of maternity for women or for child care by either parent.

Finally, that the Committee on the Status of Women would become advisors to the administrator mentioned in the first motion.

Professor Joseph Burroughs, Faculty Senate Representative to the Board of Trustees, reported that the Trustees have taken no action on the American Association of University Professors (AAUP) recommendations for a joint type of university governance, where faculty members and administration would share the responsibilities of control. This plan was submitted to the Trustees two and a half years ago.

A motion was made that the Faculty Senate request that the Trustees endorse in principle the AAUP guidelines.

Earl Seidman, Assistant Dean of the School of Education, asked whether or not it might be well to consider student participation as well.

The President of the Amherst Chapter of the AAUP, Professor Snyder, said that the association has since come out with a new policy including students, but that the two issues were treated separately.

The Faculty Senate passed the motion without the inclusion of student participation, leaving that to be treated separately.

The following motion was also passed.

MOVED:
That the Search Committee for a Chancellor for UMass/Amherst ask all candidates for the position of permanent Chancellor to express his or her position of the following matters:

(1) The 1966 AAUP Statement on the Government of Colleges and Universities.

(2) The priniciples enunciated in the final report of the Committee of Concern of the Faculty Senate.

(3) The general issue of collective bargaining in Universities and the specific issue of its place, if any, on the Amherst Campus.

(4) The bill recently filed with Representative Olver on the behalf of the Faculty Senate which would place three Faculty members on the Board of Trustees with full privileges.

(5) The institution of tenure and its future at the University of Massachusetts.

That the Search Committee keep records of the positions expressed and periodically report them to the Senate.

Doctor Bromery, Acting-Chancellor, announced that he had received 150 copies of the report from the Future of UMass Committee and that he was now consulting with the Rules Committee of the Faculty Senate on the matter.

Dr. Bromery also said that about 6000 bills concerning the University have been filed in the Massachusetts General Court for next session. The wide variety of bills includes such matters as the University Police, a medical school and a bill which would allow the University to finance inventors.

According to Dr. Bromery, HEW says that discrimination has been occurring on this campus with regards to race and sex. He said that HEW is still studying the matter, particularly with regards to graduate teaching assistants.

In other business, the Faculty Senate passed motions which would recommend departmental status for the Linguistics Program and the Comparative Literature Program.

Another motion was passed which would recommend the approval of a degree of Doctor of Philosophy in Computer and Information Science and that the existing Masters degree be appropriately renamed.

The Budget Committee reported that at present they have very little input concerning the budget. They asked that their committee be increased, feeling that they could be more effective with a broader base.

Senate Cuts Tax Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) - Senate-House conferees approved today a $15.8-billion tax cut bill after agreeing to defer the start of a controversial presidential campaign financing plan until after the 1972 elections.

The principal tax cuts for individuals in the bill would be an increase in the personal exemption from $650 to $675 for the current year and to $750 in 1972.

There also would be a new minimum standard deduction of $1,300 for low-income families effective next year; under present law this deduction would be $1,000.

For business, the measure would reinstate the 7 per cent investment credit permitting companies to subtract from their taxes due up to 7 per cent of their spending on new machinery and equipment.

The bill also grants substantial tax benefits to business through accelerated depreciation and through a new plan under which they could get tax deferral on export sales.

The conferees agreed to put the start of the presidential campaign financing plan off until 1973.

In that year taxpayers could begin $1 tax checkoffs to make available funds for the plan; the first payments to presidential candidates thus would come in 1976.

Democrats who were in the majority on the conference committee thus bowed to the strong objections of President Nixon against the campaign financing plan and specified it would not apply to the 1972 race when he presumably will be seeking re-election.

The conferees also took out of the measure practically all of the large Senate revenue-losing provisions to which Nixon had objected.

The White House said earlier Thursday that the conferees "have moved into the ball park" in stripping the pending tax-cut bill of expensive provisions opposed by President Nixon.

But press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler repeated that Nixon will veto any bill that contains any form of tax checkoff plan to finance presidential campaigns.

House Considers Economics

WASHINGTON (AP) - The House Banking Committee discarded today its version of a bill to continue President Nixon's economic control powers and began shaping one close to the version passed Wednesday by the Senate.

First indications were that this version would prevail, speeding the way of the legislation to the White House. An effort to resurrect the original House bill failed, 8 to 15.

However, the House committee plunged into debate on the wording of a section to give retroactive wage increases to most employes who lost them because of the 90-day freeze.

Efforts also will be made, sources said, to restore the stiffer House language on interest controls and suits by consumers who contend they were charged prices higher than those officially approved.

Small Plane Down Near Pittsfield

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) - Civil Air Patrol search craft looking for a light plane believed down with five members of a Michigan family aboard returned to an area of Western Massachusetts today where air observers spotted a wide swatch of felled trees on a mountainside.

Maj. William Donovan of the Albany-area CAP said no wreckage had been seen on the mountain, but he said detection could be difficult because the mostly white Piper Cherokee might blend in with newly fallen snow.

The mountain is near Cheshire, about seven miles north of Pittsfield in Western Massachusetts.

Donovan said the single-engine plane had been out of radio contact since departing Sunday from Worcester, Mass., bound for Pontiac, Mich. Relatives in Michigan identified the missing family as Paul Gallaty, about 48, his wife, Norma and three of their five children. The family lived in Avon township, north of Rochester, Mich.

Pizza Party
ALL YOU CAN EAT
$1.25
EVERY SUNDAY NIGHT
BRUNI'S PIZZA
corner of Main & Triangle 256-6676

The Jewish Community of Amherst and Hillel at U.M. invites you to the showing of the Israeli comedy
SALLAH
Sunday, Dec. 5, at 8:00 p.m. - 102 Thompson - Free
Hillel will have a deli-supper, 420 S.U. on the same day at 6:30 p.m. cost: $1.50, 50% discount to paid up Hillel members. Faculty and families are welcomed.

RACISM!!!
"It's a terrible problem, but what can I do?"
GET INVOLVED!!!!
School of Education
Workshop on Racism
Tuesday, December 7
9:00 a.m. Campus Center
ALL SCHOOL OF EDUCATION STUDENTS

In The Nation And The World

Economic Troubles

Devaluation Of Dollar Threatening

LONDON (AP)-The possibility of devaluation sent the dollar plunging to record lows on major European exchanges yesterday.

Market conditions were generally described as hectic and state banks in Paris and London were reported buying substantial amounts of dollars to slow the decline in value.

In Switzerland, banks were limiting dollar transactions to a maximum of a million per customer.

The dollar-selling wave was sparked by reports from a Rome meeting of the richest Western nations that the United States is ready to negotiate a dollar devaluation of perhaps 5 per cent against gold within a general realignment of world currency values. The official price of gold is now $35 an ounce and the unofficial price around $43.

Exchange operators expected a cut in the dollar's value to be announced after a further meeting of the Group of Ten non-Communist nations in Washington Dec. 17-18.

European stock markets also brightened at the prospect of an early end to international monetary and trade uncertainties after 3 1/2 months of the crisis set off on Aug. 15 by President Nixon's announcement of his new economic program.

On the Frankfurt foreign exchange, the dollar plunged to a record low of 3.29 West German marks, compared to Wednesday's close of 3.3035 marks. Today's rate represented an increase in the mark's dollar value of 11 1/4 per cent since May when the West German money was set free to find its own level in the market.

The dollar was also at a record low in Zurich at 3.9305 Swiss francs against Wednesday's closing of 3.9547. This was a dollar devaluation of 3 1/4 per cent from the previous parity of 4.08 francs.

In Paris the situation was more complicated because of the French two-tier system set up to keep a so-called "commercial franc" used for 90 per cent of transactions, pegged closely to the dollar. There is also a "financial franc" used mainly by tourists which is permitted to fluctuate.

The commercial franc opened at its topmost level against the dollar of 5.5125, only to drop a short time later to 5.51125 despite heavy buying of dollars by the Banque de France.

The financial franc opened at 5.365, down from Wednesday's closing 5.405. Today's rate represented a 3 1/2 per cent upvaluing of the franc from parity.

In London, the pound opened in a range of $2.4940 to $2.4942 compared to Wednesday's closing $2.4939. This was almost a 4 per cent increase in the pound's dollar value from parity.

The dollar declined also against the Japanese yen in Tokyo, closing at 326.75, a new low. The previous low was 327.07 at closing on Wednesday. The new low represented an upward valuation of the yen of 10.17 per cent since the yen was floated on Aug. 28.

Penn Central Thwarted By Courts

PHILADELPHIA (AP)-A federal judge has barred the Penn Central Co. from holding its trice-delayed annual meeting and vote on a refinancing plan which management says is the only way to avoid bankruptcy.

The order was issued Thursday by U.S. District Court Judge Joseph S. Lord III. It bars the Penn Central Co., from holding its stockholders meeting, which was adjourned until Friday, until further notice from the court.

The order made permanent a temporary restraining order obtained last Friday by two stockholders to block the annual meeting.

The suit claimed the refinancing plan is a fraud, and will diminish the already sharply reduced value of the 54 million shares of Penn Central common stock plus millions of shares of preferred stock.

The parent company said it has no cash or assets to pay its bills, including $55 million in Swiss notes borrowed 22 months ago and due Dec. 31.

The company originally said the notes fell due Nov. 30, the day after the scheduled annual meeting. But during the hearing Monday, Archibald Johnson, president and board chairman of the Penn Central Co., testified the company actually had until Dec. 31 to repay the notes.

In Brief...

BOSTON (AP)-Robert R. Marley, 41, of Brockton has been arrested on a charge of embezzling funds from the Boston Naval Shipyard, the FBI said today.

Special Agent James L. Handley said Marley, a former civilian employe at the yard, was scheduled to be arraigned before a U.S. magistrate. He was arrested at Brockton Wednesday after being indicted by a federal grand jury.

Handley's announcement did not give the amount of the alleged theft.

LOS ANGELES (AP)-The U.S. Attorney's office says that "in the interest of justice" it will not prosecute conspiracy and hand grenade possession charges against Shirley Jean Sutherland, former wife of actor Donald Sutherland, and her co-defendant, Donald Freed.

Prosecutor Dennis Kinnard had the charges dropped Wednesday in U.S. District Court.

Mrs. Sutherland, 37, and Freed, a teacher, were indicted in October 1969 on charges they purchased the grenades from an undercover police officer and intended to give them to the Black Panther party.

NARRAGANSETT, R.I. (AP)-Last September police officer William T. Boyd saved the life of a fisherman who had fallen into the ocean and he was promoted to sergeant.

Wednesday the town made public a letter from the International Brotherhood of Police Officers that threatened legal action against the town unless it nullifies the promotion.

The brotherhood said Boyd had not taken the normal written examination, so his promotion violated town ordinances and a collective bargaining contract between the town and policemen.

NEW YORK (AP)-The Hilton chain has agreed in principle to sell the 2,000-room New Yorker Hotel, once the city's largest, for conversion into a 749-bed hospital.

The 41-year-old midtown structure, built at a cost of $225 million, would be sold for about $13.5 million to the French and Polyclinic Medical School and Health Center if state health and housing officials approve.

Ha Ha Herman

TURN THE TABLES . . .

Give yourself a Christmas present — A fine pair of sunglasses for this pre-winter snow.

And if you are feeling benevolent, give someone else a pair too.

We also have all kinds of optical goodies for your special needs.

don call

AMHERST'S FIRST OPTICIAN

56 Main St. 253-7002 Amherst

CLEAR SKY RETURNS TO HILLS NORTH

LADIES 50¢ GENTLEMEN 50¢

*b.y.o.b. FRIDAY DEC. 3rd 8-12 P.M.

How To Move Off-Campus

If You:

1. are a Senior
2. will be 21 years of age during the academic year
3. are married
4. will be commuting from home

Then, notify - the Housing Office before room-choosing (December 6-10) that you intend to exercise any of the above options.

You're Not Covered By The Above Categories?

If you are not covered by any of the above categories then you are required by Board of Trustee regulation to live on-campus. However, you may apply for an exemption to the regulation through your Area Director.

Security Deposit:

If you plan to move off-campus you must notify the Housing Office before December 10, 1971, in order that you may get your deposit back. Students who fail to make such notification by December 10 and who fail to occupy a room in the Spring Semester will, unfortunately, forfeit their deposit. Make your plans early.

Getting the shaft--An ironworker takes a lunch break high atop a girder at the site of bridge construction in New London. (Photo by Gordon Alexander, The Day)

Davis Trial Near

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP) — Angela Davis, former UCLA instructor charged with murder, conspiracy and kidnaping in the August 1970 Marin County Civic Center shootout, was transported in darkness and heavy rain today to Santa Clara County for trial.

Deputies armed with carbines stood by as she was moved into a branch of the county jail at Palo Alto.

The 27-year-old avowed Communist was taken from the Marin County Jail at 6 a.m. and driven to the San Francisco Peninsula. There were three unmarked cars in the hour-long operation.

About 15 members of the Angela Davis Defense Fund staged an all-night vigil at the jail for the defendant. Observers said it was silent and peaceful.

Miss Davis was to have been moved during daylight, but a rainstorm lashing the area made the earlier hour better to escape wet pavement and morning commuter traffic, authorities said.

Four were killed in the gun battle in which Miss Davis is charged. She is accused of furnishing the guns and helping plot an abortive escape attempt. California law makes an accomplice as guilty as one who directly commits a crime.

Miss Davis had been held in jail at the Marin County Civic Center for nearly a year. Her attorneys had asked that her trial be moved from San Rafael and last month it was transferred to Santa Clara County 70 miles to the south.

Inductions All But Halted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Selective Service System has all but halted inductions nationwide this month because, a spokesman said today, local boards brought in draftees faster than anticipated.

The spokesman said orders to stop inductions began going out to states last week as they reached their December quota. He said the halt was not due to an order by Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas staying inductions in Southern California.

Douglas issued the stay until Jan. 6 pending a legal test of the 1971 draft law.

It was only in Southern California, because of Douglas' order, that inductions were halted short of the quota, the system spokesman said.

The spokesman said a call was issued for 10,000 dratees for the November-December period. The numbers were gathered ahead of schedule.

"We had to slow down in December or deliver more men than the Army requested," the spokesman said.

The service had planned to halt inductions early in December in any event because of the holiday season.

The legal attack which prompted Douglas' order was based on a section of the 1971 draft law which says that no one may be inducted prior to 90 days after enactment of the draft legislation unless the president or the Senate declares war or a state of national emergency.

Attorneys for the American Civil Liberties Union have attacked the legality of drafts conducted after last Sept. 28. The 90-day period in the law will end Dec. 28.

Get Your Ya-Ya's Out

NEW YORK (AP) — The all-American look for day and elegance at night are big in spring fashions.

Designer John Anthony does crisp, bold tailoring for pants suits, but goes to very soft print dresses and translucent gowns for evening.

The translucent skirt is sheer, but not completely see-through this year. Some designers use two layers of twin-printed fabric to give a three-dimensional look when the skirt is in motion.

The puffed regency sleeve will become more important, said Alan Phillips for Jeremy at the American Designer Showings Thursday. He used this idea in printed matt jersey gowns.

Leo Narducci likes the dolman sleeve in a group of cotton jersey dresses, as well as a cabbage rose print, accented with fake flowers.

For day, every designer has his group of flag-colored red, white and blue combinations. Pants suits are on the way back in, and Narducci shows a four-piece set with red pants, and polka dotted vest, and navy blazers.

SPRINGFIELD SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

BERLIOZ

"DAMNATION OF FAUST"

TUES. • DEC. 7 • 8:30 P.M.

MUNICIPAL AUDITORIUM

MULTI-MEDIA APPROACH TO OPERA MASTERPIECE
• SPECIAL SLIDES
• SPECIAL MOVIES
• SPECIAL LIGHTING
• SPECIAL STAGING

CREATED ESPECIALLY FOR THIS PERFORMANCE BY HAMPSHIRE COLLEGE FINE ARTS DEPT.

FAMOUS GUEST SOLOISTS
METROPOLITAN and DUSSELDORF OPERAS
250 VOICES
SPRINGFIELD SYMPHONY CHORUS
AMHERST COLLEGE GLEE CLUB
MT. CALVARY BAPTIST YOUTH CHOIR

TICKETS - SYMPHONY OFFICE - 739-4728

BOOKWORM SHOPPE

HOSTING THE GOLD IN FAERY TALE, MYTH, LEGENDE, OCCULT, SPECIFIC CHARTS AND GRAPHS, ORGANICS, HERBALS, AND SOON A COMPLETE SELECTION OF OILS, BOOKS TO KEEP ONE AWAKE AND TITTILATE THE GREY MATTER ATMOSPHERES

find us at

FACES OF EARTH 159 No. Pleasant St. AMHERST

DYLAN ...FOR ALL TIME

The long-awaited collection of his definitive musical statements.

BOB DYLAN'S GREATEST HITS VOL. II including:
Watching The River Flow
Don't Think Twice, It's All Right
Lay Lady Lay
Stuck Inside Of Mobile With The Memphis Blues Again
If Not For You
KG 31120
A specially priced 2-record set

ALSO AVAILABLE

BOB DYLAN'S GREATEST HITS
including
Rainy Day Women #12 & 35
Just Like a Woman/Like a Rolling Stone
Subterranean Homesick Blues
Mr. Tambourine Man
INCLUDES DELUXE COLOR POSTER
Available Now
KCS 9463

BOB DYLAN "NEW MORNING"
INCLUDING:
SIGN ON THE WINDOW
IF NOT FOR YOU/THREE ANGELS
WENT TO SEE THE GYPSY/IF DOGS RUN FREE
KC 30290
on Columbia Records and Tapes

AVAILABLE NOW

LISTENING POST
25 So. Pleasant St.
Amherst, Mass.

The Bob Dylan Weekend on WHCN FM 106

Noon on Dec. 4th to Midnight on Dec. 5th.

What do all these people have in common? Well, for one thing they are among UMass's finest folksingers. More importantly, however, they will all be appearing at the Melville Coffee House this Saturday night at 7:00 P.M. Featured at 10:30 will be the premier performance of the Ed Vadas Electric Off-White Blues Band. (Photos by Steve Schmidt.)

There's A USSR Jewish Problem?

A contingency of students representing the five college Western Mass. Student Struggle for Soviet Jewry left for New York City last Monday. Complying with NYC Police rules, no more than twelve students protested in front of the Russian Mission.

Upon arrival, a group of policemen outnumbering the protestors almost two to one, welcomed them. After being isolated by police barriers across from the mission, members of Western Mass. SSSJ held up signs such as "Russian Rabbis mourn death of Rabbi Levin (Moscow's chief Rabbi), BOTH said mourners prayers." "let them Live as Jews or let them leave." One sign elicited many Russian smirks upon a quick glance: "IMPRISON RUSSIAN JEWS–you go back to Siberian heaven, let the Jews come to the Hell or NY Mission."

For the most part, Russian diplomats completely ignored the protest refusing to look at the signs, reflecting their attitude that there is no Jewish problem in the USSR.

In the afternoon the group protested at the Isaiah Wall directly facing the UN building. At the US Mission at the UN the protestors presented a petition with hundreds of signatures which call for the elimination of discrimination against the Jews in the Soviet Union.

The receptionist told the group that they literally have received thousands of petitions and that they did not need any more! Everyone was thrown out except one representative who presented the petitions to a higher official. Mr. Bush, US Ambassador to the UN, will present the petitions to U Thant and the UN Human Rights Committee.

Senior Women's Course

Are you a senior woman with questions about insurance, buying a car, loans, leases, etc.? A course dealing primarily with financial matters is being offered spring semester to help answer questions and inform you of the economics you will face in the years following graduation.

Dean Bruce Morse of the Department of Home Economics is the course sponsor, but will only be giving one lecture himself. Other lectures will be given by business and professional people in the surrounding community. The course is MFE 386, "Financial Management for Women", a one credit course. There will be one lecture a week Monday evening for eleven weeks. It is a pass fail course with an attendance requirement only.

If you would like further information about the course, feel free to call Wanda at 549-0095, or Janis at 549-6563.

dvp

Presents

SANDER VANOCUR

former NBC Anchorman

"1972: Does It Make a Difference?"

Saturday - December 11

7:00 Student Union Ballroom

Senior Photos

For January Grads and Second Semester "Ed-Blockers"

When: Week of Dec. 13-17

Where: Norfolk - Plymouth Rms., S.U.

How Much: $3.50 Sitting Fee

Sign Up

in the Index Office,

S.U. 401

as soon as possible

TODAY

Friday (Dec. 3)

afternoon

CLUB presents

HOT MOOSE

bluewall cafeteria 2:30-5:30

25¢ ~ Admission ~ 25¢

ATTENTION

All RSO Groups & Activities

All groups currently operating under constitutions granted by the Student Government Association (Student Senate) are required to fill out the form below. Those groups which should fill out the form include all RSO's, Activities, recent Executive Orders, and those groups who wish to apply for such status. These forms are to be returned no later than TUESDAY, DECEMBER 21, 1971, to the address below.

RETURN TO
Wm. Spinn
Govt. Affairs Comm.
Student Senate
RSO #01
Campus Center

RSO Registration Form

Name of Group _____ RSO# _____

REPRESENTATIVE _____

Rep's Add. _____ Ph.# _____

(check appropriate item)

Constituted _____ Exec. Order _____

New Group _____ Area Govt. _____ Dorm _____

FAILURE TO FILE THIS FORM WILL RESULT IN LOSS OF RSO STATUS

Christmas Cards

American Greetings The very special way to remember...

THE UNIVERSITY STORE

CAMPUS CENTER

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — Nathan Gorenstein
BUSINESS MANAGER — James Gold
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Gib Fullerton
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR — Ann Gurnett
NEWS STAFF — Barbara Brecher, Gib Fullerton, Jim Gold
DARKROOM — Steve Schmidt, Barbara Brecher, Gib Fullerton
EDITORIAL — David Williams
SPORTS — Earle Barroll
AD LAYOUT — Bill Manburg

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.
Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

Taxing Faculty

With the Student Senate budgeting process underway, we started thinking about who gets the benefits of the students' money. We decided that besides students themselves, faculty and staff members receive much of the benefits without paying for them.

Students are required to pay over seventy dollars each year through the Student Activities Tax and the Campus Center Fee. These provide services to everyone, faculty, staff, and students, such as use of the Campus Center and Student Union, checkcashing, listening to WMUA, and reading publications like the Collegian, Spectrum, and Yahoo. Only students have paid for these services or products. The entire University receives the benefits from them. Faculty and staff members do not contribute any money towards them.

We feel that those student groups presently funded by the students which also give benefits to the faculty and staff should also be paid for by the faculty and staff.

Thus, we propose taxing faculty and staff members in a way smiliar to the process of taxing students. Such a move would probably also lower the student tax. In this way the faculty and staff would be sharing their portion of the cost of the increasing activities on this campus.

We support the move by the rents and fees committee to try and get faculty and staff members to pay a Campus Center fee. We also support the move for action which has been initiated at the UMass-Boston campus to tax faculty and staff.

The time for change is now. We see no reason why the faculty and staff should continue to escape such fees when students could not. As recipients of student activities, they should be receptive of student needs

Some have argued that the feedback and communications between faculty and students is so much should feel their taxes and fees are small payment. We feel that it is part of the job of the faculty to communicate and understand students. Faculty and staff are usually in an income category higher than most students and could easily afford to pay for some of the benefits they are receiving, anyway.

Even though the tax would be funding extra-curricular activities, they are educational experiences as well. Organizations such as WMUA, and the MDC provide experience for further careers unavailable in any classroom.

A tax on faculty and staff would allow them to pay their way, something we think it is time they did.

Penalties Under Chapter 94C

Substance	Criminal Relationship(s) (Prohibited Uses/s)	Maximum Sentences First Offense	Subsequent Offenses
Heroin	Manufacture, distribute dispense, possess with intent to do same	10 yrs. Prison, or 2 1/2 yrs. jail, or $20,000, or both.	At least 10 yrs. not more than 25 yrs. and up to $30,000 fine.
	Possession	2 yrs. or $2,000 or both	2 yrs. or $2,000 or both.
	Presence	1 yr. or $1,000 or both	2 yrs. or $2,000 or both.
Opium, Morphine Cocaine and other derivatives	Manufacture, distribute dispense, possess with intent to do same	10 yrs. prison, or 2 1/2 yrs. jail or $20,000 or both.	At least 5 yrs. not more than 15 yrs. and up to $30,000 fine.
	Possession	1 yr. or $1,000 or both	2 yrs. or $2,000 or both.
Amphetamines, Barbiturates (most)	Manufacture, distribute dispense, possess with intent to do same	10 yrs. prison, or 2 1/2 yrs. jail, or $20,000 or both	At least 5 yrs. not more than 15 yrs. and up to $30,000 fine.
	Possession	1 yr. or $1,000 or both	2 yrs. or $2,000 or both.
LSD, Mescaline, Peyote, Psilo cybin, etc.	Manufacture, distribute dispense, possess with intent to do same	5 yrs. prison or 2 1/2 yrs. jail, or $10,000 or both	At least 3 yrs. not more than 10 yrs. and up to $20,000 fine.
	Possession	1 yr. or $1,000 or both	2 yrs. or $2,000 or both.
Barbital, Meprobamate, Paraldehyde, Phenobarbital, etc.	Manufacture, distribute dispense, possess with intent to do same	2 yrs. or $5,000 or both	At least 2 yrs not more than 5 yrs. and up to $10,000 fine.
	Possession	1 yr. or $1,000 or both	2 yrs. or $2,000 or both.
"Class E" substances such as paregoric, cough syrup, etc.	Manufacture, distribute dispense, possess with intent to do same	1 yr. or $2,500 or both.	At least 1 yr. not more than 2 yrs. and up to $5,000 fine.
	Possession	6 mo. or $500. or both	Same as first offense

Art Buchwald

The Lawyers Love Nixon

WASHINGTON-Awhile back I wrote an article in favor of no-fault insurance laws, which provide for people to be compensated for automobile accidents without the expensive process of litigation. To no one's surprise I received about 100 indignant letters from lawyers telling me I was trying to take the bread out of their mouths.

Well, I have good news for the legal profession. Whatever fees they lose on no-fault insurance, they will make up on President Nixon's Phase II economic plan. As a matter of fact, no matter what happens to the economy, lawyers stand to gain the most from whatever Mr. Nixon and his advisers have in store for the country.

This realization dawned on me when I tried for three days to get through to a lawyer friend of mine named Branch Brewmaker. Every time I called the line was busy, so I decided to go over to his office to find out if he was all right.

Was he all right? He was absolutely dancing around his office. "It's beautiful," he cried. "It's a lawyer's dream."

"What do you mean it's a lawyer's dream?"

"Phase II. No one understands it."

"No one?"

"No one," Brewmaker chortled. "My clients don't understand it, I don't understand it, no one in the government understands it. Do you have any idea of what this means in legal fees?"

"I guess it must mean something or you wouldn't be bouncing up and down on your couch in your stockinged feet."

"Remember six months ago? How lousy I told you things were for lawyers? Well, everything has changed. Thanks to Mr. Nixon we will soon own the world."

"Brewmaker, I can understand a certain amount of elation, but why are you throwing $5 bills out your window?"

"I'll show you why," he said, jumping off the couch. He went over to his intercom. 'Miss Ramsay, whom do we have on 'hold'? Minow of Minow Earplugs, Inc.? Good, put him on...Hello Minow, Brewmaker here... What's that? You want to know if you can raise the price of plastic earplugs? I can't tell you offhand, but I'll find out for you...What's my fee? The usual $100 an hour...Right, I'll get back to you as soon as I have the answer."

Bremaker hung up. "Now watch this," he said to me, placing a clock in front of him. He dialed a number. "U.S. government? I wish to speak to someone in charge of raising the price on plastic earplugs...No, don't hurry...I'll hold on.

An hour and a half later Brewmaker had yet to find anyone in charge of earplugs. He said to me, "It usually takes about three days to get anyone to talk to me." He laughed. "Then it takes another three days to explain the problem. Then they always demand more information. Then I have to go over and see the guy. It takes a half-day to find him and a day to get in to see him. Then when I finally do, it turns out he's the wrong guy, and I have to start all over again."

"And all the time the clock is ticking," I said.

"I've had cases since Phase II started, and I've yet to get an answer out of anyone in the government on what my client can do. My phone is ringing day and night with desperate businessmen asking for guidelines. The only thing I can do is put them on the meter."

"Nixon's been good to you," I said to Brewmaker.

Brewmaker's secretary came in. "Mr. Saladash of Saladash Corkscrews, Inc. has just hit a Cost of Living Counselor on the jaw and wants to know if you'll defend him."

Brewmaker shook his head sadly. "I told Saladash not to appear at the Cost of Living Council without a lawyer. But I guess I can't blame him. If I made corkscrews and tried to find out from the government what I could charge for them, I'd eventually hit somebody, too."

Copyright 1971, Los Angeles Times

The Controlled Substances Act

Chapter 1071 of the Acts of 1971 became law November 11, 1971, and will be effective July 1, 1972. It is called the "Controlled Substances Act" and will be known as Chapter 94C of the General Laws of Massachusetts. Most students and law enforcement people will probably refer to it as the "Drug Act". Because of the impact that this law will probably have on the campus and on the lives of younger citizens of Massachusetts, I have prepared the table at lower left as a reference guide. It is not any valid substitute for the law as written. It is intended exclusively for the purpose of helping people who are familiar with the present law to understand the new one when it become effective July 1, 1972.

The governing sections are 32 for manufacture, distribution, dispensing and possession with intent; 34 for simple possession and 35 for presence only in the case of heroin. Several points should be emphasized. First, sale is treated in the same way as gift, so profit is not an essential element. Second, possession of presumably small quanities of any "controlled substance" is treated uniformly. Third, the crime of "being knowingly present" applies only to heroin, but includes being in the company of a person known to be in possession of heroin. Fourth, any person who is once convicted of a heroin offense shall be liable, on a second narcotics (not necessarily heroin) offense, to the same penalty as if the second offense were also heroin.

Finally, the law concerning marijuana is as follows:

To manufacture, distribute, dispense, or possess with intent to manufacture, distribute, or dispense (including a counterfeit substance) is worth not more than two years or five thousand dollars fine or both and the second offense is good for not less than two years nor more than five and by a fine of not more than ten thousand dollars.

Possession of marijuana is worth six months or five hundred dollars, or both each time the offense results in a conviction. There is no "presence" charge after July 1, 1972.

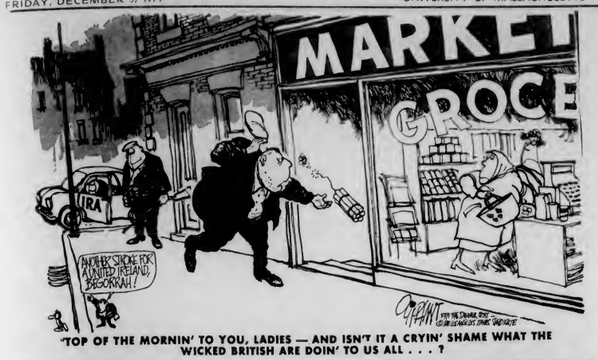
There is a special exception for first offenses exclusively involving marijuana. If a person is convicted of possession of marijuana and has never been convicted of a drug violation before (under new or old laws) the person shall be on probation with his consent. Upon successful completion of the probation, the records shall be expunged for all purposes except subsequent offenses.

Furthermore, any other first offense may be treated in the same way as a first marijuana conviction must ordinarily be treated, in the discretion of the Court.

Finally, these are some definitions with which people should be familiar.

"Manufacture"..."does not include the preparation or compounding of a controlled substance by an individual for his own use..."



"Marijuana", "all parts of the plant Cannibis sativa L., whether growing or not, the seeds thereof; and resin extracted from any part of the plant; and every compound, manufacture, salt, derivative, mixture, or preparation of the plant, its seeds or resin..."

There are risks connected with publishing information such as is contained here when it is less than the complete statute. Readers must be aware that this is an abstract intended to help make a complicated law intelligible to laymen, to put it in a usable format.

I don't think any reader can dispute the fact that while the new law, which will be effective July 1, 1972, comprises a more agreeable view toward chemical abuse in general, the law is still a stern vehicle for dramatically affecting one's goals and aims in our present social structure. Disagreement with the social structure may be thoughtful and correct to many, but the impact of a criminal conviction is real and immediate. Even with the new legislation, no person should take a unrealistic or haphazard view toward chemical abuse. The consequences remain serious ones.

Richard M. Howland
Student Senate
General Counsel

"TOP OF THE MORNIN' TO YOU, LADIES — AND ISN'T IT A CRYIN' SHAME WHAT THE WICKED BRITISH ARE DOIN' TO US ALL . . . ?

Editorial Points

What with 'It's Hell To Be Female' and its male counterpart and all the ensuing letters, we're hoping someone will come in with "It's Great To Be Neuter." Any takers? One hitch, you have to prove it unless it's obvious.

• • •

Ha, ha, SWAP Committee. Looks as though Poor Richard's and Kay Raymond caught you with your pants down.

• • •

Peter Pan Bus Lines must be optimistic, or wasteful. They put an ad in one of this week's papers about peter panning it home for the holidays. We wonder what makes them so confident.

• • •

And so we've started another season of basketball and hockey. The big questions - can Al Skinner fill Erving's sneakers? Will the Redmen do as well as they have in the last two years? And will the basketball lovers make it through the winter alive, or will they be dispatched by those of us who get tired of Let's Go Redmen?

Letters To The Editor

If He Were My My Pupil, I'd...

To the Editor:

Faculty members, like students, may get tired of being called "stupid"--"as usual," Don Glickstein adds in his comment on the new grading system. Grading is a serious matter, and name-calling is not conducive to fair-minded and reasonable discussion of the answer to the basic question, "What system is more favorable to student learning?"

I have not read the book referred to by Mr. Glickstein, but judge from his comments that it contains the usual cliches. "The myths of grading--that grades are a motivator, that they measure something, that students need grades to get into college or graduate school--are one by one debunked." I should like to ask my readers to reconsider these "myths." And in doing so, to keep the issues clear, let us assume the intelligence and good will of a majority of both faculty and students. There are doubtless exceptions in both groups, but that is another problem.

First, as to motivation. In my own college career, I liked to get high grades, and I therefore studied much harder and learned much more than I otherwise would have. Significant learning or skill is not acquired, after one's childhood years, without hard work, and most of us crave some more tangible reward than knowledge for its own sake. We naturally want some recognition. Teachers, too, want to recognize exceptional achievement by their students. A teacher perhaps enjoys giving an A as much as a student enjoys receiving one.

Second, I have never heard anyone say before that grades do not measure something. The question is, "What?" I would contend that, on the whole, they measure ability in a particular area, as well as effort. A student in an English literature course is one who has mastered the subject matter, who can organize facts and opinions, and who can communicate these in clear and forceful language. Furthermore, such judgments are by no means wholly subjective. Students who get good grades in my classes get good grades, as a rule, in the classes of my colleagues. I have also, on a number of occasions, exchanged sets of freshman themes with colleagues; invariably, we discovered a general correspondence. (The difference was that we tended to be more lenient with our own students!)

Third, no adequate substitute has been proposed. In any society, the members are judged and evaluated, and have to be. (Recognition of this fact does not imply approval of the competitive scramble for wealth and status that now dominates American society.) It seems to me that critics of the grading system always become vague about possible alternatives.

By all means, however, let us continue the search for such alternatives. From talking to students I gather that the current generation of students feels differently about grades than my generation did; that many students sincerely believe that a system of letter grades is an obstacle and not an incentive to learning. If this is the belief of the majority, then we ought to find another system. But let us proceed with some degree of mutual respect and tolerance. (I agree that the Faculty Senate is not always a model of judicious procedure; but I seem to recall reading criticisms of the Student Senate, also--and even the U.S. Senate.)

Ellsworth Barnard

Mr. Glickstein replies:

Bass, in the Journal of Educational Psychology (1951, 42) discovered that grading was more strict in early college years and standards of grading varied immensely from department to department. Dexter, in the Journal of Educational Research (1935, 28) shows that fatigue, boredom, and other pressures influence the way a teacher grades a paper. Edwards, in the British Journal of Educational Psychology (1956, 26) reports that even with training in the giving of essay tests, there is a significant degree of inconsistency between teachers grading the same tests. Kirby, in the Journal of Experimental Education (1962, 31) advises that 206 lower division instructors at San Diego State College used a wide and inconsistent variety of grading standards. Pygmalion in the Classroom by Rosenthal and Jacobson is a classic study of the self-fulfilling prophecy and its effect on teaching and grading. Starch and Elliott in School Review (1912, 1913; 20, 21) prove that even in the exact sciences of math and science, teachers' standards and grades varied significantly. Thompson, Journal of Educational Measurement (1955,49) shows that even teachers grading students in the same course grade students differently.

The scientific controlled studies go on and on, each study proving what Dr. Barnard calls "cliches". Although statistics can lie, when the evidence is so great against an antiquated practice, I am sure that most intelligent men and women will choose that evidence over the pleasant reminiscences of Dr. Barnard.

Friday's Plea

To the Editor:

Many of you who sympathize with the concern that is being expressed on our campus each Wednesday for the East Pakistani refugees (WEDNESDAY'S PEOPLE) have asked: what good will it do? There are 10 million refugees whose daily cycle of suffering and death cannot be comprehended by an academic community. And now India and Pakistan are at war and the incredible agony is yet further prolonged and intensified. Each Wednesday a few students, staff, and faculty pass by the East Pakistani Refugee table (set up every Wednesday in the Campus Center) and generously donate money, or participate in fasting, or pray privately. But even in the act of contributing the question looms: what good will it do? Sensitive persons have suggested that we have been made weary by "good causes" and the endless march of "tragedies". They point out that people are turning inward to themselves and their own immediate communities.

We too have become aware of the atmosphere. Candles, jewelry, leather belts and exotic foods "sell" better at the Campus Center tables than do frozen images of starving children or numb statistics compiled from body counts. A dormitory debates building a gymnasium on the 19th floor; another needs a new color T.V.; the pin-ball machines jangle endlessly down the hall.

Perhaps the answer to the question, "What good will it do?", is: it will help us as well as them. Can we break through the acclaimed cycle of indifference that many say is the present fad at UMASS? Or rather, what will we do to communicate the needs of the materially poor so that we might become more aware of our own spiritual poverty? Someone remarked that this is a campus where basic human concern appears sleepy-eyed each morning. Our belief is that a small diet of prayer, fasting, or donating helps us wake up.

There will be a meeting Monday, December 6th, at 4 pm in the Campus Center (room 162) to plan ways to help. We ask for your ideas as to how to encourage campus concern and stimulate support. We also will be considering holding a pre-vacation Christmas Fast. What do you think? Please do come.

Lucien Miller

Letters To The Editor

As in previous years the MDC will continue to print letters to the editor. The only requirements are that they be typed at sixty spaces, double-spaced and absolutely no longer than two pages in length. All letters must be signed and the author's address and telephone numbers must be included. No letter will be published without this information. Also, no letters will be printed without the name of the author. Please note this change in policy.

All letters are subject to editing either for content or space according to the judgment of the editors. Also, due to space limitations, we do not guarantee that all letters will be printed.

Senior Committee

By Walter E. Cronin
Editorial Staff

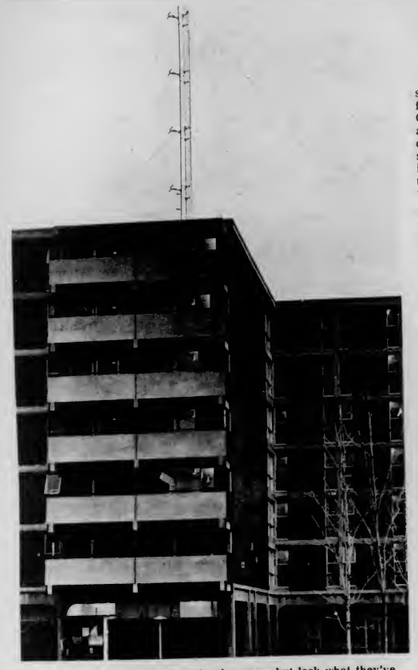
On Monday night, December 6, the second of three organizational meetings of the Senior Committee will be held at the Campus Center, room 905-909, at 7 o'clock.

"Members of the Committee shall be responsible for the planning and execution of Senior events. They shall be responsible for the allocations, budgeting, and appropriation of Senior funds..." The primary activities of the Committee concern Senior day, the class gift, and Commencement exercises.

Attendance at the first meeting was poor. Only 18 of the estimated 3,869 seniors attended. This figure is approximately one-half of 1%. To me, this indicates one of a number of things, or possibly a number of factors combined. Either the Seniors don't care, which to me is not the whole reason for the poor attendance. Or it could be that the publicity for the Committee was ineffective. Or maybe we as students are "missing the boat" as far as democratic process on campus is concerned.

As it stands now, in order to generate a Senior Committee, at least 39 Seniors, or a 1% quorum of 3,869 is required, according to the Constitution established last year.

I feel that the establishment of the Committee is only the smaller part of a larger problem. Once formed, it must act for the whole Senior class. This brings an important question to mind, namely "How can a small Committee of say fifty or seventy-five students fairly say what the Senior Class wants to do for the last days of its College activities?"



At the first meeting questions were raised as to whether or not to hold the traditional Senior day, what should the class gift consist of, what is the process for choosing individuals for honorary degrees...to name a few.

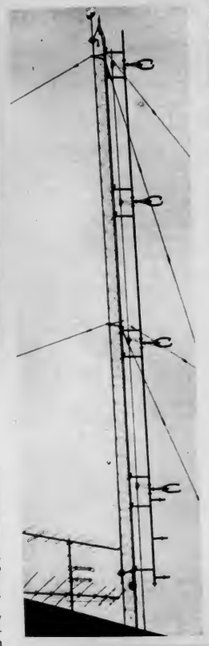
Do you, the Seniors, want to "go out in traditional style?" Or, for example, do something out of the ordinary for Senior day, such as donate the funds to charity, or have the Senior day eliminated, and have the funds absorbed by the University?

I feel that this answer is up to the graduates of 1972. In order to find out the prevailing sentiment on campus, it is first necessary to establish the Committee. Once this is effected, a polling at Registration would be taken, with the most important questions concerning the Senior class activities resolved. Then, given a representable mandate, the Committee would be able to do a more thorough and equitable job.

If proved successful, an example may be made reflecting on the governmental process at the University: Maybe we can use an alternative to the present system of "representative" government.

Dickinson may have lost an ironing room but look what they've gotten in return. Above and to the right are two views of the new antenna that will enable WMUA to broadcast at one kilowatt stereo. (Photos by Steve Schmidt)

Grad Study Information



Students considering graduate study will find the latest information on American and Canadian programs in 178 academic areas at the campus office named below. General statistical data about graduate institutions, graphs showing which universities offer work in the various major disciplines, and two-page write-ups prepared by faculty officers are contained in each of the seven volumes of the Annual Guides to Graduate Study, 1972 edition, just published.

The new Guides have been sent without charge to deans, professors, and central offices at universities all across the country, with the support and cooperation of the universities represented by full descriptions in the books. These universities include all major campuses and state systems, and their participation demonstrates their awareness of the importance of communicating to prospective students.

The underlying goal of the Guides' disciplinary arrangement and special page design is to make it possible for students to consider a maximum number of graduate school options. This is done by properly presenting the great wealth of information available today. "We believe that students should make their own conscious educational choices. The idea that only a computer can deal effectively with one's future is unsatisfactory. It should be emphasized for students that their futures are in their own hands, that the situation is completely manageable, that it's entirely possible to investigate graduate schools in a systematic and comprehensive manner and come up with a sensible choice. That's what the Guides are for." These are recent comments of Peter W. Hegener, founder and publisher of the Guides, and former director of graduate school advising at Princeton University.

All students are urged to consult their faculty adviser's copy of the Guide covering their areas of interest, or to use the set sent to:

Mrs. Dorothy B. Hardesty
Placement Officer
Career Planning and Placement Service
Whitmore Administration Building

Classics Lecture Series

Classical poetry and the teaching of Latin will be topics of three lectures sponsored this month by the UMass Classics Club.

Prof. Leo Curran of the State University of New York, at Buffalo, will speak Friday, Dec. 3., on "Obscenity as Poetry: Some Latin and English Examples." The lecture will begin at 2 p.m. in Herter Hall, room 601.

Chairman of the Classics department at SUNY, Prof. Curran has had published many articles on Latin poetry and has just completed a book on Propertius.

Tuesday, Dec. 14, at 4 p.m. in Herter Hall, room 301, Prof. Michael C. J. Putnam will talk about "The Vergilian Achievement."

Prof. Putnam, chairman of the Brown University Classics department, is an authority on Latin poetry. His publications include two books on Vergil, "The Poetry of the Aeneid" and "Virgil's Pastoral Art".

Miss Clara Ashley will present "The Structural Approach to Teaching Latin", Thursday, Dec. 16, at 3:45 p.m. in Herter Hall, room 301.

A teacher of Latin, Miss Ashley has adapted the structural approach to teaching the language on the high school level. She will speak especially to those interested in careers as teachers of Latin or foreign languages.

All lectures are free to the public.

Learn to Drive
AMHERST AUTO SCHOOL
34 Main Street
256-6066

KNOCKED FLAT...

...BY HIGH AUTO INSURANCE COSTS ?
get the lowest legal rates
for all vehicles
and all coverages
with easy monthly payments
NOW'S THE TIME FOR 1972 AUTO INSURANCE!
TKO YOUR INSURANCE PROBLEMS with
TEKOA INSURANCE AGENCY
Avoid downtown Spfld. parking headaches in WEST SPRINGFIELD at 366 MEMORIAL AVE. Opp. Century Shopping Plaza! Free parking for over 100 cars!
WESTFIELD 10 BROAD ST. Next to P.O.
NORTHAMPTON 160 PLEASANT ST. Opp. N'hamp. Jr. College
FAIRVIEW 1847 MEMORIAL DR., On North-South Hwy.
EVERETT J. O'CONNOR INSURANCE AGENCY
HOLYOKE . . . 205 HIGH ST. . . . Next to Holyoke Nat'l. Bank

Make it a Special Christmas . . . Make those Special Gifts yourself!

Knit or crochet a shawl, vest, hat, scarf, sweater . . .

Sew up a quick long skirt, tie, robe, dress, shirt . . .

We have the nicest materials -- you supply the love.

FASHION FABRICS OF AMHERST
103 North Pleasant St.
Special Sale Until Christmas

...DON'T WAIT UNTIL AFTER CHRISTMAS TO SAVE!

1/3 OFF* STARTS TODAY

AS ALWAYS, A FINE LINE OF INDIAN PRINT DRESSES -SHORT & FULL LENGTH

ON ALL
• PANTS • HATS
• POSTERS
• TOPS • JERSEYS

AND THE BEST SELECTION OF RECORDS & PIPES IN TOWN

SUPERFICIAL SMILE BEHIND DANGLING CONVERSATION
STARTING WED. DEC. 8, MON-FRI. TILL 9:00! SAT. TO 5:30

Now You See It, Now You Don't

Andre Kole, one of the world's foremost inventors of magical effects and billed as "America's leading illusionist," will appear in the Cage, Thursday, December 9 at 8:00 P.M. Tickets are $2.00 at the door, or $1.00 in advance at a table in the Campus Center Concourse or by calling 549-6149.

Kole, whose performances have taken him to all 50 states and Canada and to almost 50 other countries, has appeared on national television in 38 countries. He has given special performances before presidents, ambassadors, and other civic and government officials. In one year alone, he spoke to more than 50 million persons through personal and television appearances.

Since the beginning of his career, Kole has developed his own illusions. In one year, he invented more than 1,000 magical effects and ideas. For a number of years, he had his own company which built and sold some of his inventions to magicians throughout the world.

For the past ten years, Kole has devoted the major portion of his time to performing and speaking on the leading college and university campuses of the world. Two years ago, Andre Kole performed here in Bowker Auditorium before a packed audience of over 900 people. His performances include demonstrations of clairvoyance, extrasensory perception and dematerialization, a demonstration and expose of spiritualism, and a discussion of predictions for the future.

Kole's tours are made in conjunction with Campus Crusade for Christ International, an interdenominational student Christian movement active on hundreds of United States campuses and in more than half of the major countries of the world.

The Newman Club Announces Its Annual Book Fair and Christmas Store
Books - Posters - Medalions
Christmas Cards - Centerpieces - Candles
Contemporary and Religious Items
Open after all the Sat. & Sun. masses
Now till Christmas in the Newman Center Library

WMUA

TONIGHT ON 91.1 FM
7:00 p.m. EVENING NEWS - 30 minutes with emphasis on local reporting.
7:30 p.m. RADIO THEATRE - this new program is part of an experimental series in live radio theatre.
8:00 p.m. UJAMAA DRUM - the popular black program with jazz, soul, poetry and black commentary plus news prepared by the news staff of Ujamaa Drum. (three hours)
11:00 p.m. LATE NIGHT NEWS - another full half hour report with a five minute recap at 11:25.
11:3. p.m. THE JOHN LORING SHOW - music til 3:00 a.m.
1:00 a.m. THE BEST OF SHERLOCK HOLMES - a half hour radio drama from oldtime radio.
1:30 a.m. John Loring returns with music.

Action

Interviews for the University Year for Action Program Mon. Dec. 6th-Dec. 10th, 513 E. Pleasant Street. Appointments not necessary.

SUNDAY NITE
Brady's Bunch
at the CHEQUERS

HATCH Spaghetti SPECIAL
Heaping Platter of Hot Spaghetti covered with Meat Sauce plus Hot Garlic Bread
ONLY 59¢

Served in the Student Union Hatch
every Saturday from 5 p.m. - 10 p.m.

MANUFACTURERS CLOSE-OUT
Standard Pro 2000 Stereo Cassette Deck
Rated as last year's finest.

Designed to run with TDKSD Tape.

Amherst Audio has limited supply of these fine machines.

Factory sealed and guaranteed.

$90.00

SPECIFICATIONS

Power Source	AC 120 V 60 Hz
Power Consumption	20 W
Recording System	AC Biasing Dual Track 4 Track 2 Channel Stereo/Monaural
Erasing System	AC Erasing
Recording Time	TDK SD C90
Semi-conductors	Transistors 20 Diodes 18
Input Terminals	●Mic. Jack X2 Max. Sensitivity 0.3mV Agreeable Impedance 600~2 KΩ ●Aux. Jack X2 Max. Sensitivity 70 mV Input Impedance 100 KΩ
Output Terminals	●Output Jack X2 ●Output Level Hight 0.6 V Medium 0.2 V Low 0.07 V Agreeable load impedance 100 KΩ ●Stereo Headphone Jack X1 Load Impedance 8Ω
Tape Speed	4.8 cm/sec (1-⅞ ips)
Wow Flutter	0.2%
S/N Ratio	45 dB
Frequency Response	30~15 KHz
Total Distortion Ratio	2% Less than
Erasing Effectivity	60 dB More than
Dimensions	328 mm (12-59/64") W×98.5 mm (3-7/8") H ×227 mm (8-15/16") D
Weight	4.5 kg (9.9 lbs)

LIST PRICE $169.98

AMHERST AUDIO

ROOM-CHOOSING

For The Spring Semester

DATES: Monday, December 6 - Friday, December 10

Monday, December 6

- students who wish to remain in their present rooms should notify their head of residence on this date

Tuesday, December 7

- students who wish to move to available space within their present residence hall may sign up with their head of residence on this date

Wednesday and Thursday, December 8 and 9

- students who presently reside in a residence hall who wish to move to another residence hall may sign up with the head of residence of the new residence hall on these dates

Friday, December 10

- students presently residing off-campus who wish to move on-campus may sign up with the head of residence on this date

Note: Students who have not paid the Room Security Deposit will not be reserved a residence hall space.

5 College Area Bulletins

Have you ever gone to an air meet: If not, here's your opportunity. The Collegiate Flying Club is hosting a regional air meet all day Saturday starting at 9 A.M. at Turners Fall Municipal Airport in Turners Fall. This is the first time in this area that flying clubs at various colleges and universities have had a chance to compete with one another.

The air meet will consist of three events: power-on and power-off spot landings and a bombing competition. Marks are placed on the runway and it is up to the pilot to land at the center line. For each line away from the center mark, points are added to his score and that of the team. The fewer points you have, the better chance of winning. The bombing event requires the pilot to fly over a mark at 200' to 400' and his bombardier to drop tagged water ballons on the area.

The colleges use Cessna 150's and Cherokee '40's and one college is to bring a DC 3. This is the first big event the Club has had and it needs backing. It's free and refreshments will be sold. Take North Pleasant Street to Route 63. Follow R63 for about ten miles and turn left at the Lake Pleasant sign. Follow this road to the end. Take a left, and a mile or so on the right is the airport.

***

Congressman Parren J. Mitchell (D-Md.), a member of the U.S. Congressional Black Caucus, will speak on "Black Politics in the 1970's" at Amherst College Sunday.

The first-term Democrat from Baltimore will speak at 1 p.m. in Johnson Chapel. The event is open to the public without charge.

Active in the first session of the 92nd Congress, Congressman Mitchell was particularly interested in the areas of human rights and the reordering of domestic and military priorities. Prior to his election to the Congress, Congressman Mitchell served as the director of the Community Action Agency in Baltimore and as a head of the Maryland Human Relations Commission. A former professor of sociology at Morgan State College, the Congressman was the first black to be admitted to the graduate school of the University of Maryland.

In the Congress, Mitchell serves on the Banking and Currency Committee and the Committee on Small Businesses. He successfully introduced an amendment in the former body exempting low income workers from the President's wage-price freeze. He is also chairman of the Congressional Black Caucus' subcommittee on black enterprise.

***

WFCR, Five College Radio, which has been off the air since 11:30 Wednesday morning, expects to return to the air Monday, December 6, according to the UMass News Bureau.

The cause of their silence, said a news bureau spokeswoman, was a burned out transmission line. A special replacement part is being flown in from Illinois.

WE INVITE YOU TO

VIGIL

Sunday December 5 marks the beginning of the sixth year

AMHERST WEEKLY VIGIL FOR PEACE IN SOUTHEAST ASIA

Amherst Town Common . 12 p.m. Sundays

Sponsored by the Peace and Social Concerns Committee of the Mt. Toby Monthly Meeting of Friends

MDC CLASSIFIED

AUTOS FOR SALE

'68 Firebird, perfect condition, 37,000 miles, vinyl roof, automatic, 350, V8, good tires, $1800 or offer. Call Don, 253-2779. tf12-6

'65 Volkswagen Bug, good condition, new engine, generator, brakes, $500. Call Tom between 4 and 6 at 253-5345. tf12-8

1971 Toyota Mark II. 2dr., 1900 cc eng., 110 h.p., 4 speed, std., AM/FM radio, 5 good tires & 2 new snows, 12000 mi. Call evenings 549-4924. tf12-7

1965 Corvair Monza, 4 speed, AM-FM radio, good condition, no rst, good tires, new exhaust and clutch, $150. 253-5344. tf12-7

'60 Rambler good engine, no trans., extra wheels and tires. Will sell all or parts $50 or best offer. Call Zig 256-6650 after 6. tf12-3

1941 Cadillac Antique Classic. Engine and interior perfect. Must sell, only $800. Call Ron at 549-0472 eves. tf12-3

1965 Pontiac, perfect cond., completely winterized, new tires. $485. 1965 Dodge runs well $270. Call eves 1-536-8577 or 549-6360. tf12-3

70 cyclone G.T., auto. trans., p. steering, P. brakes, 351, cbbl., snow tires, incl., exc. condition, low mi, Call 6-7132. tf12-7

64 Ford Econoline, good engine, 74,000 mi. Best offer. Lenny 546-5388. tf12-7

65 pont., runs well, need money, leaving, make offer over $200 and you take it away. Full Power. 536-8809. 12-3

1965 Pontiac Tempest convertible, new battery, 5 tires, book value $500, sell for $250. Call Matt 538-2354 (MHC). 12-3

FOR SALE

2 Optimus 1 Speakers, 4 mos. old, were $160, only $100. Call 546-9804. tf12-3

Gibson 335, early 60's, perfect cond., $300. Also Fender super-reverb amp $200. Call Steve 546-6748. tf12-8

Upright piano, excel. condtn. Best off. 549-4037. tf12-6

Men's suede fringe vest size large; men's ski boots size 11, $15; double burner hot plate. Call Mike 256-6408 leave mess. tf12-6

2 VW Continental snow tires with rims, used 500 miles, like new, $30. Wall 369-4413. Fits 68-67 VW's. tf12-3

Dunham Hiking Boots. Women's size 8. New and never used, tan suede. Call 549-6514. tf12-6

Guitars: Acoustic, Electric, Classical. All way below retail. Sale on some. Prices start at $30. Call: 546-7072 or visit 209 Webster. tf12-3

Fender Bandmaster speakers & cabinet. Gibson amp with reverb. Other accessories also for stereo. Call Jack W. 545-0070. tf12-6

Tyrallan boots by Dunham, discount prices. Call 549-6074. tf12-6

New double burner hot plate. $15.00. Call 549-6071. tf12-8

Guitars! Estrada Classical, nylon strings, excellent condition, $65; Ties Co electric, new $50, will bargain. Call Tom 6-9065. tf12-6

Camera for sale Yashica a twin lens reflex with tripod, BC flash and bag. Asking $45. Cliff 328 Puffton Village 549-6537. Call after 6 p.m. tf12-6

National Ski Patrol belt, bandages, splints etc. Still intact. Used 4 times. Blue Navyghyde $10. Call Craig 586-2562. tf12-6

New and used cameras and photo equipment bought and sold. Lang's Photo 253-3148. tfsem

Fisher stereo compact and skis, boots, poles, all like new. Call Bob eves 549-6865. 12-3

Kowa Setrz SLR Camera 135, 85, 35 mm lens, original cases, books, and boxes. New $370, asking $200 or best offer. Call John 546-7487. tf12-8

Sleeping bag $10, Baritone Ukelele $15. Call mornings 253-3020. tf12-7

1 ear Jet X Track Auto Tape Deck with two rear deck mount speakers $45. Call evenings 549-4924. tf12-3

Siamese cat, beautiful seal point, $20.00. Call 549-4974. tf12-6

Skis for sale, head 360, exc. cond., Marker heel, Nevada toes $65. Call 545-6172 before 10 a.m. or late p.m. Ask for Jim. tf12-3

1969 Yamaha DT1 B 250c.c. Enduro knobby tire, gd. cond. Call Nina 546-9015. 12-3

X-Mas Time-Suede makes ideal gifts. I have suede, pants jackets, skirts, midi's and skins. Wholesale prices. Jon, 115 Chadbourne, 5-2649. tf12-7

1965 V.W. Bug for sale, very good condition. New brake job. 1970 rebuilt engine 4 good tires (2 snow) excellent body, radio heater. 253-9610 after 5 p.m. tf12-3

RCA 8/tk. Tape Pl. 1 yr. old, gd. cond., lg sel. tapes. Incl., $150. New, best offer. Call Sue 253-9849 anytime. tf12-3

64 VW Bug, new bat., tires, rebuilt eng., new red paint $550, sun roof, ex. cond. Call Jerry 545-2501, 786-1751 after 5 p.m. tf12-3

Gibson Thunderbird Bass; w., case, $135.00, or best offer. Also used Rock records, exc. cond., $1.25/rge. Call 253-5045, keep trying. tf12-3

Discount Stereo Components, compacts, T.V.'s 20-40% off list price. Factory sealed and warranty. Jim Jensen 586-1366. tf12-3

Gold Band Diamond Ring. Can be seen 12 noon to 2:00 p.m. Call Nancy 5-2560. tf12-3

Guitars: Martin, Yamaha, Aria, Harmony also Dulcimers and Autoharps. Find out what you want, then see me for better price. John 6-5401. tf12-7

30%-50% Discount Stereo Components, all major brands. Also: 8-track tapes. Baker Stereo. Call Barry or Dave 546-6065 4-5:30. tf12-3

PERSONAL

To Gruff Bear-it's been a good 1st. Let's keep it that way. Happy Dec. 4. Honey Bear. 12-3

Zoomer-How can I be D.O.T.W. when you already are Dinkus Rexilius?-SDS-Crack. 12-3

Bill-Don't forget your pill. If it doesn't make you better your body shirt will. Your 32. 12-3

The Shadow knows. tf12-3

Ron Herbert G. student please call Nina 546-9013. tf12-3

The Shadow Knows. tf12-3

ROOMMATES WANTED

F. rmmt. to share 2 bdrm. apt., frnsho, frplc, grg, 2 firs. of old hse, Dec. or Jan. Judy 13 Middle St., Hdly., 586-3784, $130 dp/mo. ht incl. tf12-6

Female roommate to share room in lg. farmhouse $50/month plus utilities. Call 549-0536. tf12-3

Puffton Apt. needs 2 roommates in Jan. Call 549-6822 eves. tf12-6

Female roommate to share Townhouse apt., $76/mo. - own room. Call 256-6467 avail. Dec. 1. tf12-7

I need a place for second semester. Own room preferred, male, over 21. 549-6570. tf12-7

Roommate wanted: available for second semester. Apt. two miles from campus. Call 256-8020 after 6 p.m. David. tf12-8

Married student couple will share apt. with girl student. Located behind Orchard Hill. Rent $50-$60 per month. 549-6416. tf12-3

Woman and cat (spayed) need a room in house or apt. in Amherst area. Can afford up to $75. 00/month. Call 549-6514. tf12-6

We don't discriminate 2F or 2M wanted for lg. bedroom w/bath in 3 bedroom Puffton Apt. rent $55/mo. 549-6057. tf12-9

SERVICES

Typing done with Olympia Elec. Typewriter. Paper supplied without charge. 50¢ per page. Call 549-1009 Presidential Apartment. tf12-7

Passports & grad school pictures-24 hr. service Lang's Photo 253-3148. tfsem

Amherst Audio services. Stereo components, tape decks for home or car. 197 No. Pleasant St. 256-8133. tf5-12

Grand opening, Mike's speed equipment, starts Wednesday. One case of Valvoline Oil, one Grant Steering Wheel Kit to be given away, Rt. 9, Hadley, 586-3950. tf12-7

Taking orders for handmade leather bags and things. Order now, get before Christmas. Reasonable prices. 549-6331. tf12-8

Babysitting in my home anytime: weekends, nights. Call Pam at 536-8074. tf12-3

FOR RENT

One bedroom apt. in Puffton Village dishwasher, disposal, avail. Jan. 1. Take over lease. Please come to 270 Puffton and ask for Bill or Bob. tf12-8

1 bdrm. effic. apt., avail. Dec. 1 inclu all util., exc. gas. $110 mo., partly furn. 85 No. Whitney St., Apt. B-1. Call 253-2702. tf12-3

6 bedrms., 2 baths, kitchen & rec. room in Holyoke, 14 miles from U. of M. All util., ex. phone. Much Furn. $300 per month. Call 323-7003. tf12-8

1 bdrm. effic. apt., avail. Dec. 1, inclu all util., exc. gas. $110 mo., partly furn. 85 No. Whitney St., Apt. B-1. tf12-3

TYPING

Typing-theses, dissertations, etc. Fast, accurate, experienced. Have Math and Chem. symbols. Call 253-3091. tf12-11

ROOM WANTED

2 male students want 2 single rooms for 2nd. semester. Can pay $80, $65. Please call 546-5636, ask for Mike, evenings. tf12-3

MOVIE

"CANDY" STARS EWA AULIN, RINGO, BRANDO, HUNDREDS MORE. MUSIC BY STEPPENWOLF & THE BYRDS. (IN COLOR 1968). "CANDY" SAT., DEC. 4, MAHAR, 6:30-8:45-11:00. tf12-3

"Wholeearth image Language" multi-projection film slide environmenta by Barry Schonhaut, Wed., Dec. 8 at 8 & 9:30 p.m. Thompson 106 50¢. tf12-8

When comedy was king-Laurel & Hardy-Keaton-Chaplin & others, Thomp 104, Thurs. & Fri., Dec. 2&3, 7&9 p.m. 50¢. 12-3

HELP WANTED

Live-in woman for infant care. Will prov. in return pvt. rm, cooking facil., semi-pvt. bath, living area furn., 2 1/2 mi. from camp. 549-1112. tf12-9

WANTED

Flute - Clarinet - Sax - Jazz - Classical. Andy Flacks 655-8079. tf12-8

Band wanted to play the night of Dec. 18 for Beta Chi Christmas Party. Call Joe 549-0130 after 6 p.m. and give price. tf12-8

Wanted A or B Psych Research Paper, 10-15 pages, almost any topic. Will pay. Call Kathy 549-6506. tf12-6

English term paper on pertinent moral issue, will pay. Call Joan 253-7148. tf12-3

Ride to Northampton Sat. morning for 8:30, foreign service exam. Call Beth at 253-5258 evening. 12-3

Ride to Wisconsin X'mas vacation. Call Singh 6-8930. tf12-7

APT. WANTED

Puffton sublet wanted. 1-bedroom for second semester. 549-6570. tf12-6

Wanted apt. in center of Amherst for spring semester, reasonable rent is a must. Call Craig eves. 586-2562. tf12-4

Wanted 2 bedroom apartment in Puffton Village starting in Jan. or Feb. Call Mark at 256-8723 after 6 p.m. tf12-3

APTS. FOR RENT

2 bedroom apt., Squire Village, couples/married? Available Jan. 1, rent $190 includes utilities. Call 665-3218 or 665-2203. tf12-3

MT. SUGARLOAF APTS. Avail. Jan 1, lg. 2 bdrm util. included. air-cond., pool $165. Call Skibiski Realtors 253-7222, eve. 253-2626. tf12-22

LECTURE NOTES

S.E.S Rm. 318, Student Union, has notes for Anthro 104, Bot 101, Econ 125, 126, Geol 101, Micro 140, Phil 105, Psch and Soc 101. tf12-3

Lecture notes are available for Psych 262, 263, 276, 290, 301, 362, Soc. 256, Zoo 101, 135, and others. SES Room 318 Student Un. tf12-3

GARAGE FOR RENT

Garage for rent, store your classic, sports, or race car for the winter. Call Jeff at 253-7700 leave name & number. tf12-7

FREE

Free kittens, 9 weeks old, trained, 256-6155 or 545-0000 Jim. tf12-3

Kittens, 6 weeks, weaned & trained, 4 black, 2 tigers, 549-6079. tf12-3

Free male barkless Basenji to a good home. Has had all shots and is registered. Housebroken. Call after 5:30 665-2931. 12-3

TRAVEL

Nassau-$149, from Boston & N.Y., hotel flight, transfers. 12/28-37, 12/23-30, 12/27-1/3 Ski-Australia-$325, 15 days, flight, hotel, meals, transfers, Insbruk, deluxe package. London-$167, flights in January. Call-Student Flights 584-1050. tf12-15

Crimson Travel offers low cost spring vacation trips to Bermuda and Nassau. For more info. call Rich Margil, 412 Dwight 545-0791. tf12-10

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES

Play music in a band? interested in skiing? Combine the two in the greatest business opportunity yet! Needs solid musicians for winter. Have 549-6679. tf1210

SUMMER JOB OPPORTUNITIES

Complet list of businesses requiring summer employees-waiters-waitresses-kitchen help-clerks-camp councilors-chambermaids, etc. Includes application form. Send $2.00 to: STUDENT JOB OPPORTUNITY BOOKLET P.B. 1. Box 11-c, Orleans, Mass. 02653. tf12-3

LOST

Anyone finding red wallet belonging to Marilyn Kennedy mail to 26 Main St., Amherst. ID's very important. tf12-8

Yang is lost again, large, short, blond hair dog, lovable, affectionate and missed by all of us. Please call Stu at 546-6740. tf12-3

JOBS

International Jobs -Europe, S. America, Asia, Aust., USA. Openings in all fields-Soc. Sci, Bus, Sci, Engineers, Ed, etc. Alaska Construction & Pipe Work. Earnings to $500 weekly. Summer or permanent.

Paid expenses, Bo nuses, travel. Complete current info- only $3. Money back guar. Write now! International Emp. Box 721-M516, Peabody Mass. 01960. tf1210

ENTERTAINMENT

Rock Band Phoenix, now available for your xmas party. Good hard driving dance music. Call Carl at 253-0371 for information. tf12-5

STUDENTS BOOK MATCHING

Register your book in S.U. Rm. 310. Every student with your course next semester will need your books save $ money, sell direct. tf-sem.

Notices

ATTENTION TWINS:
Important survey being done--please call Jean (69678) if you qualify.

BELCHERTOWN VOLUNTEERS:
There will be a bus leaving Whitmore for the State school at 12:45 on Saturday. All new volunteers welcome.

BIBLE STUDY:
Where did I come from? Where am I going? Why am I here? We'll answer these and more Monday nights 7:30-9 in CC 904-908. Bibles provided or bring your own. Free.

CHRISTIANS:
Bus leaving for Florence Cong. on Sunday from in front of the Newman Ctr. at 8:35; the bus station opp. Morrill at 8:37; Hamlin at 8:40 and Emerson on Univ. Dr. at 8:45.

COFFEE HOUSE:
The Really Big Shoe--Coffee house at Cance house, SW, 8 p.m. on Friday. Refreshments served.

CONCERT:
Jonathan Edwards and Bill Workmen in concert on Tuesday, Dec. 7 in SU Ballroom. Tickets in RSO office.

GORMAN HOUSE BABYSITTING SERVICE:
Do you need a babysitter? Available names and telephone number registered in Gorman. Call 5464546 or 5469537.

SPECIAL MELVILLE COFFEE HOUSE:
Saturday at 7 p.m. Featuring the new Ed Vardas Electric Off-White Blues Band. In the Melville Dateroom. All are welcome.

NEWMAN CLUB:
A Book Fair will be held in the Newman Ctr. this Sat. from 9:30-8 p.m. and Sunday from 8-to 1 pm and 7-8 pm.

OPEN HOUSE:
Open house at TEP, 418 N. Pleasant St. on Friday at 8:30 to ?

SWINGING SINGLES--OVER 21 CLUB:
Meeting in Alumni Hall 9 pm Friday. "Oldie But Goodie Night" Refreshments will be served.

PROJECT TEN:
People interested in joining Project Ten, the University's "experimental college", stressing creativity, self-directed learning and freedom of choice, should visit Pierpont in Southwest, the Project office, and pick up an application. For any questions, call 5450871 10 am to 5 pm.

SOUTHWEST RESIDENTS:
Come help build the Yurt, Thursday thru Sunday. 8 to 15 people are needed per hour. 9-4 pm. Sign up sheets are available in John Adams lobby. The Yurt will be located in the Southwest corner in back of Pierpont. Thanx.

STUDENT ART ASSOCIATION:
All students who want their work in the first show of the Art Assoc. should bring their work to the Student Union Gallery Saturday morning at 9 pm. Prints and drawings should be framed if possible.

SWEET CORN THEATRE WORKSHOP:
Sunday at 2 pm in CC 174. New comers welcome--Free--Come see. Only 7 more.

LOST:
In area of Puffton, grey tiger striped long-haired 5 mo. old male kitten. Pink flea collar. Please call 5491759.

FOUND:
Two or 3 mo. old puppy in vicinity of Goodell Labrary. Call George eves. 3237304.

Hitchiker thumbing to Lynnfield Dec. 1 left glasses in my car. Call 617-6963738.

Contact lenses, in the Goodell Library office Lost and Found, 50284.

Tape cartridge, in a parking lot, about 4 wks. ago. Call Sue at 61431.

Pair of gloves Wednesday in Bartlett Aud. Call 5466405.

Female kitten, 9 wks. old, house broken, grey tiger with orange spots. Call 5862492, after 5 pm.

Chi Omega pinky ring in Goessman 256. Contact CC lost and found.

PINNINGS:
Thomas Parnell, '73, PLP to Marlene Nahabedian, '74, SSS.

Donna Petzold, '74, Van Meter No. to Edward Jordan, Theta Chi, Duke University.

ENGAGEMENTS:
Ann Chandonait, '73, Van Meter No. to David Rodriguez, Lexington.

Ruth Goodwin, '74, Van Meter No. to Steven Callahan, U.S. Navy.

Marilyn Boyd, '72, Van Meter No. to James Thompson, Washington State.

Mary Ellen Borteck, '72, Crampton to David Levine, '72, Kappa Sigma.

Paula J. Gemborys, '72, Pi Beta Pi to Stephen D. Chase, '72 Phi Mu Delta.

Patricia Holland, '73, Melville to Edward Hmieleski, Northampton.

Marilyn Clinch, '73, Dickenson to William Rapp, '73, Dickenson.

Beverly R. Swartz, '72, Sigma Delta Tau to Allen J. Goldberg, '71, UMass.

Jean Liddy '72, IGU to Bill Goolishian, '72, UMass Boston.

Kodak
• SALES & REPAIRS CAMERAS ACCESSORIES • FILM PROCESSING
LANG'S PHOTO
• AGFA • NIKON • MINOLTA • PRAKTICA • SAWYER • FAMICONI • BRAUN . . . and others
STUDIO
• RENTALS OF STILL & MOVIE EQUIPMENT
• SPECIALISTS IN CUSTOM PHOTO FINISHING (COLOR & BLACK & WHITE)
COMPLETE STOCK OF DARKROOM EQUIPMENT & MATERIALS
"Want To Learn Photography? JOIN OUR CLUB!"
We Have the Service You've Been Looking for 253-3148
460 West St., South Amherst - Route 16 and 183 No. Pleasant St. (next to Whole Wheat Trading Co.)
BANKAMERICARD

Crossword Puzzle

ACROSS
1 Animal's foot
4 Lane
8 Ward off
12 The self
13 Three-toed sloth
14 Great Lake
15 Ventilate
16 End
18 Fees
20 Narrated
21 Note of scale
22 Equality
23 Greenland settlement
27 Possesses
29 Deface
30 Delineate
31 Conjunction
32 Place
33 Dance step
34 Babylonian deity
35 Boundary
37 Uppermost part
38 Snake
39 Prepare for print
40 Free of
41 Indefinite article
42 Mountains of Europe
44 Sojourn
47 Sieves
51 Males
52 Tense
53 God of love
54 Emmet
55 Toward shelter
56 Slave
57 Caustic substance

DOWN
1 Fuel
2 Exchange premium
3 Spheres
4 Places
5 Chemical suffix
6 Intractable person
7 Wit
8 Wheel protectors
9 Period of time
10 Insect egg
11 River in Scotland
17 Prefix: not
19 Behold!
22 Stroke
24 Symbol for tantalum
25 High cards
26 Pile
27 Pit
28 Dry
29 Encountered
30 Hit lightly
32 Locate
33 Seed container
36 Note of scale
37 Masonic doorkeepers
38 Beast
40 Hindu queen
41 Hebrew month
43 A state (abbr.)
44 The caama
45 Negate
46 Heraldry: grafted
47 Music: as written
48 Hindu cymbals
49 Regret
50 King Arthur's lance

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

L	E	A	S	H		M	A	J	O	R
S	E	N	I	L	E		A	B	I	D	E	D
O	G		T	A	R	S		M	I	L	E
A	I	L		T	O	T	A	L		N	I	L
R	O	L	E		N	O	T	E	S		S	A
S	N	A	P	S		W	E	A	L	T	H	Y
		M	O	T	E		S	P	A	R
L	E	A	D	E	R	S		S	P	E	E	D
E	M		E	L	I	T	E		S	E	R	E
A	B	A		E	N	A	T	E		S	O	N
S	E	L	L		G	A	R	S		D	T
T	R	A	I	L	S		N	I	E	C	E	S
S	I	E	G	E		A	C	T	E	D

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 3

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SYDNEY OMARR ☆

Leo is naturally optimistic; there always is a "party in the wings." Leo is life and sun; Leo is the show and the magnetism that makes the world continue to whirl.

*****

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Basic issues are spotlighted. These include home, property, relations with older person. Real estate opportunity could be in picture. Stress the practical. Leave speculation for another time.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Accent on visits, special contacts, ability to get ideas into action. You get reimbursed for efforts. Some who seemed indifferent now express enthusiasm. Support comes from unusual source.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Money comes your way. Project is completed. You gain added recognition. Finish rather than initiate activity. Aries plays prominent role. Be vital, active and alert. Pounce on opportunity.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Lunar cycle high; circumstances favor your efforts. Take initiative. Lead rather than follow. Emphasize independence, originality. Take a chance on ideas, abilities. Purchase apparel.

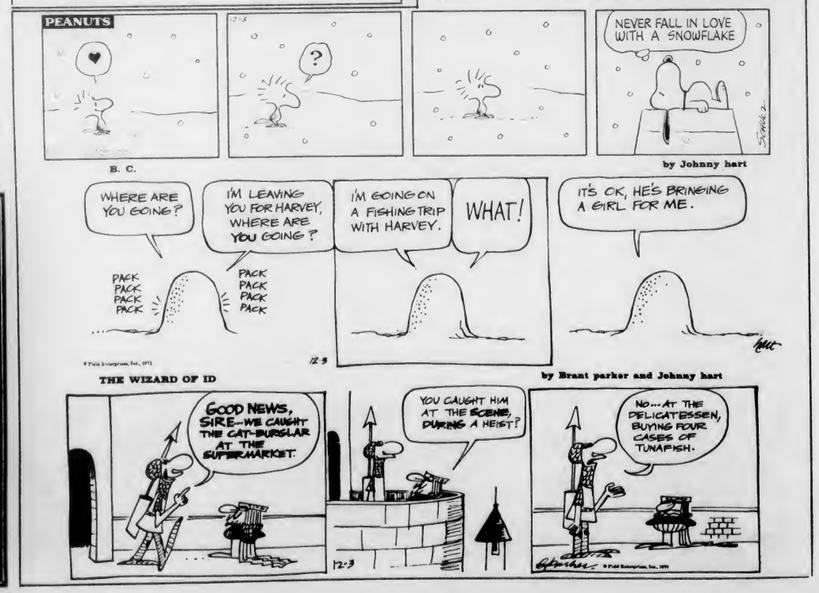
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Charitable projects, theater, romantic illusions are featured. You may have to work behind scenes. Not easy for you but it is now necessary. Prepare. Plant seeds. Make contacts.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Accent on friends, hopes, special desires. You learn something more about income which comes from professional endeavors. Social contact is valuable. Be available. See and be seen. Get around.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Ambitions can be fulfilled. Key is to be thorough. One in position of authority now is close observer. Be confident without being arrogant. Do what must be done--and be efficient.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Good lunar aspect now coincides with journeys, extra-curricular studies. Exchange ideas. Get thoughts on paper. Prepare formal. Fine for submitting manuscripts for publication. Spread influence.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You may be concerned with what is obscured or hidden. Occult intrigues. Money earned by mate or partner comes up for discussion. Family affairs dominate. Budget is talked about and revised.



CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Lie low. Do more listening than asserting. Learn through observation. Heed inner voice. Check legal angles of any enterprise. Mate or business partner asks penetrating questions. Be prepared.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You may want to lie low and live high. But key is moderation, proper pacing and timing. Traveling relative may be exaggerating special reports. Avoid extravagance. Keep medical appointments.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Accent on children, creative endeavors. You gain by backing your own hunches. Others now come to you for advice. Be helpful, but refuse to get involved in lover's quarrel. You will comprehend.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: you laugh a great deal, but you also cry on the inside. Very few persons know the real you. This is partly because you don't always understand yourself. Recent changes at home work to your benefit. You enter cycle now which does lead to self-discovery. Not all a bed of roses but ultimate gain and growth are indicated.

Copyright 1971, Gen. Fea. Corp.

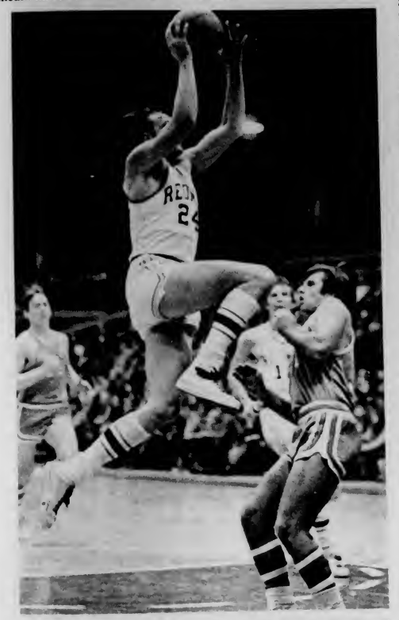
40 SENIORS are needed for an effective SENIOR COMMITTEE.
Next meeting will be held Mon. Dec. 6 at 7 p.m. in Rm. 905-909 C.C.

Frosh Hoopmen Host Dartmouth

By FRED ROSENTHAL

After an impressive opening game victory over the St. Anselm's JV's on Wednesday, the UMass freshmen basketball team will take on the Dartmouth frosh tomorrow night at the Cage at 5:30 p.m.

Like the UMass frosh, Dartmouth has played only one game. That was against the St. Michael's JV's; and Dartmouth came out on top by a score of 117-92.



Although the UMass frosh will have a definite height advantage (Dartmouth's tallest player is 6'4), Dartmouth is a fast team. And, as is indicated by the score of their first contest, they are capable of scoring a lot of points.

The Little Indians are a pressing team and like the UMass varsity have a pretty deep squad. Against St. Michael's Dartmouth's high scorer was a reserve forward, Ken Bohlin, who scored 30 points in his debut. Bohlin is from West Boylston, Mass.

UMass will most likely start the same lineup they started against St. Anselm's: Jim Burke and Tom Gillams at the forwards, John Murphy at center, and Mike Flanagan and Bill Endicott at the guards.

In the opener against St. Anselm's John Murphy led all scorers and rebounders with 25 and 13 respectively. Endicott had 22 and Burke had 18...The frosh shot about 50 percent from the floor in the first game with Murphy leading the way 11 for 16; Endicott shot 10 for 17 and Burke shot 8 for 17.

Reserve forward Dave Dibble was the second leading rebounder with seven; Burke had six; and Gillams and Endicott had five apiece.

HIGH-FLYING FRESHMAN Jim Burke blows by a St. Anselm's defender for two points in Wednesday night's opener. The 6'3 guard from Needham had a big debut scoring 18 points. (MDC Photo by Gib Fullerton)

Volleyball

The Volleyball Club will meet N.C.A.A. regional champions Saturday at Springfield College's Field House at 2 p.m. The club is informal like the Rugby Club and is trying to become a full-funded varsity team. They plan to compete in the Eastern N.C.A.A. regionals in mid-March.

The club is looking for experienced players, but anyone may contact Yorgos Courmouzis at 546-5445.

Charlotte 50th In Nationals

Charlotte Lettis placed 50th in the Woman's National Cross Country championships held in Cleveland, Ohio. She ran with a field of over 150 through rain and mud. Mrs. Doris Brown of Seattle, Washington, won for the fourth time. Charlotte said about the race, "I wasn't prepared for this competition; there were a lot of experienced runners."

Two Big Trades; F. Robby, Allen Go

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers acquired superstar Frank Robinson and traded slugger Richie Allen in separate deals Thursday.

The Dodgers swapped the controversial Allen to the Chicago White Sox in exchange for pitcher Tommy John and infielder Steve Huntz. Then Los Angeles acquired Robinson from the Baltimore Orioles along with relief pitcher Pete Richert in exchange for four young players.

Robinson, 36, batted .281 with 28 homers and 99 runs batted in for the Orioles last season.

He led the Orioles to the world championship in 1966, winning the American League's Triple Crown.

He has also been instrumental in leading the Orioles to three straight American League pennants.

He is the only player in history to be named the most valuable player in both leagues, winning that honor in the National League in 1961 and in the AL in 1966.

Allen 29, batted .295 with 23 home runs and 90 runs batted in for the Dodgers last season.

The White Sox will be his third club in as many years.

The slugging outfielder-third baseman spent the first years of his career with the Philadelphia Phillies before being traded to St. Louis for one season and then on to the Dodgers. He has a career total of 234 home runs.

Swimmers Open Today

By JANIS AHMADJIAN

The UMass Varsity Swim Team opens their 1970-71 season here today against neighboring Amherst College. The meet is scheduled for 4:00 p.m. at Boyden Pool.

Under the direction of Coach Joe Rogers and Assistant Coach Bill McCafferty the team has had formal practice since the beginning of November, however, the swimmers have practiced informally on their own since September in preparation for the upcoming season.

Coach McCafferty named some of the swimmers who will be participating in the meet today. UMass captain Herb Schuster will be swimming Breast Stroke. Joe Hebert will swim 200 Freestyle, last week winning first place in the Hampshire Regional AAU meet and also third in 100 Freestyle.

The Sprinters this week are Dick Blaisdell, Pete Ouellete, and Spencer Sullivan. Grinding it out at 500 and 1,000 yards are Distance Men Bruce Taylor and Jack Tyler. Coach McCafferty also pointed out that "two top swimmers, Bill Bridgman and Bob Okalit, are ineligible to swim now but will be able to starting in January."

The team has a busy schedule ahead facing competition with Wesleyan, Holy Cross, and Central Connecticut this month.

Broadway Joe To Upset Dallas

NEW YORK (AP)) Broadway Joe is back--and he'll drop enough bombs in Dallas to drop the Cowboys back into second place in the National Conference East.

That's the upset special of the week, but it's not the only dropping that'll be going on in this 12th weekend of National Football League action.

San Francisco will end up on the short end of a Bay Area bombfest against Kansas City and drop behind Los Angeles once again in the seesaw NFC West and Cincinnati will drop in on Cleveland and turn the American Conference Central Division into a three-way race.

Trackmen Scrimmage UNH

The UMass indoor track team travels to Durham tomorrow for a taste of competition with UNH. The meet is scheduled as a non-scoring practice event and its primary purpose will be to sharpen up the track team with some unpressured competition.

New Hampshire boasts a fine indoor facility with fast asphalt track that could produce some good early season times for the Redmen. The UMass runners, particularly the sprinters, will get an indication of what kind of shape they are in, seeing that the Curry Hicks Track is not particularly suited to sprinting. Likewise, the hurdlers, who are forced to train in the Boyden Gym due to lack of facilities, will get a somewhat accurate image of their progress when they run this practice meet.

The indoor season has a couple of weeks to go before it is really under way, and many members of the team are passing this practice meet up in order to proceed gradually with their training. As for the outlook of the team, it is hard to tell at this point, but it looks as though the sprints and the hurdles will be two strong events. Among the returning sprinters will be Ron Harris, Tony Pendleton, and Dennis Busa who are proven performers in championship competition. Jim Graves and Bob Landry will pace a fine hurdling contingent.

Most of last years jumping squad will be returning, and this includes Ed Shaughnessy, John Osborne, Baron Littlefield, and Mark Whelan.

The distance squad contains harriers coming back from their recently won Yankee Conference X-C Championship. They should contribute their share of points to the Indoor Team.

Bill Gillin, and Randy Thomas, the outstanding freshmen runners are joined by Doug O'Connell, Roger Nastka both sophomores, Rick Barry, Mike McCusker, and Paul Segersten who is just returning from a leg injury.

Veterans Al Mangan, and Arnie Morse will take care of the middle distance chores along with John Maloney, the freshman record holder.

The graduation of Ed Arcaro leaves the weight events in a weak position; the Achilles Heal of the team.

The Freshmen should provide the depth needed for a strong contender.

FACES OF EARTH
159 North Pleasant St. Amherst, Mass.
Next To The Post Office
CAMPING EQUIPMENT FOR CHRISTMAS
Open to 10 p.m. Mon.-Sat.

Unique Gift Selection .... Mizaurs Mercantile

THE ROCK SHOP
Where Adam, John, Silvio, and Paul will go to your head. If it has anything to do with hair. They can do it perfectly. . .For both men and women.
26 Main St., Amherst
Mon. - Fri., 9 to 7:30
Sat 9 to 5
253-9293 & 253-9271
continental coiffures

TEΦ
Open House Tonight
8:30 to?
418 No. Pleasant St.

THE SHOE-BIN
Priced Right
6" and 8" Lined and Insulated
Women's $11.95 - $13.95
Men's $14.00 - $22.00
Vibram Soles and Heels
All Leather
Insulated For Warmth
Padded Insole
$23.00
Other Hiking Boots in leather & suede from $14.00

At Home And Away

It's A Catamount Weekend

Cagers Host New Style Cats

By EARLE BARROLL

It's a strange feeling for a team to be in a position where not many basketball people in the media could care less about them. This is the position that Vermont is in this year. One publication says the Catamounts are as cold as winter, another rates them on the level of a freshmen team.

Daily Collegian
SPORTS

But in actuality this is the type of team that you have to worry about...they come ready to play and if verification is a mode of satisfying the inquisitiveness of the fan just take a trip back to Burlington last December when a fired up Vermont squad almost caved the roof in on the Redmen before falling in overtime, 79-68.

Since that time, a complete metamorphasis in style has taken place in Vermont basketball and tomorrow night one of the best coaches in the business, Art Loche, brings his Cats to Curry Hicks Cage to do battle with the Redmen beginning at 7:30.

If you saw the Catamounts last year you saw a methodical ball control team with an emphasis on stinginess on defense.

When you see them this year you'll see a new wide open attack, something new for Loche and his Vermont basketball program.

And whatever the papers may say and UMass coach Jack Leaman will verify it, the Cats always come ready to play and they'll be ready tomorrow night, no doubt.

*****

VARSITY M NOTES-On Wednesday Jack Leaman and football coach Dick MacPherson got the winter luncheon schedule off to a roaring start in more ways than one.

MacPherson, in his last appearance of this year outlined next year's football program which includes two new opponents, Harvard and Bucknell, both on the road. Dartmouth is off the schedule for a couple of years, the Crimson are their replacement.

Piel Pennington was operated on yesterday, Paul Metallo is slated for the knife next Wednesday and Bill Hale and Steve Schubert have their day with the doctor on Friday. Mac said "Now the Doctor is looking for Clarence Brooks."

Coach Leaman was his usual rollicking self. His jokes were crisp, his punch lines were sharp and his uncanny knack of capturing the crowd was at its best.

Jim Mulcahy, the President of the Varsity M Club cracked a comment at Msgr. Powers...Leaman got on Jim for this:

"You have to realize Jim that he (Msgr. Powers) is a very vindicative person. Last spring I defeated him in golf and didn't think much about it until I got home and it snowed in my living room for three days."

This entire crew will be on hand tomorrow night at the Cage. They can't promise a repeat performance... one of them will be busy trying to win a basketball game.

SLICK SOPHOMORE RICK PITINO calmy moves the ball up court in Wednesday's opening rout against St. Anselm's. Tomorrow night he'll join forces with John Betancourt, Mike Pagliara and Peter Trow in raising havoc in the Vermont Backcourt. (MDC Photo by Gib Fullerton)

Skaters Have A Big Date At Burlington

By BILL BALLOU

Throughout last year's record-breaking season, Coach Jack Canniff's skaters were literally unbeatable at home but had their problems in enemy rinks. In the friendly confines of Orr Rink the Redmen took all 11 games played and started out this year in similar fashion with a smashing 10-1 win over Salem State Wednesday night before the home fans.

However, when it came time to face off away from home, UMass had its problems, coming away with three wins and a tie for the ten games.

With this fact in mind, it will be interesting to see how the Redmen fare when they open their road schedule Saturday night against Vermont in Burlington. Last year the Catamounts and Redmen met three times and each game was whisker close with UMass winning the one played in Amherst and Vermont the two played in Burlington. The face-off will be at 7:30.

Both teams are rated as powerhouses in Division II and chances are pretty good that these two clubs will meet sometime along about March when playoff time rolls around, so Coach Canniff and his Redmen would like nothing better than to pick up a win on the Cats right off the opening gun.

Wanting a win and getting it are two entirely different things however and UMass will have to be at the top of their game to win this one. Canniff figures that "When you step into the other guy's rink, right off the bat you're spotting them a goal and a half" and things are complicated by the fact that Vermont has its usual strong club.

The Cats have twelve lettermen returning from last year, headed by All-American defenseman Ted Yeates. Fred Hunt and Pat Wright will head the Vermont attack, and although their statistics don't approach those of Pat Keenan, both know where the net is.

Speaking of nets, that's one area in which the Redmen have reason to be thankful for graduations. For graduation took two-time All-America goalie David Reece, who played Scrooge last year not only to the Redmen but to the rest of New England as well. This year the Catamount nets will be tended by Junior Steve Eckerson, who as backup to Reece last season had a pretty tough time of it.

The Redmen make the trip after their easy win over Salem State in anything but an overconfident mood. They have a score or two to settle with the Cats and as Jack Canniff put it, "If this team loses a game this year, it won't be because they're not trying."

NO, IT'S NOT BOBBY ORR but it's close enough to UMass hockey fans who have appreciated the smooth style of Pat Keenan in a Redman hockey uniform. Tomorrow night he and his teammates take on powerhouse UVM in the unfriendly confines of UVM. (MDC Photo by Bruce MacConnell)

Grapplers Open Title Defense At New Haven vs. UConn, Yale

By JOHN BOCK

The itinerary that coach Homer Barr has prepared for the wrestling team this weekend contains three items-- Find a place to lie down, beat UConn, beat Yale.

The weeks of preparation are at a close and the eliminations are over. What does it mean? It means that after winning the New Englands and posting the best record in UMass history, coach Barr and the team are ready to go out and do it again. And the beginning of doing it again is at New Haven tomorrow when the Redmen wrestlers battle the Elis of Yale and the Huskies of UConn in a triangular meet.

Last year Yale managed a 17-17 tie against UMass while UConn fared much worse, taking a 42-0 shutout on the chin. The Yalies come back this year with at least as good a team as evidenced by their 34-7 win over Central Connecticut, third in the NEIWA last year and a team that the Redmen were hard pressed to beat.

If anything is in the matmen's favor, it is the fact that they are going into the meet with Shelly Goldberg at the helm and most of the other NEIWA placers. Another asset is the fact that UMass takes on UConn at 1:30 and then has a rest before tilting with Yale at 7:30.

A fairly full team is traveling to New Haven and the lineup looks like this:

118-Dave Amato second in the New Englands in 1971.

126-Barry Godowsky senior veteran from Delaware.

134-Senior and New England third Dave Reynolds coming back with a 21-7 record.

142-Senior captain Shelly Goldberg has dropped the weight and will see the action at this class. Shelly takes an impressive 29-2-4 record and three NEIWA firsts to New Haven.

150-Senior Clay Jester encountered no problems in eliminations and will join the Redmen in the evening to wrestle Yale. Junior Peter Rock will hold the fort against UConn.

158-Freshman Steve Rome makes his debut at this weight class after besting Jim Godkin in eliminations this week. Godkin, just back from a bout with the flu, is a little out of shape but should be ready to wrestle varsity in no time.

167-Freshman Chris Cadwallader has cracked the Varsity lineup and shows good promise.

177-Senior Bruce Buckbee, back after a year's absence, returns with a 12-1 record and a New England second place finish.

190-New England Champ Carl Dambman has dropped to this weight class this year and looks tougher than ever. Carl takes an 11-4 record with him.

Hwt.-Chris Hodson takes the class that Dambman vacated and looks to defend it well.

WMUA Covers Redman Hoop

Tomorrow night beginning at 7:20 Ken Best and Marty Kelley will call all the action from Curry Hicks Cage as the Redmen open defense of their Yankee Conference title against Vermont.

On Sunday night these two will host John Betancourt and Rick Pitino on Sport Talk at 10 p.m. WMUA 91.1 fm.

Poor Richard's

'Take out the middle and throw the rest away'

A Weekly Magazine

'And what's more, I think we ought to take Buckingham away from the pigs...'

Part I-Everybody Needs A Mother

BY KAY M. RAYMOND

"In any emergency," they said. He pulled on boots, and checked his fly and left. Jogged through the 2 AM rain in his Batman cape to the Campus Center to consult her.

As he dashed drippingly into the concourse he saw her by the Music Room. At last! He hesitated. Were they alone? Yes! He opened the door.... A dimly lit room the size of a bathtub, carpeted, left half filled by a contoured leather chair. As the door closed softly behind him the Hare Krishna incense reached him. "Please sit down."

Soft, feminine voice. He jumped into the seat, palms sweating on the padded arm. His ear itched, "Computer counselling,"she said,"is absolutely confidential. No record of the content of this information session is made unless specifically requested by you. Voice-print identification is used to prevent disclosure of confidential information to unauthorized persons. When you care to, please tell me your identification number."

Grabbing his rain-stained pouch, he found the plastic card, really freaked-out picture he thought, as he read the string of digits.

"Your identification is verified, Paul," she replied. "Since this is the first time you've come to see me let me explain the process a little.

"The JGM Computer can respond to verbal instruction in the form of keyed words. When ready to start the counseling process, please indicate by saying 'ready'." The Van Gogh reproduction on the wall facing him became translucent, finally a clear lavender glow covering the wall from ceiling to floor.

She continued, "For ease in serving your needs it would be helpful if you turned through the directory by your left arm."

A panel in the wall silently skimmed open at eye level revealing a glowing drum, also lavender. It slowly rolled under his fingers.

"Look through the list of words until you find one that generally relates to the information you desire. When you have selected the most appropriate word, please tell me what it is."

He looked at the directory, "bilingual bisexual bills biochemistry. . .," he turned it a little faster, "hallucination handicapped hangover... Ph.D phenobarbitol philosophy phobia phone. . . sore sorority sorry soul Spanish spasm speakers. . ." he slowed down,

continued on P. 5A

Aardvarks

I was down in the laundry room sorting underwear when Rocco showed up with my package. He took one look around the room and snarled, "Where is he?" and sent my roommate down to get me. Rocco doesn't like to be kept waiting.

He hung around for a while after I paid him. These guys usually never bother to wait around to see if you like your package-they take the money and run, so to speak.

The good thing about dealing with Rocco and the gang is that they usually come up with decent shit. Once in a while they slip some real trash in along with the good, but that doesn't happen often. Most of us think it's excusable, but we're in no position to bargain in any case.

This package was no exception. Well, it was in a way because it was unusually good, even for Rocco. His gang is somewhat small-time. They run an ice cream truck business during the summer and resort to other things when the weather gets bad. I've been working with Rocco for a couple of years now. Twice a month, I never know when, he brings a suitcase up to my room. And twice a month I begin to have these fits of paranoia. I do a lot of downs at the beginning and the middle of the month.

Rocco gets nervous himself. He thinks it looks funny for him to walk into a dorm with a suitcase. He used to be a wrestler but he broke his pelvis one night when some guy named Crazy Luke Graham bodyslammed him. After that he got a job throwing pizzas up in the air in some kind of pizza joint. The gang found him there and put him to work in a more lucrative business. Rocco likes his job, but Rocco still worries a lot.

He sat down on the edge of the bed while I squatted on the floor over the open suitcase rolling a joint.

"You know," he began, "sometimes I envy you guys. I mean, you guys can get fucked up whenever you feel like it. Get up in the morning, smoke a joint. Wander around for a couple of hours, get fucked up again. Man, I envy you guys."

"Spoken like real trooper, Rocco," I said. "Here, why don't you light this one up?"

"I don't know, man. The boss is kind of down on us using the stuff. He'd get pretty pissed if he thought that any of us were smoking."

"C'mon, Rocco. What harm is it going to do you? It's great. All you do is smoke it like a cigarette and pretty soon the walls start to drip blood or something. Maybe tomato sauce. You'd like it, Rocco. Smoke it."

I held the joint out to Rocco. He hesitated for a moment, then took it and lit it. He smoked the whole thing himself and them left after sort of grunting, "Goodbye". He looked like he was pretty high.

The next time I had any dealings with the gang they sent someone new.

"Where's Rocco? How come he didn't come this week?"

"I don't know," replied the new guy. "The last time anybody saw him he was muttering something about weasels running along behind him scaring the pigeons. The boss figured it was time Rocco had a rest so he asked to be reassigned to our farms in Mexico. But you know how Rocco was. Always trying to find something better to do when he got bored with what he was doing. The funny thing is that he asked to be transferred, and that's the first time anyone in the outfit ever asked to be sent to Mexico. We sent him. Figured if he was crazy enough to want to go, let him go. By the way, this one's on Rocco. He sent it up special for you. See you later."

I opened the suitcase. It was nine keys of bright green Michoucan and a little note from Rocco. I rolled one and sat smoking.

Rocco, I thought, just don't blow it.

Jagger, Joplin And The Pop Star Image

Of all the figures produced by rock, Mick Jagger is undoubtedly the most startling. His sustained flamboyance, demonic image and uncompromising refusal to ingratiate have given him preeminence as the greatest live entertainer in rock history. On page 7A Frank Baglione takes a look at the Jagger image as seen in the Maysle's Brothers picture GIMMIE SHELTER, at the tragic Altamont free concert, and in comparison to the image of Janis Joplin, his closest female counterpart. Featured also is Tina Turner having an affair with her microphone. Read why Jagger is the aristocrat of rock and roll, "sneering, cynical and ultimately the most humane."

Page 7a

Who Will Beat The Beatles?

Yeah for the Beatles! Go John! go Paul! go George! go Ringo! What will we ever do if one of the Beatles gets killed in a plane crash, or, (sob) gets married? What will we all do? Well, relax, folks, because the Beatles beat us all there and proved they can take care of themselves. Nick Minotti reminisces a little about those long-haired lads from across the ocean and what they mean to him.

Page 12a

Scott, Zelda And The Roaring Twenties

F. Scott and Zelda Fitzgerald were prototypes of the Jazz Age. Their raucous behavior was saved only by their brilliant creativity, which led Scott to write some of the finest novels in American letters, yet left Zelda searching for an outlet. Nancy Milford has written an absorbing, first-rate portrait of this sensitive and lonely woman, Karen Walsh reviews ZELDA which tells some of the fabled, yet near pathetic story of the Fitzgeralds. "She was born to brighten the world," a reviewer has written, "for a few short years she dazzled it."

Nancy Milford has captured the near-perfect romance of Scott and Zelda, their fabulous youth in Europe during the Twenties, and the emotional crises which followed in one of the most moving love stories of this century.

Page 4a

Get'cha Prurient Interest Ready

Just kidding, friends. There's nothing in this week's Poor Richard's to piss anybody off, unless you happen to be a pink, purple-spotted hippotamus with a dubious background. If you are, then our first suggestion is to pick up Poor Richard, the dear, darling boy, and read him.

Read Frank Johnson as he chops his way through a thicket of jargon to explain some new electrical trinket. Read the story on the next page that shocked New York. Read our albums pages, this week filled to the brim with Led Zeppelin, Elton John, Seatrain and several more.

Miss our exciting films page, on vacation this week, but do be sure and catch the biggest surprise of them all-Weekend!

And it's all coming up in the next 15 pages.

Poor Richard's

Vol. I number eight

Compiled weekly by Bob Nesti and David Williams

This week's staff: Frank Baglione, Jim Lavrakas, Kenneth Sulin, Karen Walsh, Steve Feld, Nick Minotti, Kay Raymond, Wayne A. Tiffany, Steve Colwell, Frank Johnson, Pete Forget.

Photo credits: Jim Lavrakas, P. 1A

Poor Richard's is the weekly magazine of the MDC. Contributions and comments may be delivered to the MDC office. Prospective staff members may contact either David Williams or Bob Nesti.

The Middle Class Strikes Back

BY CLARK WHELTON

When Mayor Lindsay gets around to writing Poor John's Almanac, one of the little sayings certain to be included is: any block worth busting is worth busting right. The annotated edition will explain that this means think big. Don't just settle for chasing out the middle-class families. Break up the entire neighborhood. Turn Brownsville into World War III and the South Bronx into an open sore. Stick a string of welfare hotels into Greenwich Village and knock down a community of self-built homes in Corona. And if someone points out that these changes have made life worse, not better, in the area, then stencil him with words like "racist" or "bigot" and open fire on another neighborhood.

If Poor John's latest attempt at progress-through-disorder goes ahead as scheduled, his Almanac will probably award it a special footnote of its own. Right now on the edge of Forest Hills, Queens, bulldozers are clearing an 8.6-acre site for construction of three 24-story buildings which will provide 840 apartments for elderly and low-income tenants. Thousands of middle-class residents of the area who have been fighting this kind of public housing project since 1967, are now picketing the construction site at 108th Street and Horace Harding Boulevard. They are trying to tell John Lindsay and anyone else who'll listen that they're terribly afraid of the project as it's now designed. The Mayor has responded by calling their demonstrations "deplorable" and by getting a court order to prevent them from picketing. No one in the city administration has been willing or able to calm the fears of these Forest Hills residents that the three public housing towers--divided into 60 per cent low-income and 40 per cent elderly occupancy--will bring crime and urban decay to their quiet neighborhood of low-rise apartments and private homes.

There is more at stake in this struggle than the fate of one of the vanishing New York City middle-class neighborhoods: According to liberal Queens Congressman Benjamin Rosenthal, who opposes the present design of the project, "this is a national test case to determine whether the movers and shakers of the housing industry in this country can do whatever they want or whether neighborhoods will be able to influence their own future."

The opponents of the Forest Hills housing project have compiled an impressive list of technical reasons why the present plan is ill-conceived. The city paid the incredible sum of $300,000 an acre for this site after it had already been rejected by private builders as geologically unable to support apartment buildings. Cost estimates for the project have risen from $17 million to nearly $30 million ($32,000 per apartment), provided contractors can sink support pilings down to a firm foundation (previous pilings have disappeared in the soft subsoil). The 24-story towers would not blend in with the surrounding six-story buildings but would stand separate and apart from them. The project is located in a two-fare transit zone and would strain services, schools, and facilities already inadequate for the present population.

Technical reasons, however, are not the ones which lead most area residents to oppose the project. The real reasons are human and social. The residents are afraid the project will bring to a relatively safe neighborhood (mostly white, but with middle-class black residents as well) low-income blacks from the city's ghettos who will carry with them the crime and drug problems of those areas. This fear, instead of being dismissed as "racist," or "reactionary," deserves to be examined. For this fear is based upon the personal experiences of many people who have sought shelter in Forest Hills after leaving other dying neighborhoods. And this fear is enough to drive them out again, leaving behind them the seeds of another slum.

First, experience has shown that where low-income housing is located, crime increases. The precise facts and figures are subject to debate since the people who supply them invariably have a political interest in one direction or another. But the basic situation is well understood. The poor and disadvantaged classes have always provided the greatest number of criminals, especially in a country where poverty is considered to be either a moral or statutory crime. So large numbers of poor people grouped together in public housing projects produce higher crime rates.

When you add to this already unhealthy picture the fact that increasing percentages of housing project tenants are not working poor but welfare poor--people who are among the most hopeless and desperate in the city--the situation grows worse. The city claims that about 16 per cent of public housing tenants are on welfare. Congressman Edward I. Koch of Manhattan thinks 30 per cent is closer to the truth.

"The residents of Forest Hills are expressing two very real and rational fears," says Koch, who has joined Congressman Rosenthal in opposing the present design of the 108th Street project. "The fear of crime is a very real one, and second, it's absolutely rational to believe property values will decline in the area of a high-rise housing project. Fear moves in and people move out."

A woman who picketed the Forest Hills project site this week illustrated this statement with personal experiences. "The city put up a housing project near where I used to live in Brooklyn," she said. "It was the kind of neighborhood where you could leave your door open when you went to the store. Then the kids from the project found out about this gold mine and you could see them going through the back yards in the middle of the day, trying doors to see which ones were open. People began to lock up, buy gates for the windows, but who wants to live that way? Then came the burglaries and muggings and people began to move out. I came to Forest Hills. Where am I going to go next?"

Early in his first term John Lindsay recognized that building low-income housing projects in slum and ghetto areas maintained poor people in an environment harmful to their chances for social progress. Distributing the housing projects into middle-class neighborhoods was the way to stop this piling of poverty on top of poverty. But no one seemed to grasp a simple fact of social engineering. Unless the middle-class neighborhoods remain middle-class after the housing projects are completed, no progress is made. Instant slums are created in formerly attractive areas. The poor are shifted from one ghetto to another, and their lives don't get any better.

There is no curative magic in middle-class neighborhoods like Forest Hills. The people who live there aren't better off because the area is is nicer. They're better off because they made the area nicer. Unless new residents contribute the same kinds of middle-class disciplines and values to the neighborhood, it will become something else. This is where John Lindsay and the social theorists who work for him went wrong. Their new housing projects with few exceptions, put too many poor families together in one place. The poor had more of an effect on the middle-class neighborhoods than the neighborhoods had on them. The neighborhoods became poor.

What Rosenthal, Koch, and most of the Forest Hills residents who oppose the present project would like to see is a different approach to low-income housing, an approach that takes into consideration the fact that while integrating races isn't much of a trick in New York City anymore, integrating people of different economic levels and value systems is practically impossible. But, in reasonable numbers, it can be done. Instead of cooking up a housing project that will concentrate 536 low-income families in high-rise towers that Rosenthal has called "concrete ghettos," why didn't the planners limit the low-income allotment to 100 families or so? Instead of those towers, why weren't the new buildings kept in close profile with the surrounding ones? And why was a middle-class community like Forest Hills expected to take such a huge dose of concentrated poverty without a single sweetener from the city to compensate?

"We've never had a thing from the city," says Joseph Walderman, vice-president of the Forest Hills Residents Association. "Not one damn thing."

If the Lindsay administration had settled for a smaller number of low-income families in the Forest Hills project, if it had come up with a more compatible design, if it had mixed in some middle-income housing and added a much-needed community recreation center, there would have been no large-scale protest by residents of the area. The poor families would have been absorbed into the middle-class neighborhood because their numbers were not large enough to threaten it. Everyone would have benefited. But with the present plan, everyone is in danger. The residents may lose their neighborhood, and the poor may find themselves in another slum.

"Lindsay didn't worry about us," says Walderman, a quiet, articulate man, "because he thought he could get away with ramming this thing down our throats. We're middle-class liberals. We're not supposed to fight back. Our picket line must have come as quite a shock to him."

Press coverage and editorial opinion on the Forest Hills affair have hit hard on the theme that the protesters are either bigots or misinformed, or both. This is inevitable, perhaps, because the middle class doesn't make good news copy. They aren't like the lower-class Italian home-owners of Corona, full of colorful little ethnic details, who needed a voice to protest their homes being razed to make room for a new school. The middle class speaks for itself. It believes in the bourgeois values of home, religion, hard work, and tries to do the right thing. It's middle America, and all that term implies. It's dull, ordinary, predictable, and supposedly reactionary in racial matters. This, say the Forest Hills residents who want the housing project, is the real reason why the vast majority of their neighbors oppose it.

This type of slander is effective in an emotional issue like racial integration, but it doesn't check out. Ed Koch attended a dinner recently where Carl Stokes, a black man and former mayor of Cleveland, addressed a number of fellow black politicians. "If you think it's only whites who don't want low-income housing projects in their neighborhoods," Koch remembers Stokes saying, "baby you're wrong!" Stokes then told how his administration had built projects in middle-class black neighborhoods in Cleveland. A black woman and friend of the mayor whose home was near one of these projects said to Stokes: "Carl, I never thought you would do that to me." And she never spoke to him again.

In a middle-class Puerto Rican neighborhood of the Bronx, home owners are now expressing opposition to two new residence houses for wards of the court planned for their area. The middleclass Puerto Ricans are worried that muggings and drug use will increase and their property values will drop. And how many court wards would move into the neighborhood? Just 24. Count'em. Twenty-four.

The real issue in Forest Hills and in every middle-class neighborhood in America lies in the answer to this question asked last summer by Eleanor Holmes Norton: "Will whites flee as blacks and Puerto Ricans of the same economic status and lifestyle move in?"

In Forest Hills the answer has been no. Middle-class blacks move into a building and although there is nervousness and uncertainty, whites do not leave. People who share similar values and abilities can overcome racial differences. With an influx of low-income families, however, that value sharing is minimal and strained.

(Reprinted from the Village Voice)

Feiffer

"The Two Most Beautiful People"

ZELDA
By NANCY MILFORD

By KAREN WALSH

" 'Suddenly, as though in a dream, this apparition, this double apparition, approached me. The two most beautiful people in the world were floating towards me, smiling. It was as if they were angelic visitors. I thought to myself, 'If there is anything I can do to keep them as beautiful as they are, I will do it.' The heavenly pair turned out to be the Fitzgeralds.' "

It was the winter of 1923, and the statement above was an apt reflection of the existing public opinion. The young writer F. Scott Fitzgerald and his lovely wife Zelda were approaching their peak, being hailed as "leaders in the youth cult", the gay madcap models of the Roaring Twenties; but of course, there was nothing anyone could do to keep them as beautiful as they then were. And somehow Scott himself knew it, for he called his second novel The Beautiful and the Damned, and the heroine Gloria was really just Zelda in another name.

Miss Milford's biography of Zelda Sayre Fitzgerald seems to convey two distinct impressions of the woman, and the first is undoubtedly of beauty. It is a wild, abandoned, slightly unusual and egotistical kind of beauty, which captures the reader almost as entirely as it engrossed Scott Fitzgerald. Zelda is from the first seen as unconventional and uninhibited, by any standards, and doubly so for a girl who was born and reared in the turn-of- the-century Deep South. But she was a true Southern Belle, even if she did disdain most of the Alabama rules; it took Scott two years of quarrels and on-and-off engagements to win her from her numerous other suitors. Scott was to her an escape from the restricted world of Montgomery, Alabama, and to Scott, she was a world in herself. For even when he had felt he had lost her, he could not be free of her. Her beauty, her egotism, her zest haunted him; he wrote of losing her in his first successful novel, This Side of Paradise and she became his heroine there under the name of Rosalind. However, he never did lose her. They were too well matched to each other, in their beauty, their youth and their endless, driving egotism. They were married in April of 1920, and she became his "golden girl", the prototype of all his heroines in all his books, excepting only his last one which lay unfinished at the time of his death, after all of the glitter had worn off.

Somehow Miss Milford manages to portray the dizzy whirl of the Fitzgeralds' first married years. The image is still consistently of beauty, but it is of a shaky and distorted variety. Scott was suddenly a successful writer, an important writer, the writer of the era! - and as his wife, Zelda was his companion in trend-setting the Jazz Age. She was the original American Flapper; her antics were wild, and wilder, and an evening with the Fitzgeralds was never ordinary and never forgotten. Skillfully and subtly, the author allows the distortions to build until the beauty becomes slowly obscured. The beautiful couple begin to seem driven by their own reputations, or perhaps by something within them, between them. Their wild parties become grotesque; they become more drunk, more rude, more undisciplined. Scott appears to retreat into liquor and his writing, while Zelda carries on alone for awhile and then becomes bored. She finds no real closeness of fulfillment in their daughter, Scottie, and the atmosphere gradually shifts as the beauty fades away.

By spring of 1924, the couple had tired of America and moved to France. Scott was engaged in what is probably his best work, The Great Gatsby, and Zelda became involved with a French aviator, Edouard Jozan. The brief affair was the first serious break in their marriage, and it is important to note that it also became the basic material for Scott's next novel. Zelda was more than simply his wife; she was of prime literary value to him. He had complete access to her ideas, her diaries, and her dialogue, all of which he used as he pleased. Whole letters and conversations of Zelda's appear verbatim in Fitzgerald's works, and his heroines often have her words put quite exactly in their mouths. On the surface, Zelda did not seem to mind, but she too cherished the hope of being a writer, and the situation began to build between them. They were jealous of each other, in writing as well as sexually (Scott had his own short affair in 1927) and Zelda became increasingly aware of her dependence upon Scott. He had his writing, but she had nothing of her own. She wanted desperately to be more free of him, so in the summer of 1927 she took up the ballet. She determined to become "nothing less than Pavlova", and she went at it with an intensity that was pitiful as well as ludicrous, for even she realized that 27 was much too old to begin serious dancing. But she danced, six or seven hours a day, and Scott drank and worked on his fourth book, Tender Is the Night, while the surreal parties continued and their debts mounted. And while she danced, she also wrote and painted, and she and Scott fought; Scott drank, and they moved from America to Europe and from Europe to America; the pace built, the jealousies and strain built until there was no beauty left at all, and in April of 1930 the break came. Zelda was hospitalized and diagnosed as schizophrenic.

The second impression that one receives of Zelda is much harder to pinpoint. One realizes that even beneath her beauty, there always lurked a certain strangeness, a flamboyancy that was not normal, yet Miss Milford has sketched it in so quietly that the appearance of Zelda's madness first comes as almost a jolt. But when the beauty is gone, when Zelda and Scott have destroyed it in each other through their love and jealousy, there is nothing that can remain but the madness. It is an impression of destruction, almost disease, which remains; very much the impression Scott himself created in *The Beautiful and The Damned*or in Tender Is the Night. Zelda was hospitalized, Scott was a hopeless alcoholic, and there was no going back.

Even then, Scott used Zelda's letters written in the asylum and the events of her breakdown in his book, and he became completely enraged when she used that material herself in her own novel, Save Me the Waltz. She was still his property, and he went so far, at one point, as to forbid her to write fiction any longer. It is evidence of her dependency upon him that she obeyed. His drinking and demanding drove her to insanity, and her madness increased his drinking and his debts. He did find some release in the last years of his life, in an affair with Sheila Graham, but even then Zelda retained her firm influence on him. She lived on the edge of sanity the rest of her days, in and out of institutions, until she burned to death in one of them in March of 1948, eight years after Scott's death. By that time the reader feels more a sense of relief than of sorrow; after eighteen years of madness, death is a release.

Nancy Milford has written an intense, moving book. Her six years of careful research into the Fitzgeralds' lives enables them to speak in their own words from her pages, through letters, interviews with friends and memoirs. She patiently compares Zelda's letters with Scott's written works, laying bare as well as any observer possibly could the complex mesh of affection, dependence, and jealousy that bound them. Miss Milford admirably manages to avoid giving her own psychological interpretations of Zelda's madness and its cause; instead, she spreads before us the many interwoven levels of the woman's life, the very spirit of Zelda herself, and allows the reader to feel and interpret for himself. She treats Zelda with respect and a little awe, and one cannot avoid becoming personally involved; Zelda is very much alive in these pages. To anyone who has read F. Scott Fitzgerald, to anyone who wishes to recapture the essence of that era called "The Jazz Age", to anyone fascinated by the complexities of mental illness, or to anyone concerned with the depth and beauty of the human spirit, this book will be of great interest.

Zelda and Scott Fitzgerald.

Zelda, age 15

Self portrait, probably done in the early forties

Everybody Needs A Mother (continued)

continued from P. 1A

"V.A. vacancy vacation vaccination vegetarian VD."

"VD" he exclaimed. An almost imperceptible hum, he glanced toward the glowing lavender wall-flourescent green patterns, strings of letters appeared, focused. "Here are a list of subtopics," she explained, "that might provide you with the information you desire. When you have read them, please tell me which ones you would like information about."

He looked at the flourescent display, easy on the eyes, rather pretty.

Venereal Disease (VD)

GONORRHEA:
SYPHILIS:

quick summary
description
how contracted symptoms in men symptoms in women diagnosis treatment infection with both at the same time with pregnancy prevention

APPOINTMENTS for medical examination: infirmary
free public clinic
private physician

Other related topics: see body parasites, genital pathology, birth control, marriage.

"Guess I'd like to see a quick summary for both," he mumbled as he examined the sole of his left foot. While he methodically studied its erosional pattern and theorized about changing his mass distribution to reduce the weathering process, the general VD display shrank to half size and sank to the bottom of the screen as the top half was filled with:

Quick Check List of Symptoms
Syphilis

POSSIBLE SYMPTOMS
Primary state: (9-90 days after infection): chancre
Secondary state (few weeks-6 months later): rash (all over, or on hands and feet) - sores in mouth - sore throat - mild fever - swollen joints - headache - patchy balding
Latent stage: (10-20 years): no outward symptoms at all Late stage: heart disease - crippling - deafness - blindness - paralysis - insanity - death
DIAGNOSIS - Physical examination by doctor. In early primary state: examination of puss from chancre. After that: blood test TREATMENT - One or more shots of penicillin or some closely related drug He glanced palely down at the check list for Gonorrhea. Green letters seemed to be an appropriate color. How about "Symptoms of Syphilis", he said. The summary faded out- new patterns formed. He scanned, ". . .Early in the primary stages a doctor can look for subtle secondary symptoms (like swollen lymph glands around the groin). . . ." "How about an appointment at the Infirmary in nine days," he sighed.

"The ninth day is a Sunday," she gently replied, "but there is an opening at 10:15 the following Monday, if you have not made previous plans for the time between your English and History classes."

"Okay, Mother, set it up." As he shook the wrinkles out of his cape, an appointment card fell out of a slot in the ceiling and hit him in the neck.

"Thanks."

By the time he got to the door, Van Gogh's "Sunflowers" had reappeared. The woman voice murmured after him,

"You're welcome. Come and visit me again."

Brushing past someone, he spread his cape and flew off to the Hatch to join friends that the Jolly Green Mother had also helped; she had figured what grades Joe needed to stay off probation, a job for Bill, an abortion for Agatha, bail to get Laurie out of jail, helped Franklin switch majors again and still graduate.

The middle-aged black man who had rushed into a counseling room as Paul had come out, was now, with sun glasses removed, hearing from Mother, ". . .the only methods by which a Trustee may be removed from the Board are death, retirement. . . "

The Jolly Green Mother Computer was a fantasy that grew in my head the first night of the SWAP Conference. She greatly expanded her fantacized facilities and services as the weekend at Northfield Inn progressed at a hectic, mind blowing pace.

Three days were spent there discussing University problems. All eighteen topics scheduled for discussion seemed to break down into three overlapping levels. In each area there seemed to be a need within the UMass community for:

1. Greater utilization of the present system to include channels designed for implementing change.
2. Evaluation of the present system at each level to see if it realistically serves its intended purpose, and
3. Exploration of alternatives to the present system.

Greater Utilization of Present System

The major stumbling block to approaching even the first of these concerns seems to be a general lack of knowledge as to what the system is, let alone how to beat it. SWAP was a weekend of concentrated exchange of information that should already have been common knowledge within the University community.

Much of the responsibility for dissemination of campus intelligence lies with the grapevine, publications, and the Counseling Center. The grapevine's reputation is so poor that a campus police officer at SWAP suggested a Rumor Phone line be set up to halt the kind of panicky speculation that was evident during the last big drug busts.

Among campus publications, the Daily Collegian is probably the most informative and widely read. Although it appears to be doing a satisfactory (though often criticized) job, it's major unrectifiable handicap is that it is a daily journal. Often the information needed today was in yesterday's issue, and inevitably they've all been "recycled".

"Other" publications are those we are flooded with at orientation and registration. They get taken away for the most part unread (they don't explain why the lines are 3 hrs. long); and get buried in the official-looking- but-useless file until it's final exam time, when everyone must figure out the chances of keeping a satisfactory cum. By then, of course, the needed booklet has been ripped off or discarded.

The problem with information booklets seems to be quality and availability. They are often difficult to use (Teacher Evaluation and CASAIC are preparing new guides with this in mind) and hard to obtain when needed. A little more thoughtful distribution of quantities (including phone books, campus and student directories) over the school year rather than all at one time might increase their effectiveness.

The UMass Counseling Center has convincingly committed itself to the aggressive disemination of information necessary for campus survival. It is doing so largely through resident counselors in the dorm complexes and orientation programs.

Dorm counselors act as information outlets. The residences are trying to "institutionalize the grapevine" by making trained counselors available to help solve the common everyday crisis. Counselors can fail, however, most often because of lack of information.

The UMass Counseling Center is in the process of examining and probably upgrading the qualifications and training programs for peer counselors, but they need critical input from dorm residents. Maybe one of you has invented a method for measuring "sensitivity."

Counseling's efforts in initiating realistic programs are especially laudable. Thanks to an ever improving Summer Oreintation Program, this year's Freshman Class is probably the best informed ever matriculated. Next semester, a new program will be initiated to provide more extensive counseling for transfer students.

Counseling and expanded orientation programs, however, do not always reach the large block of students (1/3) who live off campus, or upperclassmen who need to know what changes have occured since their own Frosh Orientation. The entire community, not just the Counseling Center, should be concerning itself with raising the survival rate.

There is a monstrous need on this campus for an information dissemination system that is simple, all-inclusive and readily available to all. The use of a computer is not a new idea. Interested people can contact Marc Cheren of Clearing House for basic groundwork on setting up such a system of computer facilitation.

It could be an efficient method of (if student files could be kept up to date) removing some of the impediments to effective counseling, such as, lack of information, scheduling conflicts, personality clashes or emotionalism (underclass timidity, embarassment, anger). It could even give its own orientation program (one credit in Computer Science). If the Jolly Green Mother isn't the most feasible solution, what is?

1. Greater utilization of present resources:

a) more information to campus radio and newspaper, articles written by various departments, staff, organizations, rather than relying on the understaffed media to ferret out the news.

b) greater use of the tables in SU lobby/concourse for information other than the raising of funds or presentation of a specific actions.

c) explicit and up-to-date directories/floor plans in SU and CC.

d) sponsoring by student groups of open discussions on campus problems with concerned faculty/administration/staff members (Racism Workshop for WASP's, Why Campus Police Get Ulcers. . .?)

e) greater student participation in the Senate's Student Matters Committee, now recruiting members, could include a survey of informative publications now available or planned, and where they can be obtained.

2. A Central Information Center - located for easy accessibility (expansion of present information desk in CC?), with information from all areas of the campus, help in finding and making appointments with the right people, a 24 hr. Hot Line, staffed by well trained paracounselors in addition to professionals.

3. The Definitive Student Bible - not just another booklet, but one distinguished volume to replace the whole pile, up-to-date, easily understood, indexed and cross referenced. A looseleaf notebook with standardized format with various groups contributing pages they are now responsible for producing, added to, corrected and updated, using a regular column and tearout sheet in the Collegian.

Until a larger portion of the University community is aware of what the present system is and attempts to utilize it, it is almost impossible to accurately pinpoint its obsolete or inadequate parts. Raise the campus consciousness, and we might have the basis for an enlightened revolution.

Areas For Change And Ways To Implement Them

Many of the areas that could use a revolution, and some methods to hasten it's coming, were discussed at SWAP. Since the forthcoming SWAP report will cover them all in some detail, I will merely examine the implications I discovered in several broad areas.

The Student Vote

Let it be said again, the Student-Citizen vote can be the most influential tool at our disposal. It can achieve, among other things,

1. election of state legislators who will be more sensitive to the needs of the University, including financial needs.
2. election of a Governor who will select trustees who are more open to educational reform.
3. election of local officials who will do something about off-campus living conditions.
4. introduction and influencing the passage of legislation that will implement solutions to the social problems which affect us all.

Some of the channels to state and local government are already open. The Student-Citizen may introduce state legislation on his own through his representative. 8,000 citizens a year do this. It can also be done through the student attorney, Dick Howland, of University State Communications Council. Twenty students are currently doing research for proposed legislation with the help of USCC.

A legislator at SWAP reiterated how influential citizen input can be on the passage of specific bills. This should be kept in mind when the time comes for Boston to again attempt a tuition raise.

Though the Trustees have asked for a 500% increase in scholarship funds, an across-board tuition raise would still be economically discriminating to many. Phone calls and personal letters to the Statehouse, and a sliding-scale tuition plan might affect the outcome.

One thing still needed for student balloting to be more effective is a non-partisan group to inform voters. Operating like a League of Women Voters, they could take a survey of candidates' stands on issues concerning students, and circulate the results.

University/Town Relations

The student vote could also have an affect on local issues. One third of the students, and the majority of faculty and staff live in surrounding communities. University/town relations is one of the most neglected areas, in spite of the fact that it affects all of us daily (from drinking water to monthly rent).

Some of the concerns that could be acted upon immediately are;

1. Inclusion of nonvoting town officials and staff on University committees with related concerns, i.e. Amherst Planning Board/UMass Master Planning Board.
2. Official action to relieve the housing situation. Perhaps an expansion of the Housing Office, coordinated with the town to investigate student complaints, initiate inspection of rental units by Board of Health, counsel on tenant rights, research and sponsor local ordinances affecting such things as rent control and discrimination, and establish a University/town Grievance Board to settle landlord-tenant disputes.
3. More extensive Collegian coverage of town matters, including schedules of meetings and committees that would welcome student participation.
4. A program to coordinate (perhaps through Continuing Ed) and encourage student participation in town matters, including the exploration of educational opportunities available through internships in local government and its agencies.
5. Welfare and financial counseling for students and their dependents, to include how to plan a budget, live on minimal funds, the inner mystery of bank loans, checking accounts and credit ratings. How about a Home Ec course on "Cooking with Surplus Food and Nothing Else."
6. Off-campus parking area for commuters (a shopping center?) with bus shuttle service to and from campus.
7. A town information phone number, perhaps sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, or like organization.

The University System

Many of the representatives to SWAP were handicapped when they tried to critically examine the system. The veteran who enters UMass will find no precisely illustrated chain of command. It more closely resembles a junk pile of rusted, often unconnected, overlapping, tangled links, with a couple of clinkers sitting on top labeled "trustees". Small wonder freshmen soon learn that "system" is merely another word for the Whitmore Twins, Chaos and Confusion.

UMass was originally structured as a Land Grant College during a time when what constituted a proper higher education was generally agreed upon. The citizen merely trusted the legislators to fund it, and the Governor's Trustees to administer it.

A century of technological advance highlighted by the splitting of the atom has brought with it a re-examination of values, skills necessary for survival, and the educational system that teaches them. A generation of students exposed to such radical value redefinition are naturally questioning the relevancy of the educational experience and demanding more voice in structuring it.

The old Land Grant structure was designed for efficient administration from the top level down. Lower echelon channels operating from the bottom up have from time to time been tacked on to give faculty and students more responsibility. The result is a frustrating series of nonspecific bottlenecks in the middle that indicate the need for an expeditious streamlining of the system.

continued on next page

Before the system can be efficiently restructured, however, a mutually agreeable settlement must be reached between the advocates of internal and external policy making. The problem is explicitly evidenced in the current battle between the Board of Trustees and Faculty-Students that is making the Chancellorship the bone of contention.

The larger issue at stake is the University's role in society and who is best qualified to define it. Is the University merely an institution evolved from society for academic pursuit and career preparation, or is it also a learning environment that acts as an agent for social change?

The University is financed by and an institutionalized service of the state. Responsibility for it has been traditionally delegated by the Commonwealth to the Board of Trustees. Under its leadership the University's educational function has reflected the conservative nature of the state.

Because of increased awareness and involvement in solving the problems of man and society (politicization), students and faculty are challenging the idea that an education is the accumulation of knowledge over a four year period, to be acted on upon graduation. Education is becoming an ongoing process of knowledge assimilation and application that can implement social change.

The Board of Trustees is reluctant to accept this view or recognize that faculty and students can be well informed, concerned and responsible. This was well demonstrated by the Board's recent rejection of the Faculty/Student proposals concerning the election of the Chancellor.

A redefinition of the Chancellorship would also inevitably call for a redefinition of the Board's role. One radical answer might be for them to act solely as coordinators of the overall University system, balancing programs between campuses to serve a larger portion of the state, with responsibility limited to matters only concerning more than one campus. A Chancellor could advise the Trustees on how the Amherst Campus affects the total University system, and act as our spokesman to the Board.

While students and faculty do not presently have the power to make sweeping changes in the structure, there are things that can be done. Last year's proposal for a combined University Senate should be promptly taken out of the committee it has gone to sleep in and acted upon.

A University Senate could force an eventual balance of influence and larger structural reorganization. In spite of the Board's recent no-confidence vote, it is doubtful if the Trustees could ignore a consistently unified stand by those most directly involved in the educational process.

Critics of the proposal justly point to the dissension, inefficiency and apathy within the existing Senates and the bodies they represent, and question whether a unified body wouldn't merely be a multiplication of the present state of affairs, with an increased polarization of faculty and students. They do not consider that a major causative factor for the poor showing of University governance may be the frustrating lack of results repeatedly experienced by those trying to implement change through our present system.

Obvious advantages of a University Senate would be less duplication of effort and repetitious debate, freer exchange of information and opinion, and greater access to resources. Decisions based on a more complete body of knowledge might more equitably represent the community.

Financing the Solutions

The practicality of a lot of the solutions to University problems seems to be based on whether one has a successful sub (rosa) system for financial procurement. Information is needed on the alternatives available here also.

Resources often lie untapped for lack of a reliable survey map (Geo 106). A central information system could provide such a survey and prevent duplication of efforts. Specific consolidation of resources could yield more satisfying results at a lower cost.

Other untapped resources exist. Many individuals and organizations would donate time and money if needs were made known. Federal funding also exists for those who have the time to draft the proposals.

Part II - The Other 42%

Everyone attending SWAP probably went with a number of special interests, problems and issues they wanted to explore. My own personal agenda included the large number of issues directly concerning UMass women.

Even though women constitute 42% of the undergraduates, discussion of women's concerns was limited to a very few specific issues, for the most part the others were not even raised. This SWAP Conference was devoted to the discussion of more general University issues. By the end of the first day I was feeling a bit frustrated. Unable to gain any sense of what level other women were at, I put a notice up on the bulletin board;

"WOMEN GET TOGETHER
interested in discussing the implications for women of each SWAP topic? exchanging information about various feminist-oriented activities going on at U Mass?"

As I was writing the notice, with a time and meeting place, an audience of young men gathered. One introduced himself to me as "Christine Jorgensen", another made a comment changing "SWAP topics" to "wife-swapping". Obviously someone's consciousness needed to be raised.

The next evening, during the 'recreation' period after dinner, twenty-one women (and four men) got together. Following a long day of workshops, most of us were too tired to do more than that. Some issues were presented, briefly discussed, and everyone adjourned to the bar, the piano, or their rooms.

I would like to take the opportunity to discuss what didn't get examined at SWAP, a few of the things which affect the silent 42%.

The Chancellorship

We need:

1. A search for qualified female candidates for the position of Chancellor.
2. An examination of the qualifications of all candidates to see if they can represent the interests of women, what are their views on the status of women, and what have they done to actively upgrade women's positions in the academic community?
3. A concerted effort to contact members of the Search Committee and Board of Trustees concerning the new Chancellor's qualifications.

University/Town Relations

We need:

1. An investigation and action on housing discrimination against married couples and single women, with or without children, rent control, and tenant rights.
2. An extension of academic programs for the working woman, wife and mother.
3. A more readily available welfare, employment and health counseling service for the University Community.

University/State Relations

We need the sponsoring of legislative change in areas concerning women; abortion, day care, employment, welfare, birth control. University channels such as USCC and the Senate Attorney could be used.

The Student Vote

We need:

1. A campaign to register women voters and inform them of the issues and candidates.

The Future of SWAP?

The main criticism of SWAP has often been the lack of concrete results. It is as though the representatives are expected to carry out the revolution by themselves. Results depend primarily on getting the right information to more of the right people.

I learned more about University problems in one SWAP weekend than I have absorbed in two student years. If we had a more effective way to share this knowledge with the entire community (I've tried my best to offer a few ideas) then the next SWAP Conference might really produce a revolution.

2. Greater information on and participation in the Mass. Women's Political Caucus.
3. Recruitment of women to run for political office (local, state, federal) and participate in local committees and boards.

Structure of the University

We need:

1. The appointment of a new Associate Provost as director of an office to equalize the status of women, with chief responsibility for coordinating and administering programs relevant to improving the condition of women on this campus, as recommended to the Faculty Senate by the University Committee on the Status of Women.
2. Active recruitment of women for employment in staff, faculty and administration positions.
3. An investigation of and action on the discrimination against women in employment, salaries, promotion and tenuring. There are staff women presently employed by the University who against their wishes are not performing in all areas of the job in which they are trained and competent, because those areas are traditionally male. At the same time, more men are being recruited for these jobs because male tradition makes women impractical.

Security

We need:

1. Examination of situations that invite assault and rape and implementation of programs to alleviate the situation; perhaps a combination of improvement in lighting, increased patrolling, etc. and education of women students. This is also true for off-campus situations, since the campus police average one report a day concerning the assault of hitch-hikers.
2. Information on the self-defense courses available to women, including the designing of one to deal with rape and assault situations.

Counseling

We need:

1. "Vocational, educational and psychological counseling free of sexist bias." (Lois Phillips)
2. Counseling on the newly opened career field of women's studies
3. Specialized counseling for women who have interrupted their education, a reentry program including information on taking notes, how to study, tutoring available, etc.

Academics

We need:

1. Admission of women and granting of financial stipends on a more equitable basis.
2. A program offering a major in Women's Studies.
3. An examination of current course offerings to see if they misrepresent women.
4. A standardization of transfer credits, so that women who have to interrupt their education to follow husbands will not be penalized.
5. Legitimization of part time or leave of absence education so that women will not have to sacrifice the opportunity for higher education while raising a family.

Day Care

The present Child Care Center, located in Farley Lodge, was set up as a pilot project from the Chancellor's office. While it is providing a laudable service in providing day care for 57 preschoolers, it can be improved. Some suggestions might include;

1. An extensive in depth survey of parents to indicate how services might be improved or expanded (a 20% random survey is now being done).
2. Care for children under 2 yr. 9 mos. of age. While additional facilities and staff might be needed, this would greatly extend the number of parents who could take advantage of Day Care. Perhaps the School of Nursing would be interested in sponsoring such an expansion.
3. Scaled fees based on the ability to pay. While $100 a semester is very reasonable (25¢ an hour), it is still not low enough to encourage those many people with low incomes to return to school.
4. Increased participation by the University in funding the Child Care Center. Many departments could use the facility as a teaching-learning environment, and contribute funds for specific programs. A student service organization could sponsor the publication of an information booklet to further publicize the Center.

Women at U Mass

Part of the lack of results on women's issues at SWAP is due to the unorganized state of women on campus. There are many women involved and active, but for the most part they are isolated from one another.

There is a definite need for a coordination of resources and programs among women here. If the position of Associate Provost, suggested to the Faculty Senate, was created, she could serve as a clearing house for information and contacts.

Other alternatives until such action is taken might be the using of one of the existing women's groups on campus as a center, and the publication of a women's resource directory. A directory might simply be the compilation of names of University women and their feminist interests and areas of concentration. This has been done on a smaller scale by the Valley Women's Center for faculty members in the 5-Colleges.

Below are listings of the women and groups I know about, and future events that might serve to open communications;

University Committee on the Status of Women

Composed of faculty and students, has completed a report on the status of faculty women and are now investigating the status of the woman student. Contact Lee Edwards - 545-0376

School of Education Women's Caucus

Are involving themselves with the status of women faculty/students/staff at the school. Ran several programs during Marathon week. Task forces are investigating curriculum and sexism at various levels, establishment of a center for the study of women, and sexism and racism. Contact Kathyrn Girard - 545-1547

Student Senate Committee on Women

Has initiated an Medical Emergency Fund for problem pregnancies, and distribution of birth control handbooks on campus. Open to input from all women on concerns that can be investigated. Contact Lisa Mandel, Student Senate office, 1st floor, CC.

Project Self

Division of Continuing Education and Valley Women's Center. "A program of workshops by, for and about women." Open to all women, always looking for new ideas and ways to expand women's knowledge about themselves. Contact Lois Phillips - 549-6539

Southwest Women's Center

Newly opened information center located in John Quincy Adams Lounge. Trying to provide a meeting place for women. Literature and counseling. 545-0702

U Mass Women's Liberation

Contact Karen Minyard - 586-5065

Amherst Women's Liberation, Valley Women's Center

200 Main Street, Northampton - 586-2011. Support and action groups, extensive library and archives, counseling on problem pregnancies and welfare rights, free store, teach Women and Their Bodies courses - Most active and best informed women's group in the area.

U Mass Child Care Center

Contact Betsy Peltz - 545-2466

Student Homophile League

Contact Kay Raymond - 545-0154

Future Events of Interest to Women

Monday, December 6, Meeting of Student Senate Women's Committee to consider the coordination of UMass Women's groups.

Wednesday, December 8, First meeting of Gay Women's Caucus - 5 PM - JQA Lounge (SW Women's Center)

Tuesday, December 14, Robin Morgan, Women's Liberationist will speak - SU Ballroom - 8 PM

December 17-19, Women's Conference at U Mass

By KAY M. RAYMOND

Jagger, Joplin And The Pop-Star Image

By FRANK BAGLIONE

In the motion picture Gimmie Shelter, a chronicle of the Rolling Stones 1969 American tour, there is a rather prurient segment featuring Tina Turner. In it Tina rises above the usually hollow performances of the Ike and Tina Turner Review, characterized by its mechanical choreography, and succeeds in giving an exciting and unique rendition of the song "I've Been Loving You Too Long." In this arrangement Tina curls her thick lips over the penis-like top of the microphone seemingly taking more out of that instrument than she is groaning and grunting into it. She rests the stock of the microphone between her spangled mini-skirted thighs and, caressing the length of the microphone with her quivering hands, moans, "You've got what I need." Then, in case she has been too subtle, Tina finishes her performance with a soulful quickstep about the stage as if she had been pleasantly wounded by the instrument. She was tastefully lewd.

Mick Jagger, lead singer of the Stones, who watched Tina's act from back stage, sneered, "It's nice to have a chick carrying on." One might suspect a bit of professional jealousy in Jagger's remark, though there be little cause for it. No rock and roll performer can rival Jagger in his on-stage lewd and lascivious behavior. He is the consummate model for debauchery, Mephistopeles, Beelzebub and Lucifer all rolled into one sneering, grunting, hip-grinding male/female character. To say, as some have said (see letters to Poor Richard's, page 3) that a personality like Janis Joplin could rival Jagger is to engage in foolishness and display a childish faith in mediocrity.

The most glaring disparity between Joplin and Jagger is the seriousness with which they viewed their image. Mick Jagger sings about unbridled sexual expression, as in "Stray Cat Blues" ("It's no hanging matter/It's no capital crime"), and then gets married in a Catholic ceremony. Mick Jagger sings about rebellion from middle class convention ("I've got nasty habits/I take tea at three'; from "Monkey Man") and then buys a plush, two centuries old home in an exclusive Chelsea section, only to later buy an equally plush home in the South of France. In short, Jagger does not take his image seriously, he does not try to live the frenetic, drug soaked, revolutionary, over-sexed existence that he advocates in his music. Indeed, he seems disdainful of it.

Joplin, on the other hand, had no created image--she was what she sang. She was a wanton, hopelessly shallow, dirty little bitch who by the time she took her own life sounded like a weary, old woman. Jagger sings about being "bitten and tossed around by every she rat in this town," Janis was. At twenty seven years-of-age Janis Joplin, finding Southern Comfort too slow a remedy for her life, plunged the needle into her arm and ended it all with an overdose of heroin. Jagger, now nearly thirty, grunts and moans and sneers his way from one joy of life to another stopping only at his banks. There can be no comparison between Mick Jagger and Janis Joplin. The one is the artistocrat of rock and roll, the other its poor white trash.

The one time that Jagger's image did interfere with his true self the result was tragic, but once again it did not touch the aloof Jagger. The incident occurred at Altamont, the site of the Rolling Stones free concert that capped their 1969 tour. It was to be the "Woodstock West," the rebellious generation in all its beauty was to flower again on the west coast. It turned into a catastrophic event that saw four people killed, one of them murdered by members of the Hell's Angels motorcycle gang while pursuing their traditional role as equipment protectors at west coast concerts.

At one point in the chaos Jagger, supposedly the high priest of anarchy, tried to stop the periodical beatings with the pathetic plea, "Brothers and Sisters...Brothers and Sisters, why are we fighting, why are we fighting?" He must have been frightened, perplexed and at the same time embarrassed, for he knew why they were fighting. They had taken him and his music and his whole image seriously. The crowd had failed to realize what Jagger had always known--that it was all a pose, a sham ("I'm a flea-bit peanut monkey/all my friends are junkies./That's not really true.") But true or not they believed it and the energy that Jagger invariably and relentlessly generates at his performances had gotten out of hand. "Sympathy for the Devil" was stopped twice because of brawls. Everyone wanted to get in on the evil, no one listened to his singing "Please allow me to introduce myself I'm a man of wealth and taste...So if you meet me have some courtesy, have some sympathy and some taste. Use all your well learned politesse or I'll lay your soul to waste." No one listened, they were all getting their rocks off.

"...next to the (Hell's) Angels...he looked cherub-like and virginal."

Should we be surprised, then, that Jagger did some "soul wasting" that night. It could only have happened at a Rolling Stones concert--a black man in a green suit holding a gun was stabbed and beaten to death by a gang calling themselves the Hell's Angels while Jagger sneered and grunted out a song called "Under My Thumb." Jagger is a con man and a terrific performer, next to the Angels, who are more what his image exhorts one to be, he looked cherub-like and virginal. The flower people were left with a bad taste in their acid tabs, Jagger left the star of brilliant and dramatic film.

At the end of Gimmie Shelter Jagger is shown watching the murder scene on video tape. His expression is one of discomfort and boredom. He watches, then he rises, walks by the film makers, and leaving the studio says, "See ya." That's it--"See ya." No teary-eyed admission of responsibility, no remorse, no expression regret. "See ya." Crosby, Stills and Nash would have written a song about it (remember Four Dead in O-hi-o). Joplin would have said, "Fucked up, man," and then giggled. But Jagger as much as said, "So what do you want from me? How was I to know I was dealing with maniacs. See ya."

But Jagger is not dealing with maniacs. He is dealing with fools. Young fools whose blinding idealism and vicious non conformity have rendered them deaf mutes. In an interview with Rolling Stone magazine, Keith Richards of the Stones said he found it incredible that American youth associated their song "Brown Sugar" with drugs. And indeed it is incredible that some people would eagerly drop their coins into juke boxes to hear a song which many of their "concerned" brethren would consider racist and sexist. "Gold Coast slave ship bound for cotton fields,/sold in a market down in New Orleans./Scarred old slaver know he's doin' all right.' Hear him whip the women just around midnight." The chorus, "Brown Sugar how come you taste so good," has two endings, after the first verse it is "Just like a young girl should," in the second "Just like a black girl should."

So everyone is dancing and jiving to a song about an Englishman at a slave auction where "fancy ladies" are being whipped and sold to lecherous Jagger-types--"I'm no schoolboy but I know what I like./ You should have heard me just around midnight." Beautiful, maestro. Every Stones' fan glories in the cynical and masterful way Jagger reduces our most precious and earnest ideals to the prattle of children. The Stones music is to be savored, it is to be observed, the moment one tries to make a creed of it he is handed a disconcerting, complex mass of nothing. Mick Jagger so obviously played the devil that no one believed it. He was too unsubtle, so safely rebellious that all were drawn in and found, to their horror, that they do not really understand evil, do not know how to cope with it. They found that the corrupter is never really corrupt, only corrupting, for there is really no joy in the deep and dark expression of our true selves. The joy is in surviving.

So how shall we compare Mike Jagger, who sneers and prances, entices and corrupts, and Joplin who was sneered at and pranced on, enticed and corrupted. In this age of torrid sensations, of lust, gluttony, fellatio-lipped young buds bouncing down the street with their hard little nipples doing the new boogaloo through faded tee-shirts--in the midst of such "cheap thrills" and vibrating nerve ends, who is there that deserves our respect. Is it the alcohol soaked, pathetic little whore who, emersed in this carnage, gives herself an overdose of heroin? Or is it the poet-troubadour who reigns over and observes there desperate and misguided attempts for some anything better than what is real. Mick Jagger--sneering cynical, and ultimately the most humane.

"She was a wanton, hopelessly shallow, dirty little bitch who by the time she took her own life sounded like a weary, old woman."

A Musical Anachronism - Seatrain Surfaces

BY JIM LAVRAKAS

The more I hear of Seatrain the more they excite me. They have an incredible quality about them–called charisma, sometimes, for lack of a better word– that can be compared to the same kind of quality that is obvious in The Band. Unlike the Band's mysterious atmosphere which has arisen from their desire to stay out of the public light, Seatrain achieves a certain mysterious, old time atmosphere purely from a command of instruments and lyrics along with, importantly, excellently produced album jackets. They have achieved an image that is all their own. Some critics think that an image does not make a group or a single artist, for that matter. However, it is valid for an image to exist for a group when that image is produced directly from the sound, texture, feeling, and wording of the music made by that group. And a good band, a band that produces consistantly fine music which is versatile and diverse in the subjects and methods it uses for looking at those subjects is consistant, also, with its conceived image. The Band does this. As Seatrain has grown it has proven that it can do this also.

Seatrain's Marblehead Messanger hits you hard with an image that is so clear and blatant that while you listen to this album you are transported back to the olden days of wooden ships and canvas sails. Seatrain is a kind of musical anachronism. They are able to produce images and memories of old Mississippi and the old whaling days as you listen to their music. How can they produce impossible memories such as these? They do it as a result of the way in which the combination of sounds that they use work as an atmosphere on your mind. These sounds are excellently interwoven and smoothly complementing. The flute, mandolin, and, especially, the violin, along with a great ability to write lyrics that fit well into the atmosphere that is desired, are all main factors for such effective songs. Also, it helps that the personnel that make up the band are all accomplished musicians. From the first Seatrain album to this latest there has been three replacements in the six which make up the group now. They all fit and work together perfectly (unlike a very weak Seatrain which produced the first album) and the result is fascinating music which works on your mind.

One noticeable song on this Marblehead Messanger is "Losing All the Years" which is a revised version of the earlier "As I Lay Losing." This song was on both earlier albums and it seems that they will continue to return to it, sentimentally perhaps, or, as a kind of trademark. It starts out as a quick tempo song which slows down to a very relaxing, thoughtful speed Jim Roberts, who devotes himself entirely to lyrics and vocals wrote the strong lyrics to this. You can understand why they continue to return to it.

The album has no filler cuts (something I can always appreciate). Side one starts off with a quick, tapping tempo. There is good use of electrified mandolin here. As usual, violinist Richard Greene, is fantastically quick and desterious. Like Magic Dick of J. Geils, Greene is a master as he complements each song; he seems to take off with each song on that violin of his.

Seatrain slows down a little with "The State of Georgia's Mind". There is some beautiful vocal harmonization throughout this song with a good violin Listen to this one on headphones.

For me to comment on each song on the album just would not suffice. There is too much to say and I could never get it all in. Let it be enough to say that the Seatrain personnel uses their instruments every way possible, electrifying the piano sometimes, using a harpsicord at times, making use of a classical guitar at other times. The most interesting use of an electrified instrument is in the case of Richard Greene's violin. He is able to produce some fantastic sounds with his instruments; he is truly a master.

The music on the album bounces along sometimes sounding like an old revolutionary tune and at other times it slows to resemble a kind of biblical extract. This is the image that Seatrain can produce; they do it primarily through the music, remember. The vocalization and harmonizing, as I said before, is always beautiful and impressive.

Seatrain tries something new for last. "Despair Tire", the last song on the album, is a play on words. It also contains lengthy dialogue, unaccompanied by any music, which is fairly bizarre and entertaining.

Produced by George Martin in Marblehead, Mass. this latest attempt by Seatrain certainly succeeds. It is the best produced so far by this group. Hopefully, they will continue in true form. To quote the lyrics in one song, "...the secret is, but only time will tell".

Liv Taylor Makes A Montonous Return

BY KENNETH SULIN

Last summer Livingston toured the nation with Jethro Tull, quite a mismatch displaying nearly opposite ends of a continuum but fortunately his music was being heard outside of New England and the East Coast. After Mr. Taylor's set Ian Anderson came on stage almost immediately and sat himself down on Liv's stool saying in his crackly English accent "I really enjoy this tour because Livingston keeps my chair nice and warm for me!" Maybe Liv should keep to warming stools and forget about performing himself since his new music leaves a great deal to be desired as is brought out here with his second album contribution.

Livingston Taylor

It's now been well over a year since we've received any type of new material from the youngest of the Taylor brothers and Livingston himself was quoted last year in August as saying he wouldn't like another album for at least a year because of the lack in different arrangements. However, that year has passed and his lack is still at hand, which is really too bad since he is only twenty-one and loaded with talent.

If you happen to be at all familiar with his first album you're aware of the striking resemblance of his voice to that of brothers James'. Actually they present a distinctive sound but it seems once you've heard the Taylors' voices they always come across in the same fashion–easily identified but seldom altered. So it happens that this album entitled simply "Liv" gives us much of the same quality, same voice patterns and collectively the same overall sound. "Liv" is just another of those records that you will hear playing but don't listen to closely, probably due to the monotonous tone and the dragging of the album.

Each selection was composed by Livingston with the exception of "On Broadway." Often he has been known to pick up old songs and put them into a semi-contemporary style, one example of this is a song he usually does in concert, that is "Somewhere Over the Rainbow." Getting back to the album nevertheless, the remaining tracks show a terrible deficiency in any new technique, in fact, some become so alike those of the first record you may very well find yourself singing old lyrics to a new song, fitting them in with no trouble at all.

Another parallelism with the first album can be found in up-and-coming songs–if you've ever listened to a record a number of times, often with the closing chords of one song you begin processing the beginning of the next song and start singing it to yourself before it actually starts– this is exactly the case with "Liv" only the trouble here is his endings resemble the first album's so much that I found myself humming a song from the first without realizing it. Other times we're left hanging, just when it seems he may come out of his shell and turn out something more original, the song ends, and abruptly at that.

As for the musicians involved, Livingston has collected a string of them and oddly enough Walter Robinson, who as his only backup man in concerts is offered on just two cuts of the entire album. Livingston though, has at last begun to record his piano playing on several songs which becomes a relief from his sameness, but to me he can do without the backing electrics and drums and record as he performs before audiences, simply with bass and his own acoustic. With "Liv" as with most second albums by various musicians there is a definite increase in the studio work, usually resulting in a more cluttered sound hiding much of their own talent.

Along with the record we are given a neatly done insert, naturally all it has is a complete set of lyrics so you'll be able to discover the poetic genius of Livingston Taylor,' although he's probably only as much of a poetic genius as Rod McKuen, which isn't enough to shake a stick at, very standard lines, nothing curious, nothing inspiring.

All in all the album is slow and wilting, no song patterns and really very little to get excited about. It seems that if you have one of the Taylor albums that's enough, don't venture too much further or you'll probably be disappointed. Maybe Livingston should stick to doing Coke commercials for real!

Albums

Madman Across The River

By STEVE FELD

Elton John's musical style possesses a definite sense of permanence. It may seem, as with Tumbleweed Connection funkier, or with 11-17-70 less rigid, but his formula remains the same. The creation of a musical mood, accompanied by lyrics displaying an obviously unique quality that fits congruently with that mood, will never wear thin. It comes across as meaningful, artistic and often poignant, without bordering on pretentiousness or, god forbid, Muzak.

Madman Across the Water marks no giant step forward in the continuing saga of Elton John, or does it make any claims of being something that it isn't. What it does do is to bring together once again a superb collection of brilliant sophisticated songs. They simply reflect the musical talents of Elton John and the lyrical luxuries of Bernie Taupin.

"Tiny Dancer" is an instant Elton John classic. John and Taupin knew it, that's why they put it first. It is an elegant song that starts out as simplicity itself. It is in three parts, the second serving as a bridge leading into the Paul McCartneyesque chorus. I thought for sure that this would be the cut that all the AM stations would pick up on, but they chose the next song, "Levon". It is a song with biblical overtones, and it tells the story of this good man who worked his way up "in tradition with the family plan". "He makes a lot of money they say". Levon slowly dies, however So much for the American Dream.

"Razor Face" shrinks in comparison to the others. He is an old man, "needs a man who's young to walk him round." We can't help but feel sorry for him. "You're the song on the lips of an aging star...And I'll never learn the reason why I love your Razor Face."

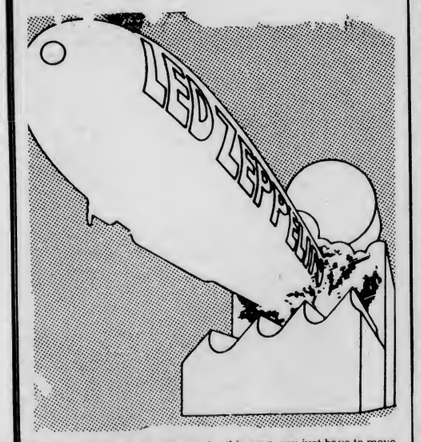
The next two songs are "Madman Across the Water" and "Indian Sunset". They come across as being the meat of the album, both grandiose in production and impact. They show John Taupin at their best. "Madman" tells a tale of horror. "Take my word I'm a madman don't you know." It is laden with symbolism and is in a minor key for effect. The song is a question of reality. "Is the nightmare black or are the windows painted?" We are never told.

"Indian Sunset" is a sad tale from a humble, though proud man. Elton assumes the role of an Iroquois, watching his people being slowly slaughtered. "And now you ask that I should watch the red man's race be slowly crushed!" He realizes that because of the bastard white man he can't find a home, he is along. "There seems no reason why I should carry on and peace to this young warrior comes with a bullet hole."

In "Indian Sunset" Elton plays his piano harmonies in fourths, giving it the proper atmosphere and adding to the impact of the lyrics. He then switches tempos, showing his humbleness with a soft, beautiful melody. This builds once again to harmonic fourths, this time with Paul Buckmaster's string It ends in a minor key, the way it started, which complements John's despair and helplessness. John and Taupin paint a picture with sound and it is nothing short of a masterpiece.

"Holiday Inn" is merely filler that deserves no more than to be the "B" side of a single. "Rotten Peaches" is a groupie song, the title being euphemistic symbolism, comparable to the phallic symbolism of "Ballad of a Well- Known Gun", "Rotten Peaches" reminds me of a Graham Nash ditty, with its sing-along atmosphere.

"All the Nasties" is a story of a young man growing into adulthood, and the cruelty of people along the way. It is one of those "Why don't they understand?" themes, that, when handled as properly as this, comes across effectively. When that "full blooded city boy is now a full-blooded city man" he can't feel any contempt towards them, just despair. "Oh, my oul" he cries at the end.



"Goodbye" is a short, poignant production that ends the album. "I'm sorry I took your time, I am the poem that doesn't rhyme Just turn back the page I'll waste away." In less than two minutes, this John Taupin song should leave one totally sympathetic of this man's crisis, and closes the album on the theme of hopelessness, which dominates so much of it.

New Led Zep: Better But Not The Best

by Stephen Colwell

Picture yourself trying to swim back, through an ocean of electronic sound, to the year 1969, and not quite making it, and you've pictured the new Led Zeppelin album. After producing a great first album, Led Zepplin went downhill fast with albums II and III. Their music had changed from great hard rock blues into a mess of electronic confusion On the latest album, however, Jimmy Page tries to "get it back," and almost succeeds, but not quite. Although there's some great material on this album, there's a lot of material that's drawn out, sour, and even boring.

"Black Dog," the album's opening cut, is, musically, a take-off on "Good Times, Bad Times," the opening cut on the first album. The song concerning lead singer Robert Plant's relationship with a Negro whore, never really gets going. Some good guitar work at the end pulls the song through, though, and leads the way for "Rock and Roll," the best song on the album. When you hear this song, you just have to move. The vocals, drums, and guitar work are fantastic. The song leaves you with the feeling that Zeppelin has "got it back," but unfortunately, they lose it again.

"The Battle of Evermore" comes in mystically, evoking in you that "Ramble On" feeling. For the first time in four albums, Robert Plant gets some help on vocals from a girl, identified as "Sandy." (Sandy Denny from Fairport Convention.) The lyrics are hauntingly emotional. The song concerns a war between spirits and angels for control of the earth's "balance." "Mortals" can only watch the battle helplessly, as the "balance" is taken away. They cry out "bring it back!" which seems to be the theme of the album, but it all comes across a little too sour to be worthwhile. The final cut of the first side, "Stairway to Heaven" is the prettiest song Led Zepelin has done since "Thank You." This song belongs totally to Robert Plant, who builds it from a slow balled into a driving, forceful, beautiful piece of music. Jimmy Page works his best guitar solo since "Since I've Been Loving You," nicely into the last verse. The percussion by John Bonham fits the song perfectly. But it's Robert Plant, whose voice has the greatest range that I've ever heard, that makes this cut as good as it is.

The second side of the album is good, but not anything to be ecstatic over. "Misty Mountain Top" is a little too electronic to be great. The lyrics are good; the song scoffs people using drugs, "Why don't you take a good look at yourself, and Baby, Baby, Baby, do you like it?" Plant's vocals are a little sloppy, as are John Bonham's drums, but Page's guitar makes the song enjoyable. This is the song off the album that you'll find yourself humming a lot. "Four Sticks" has some fantastic drums and guitar work. The effect of a crazed man, running from his girlfriend, is done expertly with Bonham's drum and Page's guitar. Plant's vocals express the feelings of the person perfectly, from his confession to his crying, wailing despair at the end of the song. "Going to California" is a pretty song with not much to it. Robert Plant's vocals sound a lot like Donavan on this cut, and only his "change" of voice in the middle verse save the song from disaster, as it is botched up pretty bad with a sour chorus at the end. You'll love this song, though, if you're ever depressed and need something to listen to. The last cut on the album, "When the Levee Breaks," is a song that had the potential to be as good or better than "How Many More Times." Plant's harmonica at the beginning of this seven-minute "heavy" is so fantastic, you'll get shivers up and down your spine. Page and Bonham team up again with guitars and drums to create a great effect of water breaking and crashing over a levee. But the second half of the cut breaks just like the levee and Robert Plant and the song drown themselves, just when swimming a little farther could have brought the song, and the album, back to 1969 and that great blues sound of Led Zeppelin's first album.

If you're a Led Zeppelin freak, you'll love this album. Although Jimmy Page tries very hard to make it one of the best albums of 1971, he just doesn't quite make it, although he takes a big step in the right direction.

CASABLANCA

Friday, Dec. 3 at 7, 9, 11
Student Union Ballroom

Basic Audio

Comparing Tubes And Transistors

BY FRANK JOHNSON

Since the beginning of this series we have been looking at transducers, which generate electrical current when exposed to acoustical or mechanical energy. Though transducers will perform well when correctly designed, their output tends to be rather small, as they are inherently inefficient devices. The current or signal that they generate has to be amplified or enlarged in a series of stages before it can be useful to us, just the way we need a microscope to enlarge or amplify an image too small for us to see with the naked eye.

It would be difficult, however, to move ahead with electrical components without a brief summary of how some of their internal devices operate. These devices which specifically do the job of amplification are either vacuum tubes or transistors. I have included some very rough illustrations which hopefully might make the discussion of these devices somewhat clearer.

No doubt a tube or a transistor has been seen at least once by most of us, in some form or another. Their net result is the same - amplification - but they accomplish this by different methods. First in our discussion is the vacuum tube. It consists of some coil windings called filaments, which give off electrons when charged with a current. These filaments are enclosed in a glass envelope, much like a light bulb, to prevent oxidation or burning out in the presence of air. If a negative charge is placed on a filament, and a positive charge is applied to a metal plate, we can amplify the current and cause the electrons to move from the negatively charged filament (the cathode) to the positively charged plate (the anode). This is called the diode effect, and it was noticed by Edison shortly after he developed his incandescent lamp.

The diode is very dependent on the nature of the current from the power supply. It cannot amplify a varying signal very efficiently. For this we need to place a control grid, which we can view simply as a screen, between the anode and the cathode. This now makes the tube an efficient amplifier. There is a nomenclature used to signify the number of grids used in a tube. A 1-grid tube is called a triode; 2 grids signify a tetrode, and 3 grids classify a pentode. Each of these types determines to what purpose the tube will be used. Triodes generally work with low powered signals, whereas tetrodes and pentodes are usually placed in high powered output circuitry (though there are occasional exceptions to this rule).

The vacuum tube is relatively efficient, but it also wastes a good deal of power. The filaments have to be heated in order to charge the cathode, using up quite a bit of voltage. The filaments suffer from the same problems that plague a light bulb: they will sometimes burn out unexpectedly, and this means that the tube must be replaced, interfering with the operation of the unit. To prevent the filament from oxidizing due to the presence of air, it must be contained in a vacuum and sealed in a glass envelope, which can break. Furthermore, certain tubes have a tendency to introduce hum (spurious AC noise) because they pick up some alternating current from the power supply. They are also apt to be rather delicate, as mechanical shock will not only damage the glass envelope, but it may also knock out the filaments as well.

The diode principle is about a century old, but the transistor was not successfully developed until 1947. This newer device operates under a much different principle than the vacuum tube. It consists of metallic slabs sandwiched together, and separated by a layer of impurities. The impurities are semiconductors, being neither insulators (repelling electrical charges) or conductors (carrying electrical charges). Depending on how the structure of a transistor is arranged, the layer of impurities is either positive to an electric charge (p-type) or negative (n-type). For reasons of simplicity, we can view a basic transistor in terms of 3 layers. The p-type layer is sandwiched between 2 n-type layers, and it will control the current in an analogous fashion to the control grid in a triode vacuum tube. This is called a n-p-n transistor. If we want to adapt it for a circuit with different polarity, we merely put the negative layer between 2 positive layers, and have a p-n-p transistor.

Several factors are realized by this arrangement that are quite useful to us. Because current flow is almost instantaneous in a transistor, there is no warmup time. Because there are no filaments (and also no glass envelope), there is no need for filament voltage, and also less danger of breakage from mechanical shock. In addition, there is little chance for gradual degradation of the filaments due to prolonged use. Transistors can be made very small, allowing them to be used where no vacuum tube circuitry is possible (due to size and weight).

There are some drawbacks to transistors, however. Initially, the major problem was one of cost, though cheaper and better methods of producing transistors have since been developed. But transistors in some ways are more delicate than tubes. If excessive voltage is applied to a tube, for instance, it will either distort or else change in efficiency to meet the demand. The same voltage surge might however easily damage a transistor by melting one of the layers, rendering it useless. All tubes are placed in sockets in a circuit, allowing them to be removed periodically to be tested, or replaced if necessary. Not so the transistor. Locating a defective one may require a lot of time and probing with measuring devices. Tubes usually operate in the presence of a lot of heat. Transistors, on the other hand, may be permanently damaged by too much heat. Because heat is usually a function of excessive voltage in a conductor, many high power transistors need thermal protection devices, circuit breakers, or large heat sinks (conducting fins which cool the device) as insurance against heat failure. All this adds to the cost and complexity which is not required in a tube unit.

Nevertheless, transistors have developed to an extent where they have almost completely replaced vacuum tubes in many applications. The ubiquitous pocket radio, for instance, would not have been possible without transistors. Transistors have vastly reduced the complexity and cost in high fidelity by eliminating certain components such as filament power and output transformers. They have allowed much more sensitive tuners (radios) to be built, and have also been very useful in pre-amplifiers, for in the process of amplifying weak signals that originate from transducers, they tend to be quieter than tubes. As we shall see later on, transistors have greatly reduced the distortion of power amplifiers and have also increased the ultimate wattage potential without concurrently increasing cost and bulk.

In short, for purposes of amplification we need either a tube or a transistor. Next time we'll see how they can be put to work for the purposes of extracting radio signals from the air.

2 output transformers used in tube amplifiers. Transistor amplifiers don't need them because they do not have to have their output impedence matched to that of the speaker.

Smithies Do The Wizard

For those adults who love nostalgic experiences, and for those young people who enjoy old fairy tales, the Smith College Department of Theatre and Speech is offering a delightful experience: a lavish presentation of The Wizard of Oz., as adapted for the stage by Frank Gabrielson, with music and lyrics by Harold Arlen and E.Y. Harburg.

The production will feature all of the famous characters: Dorothy, Aunt Em and Uncle Henry, the Tin Woodsman, the Cowardly Lion, and the Scarecrow, witches–wicked and good, and, of course, the Wizard of Oz, himself.

The cast will be made up of graduate and undergraduate students at Smith College, and will include a large number of youngsters who live in Northampton and Hatfield.

The show will open on Friday evening at 8 p.m. Subsequent performances will be given on Saturday, at 2 p.m. and 8 p.m.; on Sunday at 2 p.m.; on Friday, Dec. 10 at 8 p.m., and on Saturday, the 11th at 10 a.m. and 8 p.m. Tickets may be obtained at the box office in the Center for the Performing Arts weekdays between noon and 5 p.m., 584-2700, ext. 840.

Spend a night with

The Baby Maker

Tonite

C.C. Aud. 7 & 9:15

(An Adult Movie)

DON'T MISS IT

ACADEMY OF MUSIC

AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE

NOW-EXCLUSIVE!! EVES. - 7:00 and 9:00 Sat.-Sun.-Cont. 2:30

NORTHAMPTON, MASS. 584-8435 - PARK MASONIC ST. LOT

The Murders that shocked the Nation. The Trial that still shakes the World.

The SACCO & VANZETTI Murder Case

"TRIUMPHANT! IT WILL FASCINATE YOU!" —Judith Crist, NEW YORK MAGAZINE

MONDAY & TUESDAY..BALCONY SEATS $1.00 - Come join in the fun, the balcony is open again!

Edwards Up From Sugar Creek

Jonathan Edwards, the Capricorn Recording Artist, will be appearing in concert Tuesday, December 7, in the UMass Student Union Ballroom. He appeared at UMass last year with Phil Ochs in a very successful and well received concert.

Jonathan Edwards is a 24-year-old folksinger on his way up. Listening to him, you get the feeling he's taking you up with him. His thoughts are our thoughts. He just writes them down and sings them back to us. His music isn't comfortable, it's comforting.

Edwards spent five years as lead singer of Sugar Creek, breaking away recently to be on his own. He recently released his first solo album "Jonathan Edwards," which he describes as "some funky tunes" he wrote. It includes folk-type love songs, using rhythm and melody that is "pretty easy to follow."

On stage, it's "just me and my guitar and harp" and a bass player. "Where it's at is having people have a good time. It's really sad having someone in an ego trip on stage."

Edwards current hit single "Sunshine" is his "revolutionary song:" Sunshine go away today. I don't feel much like dancing. Some man gone and tried to run my life. But he don't know what he's asking.

In recent appearances, he has played on bills with Poco, John Sebastian, Paul Butterfield Blues Band, Allman Brothers and Summerthing. Colleges, he agrees, are more responsive to his music.

Tickets are now on sale in the RSO office. The concert is sponsored by Program Council.

Jonathan Edwards

Portrait Of An Artist

BY JONATHAN EDWARDS

Someone said they heard of me in Montana. That's great but I haven't been there yet; I was born in Minnesota and that's two Dakotas away.

I started out like everybody else - wet and naked - probably in the morning of July 28th in '46. I say probably because I was put up for adoption shortly thereafter and I really don't know any details. I do know that I was raised in Minnesota for the first six years of my life. We lived with my grandmother who taught me my first music. She even wrote some songs that I still remember, one of which was a hymn.

Then we moved to Virginia where my father worked for the government. During this time I started thinking I was from another planet, or something like that. It all fit. I thought I was perfect. My father was high up in the government. I thought I was transmitting information and being fed special energy cells at my favorite hamburg joint. I never told anybody until I turned 14 and found out that maybe I wasn't perfect.

Anyhow, Virginia was nice. I spent a lot of time in the woods and swamps until they tore it all down. I guess you could say that this is where I did most of my growing up. The lady next door taught me how to play piano for about five years and she used to tell me I was really going to make it. I used to take the pieces, add my own parts and blow her mind.

During the next few years I did everything from burning down new houses to auditioning for the Ice Capades. My father wouldn't let me join the Ice Capades, and the police wouldn't let me burn down new houses, so I went to military school. I never had any brothers or sisters and, what with being from another planet and all, I was a pretty lonely kid; so military school settled nicely on my head. It was, by far, more of a lesson in life than book learning and that's also where I picked up most of my music.

We never had to study to get good grades so we used to play music all the time. A lot of demerits for that. I had a Kay guitar and my friend had a Stella, and the hours of joy we got out of those axes I'm still trying to find. We used to sneak out and catch the bluegrass and country bands that came to the town for square dances. Such incredible spirit and energy. I remember a group called Harry Buttermilk Snyder and the Buttermilk Drinkers...we'd get them to sit down and show us everything they could - songs, riffs, anything.

Soon I started my own group called The Rivermen. I still have the name carved in my Kay. We used to play in Minstrel Shows and before the school's rock band would take the stand at our dances. I wanted to join the rock band but since they said I wasn't good enough, I stuck with my Kay and even started writing my own tunes.

My roommate told me I couldn't sing so I got into painting when I went to college. That was in Athens, Ohio, where I also found lots of people to play with and learn from. I met a guy named Malcolm McKinney and we got together at first to sing gospel tunes and ragtime and all kinds of different stuff. We used to go to the one-room churches on Sunday morning and sing "Just a Closer Walk with Thee" and "When the Roll is Called up Yonder" (I still do those tunes). They were the kind of churches that had everything happening in one room - preacher, choir, sunday school, wood stove - everything. It was great. They thought it was a visitation of some kind. Maybe it was! The Salvation Army is still talking about when we went to a meeting and sang.

Gradually, electric music took us over and we were doing Byrds and Dylan and Beatles like everyone else and writing all the time. Remember how heavy it was to go and see a group close-up like in the cafeteria - really incredible. To actually be up there sounding so loud and strong was the heaviest thing I'd ever done, except maybe trying out for the Ice Capades. We were called the St. James Doorknob and I was the lead singer and was I bad! At least, I thought I was bad, with the sunglasses, collar up, hair, everything. I wrote songs like:

Time was I could see
Just what it was that was happening to me
I could see my reflection on the wall
The door was always open
For things to come in floating
Far above the hairlines of us all'.

In five part harmony! Naturally my creative energy went toward singing and away from painting, and I used to write songs in figure drawing class- naked girls and everything. The day I quit school, not long after, was the happiest day of my life. Soon I persuaded the rest of the group to quit school too. We changed our name (and a few faces) to the Headstone Circus. I was detained by my draft board for various reasons. When this had its own happy ending, I split for Boston the next day.

We were really famous in Ohio but Boston didn't seem to care. In those days everything we touched turned into blues. It was a way of life; we were writing fast and hard. The happy blues were as scarce as hen's teeth and so was the food. The drummer had us over for dinner - we had potatoes from a box and instant oatmeal with water and I sang some blues that night. It was really hard times for everybody.

Up until this time, we had been "discovered" sixteen times. Then Peter Casperson came down and "discovered" us again and said he'd get us some gigs. . . no Cadillacs, just gigs. "Far out", we said, "That's a new pitch, we'll take it."

We started eating more regularly (as often as three times a week) and the blues got brighter. We changed our name to Sugar Creek (a town in Ohio) and did an album of some of the stuff we'd been writing. One song on the record was just me and my acoustic called, "Lady Linda." Everyone in the group had their own song they wanted to do. A strange album; I drew the front cover and we couldn't get gigs because the club owners thought we were black. It was called "Please Tell a Friend", and no one did but it is a collector's item - well done, I think, but rare.

Having been with Sugar Creek through good times and bad for five years, I was really reluctant to step outside and see what I could do. We played as loud as we could all that time and I was getting to where I couldn't stand it. I'd finish playing five sets in the Boom Boom Room, come back and pick up my good old acoustic and say, "Wow, that's real pretty. I want to hear bronze strings on rosewood, not steel strings on magnets. I want to see candles instead of neon lights, I want to ride a horse instead of drive a car, I want to . . ."

I freaked out in that world of tubes and transistors and I still can't really hear what that music is saying. I spent that summer of 1970 in the forest with my rosewood and a bottle of Georgia's Best trying to get it together. The year that followed was beautiful, and fast and furious. I recorded my first album and did a lot of traveling and singing and writing all along the way. I learned what a beautiful feeling it is to have the people you're playing for actually listen to what you're singing and really like you when you're done instead of throwing things.

There is a joy that I get from playing music for people that I can't really describe, but it's a little like the feeling you get when someone is trying to say something and although he may not have said it right, you know exactly what he means. I'll be trying to share this joy with all the people I play for, I can't keep it to myself any longer. . .

So Montana, look out. I'll be there and if you are into neon lights, plug it in, and if you are into candles, light one.

Next Mon. and Tues. ONLY

Jonathan Miller's Production of Shakespeare's

JULIUS CAESAR

with the Oxford and Cambridge Shakespeare Company

Mount Holyoke College Arts in Performance

CHAPIN AUDITORIUM, SOUTH HADLEY, MASS.

Performances: Mon. and Tues. only Dec. 6-7 at 8:00 p.m.

Box Office open: 10:00 a.m.-9:00 p.m. Mon.-Sun.

Call 538-2419 Ticket Prices $1, $3, $4.

Ringo Starr — Ewa Aulin — Marlon Brando
Walter Matthau — Elsa Martinelli in

"CANDY"

(1969 - in color)

Music by Steppenwolf and the Byrds

Sat. Dec. 4 Mahar Aud.

6:30 — 8:45 — 11:00

Program Council Presents

Jonathan Edwards

with

Bill Workman

in concert

Tues., Dec. 7

7:30 & 10:00

Advance Sale tickets at RSO Office $1.25

So Who Will Beat The Beatles?

A review of the Beatle years
by NICK MINOTTI

The Beatles are still doing it. Regarded with as much respect and praise as ever, they are unquestionably the best musical production group in rock history. They are what could be called universals or common denominators in the popular music of today. The Stones and Bob Dylan are excellent examples of this. Clapton and associates, John Mayal, and Frank Zappa are also reaching this plane of considered genius. That is what they have proven themselves as over a period of time, and they will always have appeal. After them come groups like Chicago, The Grateful Dead, CSNY, and others which are all definite "supergroups" but they are not quite as highly regarded as the aforementioned bands. But even today with their last joint effort, Abbey Road (occuring sometime in 1968--) Let It Be was recorded before it) The Beatles are still on a plateau higher than anyone else.

Of course, in their early days they had the appeal of rock and roll gods complete with screaming girls. But as time went on you began to realize that there was more here than just long hair and boots. Rubber Soul was the first good hint that this band was really progressing. At the time it came out it was very sophisticated in parts and had a serious tone to it as if the group was asking you to look at their music with directness instead of fan appeal. As I said, it was just a hint, all leading up to one of the biggest milestones in popular music history.

Sgt. Pepper is probably the greatest single album ever created. The change that occured in music between this and the Beatles' previous album, and all consequent music, was overwhelming. The phenominal production of George Martin coupled with the individual genius of the group's personnel makes this album incomparable. Sgt. Pepper is Sgt. Pepper. You can only compare it to itself. Even today (it came out in 1967), it is so different, so individual, a piece of work that no other popular music work has been able to draw from successfully, either directly or indirectly.

Then, after a few "fill up" albums (Yesterday and Today, for example) where possibly two or three songs on each were extremely sophisticated, they came out with the White Album, or Double Album. This was before double albums were popular, the same way they printed the words to Sgt. Pepper before it was a fad. The White Album was superb. It was perhaps their last great joint effort before going off in different musical directions. The breakup was a result of their individual genius getting on each others nerves. It was magnificent--two albums, thirty songs--with each song different from the other, musically masterful, and all complementing each other in a similar way that Sgt. Pepper's music gives the impression of going to a carnival and having a hand take you on a trip through a makebelieve land, and, ultimately, cordially saying good-bye (the good-bye is "Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band"--reprise).

Then came Abbey Road, though tense feelings were present in the group during this album. It is probably my favorite and second only to Sgt. Pepper's in overall brillance. The first side shows individuality of the group and the directions in which they were going. Lennon in "Come Together", Harrison in "Something" (probably one of the best things he has ever done), Ringo in "Octopuses Garden", and McCartney in "Oh Darling" (in which he sings in one of the most emotional, feeling-filled voices I've ever heard), and ending with "I Want You (She's so heavy)", a better example of a group effort.

Then comes the second side. It combines the talents of all The Beatles, mixing them beautifully. It gives the impression of one continuous song, originating with "Because" (second song on this side) and ending with "The End" (this is the tenth song on a side of eleven). Everything about them is at its best. From Lennon's song writing to McCartney's voice changing and bass playing. His playing earned for him first place on "Playboy's" Jazz and Pop poll, a poll backed by every great personality and magazine in the popular music industry from Dave Brubeck, Ginger Baker, and Frank Sinatra to Erik Clapton and B. B. King.

One song leads into the next very well with mood changes coming at just the right time. Harrison is particularly brillant on guitar here. (Clapton was quoted as calling him the best in the world). He comes through forcefully and with many diverse styles. The part he plays towards the end of the side between "Carry That Weight" and "The End" is one of the best and most tastefully done lead guitar rifts I've ever heard.

We usually take them as a group but they are individually brillant. This is something you didn't think about too much and something that was taken for granted for the most part because they were. . .well, the "Beatles". This growth in musical competence, with each pursuing his own, had as much to do with their breakup as anything. Could Mozart and Beethoven or Louis Armstrong and John Phillips Sousa team up and both be satisfied with the end result?

Since the actual group rift each one has done some works of his own. Lennon's simplicity and rawness in his first album, John Lennon-Plastic Ono Band, is excellent. His second album, Imagine, although still raw and sometimes crudely beautiful, is as good as the first if not better. Harrison also plays with him on this one. Lennon is still bitter about how his childhood was, with a father who left him as a child and a mother who was killed in a traffic accident just afterwards. The bitterness comes through very much on his first album and is the tone in some of the stuff on his second. An example of this is the attack on Paul McCartney in "How Do You Sleep", although it is more subdued.

Harrison broke away and proved himself in All Things Must Pass. It was a good indication of where he was going towards--Mysticism, Jesus, self-awareness in Hare Korisna, etc. Playing with him was every blue-chip rock and roll-blues artist around (Jim Gordon, Bobby Whitlock, Billy Preston, Ringo Star, Eric Clapton, Dave Mason, and Ginger Baker to name a few.) The songs themselves, although musicallysimple, were done with sophistication.

McCartney, the mainstay of the breakup of the group, went out and made an album all his own, playing every instrument heard by performing over tracks of his own music. It is certainly great listening although missing some of the jam artistry of musicians playing together since it was an individual effort. That's understandable. His second album, Ram, is a continuation of the free-wheeling happy music that was heard in the earlier McCartney, showing his happiness with his family and sounding a little like popular music to a Broadway show (he has already written the score to a show).

Ringo has done an album and has produced a million-selling single "It Don't Come Easy". His solo stuff is not as striking as the other boys but it is certainly adequate. Ringo was thought of the best musician in the bunch way back when.

As I said before, as a group, with all the diversity, they are the best. I saw them in person twice, once in 1965, and in 1966 in Shea Stadium. The latter appearance was their last performance together in the U.S. During the '65 concert you couldn't hear yourself think, which was typical of all Beatles concerts since their inception. But in '66 (Yellow Submarine had just come out) people had started listening. There was between 55 and 65,000 people there and you could hear a pin drop during the quieter numbers with screaming coming only during their last song of the night, "Long Tall Sally".

During their reign they took us through the screaming and idolizing age and matured us along with their music to the age where young people go to concerts to listen closely. They were pioneers and still are. We owe much of what is our music scene today to them. Remember, in most every field in our popular music today, whether it be hard rock, Far Eastern influenced, country-western, psychadelic rock, whatever the form, the Beatles have reached them first, did them with a great amount of proficiency, and left them to go on to others. This occured before many of us knew the form itself existed.

Simply amazing.

Tel. 584-2310

CALVIN
Northampton

NOW Ends Tues.

Eves. 7:00 - 9:00
Sat.-Sun. 7:10 - 7:00 - 9:00

(Adults $1.50)

VANESSA REDGRAVE
~
OLIVER REED (X)
IN KEN RUSSELL'S FILM
THE DEVILS

BARGAIN NITES
Mon. and Tues. $1.00

Dec. 8 "2001 Space Odyssey"

CRY UNCLE!
Rated a very funny "X"
Campus III
at 7:00, 9:00
Sun. mat. 2
FROM THE DIRECTOR OF "JOE" laugh till you CRY UNCLE!

Campus Cinemas
256-6411
AMHERST-HADLEY LINE
New Sun. Policy!
2 p.m. Matinees All Shows.

DOLLAR NIGHTS
Mon. & Tues.
Everyone $1

Still People Are Lining Up To See ...
Campus II
at 7:15, 9:00
Sun. mat. 2
X Together

WALT DISNEY'S FANTASIA
TECHNICOLOR
THE ULTIMATE EXPERIENCE
Campus I at 7:00 & 9:00/Sun. mat 2 p.m.

Films

Harry Kellerman, Who Are You?

By FRANK BAGLIONE

Who is Harry Kellerman And Why Is He Saying Those Terrible Things About Me? Directed by Ulu Grosbard, screenplay by Herb Gardner, featuring Dustin Hoffman, Jack Warden, Barbara Harris and David Burns.

George Soloway stands by the ledge of his penthouse apartment atop the GM building in New York writing a suicide note--"As a young man I had planned to live forever, but recent events have conspired to make me alter that decision." We are watching the opening scene of Who Is Harry Kellerman? with Dustin Hoffman playing George Soloway, America's top rock and roll songwriter suffering from a recurrent fantasy of late that he is leaping to his death.

Invariably, however, Soloway's leap lands him on the couch of his German-accented psychoanalyst where our hero recounts his other recurring fantasies--a taxi driver whose meter is continually running, a calypso voodoo man, a Slavic Santa Claus, and even one where his shrink bursts into the song, "Don't Tell Me Your Troubles". Along with these fantasies Soloway has been plagued by a nemesis named Harry Kellerman who is systematically turning off George's potential romantic attachments with phone calls describing our hero's less admirable traits. To cap his torment George has also had insomnia for weeks.

Just who is Harry Kellerman is fairly obvious since no suspects emerge and only one person could have had all the numbers, but his identity is only definitely revealed at the end. The film includes a jumble of scenes which sometimes confuse the viewer who may not be sure if the scene is a flashback, the present (is his hair grey) , or if it is another of his fantasies. Still, it holds up fairly well.

This film is more than just another story about the star whose celebrity we envy but whose private life we pity. It is more than the portrayal of a psychotic desiring an end to his existence. For at the base of Soloway's psychosis there lies that first shocking realization of mortality which he could not intergrate with his life. This is evidenced in many scenes. In a flashback to Soloway's first experience with love he remarks, "But I was eighteen then and I knew how to live forever." Then in another, Soloway now in his thirties, successful, and married with two sons (the oldest twelve) the pained Soloway expresses his disbelief at his own age when he feels and thinks like he were actually eighteen. Turning to his children he says, almost bitterly, "Look at those kids... They're like clocks...I can't believe I have kids that age."

In contrast to Soloway's refusal to accept his mortality there are the scenes with his parents who are more in accord with the rhythm of life. The bare white and chrome decor of Soloway's apartment is glaringly unfertile and contrasts nicely with his parents amiably cluttered nest. The late David Burns who plays Soloway's father is subdued and luminous as the old restauranteur, sentimentally attached to his old place, and stoically awaiting his death by an already diagnosed disease. He is serene and graceful approaching death while his son reacts to age with panic and despair.

Dustin Hoffman

Herb (1000 Clowns) Gardner's screenplay is nearly excellent but is sometimes diminished because director Ulu Grosbard succeeds with some scenes and fails with others. And although there is one very notable rock song, "Last Morning", used to open and close the film, it is evident that Soloway's eminence as a composer is not derived from Shel Silverstein's musical score.

Despite its faults, this picture is extremely entertaining and genuinely funny. At the same time the theme of a man coming to the full realization of his mortality is compelling to a degree directly proportional to the viewer's own realization of his impermanence and the inevitability of his aging. The acting in the film is consistently good. Hoffman is brilliant as usual as he plays the dazed and bedeviled hero (how we ache for him to get some rest). Barbara Harris has the best written role as a beautiful loser with an art for loving. Gabriel Dell is supremely adroit as a modern day satyr who bids farewell to all through an electronic megaphone. Warden's changes of costume and accent win him his scenes, while the late David Burns' graceful acting endears him to all.

Released this past summer, Who Is Harry Kellerman? is a film which deserves a second viewing. If as yet unseen, the viewer will be grateful for this additional opportunity for a night of very pleasant entertainment. Dustin (Graduate, Midnight Cowboy, Little Big Man) Hoffman continues to be an extremely reliable indicator of good films.

The French Connection

By WAYNE A. TIFFANY

Marseille, France. FADE IN: a man walks into a bakery and emerges carrying a long loaf of French bread. DISSOLVE TO: same man entering doorway of his home. CUT TO: killer in doorway wearing leather coat. (Of course he's wearing a leather coat. All killers wear leather coats. Didn't you see Shaft? CLOSE UP: man holding bread. QUICK CUT TO: killer holding .45. QUICK CUT TO: bread man BANG! man shot in face. BANG! man shot in chest. much blood. man falls. TWO SHOT: killer takes bread from dead man, bites off a piece, throws remains on corpse. FADE OUT. ESTABLISHING SHOT--New York City--TITLE SEQUENCE.

Thus begins the French Connection. For the next two hours we are treated to more senseless killings, assorted muggings, rapes, beatings, knifings, automobile crashes, many more murders, and a finale chase that makes the one in Bullitt look like something from Matt Sennett.

All of this comes courtesy of director William Friedkan (The Boys in the Band), writer Ernest Tidyman (who also wrote Shaft), and producer Phillip D'Antoni (Bullitt). Hell hath no fury like this threesome. Add to the above an earsplitting, pianobanging score and the original "I'm a mean, take-no-shit, sonofabitch cop" (Gene Hackman) and how can you lose?

It's no wonder that the French Connection is a box office success and there is no doubt that Friedkan has done a brilliant job of directing, but this brilliance is achieved through the crudest and cheapest means possible. Friedkan turns his audience on by the constant and unrelentless use of brute force, shattering noises, and deliberate shock. This is not art; it's cinema dezap.

There are many flaws in this film, which deals with the largest narcotics haul in the history of the New York Police Department, but you won't notice them, because you'll be too busy waiting for the next murder. The acting is all one-dimensional. These aren't real people we're watching. They're animated puppets. And there are far too many unrelated scenes, such as an automobile crash, which has nothing whatsoever to do with the story, except to give you an excellent view of two bloody corpses. And why in hell would any reasonably intelligent dope smuggler abandon a car filled with heroin on some side street? Apparently so the "narcs" can find it, and we can proceed with the story. And then there's that opening sequence. We are never told why the man was killed. Maybe the killer has an insatiable desire for French bread.

The French Connection leaves you with nothing to think about, not even the saving grace of an interesting performance. Even the "Z" style ending, packed full of "social comment", seems out of place and forced. Label this one entertainment; jolts for jocks.

NOW...YOUR CHOICE OF 5!
Showcase
Rt. 5-W, Sptld.
Cinema 1-2-3-4-5
733-5131
MORE NEW SHOWS!
MORE NEW LOUNGER SEATS!
MORE NEW PARKING!
MATINEES DAILY...POPULAR PRICES
Adults $1.50 Also thru Fri Mats
1 Man in the Wilderness GP
2 Maid in Sweden X
3 French Connection R
4 Gone With The Wind G
5 200 Motels R
ACRES FREE PARKING
ROCKER LOUNGERS

Lang's Photo Studio
183 No. Pleasant St. Amherst
Main Store: 460 West St. So. Amherst
36 Exposure
Slide Processing
$2.75
Electronic Flash Guide No. 28
$12.95
Telephone:
253-3148
PASSPORTS FAST CUSTOM PROCESSING

Program Council Presents
"Tell Me That You Love Me Junie Moon"
Sunday, December 5, 1971
S.U. Ballroom 7 and 9:15
50¢ 50¢

"Sacco" A Bit Too Forced For Comfort

By BOB NESTI

SACCO AND VANZETTI
a film, directed by Giuliano Montaldo; featuring Riccardo Cucciolia, Gian Maria Volonte, Cyril Cusack, and Milo O'Shea. At the Academy of Music, Northampton.

Sacco And Vanzetti opens with a highly stylized black-and-white sequence depicting the infamous Palmer Raids of 1920. These raids were conscious maneuver of the administration of Attorney General Mitchell Palmer to harass immigrants and political "undesirables" in spite of their civil liberties. This scene attempts the look and feel of a political nightmare right out of a Fascist dictatorship which, considering the social climate of America following the First World War, may have been a living horror for some. Unfortunately Sacco And Vanzetti has made this case too strong; it is too evocative of a simplistic Kafkaesque dictatorship and the real Sacco and Vanzetti murder case becomes a muddled polemic lost in this context.

This is often a problem with political films. They often reduce characters and situations to their lowest common denominator, one which used the film media like a political cartoon and little else. Z, one of the better films of this genre, still had the encroaching feel of stomping home a message which, strangely enough, made a cogent argument seem like propaganda. Costas--Gravas luckily saved his film from mindless oblivion with camerawork that captured his story with breathneck speed and made it the most effective political thriller in some time.

Unfortunately Sacco And Vanzetti is political murder mystery lacking any suspense, which if you know anything about suspense films, be it Hitchcock or Perry Mason, is the kiss of death. Sacco and Vanzetti were victims of perhaps the most publicized examples of federal judicial irresponsibility ever to occur in this nation. Their trial has quite rightly been labeled as the American Dreyfus Case. Yet to simply state as this film does from the onset that Sacco and Vanzetti were innocent is, first, in lieu of some recent evidence, untrue, and second, ignores the most important dramatic element in any trial story. Courtroom stories demand suspense, it is the only way they move and when lacking this they become static and boring. Instead of a sharp, clean murder mystery told within the context of a hostile social and political atmosphere, Sacco And Vanzetti is a heavy-handed, lengthy barrage of the wrongs of America told with that all too conscious eye towards today.

Sacco and Vanzetti were two immigrant Italian anarchists living in towns on the south side of Boston. They were impounded and tried for the murder of two factory payroll officers in South Braintree with evidence that seemed dubious at best. In this film, though, the possibility that Sacco and Vanzetti may have been guilty is viewed as heresy. Their guilt or innocence is never explored, rather the lengthy trial concerns itself with presenting Sacco and Vanzetti as poor shat-upon-victims of the insensitive buffoons who presided over their case. Even the noble attempts of Sacco and Vanzetti's down-and-out, yet virtuous defense attorney (a part which seemed reminiscent of the kind of role Spencer Tracy once played so well) cannot save the day from the callousness of the prosecution. They are, of course, found guilty and sentenced to death.

The remainder of the film chronicles the defense's moves in the seven years of vain appeals that followed. Despite the fact that Sacco and Vanzetti's trial was a blatant example of ethnic and political prejudice, the government was adamant with its decision. In fact when the defense began to come across evidence which could have perhaps reversed the decision, it strangely disappeared. During the interim, Sacco and Vanzetti waited out their stay in prison and, despite a huge public outcry, were electrocuted in 1927.

The major problem with the film was that director Giulano Montaldo has made his argument overbearing. For instance there is one sequence in the prison. Here one prisoner, possessing needed evidence which was pivotal to Sacco and Vanzetti's innocence, observed the depressed Sacco in an adjoining cell and had sympathy for him. He is touched to the point where he vainly attempts communicating his information about the murder to Sacco through a note. The information later becomes known to the defense through other ways which leads you to wonder just why this scene is in the film in the first place. Something this obscure could undoubtedly not be substantiated with fact, so as persuasive evidence it is dubious at best. The scene seems to be here as a dramatic device, something to touch upon the characters of both Sacco and the other prisoner. By this time though Sacco and Vanzetti have become political cartoon figures distinguishable by physical appearance and little else. Any attempt at amplifying their characters only managed to make them larger, not clearer. The director has placed this scene in the film to load his argument.

Sacco and Vanzetti has other intentions in mind other than presenting the complexities of the case. It has to prove them innocent, it has to show them as victims, the film even has to extol their martyrdom, and most of all, has to make it as relevant as seemingly possible. The presiding judge may as well have been Judge Julius Hoffman of the infamous Chicago trial; Sacco may as well have been Bobby Seale and Vanzetti, Daniel Berrigan. The jury and the rest of the characters of the film (who weren't either Italian, communists, or artistrocrats) were the meanest group of rednecks right out of Nixon's Middle America. This contemporary theme is even found in the generally impressive soundtrack score (the film's singular virtue) which does get off badly with Joan Baez has long been the "kultchahed hip" youth's ideal of the radical folk singer and her place in this film is not only expected but demanded.

Within the context of the film, the performances suffered immeasurably. Ricardo Cucciola as Sacco probably comes away the least scathed and gives the gentle shoemaker a pathos quite independent from the script. Gian Maria Volonte compliments Sacco's gentle character with a Vanzetti of strength and character.

Milo O'Shea and William Prince round out the "good guys" of the plot. In O'Shea's case this is "good" in name only as he overacts all over the place and comes across as a pudgy imitation of Jimmy Cagney bellowing his clients' defense. Prince is better as the aristocratic Boston lawyer who followed the case through to the end, but didn't quite manage to erase the bad taste O'Shea left. Two of the film's best performances were those of Cyril Cusack as the prosecutor and Geoffrey Keen as the judge. They both managed to portray these two deceitful types with the proper touch of visciousness.

Sacco and Vanzetti's case has never really been presented in film or drama with any sort of validity. Too often the political and social aspects have overwhelmed the interpretors and instead of compelling cinema or drama, we get a mishmash of well-intended, but painfully heavy rhetoric.

"Sacco and Venzetti"

Buffalo Bill Is Coming

The U. Mass. Theatre continues it's tenth season with what is probably the most exciting American plan to appear in the last decade, Arthur Kopit's, internationally acclaimed, Indians.

Indians, as the New York Times described, when it opened off Broadway in 1969, "Is a play to savor in the recesses of your being..... Extraordinarily exciting, yet a gentle triumph, good in itself, anticipatory in its portents." But still Indians is a gaudy, noisy, wild west show preaching hellfire in raucous parables, joyously thumbing its nose at the niceties of historic fact.

The action of Indians takes place in the center ring of Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show. Some of the performers are Billy the Kid, Jesse James, Wild Bill Hickok, Sitting Bull and an American President. They all re-enact their parts in the conquest of the west--their legends and myth building exploits.

Yet Indians isn't a play about how we mistreated the indians, we are all pretty well aware of that fact: rather, Indians, is about the creation of myth- a national mind-set with Buffalo Bill and the indians of the old west as its central figures.

Indians has been termed a play with a "message", but above that common cliche, it is a piece of pure entertainment, with all the sights and sounds of those rowdy and boistrous wild west shows. It is a spectacle of the rodeo arena, the western songs and the drama of triumph that is juxtaposed with the earth bound rituals, dances and chants of the Indians.

Indians is directed by Gary Stewart, who directed last years American College Theatre Festival Winner for U. Mass. Theatre, The Clouds. Sets are by Jeff Fiala, costumes by Elizabeth Weiss Hopper, lights by James F. Dooley Jr., choreographer is Janet Craft with music and sound by Jason McAuliffe.

Production dates are December 9-11 & 16-18, Thursday through Friday nights.

Jerry Lewis
Twin Cinema
584-3209
Cinema 1
Bob & Carol & Ted & Alice 7
Cactus Flower 9
Cinema 2
Blue Water White Death 7:15
Who is Harry Kellerman 9:05
Admission $1 with College ID M-TH
Hamp Shopping Plaza
King St., Northampton

EUROPEAN CINEMA FESTIVAL '71 '72
UAV PRESENTS ADRIFT
A new film by JAN KADAR
THE TALKIE CINEMA
Intersection of Rts. 5 and 9's
NORTHAMPTON CENTER
584-6909

Quicksilver
presents
Warner Bros. Recording Artists
THIRTY DAYS OUT

Saturday, Dec. 4 at 8:00 p.m.
Donation 50¢

Rodgers Dance Company Here Next Week

Rod Rodgers

Three evening performances will be featured when the Rod Rodgers Dance Company appears at UMass on Tuesday-Thursday, December 7, 8, 9 at 8:00 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium. The performances are sponsored by the UMass Fine Arts Council in cooperation with the Massachusetts Council on Arts and Humanities. A different program will be featured in each evening's performance.

Rod Rodgers, noted Black choreographer-dancer, was introduced to his art as a child in a family of professional dancers. He studied and worked in the mid-west prior to coming to New York in 1963 to perform with several concert companies. With his own company, Mr. Rodgers has firmly established himself as one of today's most provocative young choreographers. He has had several articles on dance published, including "Don't Tell Me Who I Am," Negro Digest, July 1968 and "Men and the Dance: Why do we question the image?," Dance Magazine, June 1966, and is an articulate spokesman for dance.

Along with his direction of the widely acclaimed Rod Rodgers Dance Company and his work in Off-Broadway theatre, Mr. Rodgers is also known for his work with youths in community-oriented cultural arts programs. In 1970 the Rod Rodgers Dance Company received a grant from the New York State Council on the Arts, and in recognition of his gifts as an innovative choreographer, Mr. Rodgers received a John Hay Whitney Fellowship in 1965 and a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts in 1970.

Each evening's performance on December 7, 8, 9 will feature a six-part program. Dances to be performed will include: "Dances in Projected Space," individual and group plays of movement with light images; "Box," a psychological study in confinement; "Percussion Suite," a rhythmic play with bells, cymbals, tone block, claves and marracha sticks; "In Hi-Rise Shadows," a series of over-lapping and recurring encounters between men and women which, as life does, streams on.

Also included in the programs are: "Tangents," briefly touching; "Harambee," a ritual of the inspiration, martydom and a spiritual ressurrection of Black Leaders; "Inventions," a poetic flow of motion in silence; "Eidolyns" (Excerpt from "The Conjuring"), showing the suppression of man's sensuous spirit; "Trajectories," using lines winding beside and across the dancers in unhurried, capricious arcs; and "Duet" (from "Dance Poems..Black, Brown, Negro").

Reserved tickets for the performances are available at the Fine Arts Council Ticket Office, 125 Herter Hall. Remaining tickets will be available at Bowker Auditorium one hour before the performance. A phone reaching both offices is 545-0202.

Men And Dance: Why Do We Question The Image?

by Rod A. Rodgers

I suspect that most male dancers, like myself, are frequently asked to give their reasons for going into the profession. My reason is that I feel that I am able to express myself in dance, just as certain other men are able to sing, paint, sculpt, or write poetry. Now that we have accepted the other fine arts as being suitable occupations for men, why is the art of dance still considered out of bounds? Why, more than any of our arts, is dance still looked upon as being effeminate? Why is our concept of the masculine ideal so limited that we reject the possibility of a man's body as being an instrument of esthetic expression? The answer to these questions reveals much about America's ideas of manliness and morality.

Dance, of course, is different from all of the other arts because it demands total involvement of the human body. Consequently, it has been burdened with a great many of our society's sexual taboos. Though we Americans enjoy thinking of ourselves as being comparatively uninhibited people, hardy survivals of the stern morality of our Puritan past continue to confuse.

In most other cultures, dance has been a part of ritual and religion and is considered a legitimate way to explore and increase physical power. Many primitive people have assumed that the best dancers made the best warriors. Students of the Oriental arts of Zen combat have long used dance exercises as a means of integrating and refining body action before working with any weapons.

While an untrained observer cannot analyze its subtleties very well, all people normally respond to movement qualities just as they do to music or color qualities. We all take delight in the motion of an animal's body or the studied actions of an athlete. But while the beauty of an athlete's form is clearly a means to a competitive end, form in the dance is an end in itself. As a result, we tend to suspect the dancer of being involved in a narcissistic or seductive self-display. Such an involvement is generally considered inappropriate for a man.

These difficulties are enhanced by the nature of the dance itself as an art form. Since the human body is the instrument involved, there is some popular confusion as to whether the art is the dance or the dancer. Thus, male audiences are often fearful of being openly appreciative of a male dancer because they are not sure if they are responding to the beauty of the art--or of the artist. While a male observer does not hesitate to admire a beautiful woman dancer, he is not quite certain of whether he is correct in admiring a male, unless, of course, the man is engaged in an exceptional [illegible] of speed or elevation such as that of a dancer. It is also a fact that a performer's range and likelihood of employment are reduced if he looks like the stereotype of a homosexual on stage.

Americans have given tremendous receptions to spectacular male dancers from other countries (for example, the breath-taking virtuosos of the Bolshoi or Moiseyev companies). We are obviously willing to accept male dancing in certain context--particularly, that of athletic virtuosity. And, somehow, it doesn't worry us so much if the dancers are foreign. That's remote.

Usually our men are better able to enjoy dancing when they don't think their efforts at it will be taken seriously. But even ballroom dance is not entirely free from suspicion. When I was a social dance teacher many of my male students told me that they enjoyed dancing at parties, but they didn't feel comfortable doing it unless they had had a few drinks. Why should a man not be able to join other people in social dance unless he is slightly intoxicated? In my opinion, it is because he suspects that this is a childish, an effeminate, or a slightly perverse activity and he is terrified of appearing foolish. Nevertheless, he may be envious of another man who is not similarly inhibited, because he can see that dancing is obviously great fun.

Laymen are inclined to be unduly concerned with the most superficial aspects of any specialized work. Many a fuss has been raised about the supposed lack of suitability of leotards as basic dance attire for males. I would like to point out that in leotards and tights the body is much more covered than in the customary modern swim suit. I think that male suspicion of tights is mostly a matter of association with much publicized pictures of girls in tights. I suspect that if a boy's masculinity is so precarious that it would be jeopardized by putting on a pair of tights, then he would probably have problems whether he enrolled in a dance class or joined the Marines.

Similiarly, some laymen cannot understand how a painter, sculptor, or dancer could be masculine and still attend to his art while contemplating the presence of a beautiful nude model or touching a clothed, but shapely, partner. Such laymen have little idea of the aesthetic qualities of the human body outside of its erotic connotations.

The spectacular growth of dance in the past few decades seems to have made some professionals believe that the example of great male dancers has been so beneficial that the scarcity of men in the dance field is now due to economic considerations. I think this is a mistaken attitude. I think that low pay is not the reason why men reject dance as a vocation and go into another fine art (how many rich poets do you know?). Economics is not the reason why parents permit their sons to study music and painting, but not dance. Much of the resistance to the inclusion of dance into boys' curricula in schools probably stems from the desire of teachers and administrators to protect their students from what they consider an "undesirable influence." Until we can tell these laymen fathers and educators why the image of our male dancers is so unfavorable, we cannot hope to gain the support which is much needed from them.

Many parents discourage their sons from dancing because they are afraid it might "sissify" them. But dancing in itself does not induce foppish mannerisms. In fact, when properly taught, dance training reduces the individual's tendency to employ peculiar mannerisms, and heightens his ability to achieve whatever physical image of himself he aspires to.

When questioned about the high incidence of homosexuality in our field, many professionals simply dismiss the matter as unimportant or "nobody's business." Their unwillingness to discuss this question may, in a way, be tactful, but it is also unintelligent, since the future of dance as a performing art will be greatly affected by the attitude of the general public. However, if we really want to break down the prejudices against male dancing, we shall have to do more than point out that such-and-such is married and so-and-so is a father. Such citations alone will not allay the provincial fears of the public.

For all practical purposes, the dance field has been closed to most American men, because few of us have an idea of our own manliness which will allow us to express ourselves through this art. The high incidence of homosexuals among our male dancers is a direct result of our social climate and our traditional negative treatment of the medium of dance. It has nothing to do with the true nature of dance, or with man's inherent ability to take pleasure in his own formalized body action.

The dance field has been extremely attractive to homosexual men for several reasons. Initially they are less likely to be intimidated by the stigma to which dance is subjected. This might even lead them to expect that in this profession their sexual abberations could be largely acceptable. But it is clear that they, too, may be subscribing to the superficial American idea of the art; if you study dance you may become more beautiful (or "pretty"), and therefore physically more desirable.

Dance offers men and women an opportunity to sublimate exhibitionist tendencies which so often accompany homosexuality. But those dancers who have achieved greatness and were homosexual, did so not because of their homosexuality, but in spite of it. Emotional disturbances are more likely to be a handicap than a help to anyone who is having to lead a disciplined life,

I believe that we cannot remove popular opposition to male dancing unless we change popular viewpoints as to why people dance at all. A prevalent notion is that the purpose of dance training is to make a person more beautiful — in this way, dance might be said to be "cosmetic." It is the "cosmetic" concept of dance which makes it so appealing to our women, so unpalatable to our men. It is because, as yet, we have no widely accepted image of a virile man's physical beauty which includes more than aggressive or competitive traits. Dancing is thought to be a means of prettifying people, and men are not supposed to be pretty.

In contrast, the fact is that, on a professional level, the purpose of dance training is, not to make something pretty, but to create dance artistry and dance artists. The dancer, unlike the painter, cannot create a dance, polish it, hang it on a wall, and then step back among the spectators. Each time this art work is seen it must be re-created by a performance. And in the act of performance the artist strives to become the most beautifully efficient interpretive instrument possible. But his beauty or virtuosity is finally determined by his technical efficiency and aesthetic sensitivity, rather than any superficial prettiness.

Despite the cultural confusion we have inherited, it is simple to say why men should dance: movement is a basic tool which healthy human beings utilize during their entire lives. If the study of dance is cosmetic (i.e., to beautify a person), then it beautifies in a most wholesome and functional way — in the sense of the Greek word "cosmos" from which it is derived ("cosmos," meaning order or harmony). This harmony or physical grace is no more a female prerogative than awkwardness is a male virtue.

The ideal that each society holds of man has always been reflected in its dance art. Since we do not have an immediate heritage which provides a desirable image of men dancing, it remains for us to create a new and healthier tradition. Since in our ideal of male virility we have too often tended to be preoccupied with destructive potential, we should recognize that dance offers a means for finding a more complete physical ideal. Man is as creative as he is destructive; at least as much a poet as he is a warrior.

(Reprinted from Dance Magazine)

Weekend

By BOB NESTI AND WAYNE TIFFANY

Theater

Christmas Medley
An informal and improvisational children's theater production of less familiar Christmas legends will be presented by UMass Theater tonight and Sunday at the Studio Theatre in South College. The four works to be performed by a cast of nine include four stories of A.A. Milne.

Guys and Dolls
One of the classic American musicals about Nathan Detroit, his fourteen year fiancee Adelaide, and the entire milieu of Damon Runyan characters who inhabit Times Square (when it was once inhabitable). A big, delightful show with sparkling songs by Frank Loesser and a sharp book. This weekend evenings at 8:15 in the Lab Theatre, Mt. Holyoke. Also next weekend. ($)

Indians
Arthur Kopit's freewheeling, brilliant play about the white man's genocide of the Indians told in the manner of Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show is the next production of UMass Theater. It opens next Thursday night in Bartlett Auditorium. For more information, look elsewhere in issue. ($).

Julius Caesar
The Oxford Cambridge Shakespeare Company under the direction of Jonathan Miller makes a return trip to the United States with this production of Shakespeare's tragedy. Their last trip was distinguished with their controversial interpretation of Hamlet and the Caesar looks equally as interesting. At Mt. Holyoke's Chapin Auditorium, Monday and Tuesday at 8. ($)

The Wizard Of Oz
The film fantasy has been adapted to the stage in this production. For details look elsewhere in issue; tonight through Sunday at 8 (also Dec. 10 and 11). ($).

Music

J. Geils Band
This concert by one of the best of blues groups is, alas, sold out. If you can find a scalper the concert is tonight at 8 in Chapin Auditorium, Mr. Holyoke. ($)

Jonathan Edwards
One of the best of the young singer--songwriters will give two concerts next Tuesday at 7 and 10 in the SU Ballroom. For further details look elsewhere in this issue. ($).

UMass Chorale
Two works featuring the UMass Chorale and members of the UMass Symphony Orchestra will be performed. The works will be Handel's "Psalm 112", and Haydn's "The Nelson Mass." Sunday evening at 8 in Bowker Auditorium.

Films

Adrift (the Talkie, Northampton)
A fisherman rescues a strange, beautiful girl from drowning and he is torn between lust for the girl and fidelity for his ill wife. Skillfully photographed and pieced together in such a way by Czech director Jan Kadar as to be an effective and poignant mood piece. Featuring Rade Markovic, Paula Prichett.

Anna Christie (Merrill Science Center, Amherst College)
"Garbo Talks" is what the MGM advertising department put on the top of this films' ads back in 1930. This adaptation of Eugene O'Neil's drama features Garbo and the inimitable Marie Dressler and was the first talkie for the former.

The Baby Maker (Friday, Campus Center Auditorium, 7, 9:15)
A film that is distinguished with a brilliant performance by Barbara Hershey, who originally starred in the now defunct television series "The Monroes" and was the evil Sandie of Frank Perry's Last Summer, as a young girl was makes a deal with a childless couple to bear a baby. Beyond her performance, though, the film is a contrived, pretentious mess thanks mainly to director James Bridges.

Blue Water, White Death (Jerry Lewis Cinemas, Northampton)
A boring self-indulgent documentary about sea explorers filming sharks. The film's only effective sequence is its concluding one in which some men swim amongst the largest predatory of them all The Great White Shark. It is beautifully photographed though.

Bob And Carol And Ted And Alice (Jerry Lewis Cinemas, Northampton)
Natalie Wood, Robert Culp, Elliot Gould, and Dyan Cannon attempt to discover group sex through an Esalin-like encounter group. The results are middling, despite a good script (which won both an Oscar and the New York Film Critics Award) and two superior performances by Dyan Cannon and Elliot Gould. The material doesn't seem to be handled well at all.

Brewster McCloud (Saturday, Sage Hall, Smith College, 7:30 and 9:30)
The old Icarus story given a contemporary, black twist by Robert Altman (of M*A*S*H fame) in this hectic and sharp dark comedy about a boy who wants to fly and lives, of all places, in the Astrodome. The comedy is frentic and often very, very funny as Altman rips apart our culture with passion. The cast is comprised of the usual Altman regulars including Sally Kellerman and features Margaret Hamilton.

Candy (Saturday, Mahar Auditorium, 6, 8:15, and 10:30)
"Good grief, it's Daddy." was one of the best-remembered quotes from the Sixties (Esquire included it as part of their "Test of the Sixties"). It was uttered by Terry Southern proverbial heroine at the least expected moments in a novel which seems today a rather dull and tame satire. The film follows in the novel's footsteps; it is often loud, garish, and exceedingly mild. The cast is large, featuring Marlon Brando, Richard Burton, Ringo Starr, Walter Matthau, and James Coburn.

Cactus Flower (Jerry Lewis Cinemas, Northampton)
Marked the film debut of Goldie Hawn and provided her with an undeserved Oscar. The film based on the play by Abe Burrows also stars Walter Matthau and Ingrid Bergman. Miss Bergman is pathetically mis-cast in this sophomoric comedy of how a middle age spinster snags a husband.

Casablanca (Friday, SU Ballroom, 7 and 9)
A romantic spy melodrama which has endured through the years thanks mainly to the polished direction, a tense and witty script, and an impeccable cast. The story concerns the Nazi's attempt to nab a leading Resistance leader in Casablanca before he escapes to America. Humphrey Bogart plays an embittered American expatriate who escaped to Casablanca following an unhappy pre-war romance with Ingrid Bergman, who turns up as the Resistance leader's now faithful wife. It may seem like nonsense, but its hypnotically involving with many soft focus close-ups of Bergman and many, many witty lines.

Cry Uncle! (Campus Cinemas, Hadley)
A racy, wild satire of sex movies and detective yarns. Uneven and not for those repelled by "bad taste". A pot-bellied private eye works his way through explicit sex, perversions, profanity and general freaky experiences.

The Devils (Calvin Theatre, North.)
Writer-director Ken Russell has perverted his work about bewitched nuns in seventeenth-century France into a pile of cinematic excrement. For the price of an admission you can see gruesome tortures, fornicating priests, man-hungry nuns and Vanessa Redgrave having boiling liquid injected up her vagina. Oliver Reed, however, fares better. He dies. A worse film I cannot recall.

Doctor Zhivago (Amherst Cinema)
This lengthy and simplified adaptation of one of the more notorious cocktail party-and-coffee table novels of the past decade is quite ponderous and pretentious. The film concerns a man's wrestling with his political and social identity set against the chaotic Russian Revolution. Boris Pasternack's novel has been reduced to academic and romantic gloss which isn't helped at all by David Lean's heavy direction. Michael Jarre's music is pseudo-Russian, as is the production which bears more a resemblance to the Hollywood expensive epic.

Fantasia (Campus Cinemas, Hadley)
While watching ruses of the "Pastoral Symphony" sequence, Walt Disney was said to have exclaimed, "That'll make Beethoven!" whether or not he succeeded seems a mute point, for he managed to create perhaps the most impressive cartoon feature up until the recent Yellow Submarine. The film utilizes Leopold Stokowski and the Philadelphia Orchestra playing excerpts from Tchaikovsky, Dukas, Stravinsky, Moussorgsky, in addition to Beethoven as Disney gave a visual accompaniment to works by these composers. Some seem marred by the cloying sentimentality which so often flavored Disney films, still there are three or four delightful sequences.

The French Connection (Show case Cinema, W. Spfld)
A perfect example of cinema de-zap courtesy of director William Friedkin, for those who enjoy getting high on blood and gore. This picture says that Popeye Doyle, the detective, is a brutal son of a bitch who gets the job done. So is the picture.

Gone With The Wind (Showcase Cinema, West Springfield)
This romantic historical pageant of the Civil War is remembered by many as the best film of all time. It crystallized an entire generation's idea of what a romance should be, full of color, character, and action. David O. Selznick mounted this gigantic production in association with MGM and utilized three directors (Victor Fleming takes the credit and the Oscar for Best Director in 1939), many of Hollywood's finest technicians, perhaps the most splendid color photography up until the time, and a cast that was chosen with impeccable care. Clark Gable plays Rhett Butler, Vivien Leigh played the memorable Scarlett O'Hara (and copped an Oscar), and featured in the huge cast are Olivia DeHavilland, Leslie Howard, and Butterfly McQueen, whose part as the maid only showed that Hollywood wasn't quite as intelligent as we may wish to remember.

Grand Hotel (Sat. Merrill Science Center, Amherst College)
The Hollywood all star film, par excellence, it was adapted from the novel by Vicki Baum and allowed effective parts for Garbo, the Barrymore brothers, Joan Crawford and Wallace Beery. Not very cinematic as directed by Edmund Goulding, but immensely popular.

Kotch (Palace, Spfld.)
Walter Matthau is excellent as a seventy-year-old widower who shares his cottage with an unwed pregnant teen-ager. Neat and often touching entertainment. This film marks Jack Lemmon's thin directorial debut. Hopefully, in the future, Mr. Lemmon will devote all his time to acting.

Ninotchka (Sunday, Merrrill Science Center, Amherst College, 7:30 and 10)
"Garbo Laughs" is what the ingeneous MGM advertising department came up with when this film, one of Garbo's last, was released in 1939. Laugh she does in one beautiful moment as she is dining in a Parisean sidewalk cafe with Melvyn Douglas in this memorably blithe satire about the meeting of communism and capitalism in Paris handled well by the master director of the sophisticated comedy Ernst Lubitsh.

Planet Of The Apes (Sunday, SU Ballroom, 7 and 9:30)
The first and still the best of this series about a planet where roles are reversed and men are captive animals to a race of highly intelligent apes. Still, though, overly banal and pretentious affair that succeeds as a novelty and little else.

Sacco And Vanzetti (Academy of Music, Northampton)
A Italio-American opus about one of the more notorious examples of political injustices ever to occur in this nation. A rather poor film in spite of it all. Reviewed elsewhere in the issue.

Sunset Boulevard (Sunday, Thompson 104, 7 and 9:30)
"They don't make faces like that one anymore," mourns Gloria Swanson as the aging movie star Norma Desmond, and they certainly didn't. At least not in the Hollywood of the late Forties where this harsh look at the illusions of the film past and present, industry takes place. Gloria Swanson plays a former silent film star attempting a comeback and William Holden plays her youngkept lover who falls into her ancient mansion while running from the police. The film is cold, eerie and one of the finest films about Hollywood ever made.

200 Motels (Sh.-Cin.) Showcase Cinemas, Northampton)
Freewheeling cinematic meal cooked up by Freewheeling cinematic meal cooked up by Frank Zappa of the Mothers of Invention. Occasionally amusing, but mostly as chaotic mess with neither plot nor meaning although presumably a surrealistic documentary. Zappa tries to act along with Theodore Bikel and Ringo Starr.

Who is Harry Kellerman? (Jerry Lewis Cinemas, Northampton)
A beautiful, often profound and exciting motion picture recreation of the life of a successful love song writer who cannot love and lives on the brink of psychosis and suicides. Herb Gardner's original screenplay is both comic and tragic. Dustin Hoffman, Barbara Harris, Jack Warden perform superbly, and the whole thing is well blended by director Ulu Grosbard. (Reviewed elsewhere in issue.)

Members of the cast rehearse a scene from The Wizard of Oz, this weekend and next at Smith.

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather
Since we're counting, is that three or four?

VOLUME XCIX, ISSUE 60 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS MONDAY, DECEMBER 6, 1971

India Invades E. Pakistan

U.S. Merchant Ship Bombed—U.N. Deadlocked

(See page four)

Mr. and Mrs. McGuirk receiving one of the many awards presented to Dean McGuirk on his retiring from his position as Athletic Director.
House Speaker David Bartley commenting on the McGuirk years at last night's banquet honoring the Dean. See story on page three. (MDC photos by Steve Schmidt)

BULLETIN:

WASHINGTON (AP)-One U.S. merchant ship has been bombed and strafed by Indian warplanes and another intercepted on the high seas by Indian naval vessels in offshoots of the India-Pakistan fighting, the State Department reported yesterday.

The United States lodged protests on the incidents, a department spokesman, Charles W. Bray, said.

Bray said the Buckeye State was attacked Saturday in the Bay of Bengal off Chittagong, East Pakistan. He said the captain and two crew members were injured in what he called "indiscriminatory strafing and bombing" of the vessel.

He added that it was speeding toward Rangoon yesterday for medical assistance.

Bray said the ship Expeditor was intercepted by Indian warships on the high seas off Macras, India, yesterday and was escorted into that port in southeastern India.

DARSANA, East Pakistan (AP)-India poured regiments of troops, tanks and guns across the border into East Pakistan on Sunday, meeting desultory resistance from steadily retreating Pakistani forces.

Pakistan's rear guard troops, overwhelmingly outnumbered, apparently gave up wide expanses of border territory virtually without a fight.

The Indians met really determined resistance only at a few defensive strongpoints.

The few East Pakistanis who have not already fled across the border as refugees greeted the advancing troops as "liberators."

Indian jet fighters screamed low overhead and apparently had complete mastery of the air. The rumble of guns could be heard in the distance as the Indians pushed toward the key garrison town of Jessore and toward Chuadana, further north.

A short, sharp fight erupted at the nearby village of Suwadih earlier in the day and a handful of Pakistani troops lay dead in their shallow trenches.

The bodies of Bengali civilians sprawled on the roadside. Local people claimed they had been shot by the retreating troops as a final act of vindictiveness.

Before Darsana, a mile-long line of earthworks was abandoned almost undamaged. The defenses had been quickly outflanked in the initial Indian stab across the border in the early hours of Friday.

A flamboyant Indian infantry colonel told newsmen how he had taken Darsana after a brisk five-hour battle that cost him four dead and 23 wounded.

He claimed he had counted 28 Pakistani bodies and had been told by resistance fighters that three truckloads had been carted off toward Chaudanga.

His troops, he said, were backed up by two squadrons of tanks and by a softening-up barrage of 25-pounder field guns.

"We got out casualties as we came out of a mango grove and ran into some heavy fire," he added.

Bangla Desh irregulars-the Mukhti Bahni-patrolled the shuttered and almost empty town, modern automatic rifles slung over their shoulders. One young fighter carried an umbrella and all wore an odd assortment of uniforms.

They were fighting independently of the Indians, one said, and had killed several Pakistanis as they fled their bunkers on the fringes of the town.

But just across the border in India, Mohammed Manzur, who described himself as Mukhti Bahini commander in the southwest sector, told newsmen his forces were cooperating with the Indians.

A railroad running through Darsana was overgrown with weeds. The local station was empty and ransacked. The last date entered in a book of consignment forms was March 26, 1971, one day after the Pakistan army launched its drackdown on the Awami League, the political party of Sheikh Mujibar Rahman that demanded autonomy for East Pakistan.

A spokesman for India's western naval command said in Bombay the two Pakistani destroyers-the 2,500-ton Khibir and the 1,700-ton Shajahan-and the merchant ship were sunk during an hour-long battle near the heavily fortified Karachi port late Saturday and early Sunday.

He said another destroyer was damaged and a fifth managed to evade the Indian fleet, which then steamed on and bombarded the harbor.

The spokesman said there was no damage to any Indian ships.

In Visakhapatnam, the western naval headquarters, Vic Adm. N. Krishnan said a Pakistani submarine had been hit and "bottomed" by Indian ships and airdraft that chased it in the Bay of Bengal Saturday night.

In the first two wars between India and Pakistan, in 1948 and 1965, both nations kept their navies out of the fighting.

India's claim to an important tactical victory in East Pakistan came at Akhaura, a border town which military observers said holds the key to Indian advances toward Dacca, the East Pakistani capital and a major objective.

New Delhi said Akhaura, near India's Tripura State, fell to assaulting Indian troops early Sunday morning.

A Pakistani army spokesman in Rawalpindi, West Pakistan, said Pakistani soldiers have taken "alternative positions" in the tea-growing Sylhet area along East Pakistan's eastern border with India. This region lies just to the north of India's claimed victory at Akhaura.

But Pakistan insisted its lines along East Pakistan's western borders with India remained firm despite Indian claims of new attacks in the area.

On The Inside:

- Final Exam Schedule — See page eleven
- Yurts Story — See page six
- In Case Of Arrest — See page ten

Pretty neat, eh wot? Credit for this one must rightfully go to Alan Chapman, Esquire, if I say so myself.

AFT Speaker Here Today

By MARY KURTZ

Miss Rose Claffey, international vice-president of the American Federation of Teachers, will speak to the members of the UMass faculty today at 4 p.m. in Rm. 163 of the Campus Center.

According to Professor Henry Jacobs, head of AFL-CIO Local 1539, the purpose of the meeting is to give the faculty members information about the possible role of the AFT in this University community.

Problems such as tenure, increased teaching loads, and salaries has fostered a growing interest in collective bargaining. Miss Claffey will try to show the faculty how membership in such an organization as the AFT could help them solve these problems. She will answer all questions.

At present, the local members of the AFT number about 10-12, and are not a very active group, but if significant interest is shown at this meeting, causing increased membership, it could become an agent for bargaining, stated Professor Jacobs.

Bus Strike Over

Peter Pan busses began running at noon Saturday as the 10-day strike ended in a 4-1 vote to accept the new contract.

Peter Pan Buslines announced a slight schedule change. Passengers are asked to check with their ticket agencies for the new schedule.

CASIAC OFFICE HOURS
DEC. 6-8
8:30 A.M.—6:00 P.M.

Pre-registration counseling will NOT be available these days, because of counseling sessions for incoming freshmen. To avoid a long wait, come for your counseling early in the morning.

State Rep. Olver:

Tuition Increase Likely?

By ROBERT C. BROOKS

John Olver, State Representative from Northampton, said that President Robert C. Wood's Committee on the Future of the University implied that tuition will be raised if the legislature approves the $4.3 million increases in financial aid.

In a telephone interview, the representative cited this excerpt from the Committee's report which he said carried the implications:

"In addition, if the effort to attract low income students is to succeed, present tuition should not be increased until an expanded financial aid program removes financial constraints as a barrier to attending the University."

Olver commented on a number of other of the Committee's proposals:

$6 to $7 million increase in budget:

"Whether the legislature approves it or not depends on the type of case made for it. The Committee report was made in general terms. A $6 to $7 million increase is not remarkable."

Increase of $4.3 million of the financial aid budget so that 1/3 of the population from Amherst and Boston campuses can come from the lower third income body of Massachusetts:

"Boston is already above a third and Amherst is around a fourth. If the University sells to the public that this would reflect the population, there's no reason why it wouldn't come up with the money."

Increase of funds for public service enterprises:

"If justified to the legislature by the University, funds for this purpose should be one of the easiest to come by. I think that the University should be mainly concerned with public service."

Growth stopping at 25,000:

"This makes perfectly good sense. With the other two campuses growing, it doesn't make much sense to double the size of Amherst at the same time. This is a decade where Amherst will grow slowly and the others will grow faster."

Growth in the future:

"It is not inconsistent to think that Amherst could grown in the 1980's."

Olver is pleased that UMass is not trying to emulate the great universities of the 40's, 50's and 60's.

He said that the Committee is "correct in trying to look beyond to the future," so that in the 1980's UMass will be thought of as a great university of that time and "not as a great university of the 1960's."

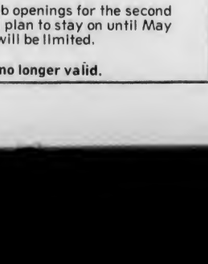
Bromery, Gage At MacKimmie

By ALAN WRIGHT

Acting Chancellor Dr. Randolph W. Bromery and Acting Vice-Chancellor for Student Affairs Dr. Robert Gage spoke informally to a group of students in Mackimmie Lounge for 2-1/2 hours during a 10-hour marathon "House Government Colloquium" meeting Saturday.

The day-long sessions of intense rapping, interchange of ideas, and parliamentary procedural learning was a culmination of a semester's work in how to improve the governing of a UMass dormitory. The program and subsequent colloquium meetings were devised and set up by Mackimmie Head of Residence Peter Adams and two active dorm residents, Bruce Rose and Jim Stevens.

The primary purpose of Saturday's marathon was to afford the members of Mackimmie an opportunity really for self-criticism, and to consider whether the dorm is trying to achieve the ideals it has set up for itself. The purpose of having various administrative people sit in on the meetings and discuss methods of improving Mackimmie was really a microcosm of looking at Southwest and the future of the University as a whole and seeing how they can inevitably be improved.



One of the high points of Saturday's marathon was when students from Lewis, Webster, and Pierpont talked about their dorms, showing a positive light in regards to the co-ed innovation. A committee has been set up in Mackimmie to consider the feasibility of its working there. The visiting constituents exchanged ideas and brought up alternative forms of house government such as the totally student run type that exists in some Southwest dorms. Some seemed to feel negative about punitive actions taken by formal House Judiciaries and thought they were unnecessary.

Dr. Bromery and Dr. Gage spoke about:

- The future of the University;
- Role of the dormitory;
- Funding or paying of the debt on the Southwest bonds so that students could be more flexible in their use of the buildings.

Until this debt is paid up, the building authority determines exactly what each building should be used for and how it should be occupied. Dr. Bromery envisions that Southwest will some day be truly a residential college, almost a city within itself.

There were mixed reactions to the day's activities, but Mackimmie House President Stanley Steinberg said that it was quite successful, very enlightening and most importantly, it was a chance for a dorm's residents to get to speak to the authorative powers that "always seem to run everything you do at UMass."

Program Council Presents

An exhibit of work by members of the STUDENT ART ASSOC.

Student Union Gallery

DEC. 6-22

Opening-Dec. 6, -8:30 p.m.

refreshments

DON'T MISS

Jonathan Edwards

with

Bill Workman

in concert

7:30 Tues., Dec. 7 $1.25

10:00 Program Council $1.25

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus, zip code 01002. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 549-1311 (editor).

Second class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods, three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $4.00 per semester, $10.00 per year.

Student Job Applications Campus Center Complex

Applications for the following positions will be accepted today, Monday, December 6, 1971, in Room 917 from 1:00 - 4:00 p.m.

HOTEL
Night Auditor

FOOD SERVICE
Cafeteria Worker
Asst. Cook
Storeroom Asst.
A La Carte Waitress
Beverage Server

MANAGERS/BUSINESS OFF.
Clerical Asst.

STORE
Storeroom Asst.
Security Asst.

PRINT SHOP
Clerical Asst.

Management anticipates a very small turnover of job openings for the second semester because most students presently employed plan to stay on until May '72. Therefore, the number of applications accepted will be limited.

NOTE: Fall applications now on file are no longer valid.

Dean Warren McGuirk, retiring head of the Athletic Department. (MDC photo by Steve Schmidt.)

450 Attend Testmonial Honoring Dean McGuirk

By EARLE BARROLL

More than 450 friends and associates paid tribute to retiring athletic director Warren P. McGuirk last night at the Campus Center Auditorium.

This testimonial for the University's A.D. for the past 23 years was co-chaired by assistant athletic director Bob O'Connell and former UMass baseball coach and assistant athletic director Earl Lorden.

Among the head table guests were McGuirk's wife, Virginia, the McGuirk family, UMass president Robert Wood, acting Chancellor Randolph Bromery, Massachusetts speaker of the house David Bartley, former UMass President John Lederle, Msgr. David Power, track coach Kenneth O'Brien, chairman of the athletic council, George Richardson and Dave Bishoff, Head of the School of Physical Education.

Each had their own memories of Dean McGuirk and in brief speeches related stories and memoirs of theirs with the Dean of Bartley's 150 pound football days to Bromery's first encounter with the man "he was most cautioned about meeting."

McGuirk was cited for his contribution to UMass athletics as well as to the National Collegiate Athletic Association of which he was a vice-president.

His balance in educational advancement and athletic excellence as well as his far-sighted facilities such as the Boyden Building, Alumni Football Field, WoPE, the Earl Lorden baseball field and the Llewelyn Derby track were noted as his highest achievements during his 23 years.

A noted lover of art, the retiring A.D. was presented with a seascape of Rockport from the athletic department, something he had wanted for the longest time to add to his collection.

O'Connell, in representing the Boyden administration, also presented McGuirk and his wife a check for a 21 day vacation in Munich, Germany next year to see the 1972 summer Olympics.

Jim Trelese, a former student at UMass and now an accomplished cartoonist for the Springfield Daily News presented McGuirk with a portrait painting.

And then came McGuirk, and the 23 years that were behind him came to a peak as he received a long standing ovation from the throng.

In an emotional speech he kept his words "abnormally short", but professionally astute, a trademark of McGuirk.

He admitted that he was in wonderment as to what was going on in Boyden during the past couple of weeks. "I'd go to see people who were talking away before I got there, but as I approached, they clammed up," he said.

He paid a special tribute to his wife for "managing himself and the household" and also thanked his many friends throughout his long career from his days at Dorchester High to UMass.

"I was trying to make out a list of people to thank, but it became endless so I'll give a compact thanks to all of you."

MERCURY BOOKSTORE

Astrology and Occult Sciences

549-0910

9 EAST PLEASANT STREET

AMHERST,

MDC Classifieds Sell, Buy And Trade

Athletic Council In Limbo

By ROBERT MEDEIROS

The Studen. Senate has presented a proposal to the Faculty Senate which would, if passed, completely remodel and renovate the functions and the structure of the present Athletic Council.

Commenting on the proposal in an MDC interview, Dean Warren McGuirk, the retiring Athletic Director said, "We feel that no program of this kind can be operated by a committee in the sense of having budgeting control. More specifically the athletic director must have more responsibility and accountability of the budget."

The Athletic Council proposal which was passed by the Student Senate on November 17, 1971 has been in limbo since its acceptance in the Faculty Senate. It is possible that the Faculty Senate will not act on the proposal until sometime next semester.

One of the major innovations in the proposal would be the formation of a Finance Committee. The Committee would work with the Athletic Council but would not be accountable to the Council.

The Finance Committee would have two main functions. The first would be to review the athletic budget and to amend or adjust it. The Finance Committee would also recommend to the Student Senate the collection and rate of the athletic fee to be levied on all students. The fee is currently $30 a year.

According to the proposal, the Finance Committee would be controlled by students. The Committee would have the following make up: nine undergraduates, three members of the professional staff, two members of the alumni association, on graduate student and the Athletic Director who would not have voting privileges.

There is now some question if the make up of the Finance Committee would satisfy NCAA standards. The NCAA dictates that the Athletic Council should be under control by a majority of faculty or professional staff members. If the Finance Committee is to be considered in the same vein as the Council, then it will be necessary to revise the Committee in order to satisfy NCAA rules.

The Board of Trustees under the Senate proposal would have the authority of review and veto over any action of the Athletic Council and/or the Finance Committee. The role and the composition of the Athletic Council would remain essentially the same except the present number of undergraduates would be increased from one to five and the number of alumni would be dropped from four to one.

The Senate realizing the role of the alumni in the athletic program has formed a separate committee in their proposal. The alumni Committee would be composed of five members of the Alumni Association chosen by the association. It would be the responsibility of the Committee to recommend and promote ways of obtaining greater alumni support for the University's athletic interest.

McGuirk summing up his ideas on the Senate's proposal, said, "To have an Athletic Council and Finance Committee which is in no way completely related, controlling the athletic budget and therefore the direction of the program, relegates the Council to that of the role of paper shuffler."

Westfield State Reaching Boil

By GEORGE WEISSLITZ

The past week has seen increasing tensions and an atmostphere of hostility and mistrust at Westfield State College, in Westfield, Mass. Amid accusations and counter-accusations from students, faculty and administration, the following developments have occurred since the beginning of last week:

- A bomb explosion took place during a basketball game in the gymnasium. The bomb, having an estimated force of one stick of dynamite, caused minor damage. No one was injured.
- The Student Senate at Westfield passed a resolution that a "state of emergency" existed and called for an evacuation of the campus. The evacuation proposal was endorsed by the college chapter of the American Federation of Teachers.
- The Westfield State Board of trustees made public a letter from the chiefs of police of six nearby communities calling for expulsion of "dissidents."
- Lt. Governor Donald Dwight announced on Saturday that he will visit Westfield State today, but that Governor Sargent would not intervene in matters which are under the jurisdiction of the school's board of trustees.
- Three senior faculty of Westfield State, delegated by a faculty meeting, called for the resignation of Dr. Leonard J. Savignano, President of the college.

At issue, according to many students and faculty, is President Savignano's complete inflexibility, in their opinion, on all issues involving the college community. Also at issue is the decision by the administration not to renew the contracts of Phillip Shepardson, an English professor, Mark D. McIntyre, a philosophy instructor, and Robert Lehan, an English professor.

Although Robert Lehan was reinstated in a special Board of trustees meeting last week, this action has done little to quiet the situation on campus. All three faculty members have been highly critical of Savignano's Administration of the college.

Another issue in the present controversy has been the college's refusal to permit dormitory visiting privileges for both sexes. In general, many students see the administration as unwilling to negotiate on almost any matter. According to Ron Moscato, vice-president of the student senate at Westfield, "You can't get any response from the administration." Moscata said that in a student referemdum last fall, which was participated in by 75% of the student body, 90% of those voting favored a change of administration.

Savignano has replied to charges against him by pointing to the growth of the college during his 10 year administration and by blaming campus problems on a "group of irresponsible faculty and students" who "continue to instigate trouble."

Although classes were held as usual on Friday after the bomb explosion, there was only 25% attendence according to Ron Mascato, and the campus was all but deserted throughout the weekend.

All classes at Westfield are scheduled to meet today, and further developmets await Lt. Governor Dwight's visit today, an any future board of trustees action.

Jonathan Edwards

in concert

Tues.

S.U. Ballroom

Program Council

K-2 SKI PARTY!

and

Ski-in Fashion Show

Come to the Ski Club Meeting

Tonight at 8 p.m. Mahar Aud.

It gets the once over 1,013 times.

Only after a Volkswagen goes through 1,013 inspections and all of the inspectors give it their thumbs-up, is it a Volkswagen.

If any one of them gives it his thumbs-down, then it isn't.

That's our rule of thumb.

JONES Volkswagen
721 Worthington Street
SPRINGFIELD, MASS. 01101

AUTHORIZED DEALER

In The Nation And The World

Soviets Block Cease-Fire Proposal

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The Soviet Union used the veto Sunday night for the second time in 24 hours to block a U.N. cease-fire appeal aimed at ending the India-Pakistan conflict.

The Security Council voted 11 to 2 in favor of an eight-nation resolution, calling for a cessation of hostilities, but a negative vote by the Soviet Union killed the proposal.

Poland cast the other negative vote. Britain and France abstained.

A similar U.S.-sponsored resolution was vetoed by the Soviet Union early Sunday.

The vote on the eight-nation resolution came after the council had rejected a Soviet proposal calling "for a political settlement in East Pakistan which would inevitably result in a cessation of hostilities." Only Poland voted with the Soviet Union.

Communist China voted against the Soviet proposal and the other 12 members abstained. The Chinese vote was not a veto since the draft failed to get the required nine votes.

A third resolution, sponsored by Red China, condemned India for its role in the fighting on the subcontinent. At the request of the Peking representative, however, the resolution was not put to the vote.

Chinese Ambassador Huang Hua told the council he voted against the Soviet resolution because it constituted "a direct interference in the internal affairs of a member state."

"The present armed aggression by the Indian government against Pakistan," he said, "is carried out under the connivance, support and shielding of the Soviet Union."

Earlier, Communist China and the Soviet Union clashed over Moscow's insistence that East Pakistani insurgents join the council's debate. The Russians finally dropped the proposal.

China's representative, Huang Hua, led the fight almost single-handedly in the 15-nation council, but it was apparent there was little support for the Soviet proposal.

Soviet Ambassador Jacob A. Malik announced his decision after a sharp exchange with Huang, who charged that the Russians were trying to have the council become an "accomplice" in an attempt to dismember East Pakistan.

Malik accused Huang of putting on "an excellent show for those who are happy with the disintegration of relations between China and the Soviet Union."

With the matter of inviting a Bangla Desh representative disposed of, Huang opened the main debate by urging support of a new Peking resolution condemning India for its role in the conflict on the subcontinent.

The proposal was lodged as the Security Council members consulted privately on a possible cease-fire. The Chinese' resolution urged all people to support the Pakistanis.

U Thant asked for a temporary cessation of hostilities "in, around and over" Dacca, East Pakistan, to permit aircraft to evacuate U.N. and other international personnel. He proposed that the cease-fire extend from 10:30 p.m. Dec. 6 to 12:30 p.m. Dec. 7.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Charles W. Bray said Secretary of State William P. Rogers "strongly believes any resolution in the Security Council should provide for both a cease-fire and a mutual withdrawal of forces." He said "this consensus emerged" after a long telephone conversation between Rogers and President Nixon, who was in Key Biscayne.

In view of Soviet action blocking a similar appeal early Sunday morning, chances for a cease-fire resolution appeared slim even though no alternative was in sight.

The 15-nation council had before it a new draft sponsored by eight of the council's 10 non-permanent members. Poland and Syria did not join in backing the proposal.

The new resolution was similar to the U.S.-sponsored proposal vetoed by the Soviet Union. The vote was 11 to 2 with the Soviet representative, Jacob A. Malik, casting the veto and Poland the other negative vote. Britain and France abstained.

The backers of the new draft apparently hoped to get around Soviet objections by placing more stress on the need for restoring normalcy in East Pakistan and for repatriating the millions of refugees in India.

The Soviet Union, however, has thrown its full support behind India which, in turn, has expressed opposition to a cease-fire appeal.

In Brief

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is heading towards another end-of-session showdown over the embattled foreigh-aid program with the outlook very much in doubt.

At the heart of the matter is the insistence by senior members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, led by Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, that the House take a direct vote on his amendment calling for total U.S. withdrawal from Indochina in six months. The demand has been resisted by House leaders.

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors prepared Sunday to implement the largest auto recall in industry history-- the callback of nearly 6.7 million Chevrolets for installation of an inexpensive restraint to counter the effects of a possibly defective engine mount.

In a letter to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, which had warned car owners of the possible defect in October, GM said it would pay for installation of the restraints.

CHICAGO (AP) — A conference of 3,000 college students voted yesterday to form a National Youth Caucus with the aim of electing young delegates to the 1972 political conventions.

Duane Draper, president of the Association of Student Governments, which called the conference, said the decision was "a reaffirmation that young people will work at electoral politics when they see a chance for success."

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — A number of Democratic presidential hopefuls, while not gaining in popular support, have succeeded in gaining recognition from the public, a Gallup Poll released Sunday reported.

The survey indicated that two declared candidates, Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., and Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., are gaining in what is called "awareness scores."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Medical scientists have discovered what they say "appears to be the most likely candidate yet" for a human cancer virus.

If their conclusions are proven correct by a battery of experiments now underway their discovery would become a powerful new tool in the search for the disease's cause and a possible cure.

Councilwoman Sworn In

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)-Maureen O'Connor, a 25-year-old high school physical education teacher who says she didn't really expect to win, will be sworn in today as the youngest City Council member in San Diego history.

Aided by her 11 brothers and sisters-who have won some 1,500 swimming prizes among them-Miss O'Connor scored a surprise 8,500-vote victory over a 53-year-old businessman in the Nov. 2 nonpartisan election. She says she owes it to the young persons who campaigned and voted for her.

"I gave them a chance to get involved. To really have a say in what goes on," said Miss O'Connor the second woman ever elected to the council of California's second-largest city.

A self-described "political positivist, she says an incident at City Hall two years ago turned her attention to government.

Miss O'Connor tried to lodge a protest about the treatment and pay some Mexican friends were getting, but "I couldn't get anyone interested at City Hall, and I was frustrated that a citizen couldn't get any satisfaction. That was when I decided I would do something."

Attention All Divers!

Last chance for the advanced diving course. The course will include diving physics and physiology, diving equipment, first aid and life-saving, underwater navigation, limited visibility diving, underwater search and recovery, light salvage, deep diving, decompression, repetetive and altitude diving and marine biology. The cost is $100 - $50 of which is payable in advance.

Call 549-1155

Korea Declares State Of Emergency

SEOUL (AP) — The South Korean government proclaimed a state of emergency Monday and told its people their constitutional freedoms may be restricted.

The measure was announced by Information Minister Yoon Choo-Young after an emergency meeting of all Cabinet ministers and members of the National Security Council at the presidential mansion.

Yoon said the action was taken in view of "recent developments," including the admission of Peking to the United Nations and alleged war preparations by North Korea.

In a declaration explaining the background for the measure, President Chung Hee Park said his government "declares forthwith the state of national emergency with a view to informing the people of this stark reality, keenly realizing the urgent necessity of jointly renewing the firm determination for the government and people to overcome the current situation."

The six-point declaration, signed by all Cabinet ministers, said:

—"The government will henceforth place top priority on the national security measures and establish a strong security posture at an earliest date.

—"All social unrest that risks the national security will not be tolerated and all elements of unrest will be removed.

—"If possible, debate on national security measures by the press must be refrained from.

—"Every citizen must willingly shoulder his share and faithfully fulfill his duty in ensuring national security.

—"Every citizen must establish in himself a new sense of value in conscience with the national security requirements.

—"Every citizen must be prepared with a determination, when the worst contingency arises, to concede some of the freedoms that he enjoys for the sake of national security."

dvp

presents

SANDER VANOCUR

of "First Tuesday" and "Today"
former NBC anchorman

speaking on

"1972: Does It Make A Difference?"

Saturday Evening, Dec. 11
at 7:00 in the SUB

NBC

U.S. Turns Over Base

PHU CAT, Vietnam (AP)-U.S. Air Force Secretary Robert C. Seamans said yesterday that over the last year less than 15 per cent of enemy supplies entering the Ho Chi Minh Trail appear to have reached South Vietnam and Cambodia.

The previous year twice as many tons of supplies made their way through the Laotian trail network, Seamans told newsmen during a stop here on his two-week tour of Air Force installations in Asia and the Pacific.

Not all of the reduction can be attributed to U.S. air strikes since many tons of supplies were diverted to last winter's fighting in Laos and the enemy customarily stores large amounts in caches.

Seamans conceded that bombing the trails alone will not force the North Vietnamese to give up but he said the campaign's effectiveness is illustrated by the absence of "any major sustained enemy military operations since we have really built up our capability to do a pretty darn sophisticated job on the trails in the last couple of years."

Judging from the number of trucks counted entering and leaving the trail network, which he admitted is "not an exact science," Seamans said it is estimated that 67,000 tons of supplies entered the trail during the year ending Nov. 1 and only 9,500 tons reached South Vietnam or Cambodia.

The secretary attended ceremonies turning over the Phu Cat Air Base-the U.S. Air Force's newest and one of the best equipped in Vietnam-to the South Vietnamese air force. The U.S. Air Force once had 10 major bases in the country; now it has four.

Over the past five years the Air Force spent $36 million developing Phu Cat into a modern, 1,000-acre base, with a 25-bed hospital, warehouses, a swimming pool and picnic tables.

All that will go to the South Vietnamese air force plus an estimated $4 million worth of equipment.

Two squadrons of U.S. F4 Phantom jets based at Phu Cat have returned to the United States, and the 1,350-man American turnover contingent is expected to be cut to 100 advisers by Jan. 1.

Seamans said the South Vietnamese now are flying up to 80 per cent of the attack missions in their own country and half the missions in South Vietnam and Cambodia.

The U.S. Air Force last month had 31,200 men in Vietnam, compared to the Vietnamese air force of 47,000. About 26,000 U.S. airmen remain in Thailand. The bulk of the U.S. strikes against the Ho Chi Minh Trail are being carried out from bases in Thailand and from 7th Fleet carriers in the Tonkin Gulf.

If you think the first step is bad, the second step is worse. Maybe that's why he wears a hat.

Marchers Trade Blows

NEW YORK (AP)-Marchers from the Forest Hills Resident's Association traded blows with counter demonstrators from Youth Against War and Fascism yesterday morning at the site of a controversial low-income housing project in the predominantly middle-income area of Queens.

Nobody won as police broke up the fisticuffs and sent the demonstrators on opposite sides of the project site to do their demonstrating.

A little later, they escorted members of Youth Against War and Fascism to a nearby subway station.

There were no arrests.

The New York Urban League charged that opposition of the mostly Jewish community to construction of three 24-story towers was "racism" because most of the tenants are expected to be black. Other civil rights groups have made similar allegations.

The opponents of the project have contended that it would bring crime and deterioration to the neighborhood and over-tax schools and other local facilities.

Simeon Golar, chairman of the New York City Housing Authority, said on WOR-TV that the project was designed to promote integration.

He accused George Romney, secretary of Housing and Urban Development, of encouraging the opposition by reviewing the plan at the request of Sen. James. L. Buckley, R-Con.-N.Y., even though Romney's view came out in favor of it.

Golar said that his review had "a mischievous effect."

"He sits down and gives aid and comfort to opponents and enemies of public housing in the city and the nation," he said.

Rep. Herman Badillo, D-N.Y., first Puerto Rican elected to Congress, challenged opponents of the project to prove their contention the construction of the $30 million complex would overburden such neighborhood facilities as schools.

Merv Quits

NEW YORK (AP)-After 2 1/2 years of competing for the late-night talk-show audience, CBS announced yesterday that it will replace the Merv Griffin show with movies beginning in mid-February.

CBS thus will abandon its efforts to woo watchers away from NBC's Johnny Carson with a similar program hosted by a different star.

Griffin has said he would accept an offer for a syndicated show, which was what he had when CBS tapped him to compete against Carson's "Tonight" show and Joey Bishop, since succeeded by Dick Cavett on ABC.

What does the future hold?

André Kole

knows!

How To Move Off-Campus

If You:

1. are a Senior
2. will be 21 years of age during the academic year
3. are married
4. will be commuting from home

Then, notify - the Housing Office before room-choosing (December 6-10) that you intend to exercise any of the above options.

You're Not Covered By The Above Categories?

If you are not covered by any of the above categories then you are required by Board of Trustee regulation to live on-campus. However, you may appiy for an exemption to the regulation through your Area Director.

Security Deposit:

If you plan to move off-campus you must notify the Housing Office before December 10, 1971, in order that you may get your deposit back. Students who fail to make such notification by December 10 and who fail to occupy a room in the Spring Semester will, unfortunately, forfeit their deposit. Make your plans early.

The Story Of The Yurt

By SHELLEY LAUZON

Construction seems to be a permanent entity on the UMass campus. Mounds of earth, wooden frames, concrete in infintesimal mounts, and that first glimpse of something that resembles a building are none too familiar sites to all of us. Concerned students in Southwest, however, have come up with a rather interesting alternative--the yurt.

What is a yurt? Traditionally, it was a portable hut made of light poles covered with felt which the nomads of Mongolia carried with them in search for suitable grazing land for their herds.

Today the yurt has changed somewhat in style. The circular design has remained, but the walls are now wooden and have changed from a perpendicular to an outward angle, allowing for a more comfortable atmosphere. A bench encircles the entire inner area, under which ample storage space is provided. Rooms may be built around this area, following the concentric design. The roof is covered with sod and glass plates are placed at the top and edges of the roof to allow for light filtration.

Two of these structures are now in the process of being built in Southwest; one next to Pierpont and the other across from Farley Lodge. According to Charles Adams, Director of Project 10, the yurt adjacent to Pierpont will serve as a warming hut for the proposed skating rink, with possible future use for meetings and seminars.

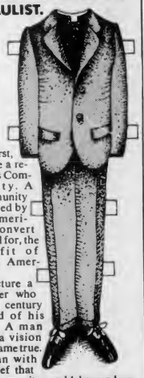
Students from an environmental concerns class began construction last Wednesday, and have spent an average of 8-10 hours a day working, moving inside at night to continue. Approximately 50 to 100 people have already helped with the project, Adams noted, with 10 more working each hour.

The idea of building the yurts originated rather suddenly this semester. Plans were formulated under the direction of Bill Coperthwaite, who has built yurts in the past and has designed a contemporary model. The structures each cost approximately $400-$600 for materials, with all labor done by the students themselves. Southwest Assembly has helped finance the project, with additional funding granted from the environmental concerns committee of the assembly.

The yurt adjacent to Pierpont will be 13 feet in diameter: much smaller than the concentric or donut-shaped yurt next to Farley Lodge. The sod roof won't be put on until the spring, but the dwellings should be completed in the near future.

The first yurt appeared in College, Alaska in 1967 and received a favorable response. The idea spread rapidly and a Yurt Foundation was established. A private, non-profit corporation, the foundation uses the money from the sale of yurts and yurt plans to discover appealing ways to learn and grow. An attempt was made to design a dwelling that wouldn't challenge or dominate nature but harmonize with it. The yurt is a base for a simple life style which permits more intimate contact with the natural environment.

Only a minumum of skill is necessary to build a yurt. It is an inexpensive, portable structure which blends in with the environment and allows people to create something with their own hands in a short span of time, providing a sense of accomplishment.



The spatial quality lends itself to an ideal atmosphere for group interaction. The circular room allows for face-to-face contact, since no one place is more prominent than another. It is conducive to discussion and is well-suited for seminars and meetings.

Student reactions to the project have been quite favorable. Those walking by often find themselves banging a few nails or laying floorboards. Anyone interested in helping to build the yurts is encouraged to join in. Adams added that it is a student project and hopes more yurts will appear in the future around campus.

What is a yurt? This is a yurt. Two of these are being constructed in Southwest.

PICTURE YOURSELF AS A PAULIST.

First, picture a religious Community. A Community founded by an American convert in, and for, the benefit of North America.

Picture a founder who was a century ahead of his time. A man with a vision that came true. A man with a belief that a Community could be modern and flexible enough to meet the needs of the Church in every age as they arise. A Community that wouldn't lag behind the times on leaden feet. A Community that would communicate through the spoken and printed word and one that wouldn't be hampered by specific activities when new needs arise.

Next, picture the men in this new Community. They would be flexible. Each one would use his own individual talents in his own way and would be given the freedom to do so.

These are the Paulists. The modern religious Community. Keeping pace with the times. Concerned. Involved.

If you can picture yourself as a Paulist, why not write for more information to: Rev. Donald C. Campbell, C.S.P., Vocation Director, Room No. 400 paulist fathers.

415 West 59th Street
New York, N.Y. 10019

WE HAVE uplifting SOLUTIONS TO EVERYDAY PROBLEMS.

In this instance, we are lifting a complete house to demonstrate a new concept of aerial delivery of assembly line-produced dwellings from factory to homesite.

But . . . this same Sikorsky® helicopter could have been effecting a rescue mission off a wallowing tanker in a North Sea gale. It could have been airlifting food and supplies to starving villagers in flood-ravaged Tunisia . . . or transporting equipment for on-the-spot control of off-shore oil pollution.

Obviously, what we're pointing out is the impressive record and adaptability of our helicopters in solving really important human problems.

There's much more to come in our world of exciting, advanced VTOL aircraft systems. For example, Heavy-Lift Skycranes® and Tilt-Rotor Transports. And just around the corner are our High-Speed Commercial Transports—designed to ease short-haul mass transportation headaches.

Does this kind of engineering attitude stir your sense of responsibility and imagination? Then you should talk careers with us. There's ample opportunity for innovation in: autonavigation systems • avionics • computer technology • electronic test • materials engineering • mechanical analytical design • structures engineering • systems analysis . . . and more.

Female, minority group and veteran applicants especially welcome.

Consult your College Placement Office for campus interview dates—or—write to Mr. Leo J. Shaivoy, Professional and Technical Employment.

Sikorsky Aircraft
STRATFORD, CONNECTICUT 06602

Graduate Student Senate Proposes President's Pay

By MARILYN MARTIN

In a general resolution proposed three weeks ago by treasurer, Jim Vanderwick, it was suggested that $3,200 a year be paid to the President of the Graduate Student Senate in an attempt to give its officer more time to spend on official duties.

Veda Ross, president of the Graduate Student Senate, may soon receive a $3,200 a year salary.

The proposal, under a suggestion from the Ad Hoc Committee, will take the form of a by-law.

The amount mentioned, $3,200 a year, would be equivalent to the salary of a teaching assistant and is thought to be a supplement that should eliminate the need for any outside work or part-time job.

Speaking on this idea in an MDC interview, Vanderwick said, "Providing this salary would make possible competition to other things on campus. For example, one who wants to and is capable of being President, but is offered a teaching assistantship, wouldn't take a loss in becoming president."

Several safeguards are in the proposed by-law, according to Vanderwick. He cited these:

The President would not be allowed to take outside work exceeding ten hours.

If the President resigns, payment would stop immediately.

The by-law, if passed, could be repealed by a petition of 100 graduate students brought before the Senate or any single Senator could call a general meeting. A two-thirds majority would be needed to repeal the bill.

Veda Ross, the current President of the Graduate Student Senate told MDC, "The rationale behind the proposal is that most of the responsibility in the Grad Senate lies with the president and if paid the President would be working for the graduate student body and responsible to them.

According to Mrs. Ross, in her job as president she spends from 20 to 30 hours a week at her duties. Her duties now include action in six committees, making sure grad students complaints are heading in the right direction and that something is done about them.

"The Senate as a whole," said Mrs. Ross, "doesn't deal as much with administrative problems as with living conditions such as housing for married students, parking and day care.

The salary proposed, according to Mrs. Ross, would be taken from a miscellaneous fund in the Senate's budget.

The Senate controls $16,000, which grad students pay in taxes, and divides it among several categories such as, day care, travel, discretionary, miscellaneous and emergency loan fund.

Said Mrs. Ross, "This wouldn't affect the $4.00 tax imposed on graduate students. There is no reason for it to go up."

"Students seem to feel," she mentioned, "that it is alright to give money to social organizations or to charities, to ease their consciences but not to pay the people who do the work."

Hopefully, Mrs. Ross said, the Grad Student proposal will prompt the Undergrad Senate into proposing a similar bill.

If the by-law is passed, it will go into effect on July 1, 1972.

Police Accused Of Hampering Newsmen

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)- Policemen who don civilian clothes to photograph demonstrations impair the work of legitimate newsmen, says Guy Ryan, national president of Sigma Delta Chi.

Ryan's remarks Saturday followed denials by San Diego police officials that a plainclothes officer was trying to represent himself as a newsman during demonstrations earlier in the week at the State Building.

The officer, patrolman Wayne A. Gritton, used a video tape camera which had KSDP markings on its side in similar fashion to those used by commercial television stations.

More than 200 demonstrators had turned out for hearings of a San Diego State assistant professor accused of unprofessional conduct.

Dep. Police Chief William Gore said the letters on the camera may have misled some observers but denied Gritton was trying to pass as a television newsman.

"I have to agree that it did look like the call letters of some television stations," he said. "But I can assure you that was not the intention."

Gore said he did not know why the letters were put on the camera and said they would be removed to prevent future misunderstanding. He said the presence of officers taking pictures helps to keep demonstrators in line.

"We want the demonstrators to know we are taking pictures," he said. "It kind of calms them down."

Ryan said, "If the police insist on photographing such events they should have police armbands or other identification visible for the public."

He said officers of the local Sigma Delta Chi chapter will meet today to file a formal protest with the police department.

Sigma Delta Chi, Ryan said, "condemns the practice of law enforcement officers assuming the appearance of newsmen to photograph events such as this one."

Ryan is an editorial assistant of the San Diego Evening Tribune.

THE TALKIE CINEMA
Intersection of Rte. 5 and Rte. 9
NORTHAMPTON CENTER
584-6909

Program Council Presents

Jonathan Edwards

with Bill Workman

In Concert

Tuesday, Dec. 7
7:30 and 10:00

Tickets available at RSO Office
$1.25

It's Not Too Early For

SUMMER JOBS

Summer Jobs Are Hard To Find Especially Good Paying Ones.

NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST SWIMMING POOL DEALER . . . .

Wants Retail Salespeople For Summer Employment.

Opportunity for above average summer earnings. Prior selling experience helpful, or we will train.

WRITE OR CALL COLLECT:
Stephen Schiff
617-848-0517

For Christmas Vacation Interviews

OPENINGS AVAILABLE AT THESE STORES:

- Braintree
- Danvers
- Raynham
- Framingham
- Wappinger Falls, N.Y.
- Auburn
- Indian Orchard
- Salem, N.H.
- Portsmouth, N.H.
- Portland, Me.
- Manchester, N.H.
- Nashua, N.H.
- N. Kingstown, R.I.
- Woonsocket, R.I.
- E. Providence, R.I.

GROSSMAN'S

"EVERYTHING TO BUILD WITH"

AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY EMPLOYER

SENIORS

If you think that you should have a say in your own graduation, If you want to determine how your money should be spent, If you want to go to Senior Day this year

Come to the Senior Committee Meeting TONIGHT

7 p.m., Rm. 905-909 Campus Center

Bring your gripes, your suggestions, yourselves, etc.

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — Nathan Gorenstein
BUSINESS MANAGER — James Gold
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Gib Fullerton
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR — Jerry Lazar
NEWS STAFF — Janet Hughes, Charlie Berkow, George Weissletz
DARKROOM — Al Chapman
AD LAYOUT — Terry Wanczyk
SPORTS — John Bach, Dan Kamal
EDITORIAL — Don Glickstein

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.
Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

Slow Progress

The new University requirements concerning the option of students in the area of pass/fail grading represent a step forward in the direction of increased academic freedom and intellectual individuality. For those who don't follow the regulations of the University, students are now allowed to "take up to and including five University core requirement courses pass/fail."

It has been a slow process, but gradually the barriers to individual choice in academic areas have fallen one by one. Every year students are given more options and have to adhere to less rules and a looser framework of course requirements to work within. We applaud this trend with the hope that the process will not stop here.

It will not be long, we hope, that the University will open itself even further and students will be allowed to take all requirements, if they must remain at all, pass/fail. We realize the problems involved in this suggestion but we feel by making this option available, the University would be doing a major service to the students it serves. Those who need grades because of future educational goals would be able to fulfill this requirement while others who do not would not be forced into a graded system.

Reform, by definition, is a slow process. It is worth remembering, however, that students only spend four years on this campus and though it might mean little to a faculty member to put off change for a time, it can mean everything to the students involved. If the University is willing to take the steps it already has, then we see no logical reason that the further suggestions we have made cannot be implemented as soon as possible.

Latest Moves On Checkerboard Square, Washington

Don Glickstein

A Backward Evaluation

The revolution will never come if the best the revolutionaries come up with is the tried and untrue ways of the past.

Accountability and the improvement of teaching through teacher evaluation is a goal which only a few die-hard professorial fascists would disagree with. But the ranks of the professorial fascists should be swelled with libertarians if some of the more inflexible and dogmatic recommendations of the Ad Hoc Committee on Teacher Evaluation are implemented.

The Committee, consisting of students and faculty, was formed last last year, in hopes that some order could be prescribed for a University that was flooded with varied, often inconsistent, and sometimes untenable teacher evaluation procedures, where such procedures existed at all.

The Committee's recommendations include mandatory teacher evaluation for all courses in the University, the establishment of an Office that would coordinate teacher evaluation, the institution of "Teacher Growth Grants" to encourage in-service training, and the use of a standardized test (in this case, one developed by the University of Illinois) for the evaluation by students.

Surely, all but the last of these recommendations have sound educational, administrative and philosophical foundations. Teachers should be held accountable to the men and women who pay their salaries. The improvement should be aided by an administration willing to provide on-the-job training for "teachers" who, for the most part, know little about educational psychology, the validity of tests and grades, public speaking, and personal communications, but who know much about the way they were taught by teachers who were taught the way they taught at the turn of the century.

The recommendation that is pernicious, that is reactionary, blatantly anti-intellectual and anti-common sense is that which would require the use of the Illinois Course Evaluation Questionnaire (CEQ). In advocating the CEQ's use, the Committee made several dangerous assumptions.

It assumes that such a thing as a good teacher can be defined and standardized, compartmentalized and, if you will, graded. The Committee urges flexibility, yet in the same breath, makes the CEQ questions the real instrument for comparison and diagnosis. It assumes that teachers, even those teaching disparate subjects, can and should be compared with each other. The Committee assumes that there can only be two kinds of evaluation--students filling out questionnaires and supervisory faculty visiting classes. Totally ignored is the importance of impartial outsiders who may not be affiliated in any way to a school or to education.

The CEQ itself-the Committee's protestations regardless, is a limited survey. The Committee claims that it will help improve teaching, yet there are very few behavioral objectives on the form. There isn't even a question asking if the professor spoke loud enough.

Great ado is made by the Committee about the CEQ's reliability. No doubt the survey is reliable-statistically speaking, that is--but it doesn't tell much about a teacher's ability, other than a binary good or bad.

The CEQ tries to be "objective", yet the assumptions behind its questions do not take into account the assumptions of both the teacher and the student.

The Committee argues that the CEQ is used "in a variety of distinguished schools", yet does not explain what criteria were used to evaluate their distinguishedness.

The Committee asserts that it doesn't know what the ideal teacher should be like, yet the CEQ assumes that the ideal teacher is one who is interested in his students, who is open to all points of view, who is fair, and who communicates well. That's all very pie in the sky, but it's still an open question as to whether a friendly teacher is a good teacher. Also, if a teacher has certain goals for his class that are not the same as his students, should he be penalized for not achieving the students' goals. There is a thing as academic freedom for the professor.

What the CEQ and the Committee's recommendations do not do, in the words of Peter Wagschal, head of the School of Education's evaluation, is "meet the specific needs and criteria of the different groups who are to use the evaluative information...To decide in advance on one general form like the CEQ, before assessing the different information needs and criteria of teachers, students, and administrators, does not seem to be a very professional approach to the teacher evaluation and improvement problem."

The criteria for teacher evaluation should take into account all the groups that will make use of the evaluation.

--The evaluation should be diagnostic. It should tell a teacher what behaviors he must alter to improve teaching.

--The evaluation should be mandatory, yet freedom to fail for the teacher should be preserved (just as students should be insured freedom to fail). No teacher should be penalized for poor performance, provided he shows consistent improvement or desire to change.

--The evaluation must be standardized to a certain extent, yet not to the extent that it can be made into a computerized multiple-choice document of non-specific, behavioral questions. Finding out whether a course was boring or not just doesn't tell anyone about anything concrete.

--The evaluators should be not only integrally involved students, and supposedly dispassionate peer faculty, but also observers who are unrelated to the subject. The more people who evaluate, the more potentially helpful input will result.

--The evaluation should take into consideration both the goals of the teacher and the student's goals.

--The evaluators, especially the student and supervisory faculty, should be knowledgable in the area of observation, so that their comments are more valid than the usual undocumented value judgment.

--The evaluation should be open and available to the public (which is, after all, footing everyone's bill) as soon after the administration of the evaluation as possible.

--Teachers should be free to supplement the standardized evaluation with their own.

Whatever evaluation the University does develop, respect for the teacher as a human being must be maintained. It is hypocritical for students to advocate the kind of standardized test that the Illinois CEQ is, that the Committee on Teacher Evaluation champions.

Don't Light My Fire, Baby

To the Editor:

Christmas trees, lighted candles, arrangements of evergreen sprigs, and traditional decorative touches which spread the holiday atmosphere can also spread the horror of fire unless great care is taken. Everyone should keep fire safety high on the list of important things to remember this time of year.

Follow these suggestions when planning Christmas trees, lighting, decorations, wrappings, etc.

Trees - Select a firm, fresh one, and put it at once in a cool place with its base in water. Before setting it up, cut about an inch off the base to help the tree absorb water, then place the tree in a sturdy stand containing water. Be sure the water level stays above the cut--check it daily. Locate the tree away from heat and where it won't block exits. Take it down as soon as possible before Chirstmas vacation--the more it dries out, the more of a hazard it becomes. Don't rely on do-it-yourself flameproofing treatments.

Christmas trees should not be used above the street floor in any residence hall except in the 5th, 12th and 19th floor lobbies of the Southwest High Rise Buildings. (Artificial trees with the Underwriters Laboratories (UL) label may be used anywhere.)

Lighting - Never use lighted candles on a tree or near evergreen decorations. Check sets of electric lights closely for worn insulation, broken plugs, loose bulb sockets; use only sets with Underwriters Laboratories label. Use extension cords sparingly. Never hang sets of lights on a metallic, artificial tree--to avoid shock hazard, use only indirect spot lighting on such trees. Turn off all indoor tree and decorative lights when leaving the building or retiring for the night. Outdoor lights should have special wiring.

Decorations - Use materials which are non-combustible, such as glass and asbestos, or which are flame- retardant. Keep natural evergreens and polystyrene foam decorations away from candles, fireplaces and other open flames.

Candles - Candles, when used, should be used with extreme care. When used for table decorations, a sturdy holder shall be provided. Lighted candles should never be left unattended.

Environmental Health & Safety Office

'. . . AND THIS LITTLE, OLD GREY-HAIRED LADY ASKS ME, "ARE THEY PHANTOM JETS, YOUNG MAN?", AND I SAYS, "YES, MA'AM, THEY ARE." AND THEN SHE SLUGGED ME!'

Letters To The Editor

The Price of Being Human

To the Editor:

Robert...again? (MDC, 11/2/71) One of these days--while you're laughing, making caustic remarks and shifting in your chair--someone is going to pull the chair out from under you, leaving you prostrate on the floor with a sore ass. Who will be laughing, then?

You're great propaganda for the Women's movement. You save us hours in the library researching the facts of the oppression of women. All we have to do is save your articles, point to them, and we have our case. The women you criticize are most usually nameless except for some caricatured aspect of their body or life style that may seem "non-feminine" to you. You don't write of them directly. Even D. H. Lawrence knows the routine and speaks against it..."Man is willing to accept woman as an equal, as a man in skirts, as an angel, a devil, a baby-face, a machine, an instrument, a bosom, a womb, a pair of legs, a servant, an encyclopedia, an ideal or an obscenity; the only thing he won't accept her as is a human being, a real human being of the female sex."

And, you condemn yourself--you spent a lot of words telling us how sick "the hoary wenches" are and how maligned you are. And, yet in your last paragraph you, in essence, say that the thing that's worst about us is our "excess of the same kind of hormones that define...masculine traits". That doesn't seem to say much about the good of masculine traits in any degree...

You seem to miss a lot about the meaning of ideas, movements and lives. The meaning of the Women's movement is not that we're frustrated construction workers or long distance runners, nor are we baby haters or opponents of motherhood. The meaning is that we want a choice, we want equality and we want control over our lives and their direction. What we want is the long-denied right to be ourselves. "Our history has been stolen from us/Our heroes died/In childbirth, from peritonitis/of overwork/of oppression/of bottled up rage/Our geniuses were never taught to read or write/We must discover a past adequate to our ambitions/We must create a future adequate to our needs." That's where the "hoary wenches" have come from, where we're at and where we're going, and not all your ego, laughing or condescension will deter us. And, if we knock over some male chairs in the process, it's because we're angry and bitter for having little choice about being housewives (no housewife makes $6 an hour for the 99.6 hour week she puts in as doctor, psychiatrist, custodian, lover, artist, chef, housekeeper), secretaries, or waitresses--work which has pay that ranges from bad to worse, is hazardous to our health, not to ignore the fact that they demean anyone with greater expectations. If we criticize films, words, phrases, behavior that we believe are offensive, it's because we're angry and bitter about the lying reality and oppressive meaning of those things. What we want, Robert, is to be real human beings.

And, my friend, now that you're being defined by names, you feel uneasy and oppressed; that sensation has been with women for a long time; it's time for the white male to be responsible for the consequences of his actions. Women have stood it for centuries...it's your turn my tall, muscular bikie.

Jacqueline Letallien

Fighting For Blood

To the Editor:

Today the idea of fighting is looked down upon with contempt, but there are some causes that merit our fighting. When one stops to consider that 50,000 people in the United States alone are suffering from Sickle Cell Anemia, that the only existing control of Sickle Cell Anemia is for two people with this disease not to reproduce, and that there is very little research being done to find a cure then one should become fighting mad.

Sickle Cell Anemia is an inherited condition in which there is a defect in the hemoglobin, and the presence of this defective or abnormal hemoglobin is capable of causing distortion of the red blood cells. This distortion causes excruciating pain due to swelling of the joints, and still more pain from the swelling of the liver and spleen. The person afflicted with this disease misses from two - six weeks a year from work or school, which in turn lessens his chances of obtaining and keeping up with his work or studying load.

What can you do to combat this disease? Buy a candy bar. The proceeds will be donated to the Howard University Research Center for Sickle Cell Anemia. These candy bars will be sold in the Campus Center, near the book store, and by students in the dorms. Stand in line behind Dr. Bromery as he buys the first candy bar for Sickle Cell Anemia in the Campus Center tomorrow at twelve. It's in our blood to fight! A Friend Reaches Out, Try Caring.

Steve Carser

Parking Problems

To the Editor:

Let's face it. The parking situation has gotten rather out of hand. It seems to me that there must be some kind of solution for this ridiculous problem. We pay $1.00 a year, not an outrageous price for a parking space, but nevertheless, what are we paying for? The chance to ride around a parking lot for half an hour or so trying to find a space to squeeze into? It has become a real challenge to find a parking space on this campus nowadways. You often run into people who scream at you because your car is in their way and they can't get through (most of these loud-mouths are the ones who don't have parking stickers for that particular area), or else you come across the inevitable "cross-parker", who decides that he's going to take up three spaces instead of one by parking sideways because he can't fit lengthwise into the particular parking space that he wants (even though, at the time, there are plenty of other spaces available, but it might mean that he has to walk an extra three steps or so).

I would imagine that there are plenty of other people on this campus (staff and students) who share my viewpoint. If the University does decide to raise its parking rates, then it should be able to afford to put in fairly decent parking lots, with assigned spaces so that we can avoid this hassle in the future.

Susan M. Lygmont

Editor's Note: See related article on page 2.)

Improving Lives

To the Editor:

UMASS has NES to serve the educational needs of underprivileged children; perhaps students could get together and advise parents of low-income families on bread-and-butter issues of daily living, such as balanced diets, credit traps as detailed in your article etc. Such an organization working conjunctively with NES could go a long way toward improving the lives of a great many people.

Edward Cheng

Editorial Points

It's funny how the anniversary of John Kennedy's death two weeks ago went unnoticed by most of us.

*****

You know it's a new era in UMass basketball when the referees are taller than the players. Only in height, however.

*****

When is the Provost's Office going to assume responsibility for the publishing of course description guides? When is the Faculty Senate going to make course descriptions compulsory for all teachers?

*****

The Student Senate Transit Service bus stop signs are bright and helpful. Why can't they be installed at all stops?

*****

MOVIE QUOTATION OF THE DECADE: From "Death in Venice", Dirk Bogarde speaking, "Why are they disinfecting the streets of Venice?" Maybe because everthing else is so clean.

*****

The "Electric Company", the television sequel to "Sesame Street" has come up with one of the best put downs we've heard: "Take my skates off and call me Shorty!"

*****

DINING COMMONS MEAL OF THE WEEK: Monday's supper, tepid sauce with turgid pieces of chalk, euphemistically called Chicken a la King.

*****

The buildings of Marcel Breuer and Edward Durrell Stone are to UMass, as a pair of red, white, and blue, vinyl shoes. In New York, a pair of red, white, and blue, vinyl shoes fit into the landscape. So does the New York Cultural Center (Edward Durrell Stone, architect) and the Whitney Museum (Marcel Breuer, architect). But red, white, and blue, vinyl shoes are anomalies in Amherst, just like the Campus Center and the new library. Too bad Grandma Moses wasn't an architect; UMass should have hired her.

Sally and Johnny

By BILL GORCZYCA
EDITORIAL STAFF

Many articles and letters have appeared in the Collegian over the past few weeks concerning the role of women in modern society. Although some of these articles and letters were well documented, many failed to reach above the level of puerile name-calling characteristic of grade-school mentality. The subject deserves better treatment. By examining the development of norms in our society we may open the door to better understanding and more autonomy in determining our individual lives.

In any society there is a correct social order, or an accepted way of life in the culture. The elements of this social order are a number of social rules which guide, but do not determine, the behavior of the members of the society. These symbolic standards are very important because people assess other members of the society as good or bad and right or wrong in relation to these rules and every person is expected to act in accordance with them.

A less general type of rule is called a norm. A norm is the same as a rule, except it is known by all members of a society but only guides the behavior of certain individuals in specific roles. For example, there is a widely accepted norm that a woman should cook meals for her husband. This norm, coupled with others such as a woman should wash the dishes, clean house, etc., constitute the role of housewife.

A member of a society first begins to learn the roles that he should play in primary socialization, or socialization which occurs in the family. Little Sally is wrapped up in pink blankets and given a doll to knock around the crib while Johnny cavorts with an overstuffed Teddy Bear.

After primary socialization the process of learning roles continues in "extended socialization". Here the task of educating the young is passed on to certain social institutions such as the school, the church, etc. Sally has progressed to sitting in a corner with a plastic tea-service and Johnny is now building bridges with his Tinker Toys.

By the time Sally and Johnny are adolescents they have learned their roles so well that they play their parts with the minimum of prodding from social institutions. Sally is reading Seventeen and learning how to become a junior femme fatale and Johnny is hiding skin mags under his paisley pajamas. They consider their actions "natural", as if they had been destined to play these roles from birth.

There is nothing wrong with this development of Sally and Johnny. Their values are symmetrical with the correct social order. Sally would be satisfied with the role of housewife and mother, and Johnny would probably become a fine provider for his family. There is something wrong, however, if Sally and Johnny view other members of the society who have refused to follow the well beaten path as being misfits or suffering from some sort of genetic miscarriage.

People who are not in symmetry with the social order are often submitted to numerous indignities by those who would like to see them forced into a convenient mold. A woman executive will be considered frigid if she keeps her mind on business and rejects the amorous advances of her male counterparts during office hours. And we all know that hairdressers are really queers. This brand of cat-calling is the mark of someone who is blind or ignorant. Either he cannot see the reasons why someone is different or he is too stupid to understand that they have a right to be treated as equals in any social situation.

There is today, however, a large number of these social "misfits" who have not buckled under the insulting cat-calls and who have devoted themselves to the gargantuan task of re-socializing their peers in order that they, and others like them, can receive equal treatment in their particular pursuit of happiness. In my opinion, this is a noble endeavor for their success would lead to the emergence of a freer, more equal society. I cannot tell you to support them in their struggle, but I can ask you to understand the reasons for their actions and to examine your conscience and motivations when you feel it necessary to speak out against them. Here you are clearly wrong for you are working to delay the emergence of something we all desire: more freedom in determining our individual lives.

All letters to the editor must be double-spaced at sixty spaces and signed with name and address. The editors reserve the right to edit or not to publish letters, depending on space available and content.

Room To Move

What To Do In Case Of Arrest

Too many people are unaware of the legal procedures during and following an arrest. The following points, hopefully will help get a brother or sister out of jail and help to eliminate the confusion which usually follows a bust.

The most important thing to remember is do not say anything to the officers or anyone else, do not answer questions whether or not you are advised of your rights. A police officer must have a warrant or your consent to search your room. If he receives your consent he does not need a warrant. Don't resist and Don't give consent. Second, call a lawyer the first opportunity they give you. If a graduate or undergraduate student is arrested, on any charge, he or she may call the student lawyer, Mr. Howland. Since you are allowed only one phone call, use it for him at 545-0739 or 545-0341; at nights, holidays and in emergencies, at 549-6817. You should give your name, where you are being held, and the charges only.

Do not discuss the case on the phone with Mr. Howland and/or anyone else. The thing about "anything you say may be held against you" happens too often. It will probably be more helpful to both Mr. Howland and the person arrested, if Mr. Howland is the first person called. He will call any friends or relatives for you. Most important is the fact that he can begin the necessary legal protection for you, until you get a lawyer to cover the case.

After arrest, the usual mug shots, finger printing, and general questions such as age, residence, follow; this information is sometimes used to help determine bail. This information will also be forwarded to Washington and kept on file there.

The morning after you are arrested, you will be arraigned at the district court. They state the charges against you, the bail, and the date of the hearing. It is sometimes advisable to stick out the night in jail; there is a chance that the bail could be lowered the next day which is important since often your fine will end up matching the amount of the bail. The lawyer would be able to advise you best in a situation like this.

Personal recognizance has been happening lately; this means you are let out on your own word. Three major determining factors for this usually are (1) if you are a resident of the state (2) if your parents are present and (3) if you have some signs of stability in the area (if you are a student or have a steady job).

Once the arraignment is over, you can either present money, call a bondsman, or petition for the bail to be lowered. The nearest bondsman, Mr. William A. Hurley, is in Springfield and is listed in the yellow pages under "Bonds-Bail", 33 Elm Street, 737-1188. He charges 10% of the amount of bail for himself and puts up the bail so you are free. A "responsible" person over 21 must sign for you and show the bondsman that he has the collateral to pay the bondsman, in case you split before the case is over.

If you decision is to remain in jail to appeal for a reduced bail, this means that you go to The Superior Court the next day. The judge, D.A., etc. ask you general questions to determine if you are likely to stay around or not. Appearance here is very important. If you have a friend in jail who will be doing this thing, it is up to you to take him the straightest clothes you can find as soon as possible. He obviously can't get them if he's in jail, and clothes are part of the way they pass a character judgment on you.

Once you are out of jail, do not talk to people, except your lawyer, about the case. Anyone can be subpoenaed to testify against you–they do not have much choice other than to show up in court and answer questions. This will be done particularly if the police don't have a good case against you and they want to strengthen it.

(More information, call Room To Move 545-0400)

Student Senate Committee Calendar

Committee & Chairman	Meeting Time and Place	Main Topic of Discussion
Services Brenda Rau	Mon, Dec. 6, 7:30 Room 178, CC	SES as a service Senate-owned services Pending legislation
Women's Committee Lisa Mandell	Mon, Dec. 6, 6 pm Room 168 70, CC	Representatives from all women's groups on campus to form a centralized agency for all campus women.
Academic Affairs Nick Apostola	Tues, Dec. 7, 6:15 Room 811 15, CC	Freshman year
Rents & Fees Robert Chiller	Tues, Dec. 7, 7 pm Room 165, CC	Housing fees
Budgets John Stevens	Tues, Dec. 7, 7:30 Thur, Dec. 9, 7:30 Both in Room 801, CC	4th Budgets hearing 5th Budgets hearing
Social Action Maggie Houghton	Wed, Dec. 8, 6:15 Room 178, CC	Appropriations to the Day Care Survey; Sassi Prep
Financial Affairs Skip Olmstead	Thurs, Dec. 9, 8 pm Room 177, CC	Financial appropriations Financial Policy Act revisions
Student Matters Bruce Bernstein	No meeting this week.
Governmental Affairs Bill Spinn	Sun, Dec. 12, 6 pm Room 802, CC	Constitutions

CLIP AND SAVE

Research (Term) Papers

We cover virtually every topic. All writers are college grads specializing in your topic

ORIGINAL PAPERS $3.50/page
FILE COPIES $2.00/page

Send topic description and money order to our new address:

PAPERS AND INC.
P.O. BOX 12159
HARTFORD, CONN. 06112
or call 203-527-0631

CLIP AND SAVE

TRIM - A - LIMB '71

Come help decorate the S. U. and the C. C.

Monday, Dec. 6

Decorations provided and EGG NOG!

Come to the Colonial Lounge or the 2nd level concourse anytime after 2 p.m.

See you there!

Campus Center Program Council

Rod Rodgers Dance Company
a unique theatre experience

"ROD RODGERS, the choreographer, is torn between the abstract and the actual. He can create a beautiful design like "PERCUSSION SUITE" or use a contemporary theme successfully as in "NOW! NIGGA . . ."
DON McDONAGH, NEW YORK TIMES

"ROD RODGERS demonstrates that he is a more gifted choreographer than many who are better known."
MARION SAWYER, NEW YORK CHELSEA CLINTON NEWS

"ROD RODGERS' dancers perform, with an obvious pride, works which are worth going out of your way to see."
PHYLLIS G. RICHMOND, DANCE MAGAZINE

RODGERS' choreography displays a versitality which enables him to go from abstract patterns to compelling dance drama. The multi-media movement – emphasis of "DANCES IN PROJECTED SPACE" yields smoothly to the insistant political message of "HARAMBEE!".
ZITA ALLEN, NEW YORK AMSTERDAM NEWS

". . . a company with something to say and a way of saying it that ingratiated and also hit between the eyes".
GEORGE BEISWANGER, ATLANTA JOURNAL

Tues., Wed., Thurs.
Dec. 7, 8, 9, 1971
8:00 p.m.
BOWKER AUDITORIUM
(Stockbridge Hall, UMass.)

Reserved tickets:

UMass Undergrads	$1.00
Other Full-Time Students	$2.00
UMass Faculty/Staff	$3.00
General Public	$3.50

Tickets available: Fine Arts Council Ticket Office, 125 Herter Hall, Telephone 545-0202. Remaining Tickets available at Bowker Auditorium one hour before performance.

Presented by the UMass Fine Arts Council

Advanced Master — Class: Tues., Dec. 7 — 11:15 a.m. — W.O.P.E. (Call 545-0202) — Spectators Welcome

Final Exam Schedule

FINAL EXAMINATION SCHEDULE
JANUARY 1972

I. The two-hour examination periods are identified by code numbers according to the following chart:

	WED JAN 5	THU JAN 6	FRI JAN 7	SAT JAN 8	MON JAN 10	TUE JAN 11	WED JAN 12	THU JAN 13	FRI JAN 14
8:00 a.m.	1	5	9	13	17	21	25	29	33
10:30 a.m.	2	6	10	14	18	22	26	30	34
1:30 p.m.	3	7	11	15	19	23	27	31	35
4:00 p.m.	4	8	12	16	20	24	28	32	36

"A&F EC 110 8" implies that all students taking A&F EC 110 will be examined on Thursday, January 6, at 4:00 p.m.
"ART 115 03 21" implies that all students in section 03 of ART 115 will be examined on Tuesday, January 11, at 8:00 a.m.

NOTE: WHEN EXAMINATION TIME IS DETAILED BY SECTIONS, IT IS TO BE ASSUMED THAT ANY UNLISTED SECTIONS ARE NOT SCHEDULED FOR A FINAL EXAMINATION.

"ASTRON 100 sec 01-12 18, 13-24 7, 25-30 27" implies that students in sections 01 through 12 of ASTRON 100 will be examined in period 18 (10:30 a.m., Mon., Jan. 10), sections 13 through 24 in period 7, etc.

II. See your instructor for information on place of examination but NOT before Wednesday, December 8.

III. CONFLICTS or MORE THAN TWO EXAMINATIONS IN ONE DAY

Students who have conflicts in their examination schedule or who have more than two examinations scheduled in any one day may report to the Schedule Office (168 Whitmore) for resolution of these problems.
THE SCHEDULE OFFICE WILL NOT ASSIST IN RESOLVING PROBLEMS UNLESS THEY ARE REPORTED BEFORE THURSDAY, DECEMBER 9.

A&F EC 110 8, 177 2 26, 177 3 21, 235 14, 261 4, 265 8, 341 27, 352 13
AACTG 110 14, 115 10, 120 1, 130 1,2, 17, 3,4 12, 5,6 4, 7 23, 210 23, 211 28, 220 1 3, 2,3 12, 221 13, 230 19, 235 2, 320 5, 340 21, 370 1, 371 4
AIRSCI 121 16, 121 16, 231 2, 341 4
AN SCI 121 4, 219 22, 321 24, 330 13, 353 18, 359 15, 361 2
ANTH 102 26, 103 27, 104 1 20 14, 21 32 27, 105 5, 237 9, 255 15, 260 28, 267 17, 320 3, 333 23, 340 19, 362 17, 367 17, 368 6, 371 20, 373 25, 381 4
ARMEN 110 21
ART 115 3 21, 225 3, 233 18, 305 17
ASIAN S 150 8
ASTRON 100 1 12 18, 13 24 7, 25 30 37, 101 1 12 28
BIOCHM 270 11, 223 19, 225 24
BOTANY 110 1,3,5, 7,9,11, 13,15, 17,19 10, 2,4,6, 8,10, 12,14, 16,18, 20 14, 101 1 4 12, 5 8 10, 9 12 22, 121 7, 125 6, 126 17, 220 21, 221 20, 791 12, 303 6, 331 19, 335 18, 101 15, 102 22, 140 7, 141 8, 180 12, 220 28, 230 8
CHEM 101 28, 111 7, 112 5, 113 18, 160 16, 165 27, 190 21, 202 2, 203 6, 204 9, 211 8, 243 1, 252 14, 342 11, 347 12, 351 21, 352 23, 380 22, 385 10, 386 26, 387 4, 388 6, 391 8, 392 1, 393 9, 394 1, 395 24, 396 13, 397 4, 398 6, 399 2, 401 1, 402 2, 403 6, 404 9, 411 8, 412 1, 413 4, 414 5, 415 8, 416 9, 417 4, 418 6, 419 2, 420 1, 421 4, 422 1, 423 1, 424 1, 425 1, 426 1, 427 1, 428 1, 429 1, 430 1, 431 1, 432 1, 433 1, 434 1, 435 1, 436 1, 437 1, 438 1, 439 1, 440 1, 441 1, 442 1, 443 1, 444 1, 445 1, 446 1, 447 1, 448 1, 449 1, 450 1, 451 1, 452 1, 453 1, 454 1, 455 1, 456 1, 457 1, 458 1, 459 1, 460 1, 461 1, 462 1, 463 1, 464 1, 465 1, 466 1, 467 1, 468 1, 469 1, 470 1, 471 1, 472 1, 473 1, 474 1, 475 1, 476 1, 477 1, 478 1, 479 1, 480 1, 481 1, 482 1, 483 1, 484 1, 485 1, 486 1, 487 1, 488 1, 489 1, 490 1, 491 1, 492 1, 493 1, 494 1, 495 1, 496 1, 497 1, 498 1, 499 1, 500 1
CHIN 126 13, 385 25, 387 28
COMLIT 101 17, 291 16, 202 2, 203 6, 204 9, 211 8, 243 1, 252 14, 342 11, 347 12, 351 21, 352 23, 380 22, 385 10, 386 26, 387 4, 388 6, 391 8, 392 1, 393 9, 394 1, 395 24, 396 13, 397 4, 398 6, 399 2, 401 1, 402 2, 403 6, 404 9, 411 8, 412 1, 413 4, 414 5, 415 8, 416 9, 417 4, 418 6, 419 2, 420 1, 421 4, 422 1, 423 1, 424 1, 425 1, 426 1, 427 1, 428 1, 429 1, 430 1, 431 1, 432 1, 433 1, 434 1, 435 1, 436 1, 437 1, 438 1, 439 1, 440 1, 441 1, 442 1, 443 1, 444 1, 445 1, 446 1, 447 1, 448 1, 449 1, 450 1, 451 1, 452 1, 453 1, 454 1, 455 1, 456 1, 457 1, 458 1, 459 1, 460 1, 461 1, 462 1, 463 1, 464 1, 465 1, 466 1, 467 1, 468 1, 469 1, 470 1, 471 1, 472 1, 473 1, 474 1, 475 1, 476 1, 477 1, 478 1, 479 1, 480 1, 481 1, 482 1, 483 1, 484 1, 485 1, 486 1, 487 1, 488 1, 489 1, 490 1, 491 1, 492 1, 493 1, 494 1, 495 1, 496 1, 497 1, 498 1, 499 1, 500 1
ENGIN 251 17
ENGL A82 8, A9u 3, B61 24, B90 24, C80 13, D61 28, D67 17, E61 5, E80 4, F81 2, F90 6, G61 27, H61 5, 125 1 21, 4 15, 5 14, 8 24, 9 9, 10 21, 12 12, 13 24, 14,15 3, 16 5, 17 17, 126 1 2, 3 8, 4 9, 5 8, 141 2 3, 5 8, 152 1 2, 153 4, 161 2 171 2 3, 5 9, 201 2, 203 1 2, 221 2 3, 4 5, 6 7, 8 1, 11 12, 21 24, 225 236 241 1 2, 251 1
ECON 125 1 11, 13 24, 25 36, 37 126 127 201 1 3, 2 24, 3 7, 4 22
EDUC E05 14, E08 27, E72 15, E35 9, 226 10, 251 1 24, 6 10, 8,9 26, 10, 12 7, 15 264 28, 277 10, 291 2, 309 1 12, 312 2 12, 355 5, 365 13, 8 26, 9 10, 10 11, 11 12, 12 21, 13 25, 14 16, 15 18, 16 10, 17 22, 18 1, 19 11, 20 16, 21 1, 22 1, 23 1, 24 1, 25 1, 26 1, 27 1, 28 1, 29 1, 30 1, 31 1, 32 1, 33 1, 34 1, 35 1, 36 1, 37 1, 38 1, 39 1, 40 1, 41 1, 42 1, 43 1, 44 1, 45 1, 46 1, 47 1, 48 1, 49 1, 50 1, 51 1, 52 1, 53 1, 54 1, 55 1, 56 1, 57 1, 58 1, 59 1, 60 1, 61 1, 62 1, 63 1, 64 1, 65 1, 66 1, 67 1, 68 1, 69 1, 70 1, 71 1, 72 1, 73 1, 74 1, 75 1, 76 1, 77 1, 78 1, 79 1, 80 1, 81 1, 82 1, 83 1, 84 1, 85 1, 86 1, 87 1, 88 1, 89 1, 90 1, 91 1, 92 1, 93 1, 94 1, 95 1, 96 1, 97 1, 98 1, 99 1, 100 1
ENVDES 271 1 18
EVNSCI 201 17
FDSCI 361 2
FD&A E 281 17
FISH 265 17
FOREST 272 27, 223 9, 225 6, 299 1, 235 18
FRENCH 100 1, 123 1, 130 1, 132 1, 142 1,2 23, 3 15, 4 23, 5 15, 144 1 5, 2 27, 4,5 23, 6 1, 144 7 28, 145 11, 146 26, 147 14, 161 1,2 4, 171 1, 172 1, 261 27, 263 22, 340 16, 345 11, 349 6, 355 14, 359 25
GB FIN 201 1 9, 2,3 18, 4,5 7, 6,7 7, 8 7, 202 10, 204 1, 205 8, 210 1 7, 2 13, 220 4, 230 25, 231 26, 234 3, GENBUS 240 26, 241 20, 250 21, 259 13, 270 1,2 4, 3 2, 272 9, 274 15, GEOG 135 13, 260 6
GEOL 888 15, C88 16, 105 7, 106 10, 108 21, 192 22, 230 8, 240 24, 250 2, GERMAN 110 2, 112 25, 120 25, 130 8, 132 2, 138 4, 140 28, 142 9, 148 5, 161 24, 251 8, 257 17, 264 27, 267 3, 279 1 9, 280 19, 285 23, 291 16, 292 1 20, 293 11, 298 1 15, 299 1 26, 2 26, 3 25, 4 25, 5 25, 6 25, 7 25, 8 25, 9 25, 10 25, 11 25, 12 25, 13 25, 14 25, 15 25, 16 25, 17 25, 18 25, 19 25, 20 25, 21 25, 22 25, 23 25, 24 25, 25 25, 26 25, 27 25, 28 25, 29 25, 30 25, 31 25, 32 25, 33 25, 34 25, 35 40 25, 151 2, 200 8, 202 18, 205 16, 207 24, 210 21, 214 6, 220 7, 221 6, 230 2, 231 9
GOVT 100 13 24 23, 25 36 23, 38 23, 150 1 12 18, 13 14, 160 1 9, 2 26, 3 23, 219 25, 220 1, 222 13, 236 14, 237 9, 240 27, 241 16, 242 1, 243 1, 244 1, 245 1, 246 1, 247 1, 248 1, 249 1, 250 1, 251 1, 252 1, 253 1, 254 1, 255 1, 256 1, 257 1, 258 1, 259 1, 260 1, 261 1, 262 1, 263 1, 264 1, 265 1, 266 1, 267 1, 268 1, 269 1, 270 1, 271 1, 272 1, 273 1, 274 1, 275 1, 276 1, 277 1, 278 1, 279 1, 280 1, 281 1, 282 1, 283 1, 284 1, 285 1, 286 1, 287 1, 288 1, 289 1, 290 1, 291 1, 292 1, 293 1, 294 1, 295 1, 296 1, 297 1, 298 1, 299 1, 300 1, 301 1, 302 1, 303 1, 304 1, 305 1, 306 1, 307 1, 308 1, 309 1, 310 1, 311 1, 312 1, 313 1, 314 1, 315 1, 316 1, 317 1, 318 1, 319 1, 320 1, 321 1, 322 1, 323 1, 324 1, 325 1, 326 1, 327 1, 328 1, 329 1, 330 1, 331 1, 332 1, 333 1, 334 1, 335 1, 336 1, 337 1, 338 1, 339 1, 340 1, 341 1, 342 1, 343 1, 344 1, 345 1, 346 1, 347 1, 348 1, 349 1, 350 1, 351 1, 352 1, 353 1, 354 1, 355 1, 356 1, 357 1, 358 1, 359 1, 360 1, 361 1, 362 1, 363 1, 364 1, 365 1, 366 1, 367 1, 368 1, 369 1, 370 1, 371 1, 372 1, 373 1, 374 1, 375 1, 376 1, 377 1, 378 1, 379 1, 380 1, 381 1, 382 1, 383 1, 384 1, 385 1, 386 1, 387 1, 388 1, 389 1, 390 1, 391 1, 392 1, 393 1, 394 1, 395 1, 396 1, 397 1, 398 1, 399 1, 400 1, 401 1, 402 1, 403 1, 404 1, 405 1, 406 1, 407 1, 408 1, 409 1, 410 1, 411 1, 412 1, 413 1, 414 1, 415 1, 416 1, 417 1, 418 1, 419 1, 420 1, 421 1, 422 1, 423 1, 424 1, 425 1, 426 1, 427 1, 428 1, 429 1, 430 1, 431 1, 432 1, 433 1, 434 1, 435 1, 436 1, 437 1, 438 1, 439 1, 440 1, 441 1, 442 1, 443 1, 444 1, 445 1, 446 1, 447 1, 448 1, 449 1, 450 1, 451 1, 452 1, 453 1, 454 1, 455 1, 456 1, 457 1, 458 1, 459 1, 460 1, 461 1, 462 1, 463 1, 464 1, 465 1, 466 1, 467 1, 468 1, 469 1, 470 1, 471 1, 472 1, 473 1, 474 1, 475 1, 476 1, 477 1, 478 1, 479 1, 480 1, 481 1, 482 1, 483 1, 484 1, 485 1, 486 1, 487 1, 488 1, 489 1, 490 1, 491 1, 492 1, 493 1, 494 1, 495 1, 496 1, 497 1, 498 1, 499 1, 500 1
HIST 100 1 3 21, 4,7 22, 8 11 26, 12 17 8, 110 15, 115 16, 120 1 3 2, 4,6 11, 140 1 6 25, 7 12 4, 13 15 2, 16 19 9, 150 1 6 4, 8 13 3, 14 22 3, 29 34 3, 35 40 25, 151 2, 200 8, 202 18, 205 16, 207 24, 210 21, 214 6, 220 7, 221 6, 230 2, 231 9
HT LADM 102 12, 285 23
HUMDEV 270 22, 350 7, 370 28, 380 19, 387 5
I E 151 18, 261 16, 272 26, 341 19
ITAL 126 19, 130 20, 146 25, 163 28, 200 25, 220 8, 246 9, 264 24, 265 21, 267 6, 282 10, 283 14, 284 11, 287 1, 295 27, 308 14, 309 19, 310 15, 311 16, 312 1, 313 1, 314 1, 315 1, 316 1, 317 1, 318 1, 319 1, 320 1, 321 1, 322 1, 323 1, 324 1, 325 1, 326 1, 327 1, 328 1, 329 1, 330 1, 331 1, 332 1, 333 1, 334 1, 335 1, 336 1, 337 1, 338 1, 339 1, 340 1, 341 1, 342 1, 343 1, 344 1, 345 1, 346 1, 347 1, 348 1, 349 1, 350 1, 351 1, 352 1, 353 1, 354 1, 355 1, 356 1, 357 1, 358 1, 359 1, 360 1, 361 1, 362 1, 363 1, 364 1, 365 1, 366 1, 367 1, 368 1, 369 1, 370 1, 371 1, 372 1, 373 1, 374 1, 375 1, 376 1, 377 1, 378 1, 379 1, 380 1, 381 1, 382 1, 383 1, 384 1, 385 1, 386 1, 387 1, 388 1, 389 1, 390 1, 391 1, 392 1, 393 1, 394 1, 395 1, 396 1, 397 1, 398 1, 399 1, 400 1, 401 1, 402 1, 403 1, 404 1, 405 1, 406 1, 407 1, 408 1, 409 1, 410 1, 411 1, 412 1, 413 1, 414 1, 415 1, 416 1, 417 1, 418 1, 419 1, 420 1, 421 1, 422 1, 423 1, 424 1, 425 1, 426 1, 427 1, 428 1, 429 1, 430 1, 431 1, 432 1, 433 1, 434 1, 435 1, 436 1, 437 1, 438 1, 439 1, 440 1, 441 1, 442 1, 443 1, 444 1, 445 1, 446 1, 447 1, 448 1, 449 1, 450 1, 451 1, 452 1, 453 1, 454 1, 455 1, 456 1, 457 1, 458 1, 459 1, 460 1, 461 1, 462 1, 463 1, 464 1, 465 1, 466 1, 467 1, 468 1, 469 1, 470 1, 471 1, 472 1, 473 1, 474 1, 475 1, 476 1, 477 1, 478 1, 479 1, 480 1, 481 1, 482 1, 483 1, 484 1, 485 1, 486 1, 487 1, 488 1, 489 1, 490 1, 491 1, 492 1, 493 1, 494 1, 495 1, 496 1, 497 1, 498 1, 499 1, 500 1
LAT AM 392 25
LATIN 140 18
M&A E 135 18, 137 1, 144 12, 145 15, 163 28, 200 25, 220 8, 246 9, 264 24, 265 21, 267 6, 282 10, 283 14, 284 11, 287 1, 295 27, 308 14, 309 19, 310 15, 311 16, 312 1, 313 1, 314 1, 315 1, 316 1, 317 1, 318 1, 319 1, 320 1, 321 1, 322 1, 323 1, 324 1, 325 1, 326 1, 327 1, 328 1, 329 1, 330 1, 331 1, 332 1, 333 1, 334 1, 335 1, 336 1, 337 1, 338 1, 339 1, 340 1, 341 1, 342 1, 343 1, 344 1, 345 1, 346 1, 347 1, 348 1, 349 1, 350 1, 351 1, 352 1, 353 1, 354 1, 355 1, 356 1, 357 1, 358 1, 359 1, 360 1, 361 1, 362 1, 363 1, 364 1, 365 1, 366 1, 367 1, 368 1, 369 1, 370 1, 371 1, 372 1, 373 1, 374 1, 375 1, 376 1, 377 1, 378 1, 379 1, 380 1, 381 1, 382 1, 383 1, 384 1, 385 1, 386 1, 387 1, 388 1, 389 1, 390 1, 391 1, 392 1, 393 1, 394 1, 395 1, 396 1, 397 1, 398 1, 399 1, 400 1, 401 1, 402 1, 403 1, 404 1, 405 1, 406 1, 407 1, 408 1, 409 1, 410 1, 411 1, 412 1, 413 1, 414 1, 415 1, 416 1, 417 1, 418 1, 419 1, 420 1, 421 1, 422 1, 423 1, 424 1, 425 1, 426 1, 427 1, 428 1, 429 1, 430 1, 431 1, 432 1, 433 1, 434 1, 435 1, 436 1, 437 1, 438 1, 439 1, 440 1, 441 1, 442 1, 443 1, 444 1, 445 1, 446 1, 447 1, 448 1, 449 1, 450 1, 451 1, 452 1, 453 1, 454 1, 455 1, 456 1, 457 1, 458 1, 459 1, 460 1, 461 1, 462 1, 463 1, 464 1, 465 1, 466 1, 467 1, 468 1, 469 1, 470 1, 471 1, 472 1, 473 1, 474 1, 475 1, 476 1, 477 1, 478 1, 479 1, 480 1, 481 1, 482 1, 483 1, 484 1, 485 1, 486 1, 487 1, 488 1, 489 1, 490 1, 491 1, 492 1, 493 1, 494 1, 495 1, 496 1, 497 1, 498 1, 499 1, 500 1
MARSCI 725 5
MATH 021 19, 100 1 2 20, 3,7 15, 10,12 27, 110 20, 113 19, 115 27, 116 19, 117 20, 118 19, 119 20, 121 19, 122 20, 123 1 15 20, 16 21, 17 18 20, 19 21, 20,21 20, 22 21, 23 25 20, 26 21, 27 28 20, 29 21, 30 33 20, 34 36 21, 124 9, 125 9
MFE 275 8
MGT 201 1 8 22, 9 14 8, 15 16 22, 214 28, 231 5, 247 26, 342 20, 344 13, 371 1 3, 2 17, 3 24, 4 8, 391 14, 392 5, 402 1 4, 403 1 4, 404 1 4, 405 1 4, 406 1 4, 407 1 4, 408 1 4, 409 1 4, 410 1 4, 411 1 4, 412 1 4, 413 1 4, 414 1 4, 415 1 4, 416 1 4, 417 1 4, 418 1 4, 419 1 4, 420 1 4, 421 1 4, 422 1 4, 423 1 4, 424 1 4, 425 1 4, 426 1 4, 427 1 4, 428 1 4, 429 1 4, 430 1 4, 431 1 4, 432 1 4, 433 1 4, 434 1 4, 435 1 4, 436 1 4, 437 1 4, 438 1 4, 439 1 4, 440 1 4, 441 1 4, 442 1 4, 443 1 4, 444 1 4, 445 1 4, 446 1 4, 447 1 4, 448 1 4, 449 1 4, 450 1 4, 451 1 4, 452 1 4, 453 1 4, 454 1 4, 455 1 4, 456 1 4, 457 1 4, 458 1 4, 459 1 4, 460 1 4, 461 1 4, 462 1 4, 463 1 4, 464 1 4, 465 1 4, 466 1 4, 467 1 4, 468 1 4, 469 1 4, 470 1 4, 471 1 4, 472 1 4, 473 1 4, 474 1 4, 475 1 4, 476 1 4, 477 1 4, 478 1 4, 479 1 4, 480 1 4, 481 1 4, 482 1 4, 483 1 4, 484 1 4, 485 1 4, 486 1 4, 487 1 4, 488 1 4, 489 1 4, 490 1 4, 491 1 4, 492 1 4, 493 1 4, 494 1 4, 495 1 4, 496 1 4, 497 1 4, 498 1 4, 499 1 4, 500 1
MICBIO 140 1 15, 3 11, 142 24, 250 26, 310 15, 311 16, 312 1, 313 1, 314 1, 315 1, 316 1, 317 1, 318 1, 319 1, 320 1, 321 1, 322 1, 323 1, 324 1, 325 1, 326 1, 327 1, 328 1, 329 1, 330 1, 331 1, 332 1, 333 1, 334 1, 335 1, 336 1, 337 1, 338 1, 339 1, 340 1, 341 1, 342 1, 343 1, 344 1, 345 1, 346 1, 347 1, 348 1, 349 1, 350 1, 351 1, 352 1, 353 1, 354 1, 355 1, 356 1, 357 1, 358 1, 359 1, 360 1, 361 1, 362 1, 363 1, 364 1, 365 1, 366 1, 367 1, 368 1, 369 1, 370 1, 371 1, 372 1, 373 1, 374 1, 375 1, 376 1, 377 1, 378 1, 379 1, 380 1, 381 1, 382 1, 383 1, 384 1, 385 1, 386 1, 387 1, 388 1, 389 1, 390 1, 391 1, 392 1, 393 1, 394 1, 395 1, 396 1, 397 1, 398 1, 399 1, 400 1, 401 1, 402 1, 403 1, 404 1, 405 1, 406 1, 407 1, 408 1, 409 1, 410 1, 411 1, 412 1, 413 1, 414 1, 415 1, 416 1, 417 1, 418 1, 419 1, 420 1, 421 1, 422 1, 423 1, 424 1, 425 1, 426 1, 427 1, 428 1, 429 1, 430 1, 431 1, 432 1, 433 1, 434 1, 435 1, 436 1, 437 1, 438 1, 439 1, 440 1, 441 1, 442 1, 443 1, 444 1, 445 1, 446 1, 447 1, 448 1, 449 1, 450 1, 451 1, 452 1, 453 1, 454 1, 455 1, 456 1, 457 1, 458 1, 459 1, 460 1, 461 1, 462 1, 463 1, 464 1, 465 1, 466 1, 467 1, 468 1, 469 1, 470 1, 471 1, 472 1, 473 1, 474 1, 475 1, 476 1, 477 1, 478 1, 479 1, 480 1, 481 1, 482 1, 483 1, 484 1, 485 1, 486 1, 487 1, 488 1, 489 1, 490 1, 491 1, 492 1, 493 1, 494 1, 495 1, 496 1, 497 1, 498 1, 499 1, 500 1
MKTG 201 1 6, 7 12, 10 141 12, 161 19, 162 13, 163 14, 172 21, 181 10, 183 23, 200 16, 205 15, 206 5, 207 18, 208 1, 209 1, 210 1 27, 2 10, 3 16, 212 19, 214 26, 216 1 20, 2 3, 3 1, 4 1, 221 6, 222 1 13, 2 15, 223 11, 237 8, 238 1, 239 1, 240 1, 241 1, 242 1, 243 1, 244 1, 245 1, 246 1, 247 1, 248 1, 249 1, 250 1, 251 1, 252 1, 253 1, 254 1, 255 1, 256 1 2, 31 39 25, 257 2 9, 258 1 2, 259 16, 260 25, 261 2, 262 1 11, 263 1 11, 2 21, 264 1 11, 2 21, 265 27, 266 16, 267 1 13, 268 1 13, 269 1 13, 270 1 13, 271 20, 272 11, 273 4, 274 1 6, 275 4, 276 1 6, 277 18, 278 1 3 26, 4 5 19, 279 1 3, 280 1 2, 6 381, 281 1 25, 282 1 7, 283 10, 284 1 2, 285 1 3, 2 19, 286 1 2 27, 287 2 18, 288 1 3 23, 289 1 3 23, 290 1 3 23, 291 1 3 23, 292 1 3 23, 293 1 3 23, 294 1 3 23, 295 1 3 23, 296 1 3 23, 297 1 3 23, 298 1 3 23, 299 1 3 23, 300 1 3 23, 301 1 3 23, 302 1 3 23, 303 1 3 23, 304 1 3 23, 305 2 15, 306 1 3 23, 307 1 3 23, 308 1 3 23, 309 1 3 23, 310 1 3 23, 311 1 3 23, 312 1 3 23, 313 1 3 23, 314 1 3 23, 315 1 3 23, 316 1 3 23, 317 1 3 23, 318 1 3 23, 319 1 3 23, 320 1 3 23, 321 1 3 23, 322 1 3 23, 323 1 3 23, 324 1 3 23, 325 1 3 23, 326 1 3 23, 327 1 3 23, 328 1 3 23, 329 1 3 23, 330 1 3 23, 331 1 3 23, 332 1 3 23, 333 1 3 23, 334 1 3 23, 335 1 3 23, 336 1 3 23, 337 1 3 23, 338 1 3 23, 339 1 3 23, 340 1 3 23, 341 1 3 23, 342 1 3 23, 343 1 3 23, 344 1 3 23, 345 1 3 23, 346 1 3 23, 347 1 3 23, 348 1 3 23, 349 1 3 23, 350 1 3 23, 351 1 3 23, 352 1 3 23, 353 1 3 23, 354 1 3 23, 355 1 3 23, 356 1 3 23, 357 1 3 23, 358 1 3 23, 359 1 3 23, 360 1 3 23, 361 1 3 23, 362 1 3 23, 363 1 3 23, 364 1 3 23, 365 1 3 23, 366 1 3 23, 367 1 3 23, 368 1 3 23, 369 1 3 23, 370 1 3 23, 371 1 3 23, 372 1 3 23, 373 1 3 23, 374 1 3 23, 375 1 3 23, 376 1 3 23, 377 1 3 23, 378 1 3 23, 379 1 3 23, 380 1 3 23, 381 1 3 23, 382 1 3 23, 383 1 3 23, 384 1 3 23, 385 1 3 23, 386 1 3 23, 387 1 3 23, 388 1 3 23, 389 1 3 23, 390 1 3 23, 391 1 3 23, 392 1 3 23, 393 1 3 23, 394 1 3 23, 395 1 3 23, 396 1 3 23, 397 1 3 23, 398 1 3 23, 399 1 3 23, 400 1 3 23, 401 1 3 23, 402 1 3 23, 403 1 3 23, 404 1 3 23, 405 1 3 23, 406 1 3 23, 407 1 3 23, 408 1 3 23, 409 1 3 23, 410 1 3 23, 411 1 3 23, 412 1 3 23, 413 1 3 23, 414 1 3 23, 415 1 3 23, 416 1 3 23, 417 1 3 23, 418 1 3 23, 419 1 3 23, 420 1 3 23, 421 1 3 23, 422 1 3 23, 423 1 3 23, 424 1 3 23, 425 1 3 23, 426 1 3 23, 427 1 3 23, 428 1 3 23, 429 1 3 23, 430 1 3 23, 431 1 3 23, 432 1 3 23, 433 1 3 23, 434 1 3 23, 435 1 3 23, 436 1 3 23, 437 1 3 23, 438 1 3 23, 439 1 3 23, 440 1 3 23, 441 1 3 23, 442 1 3 23, 443 1 3 23, 444 1 3 23, 445 1 3 23, 446 1 3 23, 447 1 3 23, 448 1 3 23, 449 1 3 23, 450 1 3 23, 451 1 3 23, 452 1 3 23, 453 1 3 23, 454 1 3 23, 455 1 3 23, 456 1 3 23, 457 1 3 23, 458 1 3 23, 459 1 3 23, 460 1 3 23, 461 1 3 23, 462 1 3 23, 463 1 3 23, 464 1 3 23, 465 1 3 23, 466 1 3 23, 467 1 3 23, 468 1 3 23, 469 1 3 23, 470 1 3 23, 471 1 3 23, 472 1 3 23, 473 1 3 23, 474 1 3 23, 475 1 3 23, 476 1 3 23, 477 1 3 23, 478 1 3 23, 479 1 3 23, 480 1 3 23, 481 1 3 23, 482 1 3 23, 483 1 3 23, 484 1 3 23, 485 1 3 23, 486 1 3 23, 487 1 3 23, 488 1 3 23, 489 1 3 23, 490 1 3 23, 491 1 3 23, 492 1 3 23, 493 1 3 23, 494 1 3 23, 495 1 3 23, 496 1 3 23, 497 1 3 23, 498 1 3 23, 499 1 3 23, 500 1
MUSIC 101 1 3, 2 25, 111 4, 113 24, 201 7, 244 23, 247 17, 260 25, 262 12, 265 26, 363 3, 364 4, 127 1 27, 2 23, 130 17, 141 14, 156 27, 373 18, 3 17, 200 28, 205 21, 230 21, 235 19, 255 17, 260 25, 262 12, 265 26, 275 4, 280 25, 282 5, 292 7, 2 6, 283 10, 285 12, 286 16, 287 11, 288 13, 289 13, 290 13, 291 13, 292 13, 293 13, 294 13, 295 13, 296 13, 297 13, 298 13, 299 13, 300 13, 301 13, 302 13, 303 13, 304 13, 305 13, 306 13, 307 13, 308 13, 309 13, 310 13, 311 13, 312 13, 313 13, 314 13, 315 13, 316 13, 317 13, 318 13, 319 13, 320 13, 321 13, 322 13, 323 13, 324 13, 325 13, 326 13, 327 13, 328 13, 329 13, 330 13, 331 13, 332 13, 333 13, 334 13, 335 13, 336 13, 337 13, 338 13, 339 13, 340 13, 341 13, 342 13, 343 13, 344 13, 345 13, 346 13, 347 13, 348 13, 349 13, 350 13, 351 13, 352 13, 353 13, 354 13, 355 13, 356 13, 357 13, 358 13, 359 13, 360 13, 361 13, 362

Philosophy Of Eating

By PETER ROYAL

The words bussing and macrobiotic have taken on a new meaning at the Hatch.

Bussing is the act of cleaning off the table after customers have finished eating. Edward Rudner, a member of the Student Union Governing Board suggested the idea of self-bussing in the Hatch, to cut down on operating costs.

Self-bussing will not only save money, it will make the Hatch a more appetizing place to eat, he said. There are four bussing stations throughout the Hatch. Each has been decorated by two students from the Campus Center Advertising Department, Christin Couture and Sno White.

Macrobiotic is a philosophy of eating, involving a balanced food intake. James Bron and Alan Peakes, graduate students, and Neil Milden an undergraduate, cook, serve, and prepare all the food served in the line, newly begun in the Hatch.

"Eating should be nearly a spiritual act," says Bron the head chef. This can be explained in a flyer on macrobiotic food soon to be distributed in the Hatch.

The menu will be expanded to provide more variety for the customer. The highest price on the menu so far has been 75¢ with 20 the lowest. A selection of excellent vegetable sandwiches is offered, with each sandwich costing 35¢.

The macrobiotic line is open Monday to Friday, 11:30 a.m. to 2:00 p.m.

The crazy dancing lady trying a new medium of expression in the Hatch? Students trying to liven up the Hatch with a mod look as was erroneously reported in the MDC on Nov. 18th? No, just Christin Couture, artist in residence at Campus Center Food Services, painting a Hatch pole to make one of the two self bussing statings at that fine eating establishment more visible. (MDC photo by Steve Schmidt)

USSR Blames War On Pakistan

MOSCOW (AP) - The Soviet Union declared yesterday war between India and Pakistan poses a threat to its security and laid "the grave responsibliity" for the fighting on Pakistan.

The Russian declaration came in an authoritative statement carried nationwide by Tass, the government news agency. Such statements fall just short of an official Soviet government announcement.

"The Soviet Union cannot remain indifferent to the developments, considering also the circumstance that they are taking place in direct proximity to the USSR's borders, and, therefore, involve the interests of its security," Tass said.

The statement also warned "the governments of all countries" to stay out of the conflict since any outside involvement would cause a "further aggravation" of the war.

Tass did not name any particular nation, but evidently it was referring to Communist China and those countries that might consider involvement through the United Nations.

China is a strong ally of Pakistan, while Moscow has lined up with India and the East Pakistani rebel movement underlying the crisis.

The Soviet statement did not call for a halt to the hostilities, nor did it clearly advance any proposals that would lead to an end to the fighting. It placed all blame for the war on the government of Pakistan's President Agha Mohammed Yahya Khan.

Chanukah and Christmas are around the corner.

Discount Sales
is offering extra low prices on all our merchandise.

We are offering the greatest savings in the area on watches and diamond rings. Engagement rings in all shapes sizes and quality, in the setting of your choice.

For example, a diamond
Normally $200.50 — Discount Sales Price $130.
$500.00 — $330.
$800.00 — $550.
$1000.00 — $700.

Similar savings on Diamonds up to $10,000.00
Most brand name watches 15% - 40% off.

Plus save-save-save on products by Panasonic

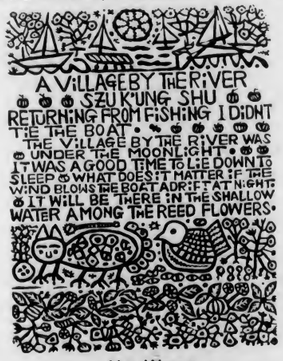
RCA
Zenith
Westinghouse
Sunbeam
Norelco
Smith-Corona
Royal Typewriters
Luggage
Lady Clairol
Shick
Remington
Presto
Waltham Watches
Timex
Jules Furgensen
Yamaha Instruments
Emerson Radio-T.V.
EurekaVaccum Cleaners
Proctor - Silex
G.E. Appliances
New & Used Furniture & Appliances for your entire home.

PANASONIC SPECIAL

SC-777 — Reg. $389.95 — NOW $331.74

SC-555A — Reg. $249.95 — NOW $217.98



AN-122 "The Perry" — Reg. $89.88 — NOW $79.95

AN-76 "The Northbrook" — Reg. $109.88 — NOW $99.00

Similar savings on all panasonic equipment
Discount Sales
wishes all our friends the best of seasons greetings

DISCOUNT SALES 549-3930
call Monday thru Thursday 7:00 p.m. to midnight.

AUTOGRAPH PARTY
for
Wang Hui-Ming
of the University of Massachusetts Art. Dept.

Mr. Wang
will autograph copies of his latest book
"The Boat United And Other Poems" at the University Store
on Tuesday, Dec. 7, 1971
11:00 a.m.-1:00 p.m.

WMUA

TONIGHT ON 91.1 FM:
7:00 pm EVENING NEWS-a half hour summary of the day's events plus sports and weather.
7:30 pm CAMPUS WEEK IN REVIEW-a magazine of the past week's events.
8:00 pm UJAMAA DRUM-the staff of Black Mass Communications Project prepare this three hour black program with jazz, soul, poetry readings, commentary and news for the black community.
11:00 pm LATE NIGHT NEWS-another half hour report with a five minute update at 11:25.
11:30 pm THE ROD HANSON SHOW-good music til 3:00 am. Rock, Jazz, and other good sounds are featured.

Learn to Drive
AMHERST AUTO SCHOOL
34 Main Street
256-6066

An exhibition of student work will open tonight in the Student Union Art Gallery. The show will begin with two films at 7 p.m. in rooms 804 and 808 of the Campus Center, one on Robert Rauschenburg and one on Jim Dime.

The group will then move to the Student Union Art Gallery to view the student work.

The show is sponsored by the Student Art Association as the first of a series of student work. All four studios: ceramics, painting, print making and sculpture will be represented.

The show is the culmination of two running processes, the experience of setting up an exhibition, as well as the visual investigations on display. The show will run until December 21st. (MDC photo by Gib Fullerton)

New Health Service Transportation Schedule

Starting today (Monday) the Health Service vehicle will stop at three areas throughout the day for those students needing transportation to and from the infirmary.

Because of the time requirements imposed upon the Health Service vehicle by the new schedule, it will no longer wait five minutes at each stop. In other words, you have to be there when the transportation arrives. However, if the driver sees you coming he will wait.

Orchard Hill-Depart-8:40, 10:40, 1:40, 2:40, 3:40.

Northeast-from Johnson House-Depart-8:10, 9:10, 10:10, 1:10, 2:10, 3:10.

Southwest-from Kennedy-Depart-7:55, 8:25, 8:55, 9:25, 9:55, 10:25, 10:55, 12:55, 1:25, 1:55, 2:25, 2:55, 3:25.

The Health Service vehicle will arrive at the Infirmary five minutes after it leaves each stop.

From the infirmary it will leave for Orchard Hill at 8:45, 9:45 etc.
Northeast at 8:15, 9:15 etc.
Southwest at 8:00, 8:30, 9:00, 9:30 etc.
Schedules will be posted.

To Avoid Getting A Ticket

The Amherst Police Department has issued a warning prohibiting students and visitors of UMass to park their cars on city streets from 6 PM to 7 AM.

To avoid a ticket or towing, visitors on campus should park in the Campus Center Garage or one of the parking lots. Students who cannot park in their assigned lot because it is full should park in one of the larger lots.

Getting Engaged?
VERY LOW PRICES ON DIAMONDS
Christmas Specials
Call Richard Amoroso 6-4300 anytime
In Boston call (617) 542-2226

MDC CLASSIFIED

AUTOS FOR SALE

1963 Chevy Impala V8, 283, automatic, 4 good tires, 2 new snows, good condition, $250. Call 549-6948 anytime. tf12-10

'68 VW Bug dk. blue, radio, sunroof, ex. condition, ask $1100. Call 546-7082 or 584-0063. tf12-8

'70 VW sunroof, radio & heater, exc. running cond., asking $1295. Call 549-6142. tf12-10

69 Firebird, perfect condition. 37,000 miles, vinyl roof, automatic, 350, V8, good tires. $1900 or offer. Call Don, 253-2770. tf12-8

65 Volkswagen Bug, good condition, new engine, generator, brakes, $500. Call Tom between 4 and 6 at 253-5345. tf12-8

1971 Toyota Mark II, 2dr., 1900 cc eng., 110 h.p., 4 speed, std., AM/FM radio, 5 good tires & 2 new snows, 12000 mi. Call evenings 549-4024. tf12-7

1965 Corvair Monza, 4 speed, AM-FM radio, good condition, no rot, good tires, new exhaust and clutch, $150. 253-5344. tf12-7

70 cyclone G.T., auto. trans., p. steering, P. brakes, 351, 4bbl., snow tires, incl., exc. condition, low mi. Call 6-7132. tf12-7

64 Ford Econoline, good engine, 74,000 mi. Best offer. Lenny 546-5388. tf12-7

FOR SALE

Sony 230 portable open-reel stereo tape rec. w/microphone phono/tape/tuner sel., headphone plug-in. Tel 256-8483. 12-6

Kowa Setrz SLR Camera 135, 85, 35 mm lens, original cases, books & boxes. New $370, asking $200, or best offer. Call John 546-7487. tf12-10

'65 Chevy Vau, automatic trans., heater, good condition asking $495. Call 584-5839 after 6 p.m. tf12-10

Kastle CPMTI Slaiom Skis 205 cm. Just back from factory with bindings $100. Call Dave 6-9077, $185 new. tf12-9

Graduating Sr. selling SCM typewriter, 4 yrs. old, paid $90 new, asking $25. Call Jim after sup. 256-8491. tf12-7

Roberts x300 tape deck, 1 yr old, 30-20000 flat SND on/W, SND auto. rev., 3 motors, 4 heads, remote cont. Cost $830, sell $295. 253-9587. tf12-10

Gibson 335, early 60's, perfect cond., $300. Also Fender super-reverb amp $200. Call Steve 546-6748. tf12-8

Upright piano, excel. condtn. Best off. 549-6037. tf12-6

Men's suede fringe vest size large; men's ski boots size 11, $15; double burner hot plate. Call Mike 256-6408 leave mess. tf12-6

Dunham Hiking Boots. Women's size 8. New and never used, too suede. Call 549-6514. tf12-6

Fender Bandmaster speakers & cabinet, Gibson amp with reverb. Other accessories also for stereo. Call Jack W. 545-0070. tf12-6

Tyrallan boots by Dunham, discount prices. Call 549-0074. tf12-6

New double burner hot plate. $15.00. Call 549-0074. tf12-8

Guitars! Estrada Classical, nylon strings, excellent condition, $65; Tles Co electric, new $50, will bargain. Call Tom 6-9065. tf12-6

Camera for sale Yashica a twin lens reflex with tripod, BC flash and bag. Asking $45. Cliff 228 Puffton Village 549-6537. Call after 6 p.m. tf12-6

National Ski Patrol belt, bandages, splints etc. Still intact. Used 4 times. Blue Navgahyde $10. Call Craig 586-2582. tf12-6

New and used cameras and photo equipment bought and sold. Lang's Photo 253-5148. tfsem

Kowa Setrz SLR Camera 135, 85, 35 mm lens, original cases, books, and boxes. New $370, asking $200 or best offer. Call John 546-7487. tf12-8

Sleeping bag $10, Baritone Ukelele $15. Call mornings 253-5820. tf12-7

Siamese cat, beautiful seal point, $20.00. Call 549-4074. tf12-6

X-Mas Time-Suede makes ideal gifts. I have suede, pants jackets, skirts, midi's and skins. Wholesale prices. Jon, 115 Chadbourne, 5-2640. tf12-7

Guitars: Martin, Yamaha, Aria. Harmony also Dulcimers and Autoharps. Find out what you want, then see me for better price. John 6-5401. tf12-7

PERSONAL

To the Summer Polar Bear (also known as The Phantom) congratulations! It's finally here, Happy 21st. Luv, The Little Imp. 12-6

Happy Birthday Seed. Love always, Stash. tf12-6

ROOMMATES WANTED

Responsible female roommate, own bedroom, $35/mo. & utilities. Soon until May or longer. Call 584-6708. tf12-10

F. rmmt. to share 2 bdrm. apt., fnsho, frplc, grg. 2 firs. of old hse. Dec. or Jan. Judy 13 Middle St., Hdly., 586-3784, $130 dp/mo. ht incl. tf12-6

Puffton Apt. needs 2 roommates in Jan. Call 549-0822 eves. tf12-6

Female roommate to share Townhouse apt., $76/mo. - own room. Call 256-6467 avail. Dec. 1. tf12-7

Woman and cat (spayed) need a room in house or apt. in Amherst area. Can afford up to $75. 00/month. Call 549-6514. tf12-6

I need a place for second semester. Own room preferred, male, over 21, 549-4570. tf12-7

Roommate wanted: available for second semester. Apt. two miles from campus. Call 256-8020 after 6 p.m. David. tf12-8

We don't discriminate 2F or 2M wanted for lg. bedroom w/bath in 3 bedroom Puffton Apt. rent 55/mo. 549-0057. tf12-0

SERVICES

Typing done with Olympia Elec. Typewriter. Paper supplied without charge, 50¢ per page. Call 549-1009 Presidential Apartment. tf12-7

Passports & grad school pictures-24 hr. service Lang's Photo 253-5148. tfsem

Amherst Audio services. Stereo components, tape decks for home or car. 197 No. Pleasant St. 256-8133. tf5-12

Grand opening, Mike's speed equipment, starts Wednesday. One case of Valvoline Oil, one Grant Steering Wheel Kit to be given away. Rt. 9, Hadley, 586-2950. tf12-7

Taking orders for handmade leather bags and things. Order now, get before Christmas. Reasonable prices. 549-6331. tf12-8

FOR RENT

One bedroom apt. in Puffton Village dishwasher, disposal, avail. Jan. 1. Take over lease. Please come to 270 Puffton and ask for Bill or Rob. tf12-6

1 bedroom in Colonial Village, available 1 Jan., 145/month includes utilities-call after 4, Tel 253-7430 or 256-8453. 12-6

Avail. now, 2 bedrm townhse apt., wwcpt., air cond, utilities, included, take over lease. Mt. Toby Apts., Call 253-3281 after 5:00. tf12-6

Available immediately, own room in 3 bedroom apt. in Puffton, $75/mo. Call 549-0880, keep trying please. tf12-8

6 bedrms., 2 baths, kitchen & rec. room in Hollyoke, 14 miles from U. of M. All util., ex. phone. Much Furn. $300 per month. Call 325-7003. tf12-8

HELP WANTED

People needed to attend and transcribe lectures for SES. Typing skills essential, shorthand helpful. Applications at Rm. 318 S.U. tf12-0

Need help with 4-yr-old, light housk, from Dec. 13 & 2 nd semester. Own transport. or live-in, nr. Amh. Cntr., ph. 253-5874. tf12-9

Live-in woman for infant care. Will prov. in return pvt. rm. cooking facil., semi-pvt. bath, living area furn., 2 1/2 mi. from camp. 549-1112. tf12-9

MOVIE

"Z"-ONE OF 1969's HEAVIEST FILMS-IN COLOR, SAT. DEC. 11. MAHAR AUD., 6:30-8:45-11:00. tf12-10

"Wholeearth Image Language" multi-projection film slide environments by Barry Schonhaut, Wed., Dec. 8 at 8 & 9:30 p.m. Thompson 106 50¢. tf12-8

WANTED

Flute - Clarinet - Sax - Jazz - Classical. Andy Flacks 655-9079. tf12-8

Band wanted to play the night of Dec. 18 for Beta Chi Christmas Party. Call Joe 549-0130 after 6 p.m. and give price. tf12-6

Wanted A or B Psych Research Paper, 10-15 pages, almost any topic. Will pay. Call Kathy 549-6596. tf12-6

Ride to Wisconsin X'mas vacation. Call Singh 6-9030. tf12-7

Folk Guitar: inexpensive for learning purposes. Call 6-9200 tf12-7

Traveling companion thru Europe for about 6 weeks in June. Female preferred. Call 253-9485 if interested. tf12-10

APT. WANTED

Puffton sublet wanted. 1-bedroom for second semester. 549-6570. tf12-0

APT. FOR RENT

2 bdrm apt in Belchertown, air cond., ww carpets, avail. Jan., $200 a month inc. utilities. Call 323-4450 after 6. tf12-10

MT. SUGARLOAF APTS. Avail. Jan 1, lg. 2 bdrm util. included, air-cond., pool $185. Call Skibiski Realtors 253-7222, eve. 253-2626. tf12-22

GARAGE FOR RENT

Garage for rent, store your classic, sports, or race car for the winter. Call Jeff at 253-7700 leave name & number. tf12-7

LAW SCHOOL

"Law School-Will I Make It? Can I Make It?" A new book by a recent law graduate for prospective law students. Examines how to prepare for law school; books to read; formulas based on admission studies to predict 1st year average. For copy send $2.95 to Kroos Press, Box 3709A, Milwaukee, Wis. 53217. tf12-0

TRAVEL

Ski the Alps-Jan 14-24 Chamoulx, France-air fare, hotels, discount lifts and lessons, last night in Paris. Contact Peggy 253-9647. tf12-23

Nassau-$149, from Boston & N.Y., hotel flight, transfers, 12/20-27, 12/23-29, 12/27-1/3 Ski-Australia-$325, 15 days, flight, hotel, meals, transfers, Insbruk, deluxe package. London-$187, flights in January. Call-Student Flights 584-1850. tf12-15

Crimson Travel offers low cost spring vacation trips to Bermuda and Nassau. For more info. call Rich Margil, 412 Dwight 545-0791. tf12-10

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES

Play music in a band? Interested in skiing? Combine the two in the greatest business opportunity yet! Needs solid musicians for winter. Dave 549-6679. tf1210

FOUND

Found: A quiet place to snack—"The Catalyst", Worcester Commons. 12-6

LOST

Missing a pink wallet. Cards are desperately needed. If found please leave at Campus Center Lost-Found or notify Claudia Reid. 5-2642. tf12-8

Anyone finding red wallet belonging to Marilyn Kennedy mail to 26 Main St., Amherst. ID's very important. tf12-8

JOBS

International Jobs -Europe, S. America, Asia, Aust., USA. Openings in all fields-Soc. Sci, Bus. Sci, Engineers, Ed. etc. Alaska Construction & Pipe Work. Earnings to $500 weekly. Summer or permanent.

Paid expenses, No nuses, travel. Complete current info- only $3. Money back guar. Write now! International Emp. Box 721-M516, Peabody Mass. 01960. tf1210

ENTERTAINMENT

Make your christmas party a success and call Stan at 546-6215. All area bands represented. tf12-8

TYPING

Typing-theses, dissertations, etc. Fast, accurate, experienced. Have Math and Chem. symbols. Call 253-2601. tf12-21

STUDENTS BOOK MATCHING

Register your book in S.U. Rm. 318. Every student with your course next semester will need your books save $ money, sell direct. tf-oem.

Notices

ALPHA ZETA
Lecture: The development of an Environment Ehic. Speaker: Dr. Carl Swanson Wed. at 8 p.m. in CCA.

BIBLE STUDY
Where did I come from? Why am I here? Where am I going? We'll answer these questions and more Monday nights 7:30-9 p.m., 904-908 CC. Bibles provided or bring your own. Free.

BOLTWOOD BUS
Thank your Senators--the UMass buses are back. Buses leave 6:05, from Whitmore, Mon.-Thurs. Let us know when you can't make it.

CEQ
Steering committee on Tuesday, tomorrow evening at 6:30 p.m. in the Student Acitivities area--usual place. Action program planning in order. Bring your commitment.

EAST PAKISTANI REFUGEES
Monday in CC 162 at 4 p.m.

ENGLISH MAJORS
There will be an EDUC meeting tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the student/faculty lounge in Bartlett Lobby. all English majors encouraged to attend.

HILLEL
Hanukah candles and menorahs are on sale in the Hillel office. Candles are 25¢, menorahs, 75¢.

NAIADS
Regular schedule of practices this week. Finale today at 4:45. Composition work cannot proceed without you.

MIRKWOOD
We are looking for new talent at the next Mirkwood Coffee house. All interested persons please contact Jim 6-6577.

OUTING CLUB
There will be a meeting tonight at 6:30 in CC 165. Upcoming trips. Christmas party, and Dec. 15 sale to be discussed.

PRE-SOCIAL WORK ADVISING
Advising for students interested in social work as a profession is available through the CASIAC office. Social workers from the University will be available to see students on an appointment basis. Interested students call 5-0974.

ROISTER DOISTERS
Important meeting Tuesday at 5 p.m. in CC 802 for anyone interested in working on Roister Doisters. Discussion of proposals will be held. All proposals must be submitted by Tuesday noon at 417 Machmer c/o David Cohen.

SENIOR
Come to the Senior committee meeting tonight at 7 p.m., CC 905-909.

SKI CLUB
Meeting tonight at 8 p.m. in Mahar Aud. Deposits for intersession trips taken. Everyone welcome.

STUDENTS FOR McGOVERN
There will be a meeting tonight at 8 p.m. in CC 175. All interested parties are invited.

SWEET CORN THEATRE WORKSHOP
Only two more workshops til Xmas. Tonight, free, Marks Meadow gym at 8 p.m. Bring wood and red things.

WOMEN'S COMMITTEE
Representatives of all Women's groups will be at a meeting to form a centralized agency. All interested women and men are welcome. Tonight at 6 p.m. in CC 168-170.

WMPIRG
A course will be given for modular credit next semester in the School of Ed. Students will be doing Public Interest research work. Anyone interested please 0. Regular Wed. meetings at 7 in 811-815. All welcome.

LOST
Black wallet in/around Campus Center. Keep money, but please return ID's, etc. No questions. Contact Brian at 527-6636 or return to lost and found.

1 Boston Bruins hat in SU Ballroom, Tuesday night at Dylan movie. Call Bill or Larry at 6-6170 eves.

One cameo mother-of-pearl ring. Somewhere around Franklin D.C. and Gorman. Please call 546-6515.

Would the person who removed a raincoat (white) from a chartered UMass bus several weeks ago, please contact Tom at 253-9542.

Did you pick up two people for the hockey game? Maybe you found my ski glove then--if so, please call Mike at 6-5771. Thanks.

FOUND
To the nice person who found my brown leather gloves last Mon. night in SU--thanks. Now, would money do in exchange? 6-7622.

"Selva" tights on stairs to Boyden. See matrons at WoPE.

Medium size, blonde cocker spaniel. Southampton license. Call 546-6991.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SYDNEY OMARR

The Aries woman often appears to be squinting or frowning. She is perceptive, an original thinker and independent. She often marries beneath her station in life. But the Aries woman ultimately overcomes obstacles and usually winds up in the winner's circle. These women are physically attracted to Leo men, often marry Librans and find that the Taurus male is good for them financially. Some famous Aries women include Bette Davis, Joan Crawford and Gloria Swanson.

*****

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Be ready for creative changes, including new starts. Status quo talks a beating. Your own style becomes more apparent and definite. Some may accuse you of being selfish, but they are envious.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Trust hunch about condition existing in home. One who is moody does want to talk and confide. Provide opening and face-saving device. You earn respect by giving, being receptive.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Accent on movement, changes, correspondence, dealing with neighbors and close relatives. Nothing is apt to remain the same. Obtain hint from Taurus message. Be flexible. You make ultimate gains.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Emphasis on money, practical affairs, how to build on a more solid foundation. Key is to be aware of fine print. Take nothing for granted. One who makes offer should be investigated.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You are appreciated, complimented and flattered. Be discriminating. Know what is real, what is mere fluff. Obtain valid hint from Gemini or Virgo individual. Some now are aiming at your weakness.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Practical measures help overcome apparent setback. You may not believe it, but efforts are appreciated. Jealous associate would like you to believe otherwise. Strive for harmony.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Some may pose as friends, but their motives may be less than pure. Know this and respond accordingly. Income through occupational efforts remains spotlighted. Protect earnings. Develop potential.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): More responsibility comes your way. this could be in form of promotion. Accept assignments, challenges. Rewards are due to multiply. Capricorn person plays prominent role. Don't shirk duty.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Appeal broadens. More persons become aware of efforts, talents. Aries person helps tear down barriers to progress. Be alert, positive. Keep lines of communication open and flowing. Write, advertise.

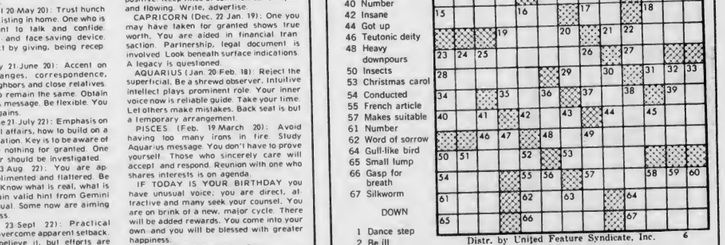
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): One you may have taken for granted shows true worth. You are aided in financial transaction. Partnership, legal document is involved. Look beneath surface indications. A legacy is questioned.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Reject the superficial. Be a shrewd observer. Intuitive intellect plays prominent role. Your inner voice now is reliable guide. Take your time. Let others make mistakes. Back seat is but a temporary arrangement.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Avoid having too many irons in fire. Study Aquarius message. You don't have to prove yourself. Those who sincerely care will accept and respond. Reunion with one who shares interests is on agenda.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have unusual voice; you are direct, attractive and many seek your counsel. You are on brink of a new, major cycle. There will be added rewards. You come into your own and you will be blessed with greater happiness.

Copyright 1971 Gen. Fea. Corp.



Crossword Puzzle

Answer to Friday's puzzle ↓

P	A	W		P	A	T	H		F	E	N	D
E	G	O		U	N	A	U		E	R	I	E
A	I	R		T	E	R	M	I	N	A	T	E
T	O	L	L	S		T	O	L	D
		D	O		P	A	R		E	T	A	H
H	A	S		M	A	R		T	R	A	C	E
O	R		S	E	T		P	A	S		E	A
L	I	M	I	T		T	O	P		A	S	P
E	D	I	T		R	I	D		A	N
		U	R	A	L		A	B	I	D	E
S	T	R	A	I	N	E	R	S		M	E	N
T	A	U	T		E	R	O	S		A	N	T
A	L	E	E		E	S	N	E		L	Y	E

ACROSS
1 Remunerated
5 Army meal
9 Weaken
12 Assistant
13 Leave out
14 Cravat
15 Inclined
17 Preposition
18 Mountain on Crete
19 Artificial alloy of gold
21 Pertaining to punishment
23 Frightens
27 Football position (abbr.)
28 Talk idly
29 Network
31 Resort
34 Faroe Islands whirlwind
35 Place
37 High mountain
39 Symbol for silver
40 Number
42 Insane
44 Got up
46 Teutonic deity
48 Heavy downpours
50 Insects
53 Christmas carol
54 Conducted
55 French article
57 Makes suitable
61 Number
62 Word of sorrow
64 Gull-like bird
65 Small lump
66 Gasp for breath
67 Silkworm

DOWN
1 Dance step
2 Be ill
3 Artificial language
4 Leaves
5 Pattern
6 Printer's measure
7 Pose for portrait
8 Cease
9 Pricks painfully
10 Opera by Verdi
11 Toll
16 High regard
20 Cry like cat
22 Spanish article
23 Blemish
24 Woody plant
25 Cooled lava
26 Ocean
30 Trumpeted loudly
32 Time gone by 33 Matures
36 Make lace
38 Bishop
41 Wanted
43 Man's nickname
45 Preposition
47 Sun god
49 Cook in oven
50 Outpouring
51 Girl's name
52 Strike
56 Guido's high note
58 Through
59 Prefix: three
60 Nahoor sheep
63 Indefinite article

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Do the dead return?
André Kole
knows!

NOW..YOUR CHOICE OF 5!
Showcase
Rt. 5-W. Spfld.
Cinemas 1-2-3-4-5
733-5131
MORE NEW SHOWS!
MORE NEW LOUNGER SEATS!
MORE NEW PARKING!!
MATINEES DAILY... POPULAR PRICES
Adults $1.50 Mon thru Fri Matts
1 Man in the Wilderness GP
2 Maid in Sweden X
3 French Connection R
4 Gone With The Wind G
5 200 Motels R
ACRES FREE PARKING
ROCKER LOUNGERS
CHARGE YOUR TICKETS

Frosh Romp Over Dartmouth

By STEVE FERBER

To gain support from a Curry Hicks Cage crowd is one thing, but for a freshmen squad to get a standing ovation upon breaking the 100-point barrier is quite another. And quite an ovation did the starting five freshmen receive as they fastbroke their way to a convincing 105-94 victory over the Dartmouth frosh, last Saturday night.

Most of the game seemed like one fast break after another, as the talented underclassmen from UMass chalked up an amazing total of 27 assists, led by guards Bill Endicott and Mike Flanagan with 10 and 8 respectively.

What had been a tight game for 12 of the first half minutes, blossomed into a 10 point lead, which was narrowed but never eliminated. And in their victory several questions were answered as to how good this brand's frosh squad was.

Against a somewhat weak St. Anselm's team UMass had no trouble, yet turnovers plauged them considerbly, and coming up against a much tougher and deeper Little Green squad looked to pose some problems. But between the passing of the guards, and the high class scoring of the big men up front (John Murphy with 20 points and Tom Gillams with 22) the Little Redmen spread the margin to 103-80 with minutes left, until Dartmouth whittled away to make the game a seemingly close one.

The freshmen's game control gave off much the same air as did the 18-1 frosh squad of one year ago. Often their would be lags, and sloppy play, but somehow one knew they'd catch fire and run away with the game, and sure enough on Saturday night, the Little Redmen did just that.

The Cage crowd really hadn't seen too much of Gillams that first game due to early foul trouble, and at the start the 6'7 forward really hadn't gotten started. But when he did he changed the tempo, moved his ballclub, and did an exceptional job off the boards, collection 22 rebounds in somewhat under 40 minutes of playing time. Add to Gillams stats three assists, and an over 50% shooting percentage and you begin to realize how well this freshman was performing.

It was he who began the breakaway drive, when at 24 all, Gillams grabbed the rebound, and shifting the ball to his left hand (as he did more than once through the course of the game) layed in a beautiful bank shot. And the speed with which the teams were racing back and forth increased to an unheard of tempo as the story became "Grab the rebound, clear to the side, and send a long full court pass to the man racing towards the hoop."

Amidst presses by both freshmen teams, UMass took a 46-36 lead at halftime, as Murphy's and Endicott's 13 points each lead the way. Then as play resumed Dartmouth stayed within striking range, until that time when UMass started bombing those passes down court, and converting most everyone. With a 68-56 Redmen lead, two consecutive Endicott to Hick Boron passes saw four UMass points recorded. Then it was Flannigan to Endicott, a Murphy steal, an Endicott to Burke pass, and the lead increased, as the Redmen were truly running wild.

One final surge by the visitors saw the gap closed to 11, when at 78-67 Gillams gathered in an Endicott feed, hit the lay-up and way fouled. The three point play saw the start of a 13-2 surge that put things on ice.

Left for the fans was that 100-point mark and as 6'3 forward Burke hit the jumper the crowd was off of its feet, cheering madly. And the cheering continued right up until the time when assistant coach Bill Greeley took out his starters.

2-0 go the Little Redmen as they rest up next for the Holy Cross frosh, to be here this Wednesday. And in the meantime they'll be practicing that harrowing defense and their fantastic passing abilities. Yes indeed the freshmen are something to watch, as they've really put together one helluva five some, an unselfish ballclub, who loves to run and loves to pass. Only time can make them a more cohesive unit, and once their nack for sloppy turnovers disappears they should be more than exciting to watch.

Plunkett, Vataha Celebrate

FOXBORO (AP) - The partisan fans stood and serenaded quarterback Jim Plunkett and wide receiver Randy Vataha with "Happy Birthday" Sunday after the rookies from Stanford led the New England Patriots to a stunning 34-13 National Football League upset over the Miami Dolphins.

Plunkett celebrated his 24th birthday with a spectacular passing performance, completed 16 of 23 tosses for 233 yards, including scoring strikes of 26 and 25 yards to Vataha.

"I hope he has a birthday every day," New England coach John Mazur said in praising Plunkett, who was treated roughly in the Patriots' 41-3 loss at Miami early in the season.

Vataha, who at 5-feet-10 had been considered too small by many pro observers, was awarded the game ball by offensive captain Jon Morris. It came in the form of a present as Vataha observed his 23rd birthday Saturday.

"It goes to the little guy with all the guts," Morris said as Vataha accepted congratulations for grabbing seven passes for 129 yards.

"This was as good a game as we've ever played," Mazur said. "It was no fluke win. We didn't hurt ourselves by mistakes, taking only a couple of penalties and having no fumbles and no interceptions."

BUFFALO BILL
IS COMING
545-2579

Pats Upset Dolphins, 34-13

FOXBORO (AP) - Rookie Jim Plunkett celebrated his 24th birthday with a brilliant passing performance and the New England Patriots capitalized on Miami mistakes Sunday in snapping the Dolphins' eight-game winning streak with a stunning 34-13 upset.

The Dolphins, who meet the Baltimore Colts next week in a probable showdown for the American Conference East Division title, shocked a crowd of 61,457 as Mercury Morris returned the opening kickoff 94 yards for a touchdown.

However, the alert, hard-hitting Patriots then took command with Plunkett going to the air immediately and ignoring establishment of a running game.

Plunkett fired eight straight passes, including a key third down toss on which the Dolphins were tagged for interference, in setting up Jim Nance for a six-yard scoring burst off right guard.

Return specialist Hubert Ginn funbled away the next two kickoffs, providing the Patriots another 10 points with the game just seven and a half minutes old.

Plunkett lobbed a high 26-yard pass to former Stanford teammate Randy Vataha for the go-ahead touchdown and a couple of minutes later Charlie Gogolak booted a 37-yard field goal for a 17-7 New England lead.

Garo Yepremian kicked a 26-yard field goal for the Dolphins early in the second period, but Gogolak added his second from 35 yards out after the Patriots stopped a Miami drive by recovering a fumble at their 21.

Yepremian booted a 30-yard field goal midway through the third period, but Plunkett and the Patriots bounced right back, going 78 yards in four plays.

Two munutes later Larry Carwell picked off a Bob Griese pass and raced 53 yards for the final touchdown as New England completed its home season with a 5-2 record in new Schaefer Stadium.

The Patriots are 0-5 on the road. Miami suffered only its second loss in 12 games. The Dolphins have tied one.

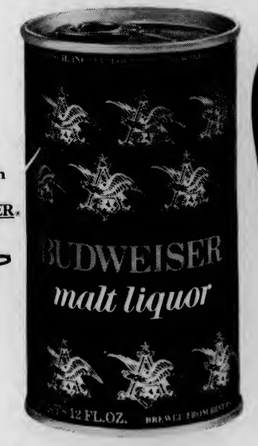
Plunkett completed 16 of 23 passes for 223 yards while firing his 16th and 17th touchdown tosses of the season.

Vataha caught seven passes for 129 yards.

The Patriots threw up a fabulous defense in holding Griese, the league's leading passer, and Paul Warfield, the NFL's top scoring receiver in check. Griese finally gave way to George Mira in the third period.

New England also stopped the running of Larry Csonka and Jim Kiick. Csonks leads the NFL in ground gaining while Kiick is the No. 1 rusher-pass receiver in the AFC.

The Dolphins moved to a first down at the New England nine early in the fourth period. They then had three shots to score from the two, but Kiick and Csonka were stopped cold and the Patriots took over. That was Miami's final threat.



SCORES
Los Angeles	45	Cleveland	31
New Orleans	28	Cincinnati	27
San Diego	30	Baltimore	24
Minnesota	14	Buffalo	0
Washington	23	Pittsburgh	3
New York Giants	7	Houston	29
Philadelphia	23	Chicago	3
Detroit	20	Denver	6
New England	34	Atlanta	24
Miami	13	Oakland	13

Senior Photos

For January Grads and Second Semester "Ed-Blockers"

When: Week of Dec. 13-17
Where: Norfolk - Plymouth Rms., S.U.
How Much: $3.50 Sitting Fee

Sign Up
in the Index Office,
S.U. 401
as soon as possible

Now!
The first malt liquor good enough to be called BUDWEISER.

ANHEUSER-BUSCH, INC. • ST. LOUIS

Skaters Edge UVM In OT Thriller

By BILL BALLOU

On Feb. 26, 1969 the Catamounts of Vermont lost at home to Norwich by a score of 2-1. It wasn't until Saturday night Dec. 4, 1971 that the Cats were to lose another home game to a Division II team. That team was the Redmen from UMass and they beat Vermont 4-3 on Jack Edwards' goal at 1:55 of overtime.

Going into this game, the Redmen had a record of one win and no defeats, while Vermont had won one game and lost three. However, those three defeats had come at the hands of Division I teams while the win was accomplished over Division II's Colgate.

It was what has come to be a typical UMass-UVM game, a one goal game in which no team ever really feels safe and a barn-burner in the best Ned Martin tradition. Both clubs literally flew up and down the ice from the opening whistle to the final goal, and the only surprising thing about it, was that they were able to stand up and skate for the overtime.

The main story of the game was the defensive effort put forth by the Redmen. For the first 50 minutes of the fray, they were able to hold the Cats to just one goal, and it was only when a penalty forced them to play first one man shy and then two penalties and a pulled goaltender made them play a ludicrous three men shy that Vermont could break through for goals. The shots on goal for the game tell the story as the Redmen outshot the Catmounts by 38 to 33, no mean feat in an opposition arena.

The first period started out to be all Catamounts, but by the five-minute mark, UMass had taken control of the game and was threatening to skate the Cats into Lake Champlain. At the 8:41 mark defenseman Brad Cooke was sent to the penalty box and the Redmen applied the pressure. In spite of the fact that they controlled the play, UMass was unable to take advantage of the penalty to score. The closest anybody came was Dan Reidy who put a backhander from about 10 feet out right into the pads of Vermont goalie Steve Eckerson. Finally at 11:29 Lonnie Avery broke through Eckerson to give the Redmen a 1-0 lead they were to hold into the second period. The Junior left-winger picked up his first goal of the season when he took a pass from Mike Waldron right at the corner of the crease and slid a five-footer into the open side of the cage.

Vermont came storming back in the second period, helped on by the screams of 4,019 fanatical Catamount fans. P.J. Flaherty was able to hold them off until 11:25 when Ted Castle finished off a three-on-two rush by zipping a 15-foot backhander in for his fifth goal of the season. Flaherty continued to work goaltending magic on the Cats and the score remained 1-1, setting the stage for the dramatic third period.

UMass came out of the locker room with afterburners on their skates and bang! before the Cats could figure out what had happened the Redmen had a 3-1 lead. The first UMass goal came at 00:37 on the power play with Dan Reidy picking up his second of the year on assists to Jack Edwards and Don Lowe. Just two and a half minutes later Pat Keenan broke in two-on-0 with Jack Edwards and beat Eckerson with a backhander.

The Cats were down at this point but by no means out. They came battling back with two goals in the final ten minutes of regulation time to tie it up. At 12:21 Willie MacKinnon scored a power play goal with Brian Sullivan off for hooking and at 18:46 Fred Hunt sent the crowd into a frenzy by tying the game at three. Hunt's goal came at a time when the Redmen were down by two men and Vermont had pulled its goalie to give themselves a three man advantage.

By now those with weak hearts had either passed on to the great face-off in the sky or were looking for medication. Sudden-death loomed and neither team appeared to be ready to concede anything to the other.

However it took just 115 seconds for the suspense to end as Jack Edwards scored his second goal of the year with assists to Pat Keenan and Don Lowe to give the Redmen an important victory as well as breaking the the long Vermont home ice streak.

Both goalies played spectacular hockey, Eckerson making 35 saves in a losing effort while Flaherty made some phenomenal stops in the final period to keep the Redmen in the hockey game. Vermont's All-America Ted Yeates lived up to his billing by playing a strong game, but his efforts were matched by Brian Sullivan of the Redmen who made the play of the night by blocking a shot on a two-on-one break by Fred Hunt and Pat Wright.

The Redmen now stand 2-0 both overall and in Division II while Vermont slips to 1-4 overall and 1-1 in Division II. The next game for the Redmen is this Wednesday night against Williams at Orr Rink. Game time is 8:30.

Peters: "I Play With All I Got"

By EARLE BARROLL

You seniors and junior will be able to relate to the following more so than you sophomores and you freshmen are just out of luck...you weren't around when UMass center Charlie Peters was a freshman.

Charlie was the only bright spot on a medicore freshman team that had to follow the Julius Erving freshman team and he was a pretty dim spot at that.

He couldn't hook, he couldn't set up well, he couldn't start the fast break and if he dribbled the fans gave out a rather sardonic cheer.

But, Peters had potential and he was the big guy Jack Leaman and former freshman coach Peter Broaca were looking to the future with.

Two summers of basketball camp later, hard work with Broaca and Leaman and added confidence have brought Charlies to the level of performance he reached Saturday night against Vermont when he had his biggest night in a Redman uniform.

The 6'7 junior played 19 minutes and had 12 points and 12 rebounds. He also set up well in the pivot, hooked worked with strength inside and got the fast break going with sharp, crisp outlet passes.

He was a bonafide crowed pleaser and received genuine applause for his efforts...a far cry from his sophomore year when he was used in the main to finish up a rout by the first stringers and applause was few and far between.

What is his secret? Well, Charlie has just one simple sentence as the cure all to his problems. "I just don't want to look stupid anymore."

His coach says this is the biggest single thing that has changed his game.

"He has the potential," says Leaman, "and now he's playing with confidence, aggressiveness and is rebounding the ball well."

After Saturday's game Leaman was extremely happy with the big guy. "He practiced real well the past couple of days, he continues to improve and will continue to the rest of the season.

"We need him to knock over people and he did this tonight. He's really quick and agile out there and could be a good defensive end with his ability."

Before the season actually got underway, Leaman made it clear he was going to employ a multi-player attack... Charlie Peters was one of these players he was referring to.

His position now is still in relief, but a more important and active one than he has ever had.

What goes through his head when he's called on? "I don't get to play that much, so when I do get my chance I play with all I got."

LOWE FROM THE POINT: Don Lowe (2), shown here driving a shot from the point, and Lonnie Avery waiting for the rebound against Salem State, played an integral part in the big Redman victory over Vermont. (Photo by Alan Chapman)

Notice

All upperclass Crew members are required to attend a meeting at 6:30 p.m. tonight in the WoPE weight room. Bring receipts and raffle tickets.

Hoopsters Roll Over Catamounts

By DAN KAMAL

It took UMass about five minutes to realize whom they were playing.

The University of Vermont made a game of it for approximately that amount of time, but from then on the fast-breaking, hot-shooting Redmen waltzed to a 112-65 win over the Catamounts Saturday night at the Cage before a packed house.

The reason UVM was able to stay in the game for that long was that it was getting open underneath early in the game. On the other hand, UMass was not penetrating early and was shooting mostly from outside.

But then the Redmen started running and pressing and the lead began increasing. As Coach Jack Leaman said after the game, "When we move we play the kind of basketball we are capable of. Other teams will be challenged to slow us down."

The Catamounts not only were unable to slow down the Redmen, but they themselves slowed down on offense. Because of the UMass press, Vermont started taking outside shots of the low-percentage variety, and for the most part, all UVM was getting was that one, low-percentage shot. (Statistics bear out both points. Vermont shot 35% from the floor and had a paltry 24 rebounds in the game as opposed to 56 rebounds by the Redmen.)

UMass pulled to a 20-point lead with about four minutes left in the half and went into the locker room at intermission with a comfortable 55-29 bulge.

The second half was no different. Mike Pagliara opened it up with a breakaway layup, and the beat continued. UMass continued to control both boards, and even when the home team missed a shot, it usually had at least two more attempts.

A few minutes into the second half, Leaman inserted a lineup of Tom Austin, Peter Trow, Charlie Peters, Rick Pitino, and Rick Vogeley. With Pitino running the offense, Trow shooting incredibly well from the outside, and Austin, Peters, and Vogeley working well inside, a 20-odd point lead quickly opened up to a 40-odd point lead.

Even with the score as lopsided as it was, the crowd excitement remained at a high pitch as the Redmen literally ran over their opponents. The only thing left for the 4000-plus in attendance was the magic 100-point mark.

Trow gave the crowd what it wanted with five minutes still left in the game as he popped in the 99th and 100th points from the left of the key.

Meanwhile, Vermont kept missing its "one" shot from the outside, and it fell further and further behind.

It was actually rather cruel.

JACK'S CORNER-An obviously pleased Jack Leaman had high praise for his club, specifically Austin and Peters, who will be "major factors for us this season", and Pitino and Trow. "Pitino is an exciting ballplayer who gets the crowd going, and when the crowd is behind us, they're 45% of the team." As for Trow, Leaman said, "When a player can come off the bench like that and lead the team in scoring, you know he's done a job"...the feeling amongst most of the players after the game was that the season actually begins Wednesday against Holy Cross...Trow had 19 points in 15 minutes, including nine for eleven from the floor...the Redmen as a team shot a torrid 60%...

NOTE THE SCOREBOARD: UMass was behind early in the game, but Tom McLaughlin (40) and his mates quickly changed that, routing UVM 112-65. (Photo by Gib Fullerton)

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather
Of course it wasn't worth your while, but then again, it looks like more of the same.

VOLUME XCIX, ISSUE 61 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS TUESDAY, DECEMBER 7, 1971

A covered bridge, which, for a moment manages to evoke memories of some winter's long gone by. This holiday scene was captured somewhere in New Hampshire on a recent bright and nippy day. (Photo credit by Alan Chapman.)

Research Council Offers A Viable Alternative

Counseling period is here again. There you sit, thumbing the pages of the pre-registration booklet in a last ditch attempt to find that long-dreamed-of course that will be both interesting and relevant. And perhaps you think you have found it. Ecstacy! You rush down to CASIAC, only to be told that the course is flagged and you have to be a senior honor student or have six upper level prerequisites to get in. Well, the course probably wasn't that good anyway.

But for those undergraduates that are looking for an alternative to straight lecture next semester, it is to be found. Last year a Legislative Research Council was formed under the auspices of the University and State Communications Council (USCC). The Research Council was founded for the dual purpose of providing the student with an exposure to practical politics and of returning a service to the State, which helps to defray the cost of a University education.

So, you ask, what does this Research Council actually do? It is a coordinating body. The Council is looking for students who would like to do independant study on a contemporary issue or problem of his choice. Topics could range from the building of low income housing, to consumer protection laws, to lowering the drinking age in Massachusetts. The choice is left up to the student. The Council also contacts State Legislators who are interested in filing new legislation, and are in need of research aid. Students and Legislators with the same field of interest are paired together.

So students, whose area of interest coincides with that of a Legislator, is able to do research in this field for academic credit from the University. A meeting is arranged between the Legislator and the student and a working relationship is established. Although the exact nature of this relationship is left up to both parties, a couple patterns may evolve. First, the student could research a specific bill and present his findings in an objective report. This type of research would enhance the working capacity of the Legislator and has many benefits for the student. The student would be doing research in a field of his choice and getting credit for it. He would, at the same time be able to gain much deeper insight and understanding into the workings of practical politics in Massachusetts. Another important plus is that students would be having input into legislation. In this day of increased emphasis on change from within the system, this student contribution becomes a meaningful factor.

To carry the input idea further, another optional relationship would be to have the student carry out his own study on a particular topic. Then based on his findings, the student could, with the aid of his Legislator's technical expertise, write up his own bill to be submitted to the Legislature. This would be representation of student ideas at one of the highest levels.

The Legislative Research Council has been functioning on a limited scale this fall semester with half a dozen students working under Ethan Katsh in the School of Business Administration. One of the participants in the Program is Steve Cleary, a senior history major. For the past two months he has been visiting various prisons in Massachusetts in an effort to view the effects of our existing penal system first hand in relation to this work Steve stated, "It's an experience in itself, a different type of education; not spoonfeeding. You can't really talk about penal reform until you've been inside a prison." In the next few months Steve intends to write a bill on penal reform using his own experiences, findings and recommendations.

For those students who are interested in independent study, the working of Massachusetts politics and hard work, consider the Legislative Research Council. USCC is holding an open meeting Thursday at 8:30 in the Dukes Room of the Student Union. Coffee will be provided so come and find out more details.

On The Inside:

- India Overwhelms East Pakistan — See page four
- Future University — See page seven
- The Politics of Rape — See page sixteen

Youth Vote Impact Depends On Involvement

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)-The impact of young voters on national elections next year will depend largely on how many of them get involved in local politics, says a young organizer of student registration drives in New England.

"The power of the youth vote is not going to be seen on the level of thousands or millions of young people rallying behind a national candidate," said William Keyserling in an interview. "It's going to have to start from the bottom up."

Keyserling is one of 12 regional coordinators for The National Movement for the Student Vote, a non-partisan, tax-exempt foundation based in Washington.

From a basement office Cambridge, Keyserling, a 23-year-old Brandeis University graduate, is working to organize and support local youth registration drives throughout New England. His efforts concentrate on major college campuses, but he hopes to reach beyond the academic community and to non-college towns.

The first test of the efforts of The Student Vote and simplar groups came in November in local elections around the country. The results were anything but clear, and The Student Vote is aiming now at the national elections next year and beyond.

Here is what Keyserling had to say to The Associated Press about his organization, the job of building an effective registration movement, his evaluation of young voters' impact this year and the prospects for 1972:

Q. What do you do as a regional coordinator?

A. My job in New England is to get as many voter registration activities going as possible. I move around New England, moving to college campuses, trying to get college students to organize voter registration drives on their campuses as well as in their communities.

Q. Why do you concentrate on college campuses?

A. We use college campuses and student expertise to move out into the community. We feel that because student governments tend to have a sizable amount of money they can use for either campus or community-related projects, because student governments are often in the position where they can donate free office space, telephones and a lot of times secretarial services, that this is a great way to minimize the necessary resources to get something going.

Q. How does it work?

A. Students decide they want to have a drive, they want to register themselves as well as other people in the community, but they don't really know how to go about it. So I go in, and I either send them some sort of an organizing manual which we've prepared or I talk to them on the telephone. In many cases I'll just go and spend a couple of days on the campus trying to help them build an organization. At UMass, for instance, where we organized a voter registration coalition, we built a very loosely structured organization, but with group participation from the Young Socialists Alliance, Young Republicans, Young Americans for Freedom, Democrats and other. I work as a catalyst.

A Umie becomes part of the corporate trust as he places his John Hancock, so to speak, to the ledger and becomes a registered voter.

Q. What's your approach to communities that don't have a campus nearby?

A. There's no such animal. There might not be a college campus, but there are a lot of high school students who are going to be voting, who are becoming part of the political system. I think it's extremely important to get them involved.

Q. Have you had much success working with high schools?

A. I haven't really gotten that far yet, I'm planning something very shortly. Let me talk, for a case study, of New Hampshire. In New Hampshire there are a good many schools, but there aren't many large ones, and the Student Vote is targeted at big campuses. And, in New Hampshire there's an odd situation because the attorney general has issued an opinion which said that students couldn't register to vote from their college towns. In terms of colleges, the way to hit the largest number of people is to hit three big state schools, the University of New Hampshire, Plymouth State College and Keene State. But there are 85,000 18-to-25- year olds in New Hampshire, and the question I ask is how do I reach the rest of them. We can't really effectively work through the smaller colleges because very often they have many out-of-state students.

Q. Getting back to the high schools.

A. I think that I would like to see a group of high school students working with the League of Women Voters as well as some teachers from the high school to organize a community campaign. It can be done relatively easily. The first obvious place to start for the high school kids is to have a voter registration day at the high school to register those who are 18. In fact, in New Hampshire you can register now as long as you will be 18 by the March 7 primary, which is the next election.

The next step might be to organize a phone canvass whereby you call everyone who has graduated from that high school within the last five years. This is very good because there are so many high school students who do not go on to college, and how are they to be reached? If every student in the senior class of a certain high school were to make 50 phone calls over the Christmas break, encouraging the alumni from that particular high school to vote, I think that would be a very effective way of using high school students to help us register as many of this newly enfranchised group as possible. Then you might work even more closely with the League of Women Voters to do some sort of a canvass across the town, which would open it up even beyond the 18-to-25 group. It would be simply a cadre of high school students who would go knocking ondoors saying, "Have you registrated to vote?" and suggesting that the coalition which is sponsoring the canvass thinks it's very important for people to vote.

Q. Is it possible for one man to reach both the colleges and most of the high schools around New England?

A. It is. I think there is a lot that one man can do. Probably more than a lot of people think. I don't have to run a drive at the University of New Hampshire, or Dartmouth College or Yale or Harvard or UMass. If I can go in and spend a couple of days teaching some kids something, if I can leave them with my phone number and say, "Any problems, call me," then I've done something. We're going to hold a conference for all student leaders in New Hampshire and just in a one-day affair I'll be able to reach several leaders from every educational institution in New Hampshire. And after I leave they will at least be able to call on me for any other assistance.

Q. Would you use a college or university registration drive to reach further out, into the high schools in non-college towns?

A. Well, it's idealistic to think it can work that way. On paper it sounds very good, but college students only have a certain amount of time. One of the problems I run into is that registration is not an extremely exciting issue. You're so far removed from actually voting when you're registering. It's not really issue-oriented. The time between when registration closes and the election is quite significant.

In Rhode Island registration closes 60 days before the election or the primary. It means that you've got to get people motivated about something far ahead of the time when they're actually going to vote. They can't tie registration to an issue, because registering to vote is not really registering any concern over an issue or a man.

Q Would you call this an apathy problem?

A. I think there are a lot of motivational factors which go into registering to vote, which people don't recognize. The 26th amendment was only ratified in June. It's six months later now and I think that 20 or 25 per cent registration is not really so low considering we were very far away from the presidential primaries, not to mention the general election. I think an important motivational factor for students would be for them to look closer home, look to local politics. I think the way in which we are going to be successful in registering young people will be very proportional to the degree to which young people become involved in the political process locally.

In Pawtucket, R.I., you have an 18-year old who ran for school committee and won, and I think that's a great motivational factor for other young people to register to vote to support a young person. There'll be young people running throughout the country to be delegates to the national conventions; I think that will help.

And, I think a lot of the legal problems and the lack of communication and the lack of agreement on the question of student residency are frustrating the efforts of a lot of students to register. In Cambridge registration has been very low. I think it's because a lot of people were blocked on legal grounds and, secondly, because a lot of people heard about others being blocked, being harassed.

For example, many people had to go to the election commission at least twice or three times before they were able to register. Some had to go to court. If a student goes to register and he's denied, then he must go for an appeal hearing. A lot of students don't think they should have to undergo this kind of thing, so that their efforts to register or their interest in becoming part of the system is very often frustrated.

Q. Is the Student Vote trying to encourage students to run for office as well as vote?

A. No, that will come very naturally. We encourage people to become part of a political system, and I think voting is part of that. We wouldn't support a candidate or an idealogy because we are non-partisan, but I think for the newly enfranchised to become truly involved they're going to have to do more than just register to vote. This is being barred in some places where you can vote at 18 but you can't run for any public office.

Q. What are some of the problems you run into with registrars or state officials here in New England?

A. In New England we have had very different experiences; within states you have very different experiences. In Massachusetts Atty. Gen. Quinn very early came out with an advisory opinion which said young people could register to vote from their college communities, if this is where they established their home and there was more likelihood they would remain in this community than return to their parents' home.

Continued on Page 9

"Z"
Friday Evening
Dec. 10 — Mahar Aud.
6:30 - 8:45 - 11:00

Poor Richard's Is A Cornucopia
Of Delights.
Friday In MDC

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus, zip code 01002. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 549-1311 (editor).

Second-class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods; three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $6.00 per semester, $10.00 per year.

Rod Rodgers Dance Company
a unique theatre experience

Tuesday - Thursday
December 7-8-9
8:00 P.M.
Bowker Auditorium

A Different Program Each Evening.

Reserved Tickets:
UMass Undergrads $1.00
Other Full-Time Students $2.00
UMass Faculty/Staff $3.00
General Public $3.50

Fine Arts Council Ticket Office,
125 Herter Hall, Tel. 545-0202

Presented by the University of Massachusetts Fine Arts Council

Building Authority 'Needed'

The allegations that William Aubin is in conflict of interest as a member of the UMass Building Authority and the owner of Aubin Inc., has raised the question of "how the student is affected by the workings of the Building Authority. H.J. Littlefield, Director of Planning, said "students are affected by the Building Authority in the sense that half of them wouldn't be here, if the Building Authority hadn't existed over the past thirty years."

He said the Building Authority does what the Administration directs it to do. The Administration's request goes to the Trustees, who request the Building Authority to look into the Administration's proposed construction, Littlefield explained.

The Administration determines what it wants built, estimates how much it can spend; and with these figures, the Building Authority hires an independent architect-designer to run a feasibility study. Later it will draw up the blueprints if everything is within administrative limits, according to Littlefield. If all goes well, the Trustees agree to operate the project, and transfer the responsibilities to the Building Authority, Littlefield said.

Accepting bids is a major responsibility of the Authority, but the bidding process appears rather rigid, as Littlefield explained it. He said that once the Administration has reached a figure of projected cost, subcontractors make the bids for electrical work, then, from a list of subcontract bids, held by the Building Authority, the general contractor chooses who he wants to work with and submits an overall bid. According to Littlefield, the Building Authority accepts "the lowest responsible bid" from the general contract bids.

He explained that University bidding is a public process, and that in order for the "lowest responsible bidder" not to be accepted by the Building Authority, a particular member of the Authority would have to prove irresponsibility.

Once a project is underway the Building Authority authorizes payments, but, beyond that, they try to let the bonds on the project float until the market is ripe for the best amortization schedule and interest rates possible, Littlefield said.

The Building Authority has three alumni representatives, three Trustee representatives, and three members at large.

Claffey Urges Faculty To Unionize Under AFT

By MARY M. KURTZ

Advocating faculty organization under the American Federation of Teachers, Miss Rose Claffey, international vice-president, addressed about 60 members of the UMass faculty yesterday afternoon in the Campus Center.

"College people are convinced that they need some kind of protection" stated the speaker and cited her organization as "the fastest growing union in the nation," quoting a 365% growth rate in the last ten years.

Stressing the democratic approach of the AFT, Miss Claffey said that all decisions are made by the local unions and that in all cases "we work for the things the local groups wants."

Commenting on the national policy of the AFT on student participation in choosing administrators she stated "we believe in student participation, but the biggest problem is writing a contract which provides for student governance."

On the issue of faculty members being on the Board of Trustees, Miss Claffey feels that it is hard for a faculty member to be both an employer and employee at the same time, and stated that this problem could be overcome if there was a strong organization to speak for the faculty.

The AFT stands against merit increases and favors "an objective salary schedule where everyone knows where they're going."

Miss Claffey opposes the present tenure system here at UMass and feels that the university should make a decision on tenure in the beginning of the fourth year as is done in elementary schools.

Contracts have recently been negotiated at Southeastern Massachusetts University, and Bristol Community College, and contracts are now pending at five state colleges in the Commonwealth.

Hound Dog Coming

"Top quality blues music has been sorely lacking from the five college area this year. In an attempt to remedy this situation, the UMass Blues Club will present on Monday, December 13, at 8:00 P.M. at the Student Union Ballroom, the Hound Dog Taylor and his House Rockers on their first eastern tour" said a release from the group.

Hound Dog, who has been playing guitar for 36 years, is a musician and a showman of the highest caliber, they said. "Together with his two excellent sidemen, Brewer Phillips and Ted Harvey, Hound Dog consistently tears up audiences everywhere he plays, producing the most exhilirating good-time blues and boogie music heard anywhere," they raved.

"Although Hound Dog has toured Europe and achieved an enormous following in Chicago, real fortune and success has eluded him," they moaned.

"Additional information about Hound Dog is available Monday through Friday at the Blues Club's table in the Campus Center concourse. Tickets are available at the Superficial Smile, C.C. Concourse, and at the door," according to the statement.

Student Busted For Plants

A UMass student was arrested yesterday afternoon at approximately 4:05 p.m. by the Campus Police and charged with growing and cultivating a narcotic weed. (marijuana)

According to the Campus Police the plants had been observed earlier in the suspects' window on the second floor of Webster House in Orchard Hill. Only one person was arrested.

According to first reports from students on the floor three officers entered the suspects room and spent approximately 15 minutes before emerging with the suspect in handcuffs. In a situation where an illegal substance is in plain sight a search warrant is not required by law.

The students name and other information will be withheld until arraignment today in Northampton District Court.

At this time a warrant is out for the suspects roommate, wanted for the same offense.

The accused was bailed out yesterday evening by Attorney Howland with money raised by the students friends.

Tomorrow is the LAST DAY to Pre-register

MDC
NEWS HOTLINE
5-2550

UMass Prof Becomes National Leader

Prof. William Walker Gibson of UMass has been named president-elect of the National Council of Teachers of English.

His fellow-members of the Council, about 40,000 of them, teach English in grades from elementary through graduate school.

A member of the UMass faculty since 1967, Prof. Gibson is the author of several publications, including "Tough, Sweet, and Stuffy: An Essay on Modern American Prose Style," "Persona: A Style Study for Readers and Writers," and "The Limits of Language." He has directed the UMass rhetoric program since 1970.

The new president-elect has a B.A. from Yale, and an M.A. from the University of Iowa. For the National Council of Teachers of English, he has been a member of its Commission on the Curriculum, the executive committee of the Conference on College Composition and Communication, and advisory editor of "College English" and "College Composition."

Stadium Concert Plans Nearing Completion

By PETER ROYAL

Plans for a concert of two major groups at the stadium in May are nearing completion.

Joe Tropiano, concert subcommittee chairman, said David Bischoff, Dean of the School of Physical Education has given his approval for the use of the stadium for a concert. Final approval for the concert rests upon written proposals concerning security, maintenance and damages to be submitted to the administration. These proposals are being completed now by the committee.

After the proposals have been submitted and approved the committee will be allowed to sign a contract with a group. Some of the groups mentioned as possible performers have been Crosby, Stills, Nash and Young, Black Sabbath, and Rod Stewart and Faces.

The concert would be held at the stadium in early May. Admission for approximately 25,000 people will be on a ticket basis. The cost of the tickets would finance the entire concert including cost of groups, maintenance, and security.

The weekly meeting of the Concert Subcommittee will be Thursday night at 9 o'clock in room 175 of the Campus Center. The meeting is open to anyone who wants to attend.

UMass Symbol Designed

This new UMass symbol, designed by Roger Roche of the Publications Office, incorporates three ideas: Learning, by the book motif; Unity by the three books representing each campus, and Man by the conventional "Y"-shaped form, according to the Weekly Bulletin.

dvp
presents
SANDER VANOCUR
of "First Tuesday" and "Today"
former NBC anchorman
speaking on
"1972: Does It Make A Difference?"
Saturday Evening, Dec. 11
at 7:00 in the SUB
NBC

Senior Photos

For January Grads and Second Semester "Ed-Blockers"

When: Week of Dec. 13-17

Where: Norfolk - Plymouth Rms., S.U.

How Much: $3.50 Sitting Fee

Sign Up
in the Index Office,
S.U. 401
as soon as possible

In The Nation And The World

India Claims Isolation Of Pakistan

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Indian army claimed Monday it had virtually isolated East Pakistan, sending Pakistani troops into disorderly retreat. India formally recognized the Bangla Desh rebels as East Pakistan's legal government.

West Pakistan disputed New Delhi's claims and broke diplomatic relations for its recognition of Bangla Desh. It was the first break in relations since the two countries became independent after World War II. They maintained diplomatic ties in their two previous wars–in 1948 and 1965.

The Pakistani air force carried out new attacks deep inside India and along its borders. Anti-aircraft guns opened up in Bombay, India's most populous city, after radarmen reported sighting a flight of Pakistani jets sweeping in Monday night from the Arabian Sea.

In West Pakistan, a military spokesman in Rawalpindi said Pakistani forces captured the Indian town of Mandiala, a strategic center in the Chamb-Jurian sector of Indian-held Jammu in the northern zone of the West Pakistan-India border.

He said Pakistani troops also were advancing around Poonch on the border between India-held Kashmir and West Pakistan and had "completed their intitial objective." He did not elaborate.

In the air war, the Pakistanis claimed to have downed 95 Indian aircraft since the hostilities began. The Indians claimed Pakistani losses of 52 planes and admitted destruction of 19 of their own. India had 625 combat planes and Pakistan about 250 when fighting broke out.

On-the-spot verification of rival Indian and Pakistani claims so far has been forbidden to reporters in most areas.

In other developments:

—A third United Nations move for a cease-fire collapsed Monday night after the Soviet Union said it would veto the proposal in the Security Council. The Russians vetoed two cease-fire proposals over the weekend.

—In Washington, the House Appropriations Committee voted to suspend $648 million in aid for the two warring nations. It acted shortly after the State Department temporarily cut off $87.6 million already in the pipeline for India.

—Sweden and Saudi Arabia criticized India in the conflict. Belgium said it would not take sides.

Anti-aircraft shells burst by the hundreds over Bombay, a city of 5.6 million 500 miles south of West Pakistan. Officials would not say whether planes had attacked the city or a nearby naval base, a Bombay dispatch said.

Other warnings were sounded in towns and villages within a 100-square-mile area around Bombay.

United News of India quoted hospital sources in Bombay as saying 15 persons, all from the center of town, were wounded by shrapnel from the anti-aircraft guns.

Throughout the day, the agency reported, Pakistani planes penetrated the Indian air-defense system to bomb military airfields.

Indian news dispatches said Pakistani planes were sighted Monday night over four western Indian states, Maharashtra, of which Bombay is the capital; Gujarat, Punjab and Kashmir.

India's air force was active in East Pakistan, flying socres of sorties in support of ground troops.

In Brief

WASHINGTON (AP)-The Food and Drug Administration, citing new studies questioning both the safety and effectiveness of hexachlorophene as a germ fighter, Monday warned against its use for bathing babies and adults.

The agency ordered warning labels on soaps and skin cleansers containing 3 per cent or more of the chemical, and sent a separate warning to 600,000 physicians and other health professionals.

In controlled studies, the FDA said, 50 newborn infants bathed daily with hexachlorophene preparations absorbed measurable quantities of the chemical into their blood by the time of their hospital discharge, although none displayed toxic symptoms.

BELFAST, (AP) - A Salvation Army girl died Monday in the rubble of a building that collapsed after two bombs ripped apart a nearby shirt factory and touched off a fire.

The bombing and gun battles between Irish republicans and British troops ruled out any anniversary celebrations for the treaty that was supposed to have settled the Irish question 50 years ago.

The bombs were set by three armed men as prime ministers of Britain, the Irish republic and Northern Ireland held emergency meetings in London.

The terrorists warned employes of the shirt factory to run for their lives. Six hundred women scrambled to safety in the street before the explosions went off.

WASHINGTON (AP)-A defense analyst asserted Monday that the Pentagon tends "to confuse technical performance with effectiveness" in developing military weapons.

Jacob Stockfisch of the Rand Corp. said the Pentagon tests weapons as to whether they fly and fire, but often little thought is given to whether extra speed or sophistication really is necessary.

Appearing before the Senate Armed Services Committee, Stockfisch said computer evaluation seldom takes into account "operational situations."

As UN Ceasefire Move Fails Again

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — A third U.N. move for an Indian-Pakistan cease-fire collapsed Monday night after the Soviet Union threatened to veto it.

Soviet Ambassador Jacob A. Malik, who had vetoed two previous cease-fire proposals over the weekend, told the Security Council the new proposal was "one-sided" and "inadequate."

He offered a series of amendments which would have linked the cease-fire to a demand that Pakistan give "immediate recognition to the will of the East Pakistan population as expressed in the elections of December 1970."

Speaking for the five sponsors of the new cease-fire proposal, Italian Ambassador Piero Vinci announced that the draft was being withdrawn.

This appeared to have exhausted efforts for the moment to get a cease-fire appeal approved by the 15-nation council.

Many diplomats already were talking about invoking the almost-forgotten "Uniting for Peace" resolution adopted during the height of the cold war to transfer urgent issues to the veto-free General Assembly when the council was paralyzed by the veto.

It was generally agreed, however, that an effort would be made first to get approval of the cease-fire resolution, which was submitted Sunday night after the second Soviet veto.

Ambassador Abdulrahim Abby Farah of Somalia said African, Asian and Latin-American members of the council were considering the Uniting for Peace procedure as a last resort. They believed an overwhelming majority of the 131 countries in the assembly would support a cease-fire appeal, Farah said.

The 1950 resolution, pushed through then by the United States, provides for convening an emergency session of the assembly by the vote of any nine members of the council whenever a veto prevents action on a matter concerning peace.

U.S. Ambassador George Bush said before the Monday council meeting he considered the Uniting for Peace procedure "a live option," adding: "We're keeping our options open."

Major Crisis Hits Korea

SEOUL (AP) — The South Korean government proclaimed a state of emergency Monday and told its people their constitutional freedoms may be restricted.

The measure was announced by Information Minister Yoon Choo-Young after an emergency meeting of all Cabinet ministers and members of the National Security Council at the presidential mansion.

Yoon said the action was taken in view of "recent developments," including the admission of Peking to the United Nations and alleged war preparations by North Korea.

In a declaration explaining the background for the measure, President Chung Hee Park said his government "declares forthwith the state of national emergency with a view to informing the people of this stark reality, keenly realizing the urgent necessity of jointly renewing the firm determination for the government and people to overcome the current situation."

Smith Released

HACKENSACK, N.J. (AP) — Edgar Smith, who spent more time on Death Row than any other American prisoner, was ordered released from prison Monday.

Superior Court Judge Morris Pashman ordered his release 14-1/2 years after Smith pleaded no defense to murdering 15-year-old Victoria Zielinski in 1957.

Assistant Gergen County Proscecutor Edward Fitzpatrick had recommended that the sentence imposed on Smith by Pashman not exceed the amount of time he had spent on Death Row.

Smith's original conviction in 1957 was overturned this U.S. District Court by Judge John J. Gibbons. But rather than face a new trial, Smith's attorneys and Bergen County prosecutors reached the agreement under which Smith pleaded no defense.

JONATHAN EDWARDS

— TONIGHT —
with Bill Workman

7:30 & 10:00
S.U. Ballroom

— Jonathan Edwards
Capricorn Recording
Artist
— Hit Single — Sunshine

- TONIGHT -

Tickets at RSO or Door $1.25

TONIGHT!

BEWARE!

André Kole

will make you think!

and that could be painful!

Cage - 8:00 p.m. - Dec. 9

Tickets - $2 at door
$1 in advance

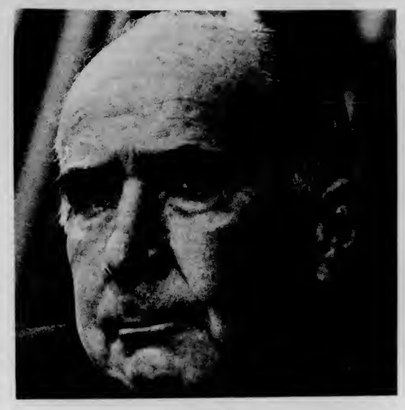
at table in C.C. Concourse

or Call 549-6149

Mitchell Announces Steps Towards Prison Reform

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP)-Atty Gen. John N. Mitchell revealed Monday the creation of a National Corrections Academy to reform American prisons, which President Nixon called "colleges of crime."

Mitchell's announcement came in an address to 350 corrections specialists from across the nation, gathered in this restored colonial capital for a White House-sponsored National Corrections Conference.



Mitchell said the academy will offer training for local, state and federal corrections personnel as an "effective means for upgrading the profession and assuring that correction is more than a euphemism for detention."

Nixon, in a taped message to the conference's opening session, called on the delegates to "blaze the trail of prison reform. Important strides recently have been made toward reform "but let us not deceive ourselves," the President said. "Our prisons still are colleges of crime and not what they should be...

"Locking up a convict is not enough. We must also offer him the key of education, of rehabilitation, of useful training, of hope-the keys he must have to open the gates of life of freedom and dignity."

Establishment of two other federal projects to help in the work of state and local corrections officials also was announced by Mitchell at the opening of the four-day conference.

One project will be creation of a "clearing house" for correctional education, providing help in the formulation of education programs for prison inmates.

Mr. Mitchell

The other project is establishment of a national clearing house for criminal justice architecture at the University of Illinois, which will give technical aid in the improvement of existing prison facilities and the design of new, more modern buildings.

Mitchell urged state and local agencies to hire more minority personnel in prison work. The federal prison system's 28 institutions already have been directed to hire applicants from minority groups for one-third of the new positions that become available, he said.

"Extraordinary effort" is needed to find and recruit minority personnel "not only because it is the law, but because it can genuinely benefit the corrections process, the attorney general said.

No site has yet been chosen for the National Corrections Academy, Mitchell said. He said recommending a site will be one of the tasks of the conference here.

Powell Confirmed By Senate

WASHINGTON (AP)-Lewis F. Powell Jr., a wealthy and conservative Richmond, Va., lawyer, was confirmed by the Senate Monday to succeed the late Hugo L. Black as a Supreme Court justice.

The vote was 89 to 1, with Sen. Fred R. Harris, D-Okla., voicing the sole dissent.

Harris said he opposed Powell because he believes the nominee is "an elitist" who lacks compassion for "little people."

Powell is the third justice nominated by President Nixon to win the Senate's approval and the first Southerner.

Still to be voted on by the Senate, at a time not yet set, is Nixon's nomination of Assistant Atty. Gen. William H. Rehnquist to fill another court vacancy created by the retirement of Justice John M. Harlan.

Rehnquist, 47, has come under attack from some liberal Democrats in the Senate for his record on civil rights and civil liberties, but supporters of his nomination are confident he will be confirmed by a wide margin. The Senate Judiciary Committee endorsed the nomination by a 12-4 vote.

Powell, 64, is a fomer president of the American Bar Association and of the American College of Trial Lawyers. His nomination came before the Senate with the unanimous backing of the Judiciary Committee.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., a candidate for his party's presidential nomination, told the Senate in the brief discussion that preceded the vote that "Mr. Powell is a man of exceptional ability and character."

"Indeed," Jackson said, "the reception accorded his nomination is a rebuff to those who suggested that the Senate would not confirm a Southerner to serve on the Supreme Court."

"One wonders why it has taken so long to propose a man of Mr. Powell's stature," Jackson added in an obvious dig at Nixon.

The President's nominations of Judges Clement F. Haynsworth Jr., of South Carolina and G. Harrold Carswell of Florida for earlier vacancies on the Supreme Court were rejected by the Senate.

Nixon at that time accused the Senate of prejudice against Supreme Court nominees from the South.

Nixon's selection of nominees he has described as strict constructionists or judicial conservatives was designed, he said, to carry out his 1968 campaign pledge to try to restore balance to the Supreme Court.

Bombs Mar Anniversary Fest

BELFAST (AP)-Bombs and gun battles burst in Northern Ireland again Monday, ruling out any anniversary celebrations for the treaty that was supposed to settle the Irish question 50 years ago.

As three prime ministers assembled in emergency meetings in London on how to stop the violence, two bombs ripped apart a five-story carpet factory in central Belfast and ignited a raging fire.

Three armed men planted the bombs, warned the staff to run for their lives, and 600 women scrambled to safety in the street before the explosions erupted.

Shops and offices for 100 yards around were evacuated as troops sealed the streets, beneath waves of smoke, flying sparks and falling masonry. No injuries were reported, however.

The blasts followed an explosion in a Belfast Roman Catholic bar Saturday night that killed 16 persons and raised the spectre of worse to come. It was the highest death toll from a single incident in Ulster's 28 months of bloodshed.

The treaty of Dec. 6, 1921, supposed to put an end to the Irish troubles, was signed by some of the best-known British and Irish political figures of the 20th century-David Lloyd George, Austen Chamberlain and Winston Churchill for Britain, Arthur Griffith, Michael Collins and Robert Barton for the Irish.

It created an Irish free state, now the independent Irish republic, containing 26 countries, and a British-ruled province, Ulster, in the six counties of Northern Ireland. That division, however, remains a major political issue to this day.

Roman Catholics north and south of the border have long campaigned for the British to leave the north and permit Irish unification. The outlawed Irish Republican Army has mounted a 28-month terrorist campaign to that end.

But the Protestant majority in the north wants to remain British and has called in British troops to restore order. The British are pledged to remain in the north as long as the majority there wants them.

There is no shortage of proposed settlements, but no threeway agreement so far on any of them.

Jack Lynch, prime minister of the Irish republic, came to London for talks with British Prime Minister Edward Heath. Speaking at a lunch before seeing Heath, Lynch supported a plan put forward by former Prime Minister Harold Wilson, leader of Britain's opposition Labor party.

Wilson has urged an all-party conference to draft a new constitution for a united Ireland to take effect in 15 years. Lynch described Wilson's plan as "a turning point in Anglo-Irish relations."

But Brian Faulkner, prime minister of Northern Ireland, rejected Wilson's plan. Faulkner also came to London Monday for emergency talks with Home Secretary Reginald Maudling on the security situation in the north.

Room To Move
Drop-In Center
5-0400, 5-0401

TONIGHT
DON'T MISS
THE GREAT

John Morgan

at

The English Pub
(Ladies' Night)

9:30 til close only 25c

Sikorsky Aircraft

REPRESENTATIVES WILL BE ON CAMPUS TO GIVE SENIORS AND GRADUATES COMPLETE DETAILS ON

ENGINEERING OPPORTUNITIES

WITH THE PIONEER AND LEADING MANUFACTURER OF VTOL AIRCRAFT

Female, minority group and veteran applicants especially welcome.

See your College Placement Office now for an appointment on:

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 10

SIKORSKY AIRCRAFT, Stratford, Conn. 06602 • Division of United Aircraft Corp. • An Equal Opportunity Employer

Bell Gives Women The Shaft

(BOSTON (LNS))— "Why are you so fat?" my interviewer demanded. "You know we don't usually hire fat girls without giving them a special medical check-up. And let me see your hands...You bite your fingernails too! You'll have to stop. We can't have a service representative who bites her nails. You do wear a bra don't you?"

Service representatives answer the questions and complaints of people who call the business office. They are there to soothe furious customers, always responding courteously, even to the most vicious abuse. "Women are good at that," the manager of our office once said--and in fact the telephone company hires only female service representatives. There is a second function the women must perform--demanding payment from customers whose bills are overdue, and denying service to those who can't pay.

A man who applies for employment with a service representative's qualifications is immediately ushered into a management training program. His starting pay is at least fifty dollars a week more than a rep's; there are no exceptions. "You have the best job the telephone company offers women," they told us.

Since my interviewer decided that I did not quite fulfill the company image of a service representative, I was hired under two conditions. First, that I buy "several good business outfits" before reporting to work, and second, that I accept twenty dollars a week less than everyone else because I didn't go to college. As I left, she leaned out the door and called after me, "lose some weight!"--a portentous beginning to my year and a half at the telephone company.

"The company pays you to do the job their way," our instructor informed us. "If you don't like it, no one's forcing you to work here." For seven weeks we sat in a stuffy little windowless cell and memorized the prescribed response to every situation a service representative might encounter. Our instructor watched us constantly--every action, every nuance of dissention she carefully recorded to her supervisor.

Every now and then she'd interrupt the lesson and open conversations on the welfare system or the presidential campaign. "People on welfare are my pet peeve," she once began, watching our faces for reactions. I'm convinced that these impromptu work stoppages were programmed into the lesson to allow the instructor to gauge our attitudes.

One woman in our class was extremely outspoken. She denounced eight dollar charges as "exorbitant" and snickered loudly at our instructor's assurance, "Girls, I'm sure you'll find that bill-collecting is one of the most rewarding parts of your job."

One afternoon, this woman was called to a special conference with the training supervisor. We never saw her again. "She just wasn't cut out for this job," our instructor explained. And when at the end of training I was assigned to an office, I began to understand why.

The commercial department is organized into a vast bureaucratic hierarchy. Authority filters from the vice president, down through the state, region and local management--and lastly, to the individual business office itself. In order to determine promotions, they devise artificial measurements of performance: each business office is rated in several different functions and compared to the other offices in weekly charts.

Theoretically, in competing for promotions, the management of each business office also provides efficient equitable service. But in reality, the opposite occurs; they are so preoccupied with improving their ratings that they neglect the many important aspects of service that aren't measured on the charts.

An example: Weekly, sometimes daily, charts are compiled on "access"--that is, how long a customer's call waits at the switchboard for a service representative's line to be free.

One day, I noticed that there were fifteen people waiting in the office with only one woman assigned to them. I volunteered to help. "No, my supervisor replied, "I want all our telephone lines open. We can't afford to jeopardize our access rating." People standing in the office for forty-five minutes obviously didn't matter--waiting time on personal visits is not measured on the charts.

We were pressured to take as many calls as possible: this meant getting the customers off the line as fast as we could and refusing to do anything more than company policy requires. For example, we were not allowed to xerox bills for voters who needed proof of residence to register.

Adhering strictly to company procedures many times didn't even solve the most common of the customer's problems. When someone complained of excessive message units, for example, we were supposed to report it to the repair department and quickly return to our desk for the next incoming call. But the results of these reports often took up to three months to be returned to us.

And the matter was further complicated: the repair department is judged by their executives on the number of message unit errors. So, when they finally were returned to us, every test was stamped "no trouble."

The only way we could ever hope to solve such a claim was to hunt it down ourselves, which entailed calls to several different departments. But when caught at this, we were severely reprimanded. "What are you doing?" my supervisor demanded. "All you have to do is call the repair department. Open your incoming call line."

Daily records were kept of the number of calls each service representative handled--and we all knew that low totals meant no promotion.

Management insured fast production (and thus raised its access rating) by demanding that we be businesslike--pleasant but firm, crisp and distant. This means that we could never be friendly, chat a minute, crack a joke, in short--treat them like people instead of "customers." If a caller tried to start a conversation, we were instructed to dodge it politely and continue with the company rap. "Never lose control of the call," our supervisors admonished.

Every month we received computer printouts of telephone numbers whose bills were overdue. We had to dial each one and repeat the company line: "And if it's not paid by Thursday at noon, your service will be disconnected. We will restore it upon fullpayment of the bill and a fifty dollar deposit."

Several of us used a different method: we tried to find out when the person could pay and arranged payment extensions if at all possible. We also suggested ways of reducing bills--switching to a cheaper service, replacing costly Princess and Trimline models with regular phones. But for persisting in this method of bill- collecting, one woman was nearly fired.

"The customer expects and appreciates businesslike treatment," our supervisors assured us. Yet those of us who continued to treat customers like people found the opposite to be true. We were inundated with gratefull letters--"Thank you for your patience and understanding," one letter opened. "You are the nicest person I've ever spoken to at the telephone company," began another.

Every unit of six women was patrolled by a supervisor who guarded against deviations from company orthodoxy. Plugging in secretly to our calls, searching through our desks, timing our coffeebreaks, inspecting our written work--they watched us constantly.

Every week or so the manager and supervisors met to discuss new developments; their conclusions were then announced to us as policy. Not only were we never consulted, but there was no way to appeal. We had no opinion.

"Do you really think you know something that a management person doesn't?" a supervisor asked me. "You know we're not interested in your opinion of the telephone company."

Freakin' Fags Fight Foran

(CHICAGO (LNS)) — Four gay liberationists were beaten and arrested Nov. 23 by Chicago police during a spontaneous zap of a Foran-for-Governor rally at the Quadrangle Club on the University of Chicago campus.

Thomas Foran, who is Mayor Daley's hand-picked choice for the governorship of Illinois, was U.S. prosecuting attorney in the Chicago Eight Conspiracy Trial. It was Foran who attacked the defendants in the case by saying, "We're losing our kids to a freaking fag revolution."

The zap took place following an open forum sponsored by the University of Chicago Gay Liberation. When the people attending the forum learned that a Foran-for-Governor rally was being held at the ritzy Quadrangle Club across the street, they decided to make a gay presence.

About 30 people marched, danced and chanted: "Ho, ho, hey, hey, freaking fags are here to say." "Foran is a fag beater," and other slogans.

A few people infiltrated the building, and while some Foran supporters were shouting pro-Foran slogans, one of the gay people shouted out, "Hey, Tom, why don't you talk about the faggots?" Authorities told the gay people, "If you shout again, you'll be asked to leave."

"We thought that was fair enough," Kevin Burke, 21, a University of Chicago student, told LNS, "so we shouted out, 'Gay power to the gay people.' "

Several burly plainclothesmen immediately began beating Burke and three other gay brothers with their fists and elbows, and hustled them outside of the building. Other cops took over, using their billy clubs and slapping handcuffs on the four. A dozen people then linked arms and surrounded the police car, but it drove off.

The other arrested men were Lucas Kami, 25, Murray Edelman, 28, and Brad Edwards, 19, all University of Chicago students. All four were charged with disorderly conduct and resisting arrest, and were released a few hours later on $25 bond each. An appeal on the University of Chicago radio station was made, and nearly double the amount of bond money was raised within an hour. Most of the bond money was provided by a bartender employed in a local gay bar, the King's Ransom.

A straight (as opposed to gay) Yippie-style group, the Students for Violent Non-Action, joined in the demonstration against Foran when they heard about the arrests.

have a "Merry"

20% OFF

SHOE SALE

(men's & women's)

NOW!

Men's Boots

also: $25 - $22 Now $17.00

THE SHOE-BIN

In the Alley

COMING

WEDNESDAY

NIGHT

DIRECT FROM BOSTON

THE ACT

featuring:

Natalie Cole

A WHOLE NEW THING

AT

The English Pub

The Future University Report

An Analysis Of The Future Report

By ROBERT MEDEIROS

Today UMass-Amherst is considered the center of public education in Massachusetts. The University now has a national reputation and it is probable that its stature will continue to grow.

The President's Committee on the Future University implied in their report that UMass-Amherst as a public institution has moved away from their "historic mission" of educating those who can not afford private education. The Committee said in the report, "The learning process in the seventies must reflect the complexity of society, its technology and its problems. In the public university this means creating a somewhat more professional and more problem-solving orientation to learning."

Reading the report it becomes apparent that as far as public education in Massachusetts is concerned, UMass-Boston is the University of the future. It wasn't too long ago that UMass automatically brought to mind UMass-Amherst. Mention UMass today and its necessary to identify the specific school: UMass-Amherst, Boston or Worcester. Ten years from now it may be necessary to include Lowell Tech and Southeastern Mass University.

This does not mean that UMass-Amherst will fall into oblivion. What it does mean is that the University will continue to decentralize throughout the state in order to meet its commitments to the society around it. Amherst will continue to represent one of the finest institutions for learning in America but will come to be an integral part of a much wider system of higher education in the state.

The Committee speaking of this decentralized system said that if the University is to be accessible to the people of Massachusetts, no matter where they live, then it will be necessary to find new ways to reach those who live in the Northeastern and Southeastern part of the state. The Committee noting that Lowell Tech and SMU are already in this area stated that additional university campus centers should not compete or overlap with these areas. The report said, "The issue for the future is whether merger with one or both of these institutions is wise."

It is clear that funds which might have been headed to Amherst ten years ago will now be further divided throughout the state. Though last year funds were cut from the Amherst budget, there is nothing in the report that would indicate that this policy will continue but it is a fact that more and more money will continue to be channeled into Boston and Worcester. It is very possible that Lowell and Dartmouth (SMU) will some day be added to the list.

For instance, the Committee recommended that the number of students at Worcester Medical School be increased to 5,000 by 1980. The Worcester School provides an interesting insight into the future of UMass-Amherst. When plans were being evaluated for a medical school in Massachusetts, many people felt that the Worcester location was inappropriate. These same people felt that an Amherst location with its' fully developed university surroundings was essential to ensure academic quality. Of course the Amherst location was passed in favor of Worcester and the decentralization of the university system was well on its way to reality. In fact, the Committee stated that for the Medical School to be deprived of its projected 403-bed hospital would revive objections against the Worcester location. It is for this reason the Committee strongly recommended the construction of the teaching hospital as soon as possible.

The Committee for the Future University emphasized throughout the report that the university will have to pay greater attention to its public service responsibilities. In so doing the Committee outlined the fact that Boston will have the best opportunity to meet these needs.

"Boston's primary place will be as a urban and more professional oriented center, with the commuters dominating the student body, and greater opportunities for part-time study, for older students and for students from low-income families," said the Committee in the report. Amherst on the other hand would be the primary place for advanced training and a more residential campus.

The Committee stated five themes in the report which suggests a new model for the public university. Reading the report it becomes obvious that the new $355 million UMass-Boston will have the greatest opportunity in satisfying these themes for public education. In fact it appears that the urban university will have a clear advantage in adjusting to the changing times. The Committee said, "In order to promote the possibility of community service, we recommend that the plans for the Columbia Point campus be modified. Columbia Point should be developed not as the sole UMass-Boston, but as the nucleus of an urban university which is dispersed throughout the Boston area."

Boston and Worcester will continue to grow in size and stature. Amherst has just about reached its peak in population size and should now concentrate in refining its existing program and retaining and improving its national reputation. The next move will be up to the state legisture. Massachusetts was for years last in providing state aid to higher education and is currently 49th. In order to assure that Amherst retains its stature and that Boston and Worcester continue to grow it will be necessary for the state to drastically improve on its past record. Quality education costs money and if we are to have a system of education that the citizens of Massachusetts can continue to be proud of, then it will cost, and cost plenty.

There will be two more graduate research towers built on the campus. A sign of the future direction the Amherst campus may take.

Summary Of Committee Findings

(Ed. note)—This is the first of a series of articles outlining the proposals in the Future University report. Later segments will deal in more depth with the summary findings presented below.)

The University of Massachusetts, having already quadrupled in size these past ten years, will more than double again in the next ten. While the era of burgeoning expansion is over for most public universities, the University of Massachusetts, having developed late, is still growing.

In that growth there is opportunity for needed change, especially when the experience of others is at hand to show pitfalls that can be avoided. The key question is, will the University of Massachusetts model itself on the past, producing in 1980 a university which emulates the most admired institutions of the 1960's, or will it help lead the nation to a new model for public higher education in the seventies?

This Committee believes the University of Massachusetts has the capacity to lead toward new standards of quality and excellence. It has grown impressively in stature in recent years and it has tremendous potential. With this report, we hope to increase public awareness of that potential as well as influence the internal sense of purpose and mission of the University. For public trust and support are what ultimately make change and growth possible.

The questions we seek to answer, briefly, are who will attend, what they will be taught, where they will study, when in their lives they will participate, and how the institution will serve the Commonwealth beyond its students.

We begin with the recognition that the institution is both public and a university. The public pays for it, and the public therefore has a right to benefit from it. The public trust depends not just on an informed sense of the University's potential, but also on satisfaction received, and this in turn creates a broad obligation of service both to students and the society beyond.

creates a broad obligation of service both to students and the society beyond.

If the public nature of the University broadens its obligations, its status as a university - an institution for learning - is simultaneously a limiting force. The university is a specific kind of institution entrusted by society with a special responsibility to educate citizens and advance knowledge.

But that formulation, while correct, is no longer sufficient. The role of universities is under debate all over the country. Some say universities can survive only if they assume a new involvement in the society around them. Others maintain that such involvement would destroy the effectiveness of universities in freely pursuing and creating new knowledge. Accepting fully that universities are institutions of limited mission and competence, we nonetheless choose to stand with the first group. We believe universities should be responsive rather than disengaged, appliers as well as creators of knowledge, questioners as well as conservers of values.

Five key concepts summarize our recommendations for the University of Massachusetts:

—Accessibility to able students of all income levels, races, national backgrounds, and ages.

—Diversity of academic program, and of place and time of learning, to make the University truly responsive to the needs of students and society.

—Undergraduate teaching as a special priority, coupled with re-examination of how best to achieve this priority while sustaining the vital research and graduate teaching functions of the University.

—Service to the public beyond the enrolled student body, including continuing education and application of the University's faculty and student resources to assist in the solution of perplexing problems of public and social policy.

—Productivity in the use of resources, to see that scarce funds produce the greatest educational results, with special emphasis on new approaches to cooperation and coordination between public and private colleges and universities, and among public institutions of higher education.

These five themes suggest a new model for the public university in America - one defined by its stronger emphasis upon the quality of the undergraduate learning experience and service to society. This will require changes in admissions policies, educational programs, academic organization, and administrative priorities, and - not least - will require additional resources from the Commonwealth.

If the last decade was a period of emergence of the University of Massachusetts from the shadow of the private colleges and universities in the State, the next will be a time for assuming a full statewide role and enhancing an already substantial national reputation.

By 1980 the University should have 50,000 full-time and 15,000 to 20,000 part-time students. Its campuses should be sharply different from one another: Amherst the primary place for advanced training and the more residential campus; Boston an urban and more professionally oriented center, with a predominantly commuting student body and greater opportunities for part-time study, for older students, and for students from low-income families; Worcester as the campus for health professions and health sciences, accommodating a substantial number of undergraduates.

Accessibility

Who should come to the University in 1980? This is a key question. The opportunity for higher education has not yet been extended to all who should have it. Ability knows no lines of income or race. A public university, especially, has an obligation to all the citizens who support it, to say nothing of its obligation to facilitate mobility as part of the American commitment to equal opportunity.

Continued on Page x

Continued from Page 7

The need for university training knows no boundaries of age. More than ever, for reasons both professional and personal, lifelong learning should be a major aim of a university's program.

The University's student body has consistently been more representative of lower income people than public universities around the country, and in recent years it has also done a creditable job in recruiting, admitting, and financially assisting black students.

Nonetheless, the family income level of its student body is rising more rapidly than family income in the State. From all indications, these regressive trends will continue unless affirmative steps are taken. As to accommodating older students, as yet the University has not undertaken any substantial effort or program.

We therefore recommend that the University take whatever affirmative steps are necessary in its admissions, recruiting and financial aid policies to ensure a fully representative student body, and to that end we make the following major recommendations:

We recommend that the University adopt guidelines to judge the success of its admissions policies in serving low-income and increasingly hard-pressed middle-income families. At a minimum it must strive to maintain its present income distribution - at Amherst, 23.4 percent of last fall's entering class were from the lowest income third of the State's population, and 35.4 percent were from the middle third; at Boston, 38.8 percent of the student body last year were from the lowest third, and 36.1 percent were from the middle third.

Beyond this, through intensified recruiting and new techniques of selection, we believe Amherst could without sacrificing quality seek to ensure that a third of its students are from the lowest income third of the population.

In addition, we recommend that the University pay special attention to serving groups historically discriminated against or severely underrepresented in the University. While this includes such groups as blacks, Puerto Ricans, and American Indians, it is not limited to them. Ninety percent of the poor in Massachusetts are white, and many belong to ethnic groups which have been especially victimized through the years.

We also recommend the formulation of guidelines to test the University's success in recruiting older students, and in serving women and transfer students.

We recommend that the University adopt, and the Legislature fund, financial aid sufficient to support the kind of student body we suggest. This is crucial. The President and Trustees have already decided to ask the Commonwealth for an additional $4.5 million for financial aid for fiscal 1973, a step we strongly support. We estimate that State support for financial aid to needy students will have to increase each year to a total of $20 million per annum by 1980 in order to achieve our goals. In addition, if the effort to attract low-income students is to succeed, present tuition should not be increased until an expanded financial aid program removes financial constraints as a barrier to attending the University.

We recommend that the University adopt new admissions criteria in order to maximize the accessibility of the institution to the groups we have mentioned without jeopardizing its commitment to excellence. The majority of students should be admitted according to a formula based solely on rank in high school class or grades. A substantial minority should be admitted according to individualized determination based on such factors as interview, judgment as to exceptional talents and potential, and recommendations. A process of individualized determination will be as important for large numbers of older students as it is for many low-income students.

We recommend, further, new recruiting measures to reach into high schools around the State, particularly schools previously under-represented, and into public agencies, corporations and other places where potential older students may be found. We also recommend skill development courses for all students who need special assistance with basic skills like reading, writing, speaking, and mathematics. Additional funds should be included in the fiscal 1973 budget to ensure the necessary support for administering these recruiting and skill development activities.

We recommend that public higher education as a whole move as soon as possible toward a system of open admissions which guarantees an opportunity for higher education to every Massachusetts high school graduate or equivalent who desires it. We believe there is no other way to ensure that the barriers to equal educational opportunity are removed. It is not physically possible or educationally desirable for the University to have an open admissions policy, but public higher education as a system should adopt the concept of open admissions as its standard.

In terms of the physical accessibility and characteristics of the University and its individual campuses, we make the following major recommendations:

In order to promote the physical accessibility of learning and the possibility of community service, we recommend that the plans for the Columbia Point campus be modified. Columbia Point should be developed not as the sole UMass/Boston, but as the nucleus of an urban university system which is dispersed throughout the Boston area.

Most of the University's Boston programs should be based at Columbia Point, but many should be available in other parts of the community, too. The present facility at 100 Arlington Street downtown should be retained. In addition, UMB should offer classes using the facilities of high schools, public agencies, businesses, and other colleges; contract with corporations, public agencies, museums, hospitals, and other outside agencies to offer programs partially at these locations; develop course offerings which utilize new technological possibilities; and establish experimental two-year satellite campuses especially convenient to low-income students.

We recommend that the restudy and redesign of the physical plans for the Boston campus begin immediately so that an appropriate mix of building at Columbia Point and program development elsewhere can occur with little disruption. The restudy should include attention to the problem of transit facilities to enable students to get to Columbia Point, and re-examination of the decision not to build any student and faculty housing on campus.

We recommend that growth at Amherst be slowed over a period of years and finally stopped at a ceiling of 25,000 students, and less if possible. The size of the Amherst campus makes it deleterious in its impact on surrounding communities. We wish to emphasize further that the remaining growth resources available to UMA will be extremely precious, and we recommend that they be concentrated on efforts for educational innovation and change.

We recommend that the teaching hospital at Worcester be constructed as soon as possible. The teaching hospital is important to the program and prestige of the Medical School; further delay in building it will seriously hamper the school's development.

Academic Issues

What students should learn in the coming years, and how, are at the heart of considering the course of the future University. It is inappropriate to attempt to prescribe a detailed curriculum for the future, but to deal with changes in process without considering questions of purpose would be equally inappropriate. So it is that we feel a clear obligation to suggest some new academic directions.

The complexity and weight of knowledge in a technological society are such that education must concentrate more than ever on such ends as analytical skills, the capacity for self-knowledge, the critical examination of values and social institutions, the fostering of aesthetic sensitivity, and the ability to deal with knowledge as a matter of process rather than specific content. These observations apply both to the arts and sciences and to professional programs.

At the same time, teaching and research need to respond more to contemporary social problems, bringing to bear the perspectives of the past, of theory, and of creativity that are especially the resources of universities, and applying those resources not only to the here and now, but also to help anticipate and bring to public attention the problems that will trouble society in the future.

The need to produce graduates who are prepared to contribute to the solution of immediate problems and the need to teach process more than specific content may be seen as contradictory. They are not. Rather, they imply a new agenda for the seventies: a priority on the creation of carefully designed professional programs (and adaptation of existing ones) which offer both practical competence and the perspective and values traditionally associated with the liberal arts. It is in the creation of this mixture of liberal arts and professional studies that we see a major challenge for the seventies.

The academic thrust of the University should give greater relative weight and prominence to undergraduate studies, with a diversity of programs, places, and times to learn that is consonant with the needs and requirements of an increasingly diverse student body and a complex society. In this major reorientation, the University's most effective research and graduate teaching functions, so vital to its identity and to society, must not suffer.

Toward a new diversity and an undergraduate focus, we make the following major recommendations:

We recommend the development of a new freshman year curriculum, together with greatly intensified advising and counseling services for freshmen and a greater share of University resources applied to the freshman year. Freshmen, who are going through a difficult period of adjustment, are in the largest, most impersonal courses, and receive insufficient personal attention outside of class. A careful re-ordering of the freshman curriculum is needed, to strike a balance between those who need structure and those whom it stifles, and to offer courses which provide a more effective introduction to various areas of knowledge and ways of learning.

We recommend a greater diversity of program for the rest of the undergraduate years, including:

—More options for independent study, including expansion of the individually designed major at Amherst and institution of such a major at Boston;

—Introduction of new problem-oriented learning units on the Amherst campus, in such areas as environmental and urban studies, where disciplinary lines have repeatedly been crossed in the past by scholars and teachers;

—A College of Public and Community Service on the Boston campus; and —A change in the master plan for Boston which now contemplates the development of six colleges of equal size. Additional colleges at UMB should be different from one another in their focus, and primarily professionally or problem-oriented. There might therefore ultimately be more than six colleges and they need not be the same size.

We recommend diversity in the place of learning, including:

—Expanded opportunities for field work in courses;

—Opportunities to spend a year or semester in the field for credit, like the federally sponsored University Year in Action program which the University is currently entering into and which we strongly support;

—Encouragement to the further development of the University Without Walls, a 17 college experiment in flexible learning, especially suitable to invalids, prisoners, the geographically remote, and students who work best on an individual basis;

—Partial dispersal of the Boston campus; and —In cooperation with other public and with private institutions, development of an "open university" unit for Massachusetts, whereby institutions can offer programs and courses through a combination of mailed materials, television or videotape, and tutorial/seminar at satellite learning centers. Even if an open university is not developed, the University should proceed to explore the potentiality of applying new technology to its methods of teaching and learning.

We recommend diversity in the time of learning, including:

—Deferred admission as a standard option for all freshmen accepted at the University, and reservation of places for people who apply after having been out of high school for a time;

—Encouragement of dropping out and coming back in as students feel the need for a break in their formal education;

—Allowing students to go faster and slower than the standard course load, taking more courses some terms and fewer in others, finishing more quickly or more slowly, and particularly being able to acquire a B.A. in three years if they so desire;

—Development of new combination degrees, wherein for example, 3 years of undergraduate work and 2 years of graduate work would lead to a master's degree; and —Re-examination of the length of all programs, especially the time required to obtain the Ph.D. and advanced professional degrees, with a view to shortening the total required time.

We recommend a number of underlying structural changes that are essential to an increased emphasis on undergraduate teaching. These include:

—A revamped and vastly enlarged system of advising and counseling, with a greater incentive to faculty participation, and an invitation to junior and senior students to join in the advising process. A budget increase of the magnitude of $1 million or more in fiscal 1973 will be required to support this added effort;

—Changes in the faculty reward system to make it explicit that a faculty member may make his or her primary contribution in one of the three areas of teaching, research, or service, with competence to be shown in each of the other areas as well;

Continued on Page 9

Continued from Page 8

—Development of a system of teacher evaluation to permit responsible and effective operation of the changed faculty reward system;

—Establishment of a "university professoriate," a cadre of scholars whose primary contribution will be in the area of undergraduate teaching;

—Leadership by the University in stimulating cooperative study of current issues regarding tenure, seeking perhaps some modification that would protect academic freedom but also allow an opportunity for periodic professional evaluation of a faculty member's continuing effectiveness;

—Provision of additional resources for support staff for faculty, including secretarial support in particular;

—Changes in staffing patterns, including hiring of more women and minority group faculty, and greater use of adjunct faculty from the worlds of the professions, business, government, and the community; and —Adequate support for library and computer facilities throughout the University.

We recommend that the graduate and research activities of the University, in both the arts and sciences and the professional areas, be examined to see how they can contribute more effectively to an enhanced undergraduate focus, including:

—A policy of excellence through selectivity in the graduate area of arts and sciences, e.g., strengthening programs of unusual academic promise and those where there is undeniable need;

—Measures to improve the teaching capability of teaching assistants and, more broadly, measures to make a University of Massachusetts graduate degree in the arts and sciences just as credible for the teaching excellence of its recipients as for their scholarly achievements;

—Involvement of undergraduates in research activities to the maximum extent possible; and —For the present, limiting development of arts and sciences graduate programs at Boston to the Master's level.

We recommend that special attention be given to new programs in professional education at Boston and Worcester, and that the existing professional schools at Amherst examine their programs to ensure that they are exposing their students sufficiently to broad humanistic values at the same time as they are imparting career skills.

Achievement of an undergraduate focus within the University also depends on recognition that learning is facilitated by the extent to which the University is a humane community. We recommend, therefore, that changes be made in dormitory living and learning at Amherst, and efforts at improving ambiance at Boston be undertaken, including:

At Amherst:

—More classes taught at the residential level;

—Experiments in modifying physical arrangements in dormitories, e.g., removing or moving walls, to make them more livable;

—Further decentralization of administration and decisionmaking regarding dormitory life;

—Expansion of the age range of dormitory residents; and

At Boston:

—Development of an arcade of stores and other facilities at the Columbia Point campus to facilitate development of an outside-of-class communal life;

—A re-study of whether to build limited housing on campus; and —Greater efforts at integration of the life of the University with that of the surrounding communities.

Public Service

In addition to a sharpened undergraduate focus, we believe heightened attention to the public service responsibilities of the University is indispensable to development of a model for public higher education capable of winning and sustaining broad-gauged public support. These responsibilities include technical assistance and research which help government and industry and others solve specific problems, and continuing education through short courses and conferences to provide in-service training and skill upgrading to government, business, and professional personnel.

The University's activities in this area now are a welter of uncoordinated efforts by individual faculty, by the various centers and institutes (which are located mainly at Amherst), and by the Cooperative Extension Service.

In the matter of public service the first need of the University is adequate knowledge of its own activities, those of other institutions, and the needs of the Commonwealth.

Second, the University needs permanent, high level staffing in the President's office and on the campuses to be responsible for coordinating public service activities and seeing that the right people are being served in the most effective ways.

Third, the University needs guidelines to govern its public service efforts. Public service activities should in large part be carried out by the faculty and students of the University, and should be related as closely as possible to the academic process. Some additional professional staff is essential for coordination, but a large infusion of new non-faculty personnel to actually perform service activities is not only unnecessary but also undesirable for the educational process. Public service efforts must be of value to the University at the same time as they serve society. If a particular activity does not create new knowledge, apply existing knowledge innovatively, or enhance faculty or student development, it is highly questionable whether the University should be involved in it.

Fourth, the University should seek additional funds to support public service activities, for essential staff and for service to groups which cannot afford to pay. The majority of service efforts should be self-supporting, but many essential projects will be impossible without investment of University resources.

We recommend that the University devote priority attention to service activities in six major areas: special attention to the University's neighbors, especially in Boston; service to government agencies; service to the poor; health service; elementary and secondary education and other areas of public higher education; and economic conversion and manpower.

The matter of the university's immediate neighbors is extremely important. Adequate high-level staff must be developed at UMass/Boston to enable policy planning in conjunction with the people of Columbia Point and Dorchester on the full range of issues of mutual concern. We would stress particularly the University's arrival from disrupting the local housing situation. We also urge renewed efforts by the administration at Amherst to consult the surrounding communities on relevant issues and to offer technical assistance in meeting the public policy problems of the area.

Organizational Changes

Our policy recommendations depend on some matters of structure as well. Needed change within the University will be facilitated by:

—Changes in governance on the campuses, including greater involvement of students in the exercise of authority and responsibility on issues where they have a legitimate interest;

—Re-examination of the role of the Board of Trustees to orient its work as much as possible to the most important issues of long-term University planning and policy;

—Establishment of ongoing self-study and evaluation mechanisms in the President's Office and on the campuses, to facilitate academic change and help judge the effectiveness of the University's program; and —Institution of a program budgeting system to enable the University to decide in a more informed way among the many competing demands for resources.

Costs

COSTS 24-43

We estimate the additional costs entailed by our recommendations, over and above currently foreseeable expenditures, to be from $6 to $7 million in fiscal 1973. These needed budget additions will pay for increased financial aid, improved advising and counseling, planning new academic programs, additional faculty, support staff for faculty, library and computer development, new staff and activities in the public service area, and planning and implementing an "open university" unit.

The University and Higher Education In Massachusetts

The University will find it hard to define its own role in the State so long as the missions and roles of the various levels of public higher education remain as undifferentiated and undefined as they are now. The promise of the Willis-Harrington Act of 1965 to bring order and definition to public higher education has never been fulfilled. The present master planning efforts of the Board of Higher Education will help, but it is also essential that leading public higher education officials in the State develop means for agreed upon delineation of boundaries and for cooperating in the application of resources.

Similarly, the University's future is complicated by the difficulties in which many private colleges and universities no find themselves. In our judgment, t University has a responsibility to take t initiative in developing new means of public-private coordination and to assist in the development and public acceptance of an appropriate plan to make public resources available to the private sector. The Commonwealth will be served best in years to come by a diversity of educational opportunities and institutions. In its own best interest as well as that of the public, the University has a leading role to play in fostering and maintaining that healthy diversity.

The new Columbia Point campus for UMass Boston. To the right is the Columbia Point development. (MDC photos by Alan Chapman)

Continued from Page 2

Massachusetts this has been interpreted several ways. In Boston, for example, students were allowed without question to register from dormitory residences. But, you go to a place like Cambridge, where the election commission has outright refused, as I understand it, to register many college students to vote. They have discriminated against them because they are students. They have said that if you're non-self-supporting, and you're a student, then you should not be permitted to register in the city of Cambridge. I think that's discrimination.

What about a person who's on welfare and not self-supporting? Are they asked that question? Another question is what they call the continuity of residence. They say if a student leaves for the summer, then this particular person is not a legal resident of Cambridge. But they don't ask the same kind of questions to a business man who might take his family to Cape Cod for the summer, and therefore leave Cambridge. They don't ask this to a Harvard professor who goes to Europe for the summer with his family. There's no question of the continuity of his residence here.

Q. Will the Student Vote attempt to get involved in legal battle over official resistance like this?

A. The whole question of where a student registers is something we try to keep out of. We think very strongly that young people should register to vote, but where they choose to vote is more of a partisan question. The way I feel is that students should not be asked any more questions or be asked to provide more proof of residence than any other citizen of the community.

Q. Why is it that young people trying to vote meet official resistance, at least in some places?

A. It would depend very much on the town and the particular circumstance. For example, let's look at Amherst, Mass., where students met resistance to some degree. There was a little bit of resistance in the beginning, but since then the election people have been very, very cooperative. In many college communities, especially in a small town like Amherst, students outnumber natives of the town, and there's a fear of students taking over. But in Amherst we found that in fact many students did not wish to register in the town of Amherst. They had very little interest in Amherst politics or in remaining in Amherst. Once the selectmen and the election commissioners realized this, they decided to make it much easier for students to register.

There are several other arguments, though. A lot of people say that students are not a permanent part of the community, they have very little vested interest in the community and what happens there. They're transient, they're mobile. But it's not so. Statistics are that in the 18 to 25-year-old group students are the least mobile group of people. They stay in a community four to seven years, depending on whether or not they go to graduate school.

And, a very important argument in favor of students being able to vote in college towns is that they're counted in the federal census. Now the federal census uses that figure by which Congressional apportionment is figured. In other words, the fact that there are a great number of students in Cambridge is very much related to the number of representatives Cambridge would have in the U.S. House of Representatives.

Q. How did you evaluate your success in registering young people up to the time of last month's local elections?

A. It's very difficult to make an evaluation that quickly, because the time when students were allowed to vote was really very close to the closing of registration for the elections. To evaluate what is seen by many as a low turnout, and I think it was a lot turnout, is not really to project the success in the future.

Q. Were you satisfied with what you did get in the time available?

A. Yes, I think so.

Q. How much will registration for next year's presidential election depend on who the candidates are?

A. I think that if you have a candidate about whom students aren't very excited, for whom students aren't interested in working, registration will be low.

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — Nathan Gorenstein
BUSINESS MANAGER — James Gold
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Gib Fullerton
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR — Bob Nesti
NEWS STAFF — Charlie Berkow, Earle Barroll
SPORTS — Ann Gurnett, David Williams
EDITORIAL — Gary Alpaugh, Alan Chapman, Carl Nash DARKROOM

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.
Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

The Beat Goes On

Since the tragedy at New York State's Attica prison in which 42 lives were lost, there has been much talk but little action in improving the conditions in our prisons. Yet there is some evidence that valuable lessons have been learned.

Last week's rebellion at New Jersey's Rahway Prison Farm, a maximum security institution, offers some of it. For a while it was a tense situation, in which the rebel inmates had seized the warden and five guards, and wild rumors were rife.

Yet in contrast to Attica, New Jersey Gov. William Cahill held off on a plan to attack the prison by force and went personally to the prison to meet with the rebels' leaders. The hostages were released, and the warden later praised one of the inmates for stitching up, and competently, too, a wound he had suffered when someone's boot stomped him in a scuffle. And there will be full negotiations over the prisoners' grievances.

Here in Massachusetts, where work stoppages and the forced removal of inmates to other institutions took place several weeks ago, the situation is still tense and volatile at the prisons in Walpole and Norwood. It must be viewed against the backdrop of the Legislature's failure to reform adequately the two-thirds law as Gov. Sargent had urged, and of the governor's failure so far to find a successor to John Fitzpatrick, who has resigned as commissioner of correction to take effect when someone can be found to replace him.

In this context, a telegram sent to Gov. Sargent by a group of 101 religious, legal, academic and community leaders, and originated by Packard Manse, Inc., of Stoughton, an interfaith, interracial group, seems most timely. It includes Boston Municipal Court Judge Harry J. Elam, head of the special citizens committee created by Gov. Sargent to study prison unrest.

The telegram urged the governor to visit the correctional institutions to see conditions for himself, and to close, by executive order, the solitary confinement units at Bridgewater State Hospital, which are described as "medieval chambers of horror."

The governor was urged to tell the public that its own self-interest is not served by spending vast sums "to teach criminals to be more criminal, hopeless and dehumanized." To tell the prisoners of his "concern for them and therefore urge them to resist temptation to self-destructive actions," and to point out to the correctional officers both his concern for their "fears and difficult role" and his belief that their own "self-interest and safety is best protected by constructive prison reform, based on the premise that prisoners are human beings."

This was, we feel, a well-intended and helpful message, and the governor ought to act on it.

(Reprinted from the Boston Globe 11/30/71)

Art Buchwald

Hello, Mr. President

WASHINGTON–In spite of all he has to do, President Nixon still takes time out of his busy day to telephone football coaches and offer them encouragement and advice.

While the President does this on the spur of the moment, it has never occurred to any football coach to telephone Mr. Nixon and offer him words of inspiration and solace.

I imagine if a coach did, the call would go something like this.

"Hello, Mr. President, this is Coach Harold Elkins of the John V. Lindsay High School football team. I just wanted to call you and tell you to keep your chin up and don't get discouraged because you've lost a few lately."

"Thank you, Coach."

"The most important thing to remember is that when you're on the five-yard line and you're fumbling, the other guy still has to recover the ball."

"I never thought of that, Coach."

"Mr. President, my team lost 39 out of its last 40 games, but I learned one thing. Never give up. You have to say to yourself, 'I may be losing the battle for inflation or the economy; or the fight with labor or with Congress,' or whatever you're losing at the moment, 'but I'm going to stick in there and give as good as I get, because I'm a pro.'"

"Those are inspiring words, Coach."

"Now, I want to tell you something Mr. President, that you probably don't know about me. I always wanted to go into politics. But I wasn't light enough to make the team. I played some sandlot politics, and in my freshman year in college, I ran for a couple of offices, and so what I tell you now comes not from the heart, but from experience.

"The game of politics is just like the game of football. You win some and you lose some, and you usually lose more than you win. But what counts is not when you're winning and the crowd is cheering, but when you're losing and you're still willing to play. You have that spirit, Mr. President. You've lost a few, but you've never given up, and I admire that in a politician.

"Mr. President, I'm going to go out on a limb and predict that you're going to be in the playoffs in 1972. If Connally can pull off Phase II, and Agnew doesn't get hurt, and the stock market goes up, and you can block George Meany, and if you can score some points against George Wallace, I believe you're going to be very tough to beat."

"Coach, I have to ring off now...."

"I want to make one thing perfectly clear, Mr. President. You're going to goof between now and '72–everyone goofs in politics, as in football, but the man who wins is the one who says, 'I've goofed, but I'm still in the ball game.'"

"Coach, I've got Chou En-lai on 'hold.'"

"Mr. President, do you know what wins football games?"

"No, I don't."

"It's team spirit. Gen. Pershing once said that a team with a great morale is nothing if you don't have the spirit to go with it."

"He said that?"

"Right. Team spirit is contagious. If you, as President, say to your team 'Let's get them,' it can infect everyone in your Administration from the Vice President of the United States to Henry Kissinger's 10-year-old son."

Copyright 1971, Los Angeles Times

Reason And Compassion Unionized

By LARRY LADD

Joe Hill would roll over in his grave. All over the nation, the faculties of colleges and universities are considering the possibility of forming unions and engaging in collective bargaining. Even here at UMass/Amherst, the faculty is now debating the merits of unionization.

Yesterday, a spokeswoman of the American Federation of Teachers (an AFL-CIO affiliate) came to campus to talk with interested faculty. A motion is on the agenda of the Faculty Senate that invites union organizers to address that body. It is reasonable to assume that the faculty will make a decision in the next few years.

This is serious business. Unionization would have many long-term effects on the academic growth of this campus, and especially on the education we students will be exposed to.

The Commission on the 1968 Columbia Riots defined a university as "essentially a free community of scholars dedicated to the pursuit of truth and knowledge solely through reason and civility." Of course, reality contradicts this noble notion. Students have learned over the past decade that the raw exercise of body power (strikes, demonstrations, boycotts, etc.) can create change that Emily Post cannot. But exercising this power did not itself create change, it only created the conditions where students were regarded as significant members of "the community." After we had forced acknowledgement of our legitimate interests, we could then engage in dialogue with faculty and administrators about what the university should be. This concept of partnership was a progressive step.

But I fear that the faculty might use unionization to deny partnership; to once again isolate themselves from the rest of the university. The AFT spokeswoman summed it up well, when she stated that the faculty is working for, not with, the administration. I would assume that the faculty should, by the same logic, teach to, not learn with, the students. This is a major step backward, for the spirit of a mutal enterprise is lost.

I also fear that unionization will lead to standardization, a leveling process that will reward docility and reject diversity. If no provision is made for merit increases or for advancement of teachers who have different standards than their colleagues, the faculty will eventually degenerate to the lowest common denominator. Excellence will be sacrificed to shop standards.

A faculty union will wreak havoc with our accustomed definitions. Who is "management?" The administration? Most administrators are teachers themselves, hardly ready to assume an adversary role with fellow teachers. Being an administrator would mean leaving the faculty club, a step few would like to make. And where would students fit in the scenario?

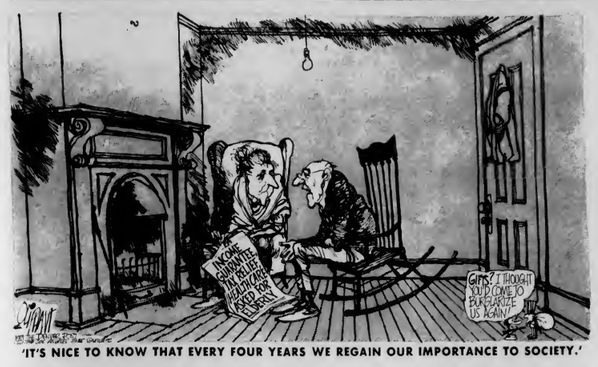
Negotiations around the conditions of employment are not particularly threatening to the concept of partnership. If bargaining is devoted primarily to salary levels, office space, secretarial help, and sabbaticals, it can only help to improve faculty performance.

Unfortunately, negotiations around governance are where the faculty could dog in their heels and deny thrusts for academic change.

Richard Hixon, an AFT official, is quoted in the New York Times (Nov. 14) as saying that collective bargaining is "the last conservative alternative on campus." Indeed, unionizing can be seen today as inherently conservative, as a means of protecting faculty privilege and stifling academic innovation. Certainly this has been the case in New York City, where the teachers' union is the major roadblock to any changes in that city's archaic public school system. Any challenge to the status quo is translated as a threat to teachers. At a time when students are asking teachers to spend more time in the classroom, the faculty could demand less. At a time when students deserve participation in faculty personnel decisions, the faculty could use unions to decide curricular policies, the interests of the university and the union will come to direct confrontation. At a time when the university is finally beginning to recognize that academics is a mutual responsibility of students and faculty, unionizing would be a clear-cut regression that would serve only to polarize. The only reasonable student response to a teachers' union would be a student union, where we would meet across a bargaining table with structured conflict. It is an understatement to say that this vision of the future is a violation of the concept of an academic community founded on reason and compassion.

True Confessions

I Wear Panty Hose



By TOM DERDERIAN

I wear panty hose! And I also have a beard. I run through the streets of Amherst in purple panty hose. Charlotte turned me on to panty hose for running. They are better than the usual glory jock regalia of baggy blowing sweat pants. They don't get wet as easily and little balls of lint don't come off on my hairy legs.

So. Since I wear panty hose like lots of women do then I must be endowed with an excess of the same kind of hormones that define their feminine traits. And as a matter of fact I do. Every nite I secretly mix up instant female hormone in an old gatorade bottle and guzzle it down by the light of the moon. And there every night by the light of the moon three of my beard hairs fall out. Maybe someday I might have a cover girl complexion.

My nipples are growing. Although I'll never brandish a set of 44's, I still might get it on enough for the ushers at the basketball games to wow when they give me a pass to go to the ladies room to get the shine off my nose.

And I'll go to the veins. I'll mainline female hormones so I'll get to be as good a sprinter as Kathy Lawson and make the men's varsity team for indoor track.

'IT'S NICE TO KNOW THAT EVERY FOUR YEARS WE REGAIN OUR IMPORTANCE TO SOCIETY.'

Letters To The Editor

The $8m Question - Will Tillson Stink?

To the Editor:

Undoubtedly, for the next few days the Collegian will print many letters decrying the "disgraceful" way in which the UMass Physical Plant is polluting the air as reported in Friday's Collegian. Many, I'm sure, will echo Don Glickstein's irresponsible swipes at the new Tillson Farm plant. However, to paraphase, John Hogan, its very nice to insist that something be done about the pollution. This, however, is not what is needed either here at the University or anywhere else. What is needed is an effective plan of action to assure that UMass pollution will be curbed.

The issue of the Physical Plant's polluting is fast becoming an irrelevant question. I'm sure even Mr. Gilbert, the Chief Engineer of the Physical Plant, doesn't even believe his comments in Friday's Collegian he is merely trying to buy time until the completion of the new Tillson Farm Plant which will comply with Air Pollution control standards and get Mr. Gilbert off the hook. But will the new plant be as pollution free as possible? I suspect that few, if any, know the answer.

Before the Tillson Farm Plant proceeds further some very important questions have to be answered.

—What different kinds of pollution will be produced? (noise, odors, smoke, steam, particulate matter?) More importantly, what will be the effects on human health, crops, livestock, wildlife, trees and plantlife, and University propety. ("Sulfur oxides are estimated to cause ten to fifteen billion dollars' worth of property damage a year." Esposito, Vanishing Air. p. 91)

—What will be the total cost of the plant both economically and environmentally? Costs include not only property damage but also the more subjective costs of esthetic beauty loss and cost to human health. Also, what are the costs and resulting pollution levels using alternate types of fuels? (such as desulpherized residual oil) What is required is a complete cost-benefit analysis of the entire project.

—Will the Tillson Plant comply with existing emission standards? More importantly, will it comply with future, hopefully more stringent regulations? What kind of self-monitoring system, if any, is planned?

The Student Senate as a body should immediately demand that it be involved in the investigation and researching of these questions, should initiate hearings on the new plant, and should insure that no final decision is made until all questions are answered to their satisfaction. Also, the Senate should demand that it be involved in all the important decisions on the plant in an effort to represent the students' interests and values. (Perhaps the Senate would even be willing to pay for an additional cost that would help make the plant pollution free.) In the event that all these questions have already been investigated and considered, the results should be made public immediately.

I'm not calling for a confrontation. What I desire is more cooperation, communication, trust and justice in such decisions as these which directly affect the students' interests. It's bad that the old Physical Plant is polluting-it will truly be a disgrace if the new Tillson Farm Physical Plant were allowed to follow its predecessor.

Stephen Rider

The Bronco Buster

As usual, Bob Corry is good for a laugh. His letter in the "Daily Collegian" on December 2nd entitled "A Very Sick Buckeroo" was hilarious. Although I despise stereotyping people, Corry's letter reminded me of the character Joe in the movie "Joe". Joe is perhaps less sophisticated in his word choice and style of expression, but both he and Corry espouse the same primitive human values.

It's evident that sex, a biological drive, is a major factor in motivating human behavior, and the abundance of literature and films on the topic undoubtedly attracts public attention. Sex, however, can become an inhibiting and stagnating experience, or an enhancing and fulfilling one. In the depressing film, "Carnal Knowledge", Jack Nicholson and Art Garfunkel are characterized as two extreme poles. Nicholson prostitutes anyone he can to stimulate his egocentric erection, while Garfunkel prostitutes himself to anyone who gives him reassurance. On the other hand, in the film, "Together" (even though it romanticizes using very attractive agile characters, a summer retreat that only the Duponts could afford, and the typical couple who by chance are awarded the presidential suite in some hotel located somewhere in the Bahamas) sex is shown as a medium to develop human awareness and sensitivity.

For a society to censor sexual morality in films, literature, and among consenting people, is imposing a value upon a population. What sexual censorship that exists in "mainland China (or Albania)", I am unaware of; but, as I recall, the movie "I Am Curious Yellow", among several other movies banned in Boston and many other cities in the United States. It wasn't until recent supreme court decisions that R and X rated movies were shown with no reprisal.

I agree with you Corry, a society should not legislate morality, nor should a society uphold laws which restrict human potential, i.e. to restrict various groups to certain activities. Certainly, many women want to have children. But should a women merely be a baby maker and sitter, a house servant and maid, and an object of her husband's sex and love? Most doctors in the Soivet Union are women and during World War Two the industries of our country were run primarily by our women. Hey Corry, maybe your mother and aunt were one? Do you think they had an excess of male hormones?

And Corry, remember in the Hatch when you told me you were looking for a woman with "machine gun hips"? Did you ever find that bronco to bust or are you still looking for the ride of your life?

Kaspar Kasparian Jr.

I've Been Paraphrased!

To the Editor:

I'm writing in response to an article written by UMass's favorite "...raper of continents! oppressor of all non-Western peoples! chauvinist! elitist bastard!". He took it upon himself to conveniently paraphrase (?) my earlier article. Since there seems to be a definte lack in his reading conprehension, I'm taking this opportunity to clarify the issues for him. According to Mr. Corry I attacked, "...the desire of many...girls to have a child of their own...". However, in actuality, I questioned the statement that women have the opportunity to "choose to be a mother". I again repeat that many women who espouse goals of motherhood do not objectively choose to be a mother, but are merely socialized into the role, and accept it blindly. Not all women like children; not all women are capable of being good mothers; not all women want the "burden". Unfortunately, many of them realize this, consciously or otherwise, too late. The result?–not only unhappy mothers, but worse, unhappy children.

On first reading Mr. Corry's article I had planned to tear it apart sentence by sentence, but besides this being tedious, he does the job quite well himself, utilizing an unimpressive array of asinine ideas, such as the one that states that women who aspire to goals other then motherhood, wish to be "...heavy equipment operators, traffic cops, or long distance runners...". I'm sure these occupations are within women's capabilities and interests; however, their aspirations extend much farther in both directions of the spectrum. My final example is the allegation that all feminists suffer from an excess of male hormones; I challenge you to prove it, Mr. Corry!

Karen Jacobs

Editorial Points

You people may enjoy reading editorial points, but then you don't have to write them, do you?

******

It's nearing Christmas time again, and just to prove that they can get into the holiday spirit, the powers that be have put up real Christmas trees in the Union and Campus Center. What we're wondering is whether or not they're against the fire laws?

******

One of the worst things about snow is that it turns into rain which turns into slush which turns into ice. Ask any person who lives on the Hill.

******

All you people who keep window boxes full of geraniums, marigolds and such like had better watch out. Don't let any weeds get among the fair blossoms.

******

Alright kiddies, it's the right time to start getting psyched about what the dining commons Christmas dinner will be. The Collegian received a hot tip that the lucky few who last long enough to get the meal will be served Rock Cornish hens with all the fixings. But don't let them stop there. Insist, in the spirit of Tiny Tim, on receiving 'rasselbery dressing' instead of canned cranberry sauce. After all, it is Christmas.

******

Who's this Bartholomew guy we've been hearing so much about lately, anyhow?

Let's Not Be Bitter, Now

To the Editor:

Jacqueline Letalien's letter (12/6/71) in reply to that of Robert Corry was the predictable and rather childish soul-bearing to which we are inevitably subjected to each time someone points out the obvious and disturbing weaknesses of the "sisterhood." Does Miss Letalien really feel that threatening to "pull the chair out from under" Mr. Corry is a sophisticated and rational manner in which to handle male opponents?

The major thrust of Mr. Corry's letter was to say that women's lib should not attempt to impose its conception of "proper" society upon others. Miss Letalien, on the other hand, seems to feel that she and her cohorts have the right to impose their conceptions on society ("If we knock over some male chairs in the process it's because we are angry and bitter..."). Miss Letalien should stop to consider that many people may not wish to deal with those who are angry, bitter and thus irrational and hysterical in their conduct.

As if deliberately compounding her errors Miss Letalien stumbled over Mr. Corry's remarks about hormone imbalances. He did not say or imply that masculine traits in men were "evil," but rather that a woman's attempting to totally imitate male characteristics is inappropriate. No one, neither Mr. Corry nor myself, would deny women equal opportunity. What we do deny is that male and female roles can ever be identical. No one seeks to treat women as less than human, only as one of two different sexes of the same species.

What Mr. Corry and I am saying is that white males are no longer willing to tolerate the unjust and vicious attacks upon their dignity as human beings. We know that the horrors attributed to us are unfounded, that they are the creation of a grotesque misunderstanding of the human condition, society and culture on the part of Miss Letalien and the "sisterhood." Their intentions notwithstanding, the women's movement is in large part anti-male (they see men as oppressors), anti-motherhood (which they see as ensolvement), and anti-social (they see society as a conspiracy). And as such they have condemned themselves to a futile and hollow existence in a cause whose distinctive characteristics are its intolerance, lack of warmth and viciousness.

Frank M. Baglione

"Well, Maybe I Can Come Down A Little"

New York Chamber Group At Holyoke Tomorrow

The New York Trio de Camera.

The New York Trio da Camera will present a recital of renaissance and baroque chamber music, the third concert of the Artist Recital Series at Mount Holyoke College, Wednesday, December 8, at 8:15 p.m. in Pratt Auditorium.

The trio performed at Mount Holyoke on the John Martyn Warbeke Memorial Concert series in the spring of 1971, and the enthusiam that was shown for them was so great that they were invited to return. They will perform works of Leclair, Susato, Widmann, Carl Philipp Emmanuel Bach, Johann Sebastian Bach, Handel, Blow, Frescobaldi, and Telemann for viola da gamba played by Grace Feldman, recorder played by Paul Jordan, and harpsichord played by Edward Brewer.

The members of the Trio have been working together for five years, and they have made three successful tours of the United States. After two such tours they made an impressive New York debut that caused a New York Times critic to comment. "All (members of the Trio) were thoughtful and responsive musicians with a refined chamber-music sense." Their future plans include a European tour.

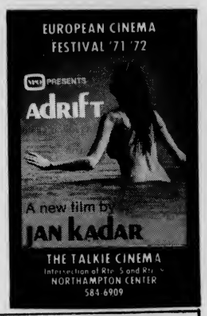
Miss Feldman appears with the New York Pro Musica and is a member of the faculty of the New England Conservatory of Music and Wellesley College. She teaches at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts and the Neighborhood Music School in New Haven, Conn. Mr. Jordan, the director of music at the United Church on the Green in New Haven, Conn., has taught organ at Yale University. Mr. Brewer is professionally active in New York and until recently taught harpsichord and organ at Columbia University.

Tickets at $2. are available at the door.

Smithies Do Up The Wizard

For those adults who love nostalgic experiences, and for those young people who enjoy old fairy tales, the Smith College Department of Theatre and Speech is offering a delightful experience: a lavish presentation of The Wizard of Oz, as adapted for the stage by Frank Gabrielson, with music and lyrics by Harold Arlen and E.Y. Harburg.

The production will feature all of the famous characters: Dorothy, Aunt Em and Uncle Henry, the Tin Woodsman, the Cowardly Lion, and the Scarecrow, witches–wicked and good, and, of course, the Wizard of Oz, himself.



The cast will be made up of graduate and undergraduate students at Smith College, and will include a large number of youngsters who live in Northampton and Hatfield.

The show will open on Friday evening at 8 p.m.. Subsequent performances will be on Friday, Dec. 10 at 8 p.m., and on Saturday, the 11th at 10 a.m., and 8 p.m. Tickets may be obtained at the box office in the Center for the Performing Arts weekdays between noon and 5 p.m., 584-2700, ext. 840.

Fine Arts Council To Meet On Pop Music

The future of popular music, (folk, jazz, rock, soul, etc.) on this campus is again this year the subject of much confusion and misinformation. For those who are concerned about this subject, the UMass Fine Arts Council has scheduled a meeting of an advisory group on popular music today at 4:30 p.m. in Herter 129.

This group is open to all members of the community–students, faculty, staff, and area residents. There is a considerable amount of money available for next year's activities in this area, and many good things can be done with it. For students especially, this is a chance to have a say as to where your money is going. People with any ideas in this respect, or any other input for the Council, be there Tuesday.

Women To Discuss Media

Project SELF, a program initiated by the Valley Women's Center in cooperation with the UMass Division of Continuing Education, is sponsoring a workshop Dec. 13 as part of its expanding program for women.

Joan Engel will offer the "Media's Investment in Consumerism" workshop Monday, Dec. 13 at 7:30 p.m. in Machmer W. 26 on the UMass Campus. The 75 cent charge for admission covers film rental.

The format includes the Bess Meyerson film, "You Don't Have to Buy War, Mrs. Smith," a showing of spot commercials, and discussion of topics that include consumerism, stereotypes of women in the media, media's role in socialization of adults and children and suggestions for media improvement.

Those interested in participating may obtain a list of preparatory questions and quotes from Joan Engel or Lois Phillips, 920 Campus Center, 545-2596, 9 to 1 daily.

Authorized — SALES — SERVICE — PARTS
VOLKSWAGEN ... YOUR KEY TO QUALITY and ECONOMY!
TRADES WELCOMED
IMMEDIATE FINANCING QUALITY USED CARS
OPEN
Till 9:00 P.M. Monday thru Friday
Till 5:00 P.M. Saturday
COMPLETE AUTO BODY DEPARTMENT
NORTHAMPTON VOLKSWAGEN, Inc.
246 KING ST. NORTHAMPTON 584-8620 HOLYOKE 534-0660

MDC Classifieds

Craft Workshop

Student Union Bldg.

Jewelry	Basketry
Leather	Candles
Stained Glass	Macrame
Clear Casting	Copper Enameling
Silk Screen	Metal Work (copper)
Block Printing	Paper Mache

Instruction and supplies available for the above crafts starting Thursday, Dec. 9th.

NEW GAMES AREA ADDITION (BeTween Billiard Room and Free U)
— Student Union —
Bumper Pool Tables
Bowling Machines
Motorcycle Game
Race Car Game
and ..... 2 Soccer Ball!!

Rod Rogers Here Tonight

Members of the Rod Rodgers dance company.

Three evening performances will be featured when the Rod Rodgers Dance Company appears at UMass on Tuesday-Thursday, December 7, 8, 9 at 8:00 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium. The performances are sponsored by the UMass Fine Arts Council in cooperation with the Massachusetts Council on Arts and Humanities. A different program will be featured in each evening's performance.

Rod Rodgers, noted Black choreographer-dancer, was introduced to his art as a child in a family of professional dancers. He studied and worked in the mid-west prior to coming to New York in 1963 to performwith several concert companies. With his own company, Mr. Rodgers has firmly established himself as one of today's most provocative young choreographers. He has had several articles on dance published, including "Don't Tell Me Who I AM," Negro Diges, July 1968 and "Men and the Dance: Why do we question the image?," Dance Magazine, June 1966, and is an articulate spokesman for dance.

Each evening's performance on December 7, 8, 9 will feature a six-part program. Dances to be performed will include: "Dances in Projected Space," individual and group plays of movement with light images; "Box," a psychological study in confinement; "Percussion Suite," a rhythmic play with bells, cymbals, tone block, claves and marracha sticks; "In Hi-Rise Shadows," a series of overlapping and recurring encounters between men and women which, as life does, streams on.

Also included in the programs are: "Tangenets," briefly touching; "Harambee," a ritual of the inspiration, martyrdom and a spiritual ressurrection of Black Leaders

Reserved tickets for the performances are available at the Fine Arts Council Ticket Office, 125 Herter Hall. Remaining tickets will be available at Bowker Auditorium one hour before the performance.

"Don't Tell Me Who I Am"

I am not looking for any over-simplified answer to the question: Who am I? It is obvious by now that I am not going to be a great white American dancer. But I have little patience with people who suggest that to be a black choreographer one must limit one's scope and deal exclusively with traditional Afro-American material.

The question of an artist's identity is one that he continually asks. He asks it through his chosen medium by experimentally probing into different aspects of his identity and environment. Whether one functions as a choreographer who also happens to be black, or as a black man who happens to be a choreographer is determined by one's point of view at a given moment. The ideal point of view at any given moment, for the individual artist, is the one which best allows him to create the most profoundly exciting art. If he cannot produce beautifully and exciting art, there is no point in discussing his political or ideological commitments in relation to art.

The militant black revolutionary may think of art in terms of the whole machinery of the revolution, as a means of bringing forth the rich heritage of the African in America and of creating a sense of identity for the sake of the revolution. Most of the existing dance companies which are the instruments of black choreographers have placed their emphasis on traditional Afro-American material. They are exploring through their artistry the proud Afro-American heritage, and they can evoke poignant images which will encourage intolerance of racial suppression. But these images are not the only means of communicating a black consciousness. While traditionalblack art is playing a vital role in the awakening of a black cultural identity, now it is equally important for black artists to discourage the crystallization of new limiting sterotypes by not confining themselves to over-simplified traditional images.

I am not suggesting that black artists should or could cut themselves off from Afro-American tradition. Artist or layman, our past experience inevitably affects our articulation of present ideas. But if an artist's sense of immediacy is to vitalize his work, he should have freedom to decide which ideas he feels a need to communicate at a particular time. Artists have felt compelled to create images calling for social changes long before their own people were ready to initiate such changes. Other artists might never be moved to focus their art on socio-historic events. It is not a question of art for art's sake; it is a need to be true to one's own feelings. Although masterpieces have been created on commission, in the process of fulfilling some sponsor's vision, far more often the product of artists working with ideas which are devoid of deep personal relevance has tended to be poor art.

An artist's assumption that he knows exactly what his audience "needs" often results in art that is, at best, patronizing. The highest compliment an artist can pay his audience is to invite them to witness his exploration of the maximum possibilities of his art, based on his total experience.

The dance that I do is Afro-American, simply because I am Afro-American. My blackness is part of my identity as a human being, and my dance exploration is evolving in relation to my total experience as a man. It is simply a question of what takes precedence in the creative act: my total living experience, or those experiences which I consider particularly relevant to my blackness. Both white and black Americans have long been conditioned to accept the myth that Afro-Americans function well only in certain predictable area. This myth must be dispelled. The refusal of black artists to confine their work to convenient categories will contribute to the destruction of this limited notion. Each dance that I create has grown out of my personal experience as a black American. Each movement that I explore is part of my own personal heritage.

My emphasis is on exploring through my medium, experimenting with dance, trying to find fresh ways to evoking physical and spiritual images to make new poetic comments about man's eternal beauty and pathos. My function in the revolution will be to share my personal experience–a vital and growing experience–through dance; it will not be to show only old sterotypes or create new ones.

WANTED
Maked & Baked Goods
for
Orchard Hill Bazaar
Dec. 12.
Call Howie 546-6909

...BY HIGH AUTO INSURANCE COSTS?
get the lowest legal rates
for all vehicles
and all coverages
with easy monthly payments
NOW'S THE TIME FOR 1972 AUTO INSURANCE!
TKO YOUR INSURANCE PROBLEMS with . . .
TEKOA INSURANCE AGENCY
Avoid downtown Spfld. parking headaches in WEST SPRINGFIELD at 366 MEMORIAL AVE. Opp. Century Shopping Plaza! Free parking for over 100 cars!
WESTFIELD 10 BROAD ST. Next to P.O.
NORTHAMPTON 160 PLEASANT ST. Opp. N'hamp. Jr. College
FAIRVIEW 1847 MEMORIAL DR., On North-South Hwy.
EVERETT J. O'CONNOR INSURANCE AGENCY
HOLYOKE . . . 205 HIGH ST. . . . Next to Holyoke Nat'l. Bank

Kodak
• SALES & REPAIRS CAMERAS ACCESSORIES • FILM PROCESSING
LANG'S PHOTO
• AGFA • NIKON • MINOLTA • PRAKTICA • SAWYER • FAMICONI • BRAUN . . and others
BANKAMERICARD
STUDIO
• RENTALS OF STILL & MOVIE EQUIPMENT
• SPECIALISTS IN CUSTOM PHOTO FINISHING (COLOR & BLACK & WHITE)
COMPLETE STOCK OF DARKROOM EQUIPMENT & MATERIALS
"Want To Learn Photography? JOIN OUR CLUB!"
We Have the Service You've Been Looking for 253-3148
460 West St., South Amherst - Route 16 and 183 No. Pleasant St.
(next to Whole Wheat Trading Co.)

boot magic
BUY ONE LANGE* BOOT AT $120 GET THE OTHER ONE FREE!
AMAZE YOUR FRIENDS!
Be the first kid on your street to accomplish this amazing feat. No box-tops or coupons necessary
*ONE SWINGER $120.00 MATES FREE
ONE PRO $150.00
ONE COMP $180.00
timberline
SKI & SUNSHINE SHOPS
16 ACRES: WILBRAHAM RD. AT PARKER ST. HADLEY: RTE. 9 AT HADLEY VILLAGE SHOPS' OPEN WEEKDAYS: 10-9, SAT. 10-6

Buffalo Bill Arrives This Thursday

UMass Theatre Actors are seen in a rehearsal of Arthur Kopit's internationally acclaimed play, INDIANS. The production will be seen Dec. 9-11 and 16-18, 8:30 p.m. at Bartlett Auditorium on the UMass Campus, reserved seats are available at the Bartlett Box Office or by calling 545-2579.

The UMass Theatre continues its tenth season with what is probably the most exciting American play to appear in the last decade, Arthur Kopit's internationally acclaimed, Indians.

Indians, as the New York Times described, when it opened off Broadway in 1969, "Is a play to savor in the recesses of your being....Extraordinarily exciting, yet anticipatory in its portents." But still Indians is a gaudy, noisy, wild west show preaching hellfire in raucous parables, joyously thumbing its nose at the niceties of historic fact.

The action of Indians takes place in the center ring of Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show. Some of the performers are Billy the Kid, Jesse James, Wild Bill Hickok, Sitting Bull and an American President. They all re-enact their parts in the conquest of the west--their legends and myth building exploits.

Yet Indians isn't a play about how we mistreated the indians, we are all pretty well aware of that fact: rather, Indians, is about the creation of a myth-a national mind-set with Buffalo Bill and the indians of the old west as its central figures.

Indians has been termed a play with a "message", but above that common cliche, it is a piece of pure entertainment, with all the sights and sounds of those rowdy and boistrous wild west shows. It is a spectacle of the rodeo arena, the western songs and the drama of triumph that is juxtaposed with the earth bound rituals, dances and chants of the Indians.

Indians is directed by Gary Stewart, who directed last year's American College Theatre Festival Winner for, UMass Theatre, The Clouds. Sets are by Jeff Fiala, costumes by Elizabeth Weiss Hopper, lights by James F. Dooley Jr., choreographer is Janet Craft with music and sound by Jason McAuliffe.

Production dates are December 9-11 & 16-18, Thursday through Friday nights.

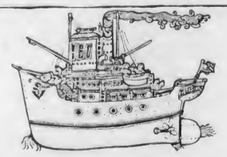
The Noah Webster Of Estonia

"When you are an exile, you want to do something for your former country." That's how Paul F. Saagpakk, associate-professor of English at UMass, explains having spent the past 20 of his 61 years compiling an Estonian-English dictionary now awaiting publication.

In exile from the Russian-occupied state of Estonia, Prof. Saagpakk hopes his dictionary will keep alive Estonia's culture. He says, "Language is the number one index of culture. The dictionary will give young Estonians in the West an awareness of the riches of the language and help them to understand their parents' culture. And other nations also will have access to the rich folklore and literature of Estonia."

Prof. Saagpakk says that "scholarly desire" has been the drive behind him in the years since 1950, when he started work on his Estonian-English dictionary. Teaching at that time at Upsala College in New Jersey, Saagpakk planned the dictionary on a small scale, but, in his words, "then I got so interested that I left school for four years and lived like a pauper on $100 a month in Sweden, working on the dictionary."

In preparing the dictionary, Saagpakk compiled a list of words from 18 Estonian dictionaries and other sources and added numerous idioms and slang terms. He translated the words into English--"the most difficult part"-- and classified them grammatically; gave synonyms; developed a special system of pronunciation; and worked out etymologies.



According to Prof. Saagpakk, "There is no other modern, standard Estonian dictionary which contains all the Estonian words with their various meanings defined, and all the expressions and idioms in use." He quotes H. J. Aavik, the reformer of modern Estonian, as having said that the dictionary will remain the definitive work in the field for the next 100 years.

Supported in part by grants from the American Council of Learned Societies, UMass and the Fulbright Foundation, Prof. Saagpakk estimates that he has spent $43,000 in compiling the dictionary.

Publication of the dictionary, which is now under consideration, will cost another $70,000, Prof. Saagpakk expects. The UMass Graduate School has pledged $10,000 toward this cost.

Prof. Saagpakk says that if a publisher finds it is economically feasible to print the dictionary, it will be another two to three years before it is issued, during which time he will proofread the work. He says the published form will be probably 1500 to 1600 pages, each page of the size and printing style of "Webster's Seventh New Collegiate Dictionary".

Quicksilver
57 North Pleasant Street
TONITE
featuring
CAT DANCE
RESTAURANT
Open 24 Hours

The Scupper's Coming
with entertainment
CALIFORNIA - NEVADA - MASSACHUSETTS

ATTENTION

All RSO Groups & Activities

All groups currently operating under constitutions granted by the Student Government Association (Student Senate) are required to fill out the form below. Those groups which should fill out the form include all RSO's, Activities, recent Executive Orders, and those groups who wish to apply for such status. These forms are to be returned no later than TUESDAY, DECEMBER 21, 1971, to the address below.

RETURN TO
Wm. Spinn
Govt. Affairs Comm.
Student Senate
RSO 801
Campus Center

RSO Registration Form

Name of Group _____ RSO# _____

REPRESENTATIVE _____

Rep's Add. _____ Ph.# _____

(check appropriate item)

Constituted _____ Exec. Order _____

New Group _____ Area Govt. _____ Dorm _____

FAILURE TO FILE THIS FORM WILL RESULT IN LOSS OF RSO STATUS

Northern Ireland

How To Become Partisan Without Really Trying

"Shooting is a popular sport in the countryside. Unlike many other countries,, the outstanding characteristic of the sport is that it is not confined to any one class."
--Northern Ireland Tourist Board

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (LNS)--It's very easy to get into Belfast and I have been told by a remarkably reliable source that, in spite of the cratering (holes blown in roads by British troops) of border roads it's equally easy to get out.

On the ferry boat to Belfast, a group of Scots Guardsmen were drinking hard.

"This is the last serious drink we'll have. After this it's two pints a night 'til Christmas," one said.

"Which side are you on, mate?" said another, looking at me.

"I'm neutral."

"No one's neutral in this war. You're either the fellow who's walking down the street on patrol, or you're the fellow who's throwing the nail bomb. Isn't that right?" he said to a companion who was beyond the stage of conversation. "I'll be at one end of the Falls Road and you'll be at the other. Never the twain shall meet, 'cept in heaven."

"Is it that bad?" I asked, sounding like a greenhorn.

"Look, you're walking down a street and you're second man on a section. One moment you're there, and the next...As for your friend, well it's reached the point where the only friend that I have is in the baggage. It's a General Purpose Machine Gun. We haven't used them yet, we're waiting for the political go-ahead, but when we do, by God I'll feel safer. No, I don't want to kill anyone," he said, anticipating my question, "but nor do I want to get killed for that matter."

Outside the bar I bumped into Roger Scott, ex-Ulster correspondent of the London Sun. No, this time he was on a private visit. He drew me a beautiful clean map on a dirty piece of paper, showing me the different sections of the city and who controlled what. I asked him some questions, he answered my question. I asked him his impressions. "Those you're going to have to find out yourself," he said.

7:30 a.m.--Arriving at Belfast Dock, the boat was welcomed by a sharp explosion beyond the center of town, followed by an umbrella of smoke rising in the air. At the luggage check office I was told: "No, you can't leave your luggage here."

"Why not?"

"People just don't leave their luggage in this city any more, they just don't."

I made my way up the Falls Road, past a threatening Army post, past the fly-posters: "Join People's Democracy, and Fight for a Worker's Republic", past the stickers in every window: "Release the Internees". Walking up the Falls Road is not so much a stroll on a pavement as a slop through mud. This may sound strange, but when you consider that nine out of every ten paving stones have been called up for riot duty, and the tenth is probably sitting in the middle of the road like a squashed policeman directing the traffic, it makes sense.

Turning left down Leeson Street, stronghold of the Official IRA, I was stopped to explain my business.

"Credentials?" I showed him my press card.

"Not that. What you've written." I dived into my bag, producing cuttings of liberal-radical copy.

He nodded, grudgingly. I may not be a rebel yet, the expression on his face seemed to say, but I would be before my time was up.

In Belfast it's hard to remain neutral.

I made arrangements for somewhere to live. It was in the Clonard area, Provisional Territory. I was driven there silently.

"Here you are. You'll get a lot of action here. Two hundred yards on that side of you is the Peaceline," I was told. "Four hundred yards on the othcr side is the Springfield Road Police Barracks."

Bombed-out military installation behind Bombay Street--with constant Army surveillance from all the highest buildings in the neighborhood, someone was still able to plant a 100 lb gelignite bomb in the post in retribution for atrocities of British soldiers.

"So if 'it' all goes up, I make my way towards the protection of the Lower Falls, past the Barracks?"

"Well, it's not as easy as that. You see if 'it' does all go up, the Barracks will be the first to go."

"So a person's politics are decided by their address?"

"That's right." And with an address like you've got, he seemed to say, you'll be a rebel in a few days.

That night I was awoken by a strange sound. At first I thought that it was machine-gun fire off key and I went out into the street.

"That's bin-bashing," I was told by a neighbor, "a warning troops are coming in. Here come the military," he said.

Belfast needs its own dictionary. When the "Military" are referred to, it is meant the British Army, and when the "Army" are referred to, it is meant the military wing of the Republican movement, the Irish Republican Army. This is, after all, Ireland.

An endless convoy of Armored Personnel Carriers turned into the street. Before they had even stopped, troops had jumped out, and with weapons at the ready, were crouched in doorways.

"Hey, you there," said a sergeant, pointing to me, "over against that wall. Come on, feet back, legs apart, hands against the wall. No, not your palms, your fingers." Leaning against the wall, the whole weight of my body rested on my fingers. It was painful, yet covered by one soldier and searched by a second I tolerated it.

"And what's your business around here?" he asked me.

"I'm a journalist, and I'm neutral," I said, this time with less conviction.

"No one's neutral around here," he said, echoing the words of his comrade on the ferry boat.

*****

Saturday is publication day in Belfast. First to hit you, at the junction of Falls Road and Springfield Road is the Provisional's "Republican News", which "extends to Her Majesty's forces heartfelt thanks for the magnificent recruiting drive that they have held in our behalf."

Further down the street are the vendors of the Official Republican's "United Irishmen," by far the most professional of the political papers, both in art work and in writing style.

"Fight the sell-out", it urges its readers, referring to the tripartite talks between British Prime Minister Edward Heath, Republic of Ireland Prime Minister Jack Lynch and Northern Ireland Prime Minister Brian Faulkner. "Indeed", it states on a front page editorial, "the only talks that could be valid at this stage would be between the Paisleyites (right-wing Protestants) and the democratic forces who are united behind the Civil Rights banner."

"The enemy," the vendor will tell you, "is not the Protestant, but the capitalist, who has divided the working class community for his own gain."

Continuing down the Falls Road, you'll find the financially impoverished but politically rich, "Unfree Citizen", newspaper of the People's Democracy. At two cents it's the cheapest of them all. On the front page, superimposed on the picture of someone throwing a molotov cocktail are the words: "The Final Solution: A Worker's Republic."

Public Housing given overwhelmingly to Protestants (with a few token Catholics)--at a cost of about $7.50 a week.

"The Provisional Republicans, who are doing most of the fighting," it says, "claim that this is the last installment of the struggle for a Thirty-Two County Republic. The Unionists and the Paisleyites scream that it is an attempt to bomb them all into an all-Ireland Catholic state, where they will be treated the way they have treated the Catholics in the North. The Northern Ireland Civil Rights Association and some of the Official Republicans see a Bill of Rights for Northern Ireland as an immediate solution."

The leader finally concluded: "The present campaign should be directed at drastic reform inside the six counties. It will be our task to see that it is a real republic, a Worker's Republic, not a paper one we are fighting for. In that struggle the working class Protestants of the North can take part free from the shackles of sectarianism, knowing that they are fighting for the interests of their own class at last."

A strange city, Belfast on a Saturday. Possibly the only place in Western Europe where staunch, solid, respectable people actually line up to buy revolutionary literature.

Continuing down to Castle Street, out of the ghetto, turning left into Royal Avenue, you find yourself in a completely different world, the Orange World of downtown Belfast. There the extreme Loyalist "Prostestant Newsletter" is on sale. "Prepare for the Destruction" it screams out. Jack Lynch, they say, is not only recalling his armored cars from Cyprus, but he's spending a million pounds on new tanks.

Searching for relief in the daily papers I made my way to an ordinary newsstand. "Belfast Newsletter andIrish News, please?" (The Newsletter is hardline Unionist, the News is pro-Civil Rights.) The paper seller looked at me in astonishment.

"I don't know whether to say 'Fuck the Pope' or 'Up the Rebels' "

"Neutrality," I said. He stared at me unbelievingly, shaking his head as I left, as if I was a madman.

*****

Sunday was sad, the sky overcast and the silence only shattered by the distant peal of thunder, duller than the sharper thud of gelignite. It was the day of a Peace Rally in Belfast and their motto was: "The Light Shines in Darkness and the Darkness has not overcome the Light."

Held in the shell of Ulster's Expo '71 (Explo '71 it had been nicknamed), many of the Peace People wandered aimlessly around unable to find their way to the site.

Seeming lost and part of something that they did not understand they came "to refuse to let our community drift into the insanity of Civil War."

There was no platform, reconciliation and platform have become incompatible. Only the hopeful slogan: "Think Peace, Talk Peace and Act Peace". Almost entirely middle-class, the working-class of both communities were absent. Only those with something to lose had come.

Seven people read in the ceremony. A woman from East Belfast chose a poem from the Indian mystic Tagore: "The dreary sands of dead habit...let my country awake". A reading from Sanskrit by a Ballymurphy mid-wife: "Yesterday is but a dream, tomorrow is but a vision, let every tomorrow be a vision of hope."

A fresh-faced folksinger sang: "Last night I had a strangest dream, I dreamt the world had put an end to war."

Among the eight thousand there was ex-Community Relations Minister David Bleakley. "This is the real Third Force," he told me, "the people not listened to, the people not heard. For every one here, there are a thousand who could not come. What we must do is harness this force before it is too late."

As the meeting drew to its close, there was a two minutes silence. "As Catholics and Protestants," said organizer Brian Walker of the Alliance Party, "we will refuse to hate each other, refuse to fight each other, refuse to allow our communities to be drawn into Civil War." Silent unwilling passengers searching for the brakes of a car as it plunges towards the mutilated crossroads of civil war.

After the meeting I met an old friend, Roger. One of the earlier members of People's Democracy, he left them when, he says, the movement became sectarian.

"You see, it's all very well people working for socialism among the Catholic working-class," he told me, "but what about the Protestants? People forget about them. Why is it that the Protestant working-class is like it is? It's because they feel that they have been forgotten.

"Of course I want a United Ireland, but it's got to be done with the ballot, not the bomb. It may take five years, it may take fifty years, but that's the only way you'll do it."

"And what if the Apocalypse comes in fifty days?" I asked.

"Then people like me will be on the wrong side. But we have to take that risk. Someone's got to try to stop the Protestants turning into little fascists. If we can't persuade them to accept a United Ireland, at least we can try to politically neutralize them. At the rate things are going it's going to be hard enough to militarily neutralize them."

"It's getting harder to neutralize anyone," I said, "least of all me."

A Point Of Information

There has been some degree of confusion over who LNS is. LNS stands for the Liberation News Service, an underground, if you will, news service covering left wing politics and other events from their own angle. It would be fair to say they have their own slant to the news, one which the reader should take into consideration.

However, the reader should also realize that the Associated Press, or any news article in the Collegian, or any newspaper or magazine, has a bias of its own. Whether one becomes upset usually depends on whether or not one agrees with that bias. When you read any story in any newspaper or magazine, be it from LNS or the Associated Press, you, the reader should be aware of that bias and judge the article with that in mind.

Rape: The All-American Crime

(The following story first appeared in Ramparts Magazine, it will be reprinted this week in serial form.)

By SUSAN GRIFFIN According to estimates by independent criminologists, rape is the most frequently committed violent crime in American today.

I have never been free of the fear of rape. From a very early age I, like most women, have thought of rape as part of my natural environment–something to be feared and prayed against like fire or lightning. I never asked why men raped; I simply thought it one of the many mysteries of human nature.

I was, however, curious enough about the violent side of humanity to read every crime magazine I was able to ferret away from my grandfather. Each issue featured at least one "sex crime", with pictures of a victim, usually in a pearl necklace, and of the ditch or the orchard where her body was found. I was never certain why the victims were always women, not what the motives of the murderer were, but I did guess that the world was not a safe place for women. I observed that my grandmother was meticulous about locks, and quick to draw the shades before anyone removed so much as a shoe. I sensed that danger lurked outside.

At the age of eight, my suspicions were confirmed. My grandmother took me to the back of the house where the men wouldn't hear, and told me that strange men wanted to do harm to little girls. I learned not to walk on dark streets, not to talk to strangers, or get into strange cars, to lock doors, and to be modest. She never explained why a man would want to harm a little girl, and I never asked.

If I thought for a while that my grandmother's fears were imaginary, I'm afraid the illusion was brief. That year, on the way home from school, a schoolmate a few years older than I tried to rape me. Later, in an obscure aisle of the local library (while I was reading Freddy the Pig) I turned to discover a man exposing himself. Then, the friendly man around the corner was arrested for child molesting.

My initiation to sexuality was typical. Every woman has similar stories to tell–the first man who attacked her may have been a neighbor, a family friend, an uncle, her doctor, or perhaps her own father. And women who grow up in New York City always have tales about the subway.

But though rape and the fear of rape are a daily part of every woman's consciousness, the subject is so rarely discussed by that unofficial staff of male intellectuals (who write the books which study seemingly every other form of male activity) that one begins to suspect a conspiracy of silence. And indeed, the obscurity of rape in print exists in marked contrast to the frequency of rape in reality, for forcible rape is the most frequently committed violent crime in America today. The Federal Bureau of Investigation classes three crimes as violent: murder, aggravated assault and forcible rape. In 1968, 31,060 rapes were reported. According to the FBI and independent criminologists, however, to approach accuracy this figure must be multiplied by at least a factor of ten to compensate for the fact that most rapes are not reported; when these compensatory mathematics are used, there are more rapes committed than aggravated assaults and homicides.

When I asked Berkeley, California's Police Inspector in charge of rape investigation if he knew why men rape women, he replied that he had not spoken with "these people and delved into what really makes them tick, because that really isn't my job..." However, when I asked him how a woman might prevent being raped, he was not so reticent, "I wouldn't advise any female to go walking around alone at night...and she should lock her car at all times." The Inspector illustrated his warning with a grisly story about a man who lay in wait for women in the back seats of their cars, while they were shopping in a local supermarket. This man eventually murdered one of his rape victims. "Always lock your car," the Inspector repeated, and then added, without a hint of irony, "Of course, you don't have to be paranoid about this type of thing."

The Inspector wondered why I wanted to write about rape. Like most men he did not understand the urgency of the topic, for, after all, men are not raped. But like most women I had spent considerable time speculating of the true nature of the rapist. When I was very young, my image of the "sexual offender" was a nightmarish amalgamation of the bogey man and Captain Hook: he wore a black cape, and he cackled. As I matured, so did my image of the rapist. Born into the psychoanalytic age, I tried to "understand" the rapist. Rape, I came to believe, was only one of many unfortunate evils produced by sexual repression. Reasoning by tautology, I concluded that any man who would rape a woman must be out of his mind.

Yet, though the theory that rapists are insane is a popular one, this belief has no basis in fact. According to Professor Menachem Amir's study of 646 rape cases in Philadelphia, Patterns in Forcible Rape, men who rape are not abnormal. Amir writes, "Studies indicate that sex offenders do not constitute a unique or psychopathological type; nor are they as a group invariably more disturbed than the control groups to which they are compared." Alan Taylor, a parole officer who has worked with rapists in the prison facilities at San Luis Obispo, California, stated the question in plainer language. "Those men were the most normal men there. They had a log of hang-ups, but they were the same hang-ups as men walking out on the street."

Another canon in the apologetics of rape is that if it were not for learned social controls, all men would rape. Rape is held to be natural behavior, and not to rape must be learned. But in truth rape is not universal to the human species. Moreover, studies of rape in our culture reveal that, far from being impulsive behavior, most rape is planned. Professor Amir's study reveals that in cases of group rape (the "gangbang" of masculine slang) 90 percent of the rapes were planned; in pair rapes, 83 percent of the rapes were planned; and in single rapes, 58 percent were planned. These figures should significantly discredit the image of the rapist as a man who is suddenly overcome by sexual needs society does not allow him to fulfill.

Far from the social control of rape being learned, comparisons with other cultures lead one to suspect that, in our society, it is rape itself that is learned. (The fact that rape is against the law should not be considered proof that rape is not in fact encouraged as part of our culture.)

This culture's concept of rape as an illegal, but still understandable, form of behavior is not a universal one. In her study Sex and Temperament, Margaret Mead describes a society that does not share our views. The Arapsh do not "...have any conception of the male nature that might make rape understandable to them." Indeed our interpretation of rape is a product of our conception of the nature of male sexuality. A common retort to the question, why don't women rape men, is the myth that men have greater sexual needs, that their sexuality is more urgent than women's. And it is the nature of human beings to want to live up to what is expected of them.

And this same culture which expects aggression from the male expects passivity from the female. Conveniently, the companion myth about the nature of female sexuality is that all women secretly want to be raped. Lurking beneath her modest female exterior is a subconsious desire to be ravished. The following description os a stag movie, written by Brenda Starr in Los Angeses' underground paper, Everywoman, typifies this male fantasy. The movie "showed a woman in her underclothes reading on her bed. She is interrupted by a rapist with a knife. He immediately wins her over with his charm and they get busy sucking and fucking." An advertisement in the Berkeley Barb reads, "Now as all women know from their daydreams, rape has a lot of advantages. Best of all it's so simple. No preparation necessary, no planning ahead of time, no wondering if you should or shouldn't; just whang! bang!" Thanks to Masters and Johnson even the scientific canon recognizes that for the female, "whang! bang!" can scarcely be described as pleasurable.

Still, the male psyche persists in believing that, protestations and struggles to the contrary, deep inside her mysterious feminine soul, the female victim has wished for her own fate. A young woman who was raped by the husband of a friend said that days after the incident the man returned to her home, pounded on the door and screamed to her, "Jane, Jane. You loved it. You know you loved it."

The theory that women like being raped extends itself by deduction into the proposition that most or much of rape of rape is provoked by the victim. But this too is only myth. Though provocation, considered a mitigating factor in a court of law, may consist on only "a gesture", according to the Federal Commission on Crimes of Violence, only 4 percent of reported rapes involved any precipitative behavior by the woman.

The notion that rape is enjoyed by the victim is also convenient for the man who, though he would not commit forcible rape, enjoys the idea of its existence, as if rape confirms that enormous sexual potency which he secretly knows to be his own. It is for the pleasure of the armchair rapist that detailed accounts of violent rapes exist in the media. Indeed, many men appear to take sexual pleasure from nearly all forms of violence. Whatever the motivation, male sexuality and violence in our culture seem to be inseparable. James Bond alternately whips out his revolver and his cock, and though there is no known connection between the skills of gunfighting and love-making, pacifism seems suspiciously effeminate.

In a recent fictional treatment of the Manson case, Frank Conroy writes of his vicarious titillation when describing the murders to his wife:

"Every single person there was killed." She didn't move.

"It sounds like there was torture," I said. As the words left my mouth I knew there was no need to say them to frighten her into believing that she needed me for protection."

The pleasure he feels as his wife's protector is inextricably mixed with pleasure in the violence itself. Conroy writes, "I was excited by the killings, as one is excited by catastrophe on a grand scale, as one is alert to pre-echoes of unknown changes, hints of unrevealed secrets, rumblings of chaos.."

The attraction of the male in our culture to violence and death is a tradition Manson and his admirers are carrying on with tireless avidity (even presuming Manson's innocence, he dreams of the purification of fire and destruction). It was Malraux in his Anti-Memoirs who said that, for the male, facing death was the illuminating experience analogous to childbirth for the female. Certainly our culture does glorify war and should the agonies of the gunfighter in veils of mystery.

And in the spectrum of male behavior rape, the perfect combination of sex and violence, is the penultimate act. Erotic pleasure cannot be separated from culture, and in our culture, male eroticism is wedded to power. Not only should a man be taller and stronger than a female in the perfect love-match, but he must also demonstrate his superior strength in gestures of dominance which are perceived as amorous. Though the law attempts to make a clear division between rape and sexual intercourse, in fact the courts find it difficult to distinguish between a case where the decision to copulate was mutual and one where a man forced himself upon his partner.

The scenario is even further complicated by the expectation that, not only does a woman mean "yes" when she says "no," but that a really decent woman ought to begin by saying "no," and then be led down the primrose path to acquiescence. Ovid, the author of Western Civilization's most celebrated sex-manual, makes this expectation perfectly clear:

> ...and when I beg you to say "yes," say "no." Then let me lie outside your bolted door...So Love grows strong...

That the basic elements of rape are involved in all hetero-sexual relationships may explain why men often identify with the offender in this crime. But to regard the rapist as the victim, a man driven by his inherent sexual needs to take what will not be given him, reveals a basic ignorance of exsexual politics. For in our culture heterosexual love finds an erotic expression through male dominance and female submission. A man who derives pleasure from raping a woman clearly must enjoy force and dominance as much or more than the simple pleasures of the flesh. Coitus cannot be experienced in isolation. The weather, the state of the nation, the level of sugar in the blood–all will affect a man's ability to achieve orgasm. If a man can achieve sexual pleasure after terrorizing and humiliating the object of his passion, and in fact while inflicting pain upon her, one must assume he derives pleasure directly from terrorizing, humilitating and harming a woman. According to Amir's study of forcible rape, on a statistical average the man who has been convicted of rape was found to have a normal sexual personality, tending to be different from the normal, well adjusted male only in having a greater tendency to express violence and rage.

And if the professional rapist is to be separated from the average dominant heterosexual, it may be mainly a quantitative difference. For the existence of rape as an index to masculinity is not entirely metaphorical.

To be continued

Reprinted from Rampart's

Stick It In —Get Results

75¢ First Day— 50¢ Subsequent Days

Massachusetts Daily Collegian

CLASSIFIED INSERTION ORDER

Client _____

Token By _____

DATES TO RUN _____

Ran _____ Payment Received _____

Headline _____

ADVERTISING COPY

Draft Counselor's Corner

The SS Is Quite Dangerous

By RICHARD C. GEFFIN

An automobile is a dangerous weapon. If you don't know how to use it correctly it could kill you and others. You have to be taught how to use a car in order to be allowed to drive one.

A rifle is a dangerous weapon. That too if misused, could result in serious injuries and/or death to people. You learn how to shoot a rifle before you take it out to use it.

The Selective Service System is also a dangerous weapon. If you submit to it and allow yourself to be drafted; then the Army could cause some serious problems and mess up your head (I'm going to ignore all the shit that our Army does to it's "enemy"). It could also kill you. If you resist you could go to jail. If you want a deferment you have to work for it, it won't just fall into your lap. The draft has a profound affect upon your life; but nobody wants to bother to find out anything about it.

I'm confused as to why people aren't interested in how to use the Selective Service System. You wouldn't gamble with your money if you didn't know the rules of the game. But you register for the draft and are willing to gamble with your LIFE, not knowing anything about how the game works.

Is it apathy? You can bet your ass nixon isn't apathetic. They want an army. So, they give a damn. If you're into non cooperation, I have to warn you that Canada and jail are two very bad scenes these days for draft resistors. If you change your mind and want to seek a deferment. Act now. The longer you wait the harder it gets.

We as draft counselors don't get any personal gains from what we do. We have one poorly paid coordinator; the rest of us are volunteers. We get nothing. We know what to do for our own hassels. We want to pass the information on to you; we want to help. There are 10,000 of you; there are 10 of us. We can't seek you out. You have to come to us. We're in 923 of the Campus Center. Peace.

"Housing And Its Effect" Subject Of Lecture Today

The College Chapter of the American Home Economics Association in the School of Home Economics is sponsoring a lecture-slide program entitled, Housing and Its Effect on People today at 7:30 p.m. in the Campus Center, rooms 163-171. Professor Hans Harms from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology will discuss the relationship of housing to people and ways to personalize living. He will also present alternatives to housing in the United States and Europe.

Professor Harms was born in Germany and attended the Technological University in Darmstadt, Germany. Future professional study in the field of architecture and community planning were pursued in France, Germany, Peru and the United States. Presently Professor Harms is Director of the Community Projects Laboratory at M.I.T., a project which enables the students at M.I.T. to gain practical experience. In addition, he conducts a seminar in community involvement related to housing and its effect on people.

The lecture-slide presentation is open to all students in the University Community.

BUFFALO BILL

IS COMING

545-2579

UMass Boston Sets Play Premiere

The Theatre Arts Department of the University of Mass. at Boston is proud to announce the American premiere of the Spanish tragi-comedy DEVINE WORDS by Ramon del Valle-Inclan in a translation by Louis E. Roberts and Maria-Luisa Vazquez de Roberts. Performances will be at the University, 100 Arlington Street, Boston, on December 9, 10, 11, 15, 16, 17, and 18 at 8:00 p.m. There will be a matinee on Sunday, December 12, at 3:00 p.m.

The production is directed by Louis E. Roberts, Co-Chairman of the Theatre Arts Department, and is designed by Mordecai Gorelik*, Visiting Professor of Theatre Arts and internationally renowned theatrical designer. During the year he spent working on the translation, Dr. Roberts visited Spain, where he met with Valle-Inclan's son, Don Carlos, and researched the author, the play, and the locale extensively.

The play, written in this century, deals with the grotesque life of peasants in a village in northwestern Spain, and is termed a "barbarous comedy" in Spanish.

Program Council Presents

Jonathan Edwards

with

Bill Workman

In Concert

Tuesday, Dec. 7
7:30 and 10:00

Tickets available at RSO Office
$1.25

MDC CLASSIFIED

AUTOS FOR SALE

1963 Chevy Impala V8, 283, automatic, 4 good tires, 2 new snows, good condition, $250. Call 549-4948 anytime. tf12-10

'68 VW Bug dk. blue, radio, sunroof, exc. condition, ask $1100. Call 546-7082 or 584-0063. tf12-8

'70 VW sunroof, radio & heater, exc. running cond., asking $1295. Call 546-8142. tf12-10

65 Volkswagen Bug, good condition, new engine, generator, brakes, $500. Call Tom between 4 and 6 at 253-5365. tf12-8

1071 Toyota Mark II, 2dr., 1900 cc engine, 110 h.p., 4 speed, std., AM/FM radio, 5 good tires & 2 new snows, 12000 mi. Call evenings 549-0824. tf12-7

1965 Corvair Monza, 4 speed, AM-FM radio, good condition, no rot, good tires, new exhaust and clutch, $150. 253-5364. tf12-7

69 Firebird, perfect condition, 27,000 miles, vinyl roof, automatic, 350, V8, good tires, $1800 or offer. Call Don, 253-2779. tf12-8

70 cyclone G.T., auto. trans., p. steering, P. brakes, 351, 4bbl., snow tires, incl., exc. condition, low mi. Call 6-7132. tf12-7

64 Ford Econoline, good engine, 74,000 mi. Best offer. Lenny 546-5388. tf12-7

1070 VW, excellent condition, sunroof, AM FM, new tires $1750, or $700 and take over payments of $60 a month 388-4417. 12-7

66 Javelin SST, 4 speed, excint mech cond., 4 new poly belted tires, needs paint job. Asking $650. Call Brian 114-545-2412, 545-2413. tf12-12

1965 Buick LeSabre 4dr, ht. al cond., $450. Contact Warren 6-7880. tf12-9

FOR SALE

Goya Elec. Guitar w/case, 4 pick-ups exc. condition. Supro amplifier, Rev/-Trem 3 input. Best offer. Call 546-6763. tf12-8

Discount stereo components and tvs, 20-40% off list price. Factory sealed and warranty. Jim Jensen 586-1565. tf12-10

1 pair 775x14 snow, $25. Call John 546-6621. 12-7

Snow tires 165-14 Semperit Radials, 1 pr. mounted on MGB disc wheels. $50. Call 549-0087. tf12-17

BSR Mini changer $40, Realistic amp. $65. Call 546-8477, Ken. Will negotiate. tf12-8

Kowa Setrz SLR Camera 135, 85, 35 mm lens, original cases, books & boxes. New $370, asking $200, or best offer. Call John 546-7487. tf12-10

'65 Chevy Van, automatic trans, heater, good condition asking $495. Call 584-5830 after 6 p.m. tf12-10

Kastle CPMT1 Slalom Skis 205 cm, just back from factory with bindings $100. Call Dave 6-0077, $185 new. tf12-9

Gradnating Gr. selling SCM typewriter, 4 yrs. old, paid $90 new, asking $25. Call Jim after sup. 256-8491. tf12-7

Roberts x300 tape deck, 1 yr old, 20-20000 flat SND on/W, SND auto. rev., 3 motors, 4 heads, remote cont. Cost $830, sell $285. 253-9587. tf12-10

Gibson 335, early 60's, perfect cond., $300, Also Fender super-reverb amp $200. Call Steve 546-6768. tf12-8

New double burner hot plate, $15.00. Call 549-4074. tf12-8

New and used cameras and photo equipment bought and sold. Lang's Photo 253-3148. tfsem

X-Mas Time-Suede makes ideal gifts. I have suede, pants jackets, skirts, midi's and skins. Wholesale prices. Jon, 115 Chadbourne, 5-2640. tf12-7

Guitars: Martin, Yamaha, Aria, Harmony also Dulcimers and Autoharps. Find out what you want, then see me for better price. John 6-5401. tf12-7

Kowa Setrz SLR Camera 135, 85, 35 mm lens, original cases, books, and boxes. New $370, asking $200 or best offer. Call John 546-7487. tf12-8

Sleeping bag $10, Baritone Ukelele $15. Call mornings 253-3020. tf12-7

PERSONAL

To Peggy in 204 - Thank you - I appreciated everything - more than you'll ever know. 12-7

Happy Birthday to Patti from the Moon Platoon. May you see many more "Moons" in your remaining days. 12-7

Congratulations to the Phpi BB team. Practice pays off. The Coach. 12-7

Roxanne-now that you're pinned, I phone in Bernies. Happiness lies my misery-with your love lost to me-alone and lost will I be-Francois. 12-7

Steve-"It's the singer, not the song. . ." 12-7

Happy 22nd to the Madshacker. Love, Jo. 12-7

ROOMMATES WANTED

Roommate wanted F, to share rent with 2 other girls, own room, ranch house in Hadley. Call anytime 586-2815. tf12-17

Female desires room in apartment, very close to Campus. Urgent. Call 253-8421. tf12-13

Responsible female roommate, own bedroom, $35/mo. & utilities. Soon until May or longer. Call 584-6708. tf12-10

Female roommate to share Townhouse apt., $76/mo. - own room. Call 256-6467 avail. Dec. 1. tf12-7

I need a piece for second semester. Own room preferred, male, over 21, 549-0570. tf12-7

Roommate wanted: available for second semester. Apt. two miles from campus. Call 256-8020 after 6 p.m. David. tf12-6

We don't discriminate 2F or 2M wanted for lg. bedroom w/bath in 3 bedroom Puffton Apt. rent $5/mo. 549-0057. tf12-9

SERVICES

Typing done with Olympia Elec. Typewriter. Paper supplied without charge, 50¢ per page. Call 549-1000 Presidential Apartment. tf12-7

Passports & grad school pictures-24, hr. service Lang's Photo 253-3148. tfsem

Amherst Audio services. Stereo components, tape decks for home or car. 107 No. Pleasant St. 256-8133. tf5-12

Grand opening, Mike's speed equipment, starts Wednesday. One case of Valvoline Oil, one Grant Steering Wheel Kit to be given away, Rt. 9, Hadley, 586-3950. tf12-7

Taking orders for handmade leather bags and things. Order now, get before Christmas. Reasonable prices. 549-6331. tf12-8

FOR RENT

One bedroom apt. in Puffton Village dishwasher, disposal, avail. Jan. 1. Take over lease. Please come to 370 Puffton and ask for Bill or Bob. tf12-8

1 bedroom apt. Puffton VII. Available now. Take over lease. Call 256-8852, $150 rent. tf12-9

Avail. now. 2 bedrm townhse apt., ww cpt., air cond, utilities, included, take over lease. Mt. Toby Apts., Call 253-3281 after 5:00. tf12-9

Available immediately, own room in 3 bedroom apt. in Puffton, $75/mo. Call 549-0830, keep trying please. tf12-8

6 bedrms., 2 baths, kitchen & rec. room in Holyoke, 14 miles from U. of M. All utils., ex. phone. Much Furn. $300 per month. Call 323-7083. tf12-8

HELP WANTED

People needed to attend and transcribe lectures for SES. Typing skills essential, shorthand helpful. Applications at Rm. 318 S.U. tf12-9

Need help with 4-yr-old, light hswk, from Dec. 13 & 2 nd semester. Own transport. or live-in, nr. Amh. Cntr., ph. 253-5874. tf12-9

MOVIE

"Z"-ONE OF 1969's HEAVIEST FILMS-IN COLOR, SAT. DEC. 11, MAHAR AUD., 6:30-8:45-11:00. tf12-10

"Wholeearth Image Language" multi-projection film slide environments by Barry Schonhaut, Wed., Dec. 8 at 8 & 9:30 p.m. Thompson 106 50¢. tf12-8

WANTED

Flute - Clarinet - Sax - Jazz - Classical. Andy Flacks 655-3079. tf12-8

Band wanted to play the night of Dec. 18 for Beta Chi Christmas Party. Call Joe 549-0130 after 6 p.m. and give price. tf12-8

Rides wanted to Dartmouth and Baltimore on Dec. 10 or 17. Will share expenses. Call 6-1474 or 6-0904. tf12-8

Ride to Wisconsin X'mas vacation. Call Singh 6-0930. tf12-7

Folk Guitar: inexpensive for learning purposes. Call 6-0200 tf12-7

Traveling companion thru Europe for about 8 weeks in June. Female preferred. Call 253-9485 if interested. tf12-10

APT. WANTED

Puffton sublet wanted. 1-bedroom for second semester. 549-6570. tf12-9

APT. FOR RENT

2 bdrm apt in Belchertown, air cond., ww carpets, avail. Jan., $200 a month inc. utilities. Call 323-6459 after 6. tf12-10

MT. SUGARLOAF APTS. Avail. Jan 1, lg. 2 bdrm util. included, air-cond, pool $185. Call Skiblail Realtors 253-7222, eve. 253-2626. tf12-22

GARAGE FOR RENT

Garage for rent, store your classic, sports, or race car for the winter. Call Jeff at 253-7700 leave name & number. tf12-7

LAW SCHOOL

"Law School–Will I Make It? Can I Make It?" A new book by a recent law graduate for prospective law students. Examines how to prepare for law school; books to read; formulas based on admission studies to predict 1st year average. For copy send $2.05 to Kroos Press, Box 3709A, Milwaukee, Wis. 53217. tf12-9

"Law School–Will I Like It? Can I Make It?" New book by law grad. For prospective law students. Send $2.05. Kroos Press, box 3709A Milwaukee, Wis. 53217. tf1213

XMAS SPECIAL

For that special gift - No. 5 Chanel Perfume 1 oz., Bottle-special stock Call 546-6743. tf12-9

TRAVEL

Ski the Alps-Jan 14-24 Chamonix, France-air fare, hotels, discount lifts and lessons, last night in Paris. Contact Peggy 253-9667. tf12-22

Nassau-$140, from Boston & N.Y., hotel flight, transfers, 12/20-27, 12/23-29, 12/27-1/3 Ski-Australia-$325, 15 days, flight, hotel, meals, transfers, Insbruk, deluxe package. London-$187, flights in January. Call-Student Flights 584-1050. tf12-15

Crimson Travel offers low cost spring vacation trips to Bermuda and Nassau. For more info, call Rich Margil, 412 Dwight 545-0791. tf12-10

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES

Play music in a band? Interested in skiing? Combine the two in the greatest business opportunity yet! Needs solid musicians for winter. Dave 549-0679. tf1210

LOST

Missing a pink wallet. Cards are desperately needed. If found please leave at Campus Center Lost-Found or notify Claudia Reid. 5-2642. tf12-8

Anyone finding red wallet belonging to Marilyn Kennedy mail to 26 Main St., Amherst. ID's very important. tf12-8

JOBS

International Jobs -Europe, S. America, Asia, Aust., USA. Openings in all fields-Soc. Sci, Bus, Sci, Engineers, Ed, etc. Alaska Construction & Pipe Work. Earnings to $500 weekly. Summer or permanent.

Paid expenses. No nuses, travel. Complete current info- only $2. Money back guar. Write now! International Emp. Box 721-M516, Peabody Mass. 01960. tf1210

ENTERTAINMENT

Make your christmas party a success and call Stan at 546-9215. All area bands represented. tf12-8

TYPING

Typing-theses, dissertations, etc. Fast, accurate, experienced. Have Math and Chem. symbols. Call 253-3061. tf12-21

STUDENTS BOOK MATCHING

Register your book in S.U. Rm. 318. Every student with your course next semester will need your books save $ money, sell direct. tf-serm.

Notices

AHEA
Professor Hans Harms, an architect at MIT, will present a lecture-slide program entitled, "Housing and its Effects on People", Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in rooms 163-171 CC.

ASTRONOMY CLUB
Planetarium show at the Amherst Planetarium, 8 p.m. tonight. Anyone in need of a ride, please meet in the lobby of Hasbrouck, 7 p.m. Show will be proceeded by astronomy club elections. Public welcome.

BLACK CORRIDOR
Any conscientious brothers who wish to move on the Black Corridor in Grayson House (Orchard Hill) next semester, or want to know more about it: please contact John Davis, Rm. 508, 6-6985 or Sidney Davis, Rm. 507 6-6984 as soon as possible.

BLUES CLUB
Meeting tonight in CC 802 at 6:30.

COMMUTER ASSEMBLY EXECUTIVE COUNCIL
Meeting tonight at 5:30 p.m. in CC 168.

COURSE EVALUATIONS
Forms will be handed out in Psychology 260, at the regular lecture time and place, SBA 116, 12:20, on Dec. 8, 1971.

FENCING CLUB
The Fencing Club will hold an important meeting tonight in Rm. 8 WoPE, 7-9 p.m. All members must attend.

GAMMA SIGMA SIGMA
Meet EARLY at 6 p.m. in CC 805-809.

HEYMAKERS SQUARE DANCE CLUB
The regular square dance will be held tonight from 7:30-10:30 in CCA.

HILLEL
Computer dance refunds tonight, 7-9 p.m. in Hillel office.
Israeli dancing tonight 7-9 in Hillel rooms.
Correction: Hanukah candles and menorahs are on sale in the Hillel office.

HOLY DAY OF OBLIGATION
Feast of Immaculate Conception: Masses tonight at 5 p.m. Tomorrow at 8, 9:15, 12:15, 5 and 7 p.m. Living Rosary after 7 p.m. mass.

LIBERATION-WOMEN
There will be a meeting tonight at 7:30 p.m. in CC 177. A discussion of the Women's studies program will be continued.

RECREATION AND PARK STUDENTS
What topics would you like to see discussed at the May, 1972 NE District Park and Recreation Conference at JUG End, S. Egremont, Mass? Conference theme: "Awareness is the Answer". Call Ken at 546-5446 any time.

RECYCLING
There will be a 'revitalization' meeting of the recycling committee tonight at 7:30 in the RSO office (1st floor CC). All interested and concerned people invited.
The recycling committee needs people in dorms to care for the stuff. We're trying to get dumpers so everyone will have one handy. Those people who haven't been in contact, call Elaine Massery 549-6861, or come to the office tonight at 6:30.

SOC 256
Rich Perkins' sections will have an in-class exam on Dec. 17 and 21. Those who find one date inconvenient can attend the other sections. They meet as follows: Fri. 9:05, 11:15, and Tues. 10:10.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

by SYDNEY OMARR

I believe the Virgo woman gets things done. And she usually looks good even while doing tasks that are menial and generally tiring. The Leo man accomplishes, but does so in a dramatic manner and with a flair than can be expensive. But both the Virgo woman and the Leo man are nice to have around the house if you can keep them at home.

* * *

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Some around you may express unusual moods, opinions. Key is to be receptive without being unduly influenced. Give added attention to young person. Don't repress your own creative desires.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Find alternatives. Usual methods may be blocked, tied up with red tape. Familiar ways now may not suffice. Know this and proceed in manner which stresses the unique. Bypass one who is reactionary.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Study Taurus message. Promises are sincere, but some relatives, neighbors are incapable of fulfilling them. Avoid tendency to believe whisperings of sweet nothing. Highlight practicality.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Fine for adding to special collections. Make inquiries, requests in writing. Definite gain shown via written word. Read, study and write. Apply experiences gained in recent past. Be analytical.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Cycle continues high; judgment improves. You make exciting contacts. There is additional hope, an abundance of optimism. Get going; take initiative. Accentuate the positive. Ignore gloomy Gus.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Romantic interlude is on agenda. You receive meaningful compliment. Fine for attending theater, participating in event designed to aid charitable project. Give now and you also receive.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Emotions run deep. Not wise to play games. State case--as it exists. Forget gimmicks, flourishes. Truth indeed will make you free and strong. Capricorn person could play prominent role.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Finish project. Think big; forget the petty. Some who constantly complain should be told to go elsewhere. May seem mean, but is definitely necessary. You have life of your own to live.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You are on brink of new adventure. Welcome change and challenge. Member of opposite sex is involved. Personal magnetism soars. You attract persons and opportunities. Be ready for excitement.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Money, special collections, payments are featured. Mate, business partner has unusual need. Fulfill it, but don't go into debt. Interest in occult or hidden matters is accented. Dig deep.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Lie low. There is no need to rush, push or cajole. Mate, partner should take initiative. Experiment. Devote time to doing what you enjoy. Creative hobby now could reap profits.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Be practical about work, health, potential. Leave speculation, theatrics to others. By checking details, you make valuable discovery. Others now tend to overlook essentials. Don't compound error.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you tend to be introspective, spiritual. You are studious, but have flair for adventure. You gain through travel and study abroad. Project initiated this year is due to flourish. Know this and start acting like you know it. Exude confidence.

Copyright 1971, Gen. Fea. Corp.

NOW...YOUR CHOICE OF 5!
Showcase
Rt. 5-W. Spfld.
Cinema 1-2-3-4-5
733-5131
MORE NEW SHOWS!
MORE NEW LOUNGER SEATS!
MORE NEW PARKING!!
MATINEES DAILY...POPULAR PRICES
Adults $1.50 Mon Thru Fri Matts
1 Man in the Wilderness GP
2 Maid in Sweden X
3 French Connection R
4 Gone With The Wind G
5 200 Motels R
ACRES FREE PARKING
ROCKER LOUNGERS
CHARGE YOUR TICKET

UMass Roundup

Theodore W. Leed, professor of food marketing in the UMass department of agricultural and food economics, will take part in two food distribution seminars in Japan this month.

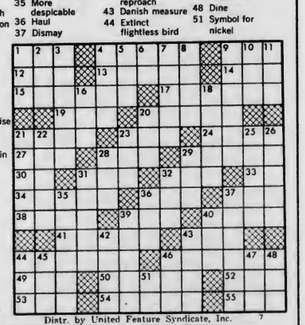
His trip, Dec. 5 through 18, is sponsored by the U.S. Feed Grains Council and the U.S. Department of Agriculture. He will discuss handling and merchandising of frozen foods with businessmen, government officials and university faculty in Osaka and Tokyo. He will also interview Japanese businessmen concerning problems and opportunities in frozen food distribution in Japan.

Early childhood learning materials will be on display Dec. 11 at UMass.

The exhibit, in Skinner Hall, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. will also feature continuous showings of educational films for early childhood education. Sponsor for the no-sales exhibit is the human development division of the School of Home Economics. During the exhibit, the Western Massachusetts Association for the Education of Young Children will meet from 1 to 2 p.m. in Skinner Auditorium.

Two newly published books--one on China and one on Korea--were written by recipients of doctorates from the UMass political science department.

"The Politics of Military Revolution in Korea" is the work of Se Jin Kim, who earned his Ph.D. in government in 1966. Dr. Kim analyzes political and social ramifications of the present Korean military establishment's rise to power. Publisher is the University of North Carolina Press.



Crossword Puzzle

ACROSS
1 Obscure
4 Strip of leather
9 Vessel
12 Macaw
13 Talk idly
14 Girl's name
15 Mixture
17 Intractable person
19 Condensed moisture
20 Proofreader's mark
21 Man's name
23 Distant
24 Toll
27 Organ of hearing
28 Strike
29 Brief
30 Hebrew month
31 Uncouth person
32 Pigeon pea
33 Preposition
34 Having branches
36 Spread for drying
37 Sum up
38 Walk
39 Solemn promise
40 Imitates
41 Dart
43 High mountain
44 Madman
46 Gratify
49 Number
50 Small boat
52 Meadow
53 Ventilate
54 Foreign 55 Permit

DOWN
1 Obstruct
2 Anger
3 More insane
4 Spurt forth
5 Attempt
6 Sun god
7 Essence
8 Fruit
9 Idle talk
10 Room in harem
11 Sailor (colloq.)
16 Conducted
18 Repulse
20 Household pet
21 Is afraid of 22 Clerical collar
23 Wooden pin
25 Stage whisper
26 Grants use of
28 Man's nickname
29 Youngster
31 Island in Mediterranean
32 Condensed moisture
35 More despicable
36 Haul
37 Dismay
39 Pertaining to the voice
40 Beverage
42 Ancient Jewish term of reproach
43 Danish measure
44 Extinct flightless bird
45 Southern blackbird
46 American essayist
47 Observe
48 Dine
51 Symbol for nickel

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

PAID MESS SAP
AIDE OMIT TIE
SLOPED TO IDA
ASEM PENAL STARTLES LG
PRATIE WES SPA
OE SET ALP AG
TEN MAD AROSE
ER TORRENTS
FLEAS NOEL
LED LG ADAPTS
ONE ALAS TERN
WAD PANT ERIA

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Nebraska-Alabama...1-2

By Associated Press

Nebraska and Alabama finished 1-2 Monday in The Associated Press' final regular season college football poll, setting up their duel for the national championship in the Orange Bowl on New Year's night.

Nebraska defending national champs received 48 firstplace votes and 1,086-14 short of a perfect score-from a nationwide panel of 55 sports writers and broadcasters. The Cornhuskers closed out a 12-0 regular season Saturday night by trouncing Hawaii 45-3.

Runner-up Alabama got four No. 1 votes-the other three went to fourth-ranked Michigan-and 954 points. The Crimson Tide finished 11-0.

Third-ranked Oklahoma bounced back from its Thanksgiving Day loss to Nebraska and crushed Oklahoma State 58-14 for a 10-1 record and 880 points. Michigan, 11-0, held onto fourth with 797 points.

Penn State, fifth a week ago, saw its drams of a perfect season and a possible championship disappear in Saturday's 31-11 loss to Tennessee. That dropped the 10-1 Nittany Lions to 10th place while 9-1 Auburn moved up from sixth to fifth.

Georgia, 10-1, climbed from seventh to sixth, 9-2 Colorado from eighth to seventh and 10-1 Arizona State from ninth to eighth.

Tennessee, 9-2 and bound for the Liberty Bowl, jumped from 12th to ninth, with Penn State rounding out the Top Ten. The Vols' impressive triumph over Penn State bounced Louisiana State, 8-3, from 10th to 11th, heading the Second Ten.

Trailing the Tigers were Texas, Notre Dame, Toledo, Houston, Stanford, Mississippi, Arkansas, Northwestern and Washington. A week ago, the Second Ten consisted of Texas, Tennessee, Toledo, Notre Dane, Houston, Arkansas and Stanford tied for 16th, Mississippi and North Carolina deadlocked for 18th and Washington No. 20.

The final poll to decide the national championship will be takenfollowing the bowl games.

The Top Twenty teams, with first-place votes in parentheses and total points. Points tabulated on basis of 20- 18- 16- 14- 12- 10- 9- 8 etc.

1. Nebraska (48)	1,086
2. Alabama (4)	954
3. Oklahoma	880
4. Michigan (3)	797
5. Auburn	581
6. Georgia	480
7. Colorado	432
8. Arizona State	394
9. Tennessee	385
10. Penn State	334
11. Louisiana State	307
12. Texas	262
13. Notre Dame	142
14. Toledo	129
15. Houston	81
16. Stanford	40
17. Mississippi	34
18. Arkansas	28
19. Northwestern	16
20. Washington	15

Ellison, Rams Prep For Allen

LOS ANGELES (AP)-Willie Ellison ran his way into the National Football League record book, aided by his own confidence and that shown in him by his coach and teammates.

Next, he goes against the team coached by a man who didn't show much confidence in him.

For the Rams face Washington next Monday night, Dec. 13, with the Redskins led by George Allen who held the reins at Los Angeles the past five years.

After rushing for 247 yards in the 45-28 victory over New Orleans on Sunday, beating the previous pro individual game mark set by Cookie Gilchrist of Buffalo in 1963 by four yards, Ellison was asked if he thought Allen would key defense on him.

"It's kind of hard to predict what he'll do," came the answer. "I played for the man four years and I was never able to figure out what he'd do."

Although he started in 1968 when Les Josephson was out for the season, Ellison didn't start the past two seasons.

"I've been told about the mistakes Ellison made," new coach Tommy Prothro said. "I keep looking at the movies of this season and I don't see them. He looks like the best back on the field in films."

Quarterback Roman Gabriel added, "There can't be many running backs better than Willie. He's strong, quick and fast.

"The reason he has improved this year is because he's catching the ball and blocking better and concentrating. And, of course, he's playing."

Nicklaus Top Money Winner

ORLANDO Fla. (AP)-Jack Nicklaus won the $30,000 first prize in the weather-delayed Walt Disney World Open Monday and captured pro golf's money-winning title, sweeping past weary Lee Trevino for the coveted crown. Nicklaus shot a final 68 for 273 and a three-stroke victory.

Nicklaus, who trailed Trevino in earnings most of the year, finished his season with a record $244,490.50.

Trevino, who established himself as the game's new folk hero with his sweep of the American, British and Canadian titles this summer, was well back in the field here and finished with a total of $231,201.97.

Swimmers Bow To Amherst In Openers

By JANIS AHMADJIAN

The UMass swim team opened its season last Friday on the losing end of a 77-35 verdict to a much stronger and experienced Amherst swim team.

Throughout the meet, though, there were individual high points for UMass that stood out. Paul Joy took a first in the diving competition giving on an excellent performance considering he had not been able to practice due to work.

Freshman Tom Smith desplayed tremendous individual effort in the 200 yard butterfly placing second.

The 400 Medley Relay consisting of George Kwiecien, Herb Schuster, Tom Smith, and Spencer Sullivan was just edged out by Amherst.

Distance swimmer Jack Tyler also did a good job taking second in both the 500 yard and 1,000 yard freestyles.

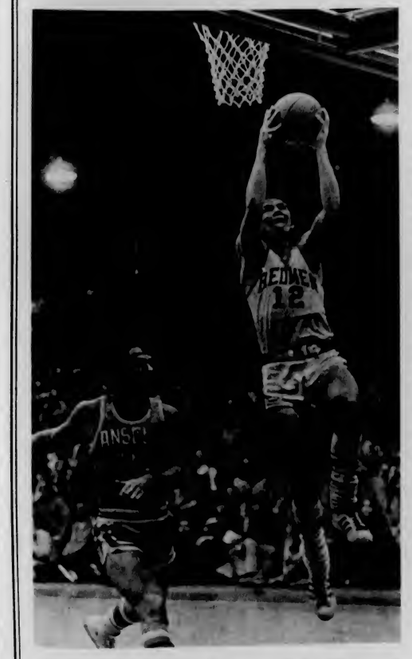
Coach McCafferty was very pleased with the team's performance. Captain Herb Schuster thought "The team performed very well and much can be expected from their performance in upcoming meets."

When questioned about team enthusiasm distance swimmer Bruce Taylor replied "It's good, everyone is interested in swimming. However, we're in the wrong league-outclassed, competing with other teams that are much better. It's not a whole team competition but rather one of individual effort; we're out to beat our own times." This seems to be the case throughout the team.

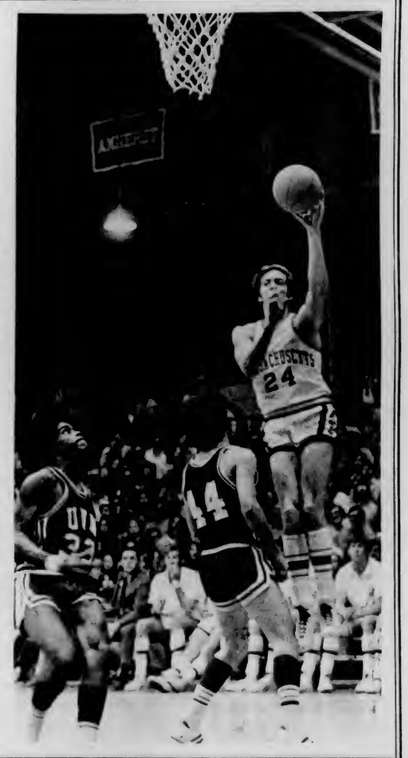
The team is now getting ready for their big meet against Holy Cross on December 14th. Last year they won a decisive victory and are confidently anticipating the competition. Before this meet though, there is one with Wesleyan University on Wednesday December 8th at 4:00 PM.

VB Opens Strong

By FRANK MURPHY



The newly formed UMass volleyball club made a very strong showing last Saturday in their first collegiate competition against Springfield College, the number one team in the East. Although eventually dropping a 3-1 decision before an estimated crowd of over five hundred, the largest crowd ever to have gathered at the Springfield Field House to watch a volleyball game, it was optimistically deemed a psychological victory by Grecian player-coach Yorgos Courmouzis, in view of the fact that the team has had few practices to date.



Indeed, two of the matches taken by Springfield were very close and could have gone either way. The long volleys and the consistent exchange of spikes often brought the partisan crowd to its feet.

Coach Hay of Springfield College had a lot of praise for the young and inexperienced UMass club, placing it in his estimation among the top teams in the Eastern volleyball circus. The team, which is using four spikers and two setters in the lineup, started the game with Yorgos Courmouzis, Mike Madden, Tom Fearing, John Wilson, Bruce Sibson and Ritch Lussararian. Paul Slack and Dana White also saw a lot of action.

The club is still looking for recruits with past experience in volleyball, as the season is still very young. For those interested, please call Yorgos at 6-5445.

Endicott And Coffin Give UMass The Southpaw Side Of Basketball

One dimension of UMass basketball has gone unnoticed due to the encouraging early season potential the freshmen and varsity teams have shown.

While the emphasis has been put on speed, defense and accurate shooting, the aspect of the lefty has gone by without notice.

Bill Endicott (left) and Mike Flanagan give the frosh an all-southpaw backcourt, while Chris Coffin (right) and Al Skinner make up an all-southpaw pair of forwards for the varsity.

What all four have in common is what the righties also have in common and this is Wednesday night's showdown with the Holy Cross Crusaders.

For the freshmen this is not their baptismal under fire in tough competition as they went through the ritual on Saturday night in defeating a rugged Dartmouth frosh.

But for the varsity, this is where the season begins. Two also rans gave the team the actual game situations they needed, but now the season takes a swing to one of the hard parts of the schedule.

Holy Cross and UMass have had emotional games the past couple of seasons and this game should be no different.

See tomorrow's MDC for the details.

(MDC photos by Gib Fullerton)

Grapplers Split Over Weekend

By JOHN BOCK

A few weeks ago wrestling coach Homer Barr made a statement that said in essence, that the success of this years Varsity squad in defending their New England title would depend on the ability of the freshman team to wrestle on the Varsity.

Saturday's triangular at Yale proved the worth of Coach Barr's words as the Redman grapplers, with the aid of four freshmen, beat UConn 28-12, but lost to a tough Yale team 32-12.

It was UMass vs. UConn on the Yale mat at 1:30 and from the outset it was a Redman victory as veteran Dave Amato racked up a big 14-2 decision to put the Redmen ahead 4-0.

A tie in the form of Barry Godowsky preceeded a loss by Dave Reynolds who has not reached his best wrestling weight yet. The score stood 6-3 as the first of the UMass freshman made his appearance.

Russ Chateaunuf, Massachusetts State and New England schoolboy champ, faced the junior Co-captain of UConn. After a scoreless first period that saw Chateauneuf as the aggressor, it was Chateauneuf's turn to use the move that made him famous, a Granby roll, and reverse his position to go ahead 2-0. He wasn't finished as he wrapped the astonished UConn wrestler in a cradle to end his match with a pin at 3:17.

Then freshman Steve Rome managed a draw against a UConn veteran and thus prepared the crowd for another freshman performance by one of Pennsylvania's finey, Chris Cadwallader. Chris was up against the Connecticut State Champ and after getting taken down recovered to dominate a match that ended 7-2 in UMass' favor.

Chris' win put UMass ahead 20-7 and Bruce Buckbee bettered the score by 6 points with a pin in the third period. Freshman John Nickerson finished the frosh fieldday with a tie against the senior 190 pounder from UConn.

The jubilant victory jog that ensued down Tower St. to the Yale dining hall was led by Coach Barr as the UMass team took a break while Yale went on against UConn. In what could only be termed a tribute to the Yale recruiting office the Yale junior varsity made short work of the UConn varsity 40-6.

A less than happy group of Redmen watched the match knowing full well that Yale's best was being saved for them.

Dave Amato led off with another big win and this put UMass ahead 3-0. In the next bout it was Pennsylvanian against Pennsylvanian as freshman Mike McLaughlin lost to the state runnerup in a match that saw Mike dominate in the third period and almost pin his opponent.

Things were not looking bright as Chateauneuf came on for his second match of the day. Another scoreless first period and a 6-1 decision that added 3 more points.

It was Yale's finest hour as they pinned the next three UMass men in succession. Carl Dambman, who sat out the UConn match due to an injury, felt up to wrestling and opened his season with a second period pin to account for UMass' final score of the evening.

Coach Barr, though not pleased with the results, felt that the team had wrestled very well on the defense but was not aggressive enough and was not moving off the bottom fast enough. "Yale is tough and we never go down there expecting an easy match. This is the kind of competition we need and we intend to come back." UMass was consistent that day as the JV's beat UConn and lost to Yale. It was interesting to note that the performers in the Yale JV match against UMass were the same ones that had beaten the UConn varsity that afternoon. Outstanding wrestlers were Dick Muri, John Connolly, Chuck Myrglot, and Steve Connell.

Host Central Conn Tonight

By JOHN BOCK

It will be Redman against Redmen as Coach George Redman brings the Blue Devils of Central Connecticut to open the UMass wrestling team's home dual match season, tonight at 8:00 in the auxiliary gym at Boyden.

Daily Collegian SPORTS

As wrestling is a highly individual sport the inevitable question is who is coming to wrestle and what do they look like? Fans will remember than Central Connecticut took a third in the New Englands last year and that in the dual match the Redmen were hard pressed to beat the Blue Devils but managed to come out on top 20-16.

Coach Redman has given John Hamilton the nod at 126 pounds and he will be facing Barry Godowsky and brings impressive credentials of a 15-1 dual match season with him. Central should be strong at 118 and 134 as Dave Baker goes against UMass NEIWA second place Dave Amato and Joe Miraguliuolo will grapple with Mike McLaughlin.

Freshman Russ Chateauneuf will face another Co-captain in Ron Tatar at 142 lbs. and Steve Rome will see action against the other Blue Devil Co-captain Bob Wickwire at 158.

The Redmen will be wrestling another team that highlights the freshmen but lettermen Clay Jester, Carl Dambman, Chris Hodson and Bruce Buckbee will provide the experience and impetus for a UMass win.

A new tack will be in the offing for the pre-match as Coach Homer Barr and some of the Varsity will put on a wrestling clinic for the spectators in order that they may learn a little about the world of wrestling that features such expressions as "Shoot on him," "single lig," "throw the legs on him" and others.

Those who come will also see some of the team walking around in uniform with signs asking for a donation to help the Redmen go to the NCAA National Championships to be held at the University of Maryland at College Park this coming March. Last year UMass was one of the few teams in the country to qualify 7 out of 10 wrestlers for the Nationals and those that went represented not only UMass but New England as well.

Gymnasts Rout UNH

By MICHAEL CUSACK

DURHAM, N.H.—As was expected, the UMass varsity gymnasts opened their 1971-72 season with a 146.45-79.55 rout of the New Hampshire gymnastics team last Wednesday night. Although the Wildcats were able to perform some good routines, they were simply overwhelmed by the Redmen's superior ability and depth.

High score of the meet went to UMass' Dave Genest, the current E.I.G.L. parallel bars champion, who had an 8.9 on his routine. Genest continues to amaze the spectators by ending his routing with a double back somersault from the parallel bars.

Other good scores of the meet went to the Redmen also. John Calabria on floor exercise, Jay Aronstein on rings, Jay Thomsen on longhorse, and Tony Vacca on high bar all had scores of 8.6.

Horizontal bar proved to be UMass' best event, as they scored 25.75 points. However, they could manage only 21.80 points on pommel horse, an event which they will have to improve.

New Hampshire's first University Division competition was witnessed by several thousand interested spectators. Although the UNH fans saw their team lose, they were glad to have the opportunity to see the Redmen perform. Although the UMass performance was not of championship caliber, it was much better than UNH was accustomed to.

The Redmen gymnasts face their first real test on Sat., Dec. 11 at 7:30 p.m. when the Southern Connecticut State College team travels to Amherst. In the past, the Owls have always proven to be stiff competition; this year should be no exception.

Thus far this year, the Redmen have had two intra-squad meets and one intercollegiate meet, but have been unable to score higher than 150. The Redmen are a potentially good team, but that potential will have to be developed this week if the Redmen are to be prepared to meet So. Conn. This year the Redmen should have a number of close meets.

Remember The Tarheels?...They Lost

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP)—An aggressive Princeton team outplayed North Carolina all the way to stun the second-ranked Tarheels 89-73 in college basketball Monday night.

The Tigers, using a tenacious man-to-man defense, forced the taller visitors into numerous turnovers. They stretched a 36-34 halftime lead into a comfortable margin midway in the last half.

The loss was North Carolina's first after two easy victories. Princeton, smarting from a 72-70 loss to Penn State Friday, raised its record to 2-1.

The Tigers had four men in double figures, with 6-foot-9 sophomore Andy Rimol leading the way with 23 points.

Rimol held North Carolina's celebrated junior Robert McAdoo to 20 points. McAdoo outrebounded Rimol, but the Princeton center's presence under the board was the difference in the game.

The Tigers' Ted Manakas and Brian Taylor, accounted for 21 and 16 points, respectively.

Wrestling Clinic

TONIGHT before the Varsity match see Coach Homer Barr demonstrate the moves that made him famous! He and the Varsity will teach some of the fundamentals of wrestling and show basic moves and holds. Clinic begins at 7:15 with the Varsity match to follow at 8:00.

Ferguson Jenkins Leaves The Rest Far Behind

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Ferguson Jenkins, the National League's Cy Young Award winner, led the league's pitchers in six departments in a busy 1971 baseball season.

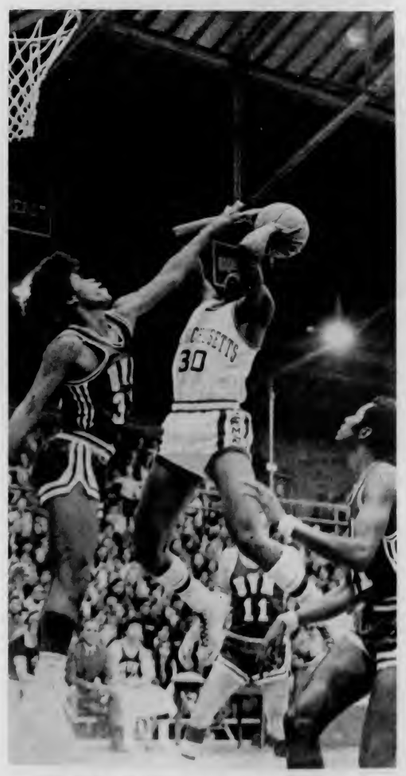
The official statistics released today show that the Chicago Cubs right-hander had the most victories, 24; tied with Bill Stoneman of Montreal for most starts with 39; had the most complete games, 30; and hurled the most innings, 325.

He also gave up the most hits, 304, and home runs, 29.

New York's Tom Seaver repeated as the league's earned run average leader and strikeout king.

The Mets ace recorded a 1.76 ERA, finishing well ahead of runner-up Dave Roberts of San Diego, 2.10 Seaver broke his own league record for strikeouts in a season by a right-hander by fanning 289.

Seaver, 20-10 this year, had a 2.81 ERA and 283 strikeouts the previous season.



Wayne Granger of the Cincinnati Reds was the league's most frequently used relief pitcher, with 70 appearances. Dave Giusti of Pittsburgh had the most saved from the bullpen, 30.

Dock Ellis of the champion Pirates had the longest winning streak, with 13 straight victories between May 2 and July 17.

Woody Hayes...Move Over

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - Sophomore Dan Gerhard hit three straight long jump shots in the closing minutes Monday night, helping fifth-ranked Ohio State to pull away to a 71-60 victory over Utah State.

Gerhard and 7-foot Luke Witte each scored 20 points for Ohio State, now 3-0. Jeff Tebbs, the smallest Utah State starter, wound up with 20 points or the Aggies, now 1-2.

ANYONE FOR A LEFTY?—Ask Jack Leaman and if the lefty is Al Skinner he'll probably knock your eardrum out with his "yes." Through the first two games the 6'4 sophomore leads the Redmen in scoring with 15.5 points a game and rebounding with 13.5 a game. And if lefties are really your bag turn to page 19 and you'll get to see two more.(MDC photo by Gib Fullerton)

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather
Oh, Do You.....I no.....Un...Huh...N O....No..No

VOLUME XCIX, ISSUE 62 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 8, 1971

Linda Jenness, Socialist Workers Party presidential candidate spoke on her campaign last night at Mahar auditorium. She received a warm welcome. (MDC Photo by Jim Reardon.)

Jenness Seeks Labor, Minority Coalition

By BOB McWILLIAMS

Linda Jenness, the Socialist Workers Party's candidate for president spoke to an audience of 300 last night at Mahar Auditorium on the pertinent issues of her campaign.

She explained that her strategy was to organize and draw support from the Black, feminist, labor and anti-war movements already present in American society.

She spoke of these movements:

—"36% of prison inmates are non-white. There is no equal application of the law."

—"Our demands are; right to abortion, child care facilities, equal pay, employment and education."

—"Nixon's wage-price freeze is a direct attack on the living standards of the American workers."

—"Nixon is trying to substitute bombs for troops in order to make the American people think the war is winding down. And Nixon's New Economic Policy is designed to make the American people pay for the continuation of the war."

The Socialist Workers Party platform calls for total withdrawal from Vietnam, complete equality for women, giving local control to black communities, and a more equal distribution of wealth which would include the nationalizing of America's 200 biggest industries.

Pointing to several sources Jenness stated that 5% of the U.S. population controls 95% of the nation's wealth and around half of all the world's wealth. "Capitalism and democracy are antagonistic" she concluded.

Jenness contended that "the restrictive election laws are designed to support Democratic-Republican monopoly", and she sees little difference between these parties.

"You can't be a feminist Dem, a pro-labor Dem, an anti-war Dem...as soon as you enter the Dem party you lose your pressure", Jenness said. She insists that both major parties are controlled "by big businessmen, bankers and millionaires".

When asked if she would place her support behind either major party candidate in the event of a close race, Jenness replied, "We would never, ever support a capitalist candidate."

Whatever the statistical outcome of the '72 elections, Jenness feels her campaign will have the effect of bringing these issues to the American people and thereby forcing the major party candidates to consider them.

As the biggest Socialist campaign since Eugene Debs, the Jenness campaign has brought into question the rigid state requirements which third party candidates must meet in order to be included on the official ballots. The Socialist Workers are presently challenging in the courts the "loyalty oath" and signature requirements of several states, including Massachusetts, which require 60,000 signatures from registered voters.

The 300 persons who filled Mahar Auditorium gave Janness enthusiastic applause and questioned her for 45 minutes after the speech.

On The Inside:

● India-Pakistan See page fourteen

● Campus Carousel See page four

● Culturnatives See page sixteen

The roughest weeks, being filled with due dates for papers and exams, are ahead of us. After a few all-nighters, we can physically see the world as an illusion.

Suit Against Boeing Dismissed

NEW YORK (AP)-A federal judge dismissed Tuesday a $3.5-million suit against the Boeing Co. growing out of a crash of a B52 over Maine in 1963 that took seven lives.

The plaintiffs, a surviving crewman and relatives of six who died in the crash, had contended negligence on the part of Boeing, charging that the plane lost its tail fin through a welding defect just before the crash.

But the manufacturers held that the fin broke off not because of a defect, but because the plan was being flown in low-level turbulence for which it never was intended.

Judge John Cannella noted in his 115-page decision that the training flight was being flown at low altitudes because of "improved Sino and Soviet high-altitude electronic detection capabilities."

He added that neither this fact nor the undisputed good safety record of the B52s since 1952 "provides...solace to the plaintiffs."

The Air Force bomber was manned by men from bases at Westover, Mass., and in New Mexico when it made the training flight on Jan. 24, 1963, using advanced capability radar.

The crash occurred near Mt. Elephant, northeast of Moosehead Lake, Maine.

Boeing held that the flight was made over "mountainous areas and the very hills where the severe turbulence lurked," and that ranking members of the plane's crew were "contributorily negligent" for flying into turbulence."

"Severe turbulence is to be avoided, because it can cause structural damage to an aircraft and the crew knew this," the company said.

Judge Cannella held that neither Boeing nor the crew were negligent.

The plaintiffs in court here were one survivor, the navigator, Gerald J. Adler, formerly of Houston, Tex., now said to be a teacher at Davis in California; and the following kin of six crewmen who were lost:

Anna O'Keefe, of the Bronx, mother of tailgunner Michael O'Keefe; Wanda Bailey, of Rapid City, S.D., the widow of navigator Herbert L. Hanson; Opel Irene Snyder formerly of Orlando, Fla., widow of copilot Robert J. Morrison; Georgia Leuchter, of Sacramento, Calif., widow of radar navigator Charles G. Leuchter; Doris Annette Putt, of Sacramento, Calif., widow of Joe R. Simpson, instructor pilot; and Doris V. Gabriel, of Spring Valley, Calif., widow of instructor-navigator William W. Gabriel.

Congress Fights Cancer

WASHINGTON (AP)-Senate-House conferees agreed Tuesday on a $1.6-billion bill to mount a concentrated campaign against cancer.

The compromise retains most of the organizational provisions contained in a bill that had passed the House, including retaining the cancer program within the National Institute of Health.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Rep. Paul G. Rogers, D-Fla., leaders of the legislative drive, said the compromise retains the best features of the House bill and one which had passed the Senate.

They said they expect the compromise will have the approval of President Nixon and the American Cancer Society.

Earlier in the day, President Nixon had sent the conferees word he would accept either version of contested sections of the bill in order "to gain prompt passage of the legislation."

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus, zip code 01002. Phones are 545-2588 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 549-1311 (editor).

Second class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods, three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $6.00 per semester, $10.00 per year.

20 Kent State Cases Dismissed

RAVENNA, Ohio (AP)-The state Tuesday dismissed for lack of evidence the remaining 20 cases against persons indicted in the May 1970 Kent State University disorders.

The state's decision was announced shortly after Mary Helen Nicholas-the fifth person to be tried-was acquitted of a charge of interfering with a fireman during the May 2, 1970, burning of a campus ROTC building.

In earlier Portage County Common Pleas Court trials, two defendants pleaded guilty, one was found guilty on one count by a jury and charges against another were dismissed for lack of evidence.

Atty. Gen. William Brown held a brief news conference Tuesday in his office to formally announce that the remaining 20 cases had been dropped.

Brown said in a statement that the dismissals "are not intended to vindicate nor criticize the special grand jury, the students, the National Guard, the administration of Kent State University, or any other party involved in the Kent State incidents of May 1970."

John Hayward, the state's chief prosecutor in the cases, said the transcript of the special state grand jury that indicted 25 persons in the Kent disorders had been received by the special prosecutors 10 days ago.

Upon review of the transcript and considering the outcome of the trials so far, he said, "It is the conclusion of the office of the attorney general of Ohio that the following cases be dismissed for lack of evidence."

But, he contended, the first five cases would have been tried any way because there was sufficient evidence to warrant trials.

Common Pleas Judge Edwin W. Jones said in ordering Miss Nicholas' acquittal that it appeared "there is a great possibility that some of the defendants' rights under the 14th Amendment were not necessarily observed."

The acquittal came after her attorneys argued that testimony given by an arson investigator should be stricken from the record since Miss Nicholas didn't know a statement she gave the investigator could be used against her. They also said that she refused to give a written statement.

The investigator, Francis Brininger, had testified that Miss Nicholas told him that she had pulled on a fire hose during the ROTC building fire. Earlier testimony from another fireman, however, indicated the hose had been chopped in two and was useless.

Miss Nicholas' attorney said she thought she was aiding in the arson investigation and did not realize she was incriminating herself.

Earlier in the day, Judge Jones had permitted the reading of a portion of the grand jury transcript in which Miss Nicholas told jurors she pulled on a fire hose during the ROTC fire, but that the hose was not being used.

"Papers" Request Denied

WASHINGTON (AP)-A federal district court judge denied Tuesday a request by two congressmen that he review the portion of the so-called Pentagon Papers that has not yet been declassified by the Defense Department.

Judge Gerhard A. Gesell ruled "There is no need" for a review by him of the classified material that was requested in a suit by Reps. Ogden R. Reid, R-N.Y. and John E. Moss, D-Calif.

The two authorities of the Federal Freedom of Information Act, sought in their suit to compel publication of the entire Pentagon Papers.

Since the government lost its attempt in the Supreme Court to halt publication by several newspapers of portions of the classified documents, the Defense Department has declassified and published all but a small part of the Pentagon Papers.

The material withheld, classified secret or top secret after a review by the Defense Department, represents approximately two percent of the first 42 volumes and the last four of the 47-volume study formally titled U.S. Decision-Making Process in Vietnam.

Gesell said in his opinion that "The freedom of information act was not designed to open all government files indiscriminateiy to public inspection.

"There is no basis here for upsetting the responsible decision made as to these particular papers," he said. "Defendants of the government have made an adequate showing that disclosure would be harmful to the national defense or foreign policy."

ROBIN MORGAN
will be here

Tuesday, December 14

8 p.m. - Student Union Ballroom

SISTERHOOD IS POWERFUL!

Dean Field, a man among deans, has been at UMass since 1952. "As Dean" he said, "I know something about a great many things. My office is an all-purpose place. People often come here because they don't know where else to go."

Dean Field - A Man Among Deans

By SHARON McGOURTY

"Impersonal" is a word often used in describing the way this University is run and the people who run it. But this claim is not necessarily true. There are people in the administration who honestly care and work for the students and University alike. What's more, you can talk to them. Dean Field is one of these people.

Dean Field came to the University in 1952 as a psychology professor. UMass was quite different then.

"When I was first here," the dean said, "there was a Dean of Women and a Dean of Men, as well as separate rules for both men and women."

As the University became larger and larger, Dean Field took on more counselling work than ever before, especially during the summer counselling period. He became the Director of Guidance for the University, which involved even more counselling and interaction with students and staff.

In 1960 he became the Dean of Students at UMass.

What is his job? It can't really be restricted to any one area. Any problem a student or staff member may have can be and often is brought to the Dean. He sees those with financial and academic problems, as well as those who want to know the proper channels for finding things out and getting things done.

"As Dean," he said, "I know something about a great many things. My office is an all-purpose place. People often come here because they don't know where else to go."

Since the Dean has been here since 1952 he knows a great deal about the ins and outs of the University. He has watched it grow from a student body numbering 3,500 to its present size.

"When I first came here, I was concerned with helping to make this University a major university. Many people don't realize how terrible it can be to be small," said the Dean.

He feels size is also important because of certain obligations a university has to the state.

"A state university should be a place where any people from that state can go and receive a degree in an area which fulfills the needs of both the individual and state. In order to do this, a university must be fairly large," Dean Field said.

The Dean said that there is no way he can classify or compare the students here today with those of previous years. He feels all classes, all students are so diverse that they could never be categorized.

He believes strongly that there are many excellent faculty members and a great number of intelligent, aware students. He believes students and faculty alike should take pride in the University and enjoy it.

"If this doesn't happen, if some people are getting nothing out of UMass then there is something wrong and we want to find out what it is."

He feels SWAP, the student-teacher conference, has been especially helpful in this way. SWAP has helped him to see what some of the problems are especially in regards to student-university relations.

"SWAP is a clumsy arrangement, but there is no substitute for it at the present." Dean Field continued, "It has helped me tremendously to see what great problems the students have."

Dean Field feels that the University is a really exciting place and that it is one of the most dynamic universities he knows of. He has been here through much growth and change, and is in a position to use his knowledge to work for the benefit of students and UMass.

He feels, very significantly, that, "there is greater room for growth and change here than in any other universitity I know of."

Hunger Strike Held

By KAREN BRASIER

In an effort to draw attention to the persecution and discrimination of Soviet Jews, the Student Struggle for Soviet Jewry of Western Mass. along with other church and synagogue groups is sponsoring an all-night fast and vigil to begin at 7:00 this Thursday night on the Amherst Commons.

The objective of the hunger-strike which is worldwide and the vigil which is local is to provoke the U.S. government into pressuring the Soviet government to help more Jews leave Russia, for, as Dov Gordon of the SSSJ said, "The Soviet government won't let Jews leave the country and lead a Jewish life and they won't let them stay and lead a Jewish life." This denial of Judaism makes it a crime in the U.S.S.R. to receive a Jewish education of any kind or to speak the language of the Jews. This kind of discrimination is not forced upon any of the other minority groups of Russia who all learn their own language before they learn Russian.

The opening ceremonies on the Commons will last until approximately 8:00 P.M. Father Quigley of the Newman Center, Reverend Coenig of the Emanuel Lutheran Church, Rabbi Ofseyr from Springfield and Professor Mel Steinberg of Amherst College will be among the featured speakers.

During these ceremonies, a ten-foot Hanukkah menorah constructed by the students of the SSSJ will be present. Its main candle, used to light the other eight, will be dedicated to oppressed people everywhere. The remaining candles will be dedicated to individual Soviet Jews now suffering in prison camps and will focus on Sylva Zalmanson, a woman now dying in a political prison in the Soviet Union, convicted in the infamous closed-door Leningrad trial of anti-Soviet slander--because she owned some Hebrew books.

Approximately 350 people are expected to attend the vigil. Original poetry concerning Soviet Jewry will be read and many people will take turns on the stage speaking during the night. The vigil and hunger- strike will end at 3:30 in the afternoon on Friday--Human Rights Day.

Togetherness Is One Credit

Togetherness is a one credit course in the new English curriculum. At a meeting of the 125 faculty members of the English department this week, the proposal was made to experiment with a radical departure from the time- worn 65 three credit courses presently being offered. This innovation offers the chance to any group of students to set up one credit courses on topics of their choice. The only condition is that a professor must be willing to teach it.

The idea has been received with much enthusiasm. One English major said she thought it was a good chance to focus on a narrow point of interest, rather than the broad overview courses now being offered. Professor James Leheny of the English department said, "The program not only offers us more flexibility, it also allows the student to initiate a course and to become involved in planning a course."

At long last the English department, through this new idea, has thrown off the shackles of tradition. They have provided the opportunity for students and professors to come together for an enjoyable experience in an area of common interest.

U.N. Calls For India-Pakistan Cease Fire

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The U.N. General Assembly called on India and Pakistan Tuesday night to order an immediate cease-fire and to withdraw their troops to their own territories.

The action came 24 hours after the Security Council acknowledged its inability to deal with the problem, because of Soviet vetoes, and handed it to the veto-free assembly.

The assembly vote was 104 to 11, with 10 abstentions.

The cease-fire resolutions carried no binding force, but its sponsors expressed hope the Indian and Pakistani leaders would bow to it as a reflection of world opinion.

India, however, served notice in advance that no resolution would be acceptable unless it recognized the East Pakistan insurgents and won their approval.

The adopted resolution was basically the same as the one killed by a Soviet veto in the Security Council on Monday night.

The assembly debate began Tuesday morning and continued through the afternoon and evening.

It was marked, as the Security Council debate had been, by a sharp exchange between Communist China and the Soviet Union.

Peking's deputy foreign minister, Chiao Kuan-hua, noted a statement carried by the Soviet news agency Tass to the effect that the fighting involved Soviety security because of its proximity to the borders of the U.S.S.R.

"This is blackmail and a menace to China as well as all the neighboring countries of India and Pakistan," Chiao said. "Distinguished Soviet representative, what exactly are you planning to do? You might as well tell us here."

He repeated his charge that "the Soviet government is the boss behind the Indian aggression."

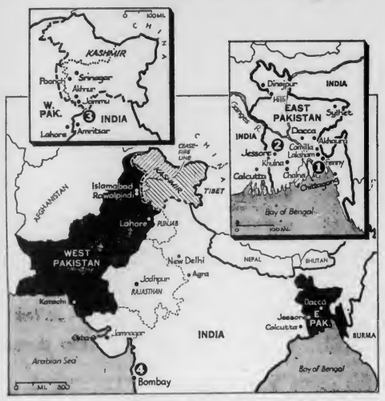
Soviet Ambassador Jacob A. Malik accused China of voting against a Soviet resolution in the Security Council "simply because it was Soviet."

"This," Malik said, "was reminiscent of the worst days of the cold war."

He again labeled the Peking representatives as "social traitors."

The speeches in the assembly generally stressed the need for speed in view of the large-scale fighting.

MDC Classifieds Pay



Abe Burrow's and Frank Loesser's
All Time Great American Musical
GUYS AND DOLLS
MOUNT HOLYOKE COLLEGE
LABORATORY THEATER
SOUTH HADLEY, MASS
Performances: Dec. 3-5 and Dec. 9-12 at 8:15 p.m.
Matinees both Saturdays at 2:15 p.m.
Box office now open: 10-9 Mon.-Sat. and 1-9 Sun.
Call 538-2046 Adults $2 and Students $1

BUFFALO BILL
IS COMING 545-2579

dvp
presents
SANDER VANOCUR
of "First Tuesday" and "Today"
former NBC anchorman
speaking on
"1972: Does It Make A Difference?"
Saturday Evening, Dec. 11
at 7:00 in the SUB
NBC

In The Nation And The World

India Urges Pakistan's Surrender

India said her troops took Fenny in East Pakistan (1) and bypassed Jessor (2). In the Kashmir area (3), Indian units reportedly repulsed a tank-backed Pakistani attack. Pakistani planes were said to have attacked many Indian areas, including Bombay (4).

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

India suffered a severe blow on its western front Tuesday but claimed it crushed the "hard outer crust" of the foe's defenses in East Pakistan and urged the Pakistani army there to surrender.

Under heavy attack, the Indians admitted they had lost the town of Chhamb in the northern state of Kashmir. If the Pakistani drive there is unchecked, it will cut a vital road to the northern part of that disputed state. Chhamb is 30 miles northwest of the major Indian town of Jammu.

The fighting on the eastern front was severe, and the Indian government spokesman claimed the capture of the garrison town of Jessore, 18 miles from the border and 90 miles southwest of Dacca, East Pakistan's capital.

Army headquarters in Calcutta reported, however, that house-to-house fighting was still going on at a nightfall after the Indians drove the 5,000-man garrison from the nearby cantonment and airfield.

A Pakistani army source in Dacca maintained that the Indian advance was being held, that an Indian attack with men, tanks and planes at Hilli in the northwest was repulsed, and that fierce fighting still raged around Jessore.

With correspondents unable to go to the front, there was no way of verifying the conflicting claims.

The Indian chief of staff, Gen. Sam Maneckshaw, broadcast an appeal to all 80,000 Pakistani soldiers in East Pakistan to surrender, adding: "Your fate is sealed. Time is running out. Lay down your arms before it is too late."

Maneckshaw claimed the Pakistanis were surrounded by Indian forces and the local guerrillas, known as Mukti Bahini, who were "ready to take revenge for the cruelities and atrocities you have committed."

Indian intelligence sources said they had intercepted a message from the East Pakistani commander to West Pakistan saying "there is no use fighting unless reinforcements come in time." When West Pakistan replied that "reinforcements are coming," it was decided that the Indian chief of staff should make the surrender appeal in a broadcast, the sources reported.

The Indian army asserted there were advances all along the 1,350-mile front in East Pakistan. A Defense Ministry spokesman in New Delhi claimed the capture of the city of Sylhet, in the tea country of the northeastern part of East Pakistan. He added it was made by the first helicopter-borne assault of the conflict.

A report from Calcutta said the Indian advance along the center of the front had moved to within 40 miles east of Dacca and cut off the Pakistani army base at Conilla.

In Kashmir, an Indian spokesman said after the fall of Chhamb, "our covering troops withdrew after having accomplished their mission of inflicting heavy casualties on the enemy."

During the three-day battle, with Pakistani troops backed "by massive artillery, armor and heavy air support," the Indians destroyed 33 Chinese-built T59 tanks, the spokesman claimed.

The Chhamb region was the scene of the bloodiest fighting between the two nations in their 1948 and 1965 wars over Kashmir.

The spokesman said the apparent intent of the Pakistani drive is to cut the only Indian supply line from New Delhi to Srinagar, capital of Kashmir.

If the Pakistanis succeed in pushing the Indians deep enough into their own territory in Kashmir to cut the road, they could isolate the Indian forces in the Punch region, 70 miles to the north.

In Brief ...

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP)-Ten North Atlantic allies announced Tuesday night they are stepping up military spending by more than a billion dollars, or nearly six per cent, in 1972 to ease the U.S. burden of defense.

"I think the Americans ought to be very much impressed by what the Europeans have done," the British defense minister, Lord Carrington, told newsmen in the name of the 10-nation Eurogroup. Members are Belgium, Britain, Demark, West Germany, Greece, Italy, Netherlands, Norway, Turkey and Luxembourg.

SANFORD Fla. (AP)-A sleek red and purple train whistled into central Florida Tuesday, 15 minutes ahead of schedule marking a new concept in U.S. rail travel.

The nation's first Auto Train thundered past workmen still hammering rails and setting switches as it completed it's 15-hour, 900-milemaiden run from the Washington, D.C., area.

BOSTON (AP)-A state senator from Boston has filed bills to require state colleges to teach "preretirement" courses and to give free courses on "preparing to retire" for persons over 60.

The bills were processed Tuesday for the 1972 session of the legislature.

Democratic Sen. Samuel Harmon, who filed the measures, also submitted a bill requiring the state secretary for educational affairs to provide "adequate training of persons over 60."

WASHINGTON (AP)-Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., denied yesterday he is filibustering against the Supreme Court nomination of Asst. Atty. Gen. William H. Rehnquist but urged his colleagues to give the appointment more attention.

He said he found the great majority of his fellow senators "more interested in other things than who should fill this seat on the Supreme Court."

NEW YORK (AP)-McGraw Hill Book Co. announced Tuesday it has acquired world rights to a 230,000-word autobiography of the elusive multimillionaire Howard Hughes. The book company also rejected a claim the book was not legitimate.

Enemy Pressure Kept On Cambodia

PHNOM PENH, (AP)-Enemy forces kept up pressure near Cambodia's capital with rockets, guns and mines Tuesday. South Vietnamese forays met little resistance in the eastern part of the country.

There was no fresh word from Kompong Thom, 80 miles north of Phnom Penh, where 10,000 Cambodian government troops and thousands of refugees are reported marooned after a Cambodia offensive collapsed last week.

In Saigon, Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker and Gen. Creighton W. Abrams met with President Nguyen Van Thieu. The presence of Abrams, commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, suggested the Cambodians' plight might have been among subjects discussed.

Both the United States and South Vietnam have been providing air support to the beleagured Cambodians but have been unable to reverse the rout of forces northeast of Phnom Penh or break the siege of towns on the capital's northeastern outskirts.

U.S. ground forces are forbidden to enter Cambodia, and thousands of Saigon ground troops in eastern Cambodia are more than 70 miles away from the chief trouble spots. The South Vietnamese are probing in a north-south corridor between the Chup and Mimot rubber plantations-both reputed sanctuaries for North Vietnamese or Viet Cong divisions.

Fourteen enemy rockets hit the Phnom Penh area Tuesday and one smashed two houses and wounded three civilians in a slum at the western edge. There were no reports on the effect of three rockets that hit near the Phnom Penh airport and 10 fired at a command post 12 miles west of the city.

In addition, enemy infiltrators have damaged a bridge 14 miles southwest of Phnom Penh and mined key roads to the north in an apparent effort to disrupt communications.

Two reinforcement battalions linked up briefly Monday with troops at besieged Phnom Penh Baset, 14 miles northwest of the center of Phnom Penh, but were driven back.

Quicksilver
Happy Hours

COME TO A
USCC
COFFEE HOUR
DEC. 9
8:30
Dukes Room S.U.
Coffee Served

Rod Rodgers Dance Company
a unique theatre experience
Tuesday - Thursday
December 7-8-9
8:00 P.M.
Bowker Auditorium
A Different Program Each Evening.
Reserved Tickets:
UMass Undergrads $1.00
Other Full-Time Students $2.00
UMass Faculty/Staff $3.00
General Public $3.50
Fine Arts Council Ticket Office,
125 Herter Hall, Tel. 545-0202
Presented by the University of Massachusetts Fine Arts Council

Senate Passes Day-Care Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House brushed aside threats of a presidential veto Tuesday and passed 210 to 186 a bill that would launch a major new day-care program for pre-school children.

The bill, which also extends for two years a variety of federal antipoverty programs, now goes to the White House, which worked hard to defeat it.

The new child-development program it authorizes has aroused intensive opposition among conservatives, and President Nixon will be under heavy pressure from them to veto it.

Although no one mentioned the possibility of a veto during the House debate, minority leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan told a Republican caucus just before the vote that veto was certain if the House passed the bill.

Despite the warning, 31 Republicans deserted Ford and the administration and voted with 179 Democrats in favor of the bill. Voting against it were 134 Republicans and 52 Democrats.

Speaker Carl Albert, D-Okla., stepping down as presiding officer to make a strong plea for passage, said the bill presented the House with "the paramount moral vote of the session."

Albert recalled that in a message to Congress two years ago Nixon called for "national commitment to providing all American children an opportunity for helpful and stimulating development during the first five years of life."

"Although President Nixon has changed his mind more than any other President in my memory," Albert added, "I don't think he would change his mind on the need for helping children."

The new child-care program would provide medical, nutritional and educational services for preschool children in locally run centers.

The services would be free for children from families with an annual income under $4,320 a year. Fees based on a sliding scale according to income would be charged for other children. Priority for participation in the program would be given to working mothers.

Although most Republicans attacked the program on the basis of the administrative difficulties it poses and its estimated cost of $2 billion in the first full year of operation starting July 1, some voiced fear that it would lead to federal control of children.

Rep. John Brademas, D-Ind., chief House sponsor of the program, called such criticism thoroughly irresponsible. He said participation in the program would be entirely voluntary and parents would be deeply involved in planning and operating it.

Helping the passage of the bill was the parliamentary situation, which gave the House only the choice of passing the entire package or killing it.

Nixon Calls Anti-India Claim False

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration declared Tuesday that it was working vigorously for a peaceful settlement of the India-Pakistan dispute with both sides, and India decided to use military force before those efforts were exhausted.

White House officials said it is totally inaccurate to charge that the United States is anti-India.

Expressing a long-time commitment, in fact even a love affair, with the Indian nation, the officials said that the United States is trying to relieve human suffering, avert famine and achieve political autonomy for the people of East Pakistan.

Earlier in the day, the State Department had announced that the United States had decided to channel all peacemaking efforts in the India-Pakistan conflict through the United Nations General Assembly. Its efforts to win a cease-fire and troop withdrawal resolution in the U.N. Security Council were blocked by Soviet Union vetoes.

The high-level administration sources said Pakistan agreed to a timetable to return East Pakistan to civilian rule by the end of December, had agreed to a declaration of amnesty for refugees who fled to India and had agreed to unilateral withdrawal of its military forces from the border between India and Pakistan.

It also had agreed, the sources said, to talk with representatives of the Bangla Desh, the insurgent government for East Pakistan.

All these moves were conveyed to Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi by President Nixon and top U.S. officials the sources said.

But, India to their surprise, launched military action, the sources said.

The officials at the White House said peaceful means had not been exhausted, this use of military force was not justified and that there had not been sufficient time to work on the political settlements proposed.

In taking an urgent resolution to the United Nations Security Council for a cease-fire and withdrawal of forces, George Bush, U.S. delegate to the United Nations had declared over the weekend that India was the main aggressor in the dispute.

The White House was responding to allegations in Congress that it is not, in fact, neutral but is backing Pakistan.

The official said the United States made the accusation of aggression to point out to the world that it is opposed to the use of military force.

The White House officials said they were not condoning the Pakistani actions in seeking to crush the Bangla Desh independence movement but they said what had started as a tragedy last March 25 has now become an effort to dismember a sovereign state and a member of the United Nations.

The hope was expressed that the Soviet Union, which twice used its veto against end-the-war resolutions in the Security Council, would use its considerable influence to help promote a peaceful solution and a political evolution in the disputed area.

There has been no response from the Soviet Union, officials said, to diplomatic urgings by the United States.

USSR Lands On Mars

MOSCOW (AP) — An unmanned Soviet space capsule parachuted onto Mars and sent television and radio signals to earth, Tass reported Tuesday. It is the first time that a functioning manmade object had soft-landed on the planet's dusty surface.

The capsule was dispatched to Mars last Thursday from the Soviet probe Mars 3, which continued to circle the planet in an orbit more than 930 miles high, the Soviet news agency announced.

The agency gave no details on the shape or weight of the capsule which landed or the next step in its mission.

The agency added that the vehicle also sent some "video signals" but they "were brief and suddenly discontinued."

Mars 3 was launched May 28 and took 188 days to reach the red planet, 76 million miles from earth. It followed closely behind Mars 2, launched May 19.

Mars 2 dipped into a wide elliptical orbit of Mars on Nov. 27 and began a photoreconnaissance. The Soviets said it would not attempt a soft landing.

An American Mars probe, Mariner 9, has been circling the planet since Nov. 13, trying to peer through a dust storm which has raged on the surface since September, thwarting scientists' attempts to map it.

The Soviet space capsule apparently found the Martian surface solid enough to make a stable landing. American scinetists had expressed fears earlier that the dust on the surface of Mars was even thicker than that on the moon and that a craft attempting to land might sink out of sight.

Tass indicated that neither Mars 2 nor Mars 3 would be involved in any more space spectaculars.

The agency said a computer on board Mars 3 made the final corrections in its trajectory Thursday and put it into position for the separation of the descent craft.

"After separation," the agency continued, "the descent craft entered into the planet's atmosphere, parachuted down and softly landed in the southern hemisphere between the Electris and Phaetonis regions."

The agency said some of the instruments involved in the Mars 3 probe were made by French specialists under the Soviet-French program of scientific and technical cooperation.

William Pickering, director of the Mariner 9 project, said at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, Calif., that he was not surprised at the reported landing of the Mars 3 capsule in view of the two major Soviet probes sent to Mars.

"It will be very interesting to see what kind of data they collect on the surface," he said, "and how they measure the dust storm that is still raging..."

Buy One
Get One Free
every Wednesday
Night
BRUNI'S
PIZZA
Corner of Main & Triangle
256-6676

Last Chance to Apply
for Student Judgeships
Openings available on:
Area East Judiciary
Area West Judiciary
Greek Area Judiciary
Pick up applications at Rooms 111 or 113, Campus Center
Applications Due
This Friday, Dec. 10 at Noon

Autograph Party
for
DICK SUMMER

Disc Jockey — WBZ & WKOX
Poet and Author
of
"Lovin Touch I" ● "Lovin Touch II"
and
"Together"
at the University Store
on Thursday, 9 December
3:00 p.m. — 6:00 p.m.

Bromery Hails Project 10.....

By DON GLICKSTEIN

Acting Chancellor Randolph W. Bromery, talking with thirty students, staff, and faculty of Project 10, said last night that he felt "Project 10 has come a long way" from the undefined experimental dormitory of the last three years.

Bromery dined with and then discussed future proposals of Project 10 for approximately 2-1/2 hours. The major proposal the Project is working on, Bromery learned, was to make the living-learning experience a semi-autonomous, experimental and exploring college.

According to Charles Adams, Director of P10 and a faculty member in the English Department, the autonomous college proposal could include direct hiring or joint departmental hiring of faculty and greater flexibility within the educational structure.

John Hunt, the Area Dean of the Southwest Residential College, explained the need for a better reward system for faculty involved in special projects. He said that faculty should not jeopardize their careers because of involvement in experimental programs.

The Project 10 proposal, if approved, would have faculty acting as advisors for students to plan individualized programs. The faculty would also be free to supervise study away programs, or could become part of an off-campus Project faculty.

Much of the evening's discussion saw Dr. Bromery exchanging different views with students about the future of Project 10. Bromery expressed concern that when a person graduated from the Project or any freer educational environment, he would have trouble convincing prospective employers or schools of his qualifications. "Who can afford Project 10?" the Director Adams replied that the Project was "a risk-taking proposition". Several students told the gathering, however, that they took more risk being in a traditional department, in view of the current job market, than in a more flexible program like Project 10.

Other students told Bromery that they felt college was a "rite of passage". Jim LaMacchia, a junior, argued that he wasn't necessarily in college to prepare for a job, but rather to find out about himself.

A freer learning and living experience, such as the Project offers, Adams reiterated, provides an environment in which students can teach themselves to face the world. Students can gain a "confidence in their ability to learn", he assured Bromery.

The Head of Residence of Pierpont House, where the Project is currently located, is David Duncan, an undergraduate who is also on the Chancellor's Search Committee. Duncan said that he believed that a person could leave Project 10 with enough confidence in himself to become the "president of General Motors and be the best one" or to have enough confidence in himself to live in a commune.

Dr. Bromery , with twinkle in his eye, then told the Pierpont residents that he had enough confidence in himself to return to his early career as a bricklayer, should he not be able to retain a Chancellorship or work in geophysics.

A sophomore in the Project, Myrna Schwartz, complained to the former head of the Geology Department that she felt the physical and population aspects of Pierpont House were holding back development of dorm community.

Bromery replied that the administration should find "all possible permutations and combinations" to make living in buildings like the Southwest towers humane, but if the population was halved, the rent would be doubled, and half as many people would be given the opportunity to attend school.

Charles Adams summarized Project 10 to Bromery by saying that traditional schools had people "preparing for life so much that they can't cope with life". Project 10, Adams prophecized, would try to alter that way of education. He added that a few vacancies existed in the Project for spring semester and interested persons should contact him in the Project office in Pierpont House.

Dr. Bromery and members of project 10 had dinner together and then discussed the past merits of the project and its future.

...And Celebrates A Birthday

By DAVID HOFFMAN

A special feature of the special Project 10 dinner for Acting Chancellor Bromery was a surprise 21st birthday party for Student Senate President Lee Sandwen, a Project member for four years. As the cake was brought into the room, Lee looked at Bromery and Project faculty member Joe Burroughs, the Faculty delegate to the Board of Trustees, and all the "presidential rhetoric" fell away for a moment. He was silent. For a moment.

Then Bromery presented a package, and added, "Lee, you may wish to spend some time with either of the 'fun games' described in these two documents--and leave the varsity sports...the men's games...to older men." The two documents, when the gift was unwrapped, were a current copy of Playboy and the book, 25 Kites That Fly.

Project 10 Director Charles Adams was first to the mark, saying he was surprised there were only 25 ways an administrator knew to tell a student leader to go fly a kite. Merriment followed.

Lee Sandwen blows out his Birthday candles, making his turning 21 official. Lee had a party last night commemorating this memorable event at Southwest.

CORRECTION

Attorney Richard Howlands phone number is 545-0341 daytime and 256-8448 in the evenings and in an emergency.

"Z"
Friday Evening
Dec. 10 — Mahar Aud.
6:30 - 8:45 - 11:00

Viet nam
SANDER VANOCUR
Little Rock
former NBC Anchorman
"1972: Does It Make A Difference?"
SATURDAY EVENING — DEC. 11
7:00 — SUB
Coffee Hour Following in the Colonial Lounge

PARIS HELSINKI MOSCOW MONACO BRUSSELS BELGRADEGENEVA BUCHAREST
LONDON ROME MADRID LISBON VATICAN CITY MONACO
OSLO DUBLIN MONROVIA EDINBURGH ATHENS MADRID
FLY SUPERCHEAP
Los Angeles $199
Dec. 18 - Jan. 3 — Boston - L.A.-Boston. Round trip jet for $199. Can give info. on connecting flights to San Francisco.
Ski Europe $325
15 days/14 nights at innsbruck, Kitzbuhel & St. Anton. Departures from JFK & Logan benin 12/18/71 and continue through 3/31/72. Includes air fare, meals, double occupancy hotel & all taxes.
Youth Fare
Guaranteed Round Trip reservations at no additional charge.
Pay with MASTERCHARGE
Nassau $179
Dec. 27-Jan. 3. $179 includes round trip jet from Boston, all taxes & tips & accommodations at the Montagu Beach Hotel, Flagler Inn or Pilot House Hotel*
London $187
Dec. 17-Jan. 2 $187 includes round trip jet air fare from Boston* Dec.
American Student Travel
27 Massachusetts Ave., Boston 02115
For further information call Steve German 253-3359
*open only to 5 College students, faculty, staff & immediate family
SAN MARINO WARSAW PRAGUE LUXEMBOURG COPENHAGEN OUGADOUGOU

Take a Peter Pan Bus to
BRADLEY INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT
Peter Pan buses leave for Bradley International convenient with flight schedules from 7 AM thru 11 PM
Peter Pan
Student Union
Tel. 545-2006

Future University Report

Freshman Year Is A Mess

For many entering students at the University of Massachusetts, college is an alien experience in a variety of ways. Many of them--nearly half of last year's entering class at Amherst--are the first generation of their family to go to college. For many of those at Amherst, the University is their first extended period away from home. Many went to high schools in which the style and approach were relatively traditional and inflexible, and in which grades and not intellectual exploration and risk-taking were paramount.

The freshman year introduces these students to university life. It is the single largest determinant of the quality of their university experience.

Yet the freshman year is also a time when students receive too little attention. Advising and counseling are weak. Freshmen often find courses they want to take filled up before they can enroll. They frequently end up in large classes which become an exercise in good note-taking and memorizing, with little opportunity for personal contact with the teacher or for interchange of ideas. Too often, freshman courses do not respond to the developmental needs of freshmen, which one recent study summarized as "enhancement of their self-image, an opportunity to form judgments, and relating these judgments to themselves."[1] The freshman year reveals the imperfect allocation of resources within the University. The students who are going through the most difficult process of adjustment are the ones who are in the largest classes and receive the least attention.

The academic center of the freshman year is the core curriculum. The core curriculum concept is the heritage of a time when, as during the presidency of Robert Maynard Hutchins at the University of Chicago, there was still a consensus about the introduction which every educated person should receive to knowledge and culture.

Now, when people are less sure what the educated person should know, universities have substituted a variety of choices for the old monolithic core curriculum. The purpose is no longer to introduce the student to a body of knowledge, but rather to expose him or her to ways of looking at knowledge. The method, however, needs re-examination.

Thus, while the entering freshman at Amherst is required to take two courses in rhetoric (English composition), three courses in the humanities and fine arts, three in the social and behavioral sciences and three in mathematics and natural sciences, there are now a wide variety of courses available to fulfill the requirements. The side-effect of this commendable broadening of choice has unfortunately been a high incidence of confusion. In one department, for example, 84 courses are listed as acceptable core requirement offerings.

The situation at Boston is in the process of change. Earlier this year the University Senate there abolished all core requirements. Later, an interim set of core and distributional requirements was established pending the division of the campus into individual colleges. The interim requirements include a freshman writing course, a foreign language for those who have not demonstrated proficiency, three courses in social science of which one must be in history, and three courses in the natural sciences or mathematics. The major departure is that, as an alternative to these requirements, a student may design his own curriculum in consultation with a faculty advisor or with an advising committee. The Amherst campus also offers an individually designed core curriculum on a limited basis.

We believe the University's responsibility goes beyond enlarging the number of choices, as indeed the campuses have begun to recognize. The current predominant system of sending first and second year students through a series of largely unrelated introductory courses is not sufficient, particularly in the absence of a much better advising program than exists now.

We suggest one direction for change below. The faculty will surely have other ideas and proposals.

We suggest that the faculty at both Amherst and Boston consider an experimental freshman year program which seeks to involve students in beginning to apply the various disciplines to specific problems; to help them make reasonably well informed choices about their academic and career goals; and to expose them to moral and social values implicit in the acquisition and utilization of knowledge.

This new freshman year would seek to resolve the dilemma between telling students there are certain things they must know when they may not be interested in those things, and letting students study whatever they want when by doing so they might miss something they would have found important.

Our idea is that a quarter to a third of the freshman's course time would be prescribed for him in the form of three basic units, one each in the social sciences, the natural sciences, and the humanities and arts. The rest of his time would be spent in pursuing a number of optional offshoots from the basic courses, with the possibility of self-design of some of the offshoots.

The three basic units would each be designed to integrate several disciplines and to employ them in analyzing specific events and problems. The tendency now is to present the student with the end result, the product of professional research and experience. But problem-oriented work would give students the opportunity to learn how professionals operate, and what the process of acquiring knowledge is.

Simply put, the student should be exposed not only to what sociology is but also to what sociologists do. We think this kind of experience will tend to knit student and professor in a shared enterprise of discovery that is generally reserved for upper-level and graduate students.

The three basic courses would be supplemented by a wide range of special optional courses designed for this new program. Most should be quite small in size. Included in the offshoot courses would be skill development courses for students who need them. It should also be possible for offshoot courses to come into being in response to the shared interest of several students. For example, if several students wished to spend more time on the history of the civil rights movement as an offshoot to their study of race relations in the basic social sciences unit, such a course should be possible. [2]

We cannot stress strongly enough our view that this program be designed so that its content and approach can be frequently evaluated by faculty and students. If a process of frequent evaluation can be set up, and if students can share in the process, the possibility of success for the new program will be greatly enhanced.

The success of any revised freshman year program whether it be the one outlined above or any other, also depends largely, indeed predominantly, upon the strength of the teaching. Later in this chapter, with an eye to strengthening the teaching ethos at the freshman level, we suggest a teaching-oriented University professoriate--a cadre of professors whose mission at UMass will be to excel in teaching.

A third key element in the success of the program will be the strength of the advising system. Freshmen need to be helped in choosing courses, in measuring their progress, in learning efficient ways to use their time and in many other matters. A vastly improved advising system will be essential. The modified approach to the freshman year which the Boston campus has adopted has already exposed the need for greatly increased attention to advising.

We are not certain whether this or any other new freshman program is appropriate for all freshmen. It may, for example, not be appropriate for older students, particularly if they are part-time students. Some students may be sufficiently sure of their direction so as not to need an introductory year, and some may be able to justify a greater measure of independent study. It may need to be modified for the professional schools, and for the new College III of Public and Community Service at Boston. We suggest, therefore, that any new program be designed initially for less than all of the freshman, but enough so the experiment has meaning--perhaps 500 to 700 freshmen at Amherst, and 200 to 300 freshmen at Boston. It should be possible for it to be initiated by the fall of 1973 at that scale. An effort should be made to recruit a cross-section of freshmen for it, and then a process of evaluation might begin, aimed at defining how widely it can be extended and how it might be adapted for part-time and professional students.

We are well aware of the difficulties involved in improving the freshman year. It will cost money--in smaller class size, intensified advising, and more skill development work. That money will either have to be taken from other areas or obtained from the legislature, or some of both. We know there ia a long history of failed efforts at freshman year reform in various universities. Nonetheless, the present situation presents a number of difficulties, and an effort at significant change should be attempted.

There are many ways to adapt to freshman year at UMass. Drugs anyone? (MDC Photo by Gary Alpaugh)

Below are the main points from the section of the Committee's report entitled The Learning Process-What, When and Where?

Undergraduate Programs

The University should seek to intensify its undergaduate focus, offering a diversity of programs, places and times to learn suitable to a diverse student body and a complex society.

The Campuses

Amherst should be the primary place for advanced training; Boston should be the more professionally and urban oriented center; and Worcester should be a health professions and health sciences campus.

Freshman Year

The freshman year should be re-examined, to bring to it better advising and counseling, more resources, and new curricula approaches.

Program Options

A greater diversity of carefully designed options for the rest of the undergraduate years should be created, including more options for independent study, broadened majors, new problem-oriented approaches to learning, a College of Public and Community Service at Boston, and a broadened conception of the possible missions of the remaining colleges at Boston.

Field Work

Diversity in the place of learning should be pursued, including more field work in courses, partial dispersal of the Boston campus, and an "open university" unit for Massachusetts.

Learning Time

Diversity in the time of learning should be pursued, including deferred admission, permission for "stopping off," and allowing students to finish degree work faster.

Graduate School

The University should examine it graduate teaching and research activities to see how they can contribute more effectively to an undergraduate focus.

Education

The University should place increased emphasis on professional education, both graduate and undergraduate, and should endeavor in its professional programs to inculcate both practical competence and the perspective and values traditionally associated with the liberal arts.

Counceling

Advising and counseling should be greatly expanded and improved.

Faculty Reward System

The faculty and departmental reward systems should encourage teaching and public service activities as much as they do research and publication, and an appropriate teaching evaluation system should be considered to facilitate this.

Staffing

New staffing patterns should be developed, including a teaching-oriented university professoriate, more adjunct faculty, more women and minority faculty, and more adequate support staff for faculty.

Library and Computers

Library and computer facilties should receive more adequate financial support, for they are integral to the teaching and research processes of the University.

Dormitories

Dormitory living at Amherst should be the focus of the new community-building efforts, and efforts to facilitate outside-of-class communal life at Boston should be intensified.

1. The Student in Higher Education, Report of the Committee on the Student in Higher Education (The Hazen Foundation, New Haven, Connecticut, January, 1968) p.11
2. The idea of offshoot courses to engage in small group exploration draws on the experience of freshman seminars at Harvard which, while costly, are thought to have been a useful way to introduce freshmen to the world of disciplines, to the resolution of problems, and to the large issues which cut across all the disciplines. See Bell The Reforming of General Education. (Anchor Books, Doubleday Co Inc., Garden City, New York, 1968) pp. 189-90.

Sabbath Dialog At U.M. Hillel

A group of Orthodox Jewish students from Yeshiva and Sterns Colleges are coming to UMass to share a traditional Sabbath and an interchange of feelings with Jewish students here. They are seeking to bridge a wall of separation and alienation that has grown up between Orthodox Jewish youth and the rest of Jewish youth. Starting at 4 p.m. on Friday, Dec. 10 prayer services will be held, followed by 6 p.m. dinner and rap sessions. The fare for Saturday will be services from 9 a.m., lunch, workshops and discussion, a break at 2 p.m., and a resumption at 3:30 with early supper, services and discussion. All will join in the annual UMass Hillel Latke Party at 6 p.m. Jewish students are invited to come to all or any of the programs to experience a traditional sabbath, to meet students of, perhaps, a different background and opinion and exchange ideas and grievances. However, those wanting to join the meals must contact Hillel, 420 S.U. immediately so place can be made. All programs will be at the Hillel Center, 420 Student Union.

The Hillel Director, Rabbi Kowal, indicated that no holds will be barred at the rap sessions. All that is asked is an honest effort to share the rituals, and enough goodwill for dialog, not mere indignant pronouncements. The goals are sharing, not swearing; conversation, not conversion; raised minds, not raised eyebrows; a meeting of persons, whether or not there is a meeting of minds.

MDC Classifieds

Commentary

Wood's Report Causes Apathy

By LARRY LADD

The Future University Report has been received with a roar of indifference. It is advertised as President Robert Wood's master plan for UMass. Since Wood will be the single most influential figure in determining the future direction of the university, the report merits careful consideration and thoughtful response. After such consideration, however, I am convinced that the initial indifference is justified.

Whatever the reaction on the campuses, that reaction will not have much impact at the systems office. The President and the Board are strong believers in centralized planning and centralized control. As they view the university structure, decisions should be made at the top. This is the covert policy of the central office, contradicting the experiences gained in the failures of the centrally planned Model Cities program and the centrally planned MBTA.

Social planning has been one of the greatest fiascos of the decade. In air-conditioned rooms, suburban utopians proceeded to hallucinate their own unique visions of the ideal community. Unfortunately, these visions were totally divorced from the real people who were being "programmed." Planners with PhD.'s simply have no real means of judging the needs and aspirations of people living in radically different conditions. Their goal is to impose their values, which are, by definition, the best, upon the heathens. There is only one way for planning to work: it must be done by the people who will live under the plans, and those people must have the ultimate power of decisions.

The Future University Committee was a collection of bankers and utopians, with some token students and faculty. There was no real effort to engage the campuses in direct participation in the furmulation of the report.

No one can quarrel with most of the recommendations, for they are too general, or too impossible in some cases, to have a chance of implementation. Indeed, I fear that the report will be used in much the same way that religionists use the Bible - it can be quoted to support two contradiction viewpoints with equal vigor.

The committee fails to establish clear priorities for the commitment of energy and resources. The committee lists its "five key concepts: accessiblity, diversity, undergraduate teaching, service, and productivity" with no rank order. In the course of running the university, these concepts will consistently conflict, so that decisions of priority will have to be made. That is the most difficult problem in administration, but the report failed to give the necessary guidelines.

Coupled with its generalizations, the document merely urges us to move faster in the direction we are already going. We are already beginning, too slowly, to stress public service, undergraduate teaching, more open admission standards, and real residential colleges. The committee has relegated itself to the role of cheerleader.

Reports are quickly filed and as quickly forgotten. This one will be no exception. It is sad that so many people spent so many hours on such a shallow document.

Business Offers New Course

The Department of General Business is offering a course for students. These are matched with a specific bill pending in the General Court. The student then does research on topics that he is interested in and submits a paper to the legislator he is working with. This course is valuable for those interested in some of the problems of contemporary society.

If you are interested in this course please contact Prof. Ethan Katsh (tel. 5-0053) at the Department of General Business.

A drive to collect money for sickle-cell anemia research was kicked off today when Acting Chancellor Randolph Bromery bought a candy-bar for fifty cents. Students will be selling the candy bars on the concourse level of the Campus Center for the next two weeks.

The students selling the chocolate bars said that they began the drive because they "wanted to do something." The money collected from selling the candy will be presented in the form of a check to Bromery. Bromery will then give it to a personal friend of his at Howard University who is researching sickle-cell anemia. The students hope to collect one-thousand dollars.

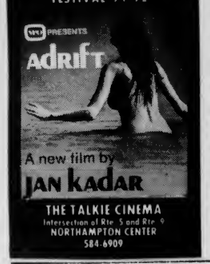
Clinics have been set up in some areas to test black residents for the disease. A drive was held recently at Brown University to test every black student for the disease.

The students running the UMass fund-raising drive are all in AF—ROTC. A sign at their display reads: "A Friend Reaches Out To Care."

Gay Women's Caucus

Wed., Dec. 8, 5 p.m.

SW Women's Center/JQA Lounge



Who is a Gay Women?
What are her needs?
Can Gay Women be part of the Sisterhood?

Organizational Meeting - Coffee Served

During your dinner —

EUROPEAN CINEMA FESTIVAL '71-'72

WNEC PRESENTS

THE TALKIE CINEMA
Intersection of Rte. 5 and Rte. 9
NORTHAMPTON CENTER
584-6909

Every Wednesday is STAMPEDE NIGHT

A little bit of the Far West in New England.
Our cowgirls, in Western garb will serve you Western Steer Beef by the ounce — 45c per ounce for Prime Sirloin, 70c per ounce for Filet Mignon, and 35c per ounce for a Rib of Broiled Beef. Just tell the chef how thick of a slice you want, and how you like it done.
Keep our Friday Night Buffet in mind 6:30 to 9:00 p.m. $5.50 per person.

The Lord Jeffery
30 Boltwood Ave. AMHERST, MASS. 253-2576
RAUL DIETRICH, INNKEEPER

SAVE ★ ★ SAVE ★ ★ SAVE ★ ★ SAVE ★ ★ SAVE Redeem Coupons at the
STUDENT UNION HATCH
between 5 p.m. - 9 p.m.
Wed., Dec. 8 - Sat., Dec. 11
One Coupon Per Order

With This Coupon
2 Hamburgers
French Fries
8 oz. Soft Drink
for
Only 75¢
($1.00 value)
from 5 p.m.-9 p.m. Wed.-Sat. Dec. 8-11 at STUDENT UNION HATCH

Ice Cream Sundae
of your choice
10¢ Off
With This Coupon
Wed.-Sat., Dec. 8-11
5 p.m.-9 p.m.
at STUDENT UNION ICE CREAM BAR

SIZZLING STEAK SANDWICH PLATTER only 89¢
DAILY 3 P.M.-10 P.M.

Do You Believe In Magic

Andre Kole, billed as "America's leading illusionist," will perform at 8:00 P.M. tomorrow night in the UMass Cage.

Kole, whose performances have taken him to all 50 states and Canada and to almost 50 other countries, has appeared on national television in 38 countries. He has given special performances before presidents, ambassadors, and other civic and government officials. In one year alone, he spoke to more than 50 million persons through personal and television appearances.

By the time he was 12, Kole had entertained in more than a dozen states, in Canada and in Central America, and was billed as "the world's greatest junior magician."

Since the beginning of his professional career, Kole has developed his own illusions. In one year alone, he invented more than 1,000 magical effects and ideas. For a number of years, he had his own company which built and sold some of his inventions to magicians throughout the world. By the time he was 25, Kole was doing between 20 to 30 shows each month, and directed a number of enterprises in show business.

Kole's wife, Aljeana, is featured in many of his programs. One of the few magicians in the world today, she has been instrumental in helping to create and produce the programs, and has also occasionally presented her own act.

For the past ten years, Kole has devoted the major portion of his time to performing and speaking on the leading college and university campuses of the world. Two years ago, Andre Kole performed here in Bowker Auditorium before a packed audience of over 900 people. His performances include demonstrations of clairvoyance, extrasensory perception and dematerialization, a demonstration and expose of spiritualism and a discussion of predictions for the future.

Due to his interest in the supernatural, Kole will include some observations he made from his investigation of the miracles of Christ from the point of view of an illusionist.

Kole's tours are made in conjunction with Campus Crusade for Christ International, an interdenominational student Christian movement active on hundreds of United States campuses and in more than half of the major countries of the world.

Tickets for tomorrow night's performance may be purchased for $1.00 at a table in the Campus Center Concourse or by calling 549-6149; tickets are $2.00 at the door.

Professor Says Cancer Limited

Dr. Robert Tuthill, Professor of Epidemiology in the Department of Public Health at the University of Massachusetts, spoke to the Hampshire County Unit of the American Cancer Society at the regular bimonthly meeting held at the University of Massachusetts on Tuesday, November 16, on cervical cancer. He explained that his remarks were limited to cancer of the cervix of the uterus and did not apply to all types of uterine cancer. He discussed the facts of the distribution of this disease among various groups and what these facts suggest about the cause and detection of cervical cancer.

Cervical cancer is more common among the poor, the underprivileged, the married, those with several children, those with broken or multiple marriages. It is particularly high in those women whose sexual activity began very early in life, although the disease apparently takes twenty years or more to develop. It is higher in those women whose sexual partners are not circumcised and in those who do not use as contraceptives a physical barrier, either a diaphragm or condom. Cervical cancer is very high among prostitutes and is very rare among nuns. All these facts suggest that there is some relationship to sexual intercourse.

Dr. Tuthill perdicted that there will be an increase in cervical cancer twenty years from now because of the increase in sexual activity in the young.

Dr. Tuthill then discussed the increasing evidence of an association between a virus, Herpesvirus, type II, which may be transmitted venereally, (even though the male partner is not affected by the virus) and the presence of cervical cells which are abnormal, precancerous of cancerous. A large precentage of women with cervical cancer show antibodies in their blood to Herpesvirus type II. It is a statistical kind of association similar to that which has been demonstrated between smoking cigarettes in the development of lung cancer.

At present the evidence suggests that Herpesvirus type II is only one significant factor leading to the development of cervical cancer; it is not the sole or sufficient cause itself. The fact that this disease is more common in those whose sexual activity began in the early postpubertal age suggest that hormonal factors are probably also involved.

Jan. Grads. & "Ed Blockers"

Senior Photos

LAST WEEK
to sign up

to be taken
Dec. 13 - 17

SIGN UP NOW
in Index Office

S.U. 401 (2nd Floor)

HOLIDAY GIFTS NEVER SOUNDED SO GOOD

See our complete selection of SONY tape recorders priced as low as $49.95

Sony Model TC-60 AC/DC Personal Portable Cassette-Corder

The TC-60, Sony's lowest-priced Cassette-Corder, is perfect for budget-minded students and housewives, for personal correspondence, or just for fun.

Sony Model TC-70 AC/DC Portable Cassette-Corder

A unique back-space review button and stop/start microphone make the Sony 70 ideal for study and stenographic work.

Sony Model TC-90 AC/DC Portable Cassette-Corder with Built-in Condenser Microphone

Here's a truly versatile performer! Sony's new Model TC-90 offers two microphones: a built-in professional condenser microphone for perfect "hands-off" recording, plus a Remote Stop/Start Microphone for dictation. It's the best "under $100.00" cassette recorder you can buy!

Sony Model CF-200 AC/DC Cassette-Corder AM/FM Radio Combination

Want extra style and performance in a Cassette-Corder AM/FM radio combination? The new CF-200 is loaded with "extras," including Sonymatic recording control for perfect, distortion-free recordings.

Sony Model 124-CS AC/DC Portable Stereo Cassette System

Featuring two external speakers, the 124-CS is perfect for business and pleasure. Take the excitement of full-dimensional stereo sound everywhere you go!

Sony Model 127 Stereo Cassette Deck

An excellent choice for today's advanced stereo enthusiast, the 127 adds high performance to cassette convenience.

Sony Model 160 Advanced-Design Stereo Cassette Deck

With professional-quality features like closed-loop dual capstan tape drive, the Model 160 offers the most cassette performance you can buy!

Sony Model 366 Three-Head Stereo Tape Deck

The 366 combines single-motor simplicity and price with three-motor performance.

Sony Model 352-D Economy Three-Head Stereo Tape Deck

The exciting 352-D's three-head design lets the user check the quality of the recording while the recording is in progress!

SONY® SUPERSCOPE®
You never heard it so good®
THE LISTENING POST
25 So. Pleasant St., Amherst 186 Main St., Northampton

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — Nathan Gorenstein
BUSINESS MANAGER — James Gold
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Gib Fullerton
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR — Steve Fine
NEWS EDITOR — Bev Adamonis
EDITORIAL — Barry Rubenstein, Larry Ladd
SPORTS — Bob Nedeiros, Dan Kamal
DARKROOM — Gary Alpaugh, Jim Reardon
AD LAYOUT — Bill Manburg

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

Guarding Our Morality

Just a few years ago, the Head of Residence fit the stereotype role of "housemother". These matronly policewomen were guardians of our morality and defenders of our faith. But the time has long since passed when we needed overseers to take inventories and enforce social regulations. While the university now hires younger people, the method of appointment and the job description have remained static for too long.

We believe that each dormitory should be free to select its own Head of Residence, if it chooses to have one. We object to the present university practice of "screening" applicants beforehand, because the process both limits the choices available to a dorm and discriminates against individuals who do not suit the administration's bland tastes.

We further believe that the concept of the Head of Residence must be completely overhauled. The primary function of such a person, or persons, should be to serve as a catalyst for programs, not an enforcer of archaic policies. Now that the university is committed to the idea of making dorms into living and learning centers, we foresee that dormitories will need to select individuals with special academic training. But whatever the direction a dorm takes, it will need persons with unique skills, not mother figures.

Law And Orders

Art Buchwald

The Bad Back Problem

WASHINGTON--The biggest problem this country faces is not the economy, law 'n' order, the war or revolution, but bad backs.

It turns out that everyone in this country has back trouble, and until a cure is found for it, we will never be able to solve our other difficulties.

I discovered this recently when my wife's back went out on her while she was playing tennis. I immediately sent her off to an orthopedic surgeon, who told her she had a ruptured disc and would have to go in traction and wear a sponge collar around her neck.

It was her collar that gave us the tipoff on how many bad backs there are in this country. People rarely talk about their backs until they see someone else wearing a collar. Then they open up and confess about their own bad back troubles.

The first time I took my wife to a party with her collar around her neck a friend said, "What are you doing about it?"

My wife said she was going to an orthopedic doctor. "They don't know anything," the friend said. "What you need for a bad back is a neurosurgeon."

The next day we located one of the best neurosurgeons in the country. After careful examination, he concluded my wife had a ruptured disc and needed traction and advised her to wear a sponge collar around her neck.

Since this was the same diagnosis she got from the orthopedic man, my wife was naturally disappointed.

But a few days later her spirits picked up. She told me when I got home, "The man who rakes our leaves said that neurosurgeons don't know anything about backs. He said the best way to get rid of my bad back was to sleep on the floor."

"Well the guy who rakes leaves should know," I said.

A week later she called me at the office. "Annabelle knows a woman in Seven Corners who can cure crooked spines with her fingernails. She has never worked on someone who didn't get better."

Three days later my wife got wind of an acupuncturist who lived in Chinatown. Her friend Aggie said, "Four gold needles and you'll be playing tennis in a week."

Before she could look up the acupuncture doctor, her sister called from Cincinnati and told her the only way to get rid of her bad back was through yoga and meditation.

Several weeks went by, and while my wife did continue her traction, her heart wasn't in it.

"It seems so slow," she protested to me. "The hairdresser knows a spa in Italy that specializes in mud baths for bad backs."

"If it doesn't work you can always go to Lourdes," I said.

But while she was getting her passport for Italy, a brother-in-law from West Virginia called in to tell about a new miracle cure for backs that some lady in the Blue Ridge Mountains had developed from herbs.

"It sounds better than mud baths," I said.

The ointment arrived and, surprisingly, it had no effect on my wife's back.

Having tried everything, we decided to go back to the neurosurgeon on the off chance that he might know something about her problem that the hairdresser didn't.

The doctor siad she was doing fine but would have to stay in traction for another month.

You can imagine her depressed state of mind when she left the office. But fortunately, on the way home the cab driver recognized her symptons and said, "I know a hypnotist in Alexandria who specializes in nothing but ruptured discs."

Copyright 1971, Los Angeles Times.

Point Blank

Academic Tenure Under Fire

By MATTHEW FINKIN

Academic Tenure: The President's Commission on Campus Unrest urged a reconsideration of it. The A.C.E. Committee on Campus Tensions called for its reappraisal. And no less a figure than the newly appointed president of Rutgers University has wondered aloud whether tenure still serves a useful purpose.

The center of the debate over tenure appears to have shifted since the strife-torn years of '68 and '69 when criticism was based on student dissatisfaction and lack of "academic responsibility." Now, assertions of inefficiency and unproductivity abound in our financially aware decade.

Long-term contracts of faculty employment in lieu of tenure are now bandied about as a suggested panacea in pruning the dead wood from the academic grove. To understand what is at stake, students should consider the value of academic tenure.

Traditionally, tenure has meant that after some reasonable probationary period, a faculty member should be understood to be on continuous appointment. Once acquired, this status can only be terminated (1) for adequate cause, as demonstrated in a hearing before a tribunal of peers, or (2) as a result of a bona fide financial exigency or curtailment of a program of instruction.

The purpose served (apart from job security which is, itself, an inducement to enter the profession) is to insure the freedom of the professor to teach, research, publish and speak out on civic and institutional issues without fear of losing his job.

Possession of tenure does not per se protect incompetents; it assures that a school administration will come forward with its case under traditional Western notions of fair play.

The suggestion of long-term renewable contracts of employment in lieu of tenure–say, of 5 or 10 years' duration–seems to have all the asserted defects of the tenure system and none of the advantages. Certainly one advantage of the current system is that at some point in time a firm decision must be made on the promise the individual holds for the institution. An amiable colleague who comes close but doesn't quite make it will, doubtless after much agonizing, be given a timely terminal notice. The long-term contract approach, however , merely allows a continual postponement of firm decisions. It is unlikely that a passable colleague of 10, 15, or 20 years would find his contractual option not picked up.

Who, then, would realistically be affected under the long-term contract plan? Admittedly the blatantly unfit are reachable in any event under the current system.

Clearly those most likely to suffer nonrenewal are the outspoken and controversial. To them possessing tenure is a very real protection for the exercise of academic freedom.

It is more than likely that the long-term contract approach will have a chilling effect. Faculty will of necessity be concerned that what they say in class, in print, or in faculty meetings will play a significant role in nonrenewal decisions.

Some assert, however, that academic freedom is so widely accepted that the tenure system is no longer needed. But one need only look at the ever growing list of schools censured by the American Association of University Professors for violations of academic freedom. Last year alone, almost 900 complaints of violations were filed with the A.A.U.P.

For students, an issue critical to their education lurks within the debate over tenure versus long-term contracts: What seems to be challenged is the autonomy of professors to teach, research, publish, and criticize as they see fit. If one accepts the assumption that students are no more than consumers of an educational service; and if a school's governing body has an unfettered right to control the manner of delivering that service; then, without question, tenure is a serious impediment to academic administration. But, then, so too is academic freedom.

Copyright 1971 by Matthew Finkin

Matthew Finkin is the Director, Northeastern Regional Office, and Associate Counsel of the American Association of University Professors. The views expressed are entirely the author's and do not necessarily reflect the policies of the AAUP.

The Blue Girl

The rain, drenching the street, washed away the fragments of that last remembrance.
Your scarf, wet gently by the rain, outlined the day in wrinkles,
I was drenched by the rain, sensed by your scarf, and although I could always put my finger on your chin
I decided to be good, and parlayed my grin into moist and sundry exhibition.

I saw your face, felt your raincoat, decided where your eyes were blue that fealty could not condone disdain.
The corpse of a blue butterfly wet the earth. I could see the green buds, warm with images, open up and take flight.
I held out a bud to you; you were my light.

Now rain is gone. The buds are stilled for Christmas.
Your lips are gone; the hand you held out to me has faded away. You were my love, you were my Christmas.
The rain has turned to snow.
I see your reflection in my champagne glass.
With a toss I drain the contents,
and remember your most impervious reflection.
Love, you live in the shadows.

Jerome Nathanson

'WE'LL SEND YOU THE WINGS LATER!'

Letters To The Editor

Status Of Enlightenment

To the Editor:

One would think that an experience in any university is illuminating to the extent of generating in any individual the desire for further enlightenment. Does that sound like a bunch of words? Seriously, though, I wonder about university students who are so endowed with knowledge themselves that they consider their primary purpose to be that of depriving other honestly seeking individuals the right to attain this ultimate status of "knowing."

When persons become so profoundly imprisoned in their sense of infinite wisdom that they commit actions automatically, trusting their sixth sense to determine their final orientation, and yet expect peace of mind at the outcome--then I wonder if wisdom did indeed exist at the beginning. Furthermore, they blame their inner conflict upon others--not themselves!

Two years ago Andre Kole, a man of great professional ability in the art of illusion, came to this campus. The advertisements of his performance carefully enumerated the contents. By reading the posters, one envisioned oneself seated in Bowker Auditorium (which incidently was jam-packed) looking at a magician performing tricks that you could not decipher, even in your wildest imagination. From reading the posters, one also was given to understand that Mr. Kole would talk about the supernatural, ghosts, and witchcraft - and he did. He would also discuss the miracle and prophecies of Christ from a magician's viewpoint - all this he did. This was his program! People sat on the edge of their seats throughout almost the entire performance - their lips hanging off their hinges. Girls gasped and screamed. Guys gave nervous laughs. One young man reacted by heckling during a certain part of the performance. Everyone was thoroughly excited afterward; we had all gotten our money's worth and more!

So why are some people now tearing down all the posters that we put up? Because they, two years ago did not read the posters and so probably thought Andre Kole was a warlock because he was going to talk about witchcraft. He is not, hence the conflict!

What's our point? Please whoever you are - don't touch the posters let someone else read them - they just might be interested in attaining your status of enlightenment.

Marcella Charles
Debby Eld

Editorial Points

We are assured it's purely coincidental that the English Dept. celebrated the 30th anniversary of Pearl Harbor (Dec. 7) with a special meeting to discuss the question of the recurring fight for tenure.

*****

Signs of a Post-Culture: I believe I am correct in thinking that not until November 30, 1971, in a 126 class, had John Milton ever been referred to a "dude."--Dave Porter (Massachusetts Studies in English).

*****

If the roof of the Campus Center leaks all the way down to the Concourse level, then it must get mighty wet up at the Top of the Campus. But you'd have to ask an administrator to find out.

*****

If the basketball team only had Erving, they might be able to score some points.

*****

Letting China into the United Nations is one thing, but for the United States to be on the same side as the Chinese in a war is quite another.

*****

If Yaya Khan married No No Nanette, would they be fighting all the time?

Positive Reaction

(Ed. note - Mr. Weaver is a member of the UMass Speech Dept.)

Dear Mr. Weaver,

I would like to take this opportunity to thank you for helping the residents of MacKimmie House in our recent colloquium entitled Principles of Dorm Government.

During our last two hour session of the colloquium, the participants discussed their reactions to the various activities which transpired during the whole sixteen hours. As it turned out, your three hour discussion of parliamentary procedure, and your two hour return visit received the most positive reaction.

I am going to submit a copy of this note for publication in The Daily Collegian because we at MacKimmie House feel that your command of the subject matter is remarkable, and we would like to share our encounter with the rest of the University. Much thanks once again.

Stan Steinberg
MacKimmie House President

Conflict Resolved

In contemporary capitalistic society the meaning of cquality has been transformed. By equality one refers to the equality of automatons; of men who have lost their individuality. Equality today means "sameness" rather than "oneness." It is the sameness of abstractions, of the men who work in the same jobs, who have the same amusements, who read the same newspapers, who have the same feelings and the same ideas. In this respect one must also look with some skepticism at some achievements which are usually praised as signs of our progress, such as the equality of women. Needless to say I am not speaking against the equality of women; but the positive aspects of this tendency must not deceive one. It is part of the trend toward the elimination of differences. Equality is bought at this very price: women are equal because they are not different any more. The proposition of Enlightenment philosophy, l'ame n'a pas de sexe, the soul has no sex, has become the general practice. The polarity of the sexes is disappearing, and with it erotic love, which is based on this polarity. Men and women become the same, not equals as opposite poles.

The Art of Loving Erich Fromm
pgs. 12-13

Impressions Of UMass: Education For Sale

Ed. note: The following description of UMass is taken from an article by Dietrich Schwanitz, German exchange professor in the English Department this year, containing Mr. Schwanitz's impressions of UMass after his first few weeks on campus. The article appeared in a German newspaper, DIE ZEIT, on November 11th. It was translated for the COLLEGIAN by graduate students in the German Department.

...Next morning I look around the UMas campus where I will be teaching for a year. The countryside has lovely woods and hills, with white houses gleaming among the trees, wide lawns, farms and fields. And right in the middle of the farmland, as though conjured out of the ground, rise the concrete hulks of the university buildings, some of them still under construction, looking like gigantic eyeteeth. Almost everything here is new, air-conditioned, covered in muffling carpets, cool and enormous. Only rarely do you see a building of more venerable age, covered with moss and ivy.

I plunge into the so-called Campus Center, gathering place for students between classes, complete with coffee shops, recreation and reading rooms, post office, card rooms, pinball machines, barber shop, TV lounge, hotel, restaurant, bookstores, magazine stands and a movie theater. Here the brave new world gathers me into its arms. Hundreds of adolescents, the males and females indistinguishable from each other, loll around on soft leather cushions under subterranean artificial lighting, all in the same deshabille, bluejeans and T-shirts. They surrender themselves to the riot of the senses around them, to the color TV, the jukebox, the piped-in radio, and at regular intervals they go over to one of the ubiquitous softdrink machines to suck up liquid refreshment, Coke, Sprite, Ginger Ale, Fanta, and Bitter Lemon. Then they return to their couches, transfigured, with dreamy and vacant expressions, while in the background a salesman extols the pleasures of the waterbed. Out on the asphalt walkways too the students wander around among the numerous ouildings lost in their dreams.

In the English Department, where I will be teaching as one of more than 120 professors, work is in progress on the final organizational guidelines for the complicated manufacturing process which passes for education here. The students are channeled into a rigid program of courses which is constantly being subjected to "exciting" innovations. The so-called progressive element in the department talks about the students and their needs, what's good for them whether they can relate to the subject, while the conservatives are concerned with standards, the subject, intellectual niveau, the purpose of a university. What both these groups have in common is their fear of the students. It isn't that they fear disturbances and sharp criticism as we (in Germany) do. No, they accord the students the privileged position and unquestionable authority of the consumer. And the consumer is always right. The professor becomes a sort of salesman, who wonders: "Am I popular? Do my students really like me? Are my courses hits?"

The semester offerings come packaged in Course Descriptions which are described in advance, and, as is usual with packaging, it tends to be better than the merchandise itself. The vocabulary used in these course descriptions is subjective and emotional: the material has to be exciting, creative, thrilling, adventuresome. The fiction of direct appeal to the student is maintained throughout, even where the material is sometimes after all complex.

Thus the course offerings are constantly varied without however escaping the confines of a certain closed system. The discussion at the first departmental meeting has to do with whether academic credit ought to be granted for a program in which students of English Literature work in social agencies outside the university. Everyone is for it, particularly since it is only a matter of rubber-stamping a decision already made by the administration.

The Exchange Professor from Germany is the object of shortlived but emphatic interest. "So, you want to do theory of literature? Even criticism of the ideology behind literary works? Sounds awfully exciting, and necessary too. Not quite sure just what you have in mind there. We'll have to discuss it some more sometime. I'm sure we'll be seeing each other again."

And you do see them again at numerous parties where they hand you around with flattering marks of attention. Mention of the "Frankfurt School" and "Critical Theory" draws a complete blank. The names Adorno and Habermas are unknown; among the Marxist critics they have at most heard of Lukacs. That is due in part to the fact that so little German and French theory of literature gets translated. On the other hand, Lukacs' History and Class Consciousness has just come out in English.

One notes a slightly apologetic attitude on the part of the professors for the students' weak educational preparation. The European, perhaps a little conceited about his education, is reminded that the students do not have German prep-school training behind them, that numerically they make up more than half the graduates of the public high schools. After all, a state university can't be compared with private institutions like Yale, Harvard, and Princeton. You can't expect too much; you have to adapt your teaching to the situation. And some of the students are really immensely exciting in spite of everything.

In the classroom this preoccupation with students' needs leads to a generalized literary Impressionism. Since creativity is thought to be rooted in the student's personal psychology, the literary work is seen as being recreated in the student's reaction to it--no matter what that may be. It is the goal of teaching to make these reactions explicit. It would amount to a sacrilege to claim that emotions might be false. In such a system ideological criticism has a hard time of it. And here lies the main difference from the situation at a European university. Whereas German students express themselves primarily within the framework of theoretical models, in the United States the standard is emotional participation. But the latter has largely reverted from its object to its source: the inner being. And since there exist in America no traditions of a cult of the inner life among the middle class, it takes the radical form of the student subculture of the trip into "inner space."

The students' self-image reflects this situation. They are constantly swinging from ego trips to identity crises. A European teacher is always in danger of provoking an identity crisis in his students if he adopts a more objective method of presentation.

There are many signs of crisis here. The old cliche about "America, land of contrasts" is yielding to the impression that the contrasts are really contradictions: there is the artificiality of a campus way out in the country, and the attempt to teach the students about Life; the passivity of their role as consumers and the fast pace of the educational process; the constant invocation of Individualism, and the standardized nature of the invocation.

The question one must ask oneself is whether this fragmentary impression is not the result of an image of America as formed in Europe, whether one hasn't brought along the categories under which everything is perceived. Five years ago I was at another American university, in Philadelphia. At that time I expected to find a model democracy corresponding to the then prevailing European image of America, the great Atlantic brother. Today our notion of a great chaos in America perhaps goes beyond the reality, but it certainly comes closer to it. Thus the transformation of this image is itself a part of the history of European ideology.

New Group Seeks Jobs

The plight of the unemployed young college graduate has become the concern of a new self-help group known as "The Job Seekers."

About 12 college degree holders from greater Boston have established the organization to serve as a sounding board for other unemployed recent graduates and as a clearing house for information about available jobs.

Several organizational meetings have been held at the Beacon Hill Free School during the past three weeks, and more members are being sought, according to Bennett L. Morse of 262 Arnold Rd., Newton.

Morse, a 24-year-old Boston University graduate who received a master's of business administration degree from George Washington University in June, originated the idea for The Job Seekers. He has been looking for a job in market research since August.

Of himself and other unemployed young college graduates, Morse says: "Here we are with two pieces of paper after having spent six years in school and thousands of dollars, and we can't find a job."

He views the unemployed as "the most neglected...We hear the hard luck stories about the Ph.D's who are teaching in high school or the work programs for minority groups. But we hardly ever hear about the young people with college educations who can't find work."

Morse acknowleged that there were jobs available and cited the case of one job seeker who earned a bachelor's degree in education and is working as a secretary. But, he added: "If a person wants to work in the field he's been educated for, it's virtually impossible."

Three factors, he said, work against the young college graduate competing in the job market.

"First off, the young graduate is inexperienced, and he can't get any experience unless someone hires him. It's like trying to get your first credit card. You can't get credit unless you already have it someplace else."

Secondly, he said: "Many of the trainee positions are a function of a prosperous economy. Since we don't have that now, what's left are the positions requiring experience."

Lastly, he noted that the young graduate cannot qualify for unemployment compensation because to be eligible one has to have worked a certain length of time.

According to Morse, some graduates have accepted part-time work and look for a job in their free time. But Morse said that situation had drawbacks. "You can't make calls easily from the part-time job or receive followup calls."

The Job Seekers hope to attract the attention of young out-of-work graduates, as well as others, who could help further the group's aims.

"I think Boston, being a college town, contains a lot of people like ourselves," he said.

Don't fall into the trap of not pre-registering properly. Do it now before it's too late. Look what happened to these poor souls.

Prayers Held Tonight

The Newman Club is holding a Living Rosary in honor of the Feast of the Immaculate Conception. It will be held tonight following the evening Mass at 7 p.m. in the chapel.

Don't Buy Any Records Until Friday

AMHERST AUDIO

Forget About Papers and Exams! get into these great new LPs from COLUMBIA RECORDS

$4.56

$3.88

$3.88

$3.88

$8.01

$3.11

$3.88

$3.88

$7.78

PLUS for one week only . . . The entire Columbia/Epic Catalog for only:

ALL $4.98 list LPs	$3.11
ALL $5.98 list LPs	$3.88
All $6.98 list LPs	$4.56
ALL $9.98 list LPs	$6.12

JEM RECORDS
"If we don't have it, we'll order it"
8 Tracks and Cassettes, too!!

GORMAN HOUSE LOBBY
Monday, Wednesday 9-10:30 p.m.
242 Gorman House, Mon.-Fri.

Selectmen Discuss Sewage

By CHARLES BERKOW

The Technical Advisory Committee, Sewage Treatment Facilities (TAC) was charged by the Board of Selectmen to investigate most facets of the proposed new sewage treatment plant and to advise Town Manager Allen Torrey, and through him the selectmen, about it. TAC was charged as they talked for over an hour with the selectmen at yesterday's Board of Selectmen meeting.

The selectmen also discussed the proposed 1972 budget of the Jones library and heard a report from Assessor John McDermott on the valuation and taxation of cultivated land in Amherst.

The selectmen talked with John Foster and Karol Wisnieski of TAC, who said they had some questions about the preliminary plans for the new sewage plant. Engineering consultants Haley & Ward, who drew up the plans, will be invited to meet with TAC on Thursday night.

Foster said that the engineers, in their preliminary report, dismissed all the different types of sewage treatment methods and techniques except one in a few brief sentences. He noted that the new plans call for incinerating sludge rather than sending it through an anaerobic digester, as has been done in the past. He said that TAC wanted to look more closely into alternative methods of sewage treatment.

On the subject of a different treatment technique, Board of Selectmen Chairman Merle Howes said, "We in public administration must work with concepts that are proven and worthwhile," Torrey said that any new sewage plant had to be approved by the Massachusetts Water Pollution Control Board. He said, "There are currently no...treatment facilities (in Massachusetts) which use a method substantially different from the (proposed) Amherst method."

The proposed budget for the Jones library calls for an increase in funds from the town of from $64,000 to $92,000. The selectmen noted that much of the increase will go into salary increases, which are long overdue.

The library is supposed to be a private agency, privately funded. But as the budget for 1972 calls for more than half of the money to come from the town, Howes suggested that the nature of the library should be changed from a private agency partially funded by public funds to a town agency partially funded by endowment. The selectmen decided to ask the trustees of the library to come to their meeting Monday night.

McDermott reported that assessed valuation of farmland in Amherst has nearly tripled since 1969, while taxes on farmland have more than doubled.

The selectmen voted to renew the licenses of all local liquor-selling establishments except The Notch. The Notch's license was not renewed at that time because it had failed to submit a floor plan which had been requested by the selectmen.

In other action, the selectmen reserved 8 tickets for the Hampshire County Selectmen's Association meeting next week. They discussed a street light ceremony to be held Thursday morning at 11:45 and they granted various requests for licenses.

Faculty Pay Their Way

The Daily Collegian is experimenting with a new distribution system which would have the faculty and staff members paying for their newspapers.

The experiment started Monday morning with the delivery to every staff and faculty member working in Thompson Tower. Workers there will continue to receive the paper free until today. Afterwards, the charge will be five cents per issue.

If the system works, it will be expanded campus-wide. Thus the Collegian will have formulated a subscription system for those who do not pay Student Activities Taxes. It is hoped that faculty and staff will elect to use the Collegian's subscription system rather than keep taking papers from the several drop-off points.

Britisher Blames Both Sides

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Roy H. Jenkins, deputy leader of the British Labor Party, said today he thinks the India-Pakistan war is "a more complex issue with more blame on both sides" than is given in the official American view.

"I think it's a very sober step to cut off aid to the country that most needs aid," he said of a congressional committee's vote Monday to suspend $648 million in aid for both countries until the fighting stops.

Jenkins made the comments at a news conference at Yale, where he is delivering a series of lectures on the relationship of the United States to the rest of the international community.

Jenkins said he takes "a slightly more sympathetic attitude to the Indian government" than does the United States--although, he said, he doesn't absolve either side of blame.

"The attitude of the West Pakistan government toward the East Pakistanis since the elections has been pretty rough," Jenkins said.

He termed the conflict "even more tragic than dangerous" at a time when both countries have only marginal "ability to deal with their internal problems."

Jenkins also said he sees hope in an indication from Prime Minister John Lynch of the Irish Republic that the constitution of a united Ireland might be rewritten to make it more acceptable to Protestants.

"I hope that we can see improvement in that direction...the solution certainly lies with a united Ireland," Jenkins said.

Quicksilver
Food and Music

Reading Their Own

The Five Area Coordinating Committee will present a poetry and fiction reading, the first of five, at the Lewis House Lounge at eight o'clock tomorrow evening.

Juliana Mutti and Joey Newman will read their poetry, and Alastair Beattie will read his fiction.

The public is invited. Admission and refreshments are free.

Bahais Sponsor Talk

The Bahai community of Amherst will be observing a celebration of U.N. Human Rights Day on Monday, Dec. 13th, and will be sponsoring a talk and social hour at the Colonial Lounge at 7:30 p.m.

Mrs. Nancy Jordan of Northampton, who will be speaking at the function, explained some of the background to her talk. Baha' u 'llah, a Persian, who started the Bahai faith in 1863, taught that man's basic human rights include the right to the socially unencumbered worship of God, and the right to carry forward an ever advancing civilization. Mrs. Jordan stated that the civilization towards which Bahai's strive is one in which all institutions will be based on spiritual values; that human rights also include the individual's right to be recognized by humanity as a Spiritual human being, participant in an eternal life.

The Bahai faith also teaches the equality of men and women, and the abolition of all prejudice. It is Mrs. Jordan's contention, in keeping with the Bahai teachings, that these values are for all people, not just the members of the Bahai faith.

Her talk will also include a brief look at the conditions of current established institutions in their relationship to the spiritual values taught by Baha' u 'llah. The public is cordially invited to attend.

"EQUALITY—A DIVINE STANDARD"

THREE C's 191 N. Pleasant St., Amherst
Sale starts 9:00 A.M.
GOING OUT OF BUSINESS
Well Worth a Walk to Amherst to Save on Christmas Gifts & Supplies

Christmas cards	-Toys & Games	-Calendars
Gift wrap	-Candles	-School supplies
Ribbon & bows	-Posters	-Buxton Wallets
Jewelery	-Prints	-Pen Sets
Stocking stuffers	-Gifts	-Craft kits.

SHOP SUNDAY 10:00 TO 5:00, WEEKDAYS 9-9

Campus Carousel

Rock Banned From U. Of Florida

By TONY GRANITE

WHO SAID DIRT IS CHEAP? The University of Missouri calculates that "every day trash" costs $2,500 a month to gather by a full-time force of five men. And to clean up after a home football game can cost as much as $1,680 for three days' effort by a crew of 15-20 men.

According to a page one story in the campus newspaper, Maneater, the litter bits that cost are mostly paper napkins, beer cans, cigarettes, candy wrappers and paper cups.

Oh, Ecology, where is thy sting?

*****

SPEAKING OF STINGS poses the information from the University of South Florida Oracle that tells of the banning of rock music concerts on that campus.

The ban was stimulated by these "problems": almost $800 worth of damage to the gym during two recent concerts; fighting; pot smoking and drinking in the audience; disregard for fire regulations; and almost no security enforcement.

So said the vice-president for student affairs about these affairs.

But he left hope that when the "problems" are ironed out, the ban would be lifted.

*****

POWER TO THE PUPILS at PSU...that's what the Vanguard, student newspaper of Portland (Ore.) State says in a page one story, headlined, "Student declares self new dean."

And the intelligence continues that one C. Courtney Walker "has proclaimed himself acting and interim Dean for Students." The newspaper quotes the young Black as saying that his action will demonstrate to the university community that the only power students will have is the power they take."

Walker says "I have nothing personal against (Dean) Evans." But he believes (the newspaper said) that by taking over Evans' position he will be giving students an opportunity to be represented.

A member of the campus search committee for a new Dean for Students, Walter is protesting the appointment of the Dean by the University President, who did not heed the student-faculty committee's recommendations, Walker says.

According to Vanguard, Walker intends to hold the DSF "until either his appointment is consecrated by the students or students select a dean of their own choosing."

The displaced dean, meanwhile, declined to comment.

*****

SPEAKING OF LIBERATION...the UWis Daily Cardinal reports also in a page one story the attempt of 15 women to take over a males-only gym. Their object, a lively game of basketball.

The three-column headline read, "Women launch invasion into jockstrap's hallowed ground."

*****

ANOTHER EYE-CATCHING HEADLINE appeared recently in the Indiana Daily Student: "Cited by Ripley's for double joints."

The story by ids staff writer Kim Hasten leads off with "Some people are backward and some are forward, but according to Ripley's 'Believe It or Not' very few are forward and backward at the same time.

"But such is the case with Stephen White, sophomore, who was recently cited by Ripley's column for being able to stand with his feet facing the opposite direction of his body..."

It's hereditary, the article explains, since White's mother and grandmother were also double-jointed. And White is capitalizing on his talent by entertaining his schoolmates. He expects to find a critical need for a job utilizing his novel talent.

Writer Hasten concludes the story with, "Whatever it is, he hopes to get a kick out of it."

Which is the part of the story we journalists call "the kicker".

Hexachlorophene Warning Issued

The Food and Drug Administration, citing findings of brain damage in baby monkeys, warned yesterday against regular bathing of infants and adults with cleansers containing 3 percent or more hexachlorophene.

In a letter to be sent today to 600,000 doctors and other health professionals, the agency says recent studies showed that hexachlorophene can be absorbed through the skin into the blood stream, and that this absorption resulted in damage to the white matter of the brains of newborn monkeys.

The white matter is made up of bundles of white-coated axon, the parts of the nerve cells that act as intercommunicating fibers.

The agency also cites a study in rats involving ingestion of hexachlorophene, which also showed damage to the brain's white matter. The rats developed leg weakness and paralysis, but the monkeys showed no outward ill-effects.

Hexachlorophene cleansers, the most popular of which is pHisoHex, made by Winthrop Laboratories, are widely used in hospitals and in homes for daily bathing of infants to prevent skin infections.

The blood level of hexachlorophene in the monkey and rat studies was not much higher than levels that have been found in newborn human infants upon their discharge from the hospital.

The drug agency also announced that it would publish in the Federal Register today proposed new labeling for products containing 3 percent or more of hexachlorophene. The new label would require "prominent and conspicuous warnings" against the use of such products for daily bathing of infants and adults.

Dr. Louis Gluck, pediatrician at the University of California in San Diego whose studies helped to establish routine bathing with hexachlorophene in hospital nurseries, said in a telephone interview yesterday that the result of the F.D.A.'s action "could be disastrous—it could setback infant care by many years."

Dr. Gluck noted that the Canadian Food and Drug Administration had reviewed the same study findings and had seen no reason to take such action. He added that the widespread use of hexachlorophene in nurseries had resulted in staphylococcus infections being "wiped out all over the world."

The American drug agency's decision to halt this use was reached in concordance with the American Academy recommended washing with soap and water, or plain water.

(By New York Times)

There was a time when the weather was warm, the sky was clear and the ground was firm. Ah, those days are long gone. But they will eventually return. We hope.

Jerry Lewis Twin Cinema
584-3209
Cinema 1
House That Dripped Blood 7
Willard 9
Cinema 2
Catch 22 7:15
Goodbye Columbus 9:30
Admission $1 with College ID M-T-H
Hamp Shopping Plaza
King St., Northampton

Fabricworld
USE YOUR "MASTER CHARGE" "BANK AMERICARD"
"BELL-RINGING" FABRIC Specials
FOR APPRECIATED SEW 'N' SAVE HOLIDAY GIFTS
PRINTED NYLON FLEECE 99c REG. 1.79 YD.
•MACHINE WASHABLE •54" WIDE •80% ACETATE, 20% NYLON
AMERITEX VEL PANNE BRUSHED VELVETS REG. 3.99 YD 2.99
SCORES UN-ADVERTISED GIFT SPECIALS!
WISS PINKING SHEARS 4.99 REG. 6.98 EA.
AMERITEX PRINTED NYLON QUILTS VAL TO 2.99 YD. 1.49
HI-IMPACT PLASTIC SEWING CHESTS REG. 3.99 1.99
•COMPLETE WITH TRAY •PLENTY OF ROOM FOR EVERYTHING
PERMANENT PRESS BROADCLOTH REG. 99¢ 66c
•65% POLYESTER, 35% COTTON •45" •MACHINE WASH
AMHERST 1 Pray St. Daily 9:30 - 5:30 Fri. til 9
NORTHAMPTON 21 Pleasant St. Open Daily 9:30 - 5:30 Thurs. til 9:00

GIFT GIVING made easy for DAD and BROTHER SHOES & HOSE WALLET & BELTS SLIPPERS & TIES
for MOM and SIS
Shoes & Slippers
Hats & Handbags
Gloves & Scarfs
Indian Jewelry & Wallets
Last But Not Least
Boots From the Boot Cellar
BOLLES
8 Main St., Amherst

Beware Of Worms In Your Lids

Thanksgiving began normally for Florence Falk. She roasted a turkey for her husband, Richard, the Albert G. Milbank Professor of International Law and Practice at Princeton University, and for her son, Demitri, 2. But when she opened a jar of baby food for her infant of seven months, Noah, she found a worm on top.

Mrs. Falk was upset and sent off a series of telegrams that not only set in motion a chain of consumer complaints from the food industry, but also uncovered an unpublicized and subtle source of contamination in vacuum-packed foods—the lids.

In the course of the next few days, Mrs. Falk, her au pair girl, Marie-Noel Labatut and her housekeeper, Lillian Coppage, found more than a dozen pale yellow worms in baby food jars manufactured by all of the big three baby food companies, H.J. Heinz, Beech-Nut and Gerber. The jars had been purchased at two different supermarkets in the Princeton area. Subsequently, a reporter found four more worms in three other jars in the Falk home, jars with the vacuum seal intact.

These particular worms, unsavory looking but apparently no menace to health, ranged in size from one-quarter to one-half inch in length. One of them was alive, and slithered over the surface of some Heinz creamed spinach. The others and their chrysalises remained attached to the inside of the lid flanges or along the screw threads at the top of the jars.

Mrs. Falk assumed that the worms had been introduced into the jars by faulty food processing. She sent telegrams explaining the situation to the presidents of the three companies, to Ralph Nader and to the Food and Drug Administration.

So far, Ralph Nader has not responded, but the next Monday morning, Carroll J. Wysochanski, an inspector from the Newark section of the F.D.A., appeared at the Falk home to begin a routine inspection that confirmed the presence of insect larvae in the jars, eliminated the Falk kitchen as the possible source of the infestation but uncovered no other infested jars either at the local markets or at local warehouses.

Laboratory tests at the F.D.A. center in Brooklyn turned up no sign of contamination in samples coded identically with Florence Falk's wormy jars, and taken from the same markets and warehouses.

The mystery might have remained unsolved if Barry Johnson had not been sent from Heinz's Philadelphia district sales office to soothe Mrs. Falk's anxiety about his company's processing methods. He came prepared with a bag of sealed baby food jars and a sort of parlor trick designed to explain the presence of insect larvae in the doubly sterilized, powerfully sealed interior of a Heinz jar.

You wouldn't be too happy either if you found worms in your food.

"We're scrutinized more excessively than smaller companies," said Mr. Johnson as he inverted a jar on its knurled metal lid. The top of the lid was slightly depressed, which is a built-in safety indication that the vacuum has not been interfered with.

Then Mr. Johnson sprinkled cigarette ash over the join between the overhanging edge of the lid and the glass of the jar. Finally, he opened the jar, which popped as the vaccum was broken. Mr. Johnson smiled triumphantly as he exhibited the cigarette ash that had been sucked onto the surface of the food from the flange of the lid by the gust of air rushing in to fill the vacuum.

In other words, foreign matter such as dust, filth and insect eggs present at any time after the baby food has been processed can collect outside the vacuum seal under the shoulders of the lid and stay there unseen until the consumer opens the jar.

Reprinted from N.Y. Times

And now...

Rights For Midgets

Noting the success of women's liberation groups in getting attention to their demands at New College, four feet ten inch student Wendell Wagner posted his own demands on behalf of short people.

"We, the short students of New College, hereby make the following demands on the New College community, in order to restore our dignity and stature in others' eyes. We are tired of being ignored because people look right over us," Wagner's demands began.

Posting his proclamation at eye level--about four feet eight inches--Wagner asked for special courses for short people, shorter library stacks, admissions preference to short people, especially women, and even protection from assault by tall students.

Wagner's demands appeared in the student center of New College in the midst of a president's office sit-in by a group of radical feminists that also spawned a set of demands from a gay liberation group.

Wagner, 19, of Mount Cory, Ohio, a transfer from Bowling Green State University, said he wanted to point up the absurdity and impossibility of recent demands although he said he was not without sumpathy with the oppressed groups.

"There's a whole spectrum of irrelevant things people judge each other on, like size, color, sex, religion and looks, and this hurts not only the people being misjudged but society itself, since we need the very best people we can get."

Wagner's full set of demands included:

•That a course be started immediately on the history of short people and tall oppression. Suggested course titles are the "Life of Napoleon" and "Films of Mickey Rooney;"

•That the library bookshelves be redesigned to suit short people;

•That preference in admissions be given to short students, "especially to female short students;"

•That they be protected by personal bodyguards from assault from tall students "since I like to start fights with tall students;"

•That birth control be made mandatory among tall students, but that procreation be encouraged for short ones;

•That the college establish a short community center, "so that the short people of New College and Sarasota not be cut off from each other. Maybe there are a few retired circus midgets in the area;"

•That there be an end to "other attempts to ridicule us, such as giving us mailboxes too high too reach;"

•That a short counselor be hired "to counteract the effect of those now employed, whose advice is "You don't have an inferiority complex; you're just plain inferior."

Second Chance Sunday For Senior Committee

By KAREN BRASIER

Those seniors who missed the Senior Committee meeting held Monday night at the Campus Center still have a chance to make their ideas concerning Senior Day and Commencement heard and acted upon.

Sunday night (not Thursday as previously reported) at 8 PM the Senior Committee will officially become a body. Permanent officers will be elected and such topics as the class gift, Senior Day and the choice of a Commencement speaker will be discussed.

At Monday night's meeting, presided over by Marjorie Davis, the possibilities of contributing the traditional class gift money to a charitable organization and of having a referendum at registration to allow seniors to decide on the issues which will effect them were mentioned. An effort to gain more say for seniors concerning their activities was also suggested.

At least 32 seniors are needed at the meeting Sunday night. It is hoped that all those who attended the two previous meetings and many more will be there. Those who take the opportunity to do so will be the ones who will decide how memorable their last days at UMass will be.

Christmas Special
Blue Jeans $4.99
WEAR-HOUSE

Learn to Drive
AMHERST AUTO SCHOOL
34 Main Street
256-6066

TODAY is the last day to pre-register

Lang's Photo Studio
183 No. Pleasant St. Amherst
Main Store: 460 West St. So. Amherst
36 Exposure Slide Processing $2.75 from the food
Electronic Flash Guide No. 28 $12.95
Telephone: 253-3148
PASSPORTS FAST CUSTOM PROCESSING

DO THE DEAD RETURN???
A Startling and Controversial Program Dealing with Extra Sensory Perception • Predictions of the Future
The Supernatural

by André Kole
AMERICA'S LEADING ILLUSIONIST

ANDRE KOLE HAS SPOKEN IN 43 COUNTRIES ON FIVE CONTINENTS OF THE WORLD, AND ON NATIONAL TELEVISION IN 30 COUNTRIES. THIS YEAR, HE WILL PROBABLY BE PERFORMING AND SPEAKING ON MORE COLLEGE AND UNIVERSITY CAMPUSES THROUGHOUT THE WORLD THAN ANY OTHER PERSON.

"UNMASKING THE UNKNOWN"
IS THE TITLE MR. KOLE GIVES TO THIS INTRIGUING PRESENTATION IN WHICH, AMONG OTHER THINGS, HE WILL GIVE A VISIBLE DEMONSTRATION OF THE FOURTH DIMENSION, AND REVEAL SOME AMAZING PREDICTIONS OF THE FUTURE WHICH COULD AFFECT THE LIFE OF EVERY PERSON IN ATTENDANCE.

THIS UNUSUAL PRESENTATION IS SPONSORED BY CAMPUS CRUSADE FOR CHRIST INTERNATIONAL. DUE TO HIS INTEREST IN THE SUPERNATURAL, MR. KOLE WILL INCLUDE SOME OBSERVATIONS HE MADE FROM HIS INVESTIGATION OF THE MIRACLES OF CHRIST FROM THE POINT OF VIEW OF AN ILLUSIONIST. THIS WILL NO DOUBT BE THE MOST UNUSUAL PROGRAM YOU WILL EVER WITNESS.

Thursday, Dec. 9, 8 p.m.
The Cage, UMass
Tickets: $2 at door, $1 in advance, in table at C.C. Concourse or call 549-6149

Culturnatives

Xmas Suggestions

By GILBERT J. SALK

For those of you who aren't particularly alert, Xmas is rapidly descending upon our heads. You can tell because of the great increase in advertising in the newspapers, by the lights strung over the streets in shopping areas and paid for by the Chamber of Commerce, by the gaudy lights and tinsel in all of the stores, and by the massive onslaught of mail addressed to "Occupant" and extolling the virtues of one store's Xmas goodies over those of all the others.

It is one of the West's greatest holidays, where hordes of people wage a running battle up and down the aisles of stores trying to outdo each other in spending their money as a means of demonstrating their belief in their god and in good will to all men. Even wars which cannot be settled after years of death and negotiations are temporarily halted in the fine spirit of peace and brotherhood.

The only thing that doesn't seem to be coming is Christmas. I'm not really sure where it's gone, but it's almost redundant to point out that it surely doesn't exist in the gift-mania we celebrate today. I don't want to talk about specifically theological changes--you have to decide what that might mean for yourself--but I do want to suggest some possible alternatives to turning Christmas into a celebration of the money-god.

Have you ever thought about doing something different for the holiday? Like, instead of buying a lot of presents for family and friends, making contributions to some worthwhile agencies in their name. For instance, the ACLU always needs bread to support its defense of civil rights and liberties. The American Friends Services Committee, a Quaker organization, carries on peace activities throughout the world, without using guns! Central Committee for Conscientious Objectors provides draft counseling advice and information to agencies and individuals throughout the nation. The list, of course, is nearly endless. Decide what Christmas means to you, find some group doing the kind of work, total up the amount of bread you'd spend on gifts, send it to the agency, and send out cards telling your relatives and friends that you've made the contribution in their name.

Or, if you really believe that you should give gifts, make them yourself. Candles are easy to make, and are nice gifts. Or learn to knit, macrame, sew, whittle, make jewelry, or some such. You end up giving something of yourself, which will at least make you feel good, and those of the recipients who aren't totally brainwashed by the advertising media will be more appreciative as well.

If you have no crafts skills at all, think twice before running off downtown. The Campus Center has been turned into a veritable crafts bazaar. Your local brothers and sisters have been producing some really fine items with their hands. They need money to be able to continue their work, but most of them are not interested in ripping you off. You will get something which is the work of a craftsman, and well worth what you pay for it. And do you really want to buy mass-produced crap as gifts? Or would you rather get something which was made with a concern for the product and for the purchaser? Think about it.

You can think of other alternatives, I'm sure. Let me just suggest one more. I really believe in the value of proselytizing. I'm concerned about people being trapped in little boxes, and I feel a need to let people know that there are other ways of living and relating, and that some people are actually living these alternatives. There is one magazine which I've been pushing in this column for as long as I've been writing it which does the job much better than any other currently on the market which I've seen. That magazine is The Mother Earth News. If you know someone who's in a box and might benefit from learning that there are ways out which have worked for other people, I think that a copy, copies, or a subscription to Mother might be a fine gift.

If you want to send a subscription, one year (6 issues) costs $6.00, and two years costs $11.00. Write to Mother Earth News, P.O. Box 38, Madison, Ohio 44057. If you want to be neighborly, tell them you read CULTURNATIVES, but it's not necessary. Or buy copies locally. I know that White Light Bookstore carries it, as does Mizaur's Mercantile. You can also buy copies of current back issues in the Draft Counseling Office in 923 CC.

(For those of you who are wondering, I do get a cut on the issues I sell, but not on subscriptions or those sold in other stores. So, if you want to keep me from becoming more of a capitalist than I already am, buy somewhere else.)

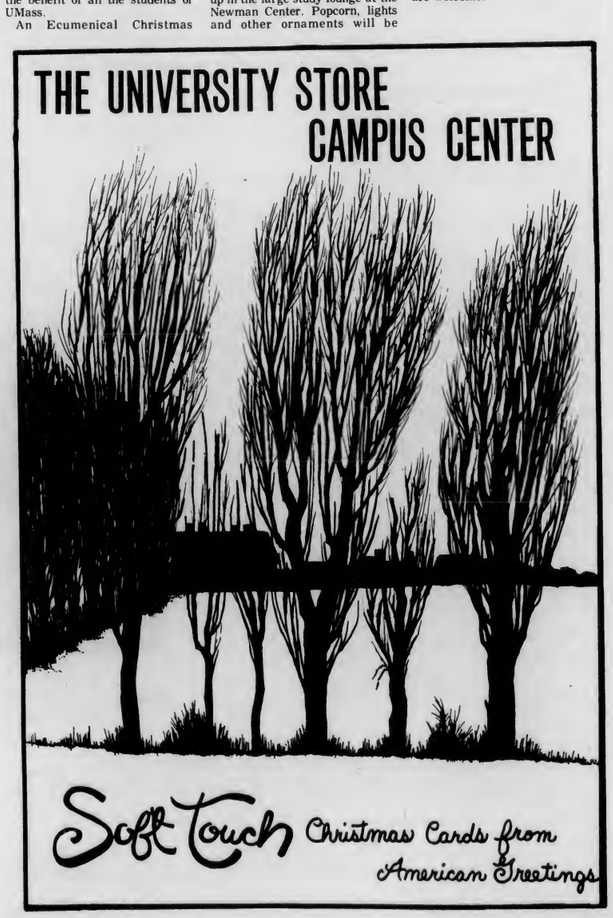
A final thought for Xmas: Would Christ, if he were alive today, accept Xmas advertising circulars addressed to Occupant? Or did he have a greater sense of his own humanity? Or, for that matter, do you think he'd have his name legally changed to "X"?

PEACE.

The Ambulance Service is available at any time, at a moments notice. The number is 545-2267.

The Newman Center Has A New Christmas Idea

By DAN CALLAHAN



Looking for a way of releasing Christmas spirit? For those that like religious ceremonies or traditional activities like decorating a Christmas tree or wrapping gifts, the Newman Center has it. Friday evening, marks the beginning of some exciting events, organized by members of the Newman Club for the benefit of all the students of UMass.

An Ecumenical Christmas service will be held at 7:30, Friday night, in the Newman Chapel. This program, in brief, will consist of a reading of the Christmas story interspersed with appropriate seasonal and religious songs sung by the Newman Chapel Choir under the direction of Mr. Hebert.

Following this special ceremony will be the annual tree trimming party. A Christmas tree will be put up in the large study lounge at the Newman Center. Popcorn, lights and other ornaments will be available then to decorate the tree. We will sing Christmas Carols and serve cider, eggnog, and cookies.

The Newman Club needs help for wrapping gifts for a Christmas party to be held the following Saturday, December 17 for the poor children of Springfield. These happenings present an opportunity to meet other people in a comfortable atmosphere. All students are welcome.

THE UNIVERSITY STORE
CAMPUS CENTER

Soft Touch Christmas Cards from American Greetings

Servicios Catolicos en Espanol
Catholic Services in Spanish

La Organizacion AHORA, compuesta en su mayoria por jovenes puertorriquenos, que estudian bajo el Programa de CCEBS, estan conscientes de su responsabilidad con las comunidades hispanas, tanto con los residentes de las ciudades vecinas, como con la comunidad hispana universitaria.

Por considerar que muchos de los hispanos, aqui en la universidad, desean recibir los servicios religiosos en su propio idioma, publicamos una lista de inglesias donde se da la misa y otros servicios religiosos en espanol.

Misas hispanas en Springfield Iglesia del Sagrado Corazon - 395 Chestnut St.
misas - domingos 9.00 AM
confesiones - sabados 4-4.30 PM y 6.30-7.00 PM
-domingos 8.30-9.00 AM
Iglesia Las Almas
misas - sabados 7.00 PM
y-domingos 11.00 AM
Iglesia Nuestra Senora del Carmen
misas-domingos 10.00 AM
El Apostolado Hispano Centro Catolico de Springfield se encuentra en la Calle Chestnut, 442. Tel. (413) 736-2167

Misas hispanas en Holyoke
Inglesia Nuestra Senora del Rosario
misas - sabados 7.00 PM
Iglesia Sagrado Corazon
misas - domingos 12.00 PM
El Apostolado Hispano Centro Catolico de Holyoke se encuentra en la Calle Maple, 435. Tel. (413) 533-6016, 535-4252.
Misa hispana en Chicopee
Inglesia del Santo Nombre - domingos 12.00 PM
Informacion sobre bautismos, matrimonios y otras actividades de la Diocesis Catolica de Springfield, seran publicadas en otro articulo.
*0*0*0*0*0*0*0
Los estudiantes hispanos de la Universidad de Massachusetts en Amherst podran escuchar la misa en su propio idioma, el dia 21 de diciembre, a las 7.30 PM, en el Newman Center localizado en North Pleasant St. Se ruega a los hispanos que deseen confesarse que lleguen un poquito antes.

Bill Boosts AFROTC

Information has been received, that both houses of Congress have passed and the President has signed two bills which effect AFROTC students.

The first bill raises substance allowance from $50.00 a month to $100.00 per month. In addition the second bill increased the availability of college scholarships by allowing 20% to be won by 2 year applicants.

In dollars and cents, a scholarship is worth the full cost of tuition, books and laboratory fees. Students subsistance allowance at the increased rate of $100.00 per month will be paid retroactive to the end of the freeze on 14 November 1971.

"Sweet Corn" Closes

The Sweet Corn Theatre Workshops, sponsored by Free University this past semester, are about to come to a close.

They are offered free, to newcomers and to anyone interested in exercise and playing theater games.

Sweet Corn will soon be working on a production based on the workshop experience, a performer-centered work based on improvisations - auditions in late January.

For further info call Demian 253-5171.

The following is the workshop schedule for the remainder of the semester:

Dec 9 Thurs Marks Meadow Gym 8 PM bring handkerchives
12 Sun Campus Center Rm 174 2 PM
bring lots of hats
14 Tues Amherst College Wrestling Rm 6 PM bring bells and blue things 16 ThursMarks Meadow Gym 8 PM bring wood and red things
19 Sun Campus Center Rm 174 2 PM last one - this one is a party - bring something edible

Amherst Outdoors Guide Published

"Around and About Amherst, An Outdoor Guide to the Region Around Amherst, Massachusetts," published by the Kestrel Trust of Amherst is now available for purchase.

The 36 page booklet covers an area within approximately a ten-mile radius of Amherst. The subjects range from the geological and human history of this part of the Connecticut River Valley to a list of local publications and major organizations involved. Included are sections on the natural history of the area: geology, plants, amphibians and mammals. A major part covers recreational opportunities.

The booklet may be purchased for 50 cents at book sellers in Amherst and Northampton or can be ordered directly from: Kestrel Trust Booklet, P.O. Box 428, Amherst, Mass. 01002

Quicksilver 24 Hours

MDC CLASSIFIED

AUTOS FOR SALE

1963 Chevy Impala V8, 283, automatic, 4 good tires, 2 new snows, good condition, $250. Call 549-0048 anytime. tf12-10

'68 VW Bug dk. blue, radio, sunroof, ex. condition, ask $1100. Call 546-7082 or 584-0063. tf12-8

'70 VW sunroof, radio & heater, exc. running cond., asking $1295. Call 549-6142. tf12-10

65 Volkswagen Bug, good condition, new engine, generator, brakes, $500. Call Tom between 4 and 6 at 253-5345. tf12-8

69 Firebird, perfect condition. 37,000 miles, vinyl roof, automatic, 350, V8, good tires. $1800 or offer. Call Don, 253-2779. tf12-8

68 Javelin SST. 4 speed, exclnt mech cond., 4 new poly belted tires, needs paint job. Asking $950. Call Brian 114-545-2412, 545-2413. tf12-12

1965 Buick LeSabre 4dr, ht, ai cond., $450. Contact Warren 6-7880. tf12-9

'65 Fiat Sta. Wagon, good cond., 300.00; 55 VW sedan, rebil, 150.00, also Halifax double key board Port. Organ, ex., cond. Call 533-9260. tf12-14

1962 TR-4, new snow tires, battery, body excellent, runs very well. Asking $475. Call Mark at 253-9411. tf12-9

65 Chevy Van, exc. running & body. Full power, new brakes, seals, grease, gaskets, carb adjust.,oil and filter. Best offer. 549-6614. tf12-10

1971 Toyota Corolla, 4 months old, excellent body, interior engine. Must sell. Call: Mike 6-5899. tf12-9

1965 Mustang, excellent condition, must sell, leaving country, $450. Call Mike Reynolds 546-1034. tf12-13

'67 Pontiac GTO conv. 4 speed, new tires, snows, tape player, reverb. radio, spare rims, p.s., p.b., top condition. $1275. 253-5847 after 5. tf12-13

64 Comet, 6 cyl, std shift, good running condition, $175. 546-4452. tf12-14

1962 Pontiac Temp. runs good, 6-like-new tires, inc. snowtires, $125. Call 546-9634. tf12-9

FOR SALE

Realistic 44 turn-table, two weeks old, used once, complete with dust cover. Best offer. Call Kent, Room 3, 253-9968. 12-8

Tenor Sax, Selmer MKIV, good condition. Call 549-4087. tf12-17

Head six buckle plastic competition Ski Boots, brand new, never used, size 10 1/2, men's cost $130, now $45. Call Bob, 437 Gorman 546-6539. tf12-9

Skiing outfit-190cm Hawk Skils with Dovre Bindings and size 11 boots, $30 complete. Call Pete Johnson 546-6548. tf12-9

Five-Band portable radio, excellent condition with AFC, $30 or best offer. Call Kent, Room 3, 253-9968. 12-8

Yashica J-5 35 mm w/built-in light meter, 55mm f/1.8 lens; excellent cond. $100 (includes leather case) 586-5206 after 6 p.m.

Mamiya 35mm Camera, E.8 lens, four years old, little used complete with case. Best offer or $30. Call Kent, Room 3, 253-9968. 12-8

Hallicrafters S-119 Shortwave receiver, three years old, top condition, two short-wave bands plus AM, best offer. Call Kent, Room 3, 253-9968. tf12-8

Volkswagen Micro-Bus, 1964, leaving the country, best offer takes it. Call Chris for the Rap, Room 3, 253-9968. tf12-9

Kowa Setrz SLR Camera 135, 85, 35 mm lens, original cases, books & boxes. New $370, asking $200, or best offer. Call John 546-7487. tf12-10

'65 Chevy Van, automatic trans, heater, good condition asking $495. Call 584-5830 after 6 p.m. tf12-10

Goya Elec. Guitar w/case, 4 pick-ups exc. condition. Supro amplifier, Rev/-Trem 3 input. Best offer. Call 546-8763. tf12-8

Discount stereo components and tvs, 20-40% off list price. Factory sealed and warranty. Jim Jensen 586-1365. tf12-10

Snow tires 165-14 Semperit Radials, 1 pr. mounted on MGB disc wheels. $50. Call 549-6087. tf12-17

BSR Mini changer $40, Realistic amp, $65. Call 546-6477, Ken . Will negotiate. tf12-8

Gibson 335, early 60's, perfect cond., $300. Also Fender super-reverb amp $200. Call Steve 546-6748. tf12-8

Kastle CPMTI Slalom Skis 205 cm, just back from factory with bindings $100. Call Dave 6-9077, $185 new. tf12-9

Roberts x369 tape deck, 1 yr old, 20-20000 flat S/N dn/W, S/ND auto. rev., 3 motors, 4 heads, remote cont. Cost $830, sell $295. 253-9587. tf12-10

New and used cameras and photo equipment bought and sold. Lang's Photo 253-3148. tfsem

New double burner hot plate, $15.00. Call 549-6071. tf12-8

Kowa Seitz SLR Camera 135, 85, 35 mm lens, original cases, books, and boxes. New $370, asking $200 or best offer. Call John 546-7487. tf12-8

PERSONAL

Happy 17 & 21 Love - Oak & Fog. 12-8

110 isn't the same without you.-Love-, The Beautiful Girls in 410. 12-8

Happy Birthday Ichabod! Love, Icky Cook. 12-8

Do you still believe? Write your letters to Santa now. 2117 John Adams tf12-10

"Who is the Shadow"? tf12-10

Yes, you too can be a Macrame expert. Call Betsy. 12-8

Lyanski-I'm waiting for breakfast you F.C.P. Don't complain about my feet. Snap. 12-8

ROOMMATES WANTED

Roommate to share fully frnshd 1 bdrm apt., 1 mi. from campus. Can build 2nd bdrm. Call Paul (eves) 253-2425. tf12-13

Couple of people for large room in 2-bedroom apt. At beautiful Rolling Green. Cook meals together. No slobs please. Call Sookie 253-3789. tf12-16

Roommate needed for second semester in Puffton Village to share 3 bedroom apt. $55.75 a month Call 549-6335. tf12-10

Roommate wanted F. to share rent with 2 other girls, own room, ranch house in Hadley. Call anytime 586-2815. tf12-17

Female desires room in apartment, very close to Campus. Urgent. Call 253-9431. tf12-13

Itoommate wanted: available for second semester. Apt. two miles from campus. Call 256-8020 after 6 p.m. David. tf12-8

We don't discrimate 2F or 2M wanted for lg. bedroom w/bath in 3 bedroom Puffton Apt. rent 55/mo. 549-6057. tf12-9

SERVICES

Flute-clarinet-sax lessons, Jazz and Classical. Call Anoy Flacks 655-8079. tf12-14

Amherst Audio services. Stereo components, tape decks for home or car. 197 No. Pleasant St. 256-8133. tf5-12

Passports & grad school pictures-24, hr. service Lang's Photo 253-3148. tfsem

Taking orders for handmade leather bags and things. Order now, get before Christmas. Reasonable prices. 549-6331. tf12-8

FOR RENT

One bedroom apt. in Puffton Village dishwasher, disposal, avail, Jan. 1. Take over lease. Please come to 270 Puffton and ask for Bill or Bob. tf12-8

1 bedroom apt. Puffton Vll. Available now. Take over lease. Call 256-8852, $156 rent. tf12-9

Avail. now, 2 bedrm townhse apt., ww cpt., air cond, utilities, included. take over lease. Mt. Toby Apts., Call 253-3281 after 5:00. tf12-9

Available immediately, own room in 3 bedroom apt. in Puffton, $75/mo. Call 549-6880, keep trying please. tf12-8

6 bedrms., 2 baths, kitchen & rec. room in Holyoke, 11 miles from U. of M. All util., ex. phone. Much Furn. $300 per month. Call 323-7093. tf12-8

Apt. for rent. 1 bedroom apartment, Puffton Village available Jan. 1. 549-6288 tf12-14

Aptment-Just off Campus. $55 mo. Call 5-7 p.m. 549-6216 Roger or Frank. tf12-13

I want to share my 12 room house, 15 min. from Amherst and Northampton, I need 200-250 dollars and will consider various things. Call 247-5192. (Fine pad). tf12-10

Studio apt., Greenfield, quiet area, near route 91, Avail. Jan. 1, rent $125 mo., including util. Call 1-774-3908 aft. 6. tf12-10

HELP WANTED

People needed to attend and transcribe lectures for SFS. Typing skills essential, shorthand helpful. Applications at Rm. 318 S.U. tf12-9

Need help with 4-yr-old, light housk, from Dec. 13 & 2 nd semester. Own transport. or live-in, nr. Amh. Cntr., ph. 253-5874. tf12-9

MOVIE

"Wholeearth image Language" multi-projection film slide environments by Barry Schonhaut, Wed., Dec. 8 at 8 & 9:30 p.m. Thompson 106 50¢. tf12-8

WANTED

Flute - Clarinet - Sax - Jazz - Classical. Andy Flacks 655-8079. tf12-8

Hand wanted to play the night of Dec. 18 for Beta Chi Christmas Party. Call Joe 549-6130 after 6 p.m. and give price. tf12-8

Rides wanted to Dartmouth and Hallimore on Dec. 10 or 17. Will share expenses. Call 6-1474 or 6-9904. tf12-8

Traveling companion thru Europe for about 6 weeks in June. Female preferred. Call 253-9185 if interested. tf12-10

Two good Bruin's tickets for a game after Xmas. Call 5-2302 or 5-2303 and ask for Sam. 12-8

2 goalies with equip. to play for dorm hockey team on Friday nites at 10. Will provide trans. Call John 6-4622 between 6-8 p.m. tf12-10

APT. WANTED

Puffton sublet wanted. 1-bedroom for second semester. 549-6570. tf12-9

APT. FOR RENT

2 bdrm apt in Belchertown, air cond., ww carpets, avail. Jan., $200 a month inc. utilities. Call 323-1450 after 6. tf12-10

MT. SUGARLOAF APTS. Avail, Jan 1, lg. 2 bdrm util. included, air-cond., pool $185. Call Skibiski Realtors 253-7222, eve. 253-2626. tf12-22

ENTERTAINMENT

Rock Band Phoenix now available for your Xmas party. Good, hard driving, dance music. Call Carl at 253-9371 for information. tf12-17

LAW SCHOOL

"Law School--Will I Make It? Can I Make It?" A new book by a recent law graduate for prospective law students. Examines how to prepare for law school; books to read; formulas based on admission studies to predict 1st year average. For copy send $2.95 to Kroos Press, Box 3709A, Milwaukee, Wis. 53217. tf12-9

"Law School--Will I Like It? Can I Make It?" New book by law grad. For prospective law students. Send $2.95. Kroos Press, box 3709A Milwaukee, Wis. 53217. tf1213

XMAS SPECIAL

For that special gift - No. 5 Chanel Perfume 1 oz., Bottle-special stock. Call 546-6743. tf12-9

Ski the Alps-Jan 14-24 Chamonix, France-air fare, hotels, discount lifts and lessons, last night in Paris. Contact Peggy 253-9667. tf12-23

Nassau-$149, from Boston & N.Y., hotel flight, transfers, 12/20-27, 12/23-29, 12/27-1/3 Ski-Australia-$325, 15 days, flight, hotel, meals, transfers, inbrk., deluxe package, London-$187, flights in January. Call-Student Flights 584-1050. tf12-15

Crimson Travel offers low cost spring vacation trips to Bermuda and Nassau. For more info. call Rich Margli, 412 Dwight 545-0791. tf12-10

Ski the Alps, Jan 14-24 Chamonix France, air fare, hotels, discount lifts & lessons, last night in Paris $257. Contact Peggy 253-9667. tf12-23

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES

Play music in a band? Interested in skiing? Combine the two in the greatest business opportunity yet! Needs solid musicians for winter. Dave 549-6679. tf1210

LOST

Missing a pink wallet. Cards are desperately needed. If found please leave at Campus Center Lost-Found or notify Claudia Reid. 5-2642. tf12-8

Anyone finding red wallet belonging to Marilyn Kennedy mail to 26 Main St., Amherst. ID's very important. tf12-8

JOBS

International Jobs-Europe, S. America, Asia, Aust., USA. Openings in all fields-Soc. Sci, Bus, Sci, Engineers, Ed, etc. Alaska Construction & Pipe Work. Earnings to $500 weekly. Summer or permanent. Paid expenses, No nuses, travel. Complete current info- only $3. Money back guar. Write now! International Emp. Box 721-M516, Peabody Mass. 01960. tf1210

ENTERTAINMENT

Make your christmas party a success and call Stan at 546-9215. All area bands represented. tf12-8

TYPING

Typing-theses, dissertations, etc. Fast, accurate, experienced. Have Math and Chem. symbols. Call 253-3901. tf12-21

STUDENTS BOOK MATCHING

Register your book in S.U. Rm. 318. Every student with your course next semester will need your books save $ money, sell direct. tf-sem.

Notices

AMATEUR RADIO ASSOC.
Will meet tonight in CC 805-808.

ASTROLOGY GROUP
All together now! 253-7479.

CHESS CLUB
Meeting tonight at 7 p.m. in the New Hatch. The tourney continues....

COLLEGIATE FLYING CLUB GROUND SCHOOL
Ground school at 7 p.m. in CC 162. Test on weather. FAA film. Will start on Federal Aviation Regulations.

ENVIRONMENTAL ARTS ASSOC.
Meeting for everyone Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in Skinner Lounge.

HILLEL
Lecture sponsored by the Jewish Liberation Project of Hampshire College will be given on Wed. at 8 p.m. Lecture given by Yitzhak Semo, a member of Kibbutz Ein Dor, is entitled: THE KIBBUTZ, RADICAL SOCIALISM IN ACTION. All invited to attend at Hampshire College Coffee House.
There will be a Judiac Studies table Wed.-Fri. Concourse level CC. Petitioning.

INTERNATIONALS
First 100 at Andre Kole performance Thurs. in Cage at 8 p.m. admitted FREE.

KAPPA DELTA PI
Wed. at 8 p.m. in CC 805. Speaker will talk on MTA.

MAROON KEYS
All please attend meeting at 8:30 p.m. in CC 803. Probably last one this semester.

PRE-MED PROGRAMS
Students interested in Pre-Professional programs: If you are interested in majoring (or affiliating) with the pre-med programs, please pick up an application in the Pre-Med Office, 217 Hasbrouck Lab. Deadline is Dec. 17.

NORTHAMPTON VOLUNTEERS
Bus leaves tonight for the State Hospital at 6:30 from Hasbrouck Lab and at 6:35 from Patterson House. Dec. 15 will be the last trip this semester. Everyone welcome.

PROJECT TEN
People interested in joining Project Ten, a developing "experimental college" co-ed low-rise in Southwest, emphasizing creativity, self-directed learning, and freedom of choice, should visit the Project Office in Pierpont this week or call 545-0871 between 10 and 5 p.m.

RUGBY CLUB
Meeting in Goessman 259 at 8 p.m. Thursday.

SKI CLUB
Anyone interested in Skiing in Stowe Jan. 16-21 call Chris in Rm. 422 at 545-2302 or Carol at 546-8129; or come to our meeting Dec. 14 at 8 p.m. in Mahar.

SEARCH COMMITTEE
The University community is invited to submit to the Search Committee names of individuals thought to merit consideration as Chancellor for the Amherst campus. The committee would appreciate receiving at least a brief biographical sketch with each nomination. All communications will be kept confidential. Suggestions should be directed to the Chairman, Professor Glen Gordon, at the Department of Political Science, Thompson Hall.

LOST
Wedding ring engraving JWR-WCL. Please return to CC lost and found.

A gold necklace "Kris". Sunday afternoon. Please call 546-7589.

Elementary Spanish book--Turk & Espinosa. Friday in Bartlett or Herter. Call 546-6477.

A black spiral notebook which contains my philosophy journal--I must find it. If located please call Billy Hamilton in Conway 369-4091 around dinner time.

To whoever took my wallet from the 4th floor Dwight--please return it to CC lost and found--no questions asked.

The Boltwood Stakes

Boltwood is an organization consisting of approximately 350 volunteers from the five-college area. Four nights a week, they are bussed to the Belchertown State School, where they work with the residents in various recreational and rehabilitative programs that they have established.

Last week, the Student Senate appropriated $945 to the Boltwood Project. This is a sizeable sum, but, unfortunately, is far below the $2500 originally requested. According to a project supervisor, the appropriated sum should about cover the transportation costs for the rest of the year, but will not purchase any desperately needed recreational and rehabilitative equipment.

In an effort to raise additional funds for Boltwood, the UMass Arnold Air Society and Angel Flight, national service organizations associated with Air Force ROTC are sponsoring a raffle, with all proceeds to be donated to the Belchertown State School, through the Boltwood Project.

The first prize is an Air Force-styled parka, the second prize, a 5-band portable radio. Tickets will go on sale today and will be available at a table in the Campus Center, outside the University Store. Ticket prices are $.25 each, or five for $1.00. The winners will be drawn on Wed., Dec. 15. This is an opportunity to not only contribute to a worthwhile cause, but to get something very worthwhile in return.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SYDNEY OMARR

Scorpio is the occult, secrets, hidden matters, the money of mate or partner: Scorpio individuals are dynamic, creative and possess an abundance of personal magnetism. Scorpio harmonizes with Cancer, Pisces, Virgo and Capricorn. Scorpio is attracted to Taurus, but often it is a matter of opposites attracting each other. Scorpio is especially good, in a financial sense, for those born under Libra.

* * *

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Confusion may appear to reign. Key is to ride with emotional tide. Let others handle details. Your mission should be to study potential. Avoid the petty. Think ahead. See various possibilities.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Some desired changes may be subject to delay. Be willing to wait until all facts are in. Leave speculation to others. Be positive that your information is factual. Discard gossip, rumors.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Home influences are strong. There is dissension, but it is of temporary nature. Know this and don't panic. You are asked to perform extra duties. Some are only too willing to take advantage.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Confusion could exist in connection with short journeys, relatives and neighbors. Seek harmony. Avoid participating in malicious gossip. Taurus and Libra persons lend helping hand.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Perceive motives. Find reasons why. Don't take events or persons for granted. See in light of reality. Hold off on money deals, agreements. More information is required. Patience now is your ally.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You get expression of appreciation from surprise source. Cycle is one in which you make material gains. You organize and build. You get house in order in many ways. Adhere to principles. Aim toward goal.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Finish rather than initiate projects. Popularize concepts, products. Work behind scenes to get program going in smooth manner. Relative may be well-meaning but misinformed. Respond accordingly.

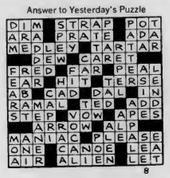
SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Money and friendship are now like water and oil. They don't mix. Word to wise here should be sufficient. You require new contacts, fresh viewpoint. Stress greater independence, originality.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Look beneath surface indications. Your feeling about one who promotes scheme is apt to be correct. Let caution be your key. Don't rush, despite those who urge a quick decision. Heed your own counsel.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Hold off on travel, if practical. Messages tend to be garbled. Check reservations, directions and instructions. Have alternative methods available. Sagittarius individual can set fine example.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Money surprise due. May not be completely to your liking, but potential is favorable. Be aware of apparent minor points. Check fine print and read between lines. Be specific; get commitment in writing.

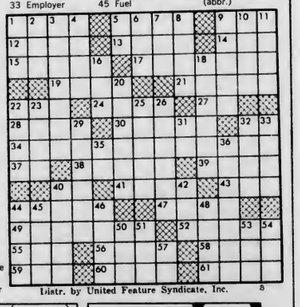
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Lie low, play waiting game. Let others reveal their plans. Be a careful, shrewd observer. You learn lessons which can spell future gains. Someone is trying to convey message. Be perceptive.



IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY what has been blocking progress is due to be removed. You are a frank individual, a natural executive; you do better when working for yourself than for others. Recent social whirl resulted in valuable contacts. Utilize them.

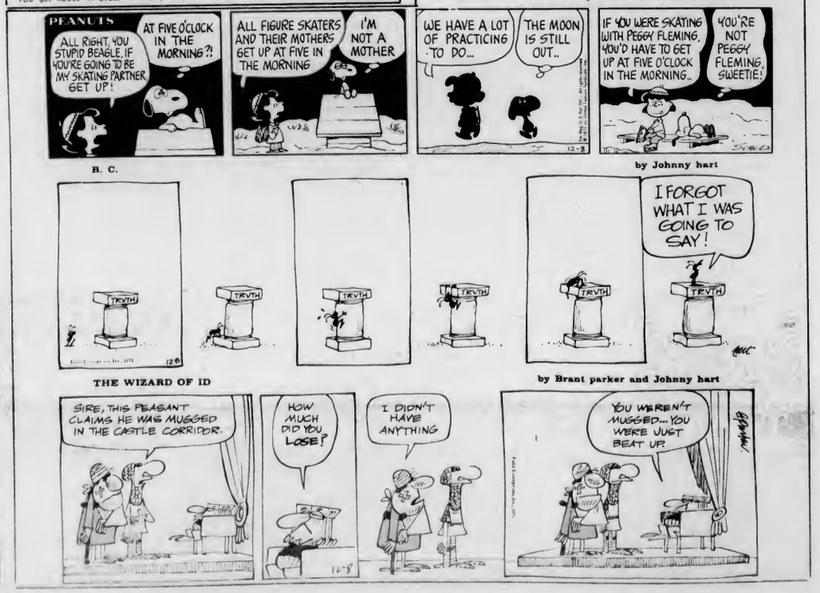
Copyright 1971, Gen. Fea. Corp.

MDC Classifieds



Crossword Puzzle

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle



ACROSS
1 Quarrels
5 Permits
9 Small rug
12 G.I. absenteeism (init.)
13 Metal
14 Man's nickname
15 Sailing vessel
17 Halted
19 Hard of hearing
21 Spheroids
22 Precious stone
24 Wealth
27 Hebrew letter
28 Word of sorrow
30 A state
32 Symbol for copper
34 Makers
37 Printer's measure
38 Cooking te m
39 Pintail duck
40 Preposition
41 Paradise
43 Through 44 Higher
47 Clever
49 Nobility
52 Blouse
55 Swiss river
56 Gull-like bird
58 Prophet
59 Music: as written
60 Pierce
61 Server

DOWN
1 Ethiopian title
2 Night bird
3 Forest officer
4 Plumlike fruit
5 Chinese mile
6 Bitter vetch
7 Small child
8 Supercilious person
9 Kind of tree
10 Son of Adam
11 Spreads for drying
16 Soft food
18 Documents
20 Woman
22 Contest
23 Verve
25 Intertwined
26 Suited
29 Tolerate
31 Greek letter
32 Algonquian Indian
33 Employer
35 Fiji Islands (abbr.)
36 Vaguer
40 Musical drama
42 Recent
44 Javanese tree
45 Fuel
46 Rodents
48 Swift
50 Obtain
51 Period of time
53 Ocean
54 Attempt
57 Take notice (abbr.)

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

SALE on Shoes
20% OFF
Men's & Women's
at
THE SHOE-BIN also Special
Men's Boots
$25 & $22 Now $17.00

NEED
Christmas Gifts
and Gift Wrap see
A.J. Hastings
Newsdealer & Stationer
54 So. Pleasant St., Amherst

NOW..YOUR CHOICE OF 5
Showcase
Rt. 5-W, Spfld.
Cinemas 1-2-3-4-5
733-5131
MORE NEW SHOWS!
MORE NEW LOUNGER SEATS!
MORE NEW PARKING!
MATINEES DAILY...POPULAR PRICES
Adults $1.50 Mon thru Fri Eves
1 Man in the Wilderness GP
2 Maid in Sweden X
3 French Connection R
4 Jesus The Greatest Story Ever Told G
5 Scrooge G

UCLA Keeps Number One Spot

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

UCLA's 100-point-a-game sharpshooters are measuring up to their advance notices in the opening salvos of the college basketball season.

Picked as the pre-season favorite to extend their string of national titles to six, the Bruins opened their campaign by crushing The Citadel 105-49 and smothering Iowa 106-72.

This was enough to convince The Associated Press' panel of sports writers and broadcasters that they hadn't been wrong in their pre-season balloting and so they voted UCLA solidly into the No. 1 spot in the first weekly poll.

Other advance favorites also showed up well, with Marquette gaining the No. 2 spot, followed by North Carolina, Ohio State and Maryland in order.

Rounding out the Top Ten were Long Beach State, Kentucky, Jacksonville, Michigan and Pennsylvania.

The rankings are determined by a poll of experts, with points awarded on the basis of 20 for a first place vote, 18 for second and down to one point for 15th on games through Sunday.

On this formula, UCLA received 24 of the 44 No. 1 votes cast, a majority, and tallied 803 points.

Marquette, winner of its first two games in impressive fashion, received seven first place votes and took second place with 739 points. Marquette was rated fourth in the pre-season poll.

North Carolina swamped Rice 127-69 in its opening game, a performance that gained the Tar Heels nine first-place selections. Ohio State received three after beating Georgia Tech 63-55 and Oregon 68-57.

Maryland, a towering but inexperienced combine, had one first place vote but got good support on most of the ballots after beating Brown and George Washington.

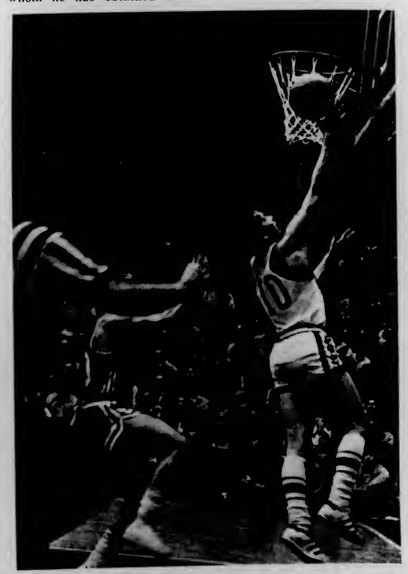
The top 20 with first place votes in parentheses, and total points on the basis of 20 for first, 18 for second, 16, 14, 12, 10, 9-etc.

1. UCLA 24	803
2. Marquette 7	739
3. North Carolina 9	724
4. Ohio State 3	505
5. Maryland 1	476
6. Long Beach State	392
7. Kentucky	350
8. Jacksonville	197
9. Michigan	195
10. Pennsylvania	189
11. South Carolina	188
12. Houston	177
13. Southern Cal.	159
14. St. John's, N.Y.	93
15. Brigham Young	90
16. Louisville	85
17. Arizona State	68
18. Florida State	59
tie Villanova	59
20. North Carolina State	50

Bobby And Derek To WHA?

WINNIPEG (AP) — National Hockey League stars Bobby Hull and Derek Sanderson have been approached by representatives of the World Hockey Association about jumping to the WHA when the new league begins play in 1972.

Ben Hatskin, owner of the Winnipeg Jets of the WHA, said he had spoken with Hull, the veteran star of the Chicago Black Hawks, and was prepared to offer him a five-year, $1 million contract to jump leagues.



Meanwhile, Sanderson, the flamboyant center for the Boston Bruins, said a representative of the WHA's Miami franchise had offered him "a lot more" than $250,000 for a two-year contract.

Hatskin, who said he looked forward to meeting with Hull again in Toronto this weekend, revealed that the WHA clubs had each drafted four NHL players at a meeting 10 days ago. He would not reveal the three other players for whom he has obtained WHA negotiating rights.

Hull was unavailable for comment, but Harvey Weinberg, his agent in Chicago, said: "I don't know a thing about it. And if Bobby had received such an offer, I assume he would have spoken to me about it."

Sanderson said that despite the WHA's lucrative offer, he was reluctant about leaving Boston.

Sanderson thinks the NHL should expand, but not just to Atlanta and Long Island. "The NHL should go to Europe, to Russia, Sweden, Czechoslovakia. Then we'd have a truly international league."

FLYING GUARD-John Betancourt (10), senior guard for the Redmen whizzes by a Vermont defender in last Saturday's romp over the Catamounts at Curry Hicks Cage. Betancourt, like many of his mates, seemed to feel that the season actually begins tonight against the Crusaders of Holy Cross. Jack Leaman has called the Crusaders one of five teams to beat in New England. Go to the Cage tonight to see if the Redmen will get one-fifth of the way there.

"Game Of The Decade" Here We Go Again

MIAMI (AP) — Nebraska and Alabama are stacked 1-2 for a national championship showdown in the Orange Bowl. Cornhusker Coach Bob Devaney says, "The pressure's the same as last year...only it jumped on us earlier."

The Cornhuskers tooted horns, busted balloons and rang in New Year's 1971 as the nation's No. 3 college football team. The celebration was 24 hours early.

By that evening, Nebraska was fighting for No. 1.

"Our kids knew when we took the Orange Bowl field against LSU that the No. 1 team, Texas, had lost in the Cotton Bowl," said Devaney. "The word soon spread that No. 2 Ohio State had been beaten in the Rose."

Nebraska then whipped Louisiana State and was to sit atop The Associated Press poll for the next 364 days, surviving even a fierce Big Eight Conference fight with second-ranked Oklahoma.

Now comes Alabama, an 11-0 challenger that rose to No. 2 behind the Huskers after Oklahoma had been taken care of.

"Nebraska No. 1 and Alabama No. 2," said Devaney. "That's a nice order of ranking...let's hope it's still the same on Jan. 2."

Devaney was in Miami Tuesday, making arrangements for the 12-0 Cornhuskers' Dec. 24 arrival for the New Year's night battle with an 11-0 Alabama team that won the Southeastern Conference title.

"There's a lot of pressure trying to lead wire-to-wire," admitted the veteran coach, "but we sorta enjoy being No. 1 and it's never easy to stay on top. Somebody's always gunning for you."

Devaney said pressure has lived with the Nebraska team all year while "We didn't feel the brunt of the No. 1 thing last season until Texas and Ohio State had been beaten."

The coach chuckled when reminded that the Alabama-Nebraska game was being billed as the "Game of the Decade," a title bestowed two weeks earlier on the Thanksgiving Day fight with Oklahoma.

"Well, I'm just happy to be involved in such games," he said. "Anytime they have a Game of the Decade, we'll be glad to come."

Since Nebraska finished the regular season only last weekend with a victory over Hawaii, Devaney has not seen game films of Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant's Alabama team.

"I watched Alabama's victory against Auburn on TV," he said. "They seem to be more powerful than Oklahoma as an inside running team, but don't have the speed of the Sooners outside."

Devaney made a wish that his "luck will change against Bryant. We've met twice in bowl games and Alabama won them both 39-28 and 34-7."

It's Not Too Early For SUMMER JOBS
Summer Jobs Are Hard To Find Especially Good Paying Ones.
NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST SWIMMING POOL DEALER ....
Wants Retail Salespeople For Summer Employment.
Opportunity for above average summer earnings. Prior selling experience helpful, or we will train.
WRITE OR CALL COLLECT:
Stephen Schiff
617-848-0517
FOR CHRISTMAS VACATION INTERVIEWS
OPENINGS AVAILABLE AT THESE STORES:
• Braintree • Danvers • Raynham • Framingham • Wappinger Falls, N.Y.
• Auburn • Indian Orchard • Salem, N.H. • Portsmouth, N.H. • Portland, Me.
• Manchester, N.H. • Nashua, N.H. • N. Kingstown, R.I. • Woonsocket, R.I. • E. Providence, R.I.
HERE COMES GROSSMAN'S
"EVERYTHING TO BUILD WITH"
AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY EMPLOYER

TONIGHT First Appearance in This Area from Boston
THE ACT featuring Natalie Cole
The English Pub
9:30 1:00
Only 50c

Hoopsters Host Holy Cross

By EARLE BARROLL

Jack Leaman has stated time and time again that to be a good team in New England there are five teams you have to beat: Boston College, Rhode Island, Providence, Holy Cross and now the upswinging Harvard hoopsters. They have the money, the prestige and the basketball tradition.

Tonight at Curry Hicks Cage at 8 p.m. Holy Cross comes to town to serve up the first challenge of the big five for the Redmen to go after and the word out on the Crusaders this season is big and strong, but lacking in depth.

Leaman is the first to realize the importance of this game and also to dispel any rumors of greatness from the opening two games of the season.

"We fully realize that St. Anselm's and Vermont were not tall and physical teams and this is what helped us get off to a start," he said. "This will definitely be a great challenge to us to see if we can contain a team with big men. They use a double stack in the low post and try to use their height." (6'8, 6'7)

The Cross is 2-0 to date with victories over Stonehill (100-73) and Temple (69-68) at the Palestra, a win that Leaman terms "outstanding"

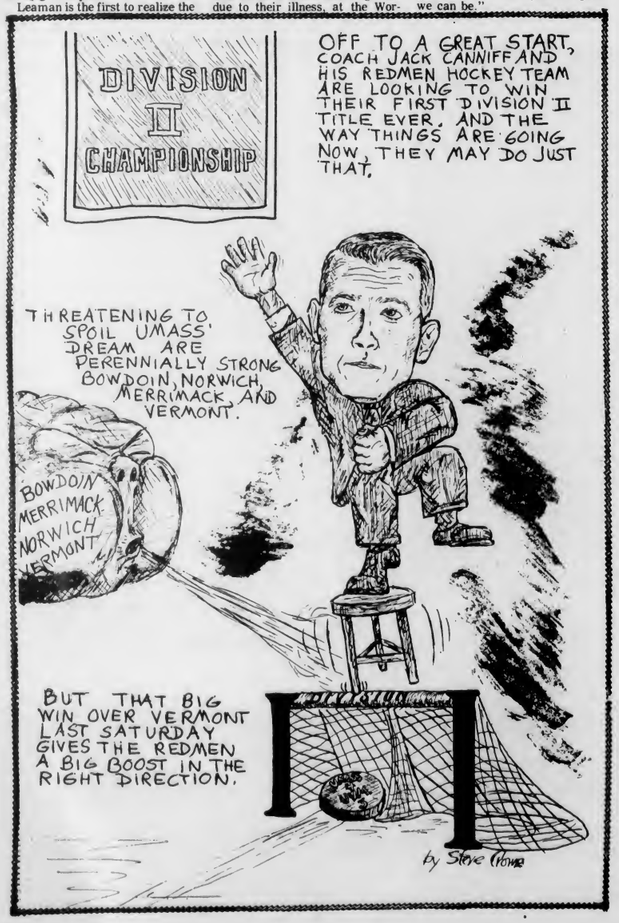
The series between these two teams has reached an emotional peak in the past couple of years due to the emergence of one Julius Erving. Two years ago they met at the Cage in what had to be THE game of the season at home. The Cross featured their candidate for number one player in New England in 6'9 Bob Kissane and the Redmen had their Julius.

A combination of Jack Gallagher guarding Kissane and Erving destroying the Crusader front court on both boards resulted in a whopping Redman victory, 83-66. This was one of the big wins in the Redman drive to the N.I.T.

Last year UMass played without Ken Mathias and Mike Pagliara, due to their illness, at the Worcester Auditorium and came back in the last four minutes to wipe out ten point Crusader lead on the strength of six straight jumpers from the corner by Erving to nip the Cross, 60-58.

And so you see these two don't spare the excitement and emotions when they get together and tonight should be no exception.

Coach Jack Donahue, who reached fame from his coaching of Kareem Jabbar (then Lou Alcindor) at Power Memorial, is once again laden with a good first team unit.



Starting up front will be 6'8 Gene Doyle at center and 6'7 Jim Schnurr and 6'5 Stan Grayson at forwards, with 6'3 Buddy Venne and 6' Bruce Grnetz at the guards. A very talented group, but that's as far as it's spread out, five men, and this is where the UMass hope for victory lies.

"The biggest problem I felt before the season, that the team would have, was in rebounding," said Leaman. "We have to rebound the ball in the big game and Holy Cross will be the first test. If we pass there's no telling how good we'll be."

"Our morale has been good this season and this stems from being able to play 12 people. We're very, very ready for this game both mentally and physically and we'll get a full measure of just how good we can be."

THE BIG GUY--Charlie Peters (44), Redman center has shown quite an improvement over last year. Here he is shown going up for a short jumper against Vermont last Saturday. Peters is counted on heavily this year for board strength. (Photo by Gib Fullerton)

Pucksters At Home In Battle Of Unbeatens

By ALAN WRIGHT

When two unbeaten hockey teams play each other, you can make a pretty safe assumption that you will see three periods of hotly contested puck patterns.

Well, that's exactly what's in store this evening as UMass takes on Williams in what should prove to be a real exciting clash at 8:30 in the friendly confines of Amherst's Orr Rink.

The Redmen are riding high with two victories against Salem State and Vermont tucked under their belt. Unfortunately Little Ivy Williams will be riding just as high and maybe even higher as they have recorded early season wins over Norwich and Connecticut. Also, without a doubt, Williams will be out to avenge their 6-3 beating handed to them last year by UMass when, according to Coach Canniff "We were lucky to beat them, we made careless mistakes in their rink, but still came out on top."

If you're anxious to take in a full evening of excellent hockey, don't just come to Orr Rink in time to see the varsity take the ice at 8:30. Rather, come a couple of hours earlier and witness the UMass J.V.'s show their stuff.

Coach Russ Kidd's kids (pardon the pun) have fared nearly as well as their older counterparts. Last Friday they drew a 3-3 tie with B.C. in their opener as Kevin Conners completed a hat trick performance.

ICE CHIPSLook for those new hockey cheerleaders-- they've really been a tremendous addition to promoting the growing enthusiasm for hockey at Orr Rink---Dan Reidy, that scrappy senior winger, is a real puck paradox. He has to wear his glasses on the ice because of poor vision and yet he tangles with even the largest adversary on those boards.

HC Frosh At Cage

By FRED ROSENTHAL

When a team has two big men at 6'7 and 6'8 it constantly seems to be looking down at the opposition. And that's just what the UMass freshmen hoopsters will be doing tonight when they host the Holy Cross freshmen at 6:00 p.m. The Redmen frosh are currently 2-0, while Holy Cross is 1-0 having beaten Stonehill, 91-76.

For the third time in three games the Little Redmen will have the height advantage at the start of the game. Center John Murphy (6'8) and forward Tom Gillams (6'7) are both taller than Holy Cross' tallest starter, Joe Petri, who is only 6'4.

The strength of the Holy Cross frosh though is in their backcourt. Guards Doug Holland (5'10) and Mike Blamey (5'11) had 18 and 13 points respectively in their first game. Doug Downey, however, a 6'0 forward was the leading scorer in the Little Crusaders' opener with 28 points.

The Holy Cross freshmen like Dartmouth, like to run. And because they are small they will probably try to use speed to overcome their lack of size.

LAYUP LINES-After two games Murphy is the leading scorer (27 points per game) and rebounder for the Little Redmen (He is tied with Gillams for the lead in rebounds. Both are averaging 13.5 rebounds per game)....Four of the UMass starters are scoring in double figures. Besides Murphy, Endicott, Burke and Gillams are averaging 21, 15.5 and 13 respectively. Flanagan is not far behind though at 8.5....Endicott has 15 rebounds in two games playing in the backcourt.

WMUA

Tonight beginning at 7:50 Ken Best and Marty Kelley will call all the action from Curry Hicks Cage as the Redmen take on their stiffest challenge of the young season against Holy Cross.

Swim

The UMass varsity swim team will be competing against a strong Wesleyan University team today at 4:00 p.m. in the Boyden Pool. All spectators are welcome.

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather
Variable Cloudiness. Chance of showers or snow. Temperature between 20°-60°. Variable winds.

VOLUME XCIX, ISSUE 63 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS THURSDAY, DECEMBER 9, 1971

Considering the possible legal consequences of releasing information on known police narcotics informers presently at work on campus, are from left to right: John Hogan, Lee Sandwen, Henry Bouffard, Dan Casper, Attorney Richard Howland, and John Stevens. (MDC Photo by Rich Hinckley.)

Senate To Expose Campus Narcs

By DON BISHOP

Acting in the hope of dramatizing and ending the work of police narcotics informers on campus, the Student Senate last night adopted a resolution authorizing the student Attorney General to compile a portfolio of information on known police informers working on campus. This information is intended to include both pictures and descriptions, which will be released to the University community, after careful and necessarily accurate compiling.

The adoption of this particular resolution represented the major business measure concluded at last night's Senate meeting. In other business, the Senate passed bills allowing for the purchase of new duplication equipment for the Senate's use and the reimbursement of the Greek Area Government in the amount of $200 for losses incurred in their financing of the Freshman mugbook.

The motion concerning the narcotics informers was the first on the Senates agenda, and it produced well over an hour of debate. Questions arose over the legality, practicality and effectiveness of the bill but these considerations were eventually turned aside in the belief that this measure could have a positive political effect against the continuation of this practice of the State Police.

The bill as written by its sponsors, Senators John Stevens and Larry Ladd, reads: "Whereas in the opinion of the state, the UMass Amherst campus is a hotbed of degenerate activities especially the sale and use of "harmful" drugs and

"Whereas the state police use disguised state police called informers to elicit the sale of "harmful" drugs, thereby increasing the drug flow, apprehending the violators of antiquated and foolish laws, and creating an atmosphere of suspicion and mistrust within the student community, therefore be it

"Resolved that the Senate condemns this practice, and be it further resolved that the Attorney General is charged with compiling a portfolio of information including pictures and descriptions, of all secret police that serve as informers and that the Communications Coordinator be charged with disseminating this information as widely as possible throughout the campus community."

Before debate on the bill began, General Council Richard Howland gave his opinion on both the legality and the practicality of the bill. Regarding it's legality, Howland stated the Senate could pass the bill and proceed to compile the information as long as the work of the police was not obstructed and as long as the information on the informers was totally accurate. If erronious information is released, the person or persons responsible can be sued for libel. Practically speaking, he believed the bill to be a farce.

The student Attorney General Henry Bouffard, who would be in charge of compiling the information, stated his beliefs that the bill is nice in principle, but that the difficulties in photographing the known informers (possibly as they come out of Court) and the relatively great risks in possibly releasing false information, negate the bill's effectiveness.

A considerable number of Senators agreed with this position, notably Senators Casper, Olmstead, Court, Kulakowski, and Tropiano. In the initial vote on the bill, it was narrowly defeated. Almost immediately a motion was made to reconsider, and debate on the bill's merits and hazards continued

(Continued on Page 2)

On The Inside:

- India-Pakistan See page four
- Faculty Trustees See page three
- Excerpts from Future U. See page seven

Sue Chamberlain, the new Yahoo editor, gets Yahoo from Jack Koch, the old Yahoo editor. See story, page 10.

It Didn't Happen After All

On Friday, November 12, 1971, an article appeared in the "Poor Richard's" weekly of the Daily Collegian entitled "It Could Happen to You." On Monday, November 15, 1971, an editorial appeared that referred to the article and stated that the facts related therein were true.

Subsequently a police investigation was conducted because the news article contained inferences regarding the conduct of an officer of the University Police, Sergeant Philip Cavanaugh, which would have constituted misconduct, were the inferences to be substantiated.

In fact they were not substantiated and Sergeant Cavanaugh was guilty of no wrongdoing whatsoever.

The Daily Collegian reported the alleged incident because if its concern for the protection of the rights of students. It maintains an interest in any case in which students might be the victims of administrative error or misconduct. In such a case factual information may become obscured, and witnesses are frequently in error. This happened as regards Sergeant Cavanaugh in the news article of November 12th.

The Daily Collegian sincerely regrets any embarrassment or inconvenience that may have been caused to Sergeant Cavanaugh.

Angela Davis To Go On Trial

PALO ALTO (AP)-Black militant Angela Y. Davis will go on trial Jan. 31 in San Jose on murder, kidnap and conspiracy charges, court officials announced Wednesday.

Attorneys for the 27-year-old former UCLA philosophy instructor announced after a meeting with prosecutor Albert E. Harris Jr., and Superior Court Judge Richard E. Arnason that Miss Davis would be moved from a jail here before the trial starts.

Earlier, Superior Court Judge Joseph Racanelli issued a statement that the trial would be held in the Criminal-Legal Superior Court Building in downtown San Jose.

Miss Davis is accused of furnishing four guns and helping plot the abortive attempt at the Marin County Civic Center Aug. 7, 1970 in which a judge, two convicts and an accomplice were killed.

Rehnquist Debate To End?

WASHINGTON (AP)-Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania filed a petition late Wednesday to close out the debate on the Supreme Court nomination of Assistant Atty. Gen. William H. Rehnquist.

The petition to invoke the Senate's anti-filibuster rule, requiring a two-thirds majority of senators voting, will automatically come to a vote Friday.

If the rule is put into effect, it could clear the way for a vote on Rehnquist's confirmation later in the day Friday. Each senator's speaking time would be limited to one hour.

Scott said 27 senators, 11 more than the required number, had signed the petition to cut off the debate.

Earlier Rehnquist had denied to the Senate that a 1952 memorandum he wrote upholding the separate-but-equal doctrine on school segregation was an expression of his views.

Rather, Rehnquist said, it was a statement of former Justice Robert H. Jackson's tentative views for use in a conference with other members of the court.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., and others opposed to Rehnquist's confirmation had cited the memorandum, which came to light the first of the week, as fresh evidence of what they termed his hostility to using the law to promote racial justice.

Howland On Narc Exposure

(Continued from Page 1)

Much discussion came on the legal ramifications of this measure. Attorney Howland firmly stated that the release of false information could bring a libel suit against one person, probably Sandwen or Bouffard, and because of this risk he felt the matter shouldn't be pursued.

Another factor brought against the bill's practicality, was the belief of some Senators that the informers are constantly changing their disguise and therefore a picture taken of an informer one day might be useless the next.

Nonetheless in the reconsideration motion the Senate voted favorably for the bill by the roll-call vote of 32-16 with two abstentions. Possibly the Senate had in mind the previous testimony of Senators Poisson, Ladd, Stevens, Lewiche, and Gomes, who all felt that the Senate had a responsibility to their constituents to try and alleviate the problem of disguised "narcs" on campus.

More probable as the deciding factor in the favorable reconsideration of the bill, was the concensus that the bill will necessarily have some "political" effect on those behind the policy of having disguised police informers work on this campus. Just how, when, and in what form any information on known informers will be released is not known at this time. Many considerations have yet to be taken into account before there is any implementation of this measure.

It was announced during the course of last night's meeting, that Senate Treasurer Richard Verrochi will resign from that office effective next Wednesday. The only announced candidate to replace Verrochi is the Senate Finance Committee Chairman Skip Olmstead.

At the time of the Collegian deadline, the Senate was considering budget requests for next year.

Watch Out For "M" Lot

The upper lot of "M" lot in the Sylvan area will be graveled early Saturday morning. Any car left in the upper half of the lot after midnight Friday will be ticketed and towed at the owner's expense.

Welfare Rights Advocate Here

The Committee on Poverty will feature a local Welfare Rights advocate tonight at 8 PM in room 802 of the Campus Center. There will be a discussion of the welfare system, how it is manifested in the local area, and the work of local welfare counselors. All those interested are urged to attend.

MDC Classified's

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus, zip code 01002. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 549-1311 (editor).

Second class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods, three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $6.00 per semester, $10.00 per year.

dvp

presents

SANDER VANOCUR

of "First Tuesday" and "Today"
former NBC anchorman

speaking on

"1972: Does It Make A Difference?"

Saturday Evening, Dec. 11
at 7:00 in the SUB

NBC

dig these giff jeans

Denim Jeans
Corduroy Jeans
Double Knit
Dress Flares

Always the area's largest selection.

Male
SLACKS JEANS

WEAR HOUSE

Open Every
Nite Til 9
Until X-mas

Dr. Carl Swanson, as he appeared last night in the Campus Center Auditorium.

'New Environmental Ethic Needed'-Carl Swanson

By WINIFRED BLISS

Declaring that the construction of a new environmental ethic is necessary, Dr. Carl Swanson added that "it is a challenge all of us must face up to."

Dr. Swanson, Professor of Botany, spoke to a small group on "The Development of an Environmental Ethic" at a lecture sponsored by Alpha Zeta, the National Agricultural Honor Fraternity last night in the Campus Center Auditorium.

Tracing the exploitive history of mankind, Dr. Swanson stated that over development of extra-bodily sources of energy may be an indication of our eventual downfall in the biological world.

"We have ignored the long-term cost," he said, "and now we must begin to foot the bill"

He continued that science and techology cannot solve the environmental problem alone, but must be guided by ethics.

Dr. Swanson commented that "the hope for the future does not lie with a few distinguished men." Instead, he sees college students as the most important factor.

According to Dr. Swanson, "he (the student) is concerned, and this, I think, is his strength."

Dr. Swanson believes that today's student lives in a world of change and should live by the motto "subject to change without notice."

Fac-Sen Moves For Own Trustees

By BILL RENDLE

A recurrent urge in the Faculty Senate, since 1968, to define the role in the University Governance system has fallen on deaf ears in the past. Now legislation has been filed by John Olver, representative from the Hampshire District, designed to place one faculty member from each University campus on the Board of Trustees with full privileges.

Dr. John L. Roberts, Zoology professor and the 1970-71 Faculty Senate Delegate to the Board of Trustees spearheaded the legislation. He said in an MDC interview Tuesday that "Faculty participation in the activities of the Board of Trustees is critical at the present time, because reorganization of the administrative structure, by the addition of the Central Systems Office, puts another rung in the administrative ladder, and makes the governance position of the faculty weaker."

Dr. Roberts said Faculty-Senate efforts have often degenerated into a circus because senators are uncertain "how much bite they really have." Several efforts in the past have tried to promote faculty representation on the Board, but Robert's Nov. 11th report to the Faculty-Senate, calling for "streamlined governance methods" and a "revision of the faculty governance role in the University as a system," is the first effort that seems to have a chance.

Dr. Roberts feels the time is ripe for faculty action because Tippo's resignation over the loss of Amherst fiscal autonomy, by creation of the Central Systems Office, has created a greater rift in mutual confidence than previously existed between the Trustees and the University community. "This was the straw that broke the camel's back," he said.

He further explained that student representation on the Board from Amherst and Boston campuses has legally opened the door for faculty membership, even though student membership at the present time has countered the relative status of the faculty in the University Governance system.

Dr. Roberts posed four possible actions designed to "enhance the faculty governance role" in his Nov. 11 report. They are:

1) Election of a faculty member from each of the three campuses of the University for appointment to the Board of Trustees as voting members
2) Formation of a Faculty-Senate Council to meet on a regular basis with the President of the University
3) Formation of a single University Senate, Amherst, with legislative or binding powers
4) Development of a series of collective bargaining agreements between the faculty and the Administration under the permissive legislation already in force in the Commonwealth

An informal advisory council has been established by the President, Roberts explained, and it functions as a "sounding board for the President and the different branches of the University."

He said that this doesn't clarify the ambiguous posture the Administration's mandate of "shared responsibility" assumes, however.

Dr. Roberts feels that students and faculty need to use their first-hand expertise in related areas of University Governance, and therefore sees faculty Board membership as a balance. The American Association of University Professors, AAUP, suggests that "faculty should have a defined role in policy formation at every administrative level."

The legislation introduced will clearly define the faculties role and promote a new strands of communication, Dr. Roberts explained, but another possible definition reflects the minority faculty sentiment supporting the alternative of collective bargaining. He said collective bargaining and faculty unionization is a current trend, and not fully understood. He said it poses the problem of creating adversary roles between the faculty and the Administration. Rather than further inhibit the poor lines of communication existing already, Roberts hopes the Legislature will see fit to admit one faculty member from each campus on the Board of Trustees.

The only problem he anticipates is the question of faculty self-interest on Trustee matters regarding renumeration and promotion. This would amount to a "Red Herring", said Dr. Roberts, "because adequate safeguards do exist now to protect the general public interest. After all the President of the University is a prinicpal and influential voting member of the Board, yet he is also an employee appointed by the Board as the chief administrator of the University."

MDC Classifieds Pay

Cases Continued

The cases of the three UMass students charged in connection with an alleged counterfeit drivers license making ring were continued last Friday in Northampton District Court.

Janet Freiman, 19, of Brockton, was alleged by registry police to be the head of the operation. She is charged with three counts of making counterfeit licenses.

A Lowell man who was reportedly sharing Miss Freiman's dormitory room with her, Philip Riley, 20 is charged with possession of a counterfeit license and possession and possession with intent to sell marijuana.

Michele D. Cunningham, 19, of Revere is charged with possession of a counterfeit license.

FACES OF EARTH

159 North Pleasant St.
Amherst
Next to the Post Office

CAMPING EQUIPMENT FOR CHRISTMAS

Open til 10 p.m.
Mon. thru Sat.

Rod Rodgers Dance Company
a unique theatre experience

Tuesday - Thursday
December 7-8-9
8:00 P.M.
Bowker Auditorium

A Different Program Each Evening.

Reserved Tickets:
UMass Undergrads $1.00
Other Full-Time Students $2.00
UMass Faculty/Staff $3.00
General Public $3.50

Fine Arts Council Ticket Office,
125 Herter Hall, Tel. 545-0202

Presented by the University of Massachusetts Fine Arts Council

a u.mass. theatre production

BUFFALO BILL'S WILD WEST SHOW IS HERE

INDIANS

a play by ARTHUR KOPIT

Dec. 9-11, 16-18 8:30 P.M. Bartlett Auditorium

Reserved Seats available 545-2575

$1.50 u.mass students w/ID $2.00 all others

In The Nation And The World

India Admits Jeopardy In Kashmir

India claimed Wednesday the enemy's lines in East Pakistan had crumbled and the Pakistani army was in confused retreat, but conceded its own forces were in peril on the western front in Kashmir. Pakistan denied Indian gains in East Pakistan.

An Indian spokesman in New Delhi asserted "Pakistani soldiers are withdrawing from all the border areas in Bangla Desh into the heart of the country." Bangla Desh is the rebel name for East Pakistan.

The Indians claimed to be within 28 miles southeast of Dacca, the East Pakistani capital, after capturing Jessore in the southwest, Comilla in the east, and Sylhet in the northeast.

Radio Pakistan asserted those towns "are firmly in our control and Indian radio broadcasts of their capture are fantastic, ridiculous and baseless."

A report from Rawalpindi, West Pakistan, said Indian forces had been driven back in the Hilli region in the northwest.

"We are defending every inch of our sacred soil," the official Pakistani broadcast asserted. The chief of staff of the Indian army, Gen. Sam Manekshaw, broadcast his second appeal in two days to Pakistani soldiers in the east to surrender.

A group of Western correspondents belied the Pakistani claim of holding Jessore. The correspondents were allowed to visit the town and watched as jubilant crowds cheered the conquering Indian troops.

The residents brought out the red, green and gold flags of Bangla Desh that they had concealed in their homes. Tanks and armored personnel carriers thundered through Jessore in pursuit of the Pakistanis.

The news for the Indians was grim from Kashmir. The Indian spokesman said the Pakistanis launched a fierce new attack with troops and tanks on the east bank of the Tawi River Wednesday afternoon "and our troops are very hard pressed."

The Indians had fallen back from Chhamb, near the border, Tuesday and tried to dig into the east bank of the Tawi to check the Pakistan drive threatening to cut off the main road from Kashmir to the rest of India. The Pakistanis have committed more than a division of infantry and three armored brigades to the battle, the spokesman said, and strategic positions in the area have changed hands several times.

He claimed the Pakistanis were driven back from some ground they had gained but fighting still was raging, making it difficult to give a clear assessment of the battle.

The spokesman was reluctant to give too many details of the Chhamb fighting, however, and at one point commented: "I am trying to avoid giving fresh news of Chhamb."

Claiming Pakistani losses were massive, he said only that Indian casualities in the fighting were moderate.

The only highway link between New Delhi and Srinagar, the capital of Indian Kashmir, runs near the battle area, which also was the scene of bloody fighting in the 1965 war between India and Pakistan er Kashmir.

In the Punch area 70 miles north of Chhamb, the spokesman reported the Pakistanis were engaging Indian forces at several points but said there was no heavy fighting.

House Bill Would Cut Aid To India And Pakistan

WASHINGTON (AP) - The House passed Wednesday a $3-billion foreign-aid money bill bearing $400 million for Israel and none for India, Pakistan and Equador-with Senate leaders still saying they will refuse to consider it.

The vote was 214 to 179.

With present spending authority for foreign-aid and defense expiring at midnight, House and Senate leaders consulted on putting out a stopgap interim extension-possible into next year-but came to no early agreement.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana, whose six-month Indochina war deadline has the House and Senate deadlocked over renewing foreign aid, refused to give up the deadline.

The $3 billion foreign aid money bill was passed by the House after worried leaders appealed to it not to kill the bill and a bloc of foreign-aid supporters who had threatened to vote against it because of cuts announced they would reluctantly accept it.

"We cannot just plunge out of this business," Speaker Carl Albert appealed to the House. "All of us hope to see a gradual decrease of foreign aid but we must support this bill."

Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford told the House U.S. aid in the bill was vital to the security of the Middle East and to the safe withdrawal of U.S. forces from the Indochina war.

Aid for India and Pakistan was barred as long as they are at war. The ban on $15.5 million slated for Ecuador was voted Wednesday because of that country's seizure of U.S. fishing boats.

The proposed slash of $100 million in U.S. contributions to United Nations programs was retained in the bill Wednesday despite efforts to cut the reduction to $50 million.

Allied War Planes Over Laos, Cambodia

SAIGON (AP) - Hundreds of U.S. and South Vietmanese warplanes were out in force Wednesday over Laos and Cambodia in a massive campaign to cut the Communist command's supply lines.

The U.S. Command also disclosed three air engagements over North Vietnam on Tuesday but said no American jets were hit by the surface-to-air missiles and antiaircraft artillery fired at them.

Informants said the heightening of the air war over North Vietnam is evidence the U.S. air campaign against the Ho Chi Minh trail supply network in neighboring Laos is "beginning to hurt them."

"The North Vietnamese "are putting all their resources together to stop bombing of the trail," said one informant. "The amount of antiaircraft fire is heavier than last year."

Informants also disclosed that the South Vietnamese air force has joined in attacks against the Ho Chi Minh trail for the first time in the war, but in a limited way.

Informants reported sensors along the Ho Chi Minh trail indicated North Vietnamese trucks carrying war supplies had registered 300 movements daily in recent days along the trail network, an increase of 100 over traffic two weeks ago.

American bombers and gunships, the informants claimed, are knocking out an average of 40 to 50 trucks a day.

The big North Vietnamese push of arms and ammunition southward to sustain offensives in Cambodia and operations in South Vietnam now is under way, and is expected to increase as the dry season reaches its peak in January and February.

Price Boosts Approved

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Price Commission Wednesday officially announced approval of two requests for price increases, bringing the total approved so far to 104.

It also announced receipt of 64 new applications by 39 companies, bringing the total so far to 683 applications by 529 companies.

The commission approved the following requests: A. O. Smith Corp., 1.6 per cent, auto-truck chassis component parts; Hoover Ball and Bearing, 3.31 per cent, product not specified.

The commission also announced approval of a 4.56 per cent increase for Deere and Co. for agricultural and industrial tractors and other equipment.

In Brief...

Strong Winds Cause Fires

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Powerful winds swept through northeast Los Angeles and the San Gabriel Valley on Wednesday, knocking down electric lines that at times sparked new fires almost as fast as fire fighters could put them out.

Fire officials said Los Angeles city firemen answered 61 alarms during a single 12-hour period. About 40 of those were actual fires, a spokesman said; the rest were calls about downed and sparking lines and calls duplicating earlier reports.

Grain Sale to Russia Rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) - A Nixon administration spokesman rejected Wednesday an accusation that the sale of $180 million of feed grains to Russia amounted to a taxpayer-subsidized "international food stamp" bonus for Soviet farmers.

"I contend we are not subsidizing the Russian livestock business," Asst. Agriculture Secretary Clarence D. Palmby told two House subcommittees.

Administration Official Attacks Editorial

WASHINGTON (AP) - A top Nixon administration official has attacked a widely printed editorial by newspaper publisher Eugene C. Pulliam criticizing the federal bureaucracy.

Elliot C. Richardson, secretary of health, education and welfare, said Wednesday that the editorial "echoes faithfully, if rather more sensationally, the increasingly irrational drumbeat of mindless criticism directed against all things bureaucratic or governmental."

Quicksilver
57 North Pleasant Street
HAPPY HOUR 3 - 5:30
CAT DANCE 8:00
RESTAURANT
Open 24 Hours

"CHISUM"
with John Wayne
Thursday, Dec. 9, 1971
S.U. Ballroom
7 and 9:30
50¢
Presented By Program Council

BULP is having a benifit BOOGIE for our legal defense
THURSDAY DECEMEBER 9 at the CAMPUS CENTER AUDITORIUM 7:00-12:00 PM
THE Prairie Oysters, FUSION and COUNTRY COMFORT will play
75¢
Fun! Come!

Brandt Claims E. Germany Reneged On Berlin Agreement

BERLIN (AP) — West Berlin accepted terms for travel between the divided halves of Berlin Wednesday but then accused the East Germans of reneging on it.

Chancellor Willy Brandt said in Bonn that differences within the East German Communist party leadership apparently prompted the turnabout. Brandt said he still expects the accord--and a second one completed but still unsigned--to be initialed "sooner or later."

The East German balk produced a second postponing of ceremonies to mark signing of the agreements. One accord covers access between West Germany and Berlin, the other between the Communist and non-Communist sectors of Berlin itself.

The signing was postponed the first time last weekend when the East Germans accused West Berlin negotiators of reneging on agreed terms, the same accusation made Wednesday by the West Berliners.

The two agreements will set down detailed procedures for access into and within Berlin as agreed to generally in the four-power accord signed on Sept. 3 by the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union.

It was assumed that the East German objections would make another meeting of East-West Berlin negotiators necessary. But even with the last-minute dispute, it was apparent the unprecedented all-German accords were within reach and negotiations continued.

West Berlin Mayor Klaus Schuetz used a special session of the West Berlin City Parliament to appeal to the East Germans to accept what he called agreed terms.

A night-long session that began on Tuesday climaxed Wednesday morning with a West Berlin announcement that it had accepted the terms.

Schuetz said the West Berlin negotiator had returned thinking he had an agreement to be signed. But when another West Berlin representative went back to East Berlin for further probings, the East Germans said the deal "was not acceptable" to them, Schuetz said.

Allende To Distribute Food; Says Will Overcome Shortage

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — President Salvador Allende announced Wednesday his leftist government is taking over distribution of food in Chile to help overcome a shortage.

Allende told a workers congress that the shortage came about because his policies in his year in the presidency had permitted people to buy more food than they ever had before.

"Before this," he said, "there were many workers whose mouths had never chewed a piece of steak."

"We're going to distribute the foodstuffs," Allende told 8,000 workers at the sixth national Congress of the Communist-controlled Central Workers Confederation.

The president urged the workers and the rest of organized labor to set up organized neighborhood vigilance committees to ferret out hoarders and price gougers.

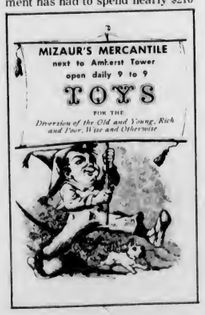
"Comrades, let's organize supply committees," he said. "These neighborhood committees themselves will have to check up how much merchandise is delivered to such and such butcher shop and such and such a grocery store. They will have to check against any abuse in the distribution of food."

Allende did not go into detail about how his leftis government is to assume control over food distribution.

But various government agencies have been quietly assuming increasing control over various sectors of the distribution system in recent months.

One agency, which used to coordinate meat distribution with Chilean slaughter houses, is now in charge of distributing imported and domestically produced beef to Chilean butcher shops.

Allende acknowledged a food problem which he said was caused by increased buying power among the working class as the result of big pay raises his administration granted earlier this year.



Already this year, the government has had to spend nearly $210 million of its dwindling foreign reserves to purchase imported food to feed Chile's 10 million inhabitants, say agriculture sources.

Partly because of this financial drain on its slim reserves, the government on Monday ordered the suspension of all foreign exchange operations pending an overhaul of Chile's exchange policies.

The new policies have not yet been announced.

The food problem has meant that Chileans can buy beef only on the average of one week a month. When it is available, long lines form outside butcher shops and supermarkets.

Air Force Style Parkas
now @
FERNANDO'S HIDEAWAY
Next to the Human Post Office
Men's Sizes XS, S, M, L, XL $38.00
Some Boys 8 - 18 $35.00
Come see them now! Great gifts for Christmas.
Wear one -- you'll love it!

Laird Proposes Naval Buildup

BRUSSELS (AP) — U.S. Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird called Wednesday for a major redeployment of allied navies to counter a Soviet buildup in the Atlantic and Mediterranean.

Laird submitted a three-point proposal to the defense planning committee of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

His plan envisioned formation of a permanent international fleet in the Mediterranean and an expanded NATO naval presence in the Atlantic.

It also incorporated an offer to provide European countries with American weapons systems, electronic warfare help and other highly sophisticated gear being withdrawn from Indochina.

Details of Laird's proposal as relayed by U.S. officials:

—NATO's standing naval force in the Atlantic, set up in 1966, should be augmented by countries, like West Germany, with fleets which currently are not participants. The allied naval force in the Atlantic now includes American, British, Canadian, Dutch, Norwegian and Portuguese vessels.

—NATO's on-call naval force in the Mediterranean should be replaced by a standing naval force, with countries like Greece and Turkey taking full part far beyond their normal area of operations. Other participants now include the United States, Britain and Italy. But any allied navy with ships to spare should seriously consider joining.

—NATO nations have the chance to take up an American offer of help based on U.S. experience in Vietnam. This would take the form of electronic warfare gear, presumably missile systems, other complete weapons systems, and techniques of tactical air control.

The defense planning committee is composed of all NATO members minus France which stays out of the allied military system.

Britain's Lord Carrington kicked off the session with an account of the extra effort the European allies are putting into their own defense, primarily to lighten the load on the United States.

He reported that 10 members of the "Eurogroup" will be pitching in another billion dollars worth of military spending in 1972. Much of this will be swallowed up by inflationary price rises.

NEW AFRICA HOUSE PRESENTS:
"From The Conqueror's Point of View"
DR. FRED TURNER:
"White Folks Promises - Indians Regrets"
Part I: Mon., Dec. 13 at 7:30 p.m.
Part II: Wed., Dec. 15 at 7:30 p.m.
PAUL KAPLAN:
"Images of Africans in European Art"
Part I: Tues., Dec. 14 at 7:30 p.m.
Part II: Thurs., Dec. 15 at 7:30 p.m.
Public invited, Admission Free,
New Africa House Coffee Shop

DO THE DEAD RETURN???
A Startling and Controversial Program Dealing with Extra Sensory Perception • Predictions of the Future
The Supernatural
by André Kole America's Leading Illusionist
Andre Kole has spoken in 43 countries on five continents of the world, and on national television in 30 countries. This year, he will probably be performing and speaking on more college and university campuses throughout the world than any other person.
"UNMASKING THE UNKOWN"
is the title Mr. Kole gives to this intriguing presentation in which, among other things, he will give a visible demonstration of the fourth dimension, and reveal some amazing predictions of the future which could affect the life of every person in attendance.
This unusual presentation is sponsored by Campus Crusade For Christ International. Due to his interest in the supernatural, Mr. Kole will include some observations he made from his investigation of the miracles of Christ from the point of view of an illusionist. This will no doubt be the most unusual program you will ever witness.

THURS., DEC. 9, 8:00 P.M. THE CAGE, U.MASS.
TICKETS: $2 AT DOOR, IN ADVANCE
at a table in the C.C. Concourse or call 549-6149

SOME FUNKY TUNES--Jonathan Edwards was well received by jam-packed Ballroom crowds in two concerts given last Tuesday. Edwards has said, "On stage, it's just me and my guitar and harp." For those who saw him, it was enough. (MDC Photo by Dan Kamal)

REWARD

to

the Good Samaritan

who has been caring for "Pups" Craven, an 18-month-old, cute, black, male mutt who strayed to the campus about two weeks ago. "Pups" is 12-inches high, always walks with white tip black tail held upright, brownish ears, some white patches on chest. Last seen wearing red collar with Montague Lic. No. 831. Collar and Lic. may be missing.

Liberal Reward

includes reimbursement for feeding, and tender loving care..

PLEASE CALL COLLECT:

Barbara Craven at 665-2448

Street Lights Completed

Completion of a three-year program to underground electric facilities in the whole central business district of Amherst will be marked by ceremonies on North Pleasant Street today at 11:45 a.m.

Representing the town will be Allen Torrey, town manager; Merle Howes, chairman of the board of selectmen; and other members of the board. Representing Western Mass. Electric will be its president, Robert E. Barrett, Jr., Hampshire area manager Kenneth D. Cuddeback, streets and lighting engineer Edwin N. Putnam, and other company officials.

This is the culmination of a project which began in 1969. Amherst residents have been watching day by day as the old steel and wood poles have given way to modern spun aluminum. WMECO officials say the new poles are light and strong, and never need painting, so they should retain their original good looks indefinitely. The lights themselves are 60,000 lumen mercury vapor lamps which will more than double the amount of illumination on the roadway and considerably improve the distribution of light in the underground area.

The last major street light conversion in Amherst was completed in 1968.

One of the biggest advantages of the new system, however, is the removal of unsightly wires and transformers to restore a large measure of dignity and charm to the old town commons.

South Pleasant Street along the common was undergrounded in 1969. The last pole there came out in July of 1970. Now the whole of Pleasant Street from Northampton Road to Hallock, and Main Street as far as Churchill Street has been completed.

The few remaining poles on upper North Pleasant Street will be removed as soon as other utilities have completed relocating their facilities. Any further undergrounding of lines farther north awaits major highway revisions.

WMECO has invested about $220,000 in the present renovation of the central business district. This includes not only the manhole and duct system, cable, transformers, new services and removal of old equipment, but the new lights and poles as well.

(Reprinted from the Hampshire Daily Gazette 12/7/71)

Profs Awarded

Two UMass history professors have received a grant of $8,200 from the U.S. Office of Education. Asst. Prof. Jane M. Loy and Prof. Lewis H. Hanke will use the grant to finance preparation of a publication guide to films, slides, and music available for use in college survey courses on Latin-American history.

We have the area's largest selection of Jerseys, Knit Tops, Sweaters.

Just Perfect for Christmas

WEAR HOUSE

ROOM TO MOVE

presents:

The James Montgomery Blues Band

Clean Living

Bernie Kaplan

Oegenouelf

Sat. Night, Dec. 11 9:30 — 2:00 a.m.

Student Union Ballroom, U.Mass.

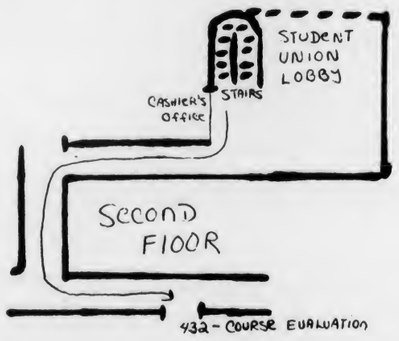
$1.00

Viet nam

SANDER VANOCUR

former NBC Anchorman

Little Rock



"1972: Does It Make A Difference?"

SATURDAY EVENING — DEC. 11

7:00 — SUB

Coffee Hour Following in the Colonial Lounge

COURSE EVALUATION

FORMS may be picked up at 432. S.U. before Dec. 17.

Future University Report

Program Diversity Urgently Needed

(Ed note - This is the third of a series of excerpts from the Future University Report. This and the following ones will deal with those portions of the report considered important to the future condition of the University community.)

Beyond the freshman year, we see the challenge of the seventies as being to produce a diversity of undergraduate options that responds to the diversity of needs and the diversity of students.

The goals and values which underlie our stress on a diverse curriculum are varied. Diversity of program stems from such considerations as that the undergraduate curriculum should avoid impersonality, meet real career needs and pressing societal needs, make the most effective use of educational resources and students' time, relate classroom work more directly to the world beyond the campus, educate better citizens, and promote physical accessibility.

There are three kinds of diversity here:

1) diversity of structure--learning both through standard programs and by way of independent study, and both within disciplines and across disciplinary lines; 2) diversity of place--learning both on and off campus; and 3) diversity of time--learning both full-time and part-time, and on a drop-out, drop-in basis.

Diversity of Structure

Diversity of structure is two interrelated issues--prescription vs. flexibility in a student's program, and options for learning which cross traditional disciplinary lines.

Some students will learn best in an atmosphere of maximum flexibility and freedom. There are others, as the Newman Report says, "for whom a 'structured' curriculum is essential for their development," and there is "the individual who wants a college education but lacks the motivation of self-confidence to direct himself."

A full panoply of options should therefore be available, backed up by a sophisticated system of advising, and ranging from well-designed pre-planned programs on the one side, to individually designed degree programs involving considerable independent study on the other. Independent study is already developing, particularly on the Amherst campus with the 385 and 386 courses which many departments have, with Project 10 in the Southwest dormitory area, with the honors program, and in the School of Education. We believe there should be more of it for the appropriate students, although we would caution that it must be supported by a strong advising system.

Overlapping the diversity of student needs is the diversity of knowledge. That knowledge no longer comes as neatly wrapped in packages called disciplines as perhaps it once did is by now a truism. The great problems of our time and the foreseeable future require skills and capacities which do not fit neatly within disciplinary lines as we know them. Yet the disciplines have been with us for a long period of time, and have proved adaptable to changes in the nature of knowledge before. Rather than create what we think would be an unnecessary and rather pointless conflict between the discipline-oriented and the cross- or inter-disciplinary oriented, we would formulate the need for change in another way.

We would see it in termsof a continuum. At one end would be the traditional disciplines, adapted and changed in response to new problems which have come along. At the other would be individually designed student programs which cut across disciplinary lines and require learning in two or more disciplines. Problem-oriented and applied research might be done on a project-by-project, team basis cutting across department lines, too. In the middle would be new, formally organized units based on the conclusion that, in whatever area is involved, the discipline lines have been crossed so regularly that it is time to create a new cross-disciplinary discipline. Some multidisciplinary fields--biochemistry, polymer science and marine science--have already achieved formal organization and recognition in the University community.

Thus there should, in short, be room for students to create their own study programs and faculty to create their own research efforts when present disciplinary lines do not fit their interest. And there should be room for such approaches to be institutionalized when the case can be made for that.

Bachelor's Degree in Individual Concentration.

The individually designed study program already exists at Amherst (but not at Boston) in the form of the Bachelor's Degree in Individual Concentration, which began in the 1970-71 academic year with forty students, and now has close to 100 participants. Administered by an inter-disciplinary faculty committee, the program involves a specially designed major chosen by the student and a faculty sponsor and taken in either the sophomore-junior or junior-senior years. Generally speaking, the individualized major is constructed out of existing courses in a number of departments and schools (although some students have pursued parts of their interest through independent study). Thus one student interested in mental retardation took courses in the psychology department, in the School of Education, and in the School of Physical Education. Another, interested in medical illustration, took courses in art, zoology, and other relevant sciences. Other self-designed majors included ecological psychology, the law and social problems, creativity, and design and business. The Board of Trustees gave the program a 2 year mandate when it began. That would end next June, so the administrators of the program will begin seeking approval for a permanent program this fall. We believe the BDIC concept is an excellent idea, and we urge that it be expanded at Amherst and established at Boston.

Re-examing the Content of Majors.

At the other end of the continuum, there is a need to re-examine programs for the larger group of undergraduates for whom an individualized option is inappropriate. We think some existing majors tend to be organized as though the student is going on to graduate school in that field, stressing the academic uses of the discipline rather than, for example, how it is used to deal with the problems of industry, government, or other institutions and situations. Since most UMass graduates do not go to graduate school, it seems appropriate to question how well the standard "academic major" serves them. We urge the faculty to re-examine the content of majors for the seventies. We think that current majors could be broadened and new joint majors created. Self-study for content, timeliness, and relation to other bodies of learning might result in new majors, new flexibility within majors, and new, cross-disciplinary courses.

Problem-oriented Units

The middle point in out continuum is the new organized entity that results when steps outside of the disciplines in one direction or another become a beaten track. This we will call the "problem-oriented unit." It is a "unit" because it is bigger than a "program," smaller than a "college," and different from an "institute" or a "center," or at least from what institutes and departments including the Schools of Engineering, Business Administration, and Education, the College of Agriculture, and the Departments of Botany, Environmental Sciences, Sociology, and Public Health. Additionally, there are undergraduate majors in specific areas of environmental concern in the Departments of Public Health, Landscape Architecture, General Business and Finance, Civil Engineering, and Environmental Sciences. On the graduate level, there are degree programs offered in the Department of Civil Engineering, the Water Resources Research Center, and the Business and Economic Research Center. There are interdisciplinary courses in marine science offered in conjunction with the Marine Station at Gloucester.

A major function of the environmental problems unit would be to coordinate and to bring into focus these disconnected environmental study courses and programs. A center for environmental studies would aim at pooling the skills available in agriculture, engineering, and the natural and social sciences, and offering them on a consultative basis to formal and informal planning groups throughout the New England area. It would provide the region with the capacity to undertake comprehensive environmental planning, and to study the implications and consequences of continued industrialization and growth.

We believe that planning might also begin fairly quickly for three or more additional units. There are many problem areas which might be considered as subjects for future problem-oriented units.

For example, a unit formed around the issues of mass culture and quality of American life might consider such questions as: what has been the fate of the classical art forms--drama, dance, music, literature--in our mass culture, and why? What should be the University's role in relation to the arts in society? The unit could bring practicing artists--painters, dancers, actors, authors--together with professors of literature, drama, art history and journalism to ponder these issues with students and to develop University outreach projects which might further the fine and/or mass arts in towns and cities throughout the state.

The trend in education is away from lectures and towards small seminars and discussions.

The problem-oriented units would be bases for some of the new approaches to undergraduate learning needed in the seventies: helping students relate their learning directly to significant current issues in society at large; creating educational experiences which are well-grounded in the liberal arts but also related to the process of social change; developing the intellectual and scholarly powers of students in a contemporary context; learning by doing, putting training to use in State.

Every unit would offer a program for undergraduates; most units would also sponsor graduate programs. In addition, each unit would act as a clearing house for regular university courses offered in fields related to the problem unit's particular focus. Serving as a coordinating body, the unit would avoid duplicate efforts among departments.

The problem-oriented units should help integrate the present disciplines so as to facilitate production of problem-oriented knowledge which is both theoretical and applied. The overall result should be an exciting model for combining teaching and research with public service.

As conditions in society and on the campuses change, the University must be able to arrange and re-arrange these coalitions of scholars, many of whom will come from the regular departments, to form new centers of inquiry. In the interest of such flexibility, we think each problem-oriented unit should be given a limited initial life, and that its mission and performance should be re-examined periodically. If over time the justification for a unit no longer exists, it should be dissolved.

We should distinguish these units from the institutes and centers which proliferated at universities during the fifties and sixties. They were mainly research centers funded by outside money, which functioned as semi-autonomous units detached from the main business of the University. We envision the problem-oriented units as basically funded by state appropriations just as departments are, as having teaching responsibilities just as departments do, and as playing a major catalytic role in the day-to-day life of the University, helping scholars and teachers from the departments to join together in the new teaching and knowledge seeking combination.

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — Nathan Gorenstein
BUSINESS MANAGER — James Gold
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Gib Fullerton
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR — Charlie Berkow
NEWS STAFF — Ethel Harris, Jeannette Martineau, Steve Fine
DARKROOM — Gary Alpaugh, Rich Hinckley
SPORTS — Dan Kamal, Bob Medeiros
EDITORIAL — Ann Gurnett
AD LAYOUT — Elaine Stogel

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

With A Whimper

"In the English department...work is in progress on the final organizational guidelines for the complicated manufacturing process which passes for education (at UMass)."

That is how English department exchange professor, Dietrich Schwanitz, from Germany described one segment of education here. The article (MDC 12/8/71) in which Schwanitz takes a critical look at life here on the Amherst campus, offers a vital look from the outside at this institution where, says Schwanitz, "The students are channeled into a rigid program of courses which is being constantly subjected to 'exciting' innovations."

The tone of Professor Schwanitz's article is severe and should cause professors and students to take note. What he is questioning is the same system that so many are used to referring to as "one of the best in the nation."

"...There is the artificiality of a campus way out in the country, and the attempt to teach the students about life; the passivity of the students role as consumer and the fast pace of the educational process; the constant invocation of Individualism, and the standardized nature of the invocation," writes Schwanitz.

UMass is described as the "brave new world." The description, though difficult for those here leading "relevant" lives to conjure, is very difficult to refute. Surely the people at any institution of higher learning who are more likely to become excited over money and administration policies than the essential values of learning, would have a tendency to "wander around among the numerous buildings lost in their dreams."

More likely, the "wandering" faculty are thinking about tenure and how to get merit increments than the deficiencies in their teaching. And the students, who Schwanitz claims are "feared" by professors, are more apt to be wondering how their grade point average is going to shape up with the A—AB—BC...system than whether they are being taught or are learning.

Professor Schwanitz notes that professors are "slightly apologetic" for how stupid most students are; students who have passed through the mediocre public school systems that America maintains.

The critique that Professor Schwanitz offers is best viewed in a constructive rather than defensive light. Americans have a history of accepting the mediocre in education, the quality of their lives, and their own achievements (note American government policies).

Professor Schwanitz questions the historical validity of his observations. But many people are living the life he described at UMass.

"It's Such A Good Deal You've Got To Sign Quick — And Don't Kick The Tires On This One"

Colonialism vs. Imperialism

East Pakistan is a relatively small, overwhelmingly agrarian nation, situated in the northeast corner of the Indian sub-continent. It is separated from West Pakistan by 1000 miles of Indian territory. Until recently, it was economically exploited and politically controlled by West Pakistan.

Last spring, on March 25th Yahya Khan's West Pakistan army invaded East Pakistan. There followed for a number of months one of the most massive, brutal slaughters in history. Reports of the dealth toll vary between 100,000 and 200,000. The casualties were largely civilians. There were in those months no major military encounters between East Pakistan forces and the West Pakistan army. In short, it was an enormous, concerted, "search and destroy" mission, characterized by massive, cold-blooded murder. The extent of death and destruction drove millions upon millions of East Pakistanis (Bengalis) to flee across the Indian border. The number of those refugees today approaches 10,000,000.

What were the reasons for the attack? On March 26th, the newly elected East Pakistan parliament was to have convened. The Awami League had, by popular vote, won a majority of seats. The Awami League ran on a program of limited autonomy for East Pakistan. A movement then, not for self determination, not for independence, but merely for limited autonomy brought on the attack. Yahya Khan felt so threatened by the proposed reforms that he sought to crush the Awami League and to terrorize the entire East Pakistan population. Instead, the Bengali people of East Pakistan showed, as the Vietnamese have shown, that an idea cannot be crushed with military terror. In fact, the movement for their self determination and complete independence from West Pakistan was pushed rapidly forward, until today, we hear of their increasingly successful armed struggle, in conjunction with India, against the occupying army of West Pakistan.

Would you care to venture a guess as to which side the U.S. govt. is supporting? True to the role of perpetual, world wide, reactionary bully, the U.S. govt., presently in the hands of the Nixon administration, continues to send military and financial aid to West Pakistan. Richard Nixon and Yahya Khan have stated publicly that they admire one another. This can hardly be surprizing. The United States government aids and defends military and fascist dictatorships all over the "free world". In Latin America, Africa, the Middle East, South and Southeast Asia, the instruments of repression are stamped "made in USA". Remember the noble struggle of WWII against fascism and for the preservation of democracy? Fascist Spain is a staunch member of the "free world" today. The military dictatorships in Greece, Brazil, and Guatemala would crumble without U.S. support. What is it that ties together these nations and so many others where democracy is a dangerous dream? What makes them the "free world"? U.S. foreign capital investments; that is the sole characteristic shared by every nation in the "free world".

With these facts in mind, one should not be surprized at the U.S. role in South Asia. There is as well, the grim experience of Vietnam, Cambodia, and Laos. But due to circumstances beyond the control of American capitalist politics and military endeavor, the people of South and Southeast Asia are winning. Are people to be fooled by Nixon's trip to China? Are warmer, "normalized" relations behind our president's recent change of heart? Or is he scared? The Vietnamese, Cambodians, and Laotians fight longer, harder, and better than Nixon imagined. The domestic antiwar movement has not folded. It refuses to stay off the streets. It has turned sentiment about the war completely around to where the overwhelming (and growing) majority of Americans want that war ended now. It has made dangerous connections with virtually every sector of society, especially labor. It is this set of factors that has put Nixon in a bargaining mood with regard to Southeast Asia and East Pakistan (now Bengla Desh).

The U.S. govt. now is the loudest voice for a cease fire, a political settlement, and a U.N. "peace keeping" force in East Pakistan. Where was that courageous humanitarian spirit months ago? Where were the calls for a negotiated settlement and an end to the bloodshed last Spring and Summer? What has changed? The Bengali people are winning, that's what's changed. India, unable to support the 10,000,000 refugees flooding the border area, is equally unable to make them return, as long as Yahya Khan's army occupies Bengla Desh. Hence India's aid and support to the Mukti Bahini (Bengla Desh liberation army). In their true light, the cries of the U.S. govt. for a cease fire and a negotiated settlement are a cynical fraud, stemming from a position of weakness and hopeless contradiction.

We must continue to observe closely the situation in Bengla Desh. How far can the govt. of India be trusted? As the conflict heightens, so do the crisscrossed antagonisms and contradictions among the major world powers. But the struggle of colonial nations for self determination has once again shown itself to be an implacable antagonist pitted against world imperialism, and an increasingly formidable political factor. The struggle of the Bengali people deserves our support.

A Case Against Rehnquist

Following the thousands of unlawful arrests and the flagrant suspension of constitutional rights during the anti-war protests in Washington this past May, an assistant attorney general sought to justify this abuse of fundamental individual liberties with the excuse that "the circumstances were extraordinary."

In Germany in the 1930's, in Greece in the 1960's, in country after country that has evolved into a repressive police state, the first suspension of constitutional liberties and guarantees came because of "extraordinary circumstances," usually in the guise of preserving order and protecting the public safety.

The assistant attorney general who advised that the Bill of Rights be suspended and who then sought a rationale in the excuse of "extraordinary circumstances" was William Rehnquist--the man whose nomination to the U.S. Supreme Court is now being debated on the Floor of the Senate.

Mr. Rehnquists's disregard for individual liberties during the Mayday demonstrations was only the latest in a long series of public statements which, taken together, reveal a dangerous hostility on the part of Mr Rehnquist to the great principles of equal justice under the law and individual freedom under the Bill of Rights.

If Mr. Rehnquist is seated on the High Court he has an excellent chance of being there for more than a quarter of a century. He is a young man who could be voting on basic constitutional questions until the year 2000.

I am convinced that it would be a serious mistake for the Senate to confirm Mr. Rehnquist's nomination.

I am further convinced that the young people of this country, who would be so directly affected by the decisions Mr. Rehnquist would make on the High Court, have a special reason to speak out against Mr. Rehnquist.

As one who labored long and hard to lower the voting age, I view this issue as an excellent opportunity for the new group of younger voters to make their voices heard.

I urge all young people who share my concern--and the concern of my many Senate colleagues who are joining in the battle against Mr. Rehnquist--to wire, call and write to their Senators urging rejection of Mr. Rehnquist's nomination.

Let me cite evidence of Mr. Rehnquist's attitudes on human rights which is disturbingly consistent with his conduct during Mayday:

—In 1964, when this nation was beginning to respond to decades of maltreatment of our black citizentry, Mr. Rehnquist opposed a Phoenix ordinance providing equal access to public accommodations. He didn't believe black people should be allowed in the drug stores of Phoenix in 1964.

—Then, in 1966, he opposed anti-blockbusting and voluntary employer anti-discrimination sections of a model state civil rights law.

—In 1967 he wrote a public letter which said, "we are no more dedicated to an 'integrated' society than to a 'segregated society.'" Mr. Rehnquist has never dissociated himself from that statement despite numerous opportunities to do so during Senate hearings.

These actions, coupled with the Mayday experience, clearly show a persistent unwillingness on Mr. Rehnquist's part to permit law to be used to promote racial equality in America.

It is my hope that the young people of this nation share my concern about the dangers of placing such a man on the High Court. If this is the case, the proper response would be to express that view as quickly and as directly as possible to their United States Senators. This nomination need not be confirmed; but it will require a true interest on the part of the American people if it is to be defeated.

Inventions

The reality censor,
The father of explanation,
At his altar we heap
Our gifts of agreement.
His answers we decipher
From our questions so arranged,
For his theory of difference
We overcome our similarities,
From his invention of black
We have at last become white.
Thank you for the distance
That we may grow tired,
We are reminded of your gravity
Whenever we grow light,
We divide all our thoughts
And put them back together,
We learn your many words
Until our mouths become addicted,
We make your many sounds
That our ears may be useful,
We paint your many pictures
To cover all our canvas,
We point out your endless windows
In spite of all our doors,
We recite your version of truth
Whenever we grow doubtful,
We sleep too well at night
In your homemade world.

CAMP FOLLOWERS

Letters To The Editor

Something For Nothing

To the Editor:

The recent exchanges on grading policy which have graced these pages (and particularly the Glickstein/Barnard/Glickstein round) seem to require at least some attempt at clarification.

First, as to motivation: my own hunch is that, in the long run, the most effective student motivation is that which is internal to the student. Such alleged or supposed motivation as an evaluation/grading system might supply is very probably less effective than internal motivation; and may possibly be misdirected or even pernicious. The argument that a grading system (of whatever style) supplies motivation is weak and rather laced with holes, it seems to me.

Second, as to what grades measure: to say, as Prof. Barnard does, that grades measure "something", but a something the precise nature of which is unknown is surely to say, in any operational sense, that grades don't measure anything at all. (C. S. Peirce would support this contention.) But of course grades don't measure anything at all for a more fundamental reason: instruments measure, grades report. A single alphabetic character standing on a piece of paper doesn't measure or evaluate; but it stands, instead, as a sort of condensed report of some other measuring or evaluative operation which has been conducted. So our quarrel is, then, with the evaluative scheme or schemes which are employed to report on the progress which a student is making, or to measure an amount of learning.

This little exercise in exegesis may be of more assistance than you first think, because once we recognize that our quarrel is with the evaluation system, we can attack the system's real or perceived deficiencies with the moderately well developed body of knowledge and theory relating to the conduct of evaluations. With a bit more space than a letter to the editor allows, we could elaborate upon the criteria for a good evaluation. But in brief, an evaluation is to be conducted by an evaluator to yield information to a decision-maker, upon which that decision- maker can then proceed with whatever the work that needs to be done. Let me suggest that some consideration be given to grading systems in this light, and then let's see what different perspective is cast upon such systems.

Richard W. Story

A Different Story

To the Editor:

"Letters to the Editor" controversies are usually dull to readers who are not involved; but, as I said before, the question of grading is a serious one, and cannot be settled by a glib listing of statistical studies. Statistics do not lie, but the inferences to be drawn from them are not always clear. Nobody would deny that different instructors and sometimes different departments have somewhat different standards. (An argument might be made, however, that in a class of several hundred students, where examinations are "objective" and grades are assigned "on a curve," a considerable degree of objectivity and uniformity will be attained. This says nothing, of course, about the importance of what is measured.) My contention is that in general grades are valid in that they measure some kind of performance. (What, incidentally, are "significant" differences? Who defines "significant"? Is not any definition arbitrary?)

As a matter of fact, if Mr. Glickstein were right in his contention that grades measure nothing and are (in effect) assigned at random, then all students would end up with approximately the same "cum," with some variation due to the major. The fact that some students make Phi Beta Kappa and others flunk out shows that the present system works, in that students do perform consistently.

Perhaps what is measured is not what is most important. And perhaps, as I said before, some other system would supply more incentive for learning than does the present one. But I note that, again, Mr. Glickstein offers no alternative. I present him with this question: "What, exactly, should we be trying to measure? And how, exactly, should the measuring be done?"

Ellsworth Barnard, Ombudsman

Waste Of Time

o the Editor:

I am a sophomore in the College of Arts and Sciences, because the major field of study I have chosen, Human Development, is currently closed. As a freshman here I was not definite about a future. Now that I know what I want, I find out that there is only a fair chance of my being accepted as a Human Development major. Why should I have to transfer or settle on a second or third choice? This is not the only major that is closed; Elementary Education, Nursing, and others are also restricted. This is totally unfair to the student who has paid for two years of study with the confidence that he can enter his major field of study as a junior. Suddenly he finds out, very coldly, that he is absolutely nowhere.

In my case, I have one more semester as a sophomore in which I do not know what courses to take, because I only need one more core requirement, and I have no major. I was told, rather inconsiderately, that I could take the required courses for Human Development, but that it might be a waste of time, because I may not get in. My name is now on a waiting list of about fifty students. Is this wait hopeful or useless? What do I do in the meantime? What are other students in the same situation supposed to do? What about future college students? Is this going to happen to them?

In a state university of this size, I see no reason for not financing the departments that are now so understaffed that the majors are closed. This is deliberately hurting the student!

A waste of time, is this what college is? If so then many students have been deceived, and robbed of their money. A university has an obligation to serve its students which, in this case, has been overlooked.

Regina Ligus

Who's The Boss?

To the Editor:

First I'd like to apologize to the Collegian's secretary, Celia, I didn't mean to upset you, you just happen to be out front catching the flak.

To the management of the Collegian:

Do you work for the printer or does the printer work for you?

I couldn't hold a meeting for my club members and prospective club members on Tuesday night because the printer arbitrarily cut our notice out of the copy layout.

Since RSO groups are allowed one notice a week, by the Collegian's own policy, and most groups rely on these notices as a medium of communication between their members; I think the Collegian has a responsibility to these groups to see that these notices are printed.

Marc James, Pres.
Sport Parachute Club

Editorial Points

It looks like we're about to have another controversy on the letters to the editor page. This one's worthwhile, though-it's about the grading system. As the song says, it's been a long time coming.

***

For the benefit of those maligned, it is not the printer's fault when notices are cut. Neither is it the fault of the Collegian secretary. It is, however, the fault of the person who lays out that page-generally the issue editor. If you're going to cast aspersions, at least cast them where they're due.

***

Big scoop-Poor Richard's is having a special Christmas edition coming out a week from today. Give one to your secret Santa and get into the Christmas spirit.

***

The problem with people is that when they are not supposed to get offended they do, and when they are supposed to be offended they are not.

***

Isn't it funny that people are still getting busted for possession of marijuana? No.

***

In North Village the new University lease says that for every pet you have to put down a $50 pet deposit in case of damages. What's the guy with the fifty goldfish going to do? Then again fifty goldfish can pollute and all...

***

Which brings us to the question of alligators in the sewer system. Last word we have had on that is that three University maintenance men disappeared last week. All that remained was a gnawed thigh bone. What are you people doing with pet alligators anyway.

Approaching Avoidance

The tacit suffering clings obediently within the confines of my fulgurated soul;
its cries resonating but muffled; its amplitude gathering strength spiraling past that potential threshold where once it revolved dizzily without respite from its precarious hinge, attaining that paroxysm of fear bursting, violating the rippleless surface, carrying the vibratory urgency in subterranean tributaries feeding restlessly on the obscene saline ocean. the salt stings the open wounds which lay torn about by friendly marrowed teeth gnashing surreptitiously, hanging on greedily to the fallen pieces which writh spasmodically like spermatozoa attempting to reinstate themselves into that last forgotten whole but instead jettisons in a relentless whirlpool circumventing reason and in a cogent spray excretes itself losing boundary and stability but with that negative inertial which, heedful of change, swallows itself suicidally, and upon devouring every novel element plunges into that amorphous dispair which casually assumes an illusion of shape at those infrequent sublime levels of clarity and decision. But the energy re-emerges from its imperceptible depths and pulls me into its convincing shadows abandoning me naked, spit out from its ruinous caverns, left to rethread the previous instance hopefully-yet knowingly it leaves me only those subtle traces possessing the chameleon-like images which only mirror the background of reality leaving me lugubriously enveloped by its circular nature untrusting my eyes and begging leave of my mind.

Lee Bishoff

It's About Time

To the Editor:

On behalf of the Southwest Assembly, I would like to express our support for the Student Senate's efforts in bringing the Athletic Council under greater student control. It is a sad situation when the students have relatively no say in where their money goes. There is student representation on the running of the Campus Center and the Student Union. There is no reason why the students cannot have a say in the running of the Athletic Council. One must remember that we are not trying to abolish athletics on this campus, but rather to get some say as to where the money goes, and it is about time that we got some of that say. The Assembly unanimously supports the Student Senate. I urge that the rest of the student body also lend its support.

Lester Meyers
Pres. Southwest Assembly

People Surveyed Want "Practical" Churches

NEW YORK (AP)-Most people give money to churches because of "gratitude to God" and a conviction that it's part of worship. They strongly disapprove of withholding support because of disagreement with some programs.

Less than a fourth would condone such tactics. But a majority would prefer more say-so in how the funds are used.

These are among a huge assortment of findings-some of them contrasting with denominational assumptions-turned up in a two-year study of attitudes of laity and clergy throughout the United States and Canada.

"The culture of a rather substantial segment of church membership has changed in a direction not understood by the national leadership," a summary says. For example, it notes:

"Church people are not turned off by the church becoming involved in life outside the walls of the building. They do insist, however, that activity must have a rationale with practical implications..."

The study, carried out by 21 Protestant denominations through the National Council of Churches, involved hour-long depth interviews with a cross-section of 3,500 pastors and laymen.

They display "a high degree of commitment to the church as institution," the summary says, but it noted that the culture has changed immensely, with members more sophisticated, educated and economically well-off.

As a result, they want more voice in determining what the local church and denomination is doing, the summary says, adding: "These persons know how decisions are made and they want a piece of the action."

Among other findings:

A majority thinks the church will become more inportant to people in the next 10 years, rather than less so.

Lay members are more concerned that their denominations engage in ecumenical activities with other denominations than are clergymen. Canadian pastors rate interdenominational activity higher than their U.S. counterparts.

About 88 per cent either favor the work of the National Council, a cooperative federation of major denominations, or are neutral toward it. More pastors-about 20 per cent-feel unfavorably toward it than laity-only 12 per cent.

The primary obligation of local churches, in the view of most people, is to provide worship and "win others to Christ."

Next in line are providing religious instruction, serving as a "social conscience to the community," helping the needy and supporting overseas missions.

Somewhat surprisingly, most of those queried feel that when people drop out of church, it's not because of what the churches are doing, such as involvement in social issues, but for other reasons.

Among the main reasons cited are a feeling that "church is not important in modern life," a lack of time or a shift of interest to nonchurch organizations.

Both laymen and pastors tend to feel that when local churches transmit money to denominational headquarters, the funds should be earmarked for specific things they want the denominational leaders to do.

Most feel that the main functions performed by the denomination are training of ministers, support of missions at home and abroad and development of curriculum programs and resources for local churches.

Social action by denominations was rated fifth in a list of nine denominational purposes.

Asked if people should support a church only so long as they agree personally with its activity, less than 10 per cent said yes. A heavy majority disapproved withholding money because of individual objections to programs.

About 80 per cent said giving money to the church is "an expression of a person's faith." Or, as Jesus put it long ago, "Where a man's treasure is, there his heart is also."

Interest In Yahoo Picking Up

By BUFFY SPENCER

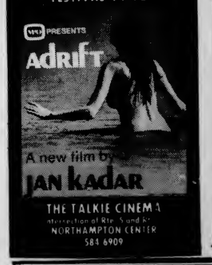
Yahoo is the campus humor magazine universally enjoyed by the students, but not supported. It is distributed free on registration day of both semesters and is usually about forty pages in length.

The best way to describe what the magazine includes is "basically nothing serious". Anything the students think is funny is material for Yahoo. Everything submitted will be included unless it has been done before or is not suitable for the publication. The scope of Yahoo is totally unlimited although sometimes the staff will decide to concentrate on a specific subject, such as womens lib.

Next semester Suzanne Chamberlin, a sophomore, will be editor. Jack Koch, the present editor will stay on. The move is to insure continuity of the staff. This prevents the possibility of someone entirely new to Yahoo having to take over when the present editor leaves or the possibility of there being no staff at all, hence no magazine.

According to Miss Chamberlin, there is an increasing interest in Yahoo this year with more students submitting articles. But Yahoo still suffers the same disease many other UMass publications and organizations suffer, a lack of participation and support. There are only about five permanent staff members who often end up doing most of the writing, drawing and layout. The greatest need is for more submitted material whether it be writing, cartoons, or photos.

The Yahoo office is located on the second floor of the Student Union for anyone interested in spreading a little much needed humor over the campus.



Hero worship

THE HUNGRY-U
103 N. PLEASANT, AMHERST
Italian submarine sandwiches

Room To Move
Drop-In Center
5-0400, 5-0401

EUROPEAN CINEMA FESTIVAL '71 '72

"Z"

Not only a dramatic personal study but an important political document.

Fri. Evening, Dec. 10 - Mahar
in color 6:30 - 8:45 - 11:00

...BY HIGH AUTO INSURANCE COSTS ?
get the lowest legal rates
for all vehicles
and all coverages
with easy monthly payments

NOW'S THE TIME FOR 1972 AUTO INSURANCE!

TKO YOUR INSURANCE PROBLEMS with... TEKOA INSURANCE AGENCY
Avoid downtown Spfld. parking headaches in WEST SPRINGFIELD at 366 MEMORIAL AVE. Opp. Century Shopping Plaza! Free parking for over 100 cars!

WESTFIELD 10 BROAD ST. Next to P.O.
NORTHAMPTON 160 PLEASANT ST. Opp. N'hamp. Jr. College
FAIRVIEW 1847 MEMORIAL DR., On North-South Hwy.

EVERETT J. O'CONNOR INSURANCE AGENCY
HOLYOKE . . . 205 HIGH ST. . . . Next to Holyoke Nat'l. Bank

SENIORS

Due to popular demand,

the 1972 Senior Committee Meeting

Scheduled for Thursday, Dec. 9,

Instead

WILL BE HELD SUNDAY

Election of Officers
Class Gift Referendum?
Senior Day?
Commencement
1973 Senior Committee

$

December 12
8:00 p.m.
Rm. 165
Campus Center

Members of the Vietnam Veterans Against the War are mailing Christmas parcels to their buddies in Vietnam. Gerald Morton and Robert Seward address some of the scores of gift parcels collected with the aid of campus groups. The UMass VVAW chapter is mailing the yule presents directly to combat units in Indochina.

UM-B Students Demonstrate; Marine Recruiters Leave

Three U.S. Marine Corps recruiters left the University of Massachusetts Boston campus Tuesday after about 100 students staged a protest against them.

During the demonstration the students voted to ask the administration to request the Marines to leave.

The protest was organized by 10 members of the school's chapter of Vietnam Veterans Against the War. They said they objected to what they termed the university's implied condonation of the war and the military by playing host to the Marine recruiters.

A University spokesman said the Marines had initiated the visit.

STARTING AT 10 a.m., when the Marines arrived at the fourth floor of Sawyer Hall, where the career planning offices are located, about 25 students engaged them in debate about the morality of the war and their presence on campus. When student ranks swelled during the lunch hour, a rally was held.

The University policy on recruiters permits "private and governmental organizations of interest enough to students" to send recruiters to the campus at the invitation of the director of placement. The policy also states that recruiters may be prohibited by "a referendum vote of the student body in accordance with the provisions of the Student Constitution."

During the rally the students voted unanimously to ask the recruiters to leave and to ask the University Senate at its meeting tomorrow to pass a resolution barring military and industrial recruiters from the campus.

Asked to leave by a student representative, Marine Capt. William Climo said he would leave if asked to do so by the placement office.

GARDNER YENAWINE, director of Career Development and Placement, then asked the students if any of them were interested in discussing their careers with the Marines. When none responded, Yenawine agreed to ask the recruiters to leave.

Climo said the UMass reception would not affect the Marines' future recruitment plans in this area. In talking to students, he said, unlike the Army and Air Force, the Marines do not have large budgets for mass media advertising.

(Reprinted from the Boston Herald Traveler, 12/8/71)

ATTENTION

All RSO Groups & Activities

All groups currently operating under constitutions granted by the Student Government Association (Student Senate) are required to fill out the form below. Those groups which should fill out the form include all RSO's, Activities, recent Executive Orders, and those groups who wish to apply for such status. These forms are to be returned no later than TUESDAY, DECEMBER 21, 1971, to the address below.

RETURN TO
Wm. Spinn
Govt. Affairs Comm.
Student Senate
RSO 801
Campus Center

RSO Registration Form

Name of Group _____ RSO# _____
REPRESENTATIVE _____
Rep's Add. _____ Ph.# _____
(check appropriate item)
Constituted _____ Exec. Order _____
New Group _____ Area Govt. _____ Dorm _____

FAILURE TO FILE THIS FORM WILL RESULT IN LOSS OF RSO STATUS

Jan. Grads. & "Ed Blockers"

Senior Photos

LAST WEEK
to sign up

to be taken
Dec. 13 - 17

SIGN UP NOW
in Index Office

S.U. 401 (2nd Floor)

FERNANDOS HIDEWAY

OPENING Thursday Dec. 9, 1971 9:30 a.m.

NEXT TO The Student Union — Human Post Office — Across from Service Elevator near the Hatch

DISCOUNT SALES

Gloves — Trips to Bermuda — 8 Track Tapes — Air Force Parkas — Records Suede Belts — Suede Coats —Suede Mini & Midi Skirts.

Sponsored by Building Committee — Campus Center Student Union Governing Board

Vanocour Marks The Difference

Veteran broadcast journalist Sander Vanocur will speak on "1972: Does It Make A Difference?" Saturday at 7:00 in the Student Union Ballroom. A Coffee Hour will follow in the Colonial Lounge.

Vanocur was born in Cleveland, Ohio and graduated from Northwestern University. He was in the U.S. Army in Berlin from 1952-1954. After leaving the service, he served on the staff of the Manchester Guardian and simultaneously did weekly commentary for the North American Service of the BBC. He became a stringer for CBS News in London in 1955. When he returned to the United States, he joined the staff of the New York Times as a reporter from 1956 until he joined NBC in September 1957 at which time he was assigned to the Washington staff.

He was appointed midwestern correspondent in April 1958 and covered the desegregation story in Little Rock and elsewhere in the South. He covered the U.S. visits of Anastas Mikoyan and Nikita Khrushchev. In 1968, he covered the election campaigns including both conventions.

In January, 1961, Vanocur was appointed NBC White House Correspondent and held that post until January, 1964 when he became National Political Correspondent for the network. He again covered both conventions that year.

He was "Today" show correspondent in 1965 and visited Viet Nam twice in that year predicting disaster on both occasions. He was a contributing editor for the Huntley-Brinkley Report in 1967-68 and worked on both conventions again and the campaign. From 1969-71, he was anchorman on "First Tuesday" and became anchorman on News Four, WNBC—TV, the New York's flagship station news program in 1971. He remained in this post until his resignation in August of this year.

Presently Vanocur is Senior Correspondent for the National Public Affairs Center for Television in Washington, D.C. He is acting as chief correspondent for the forthcoming 1972 political series on public television.

Bootles Seller Calls It Quits

By STEVE FELD

Rick Ayres, the notorious bootleg vendor here at UMass, has announced that his bootleg days are at an end. The recently signed Anti-Pirating bill was sited as the reason for his cessation.

"Things are starting to get pretty bad," he explained. "I, personally, didn't think the law would be stringently enforced, but my source told me that as of next week they want nothing to do with bootlegs." He told of a store that was recently hassled by the IRS for selling bootlegs, and warned that more of this will be happening.

Ayres stated that he will continue to sell the ones he now has, and then go on to other things. "I'm really fascinated with English import albums, they are of better quality than most American releases." He also expressed plans to delve into other various record-selling enterprises. "I hope to also sell discount records, and regular records as well."

The law, signed into effect last month, is primarily aimed at illegitimate tapecartridge sellers, but this embraces the bootlegs as well. It was not known, however, how well the law would be carried out, until now.

"With a little luck, I might be able to get ahold of a couple now and then, but no one should count on it." And so, like the five-cent cigar, and the ten-cent movie, so goes the bootlegs.

Women's Center Celebrates 1st Year

THE VALLEY WOMEN'S Center, 200 Main Street, Northampton, celebrated its first full year of operation yesterday. The Center opened its doors on December 8, 1970 and provided problem preganacy and birth control counselling, a lending library, personal counselling and a speaker's bureau, as well as a place for women in the area to come together and talk with one another about the problems they face as women.

After a year of operation, the Center has expanded its original list of services to include welfare rights counselling, a free store, a continuing education program, courses for high school and college women, and a day care cooperative.

The Center also acts as coordinator for the Massachusetts Women's Political Caucus in this area, publishes a Woman's Journal a monthly newsletter, and helps new consciousness-raising/support groups to organize themselves.

The Valley Women's Center is funded by donations from women of the area and provides all services free to all women. Contributions of time, energy, or money are always needed and welcomed.

FACES OF EARTH
159 North Pleasant St.
Amherst
Next to the Post Office
Wooden Bowls
Boards
and Chopping Blocks
for Christmas
Open til 10 p.m.
Mon. thru Sat.

U. Of Michigan Students Face Ouster Over Papers

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 20 - Two University of Michigan students apparently bought from the same commercial paper-writing service--to the same English class.

The students both told their teacher, Prof. Joseph E. Mullin, they had bought supposedly original papers for $17.50 each from Write-on Inc., a company based in East Lansing, Mich., that has branch offices at universities in three states.

The names of the students were withheld by school officials pending possible diciplinary action.

The papers dealt with "Walden," by Henry David Thoreau.

Following the revelation, of the affair this week, Write-on's owner and manager, Arthur Harger, accused a former employee of "deliberate sabotage" in the sale of the two identical papers to the two students last month. The former employee denied the charge.

One of the two students involved in the fraud called the Michigan Daily, the university student paper, this week to explain what had happened. She told a reporter that Write-on representatives had assured her that discovery was "impossible."

"I'm enraged," she said. "If I can sue them I will."

Also enraged are university administrators and faculty members, both here and across the country. When Write-on opened its doors for business here this fall, stern warnings against patronizing the service were issued by academic officials.

The discovery of the fraud here came only a day after the Faculty Senate of nearby Eastern Michigan University passed a strongly worded resolution deploring such services.

The paper writing companies sell their product to students here at two rates. The higher price, for "original" papers, is $3.50 per page.

NES To Meet

This Sunday night at 7:30 in the Campus Center auditorium NES will hold its last meeting of the semester. This meeting will be mandatory for all tutors who are going to receive modular credit. Credit forms must be filled out by the tutors so that they may receive their credit.

Several changes in the content of the program being contemplated, as well as a tentative schedule for next semester will be discussed. Students who are not currently involved but are interested in participating next semester can get necessary information Sunday night.

Friday Dec. 10, 1971
OPEN HOUSE
ATr
375 N. Pleasant St.
8:00 - ?
Music By: Phoenix

WALT DISNEY'S FANTASIA
TECHNICOLOR
HELD OVER! Second Week
Campus 1
7:00 & 9:00 Sunday 2 p.m.
CRY UNCLE!
COMEDY "JOE"
Campus 3
7:00 & 9:00 Sun. 2, 7, 9
Campus Cinemas
256-6411
AMHERST-HADLEY LINE
2 p.m. Sun. Matinee
— All Three Shows —
DOLLAR NIGHT!
Every Monday Everyone $1
MARX BROTHERS
"Night Of The Opera" and "Day At The Races"
Campus 2
Starts at 7:15 Sun. 2 p.m.

Visiting Professor To Speak On Pearl Harbor

Professor Chihiro Hosoya of Hitotsubashi University, Tokyo, and the Institute for Advanced Study, Princeton, will give a lecture titled, Pearl Harbor: Thirty Years After at the University of Massachusetts on Thursday, December 9.

The talk, which is sponsored by the History Department, will be given at 8:00 p.m. in Room 227 of Herter Hall on the University of Massachusetts, Amherst campus, and it will be open to the public without charge.

Through the years since World War II Professor Hosoya has published widely on the history of Japanese foreign policy. His works include Japan's Siberian Expedition: 1918-1924, and "The Axis Pact and the Russo-Japanese Alliance, 1939-1941" in the Road to the Pacific War. He has also helped edit The Foreign Office: One Hundred Years and Documents on Japanese Foreign Relations, a serial set of documents which the Japanese government has published for the years 1868-1922.

At present, Professor Hosoya has just finished editing a four volume set of articles on The History of Japanese-American Relations, 1931-1941 in which Japanese and American scholars compare the foreign policy process in Japan to that in America, and he is now writing a book on the same subject at the Institute for Advanced Study.

Professor Hosoya did his undergraduate and graduate work at Tokyo University and received his doctorate in 1945

WMUA

TONIGHT ON 91.1 FM:
7:00 pm EVENING NEWS-a 30 minute summary of the day's events plus sports and weather.
7:30 pm JOB MATCH-this new program provides a special service to any students in the area that need jobs. Anyone who needs a job--or knows of job opportunities--is urged to call during tonight's premier program.
8:00 pm CYCLEBREAKER-this unique program looks at many different people and issues. Tonight's guests are members of the Valley Women's Center and will discuss women's problems and what's being done in this area to alleviate them.
9:00 pm MARC'S BLUES-Marc Dashevsky is your host for two hours of blues from many diverse artists.
11:00 pm LATE NIGHT NEWS-another 30 minute report from WMUA News.
11:30 pm THE RICK MORTON SHOW-music til 3:00 am.

PH 'Sex Education Seeking Counselors

Peer Sex Education (PSE) is a project which employs trained students in a health education program. There is one counselor in each Southwest dorm. Each counselor will develop his/her own sex education program in the dorm using speakers, films, rap sessions, colloquia, written information, etc. in relation to the needs of the dorm.

All counselors must sign up for and satisfactorily complete a three credit course especially for PSE counselors. This course will be offered though the Department of Public Health in the Spring '72 semester. Public Health 391 will meet on Thursdays from 2:30-5:30 p.m. Once on the job, required training sessions will be held once a week and counselors, as well as the total program, will be systematically evaluated.

Any freshman, sophomore or junior who is willing to make the commitment to the PSE program can apply. He must live in the dorm Fall '71 to Spring '72.

A student must indicate his or her interest in becoming a PSE counselor by sending an application to the Health Education Office, University Health Services. Application forms and information sheets can be obtained from any PSE counselor or from your Head of Residence. Applications must be in by December 17, 1971.

BAZAAR
SUNDAY
Dec. 12
1 - 5 p.m.
Orchard Hill

CHANUKAH LATKE PARTY
University of Mass. — Amherst College — Mt. Holyoke College
Tonight, 8:00 p.m. — Converse Hall, Gold Room
Amherst College
25¢ pd. members, 50¢ others

MDC CLASSIFIED

AUTOS FOR SALE

1963 Chevy Impala V8, 283, automatic, 4 good tires, 2 new snows, good condition, $250. Call 549-4848 anytime. tf12-10

'70 VW sunroof, radio & heater, exc. running cond., asking $1295. Call 549-4142. tf12-10

68 Javelin SST, 4 speed, excint mech cond., 4 new poly belted tires, needs paint job. Asking $950. Call Brian 114-545-2412, 545-2413. tf12-12

1965 Buick LeSabre 4dr, ht, al cond., $450. Contact Warren 6-7880. tf12-9

'65 Fiat Sta. Wagon, good cond., 300.00; 55 VW sedan, rebit, 150.00, also Hallax double key board Port. Organ, ex., cond. Call 533-9260. tf12-14

1962 TR-4, new snow tires, battery, body excellent, runs very well. Asking $475. Call Mark at 253-9611. tf12-9

65 Chevy Van., exc. running & body. Full power, new brakes, seals, grease, gaskets, carb adjust.,oil and filter. Best offer. 549-6614. tf12-10

1971 Toyota Corolla, 4 months old, excellent body, interior engine. Must sell. Call: Mike 6-5899. tf12-9

1965 Mustang, excellent condition, must sell, leaving country, $450. Call Mike Reynolds 546-1034. tf12-13

'67 Pontiac GTO conv. 4 speed, new tires, snows, tape player, reverb, radio, spare rims, p.s., p.b., top condition. $1275. 253-5847 after 5. tf12-13

64 Comet, 6 cyl, std shift, good running condition, $175. 546-4452. tf12-14

1962 Pontiac Temp. runs good, 6-like-new tires, inc. snowtires, $125. Call 546-9634. tf12-9

FOR SALE

Minolta Lens Auto-Rokkor 35mm f2.8 w/case $40.00. Call Jan 549-6168. tf12-10

Pioneer 440 amplifier and two Atiec speakers, like new, all for $290. Call 545-2418. Ask for Lit or Barry, 3rd floor. 12-9

Die-hard auto battery. Used 1 mo. $35;-1 suede fringed jacket good condition $40. 546-4547 eves. tf12-15

Women's buckle ski boots, very good condition. $20.00. Call Julie-549-1221. tf12-10

Pair of Reiker Buckle Boots, size 7m., worn once. Cheap. Call 1-369-4091. tf12-14

Diamond eng. ring and dia. band-deal on either or both. Dia. is 85 points w/bag. You won't find a better deal. Call Jim at 5-0855/549-6394. tf12-15

Suede makes ideal gifts, jackets, pants, skirts, midi's. These gift items will be available in new S.U. Store. Jon 115 Chad. 5-2040 12-9

Tenor Sax, Selmer MKIV, good condition. Call 549-4087. tf12-17

Head six buckle plastic competition Ski Boots, brand new, never used, size 10 1/2, men's cost $130, now $45. Call Bob, 437 Gorman 546-6539. tf12-9

Skiing outfit-190cm Hawk Skils with Dovre Bindings and size 11 boots, $30 complete. Call Pete Johnson 546-6548. tf12-9

Yashica J-5 35 mm w/built-in light meter, 55mm 1/18 lens; excellent cond. $100 (includes leather case) 586-3206 after 6 p.m. tf12-9

Volkswagen Micro-Bus, 1964, leaving the country, best offer takes it. Call Chris lor the Rap, Room 3, 253-9968. tf12-9

Kowa Setrz SLR Camera 135, 85, 35 mm lens, original cases, books & boxes. New $370, asking $200, or best offer. Call John 546-7187. tf12-10

'65 Chevy Van, automatic trans, heater, good condition asking $495. Call 584-5839 after 6 p.m. tf12-10

Discount stereo components and tvs, 20-40% off list price. Factory sealed and warranty. Jim Jensen 586-1365. tf12-10

Snow tires 165-14 Semperit Radials, 1 pr, mounted on MGB disc wheels, $50. Call 549-6087. tf12-17

Kastle CPMT| Slalom Skis 205 cm, just back from factory with bindings $100. Call Dave 6-9077, $185 new. tf12-9

Roberts x360 tape deck, 1 yr old, 20-20000 flat SNR on/W, SND auto. rev., 3 motors, 4 heads, remote cont. Cost $430, sell $295. 253-9587. tf12-10

New and used cameras and photo equipment bought and sold. Lang's Photo 253-3148. tfsem

PERSONAL

Free admission lor 1st 100 internationals at Andre Kole, Thurs., 8 p.m., Cage. 12-9

Me - Happy Birthday. Skinney loves you. 12-9

Dear Wierd Sisters: Birds of a leather flock together. Sinnaid. 12-9

Do you still believe? Write your letters to Santa now, 2117 John Adams tf12-10

"Who is the Shadow"? tf12-10

ROOMMATES WANTED

Roommate to share fully frnshd 1 bdrm apt, 1 mi. from campus. Can build 2nd bdrm. Call Paul (eves) 253-2425. tf12-13

Couple of people for large room in 2-bedroom apt. At beautiful Rolling Green. Cook meals together. No slobs please. Call Sookie 253-3798. tf12-10

Roommate needed for second semester in Pulfton Village to share 3 bedroom apt. $55.75 a month Call 549-6335. tf12-10

Roommate wanted F. to share rent with 2 other girls, own room, ranch house in Hadley. Call anytime 586-2815. tf12-17

Female desires room in apartment, very close to Campus. Urgent. Call 253-9431. tf12-13

We don't discriminate 2F or 2M wanted for lg. bedroom w/bath in 3 bedroom Pullton Apt. rent 55/mo. 549-6037. tf12-9

One or two girls who would be interested in sharing an apart. with another girl around January. Prefer open minded. Call 546-8824. tf12-13

SERVICES

Flute-clarinet-sax lessons, Jazz and Classical. Call Anoy Flacks 655-8079. tf12-14

Amherst Audio services. Stereo components, tape decks for home or car. 197 No. Pleasant St. 256-8133. tf5-12

Passports & grad school pictures-24, hr. service Lang's Photo 253-3148. tfsem

LOST

Black, white-tipped tail, dog. Companion to 1 year old. See ad elsewhere in paper. Barbara Craven, 665-2448. tf12-13

FOR RENT

Room and board available in new house on N. Pleasant St., two minute walk from campus. Call Dana 253-9021. tf12-17

1-bedroom house, excellent condition. Skibiski, realtors, Northampton. Call between 6:30-7:00 p.m. 584-3428. tf12-14

Apt to sublet, own rm., kitchen lac., l.v., furnished, center of Amherst, $87/mo. Inc util. Avail immed. Call 253-2548 ask lor c-9, Female. tf12-13

Townehouse Apt. to share. Female or couple. $76/mo-1, $114/mo-2, available immediately. Call 256-6467. tf12-15

1 bedroom apt. Pulfton VII. Available now. Take over lease. Call 256-8852, $150 rent. tf12-9

Avail. now, 2 bedrm townhse apt., w/ cpt., air cond, utilities, included, take over lease. Mt. Toby Apts., Call 253-3281 after 5:00. tf12-9

Apt. lor rent, 1 bedroom apartment. Pulfton Village available Jan. 1. 549-6288. tf12-14

Apt ment-Just off Campus, $55 mo. Call 5-7 p.m. 549-0216 Roger or Frank. tf12-13

I want to share my 12 room house, 15 min. from Amherst and Northampton. I need 200-250 dollars and will consider various things. Call 247-5192. (Fine pad) tf12-10

Studio apt., Greenfield, quiet area, near route 91. Avail. Jan. 1, rent $125 mo., including util. Call 1-774-3088 alt. 6. tf12-10

Limited no. single rooms, comp. lurn., quiet, comfortable, lull kitchen lac. tv, 1 min. walk to univ., occup. Dec. 19. Mark, days, 256-6826. tf12-13

WANTED

Psy research paper, 8 to 10 typed pg., any topic, will pay. Call Sue 253-5875 alter 5 p.m. tf12-14

Tall Dirty ole man wants pertty shapely female love slaves for home cooking, booze and me. Nice benefits. Call eve., and wk end. Keep trying 665-2264. tf12-13

Traveling companion thru Europe for about 6 weeks in June. Female preferred. Call 253-9485 if interested. tf12-10

2 goalies with equip. to play for dorm hockey team on Friday nites at 10. Will provide trans. Call John 6-4622 between 6-8 p.m. tf12-10

HELP WANTED

People needed to attend and transcribe lectures lor SFS. Typing skills essential, shorthand helpful. Applications at Rm. 318 S.U. tf12-9

Need help with 6-yr-old, light hawk. from Dec. 13 & 2 nd semester. Own transport. or live-in, nr. Amh. Cntr., ph. 253-5874. tf12-9

APT. WANTED

Pulfton sublet wanted. 1-bedroom for second semester. 549-6570. tf12-9

HUDSON BAY OPERATION

Hinzo Polish Harpo and Co., on the road to oblivion ille is full of many surprises- may you always be as kind, Love K&R, Hudson B. 12-9

For Rent/Help Wanted

Student to live in second semester. Room and board in exchange lor help with children. Near Campus. Call 253-9431. tf12-15

FREE

Free kittens, nine weeks old, grey tigers 545-8300 Jim. tf12-10

BRUINS HOCKEY

UMass Rowing Assoc. sponsoring raffle lor two sets of two Bruins home games, Dec. 26 & Jan 15. See crew members or Coach Faherty in 211 Boyden tf12-15

RIDE WANTED

Help! Need ride back to Iowa City Ia., soon. Share gas expenses, driving . can leave anytime. Please call Merry 584-4728. If you're going West or know someone who is. Thanx. 12-9

SERVICES WANTED

Any Senior or person 21 and over if you want a meal ticket please contact Al Elmont 6-6407 or drop a note in B40, B434, Gorman tf12-4

APT. FOR RENT

2 bdrm apt in Belchertown, air cond., ww carpets, avail. Jan., $200 a month inc. utilities. Call 323-4480 after 6. tf12-10

MT. SUGARLOAF APTS. Avail. Jan 1, lg. 2 bdrm util. included, air-cond., pool $185. Call Skibiski Realtors 253-7222, eve. 253-2628. tf12-22

ENTERTAINMENT

Rock Band Phoenix now available for your Xmas party. Good, hard driving, dance music. Call Carl at 253-9371 for information. tf12-17

LAW SCHOOL

"Law School--Will I Make It? Can I Make It?" A new book by a recent law graduate for prospective law students. Examines how to prepare for law school; books to read; formulas based on admission studies to predict 1st year average. For copy send $2.95 to Kroos Press, Box 3709A, Milwaukee, Wis. 53217. tf12-9

"Law School--Will I Like It? Can I Make It?" New book by law grad. For prospective law students. Send $2.95, Kroos Press, box 3709A Milwaukee, Wis. 53217. tf1213

XMAS SPECIAL

For that special gift - No. 5 Chanel Perfume 1 oz., Bottle-special stock. Call 546-6743. tf12-9

TRAVEL

Ski the Alps-Jan 14-24 Chamonix, France-air lare, hotels, discount lifts and lessons, last night in Paris. Contact Peggy 253-9667. tf12-23

Nassau-$140, from Boston & N.Y., hotel flight, transfers, 12/26-27, 12/27-1/3 Ski-Australia-$325, 15 days, flight, hotel, meals, transfers. Insbruk, deluxe package. London $167, flights in January. Call-Student Flights 584-1050. tf12-15

Crimson Travel offers low cost spring vacation trips to Bermuda and Nassau. For more info. call Rich Margll, 412 Dwight 545-0791. tf12-10

Ski the Alps, Jan 14-24 Chamonix France, air lare, hotels, discount lifts & lessons, last night in Paris $257. Contact Peggy 253-9667. tf12-23

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES

Play music in a band? Interested in skiing? Combine the two in the greatest business opportunity yet! Needs solid musicians for winter. Dave 549-6679. tf1210

JOBS

International Jobs--Europe, S. America, Asia, Aust., USA. Openings in all fields-Soc. Sci, Bus, Sci, Engineers, Ed, etc. Alaska Construction & Pipe Work. Earnings to $500 weekly. Summer or permanent.
Paid expenses, No nuses, travel. Complete current info-only $3. Money back guar. Write now! International Emp. Box 721-M516, Peabody Mass. 01960. tf1210

STUDENTS BOOK MATCHING

Register your book in S.U. Rm. 318. Every student with your course next semester will need your books save $ money, sell direct. tf-4em. .

TYPING

Typing-theses, dissertations, etc. Fast, accurate, experienced. Have Math and Chem symbols. Call 253-3601 tf12-21

USCC USCC USCC

USCC USCC
COFFEE HOUSE
DEC. 7, 8:30 Dukes Room S.U.

—Notices—

AHORA
La Organizacion AHORA se reune el miercoles 15 de dice. En Mills House a last 7:30 p.m.

BRIDGE CLUB
There will be a bridge play tonight at 7 p.m. in CC 165.

EQUESTRIAN CLUB
There will be an Equestrian Club meeting tonight at 7 p.m. in CC 168 170. Three movies will be shown.

FENCING CLUB
Meeting tonight in Rm. 8 WoPE, from 7-9 p.m. Important business meeting, all members must attend.

GAMMA SIGMA SIGMA
Pledge meeting 7:30 in Memorial Hall. Chirstmas notions, 6 7:30 p.m.

HANUKKAH PARTY
With Amherst and Mt. Holyoke College. Tonight at 8 p.m. in Con course Hall Gold Room, Amherst campus.

CONCERT COMMITTEE
There will be a meeting in CC 175 at 9 p.m. tonight. All invited. For more details: Joe Tripiano, Dwight House.

LECTURE
Michael McClintock Senior Sci at Space Science and Engineering Center University of Wisconsin will discuss Project Sanguine, the Navy's controversial proposed world wide communications system. Tonight at 8 p.m. in west lecture hall of Academic Bldg. at Hampshire College.

RECITAL SERIES
"An Evening of Mozart", featuring Karen Hubbard, pianist; Mary DeFelice, french hornist; and James Crowther, baritone. Sunday evening, Dec. 12 at 8 p.m. on the 19th floor of George Washington Tower. All are invited.

SAILING CLUB
There is a meeting for all old and new members tonight at 8 p.m. in CC 803. The constitution will be sub mitted.

SCROLLS
Short meeting tonight in CC 811 815 at 6 p.m.

SENIORS
Tonight's Senior committee has been postponed to Sunday at 8 p.m. in CC 165.

SKI PATROL
There will be a meeting for all members tonight in CC 170. Please attend.

SLEEPY CATALYST
Must close at 10:30 p.m. Sorry, but please visit with it sometime from 8 a.m. 10:30 p.m. every day Worcester Commons.

STUDENT HOMOPHILE LEAGUE
Is there a place for the homosexual in the Church? Rap with some clergymen tonight at 7 p.m. in CC 917 or call 545 0154 for further info. or SHL office in 413B student Union on balcony above lobby.

STUDENT JUDICIARIES
Obtain applications for east, west and Greek area judiciaries. Rms. 111 or 113 CC. Due this Friday at noon.

U.N.-HUMAN RIGHTS DAY MEETING
Monday in Colonial Lounge, SU at 7:30 p.m. A talk about the Baha'i movement and its actions to support human rights.

VVAW
Meeting tonight at 7:30 p.m. in CC 163 to discuss Christmas action.

LOST
Tan corduroy mittens in Mahar Aud. Tuesday after Psy 270. If found, contact Mindy 338 Cance, 546-5080.

1 year old female cat, very small, with only 1/2 a tail. Needs medication. Please call 549-6786 or bring her to 337 Puffton.

3 year old male orange cat. Looks like Morris. Missing from 337 Puff ton. Call 549-6786.

A scarf between Bartlett and Coolidge. Purple and yellow stripes on navy blue background. Sentimentally valuable. Call Jim 6-8008.

3 notebooks in University store. Mkt 216, 210, 223. Return to 313 Kennedy. Tel. 546-7635.

Do you have 2 male white over coats? Or perhaps one belonging to me? Was removed from chartered campus bus few weeks ago. Check and contact Tom at 253-9542.

Brand new leather glove (black); right hand. If you pick it up between the Hatch and the Hill, please return it. Call 546-6856.

Book called Sundiata in Newman Center Sunday. Please return; I just bought it last week. Call 6-6764 or return to 314 Field.

FOUND
A meal ticket belonging to Edward Klempa of 217 Thatcher has been kicking around the Collegian office for nigh unto a week now. Pick it up.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SYDNEY OMARR ☆

I have an astronomer friend who always consults me as to the best time to begin writing articles attacking astrology.

*****

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Relations with those who perform special services are apt to be strained. Best now to be self reliant. Depending on others could cause delays, add to expenses. Be aware of details, apparent minor points.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Relations with children are something less than harmonious. Creative efforts could hit a snag. Give logic equal time with impulse. Be analytical. Avoid rushing. Take time to be positive of information.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Seek harmony on domestic front. You will need cooperation from family. Don't sell short when it comes to home, real estate. You may not be seeing too clearly. Bide your time. Rough emotional weather will pass.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Hold off on journeys. Invitations could be withdrawn at last moment. Maintain balance, humor. Many around you act in eccentric manner. Pisces person plays prominent role. Take off rose colored glasses.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Be aware of practical values. Don't expect anything to be handed you on proverbial silver platter. Extra personal effort now pays dividends. Not wise to delegate duties. Face situations as they exist.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Communications from a distance could change present course. Be flexible. Areas of legal action are activated. Ride with tide. Let others force action. Mate, partner confides financial dilemma.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): What appears solid may actually lack substance. Proceed with this knowledge. Means be ready for surprises, changes, new concepts. Adhere to principles. Develop original ideas. Don't follow crowd.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your ESP works overtime. You perceive, foresee and know what is to occur. Means trust hunch. Follow through on inner feelings. Applies especially in dealings with friends, those who make promises.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Forces tend now to be scattered. Key is to concentrate on what you want to accomplish. Those in positions of authority tend to change, act in manner to shake confidence. This is temporary.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Steer clear of one who ignores safety rules. Let caution be your keynote. One born under Aquarius plays key role. Accent is on long range results. Chance for success is enhanced through careful preparation.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You may be spending too much for too little. Know this and take corrective action. Some changes are necessary. Don't fight progress. Doing favor for a friend now will pay eventual dividends.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Pace quickens. You find out how to merchandise, to capitalize on products, talents. You are rewarded for efforts. Some ideals may be cast aside. But you replace them. Values undergo transformation.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are great when it comes to aiding others with their problems. Your average falls when it comes to helping yourself. Many areas that were confused will settle into place. You have been going at a hectic pace. Start timing your moves. Write and communicate. You are a natural humanitarian, wonderful to be with during time of crisis.

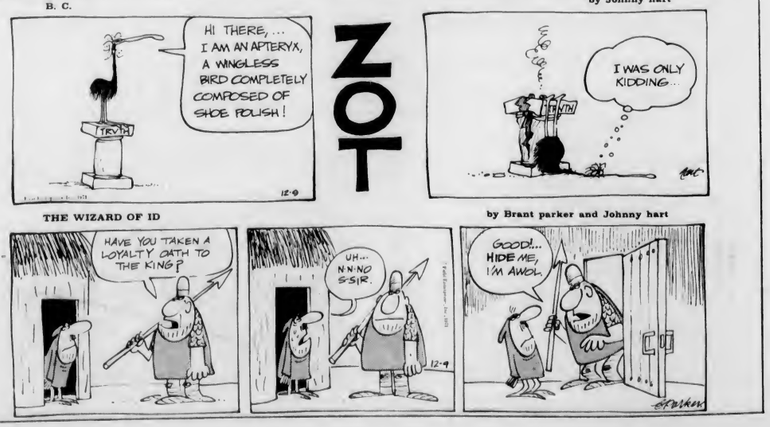
Copyright 1971, Gen. Fea. Corp.

Crossword Puzzle

ACROSS
1 Bachelor of Science in Pharmacy (abbr.)
4 Girl's nickname
8 Barracuda
12 Female sheep
13 Country of Asia
14 Unadulterated
15 Unit of speech
17 Lamb's pen name
18 More unusual
19 Pays attention
21 Tableland
22 Flock
23 Swiss river
26 Quarrel
28 Fiber plant
30 Puzzles
33 Slumbers
34 Get up
35 Female student
36 Male sheep
37 Classify
39 Part of church
43 Adhesive substance
45 Breaks suddenly
46 Spheroid
48 Aerial maneuver
50 High cards
51 Italian princely family
52 Devoured
53 Courageous person
54 Musical instrument
55 French plural article

DOWN
1 Broom
2 European
3 Awaits settlement
4 -Row
5 Sea eagle
6 Scent bag
7 Scoff
8 Hurried
9 Throb
10 Silkworm
11 Afternoon party
16 Plagues
20 Roman official
22 Possesses
24 High mountain
25 Things, in law
27 Newspapers, collectively
29 Style of automobile (pl.)
30 Equality
31 Anglo-Saxon money
32 Easier
33 Drunkard
35 Fold
38 Aquatic mammal
40 Pertaining to the Pope
41 Malice
42 Slaves
44 In addition
45 Winter vehicle
46 Cry of derision
47 High card
49 Suffix: follower of

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle



R	O	W	S		L	E	T	S		M	A	T
A	W	O	L		I	R	O	N		A	B	E
S	L	O	O	P		S	T	O	P	P	E	D
		D	E	A	F			B	A	L	L	S
G	E	M		P	E	L	F		P	E
A	L	A	S		M	A	I	N	E		C	U
M	A	N	U	F	A	C	T	U	R	E	R	S
E	N		F	I	L	E	T		S	M	E	E
		O	F		E	D	E	N		P	E	R
U	P	P	E	R		D	E	F	T
P	E	E	R	A	G	E		W	A	I	S	T
A	A	R	T	E	R	N		S	E	E	R
S	T	A		S	T	A	B		T	R	A	Y

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

B. C. by Johnny hart

THE WIZARD OF ID by Brant parker and Johnny hart

Pats' Rookie Adams NFL Defense Pick

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — The Miami Dolphins trailed 34-13, but they still had hopes as they moved to a first down at the New England nine yard line at the start of the fourth period.

On the next play, Mercury Morris skirted his right end to the four. The Patriots' defense dug in, but a Miami touchdown appeared imminent. After all, the Dolphins boast possibly the best 1-2 punch in pro football in Larry Csonka and Jim Kiick.

On the second down, Csonka got the call and hit the left side. The flag went down. The Patriots were offside and penalized. Second down again, but now only two yards to go.

Kiick hit the right side to the one. Then Kiick is thrown back on a dive at his right guard. Now it's Csonka's turn. The burly running back hits the left side and is stopped inches from the goal.

The threat is ended. The Patriots take possession and go on to record one of the National Football League's biggest upsets of the season, jolting Miami's hopes of winning the East Division title in the American Football Conference.

Out of the pileup of the brilliant goal-line stand came rookie tackle Julius Adams. He wasn't credited with a tackle in those moments, but he jammed the Miami attack.

The entire New England defense could take bows, but Adams, a 258-pound second round draft choice from Texas Southern, stood out. For his play, he was named the NFL's Defensive Player of the Week Wednesday by The Associated Press.

"Adams means to us on defense what Jim Plunkett means to us on offense," New England Coach John Mazur said.

Adams, who became a starter when veteran Houston Antwine was injured early in the season, and his teammates held Csonka and Kiick to a mere 76 yards on the ground.

Marinaro Triple Champ

NEW YORK (AP) — Cornell's hard-running workhorse Ed Marinaro, barely beaten out for the Heisman Trophy, managed to grab his share of honors before closing out his collegiate football career.

The final 1971 statistics of the National Collegiate Sports Services show he was a triple champion on offense, leading in three important categories--rushing, scoring and all-purpose running.

With the popularity of the Wishbone-T and other multiple-option running attacks, the nation never produced a more prolific collection of rushers than in 1971, and Marinaro was the king.

The thick-necked Cornell halfback averaged 209 yards a game on the ground, better than 81 of the 119 major teams could manage. He averaged 5.3 yards a carry, running the ball 39.6 times a game.

His 4,715 yards rushing set a national record, beating the old mark of Oklahoma's Steve Owens by 848 yards.

The 6-foot-3, 210-pound Ivy League All-American scored 24 touchdowns and kicked four extra points for a total of 148 points and a 16.4 average. In all-purpose running including kick returns Marinaro had 1,932 yards for the season and a 214.7 average.

The final offensive figures reflect the running power of the nation's top-ranked teams, most of whom will carry on in the post-season bowls.

Nebraska's Johnny Rodgers placed ninth in scoring and eighth in all-purpose running. Oklahoma's Greg Pruitt placed second in rushing behind Marinaro and Houston's Robert Newhouse, and with teammate Jack Mildren, was among the Top Ten in scoring.

Lydell Mitchell of Penn State was second in scoring with a 15.8 average.

Notices

RUGBY CLUB-The University of Massachusetts Rugby Club will hold an organizational meeting in room 259 Goessman at 8 P.M. tonight. The main item on the agenda will be the election of club officials for the coming year. All members are urged to attend. Non-members who are interested in participating in a contact sport which combines aspects of soccer, lacrosse, and American football are also invited.

RECREATIONAL ACTIVITY CARDS-All graduate students who possess fall semester Recreational Activity cards are asked to either renew their cards for the spring semester or return their equipment, prior to December 22, 1971. Spring semester recreational cards may be obtained by paying the appropriate fee at the Athletic Ticket Office-225 Boyden-and bringing the payment receipt to the Intramural Office-215 Boyden. Failure to renew cards or turn in equipment by December 22 will result in removal of all materials from storage baskets. No responsibility for personal items will be assumed.

NORTHEASTERN-Tickets for Saturday night's game with the Huskies in Boston are now on sale for students at $2 and can be purchased at the Boyden Ticket Office.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN AND THE PALESTRA-Tickets for both contests may be purchased at the ticket office in Boyden later this week. Prices will be announced in the Collegian later in the week.

Women Hoopsters Open Season

The women's varsity and junior varsity basketball teams open their season on Thursday at home against UConn. The varsity game is at 4:30 with the junior varsity to follow. The action takes place in the WoPE gym.

UMass varsity has three starters back from last year. However, Leslie Barselaar has injured her knee and will only see limited action. Pat Bash will again this year start at center. Pat is a junior who was a leading rebounder last year. The other starter back from last year is Sue Chapman who will open at one of the guard spots. Sue proved to be one of our most consistent shooters from the floor last year and a dependable guard. Vicki Pagel, a sophomore who saw limited action last year will start in a forward position. Vicki leaped into the limelight last year during the Eastern Regionals when she scored 21 points during the first half against UNH. Carole Mottau, a sophomore who can play forward or guard equally well, will open as forward. She has a nice shot from the outside and quick hands on defense. Chris Eugin, a sophomore transfer, also returning from last year's squad are: Barbara Herm, a junior guard and Leslie Barselaar, a junior forward who was our top rebounder last year.

Beth Fay, a junior who has played on the junior varsity for the last two years, will be depended upon for relief in the forward position. The newcomers to UMass basketball are: Marilyn Ritz, a transfer who will see action as a forward, Pat Glispen, a freshman with a nice jump shot, Chris Molonea, a freshman guard, and Jeannie Abrahamson, a freshman forward.

The team has good overall strength with a great deal of depth. Its weakness is going to be the lack of height in the forward spots, especially when playing against teams such as Keene State which averages 6'1" up front. They will depend upon their quickness and ability to run to overcome this.

The junior varsity team is also hit by a lack of height but shows overall depth. Sheila Higgins, a freshman, will start at center, Lorraine Harvey, a freshman at forward, Kathie Dowd, a freshman at forward, Joanne McGowan and Sherrie Kowarsky, sophomores, at guard. Others on the team are: sophomore Kathe Germann; freshmen, Shawn Stillman, Sue McNamara, Bev Horne, Bel Hammond, and Karen Fruzzetti.

WHA At It Again

BOSTON (AP) — Bob Woolf, lawyer for many sports figures, said he plans to talk to representatives of the World Hockey Association here Dec. 18.

The WHA hopes to begin operating next October with club franchises in various locations, including one planned for New England.

One of Woolf's clients is Derek Sanderson, center for the Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League, and Woolf said Tuesday that Sanderson did not receive an offer to jump to the WHA.

"A man from the WHA, Herb Martin of Miami, phoned me the other day to talk about Derek and mentioned that figure $250,000," Woolf said.

"I mentioned it to Derek, and I guess he mentioned it to some newspapermen, and now the whole thing has been blown way out of proportion.

Earn While In School
$300-$500 per mo.
Campus representative for resume forwarding service. Flexible hours. For full information write National Resume Services, P.O. Box 1445, Peoria, Ill. 61601.

COSMETIC SALE
35% Off
Pre-Christmas Closeout Special
something for everyone - Mom, Dad, Aunts, Uncles, kids, the home.
two days only.
Saturday and Monday, December 11th, and 13th.
9 a.m. to 5 p.m.
Albion Shell Service Center
373 Northampton Rd. (next to Zayre's Shopping Center)
Amherst, Mass.

TONITE
The Great
Charlie Bradshaw
9:30 - 12:00
The English Pub

SHOWCASE CINEMAS 1-2-3-4-5
RT. 5
RIVERDALE RD.
WEST SPFLD.
733-5131
RICHARD HARRIS GP
MAN IN THE WILDERNESS
Maid In Sweden
POSITIVELY NO ONE UNDER 18 YEARS OF AGE TO BE ADMITTED X
"PURE DYNAMITE."
THE FRENCH CONNECTION R
A CHRISTMAS CAROL
was always meant to be sung!
ALBERT FINNEY
as
"SCROOGE" G
Jesus!
THE GREATEST STORY EVER TOLD G

ROBIN MORGAN
will be here
Tuesday, December 14
8 p.m. - Student Union Ballroom
SISTERHOOD IS POWERFUL!

Hoopsters Scare 4200 Before Dumping HC

By EARLE BARROLL

Evil Kneivel will not be the first one to jump across a canyon...The Redmen did it last night before a packed house at Curry Hicks Cage (if you can envision it) in leaping over their first BIG challenge of this young season, 93-82, in a spine-tingling double overtime-session against the Holy Cross Crusaders.

If you can capture the atmosphere that ranged from heart-throbbing to nail-biting to whatever adjectives can so describe this typesetting and put them into 50 minutes of hair-raising drama then you have what this game was all about.

And it took practically all of the 50 minutes to put the Jack Leaman blueprint to work. "We thought if we could get them running, they'd foul themselves out," Leaman said after the game. This was his blueprint and Crusaders Gene Doyle (6'8) and Stan Grayson (6'5) fell victims to it and exited in the first overtime period.

To this point the Redmen were the smaller team, but went at the Cross with speed, defense and their bench and it resulted in a basket-for-basket spectacular that rocked the Cage...But exit the Cross' big men and now the Redmen had the height, the backboards and Crusader coach Jack Donahue had a dilemma; where to go.

He went to two smaller men, but it showed the weakness of his bench...the Crusaders were the five man team they were scouted to be. "If Holy Cross had two more quality ballplayers on their team, Jack Donahue would have one of the finest teams I've ever seen in New England," said a thankful Leaman.

What does a win like this do for a team that's had its back to the wall since the departure of the big guy who used to wear number 32?

"This is definitely a major step," expounded Leaman. "It has to make the kids believe they're a good basketball team. One thing they lack is great confidence and a win like this has got to make them feel good."

With Holy Cross being the Big game that sets lesser ones far to the side, one ballplayer had to stand out from all the rest...he's a Redman who is always at his best when the big ones present themselves...John Betancourt.

"He's the shining light in the big games," complimented Leaman, "he plays superb against the B.C.'s and the Holy Cross' and the other big teams. He doesn't get as hungry for the Vermont's and the St. Anselm's."

JOHN BETANCOURT gets one of his 31 points the hard way. The senior guard complimented his teammates after the game in saying, "Everyone on the club can shoot, tonight they just gave me the shots. This is the best shooting team I've ever been on." (MDC Photo by Gib Fullerton.)

Betancourt had 31 points in 44 minutes and put the damper on Cross' Buddy Venne late in the game and during the extra-sessions that kept the streak-shooting guard from mounting another attack reminiscent of the one he put on late in the first half that brought the Crusaders back into the game.

John has not lost to the Cross in three years and neither has another senior Rick vogeley, and he likewise played a major role in the win. Called on to fill the gap left by foul plagued Al Skinner, he scored 11 points and led the Redmen in rebounding with 13. His only comment after the game: "I haven't lost to Holy Cross in three years, plus I had a lot to prove to a couple of people."

And what turned out to be perhaps the pleasant moment of the evening was the relief work of Tom Austin and Charlie Peters at center after Chris Coffin got himself into early foul trouble.

Explained Leaman: "Peters is my physical center and Austin is my finesse center and it's a challenge to me to keep putting them into and pulling them out of the ballgame."

Each had seven rebounds, Austin had the scoring edge with seven in his best game ever as a Redmen and in the words of his coach, "That's the type of ballgame he's capable of playing."

The game in itself looked for a time like it was going to be a runaway as the Redmen jumped to 33-18 lead before the Cross rushed back into the contest as the half closed with a 12-6 burst.

As the second half unwound the Cross was again on the attack and the Redmen were holding their own with the much bigger Crusaders. Holy Cross managed to tie the score at 59 with just over eight minutes left and it stayed seat-squirming tight down to the last shot, by Vogeley that rimmed, sending the game into the first overtime.

Box Score

UMass	G	F	T	Holy Cross	G	F	T
Skinner	5	0	10	Grayson	9	9	27
McL'lin	3	3	9	Schmurr	3	5	11
Coffin	0	0	0	Doyle	6	6	18
Bel'rc'l	14	3	31	Grentz	2	0	4
Pagliara	5	1	11	Venne	9	1	19
Peters	1	0	2	Haley	0	0	0
Vogeley	3	5	11	Mallet	1	1	3
Pitino	3	2	8	McCarthy	0	0	0
Trow	1	2	4
Austin	2	3	7
Olsen	0	0	0
	37	19	93		30	22	82

Skaters Wallop Williams, 8-1

By ALAN WRIGHT

When it rains, it pours, and for Williams College last night, the precipitation came in the form of hard rubber as the Redmen garnered their third season win with an 8-1 shellacking session.

UMass capitalized on the Ephs mistakes and bombarded them to the tune of 42 shots during the course of the evening. Williams goalie, sophomore Bill Jacobs had to make several saves of the sensational variety to keep the game from becoming a runaway.

Mike Waldron put the Redmen on the scoreboard at 2:54 of the first period by deflecting a rocket shot off the stick of Bob Shilalie fired from near the blue line. Then, a stretch of no less than 10 minutes ensued until center Don Riley fired back to back goals from opportune positions at 12:23 and 15:39 respectively to make it 3-0. Bob Bartholomew assisted him on the first marker while Bob Shea slid him the puck on the second. Goal number four came almost as suddenly at 17:09 on a patented Bobby Huller type liner from in front of the blue line on the left side. Slim, sleek Jim Coleman accounted for this one with assists from Keenan and Nickerson.

Williams came out skating hard in the second period, determined to answer the UMass early onslaught. P.J. Flaherty made a couple of picture saves and with 10:00 minutes gone, the Ephs started knocking. Bartholomew nearly broke up a 3 on 1 break at this point, but Flaherty put a seal on the cage anyway. The only goal to be scored in this middle period was a UMass one fired off the stick of Bob Shea all alone at 11:33 in front of the net after being aided by passes from Riley and Scrafield. If you could say that Williams put up a substantial fight at all, you'd have to say it came during period two.

However, the Redmen reasserted their dominance in the final period, beginning with a Dennis Grabowski score at 3:52 assisted by Waldron. Before long, tempers began to fly as fast as ice scrapings when Charlie Donovan played thief, ripping off a Williams skater of his puck possession at mid-ice. He started racing towards thenet like it was a magnet, decked the goalie, and made him perform an about face to retrieve the black disc and put the game out of reach, 7-1.

Shortly thereafter, Bob Bartholomew engaged in the season's first serious individual fisticuffs at 6:36. It took a few minutes to subdue before the ref decided that he should be accompanied to the penalty box by Dan Reidy for high sticking and Al Nickerson along with the one Williams culprit involved in the skirmish.

Even though UMass was undermanned, the Ivy Leaguers couldn't muster an attack until 8:07 when Doug Morrell spoiled what would have been P.J.'s first whitewash of the season. The lone score did nothing but rally the Redmen to close out the night's scoring on Dennis Grabowski's second goal at 10:30 assisted by Don Lowe and Jim Coleman.

Preceding the UMass varsity victory was another Redmen win well worth mentioning. The J.V.'s skated away with a 9-5 decision after playing a period and a half evenly with the little Ephs squad before unloading an amazing string of six straight goals. Kevin Conners notched his second hat-trick effort, supported by Mahoney and Douglas's duet offerings. Coach Russ Kidd exclaimed, "It took plain old courage and conditioning for them to overcome the Williams J.V.'s tonight."

NOTABLE QUOTABLES:

P.J. FLAHERTY when asked about missing his near shutout--"I'm dejected."

DON RILEY--"I'm glad we won."

Frosh Handle Cross Cubs, 85-65

By FRED ROSENTHAL

"It's hard for us to play against little kids." "Fan" Gaudette, the UMass freshman basketball coach, was commenting on why his team had so much trouble against a team so much smaller than themselves. Well, the UMass frosh may have found the going rough, but they were still able to come up with an impressive 85-65 victory over a small Holy Cross freshman squad at the Cage last night.

Playing sloppily in the first half the Little Redmen somehow managed to build a 44-31 lead at halftime. Both UMass and Holy Cross took turns throwing the ball away early in the contest. UMass turned the ball over three times in a row at the beginning of the game while the Holy Cross frosh established a lead of 8-0.

Hearing no cheers from the UMass crowd, the Little Crusaders decided to try copying some of the UMass plays. They went one better and lost the ball four times in a row as the UMass frosh came back to within one, 8-7.

Playing various pressure defenses the UMass frosh moved ahead 13-11 as center John Murphy hit some key shots. With everyone on the team doing some alert passing the Little Redmen got their running game going and pu'.ed ahead to a thirteen point lead over the rest of the half.

With Burke and Endicott getting the team moving in the second half, the frosh opened up. A steal and full court drive by Endicott, and then hoops by Burke, Gillams, Murphy and Flanagan gave the Little Redmen a 26 point lead, 70-44, with ten minutes left in the game.

Shortly thereafter, Burke made what had to be the play of the game. Holy Cross guard Mike Blaney stole the ball at mid court. Burke caught up with him from behind and forced him to pass off to another guard, Dave Holland, cutting for the basket. Holland's layup never got near the hoop; Burke turned around quickly and blocked the shot cleanly. For his efforts, Burke received a standing ovation from the crowd.

Leading scorers for UMass were: Murphy (25), Gillams (18), Endicott (15), Burke (12) and Flanagan (9).

Grapplers Tie Central Conn.

Details in Friday's MDC

No Bosox Included In Season Milestones

BOSTON (AP) -- Graig Nettles of the Cleveland Indians had the longest hitting streak in the American League last season--19 games--and also was one of five players to get five hits in one game.

Nettles' hitting streak went from July 9 to Aug. 1, according to figures released Wednesday by the American League.

Other players who had five hits in a game were Willie Horton and Jim Northrup of the Detroit Tigers and Rich Reichardt and Carlos May of the Chicago White Sox.

Vida Blue of the Oakland A's led the league with eight shutouts and also struck out the most players in a game, 17 in 11 innings against the California Angels. Sam McDowell of the Cleveland Indians and Mickey Lolich and Joe Coleman, both of the Tigers, were tied for most strikeouts in a nine-inning game, 14.

Dave McNally of the Baltimore Orioles had the most consecutive victories, 13, while Denny McLain of the Washington Senators, the last major leaguer to win 30 games, had the consecutive losses-nine.

Baltimore had the longest winning streak, 11 games, and Washington, Milwaukee and Kansas City tied for the longest losing streak at eight.

Chicago scored the most runs in one game, 18 against Minnesota, but also made the most errors, six against the Boston Red Sox.

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather
Weather: Take a look out the window. You guessed!

VOLUME XCIX, ISSUE 64 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS FRIDAY, DECEMBER 10, 1971

Top: Mark McIntire, professor of philosophy, attacks President Savignano for his administrative policies. (MDC photo by Gary Alpaugh)
Bottom: Edward Welch, Director of Admissions, defends the position of President Savignano's administration in the handling of recent events at Worcester state. (MDC photo by Gary Alpaugh)

Callahan Condemns Senate Narc Action

By DON BISHOP

The problem of police narcotics informers working on this campus, was brought into dramatic focus yesterday by the action of the Student Senate Wednesday night. The resolution, condemning the present use of state police as narcotic informers and calling for the careful compiling and subsequent release of information on the identifties of known informers, brought both positive and negative reaction from various quarters.

Northwestern District Attorney John M. Callahan was swift in his condemnation of the Senate's action. When asked what his initial reaction to the measure was, Callahan replied that it was unfortunate that so many Senators had supported the resolution, and he termed the action as being "silly".

When asked whether the resolution would have any immediate affect on the present use of state police as narcotics informers on this campus Callahan replied with a simple "No."

He did not directly reply to the question of what would be the consequence of any release of information by the Senate. His reply in kind was: "I really cannot say. I refuse to believe that any responsible person or group would do this." (release the information)

D.A. Callahan went on to say that the use of state police as narcotics informants has been approved by high authority, and that this practice is recognized as being the best and most proper in stopping illegal drug traffic. He added that it would be extremely unfortunte if any of the officers were impeded in the performance his duties, as they undoubtedly would be if their pictures and description were released to UMass students.

Callahan stated that he wants to discuss this whole issue with the Senate in an attempt to get them to reconsider their decision. By discussing this question of police narcotics informants with the Senate and other groups, he believes that the "benefits and protections" of this type of operation will be made clear.

Callahan in fact called Senate President Lee Sandwen yesterday and a meeting to discuss the problem was arranged for this weekend.

Sandwen, speaking for himself and what he hopes are a majority of Senators condemned the use of disguised informers. He disagrees with Mr. Callahan's contention that this practice is effective. Sandwen feels rather that it is not stopping the flow of drugs on campus but only limiting it to some extent; with a resulting harmful increase in "paranoia" within the student body. He feels the whole idea of having "narcs" present at an academic institution is very detrimental to the general atmosphere. Neither does he feel it contributes to improve relations between students and administrators, when there is a feeling that the administration knows about and is condoning the presence of disguised narcotics informers.

The coming days and weeks will be important if there is to be any resolution of this problem. Clearly this issue is one which should be of importance to all students.

On The Inside:

- Westfield State Story See page 2
- Soviet Jewry Rally See page 3
- Pakistan Struggles Continue See page 4
- Poor Richard's See page 8

District Attorney Callahan. (Photo by Alan Chapman.)

Westfield State Continues To Simmer

By ROBERT MEDEIROS

Westfield-"I'm the guy who said let's get this son of a bitch," stated Professor Mark McIntire explaining his role in the repeated attempts to bring about the removal of President Leonard J. Savignano from office at Westfield State College.

The MDC was on the Westfield State campus this past week and talked to administrators, faculty members and students. Last summer McIntire along with English Professors Philip Shepardson and Robert Lehan had their contracts terminated for the coming 1972-73 school year. Last week, the State College Board of Trustees voted to renew only Lehan's contract. Soon after, the campus was harassed by a series of bomb threats and false fire alarms. An explosion went off in the gymnasium last Thursday. The number of students who left campus practically closed down the school.

The latest developments in Westfield have been closed meetings between the trustees, the Faculty union and the Student Senate. The trustees have ordered Savignano to make efforts to include faculty and students in the governance of the college. The problem is that faculty and students have refused to meet with Savignano.

"I think that unless the president is removed by the trustees, someone innocent is going to be hurt," said McIntire. "Savignano is a man without honor; any other man would remove himself if he was the center of this dissension on campus."

McIntire gave up an 81-day old food strike last Friday. His only food intake - at that time was fruit juices and vitamins. "I gave up the strike because I realized no one was going to listen to non-violent tactics," he said.

"An investigating committee reporting to the trustees found Savignano guilty of engineering an atmosphere of fear and intimidation. Yet the trustees approved Savignano's recommendations to fire three instructors," said McIntire. "The trustees are more concerned about their own image than about lives and property.

"The administration is asking us to make all the concessions while we're getting the shaft," McIntire said.

"Savignano is hated as a man. He has hurt and ruined people's lives," said McIntire. "People are going to go after him and are going to use terrorist tactics against him."

An MDC reporter talked with President Savignano for a few minutes Wednesday. Savignano appeared happy and quite confident in his position. He arranged an interview with his Dean of Admissions, Edward Welch, after saying he was too busy himself.

Welch, at the outset of the interview, said he was a strong supporter of Savignano. Asked about a referendum in which 1,600 of 1,700 students voted for a change of administration, Welch said the administration refuses to accept the validity of the results.

Welch said that the issue at hand is whether any college or university has the right to force a faculty member to take further graduate study. He said McIntire and Shepardson were fired because they refused to continue formal study. "The standing of the faculty would go downhill in 10 years if the faculty had the right to decide who was going to do more graduate study," Welch said.

McIntire said that after the explosion in the gym the Student Senate declared a state of emergency which the faculty endorsed. He said Savignano has not taken the bomb threats seriously, and that he didn't inform the trustees of the campus problems for "his own political reasons".

McIntire said Savignano has formed vigilante groups to patrol the dormitories. "A dummy bomb was found in a girls dorm which in effect said next time it will be a real one. Vigilante groups cannot handle the situation," he said.

Welch called the WSC conditions "needless fear". The explosion in the gymnasium, according to him, could have been the work of an "immature mind" acting on the belief that bomb threats were being made, and the newspapers were making a big thing out of it. Welch refused to identify the cause as anything but a firecracker.

Welch said, "The president should be judged on what's he done and not his popularity." He backed up this point by bringing out two college catalogues which he said vividly expresses the work that Savignano has done for Westfield State. One catalogue, which was issued the year before Savignano became president, contained 32 pages. The catalogue issued last year contained 220 pages.

Savignano has often been accused of being too much concerned with buildings. To this Welch answered, "The president's relation to buildings is concerned with increased programming. Programs have always come before buildings."

Interviews this week with more than a dozen students and others indicated a majority of students feel that the biggest complaint against the administration is the need to do away with parientals. Welch said, "Last year an ad hoc committee was formed which presented a motion for an end to parientals. The Student Senate Executive Committee voted down the motion.

"The student should not have maximum control over his academic life use he does not have the experience to make the decisions for his future as much as an experienced person," said Welch.

One of the complaints heard on campus was that Welch has not done a good enough job in recruiting blacks. To this Welch replied, "We have an impossible situation concerning blacks. We don't have the money. What we have done, is to turn the recruiting of black students over to the Black World, a black organization." He said Westfield is special in higher education in that blacks are involved in bringing blacks to campus/

The MDC was able to interview two students Nancy and Mary, who consider themselves political activists and who consider themselves close to the people who have been making the threats and pulling alarms.

"The bomb threats and the false fire alarms have come from an informal little group which is not too well organized," said Mary. This group comes from within the college, she said.

In a situation similar to that of Westfield State many people look for the outside agitators. According to Mary, some non-students activists have to a degree involved in the past events at Westfield.

"Outside agitators have given information about building bombs and planning political strategy but have not come on campus," said Mary.

Nancy - the girls asked to be identified no further - said that years of non-violent protest have not been successful. This has resulted in violent protest. "The governor and trustees will not step in until they are forced to by violent protest. The campus is now too quiet," she said.

Mary added, "The trustees have decided to back Savignano and will not reverse their decision. If things get bad enough, maybe the governor will take notice."

AAUP Discusses Faculty Participation

By LARRY LADD

The crisis at Westfield State could have been avoided if the college had allowed for campus participation in decision-making, according to Prof. James Ludke at last night's meeting of the UMass chapter of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP). The meeting was called to discuss the role of faculty in university governance. The meeting also dealt with the question of student participation.

According to chapter president Dana Snyder, faculty participation in governance is "one of the most important issues facing the faculty this year."

Last night's session began with a panel discussion consisting of Provost Robert Gluckstern, Prof. John Roberts, and Prof. Joseph Burroughs, Faculty Delegate to the Board of Trustees. Roberts began by discussing an AAUP Journal article which defined the following areas of campus life as "the primary responsibility of faculty"; curriculum and subject matters, tenure and other personnel matters, and "aspects of student life that relate to the educational process." Prof. Burroughs then reviewed the recent history of a 1966 AAUP policy statement that insured direct faculty responsibility in such areas. He reported that the Board of Trustees has refused to act on that policy statement.

Provost Gluckstern responded by stating that the Board has adopted the "Morris Report" on faculty participation. That document, he contended, does address itself to the issues raised in the 1966 statement. He pointed out that many of the phrases in the AAUP policy were "sufficiently vague" to prevent the trustees from responding in a concrete way. The vagueness of the AAUP statement prevented the university from actually adopting it as policy, he said.

Faculty unionization and collective bargaining was also discussed at some length. It was reported that the National Council of the AAUP now regards collective bargaining as "another way" of achieving academic objectives.

In response to a question by Nick Apostala of the Student Senate, AAUP chapter president Snyder asserted that "statements on student participation are just now evolving." "We don't have the machanism worked out," he said.

down with skiing

The Ultimate in Warmth and Comfort...

Down parkas by Tempco, Alpine Designs and Ranier...The Largest Selection in the Area!

from $45

Fashion Co-ordinates For Tops and Bottoms...

From Spinnerin, Slalom, Saska, Parrott, Sportcaster, Prafile and Edelweiss.

from $30

from $28

timberline

SKI & SUNSHINE SHOPS

16 ACRES: WEDGEMERE RD. AT PARKER ST. BARKLEY RTE. 9 AT BARKLEY VILLAGE SHOPS OPEN WITH DATES: 10-9, SAT. 10-6

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus, zip code 01002. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 549-1311 (editor).

Second class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods, three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 3, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $6.00 per semester, $10.00 per year.

Happy Birthday Emory.

From Bob and Jan

Robin Morgan

December 14

SUB 8p.m.

TRY IT-----YOU'LL LIKE IT

At Hillel, from Friday, Dec. 10, at 4:00 p.m. thru Saturday, December 11th in the Hillel Room, 420 Student Union.

A group of students from Yeshiva University and Stern's College are disturbed by the lack of communication between Orthodox youth and other Jewish youth. This weekend they will share an Orthodox Sabbath, December 10th and 11th, interspersed with rap sessions and workshops. IF YOU DON'T LIKE IT, tell them so and why, hear them out, and take two aspirins at the Latke party on Saturday night. Call Hillel NOW for reservations 5-.5.6!!

Town Common Site Of Soviet Jewry Vigil

By STEVE FINE

In the midst of a light rain last night on the Amherst Common, the Western Massachusetts Student Struggle for Soviet Jewery (SSSJ) held a protest against the oppression of Soviet Jews, which included a program of speakers, prayers and songs concerning Jews in Russia.

The protest was highlighted by the lighting of a n enlarged Chankah Menorah to symbolize the plight of imprisoned Soviet Jews. An all night vigil will be held, concluded tomorrow by an all dday fast, to coincide an International Hunger Strike, held in cities such as, London, Berlin, New York, Amsterdam and Jewueselem.

Dov Gordon, the Coordinator of SSSJ said the main purpose of the protest was to make people aware in Amherst, of the plight of Soviet Jewery in Russia. "We're here to dramatize," he said, "The discrimination of the Jewish people in the Soviet Union. We're speaking out in behalf of them, at the Soviet government, to end the prohibition of Jewish education, to end the mass closures of synagogues, to end the destruction of the Viddish culture and oppresssion of Jews in every day life."

Gordon said approximately 40 people will be participating in the all night vigil and hunger strike, which will include workshops on Jewish life in the Soviet Union and the oppression which is occuring.

The speakers at the rally included Rabbi Jordan Offsayer of Springfield, Father Joseph Quigly from the Newman Center, Reverend Richard Koenig of the Amherst Luthern Church, and Melvin Steinberg, Professor of Physics at Smith College.

Reverend Koenig spoke about religious freedom and its oppression. "We say it shall not happen here but who says it will not. In a climate where we have religious freedom and abandon its traditions, it is a sure route to the conditions which exist in Russia. I speak because we must let our voices ring for the conscience of all religions in the Soviet Union."

Melvin Steinberg of Smith, then solemnly spoke of his visit to Russia in 1967, during the time of the Middle East crisis. "In Moscow I saw cartoons in the Russian newspaper Pravda, expressing anti-semitism.

I was shown around town by two professors I had been told to look up by some friends in Copenhagen. When my tour was agout to end, one of the gentlemen offered to show me "parts of Moscow I hadn't seen. "When the other man heard this he dragged this professor away from me."

Steinberg then related his experience of what happen in a downtown Russian synogogue. "I finally knew I was sitting on top of an iceberg when I was inside. As my wife and I walked in we were immediately "escorted" by two Russian agents. We saw them harrass Jews by making hand motions to the top of the head, and pinching faces as they went into the prayer room."

Jack Pikansky of Greenfield, who is an engineering graduate student at Umass said he attended the rally because he was extremely concerned about the miss treatment of Jews in the Soviet Union. I have relatives in Russia," he said, "But even if I didn't, I would still feel the same way, about the injustice which is occuring."

This is not the first SSSJ protest by any means. Dov Gordon said that 10 of its members journeyed down to New York in November, to demonstrate in front of the Soviet Mission to the United Nations. "We had contacted the police in advance so we were greeted with more than 20 police when we arrived. The Russians ignored us at first, but when we started to shout slogans in their native language, they started to become attentive."

Gordon felt that the weather last night had kept many people away from the vigil. He added though, "At least it's not snowing and it's nothing worse than Siberia."

SSSJ Protests Plight of Soviet Jewry

By DON POUTRY

The Faculty Senate passed a motion last night to explore the possibilities of collective bargaining "as a means of enhancing the faculty's role in university governance."

The motion, which was introduced by Professors Connally, Brogan, Gerber, DePillis, and Tager, asks the Senate to invite speakers from the American Federation of Teachers, the National Education Association and the American Association of University Professors to attend a special meeting of the Faculty Senate devoted to the issue of collective bargaining.

According to the preamble of the motion "the faculty is now governed by policies it has little authority in shaping and the Board of Trustees, which has the authority, does not always follow the spirit of its own policies."

It also said that the new administrative units, such as the Systems Office, "threatens to move important decisions beyond the reach of a campus-based Faculty Senate."

A motion made by Professor DePillis and passed by the Senate advocated a study by the Rules Committee of the Senate in consultation with the Trustees, President Wood and Acting Chancellor Bromery to find a way to ensure "the orderly transfer of administrative responsibility upon the death or resignation of a major administvguvuve officer" and to consider the possibility of having an "automatic right of succession" for the position of acting chancellor.

Also included in this motion was a sentence requiring that the term "major administrative officer" be defined.

The last clause of DePillis' motion said that ways to protect the custom of appointing search committees should be looked into.

A memorandum from Provost Gluckstern, which places an approximate ceiling of from ten to fifteen percent on the number of faculty members that can hold tenure, was the target of a motion introduced by Professors Novak, Hill and Bemben.

The motion, which was passed, said that the Faculty Senate should ask the administration to make no changes in the tenure policy until after the Tenure and Grievance Committee of the Senate has a chance to consider the matter and make a recommendation.

The final motion which was passed was presented by the Rules Committee. It was designed to set up procedures which could be implemented to call a meeting of the General Faculty.

According to the motion, a General Faculty meeting can be called by the President of Chancellor of the University, by a motion passed in the Faculty Senate or by ten percent of the faculty in the form of a petition.

The motion also said that Professor Wellman, Secretary of the Faculty Senate and Secretary of the General Faculty, should present the motion to the next meeting of the General Faculty for their approval.

Hot Flash!

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices sagged yesterday as the market continued to encounter profit-taking pressure. Trading was moderate.

Analysts said profit-taking had emerged as the dominant force in the market in the absence of major news developments on the domestic economic and international monetary fronts.

At the close, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was 852.15, off 2.70.

Lined Gloves from $1.98

BEAR HOUSE

Apthetker On NAACP

By BOB MCWILLIAMS

Dr. Apthetker of the Institute of Marxist Studies, gave his fourth in a series of nine lectures on the life and works of W.E.B. DuBois last night at Thompson Hall.

He began his lecture with a plea for letters to be sent to Governor Regan asking that bail be granted to Angela Davis. On the basis of first hand information from his daughter, Dr. Apthetker claimed that poor diet and cramped quarters are having drastic effects on Miss Davis' health.

In his main lecture, Dr. Apthetker challenged the popular view that Booker T. Washington and the Tuskegee Institute represented the progressive leadership of the Black movement in the transititon from the 19th to the 20th century.

He gave ample documentation to the fact that DuBois and the Niagra Movement which later merged into the NAACP, "founded the central stream of the modern Black movement".

The audience of about 40 expressed their agreement with Dr. Apthetker frequently throughout the lecture which revealed many lesser known facts about the beginning of the NAACP and the Black movement in America.

coiffures continental

Where Adam, John, Silvio, and Paul will go to your head. It has anything to do with hair. They can do it perfectly. . .For both men and women.

26 Main St., Amherst

Mon.-Fri. 9 to 7:30

Sat 9 to 5

253-9293 & 253-9271

THE CHOPPING BLOCK

dvp

presents

SANDER VANOCUR

of "First Tuesday" and "Today" former NBC anchorman

speaking on

"1972: Does It Make A Difference?"

Saturday Evening, Dec. 11 at 7:00 in the SUB

NBC

ROOM TO MOVE

presents:

The James Montgomery Blues Band

Clean Living

Bernie Kaplan

Oegenouelf

Sat. Night, Dec. 11 9:30 — 2:00 a.m.

Student Union Ballroom, U.Mass.

$1.00

Five College Buses — Additional Service

Route 1 Mount Holyoke - Hampshire - Amherst - UMass. and return

	Saturday & Sunday	Sunday only
Lv. Mount Holyoke	11:00 A.M.	2:00 P.M.	5:00 P.M.
Lv. Hampshire	11:10	2:10	5:10
Lv. Amherst	11:20	2:20	5:20
Lv. UMass	11:30	2:30	5:30
Lv. Amherst	11:40	2:40	5:50
Lv. Hampshire	11:45	2:45	5:45
Arr. Mount Holyoke	12:00	3:00	6:00

Route 2 Smith - Amherst - UMass and return

	Saturday & Sunday	Sunday only
Lv. Smith	11:00 A.M.	2:00 P.M.	5:00 P.M.
Lv. UMass Southwest	11:20	2:20	5:20
Lv. UMass Waiting Station	11:25	2:25	5:25
Lv. Amherst	11:35	2:35	5:35
Arr. Smith	11:55	2:55	5:55

Service starts December 11, 1971 at 11:00 a.m.
Service ends December 18, 1971 at 6:00 p.m.
Resumes February 5, 1972 at 11:00 a.m.

In The Nation And The World

Indian Troops Close On Dacca

(AP) — India reported Thursday Pakistani troops were fleeing across the rivers of East Pakistan before a swift Indian advance that had speared to within 25 miles of Dacca, East Pakistan's capital. It also claimed the Pakistani air force had been wiped out there.

Radio Pakistan asserted that "Indian invasion forces have been blunted on all fronts in East Pakistan and they have been dealt heavy punishment."

An Indian spokesman reported that on the western front, in the northern state of Kashmir, it had seized five Pakistani outposts northeast of Srinagar, the state capital and had successes in the Chhamb sector to the south. Pakistan denied this.

An Indian army communique issued in eastern headquarters at Calcutta said troops pressing westward had reached the Meghna River, 25 miles southeast of Dacca. An Indian spokesman claimed the capture of Ashunganja, a river crossing point 35 miles northeast of Dacca.

Associated Press correspondent Peter o'Loughlin reported from Dacca that the feeling there was that Indian forces "attacking from several directions, are tightening the noose."

Lt. Gen. Jagjit Singh Aurora, Indian commander of the eastern front, told reporters thousands of Pakistani troops were under air attack as they tried to reach Dacca or the port of Chittagong in sampans, barges and river boats.

He added that about 7,000 Pakistani troops were trying to get across the Ganges to Dacca. He reported a tank attack from the bank of the Meghna River and air blows set fire to a river steamer carrying about 500 Pakistani troops 25 miles southeast of Dacca.

Aurora, at a briefing in Calcutta, claimed the last Pakistani plan was shot down during the day and Indian planes "had a field day".

Heaviest fighting in East Pakistan, India reported was in the northwest near the town of Dinajpur and an Indian spokesman said, "the enemy suffered heavy casualties." Declining to give Indian casualities, he added that "our troops are regrouping and bitter fighting is going on there."

On the other hand, Radio Pakistan reported severe fighting on the eastern front near the border of India's Tripura State and added: "An estimated 540 Indian soldiers were killed as they attacked in wave after wave."

While correspondents are not permitted to visit the fighting fronts to verify rival claims, they noted in Calcutta that confirmed Pakistani casualties have been relatively light and their withdrawal might be more orderly than Indian briefings indicate.

Both sides claimed widespread aerial attacks and O'Laughlin reported from Dacca that high-flying Indian planes dropped a stick of four bombs on an orphanage there.

He said rescue workers clawing into the wreckage of the Moslem Mission Home had recovered 17 bodies and many boys were missing. There were 300 boys and 100 girls at the home, ranging in age from 7 to 16. The girls escaped because they were in a building at the rear of the home.

In New Delhi, the government announced it had ordered bombing pauses Friday and Saturday at Dacca and Karachi to permit the evacuation of foreign nationals caught up in the conflict.

The government, also confident of victory in East Pakistan, began making plans to fly news correspondents to Dacca.

Red China kept up its verbal attacks on India. Radio Peking reported Chi Peng-fei, acting foreign minister, charged that India was trying to annex East Pakistan.

Rehnquist Filibuster Vote Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans said Thursday they have a good chance of mustering the two-thirds majority necessary to shut off debate and force a vote on the Supreme Court nomination of William H. Rehnquist.

The vote on a petition to put the Senate's anti-filibuster rule into effect is to take place at noon Friday. The outcome may depend on how many senators are absent and who they are.

If the required two-thirds majority is obtained, it could lead to a vote later in the day on President Nixon's nomination of Rehnquist, an assistant attorney-general, to succeed retired Juctice John M. Harlan.

Sens. J. W. Fulbright, (D-Ark.); Jacob K. Javits, (R.-N.Y.); and Alan Cranston, (D-Calif.), announced Thursday their opposition to the nomination, increasing to about a dozen the number of senators who have spoken out against Rehnquist's confirmation.

Javits and Cranston centered their opposition on Rehnquist's civil rights and civil liberties record, as have most other foes of the nomination.

But Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, based his opposition on what he termed Rehnquist's support of "executive supremacy in virtually all areas of public policy."

He said little attention nad been paid to "Mr. Rehnquist's advocacy of sweeping presidential authority in relation to the Congress, particularly in the field of foreign relations."

Sen. John Sherman Cooper(R-Ky.), however, spoke out in support of Rehnquist's confirmation. He said that while he has been troubled by some positions Rehnquist has taken, he thinks the conclusions reached by opponents have been very strained.

"I do not see a case for voting against him," Cooper said. But he said he would not vote Friday to invoke the debate closing cloture rule. He said he might vote to put the rule into effect at a later date.

Some senators who oppose Rehnquist's confirmation, like Edward W. Brooke (R-Mass.), have said they will vote for cloture. On the other hand, some Southern senators who support the nomination have traditionally been reluctant to vote for cloture, especially on an initial move to cut off debate.

House Approves Tax Bill, Senate Passage Likely

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation cutting taxes $15.8 billionover three years cleared the House Thursday, headed for swift approval by the Senate and expected signing by President Nixon.

The bill contains the essentials of Nixon's proposals to stimulate the economy. The big obstacle to his approval, a plan to finance presidential campaigns by a dollar checkoff from taxes, had been lowered earlier. Democrats reluctantly agreed to postpone it beyond next year's election.

A bipartisan House vote, 320 to 74, approved the measure containing the compromise.

The bill contains substantially more tax relief for individuals than Nixon's original proposal, which relied heavily on stimulatns to business investment and exports.

Much of the relief goes to some 25 million low-income individuals and families for whom the minimum standard deduction would be increased. An estimated 2.8 million persons at or near the poverty level would be relieved entirely of tax.

But there would be some tax relief for all. For example, a family offour with $15,000 income could save about $44 next year, while such a family with $4,000 income could save $28 and a single person with $3,000 income, $55.

The principal business stimulant sought by Nixon and included in the bill is revival of the investment credit. It allows businesses, in general, to charge off directly against taxes 7 percent of investment in productive facilities.

In Brief...

WASHINGTON (AP)-President Nixon vetoed Thursday a bill which would have extended the federal war on poverty and created a massive child care program.

In a message to Congress, Nixon said the child development programs included in the legislation, though well intended, would be plagued by "fiscal irresponsibility, administrative unworkability, and family weakening implications..."

WASHINTON (AP)-The government was told Thursday that death and disability from heart attacks, brain-strokes, and other blood vessel maladies have reached epidemic proportions in the United States.

A major new national program of research and education-costing $295 million for the first two years alone-is needed to try to alleviate the scourge, an advisory scientific task force said.

CAIRO (AP)-Egypt announced Thursday that Aly Sabry, the former vice president know as Moscow's best friend in Cairo, has been given life in prison at hard labor for plotting to overthrow President Anwar Sadat.

A revolutionary court convicted Sabry, former Interior Minister Sharawi Gomma and former Presidential Affairs Minister Sami Sharaf and sentenced all three to death by hanging. But Sadat commuted their sentences.

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP)-Cambodian troops dug near the suburban villa of Premier Lon Nol Thursday while U.S. and South Vietnamese aircraft tried to drive back the enemy in an arc west of Phnom Penh.

Refugees on foot, in oxcarts and motor vehicles fled toward the capital from beleaguered villages on the outskirts.

Soviet-made rockets hit a strategic hill position 14 miles northwest of the heart of Phnom Penh and ground troops assaulted a government position 12 miles southwest of the city.

Gene Returns

BOSTON (AP) — Eugene McCarthy has formally entered the Massachusetts presidential sweepstakes.

Massachusetts Secretary of State John F.X. Davoren said Wednesday his public records division has recieved a signed statement from the former U.S. senator from Minnesota consenting to the filing of a "Massachusetts Committee to Elect Eugene McCarthy."

A Diamond Makes a Wonderful Christmas Present
and
BAKER-WINN
JEWELERS
has many, many wonderful diamonds at wonderfully moderate prices!
31 So. Pleasant St. "everyone's favorite jeweler".....

Viet nam SANDER VANOCUR Little Rock
former NBC Anchorman
"1972: Does It Make A Difference?"
SATURDAY EVENING — DEC. 11
7:00 — SUB
Coffee Hour Following in the Colonial Lounge

Jan. Grads. & "Ed Blockers"
Senior Photos
LAST WEEK
to sign up
to be taken
Dec. 13 - 17
SIGN UP NOW
in Index Office
S.U. 401 (2nd Floor)

Paint-It Fix-It Clean-It Up, JOE

The owner of a classy car can and often does cast disparaging glances at a cold and isolated hitchhiker. It matters not whether the need for a ride is obvious-it only matters to the driver whether the hitchhiker looks acceptable and trustworthy. The choice is not the hitchhiker's.

Likewise for the kids and staff at the Westfield Dentention Center. There is but a limited choice as to how things can go for those individuals who experience the detention center. Programs have been developed that have expanded the alternatives to institutionalization. However, the building remains and it needs your help.

A paint-it, fix-it, and clean-it up party has been scheduled at the Westfield Detention Center for all J.O.E. and other interested volunteers for this Saturday (tomorrow). A bus or other means of transportation is being scheduled to leave UMass at 9:30 am in front of the Whitmore Administration building for the trip to the detention center. It will return to the campus by 4:30 PM.

Generally the wear and tear on the center has been caused by the SLIGHTLY overcrowded condition that has existed there over the past weeks. Living at Westfield is not like living in the Hilton; it is not like living in the Cashin Dorms. However, unlike the new dorms the detention center is old.

Still the staff is concerned and wants to make the place liveable. The residents of Westfield have been mobilized but they need the help of interested volunteers. Windows need washing, floors polishing, and walls need painting, all to remove the stark appearance the detention center presently conveys.

What is hoped more importantly to come out of this clean-it up get together is a community spirit that will involve staff, volunteers and kids. The building is the kids' and people interested in kids should participate in the well-being of the physical plant. Therefore anyone interested in working with kids should consider the maintainence of the building as part of their commitment. All questions concerning this project should be directed to Cyndi Dunbar at 253-9353 before Saturday.

PARKA JACKETS
Nylon Jackets
LEATHER JACKETS
WEAR-HOUSE

CEQ Class Recycled

By CEQ

The Orchard Hill Environmental Problems Class taught in Webster House this semester will be recycled into Greenough House ofor this coming semester.

The class is a fiarly comprehensive examination of the environmental crisis; its causes and possible solutions. Some detail is gone into on more important/timely topics. Originally organized by Josh Gordon through the C.E.Q. it got together a bunch of people knowledgeable on specific aspects of the environmental crisis and set them up teaching units of the class.

The class was well received and so once again C.E.Q.'s band of mini-experts will turn out another class. It will meet in Greenough Dorm one night a week for one credit. The class is just starting and has lotsa room for people.

Anyone who wants to take it should contact the new course organizers: either Paul Madden or Linda Knapp at 62642 or 52642 (Greenough).

BELFAST—This pub in Belfast was ripped apart by a bomb Tuesday night, killing two persons and injuring 36. Three men with guns blazing burst into the Red Lion Inn, planted an estimatd 50 pounds of gelignite, and told the customers they haften seconds to clear out. The charge went off in less than five seconds, demolishing the building, caving in the walls of an adjacent police station, and burying several customers.

HATCH Spaghetti SPECIAL
Heaping Platter of Hot Spaghetti covered with Meat Sauce plus Hot Garlic Bread
ONLY 59¢
Served in the Student Union Hatch
every Saturday from 5 p.m. - 10 p.m.

NEW AFRICA HOUSE PRESENTS:
"From The Conqueror's Point of View"
DR. FRED TURNER:
"White Folks Promises - Indians Regrets"
Part I: Mon., Dec. 13 at 7:30 p.m.
Part II: Wed., Dec. 15 at 7:30 p.m.
PAUL KAPLAN:
"Images of Africans in European Art"
Part I: Tues., Dec. 14 at 7:30 p.m.
Part II: Thurs., Dec. 15 at 7:30 p.m.
Public invited, Admission Free,
New Africa House Coffee Shop

SENIORS
Due to popular demand,
the 1972 Senior Committee Meeting
Scheduled for Thursday, Dec. 9,
Instead
WILL BE HELD SUNDAY
Election of Officers
Class Gift Referendum?
Senior Day?
Commencement
1973 Senior Committee
$
December 12
8:00 p.m.
Rm. 165
Campus Center

Future University Report

More Public Service Projects Ahead

(Ed. note-This is the fourth of a series of exerpts from the Future University Report. This and those following will deal with those portions of the report considered important to the future condition of Massachusetts' universities.)

We have spoken in general terms about the University's obligation to public service.

While the University must know more about State needs before it can develop an over-all coherence for its public service activities, there are at least six areas where the need is clear enough that the University can act now to place itself in a better position to respond to requests for service: the special obligation of the University to its neighbors; government service; service to the poor; health; education; and manpower and economic conversion.

Obligation of the University

We have spoken in general terms about the University's obligation to public service. When it comes to the immediate communities, the immediate neighborhoods in which the University operates, it has a special obligation. At the very least, that obligation is to see that it has no deleterious effects on the surrounding areas. More properly, the obligation is an affirmative one, to be a good neighbor, to help as far as it can within the limits of its talents and resources in improving the quality of life in its environs.

There is likely to be some confusion in understanding as between this immediate impact responsibility and the responsibility of the University to extend the scope and reach of its service to the borders of the Commonwealth. For example, those who live in Columbia Point, and some who are involved in planning the Columbia Point campus, sometimes tend understandably to forget that the Boston campus has an obligation to serve throughout the Boston area. Yet, it is also true that it has an obligation to serve more intensively and more sensitively in the Columbia Point-Dorchester area. The tension is always there; the balance must always be preserved.

Amherst

The Committee met with members of the Committee for Environmental Concerns from the Amherst community, and staff wrote to a number of community leaders in the area, an effort which produced a number of thoughtful and extensive responses.

Our major conclusion from that effort is that the projected 25,000 student ceiling which the Trustees have discussed for the size of the Amherst campus is, as we said in a previous chapter, if anything, too large.

The correspondence revealed a variety of ways in which the University could be a better neighbor. To begin with, there is a general feeling that the University does not consult adequately with town officials on matters like highway planning.

Then there are a number of areas where the University has expertise which it could make available to the Town of Amherst and other surrounding communities.

One is the matter of water resources for the future, where the Water Resources Center could be enormously helpful.

Another is the issue of how to dispose of the sludge which is left after sewage disposal-hauling is expensive and incineration pollutes the air. The University's engineering faculty could perhaps assist here.

A third is the question of solid waste disposal, which is perhaps a more vexing pollution issue for the future than air and water pollution. The present sanitary landfill approach for the University's waste is at best an intermediate solution and we received allegations that the University's management of its present landfill is not satisfactory.

A fourth, very important issue, on which the University is seeking to act, is the movement of people-public transportation vs. the automobile. If the University can succeed in getting improved bus service, it can then start charging for its parking lots and discouraging people from driving.

A final issue which will be important for the future is the whole matter of planning and everything that goes with it: zoning, housing including low-income housing, preservation of open spaces, and so on.

Our impression from our survey-and many of our respondents were University faculty as well as local leaders-is that the University should be doing much more than it is doing to alleviate the negative effects of its impact on the area around it.

Government Service

As the public university, the University of Massachusetts should be a major knowledge and training resource for state and local government in the Commonwealth. The Committe recommends two foci for this effort: in-service training programs for government personnel; and research, technical aid and problem-solving capabilities through the University's Institute for Governmental Services.

In-service training programs for state and municipal goverment employees are weak and scarce at the moment. There are various programs scattered around, but neither mid-career training nor pre-entry training exists on a broad enough basis.

To develop the particular areas of priority for in-service programs, the University will first have to work with interested units of state and local government to develop an inventory of their needs. Then plans will have to be made for the particular mix of conferences, workshops, short courses, and institutes suitable to each in-service program, which programs should be degree programs and which not, and how much of the program to offer on site in the agency involved and how much on campus.

Because many government agencies already have personnel who do one kind of teaching or another, it may turn out that the University's role will be to help design programs rather than to run them. The Institute for Governmental Services, which should be the main focus of the University's activities in developing in-service training programs, is already taking steps to work on these matters with the state Bureau of Personnel under the recently enacted federal Intergovernmental Personnel Act.

The Institute should also be the main focus of the University's other efforts to serve government. The Institute's services in research, technical aid, and problem-solving might include, for example, the following:

--Research as a basis for public policy, such as alternative growth models for the Massachusetts economy, indicating directions for industrial development and tax incentive policy.

--Technical aid to local government in solving specific problems, such as the preparation of a master plan for town growth.

--Consultation in program development and implementation for state agencies, working on matters such as development of standards and procedures for wetlands management.

The University already has substantial expertise in a great variety of areas relating to public policy, and indeed,

COSMETIC SALE
35% Off
Pre-Christmas Closeout Special
something for everyone - Mom, Dad, Aunts, Uncles, kids, the home.
two days only.
Saturday and Monday, December 11th. and 13th.
9 a.m. to 5 p.m.
Albion Shell Service Center
373 Northampton Rd. (next to Zayre's Shopping Center)
Amherst, Mass.

We sell good stuff.

THE HUNGRY-U
103 N. PLEASANT, AMHERST
Italian submarine sandwiches

Junior Year in New York
Washington Square College of Arts and Science of New York University sponsors a Junior Year in New York.
The College, located in the heart of the city, is an integral part of the exciting metropolitan community of New York City—the business, cultural, artistic, and financial center of the nation. The city's extraordinary resources greatly enrich both the academic program and the experience of living at New York University with the most cosmopolitan student body in the world.
This program is open to students recommended by the deans of the colleges to which they will return for their degrees.
There are strong and varied offerings in many areas, such as fine arts, urban studies, languages including non-European, mathematics in the College and at the Courant Institute, psychology, and others.
A qualified student may register for courses in all other schools of the University, including the specializations in Commerce and Education.
The University sponsors programs in Spain and France.
Write for brochure to Director, Junior Year in New York
New York University
New York, N.Y. 10003

...BY HIGH AUTO INSURANCE COSTS ?
get the lowest legal rates for all vehicles and all coverages with easy monthly payments
NOW'S THE TIME FOR 1972 AUTO INSURANCE!
TKO YOUR INSURANCE PROBLEMS with...
TEKOA INSURANCE AGENCY
Avoid downtown Spfld. parking headaches in WEST SPRINGFIELD at 366 MEMORIAL AVE. Opp. Century Shopping Plaza! Free parking for over 100 cars!
WESTFIELD 10 BROAD ST. Next to P.O.
NORTHAMPTON 160 PLEASANT ST. Opp. N'hamp. Jr. College
FAIRVIEW 1847 MEMORIAL DR. On North-South Hwy.
EVERETT J. O'CONNOR INSURANCE AGENCY
HOLYOKE . . 205 HIGH ST. . . . Next to Holyoke Nat'l. Bank

MIZAUR'S MERCANTILE

Next to Amherst Towers
Open Daily

UMass Must Help State Education

already works with state and local government on many problems. The Institute for Governmental Services should not change the present pattern. It should not have specialists of its own to provide the requested services, but rather should serve a general management function in bringing together governmental needs and University capabilities. The Institute should also take an aggressive role in seeing that students become involved in these activities to the maximum extent possible, as interns, in field work courses, or in their research.

Service to the Poor

Service to governmental agencies should ordinarily be financed by the users, that is, without support from the University's budget, although we would emphasize that there are many potential govermental clients who cannot afford to pay. Beyond this, however, there is the issue of how to respond to the requests of not just poorly financed agencies which are supposed to serve the poor, but also organizations of the poor, and the poor themselves.

In an earlier age the University took as its responsibility, through the Cooperative Extension Service, to provide the economic and human services necessary to the business success and family stability of rural Massachusetts. The question is how the University can now assume some similar measure of responsibility for the poor, both urban and rural.

The Cooperative Extension Service is in fact not an appropriate analogy. The Extension Service was and is, generally speaking, a seaprate aspect of the University. Its activities are, on the whole, unrelated to the academic process. The challenge of the seventies is to create public service activities that are integral to the life of a broad cross-section of the University, involving faculty and students in ways that enrich the educational process and academic life of the school generally.

Thus faculty and institutional expertise, to the extent that it exists, should be made available to the poor as part of the academic program of the University. One reason for establishing a College III of public and community service at the Boston campus is that it would be staffed with people who have skills and knowledge applicable to the needs of low-income areas. If it has a program to train housing officials, for example, its faculty and students can help with code enforcement or tenants' rights questions in the community, probably as part of the students' learning process. If it has expertise on health and welfare questions, this can be made available.

More broadly, the public service administrators of the University can channel some of the skills already there now into providing some voluntary service: the Education School people, for example, would no doubt be as willing to work with low-income parents seeking to improve their schools as with the teachers and administration of those schools. There are existing skills in nutrition, home economics, public health, and small business planning and management which can be similarly applied if the effort is made to identify the needs and match the skills.

The Cooperation Extension Service itself can be redirected into urban areas to some extent, too. This is of course not by any means a new idea. It has been tried in many places, often with disappointing results. If it is going to be done, the clientele to be served, and the nature of the service to be rendered, must be identified very carefully. The needs of farmers and their families were limited and easily discernible. The urban poor have such a variety of needs that any one group, particularly one which is new to the issue, cannot try to tackle all of them and hope to be at all effective.

The University can and should make the competence it does have available to the poor. It now has, and will increasingly have the future, faculty, staff, and students with useful expertise. That should be offered, and every possible effort should be made to obtain funds to serve the poor as well as those who can afford to pay.

Education

We have spoken at length about the need to improve the quality and effectiveness of undergraduate instruction. But the University is not alone in facing the issue of how to serve its students more effectively. There is ample evidence that at every level of learning, from pre-school to graduate school, the quality of instruction is far too often unsatisfactory.

We believe that the University, as the leading public institution of higher education in Massachusetts, and particularly, because it possesses an innovative School of Education, should be a leading force within the Commonwealth for the improvement of the quality of educational instruction.

The School of Education is already providing leadership in this area. It is helping teachers to experiment with alternative classroom settings; assisting in building career ladders for teacher aides who were on welfare before they became paraprofessionals; helping upgrade teachers who students are mainly from low income families; working on the reform of education testing; and the list goes on.

If we have any cricism of the school's service efforts, it is that they could be identified more strongly with the improvement of education in Massachusetts. Some of the school's centers already focus exclusively on Massachusetts, so the criticism is one of degree only. Along these lines, the recent establishment of the Institute for Learning and Teaching on the Boston campus for the purpose of working with the schools of metropolitan Boston was a constructive step which deserves the continued and active support of the University.

Nor is the University's responsibility of leadership in improving instruction confined to the elementary and secondary school. There is a small effort at present in the School of Education to provide assistance, through workships and conferences, to community college teachers. This program has been well received, but has been funded only on a modest scale, largely though the New England Center for Continuing Education.

We believe the University should do more in this area, that it could and should be a major resource center for innovation and improvement in the quality of teaching and curriculum at the community colleges. The community colleges do not have sufficient financial resources to engage in either the underlying research on teaching and programs that is badly need or the actual in-service training that goes after. The Committee therefore recommends that the University take active leadership in working with the community colleges of Massachusetts, and the State colleges as well, to create interchanges which would be to mutual advantage in terms of the quality of instruction and the flow of information.

WTOY presents:
Coming Next Week!

FILMS BY JOHN LENNON YOKO ONO
Dec. 15 & 16
7:30 & 9:30 p.m.
S.U. Ballroom
From Geneva Films
Produced by JOKO Film Productions

seafarer dungarees

They're not cheaper. . . or more expensive
They're not new, funky or flippy. They're Real Navy jeans.
Authentic U.S.N. cut and quality.
Made of 10 oz. denim from Erwin Mills. And they will fade to the desired wash-out look.
WEAR-HOUSE

SUNDAY, DEC. 19 - 6:30 P.M.
MONDAY, DEC. 20 - 6:30 P.M.
at the Campus Center Auditorium
University of Massachusetts
Christmas feast
March of the Comestibles
CHRISTMAS THEATRE
Madrigals and Traditional Songs of Christmas
Musical Rendition of "The Night Before Christmas"
Charles Dickens' A CHRISTMAS CAROL by the Lions Share Company Performers
Songs of Christmas Present Caroling

BILL OF FARE
Cranberry cup -
Salad with oranges
Roast Beef -
Yorkshire pudding
Baked potato -
green beans with almonds
Apple pie
with hot cinnamon sauce
Home made breads and rolls
Tickets are $5.00 per person, $4.00 per U.M. student, $2.00 children under 12.
For reservations call Mrs. Lois Qureshi 545-0418 Mon.-Fri. or write Campus Center Food Service, Christmas Feast Tickets. Include money. Tickets are obtainable at the Student Ticket Office and at the University Book Store.
$1.00 per person discount for the student-adult groups of 25 or more.

Learn to Drive
AMHERST AUTO SCHOOL
34 Main Street
256-6066

WORLD shakespeare's the tempest
december 9, 10, 11, 12
hampshire college library performances 7:00, 9:00 p.m.
admission 50¢

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — Nathan Gorenstein
BUSINESS MANAGER — James Gold
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Gib Fullerton
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR — Ann Gurnett
NEWS STAFF — Don St. Pierre, Bill Manburg
DARKROOM — Alan Chapman, Steve Schmidt
EDITORIAL — David Williams
SPORTS — Earle Barroll
AD LAYOUT — Bill Manburg

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

Immature Reaction

District Attorney Callahan's reaction to the Student Senate's action authorizing "compilation" of information regarding undercover narcotics agents on campus was in many ways as "immature" as he says the Student Senators were for passing the grandstand resolution.

The good "liberal" D.A. told a Collegian reporter last night that the bill was "unfortunate and silly" and that its passage would have "no" effect on the practices of State Police agents. Callahan did fear, though, that any such attempt by the Senate to release information about agents would endanger the police. Undercover people are "the most effective way of handling the problem of drug traffic," said Callahan, who is currently known to have state money authorized for the purchase of drugs by undercover police. From the attitude he expressed in the local newspapers one can get the impression that Callahan doesn't really understand the nature of either the Student Senate's resolution or the feelings of students on campus towards their own personal actions.

The Senate passed the resolution to emphasize one of the major concerns on American campuses today. Drugs, particularly marijuana, have become part of our society. They have gained acceptance on college campuses in much the same way that alcohol, a far greater "problem" to this society, is known in the bigger world.

A person faced with laws which are of the victimless nature are going to break those laws. Society supports its own vices such as gambling, prostitution, and intoxicants. Modern police scholars are complaining that police are forced to enforce un-enforceable laws; laws whose enforcement doesn't mean that society is gaining anything. District Attorney Callahan is telling us that because he thinks the drugs we students may use are "highly harmful," he is going to use any legitimate means possible to deal with the problem. He doesn't seem to realize that everytime someone is arrested for sale or possession of most drugs, excluding heroin, most students shiver and realize that they too could be "busted."

The Senate action shows abhorrence of the repressive laws and enforcement techniques that exist. Students aren't naive enough to believe they will actually try to expose narcotics agents. We just wish that the D.A. would open his eyes to the concerns expressed by the passage of this resolution. In our opinion, the drug laws and the devious (though "legal") ways of enforcing them are far more harmful to a society, than the drugs they are foolishly trying to control.

Art Buchwald

Christmas Phase II

WASHINGTON--There are many persons concerned with how Phase II will affect their Christmas this year. Here are some letters the Cost of Living Council has had to deal with.

The first is from a man named Ebenezer Scrooge, a partner in the firm of Scrooge and Marley. Mr. Scrooge writes:

"Dear Sir,

"I have an employee named Bob Cratchit who works as a clerk in my warehouse. For some years I was under the impression that Cratchit was not doing his share of the work. (For example, he always asked to take Christmas Day off, which I have considered humbug.)

"But last year I had a bad experience. I won't go into the details, other than to say it changed my attitude on many things. One of them was my feeling toward Cratchit. I decided I had been mistaken about him, and to make amends I promised him a raise. Unfortunately, I told him the raise would go into effect on Aug. 16, 1971.

"My question is: Can I now go ahead and give him this raise, as I would hate to go through the same bad trip this Christmas as I did last year?"

Scrooge's letter was turned over to someone at the pay board who replied:

"Dear Mr. Scrooge

"Your letter in regard to your employee Robert Cratchit was referred to this office. Unfortunately, we cannot give you a definite answer at this time as to whether you can raise his salary. The raise, if permitted, would have to be within the wage guidelines set forth by the Cost of Living Council.

"Would you be kind enough to tell us if this is a merit raise, an across-the-board raise or an inflationary riase which would cause you to raise the price of your products?

"Speaking for the Administration, we urge you to forego Mr. Cratchit's raise at this time so that we all can win the President's great battle against inflation."

Another sample of the kind of mail the Cost of Living Council is getting comes from Mrs. Dalla Young, who writes:

"We have no money for Christmas this year so I'm going to sell my beautiful hair and with it buy a gold chain for my husband's watch. I understand Jim is secretly planning to sell his watch to buy a comb for my beautiful hair. Are we permitted to do this under Mr. Nixon's Phase II economic plan?"

"Dear Mrs. Young,

"In answer to your question, I am advised to tell you that you can exchange a gold watch-chain for a comb, providing you apply for an exemption on combs and watch-chains as specified in Paragraph 4a, Chapter XII of Volume III of Phase II price and wage guidelines (as amended in Index 345). Please submit in quadruplicate your request to the price commission and we will try to get you an answer before March 1, 1972."

The final letter came from a young girl named Virginia

"Dear Sir,

"Is there a Santa Claus? My friends say that under Phase II there isn't. Who am I to believe?"

"Dear Virginia,

"YOU SHOULD STOP SPEAKING TO PEOPLE LIKE George Meany and get on the President's team.

"Hail to the Chief,

"John Connally

"Secretary of the Treasury."

Copyright 1971, Los Angeles Times

Death For Rebirth

This was published in The New York Times Dec. 9, 1971, p. 47.

(Ed. Note: This article is excerpted from the lead editorial in this week's New Statesman.)

LONDON--On the Indian subcontinent a state is dying and a new nation has been born.

The theocratic state of Pakistan is struggling to avoid dismemberment, though it has but one unifying force within its boundaries: the Islamic faith of the majority of its citizens. It was in deference to religious bigotry that the geographic and cultural monstrosity called Pakistan came into existence in the first place.

Now the nationalism of the Bengalis has shattered Muslin unity, set an example for the disaffected Pathans and reduced the loayal area of Pakistan to the two provinces of Punjab and Sind. Since India cannot cope with the ten million refugees from East Bengal and wishes to send them back over the border, Mrs. Gandhi has seized upon President Yahya Khan's difficulties and by a skillful military escalation hopes to give the new nation of Bangla Desh the chance of self-government. The supply lines of the Pakistan Army are hopelessly stretched and they are being harassed by the Mukti Bahini in East Bengal. Since the Pakistanis also face trouble in the North-West Frontier Province and Baluchistan, they cannot long sustain Indian military pressure. As the chances of Chinese help recede their plight is desperate.

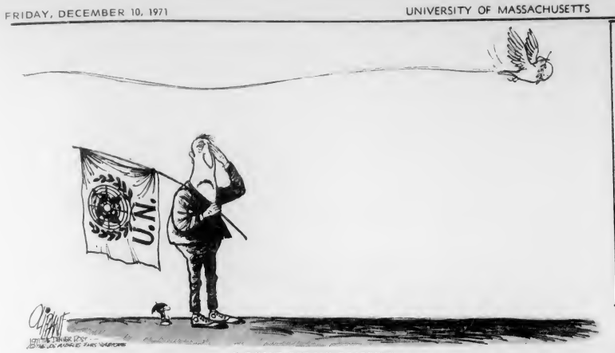
Pakistan has little claim upon our sympathy. She became a state because the intransigence of Mr. Jinnah and the Moslem League destroyed the chance of a secular all-Indian confederation. From its foundation this artificial state has been militaristic and hellicose and for two decades has spent 80 per cent of its budget on defense. Its present rulers are as stupid as they are brutal. Instead of working for a compromise with Sheik Mujibur Rahman and his Bengali Awami League, President Yahya Khan unleashed Gen. Tikko Khan and the Pakistan Army upon the hapless Bengalis in a campaign of indiscriminate slaughter.

Last week, as if to confirm the fact that he has very little political judgment, he banned the West Pakistan National Awami party and arrested some of its leaders. In so doing he has disfranchised the North-West Frontier Province and Baluchistan, which are now disaffected and may require watching by the already very much over- committed Pakistan Army.

Perhaps the Pakistanis calculated that all internal risks were manageable because of the assured support of China. If so, they have been outmaneuvered by India and badly served by the U.N. vote that admitted China to membership. The Indians have exerted military pressure at a time when the mountain passes, through which Chinese help would have to come, are blocked by snow. They will stay blocked for a least another three months, which gives the Indian Army plenty of time to intensify its military activity to the point where Pakistan breaks.

Not that it is very likely that the Chinese have considered sending help. It would be a bad start to China's U.N membership for her to become involved in an Asian land war that might well involve not only India but also the U.S.S.R. The Chinese have more important aims than the maintenance in power of Yahya Khan. The Sino-Pakistan alliance has always been an opportunisitc deal between utterly dissimilar societies who believe they have common enemies. China will not wish to be saddled with an ally who cannot maintain internal peace and so threatens to embroil the Chinese in conflicts which do not affect their national interests.

The Pakistanis fear that if they wait upon events the Indian Army will not confine its activities to the frontier regions of East Bengal but will strike at Lahore in an attempt to cut West Pakistan in two. India has 29 divisions to Pakistan's 19, a million men to 400,000, command of the sea, more and better tanks and twice as many military aircraft. Despite the excellent quality of the Pakistani forces there is little doubt about the result of fullscale warfare. The Indians hold the initiative and it is hoped that circumstances will allow them to use it for ending the existence of the unitary despotism which is the present Pakistan and bringing to birth new states with more reasonable aims and boundaries.



A Sunday Occupation

You ask me how it is possible to,
walk to your bedside, love and touch you,
and then walk, off to war,
my feet making small, priestlike padding noises,
on the carpet stairs,
quietly, quietly,
the silence shouts
my instructions,
a bombing raid over Germany,
or a search and destroy,
in the jungle,
the orders come many times,
and in many languages,
my mind tumbles
in search of lost answers,
to lost questions,
and i cannot answer your question,
or question your answers,
but sworn to a higher allegiance, the,
orders in my pocket,
I board the Arizona.....

Bear Acker

Author-ity

The lead editorial column which appeared in yesterday's Collegian was written by Tom Moriarty of the YSA. The second column, on the subject of the Rehnquist appointment, was an editorial release written by Senator Birch Bayh. The columns represented the policies of the authors and were not intended to represent the views of the Collegian.

'I DON'T GET NO RESPECT!'

Editorial Points

It says something about some people that they try to challenge the power of the press with the power of the fist.

*****

If brevity is the soul of wit then you should laugh at the next short person who walks by you.

*****

There is a rumor forming that Ellsworth Barnard is the pen name for Don Glickstein's alter ego.

*****

I wonder if the Narc hunt began by the Student Senate has any precedent in the McCarthy hunt for Communists. Who knows? Maybe it's your roommate.

*****

The story about the two Univ. of Michigan students who bought the same "original" term papers raises some questions. After all, don't these companies have any morals at all. It just slows how the capitalist system takes advantage of the poor students forced to depend upon it, huh?

*****

A headline in yesterday's Collegian read, "Visiting Professor To Speak On Pearl Harbor". I just hope he has a loud voice.

Collective Rudeness

To the Editor:

There are public displays of collective rudeness -- even direct cruelty -- which convey, to me, that there are segments of this campus community that have not been reached by even the faintest traces of humanistic enlightenment, not to mention plain old good manners. Last year at the Cage, we were treated to one such example as a player on a local community college (not noted for their sports finesse), who didn't quite fit our image of the ideal physical type, was jeered and ridiculed -- by a self-appointed committee of "normal" males -- to the point of embarrassment to coaches, other spectators, and players ... to say nothing of the player himself. Not satisfied with this, these faceless cowards must continue their "all-in-good-fun" slander of players this year as well. (Evidently Charlie Peters remembers the committee well from his freshmen year -- as evidenced by his remarks in the Collegian on Monday's sports page. Fortunately, Charlie's abilities (read: coordination) have vastly improved over the years to the point where the committee cheers rather than jeers.) But evidently someone's got to be the target -- and unfortunately they've found one again this year.

My message to the committee is as follows: the rest of us enjoy UMass basketball as much as you (indeed, some of us are fanatical enough to be season ticket holders); what we don't enjoy is your repeated attacks on the personal pride of your selected 'targets'. One of the mainstays of maturity is to place yourself in the role of another person; we wish that you would try to do this.

Aside from this, the indignity you are causing would not -- in all jutifiability -- be tolerated by any minority group powerful enough to react. Would the committee think of insulting a Black player? Evidently not: (and for more reasons than one: not the least of which is the fact that there are no available Black players 'abnormal' enough to attack -- an observation which perhaps is shared by others around here....namely, that our recruitment is subtly racist in that we select only Black 'stars'; the mediocre Black players don't get to come to school at all, like the average white players who sit on our sports benches year after year.) Your targets are individuals unable to defend themselves -- which qualifies you for the depths of cowardice.

The message is -- please cease and desist; the rest of us want to enjoy not only the excitement of the game but also the good feeling of sportsmanship -- on the part of both players and spectators alike. Your behavior thus far belittles, not your targets, but yourselves.

Rich Perkins
Grad Student

Letters To The Editor

Ein Mistaken Impression, Perhaps?

To the Editor:

As a fellow-European, I have read with great interest Professor Dietrich Schwanitz's article on UMass, reprinted in the Collegian but first published in the German newspaper DIE ZEIT on November 11, 1971. The Exchange Professor from Germany, as he calls himself with sarcastic self-depreciation, came here, looked around and found us wanting. I am the first to admit that he is right on more than one count: UMass is far from being the Platonic idea of a university this side of the Atlantic and Professor Schwanitz is well aware of its many deficiencies. After all, he has already spent at least a couple of months on campus. Yet, it is slightly amusing to find how unselectively and uncritically Professor Schwanitz, - a teacher of "the theory of literature" and what's more, of "criticism of the ideology behind literary works" has picked up all those fleurs du mal, the cliches and stereotypes that plague European or, for that matter, American publications, dealing with the problems of contemporary universities. Professor Schwanitz complains, for instance that "the students are channeled into a rigid program of courses which is constantly being subjected to 'exciting' innovations." I would like to know how "rigid" a program is that is being constantly changed? On the other hand, Professor Schwannitz asserts that the students here are accorded to "the privileged position and unquestionable authority of the consumer." How one can channel a privileged consumer who "is always right" into a rigid program of courses, Professor Schwanitz does not tell us. Further, he complains or, rather, states - for it is his method to accept impressions as facts - that the students "are constantly swinging from egotrips to identity crises." Some do - some don't, as Professor Schwanitz knows quite well and he also must know, as a teacher of critical attitudes, that this kind of generalization could hardly be conducive to our better understanding of a complex situation. He compalins that "the names of Adorno and Habermas are unknown". That may be true, although certainly not in the generalized sense Professor Schwanitz tells us, but it may also be true that there isn't much to know about them. Jurgen Habermas' ritualistic affirmations of, and sudden retreats from the German student revolt are not really worth knowing, besides he has yet to prove the importance of his ideological contribution to student radicalism beyond the borders of Germany. Professor Adorno, a diluted version of Georg Lukacs, had taught for years the intricate mysteries of marxism to generations of students only to see them to attack his Institute, ransack his offices and let him die of a heart attack. Finally, Professor Schwanitz forcefully complains that at UMass, the "preoccupation with students' need leads to a generalized literary Impressionism." Again, this may be quite true. But one could argue, with equal force, that Professor Schwanitz's preoccupation with the real and alleged ills of an American university leads only to a generalized and, unfortunately, rather condescending, journalistic impressionism.

Tamas Aczel
Department of English

Nein, Nein!

To the Editor:

To my great surprise I found myself to be an, alas, involuntary contributor to New England's Largest College Daily through the diligent effort of the select body of graduate students of the German Department who translated an article of mine which was published in DIE ZEIT. Knowing the snares of translation, I admire the skill with which it was done. In fact, it was so skillful that the English version improves on my German and brings out things I hadn't even thought of. Though I realize (to my cost) that change can impair style, I would suggest that any future versions of this article, that might unexpectedly spring up, should contain less bold renderings of the following points:

1. der komplizierte Produktionsprozeb, den die Lehre darstellt does not mean 'the complicated manufacuring process which passes for education here.' I was, somewhat ironically, referring to the leftist student jargon in Europe which classifies university teaching as a production process. This, Marx help me, is not restricted to Amherst.
2. Dabei wird eigentlich weniger als bei uns Radau oder scharfe Kritik gefurchtet - stresses the form of European student protest and not the unconscious anxieties of the faculty.
3. vorher herausgegebene Course-Descriptions - does not mean that the course descriptions are in their turn described in advance.
4. A German 'Hohere Schule' does not refer to anything like the American prep school. It is comparable to the English Grammar School and the French lycee.
5. Literatur-Impressionismus is not literary Impressionism but impressionistic literary criticism.
6. Eine Reaktion sichtbar machen - does not mean that a reaction is made explicit but that it is brought out.
7. In 'Ideologierkritik' ideology is the object of criticism and not the viewpoint from which this criticism is made.
8. The phrase 'distanzierte Art der Lehre' concerns not the relation teacher subject matter but the relation teacher-student which does not rely on emotional involvement.

Though it be in bad taste to criticize creative work, I feel moved to do so, partly by the shock of realizing that the elegance of English does not lend itself to the rendering of the rather weightier playfulness of German, and partly by that compulsive pedantry so characteristic of my countrymen. Since this is only the first of a series of articles to appear in DIE ZEIT on impressions of an innocent abroad may I suggest that possible future translators avail themselves of my willing cooperation.

Dietrich Schwanitz
Dept. of English

High-School Hangover

To the Editor:

There are two different types of fans. The "fair weather" fans are unfortunately a majority as evidenced by their behavior in the Cage. These people are the ones who bitch about a player's errors, calling him a bum (to put it mildly) than give him an ovation when he leaves the game. The loyal fans praises the good play while never blaming one player for losing a game or breaking his team's play.

Another thing that seems to be missing at UMass is sportsmanship. I wonder how many fans have been in a competive situation similar to St. Anselm or Vermont where they were getting their asses wiped. If they ever had, they should remember the humiliation, the anxious waiting for the opponent's subs to come so they won't be completely disgraced. Is reaching 100 points so important? It's just a high school hangover.

One other blatant example of unsportsmanslike conduct is the noise during free throws, as in the Holy Cross-UMass game. Players should be conditioned to tune out all irrelevant noise. Holy Cross fans seemed to know this fact, why should UMies be any different?

Will a majority of Redmen fans always come out only when the sun shines?

Brenda Wilcox

Letters To The Editor

All letters to the editor must be typed at sixty spaces, double spaced. Length should not exceed one typewritten page. All letters must be signed with the author's phone and address in case contact is necessary. Addresses and phone numbers will not be printed.

The Collegian reserves the right to edit letters because of space limitations. We also reserve the right to publish according to space limitations.

"How Awful! It's A Good Thing I Took Off My Dark Glasses In Time To See This"

Bulletins

This year Hillel has started cooperative planning programs with Mt. Holyoke College and Amherst College. This has proven to be quite productive so far and the prospects for the future seem even better.

Hillel is beginning to work cooperatively with the Amherst Jewish Community. The executive committee has been in touch with the Amherst Jewish Community which has expressed a great deal of interest in planning programs with Hillel. Members of the Amherst Jewish Community would like to have a number of students come and visit them informally in their homes for discussion groups.

The theme of the discussions will be "Where do I find myself in American Jewish life". The schedule for the remainder of this semester is:

1. Professor and Mrs. Harvey Friedman, Political Science Sunday, December 12, 8:30 P.M.
2. Professor and Mrs. David Schimmel, Education Tuesday, December 14, at 8:30 P.M.
3. Professor and Mrs. Stanley Hertzback, Physics Thursday, December 16 at 8:30 P.M.

Students who would like to attend any of these should call Hillel to make reservations. This is important because the number of people will be limited to five to seven at each home.

* * *

The UMass Dames Club will hold a Christmas Sleighride on Sunday evening on a farm in Whately. The cars will depart Farley 4-H Lodge at 7 P.M., and the sleighride will begin at 8 P.M., followed by coffee and dessert.

Also among Christmas activities is a Kiddies Christmas Party December 18th from 2 until 4. The party will be held in Bowditch lodge and will be complete with presents and a Santa Claus. The party is open to all the children of all Dames members.

Dames Club is an organization composed of wives of students, both graduate and undergraduate and to wives who are students themselves. Dames holds a monthly meeting and activity and some of those scheduled for the future include an Olde Time Movie Nite in January and a Spring Make-Over Fashion Show. Anyone who is interested in joining may contact Joan Armstrong at 549-1145 for further information.

* * *

Books for the Hampshire County Jail will be collected at a benefit film showing at UMass today at 7:30 p.m. in the School of Education Auditorium.

The film is a 1948 French classic, "School for Life." There is no admission charge but those attending are asked to bring books for donation to the Hampshire County Jail library. Particularly sought are volumes on black history, English for the Spanish speaking, high school-level books and general light reading.

The event is sponsored by the UMass chapter of Phi Delta Kappa, national honor society for m men in education. The general public is cordially invited. The film has English subtitles and an educational theme. It presents a contrast between a traditional teaching style and one based on individual needs and interests, all within the context of a love story in rural France.

Books for the jail library may also be left at Room 112, School of Education.

* * *

As part of their celebration of Christmas, Newman Club members are making Christmas banners and centerpieces. These and other items, including Christmas cards, will be available for purchase at Christmas store at the Newman Center.

The store will be open after the Masses on the weekends before Christmas. Proceeds will be used to finance projects such as the Christmas party held each year for the children of an economically underprivileged area of Springfield.

* * *

WFCR (88.5FM) Folkroots features the stories and songs of Woody Guthrie this week. His songs of life in the dust bowl and American life in general made him our greatest folksinger. Folkroots can be heard every Saturday afternoon from 1 to 2. Persons with any interesting old tapes or records, or wishing to play in a traditional folk style themselves and would like to contribute to a future show, write to Ed Light c/o WFCR, Amherst, Mass.

* * *

The upper lot of "M" lot in the Sylvan area will be gravelled early Saturday morning. Any car left in the upper half of the lot after midnight Friday will be ticketed and towed at the owner's expense.

GIFT SHIRTS

Stripes — Solids
Prints — Knits

FROM $4.98

WEARY HOUSE

201 North Pleasant Street, Amherst

WMUA

TONIGHT ON 91.1FM

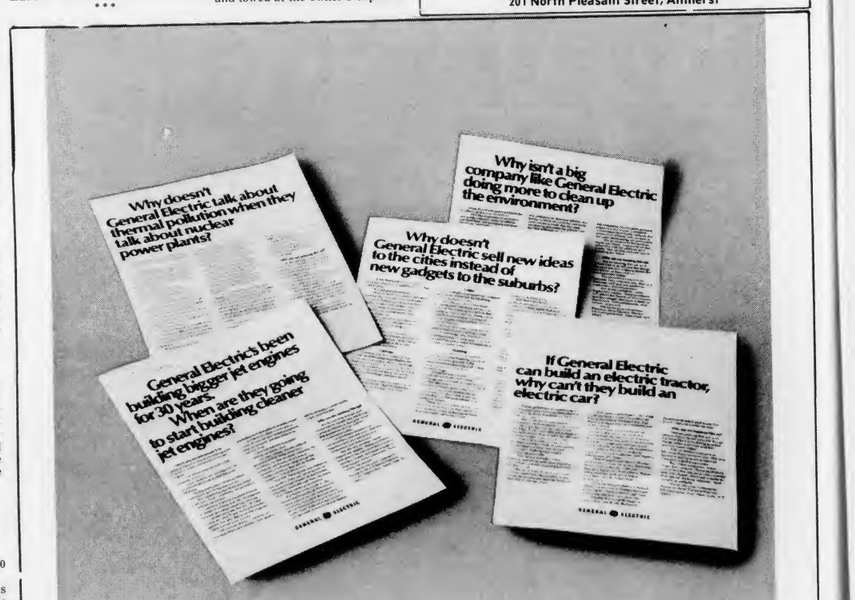
7:00 pm EVENING NEWS - 30 minutes.

7:30 pm RADIO THEATRE - this experimental half hour show is part of a series in live radio theatre featuring various--usually funny--productions.

8:00 pm UJAMMA DRUM - the popular black program with jazz, soul, poetry, commentary and news compiled by the Black Mass Communications Project.

11:00 pm JOHN LORING SHOW with rock and other good sounds (preceeded by a brief network newscast.

1:00 am THE BEST OF SHERLOCK HOMES - the famous radio series continues to hold you in suspense.



1:30 am JOHN LORING returns with music til 3:00 am.

Having trouble

finding something NICE and MEANINGFUL for your better half this Christmas?

FOWLER Jewelers OF AMHERST

We want BOTH of you to be happy.

Remember these ads?

We ran them in a lot of college newspapers last year. Their purpose was to answer some of the critical questions students were asking about our company.

Maybe you saw them. A lot of students did. And a lot wrote to us about them. In many cases the ads triggered additional questions, questions so provocative that we've decided to expand our communications with college students.

We're doing it in several ways. We've already started to have conferences of student opinion leaders and GE people at our various plant locations. These conferences permit deep probing of sticky questions. They help us to understand the concerns of students. But they involve relatively few students and GE people.

So we're going to share some of the questions and answers (like the ones above) with you by continuing our ads in college newspapers.

And we'll make sure our people see your questions, too—through company magazines and plant newspapers.

We think your concerns are important. And we think you should know how seriously we take them.

GENERAL ELECTRIC

Draft Counselor's Corner

Not Too Late To Drop Deferment

By GILBERT J. SALK

A few short notes today...

To all the Black brothers and sisters on campus: There will be a special Black Draft Counselor Training Program held in Roxbury next weekend, Ded. 18-19. It will deal with a full overview of the draft and how to deal with it, with special attention being given to specific problems encountered by members of the Black community. If you want to help keep your brothers from being fucked over by the draft, this will be a good program for you.

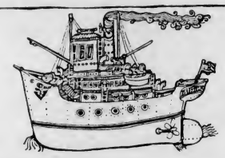
Free transportation can be provided. If you are interested, and would like more information or plans for a ride, call Mrs. Frances Crowe in Northampton at 584-8975.

It's still not too late to drop your deferment and get out of the draft. To quality, you must have been born on or BEFORE Dec. 31, 1971, and have a lottery number over 125. If you qualify, simply write a note your board telling them that you want to drop your deferment and be reclassified I-A effective immediately. Keep a copy of the letter. Mail it Certified Mail, Return Receipt Requested. When the receipt comes back, staple it to your copy of the letter and file them in a safe place.

On the date your board receives the letter, you will automatically be considered I-A, and on midnight Dec. 31, you will be out of the prime eligibility year. NOTE: If your number is 125 or lower, do not drop your deferment. Once your number has been passed, you move into an extended priority group which will make you extremely likely to be drafted during the first three months of next year. Only those with numbers over 125 should relinquish their deferments.

It appears that the SSS has postponed all inductions scheduled for the month of December. However, because this is only a postponement, and not a cancellation, the action will not affect the announced lottery cutoff number. It will remain at 125. Those who were scheduled for induction in December will be ordered to report early next year.

A brief appeal to all of you. We have a large number of trained draft counselors who are rapidly becoming bridge experts waiting for you to come in for couseling. Don't put off dealing with the draft; the best time to start planning is before the pressure gets heavy. Take some time soon to visit the Draft Counseling Services office in 922 CC sometime soon.



PEACE

ROOM TO MOVE

Campus Drug Drop-In Center

CALL 5-0400

24 HOURS A DAY
7 DAYS A WEEK

The Scupper's Coming

with entertainment

CALIFORNIA - NEVADA - MASSACHUSETTS

TONIGHT

OPEN HOUSE

ATT

375 N. Pleasant St.

8:00 - ?
Dec. 10, 71

Music By:
Phoenix

MDC CLASSIFIED

AUTOS FOR SALE

1959 chev., v8 std., good tires, runs well, must sell, $95. Call 665-4766. tf12-13

1965 Porsche 356-c, new brakes, clutch, rebuilt engine, ski-luggage rack, elec. sunroof, 545-0329. Dick Jubinville. tf12-17

1963 Chevy Impala V8, 283, automatic, 4 good tires, 2 new snows, good condition, $250. Call 549-0948 anytime. tf12-10

'70 VW sunroof, radio & heater, exc. running cond., asking $1295. Call 549-6142. tf12-10

68 Javelin SST, 4 speed, excint mech cond., 4 new poly belted tires, needs paint job. Asking $950. Call Brian 114-545-2412, 545-2413. tf12-12

'65 Flat Sta. Wagon, good cond., 300.00; 55 VW sedan, rebit. 150.00, also Halifax double key board Port. Organ, ex., cond. Call 533-9200. tf12-14

65 Chevy Van., exc. running & body. Full power, new brakes, seals, grease, gaskets, carb adjust.,oil and filter. Best offer. 549-6614. tf12-10

1965 Mustang, excellent condition, must sell, leaving country, $450. Call Mike Reynolds 546-1034. tf12-13

'67 Pontiac GTO conv. 4 speed, new tires, snows, tape player, reverb. radio, spare rims, p.s., p.b., top condition. $1275. 253-5847 after 5. tf12-13

64 Comet, 6 cyl, std shift, good running condition, $175. 546-4452. tf12-14

FOR SALE

62 VW Sunroof, receni head job, kingpins, brake, carb, fuel pump. Starts, runs. Call 586-3495, eves. $200. tf12-14

Guitars: Martin, Yamaha, Aria, Harmony, Asio: Dulcimers, Auto Harps. Find out what you want then call me. John 6-5401. tf12-6

'65 VW Bug, red, exc.body and mech.,nu sno tires, battery, muffler. 53,200 miles, $550 or offer. Must sell. 425 n. Pleas. St., Univ. Apt. No. 164. tf12-15

4 tires-2 snows-new 825x14; Spitfire-brakepads; 8 track stereo tape-deck; call-549-6316. Aft. 5. tf12-13

Minolta Lens Auto-Rokkor 35mm f2.8 w/case $40.00. Call Jan 549-6168. tf12-10

Die-hard auto battery. Used 1 mo. $35;-1 suede frinzed jacket good condition $40. 546-4547 eves. tf12-15

Women's buckle ski boots, very good condition. $20.00. Call Julie-549-1221. tf12-10

Pair of Reiker Buckle Boots, size 7m., worn once. Cheap. Call 1-369-4091. tf12-14

Diamond eng. ring and dia. band-deal on either or both. Dia. is 85 points w/bag. You won't find a better deal. Call Jim at 5-0055/549-6284. tf12-15

Tenor Sax, Selmer MKIV, good condition. Call 549-6087. tf12-17

Yashica J-5 35 mm w/built-in light meter, 55mm f/18 lens: excellent cond. $100 (includes leather case) 586-3266 after 6 p.m. tf12-10

Kowa Seirz SLR Camera 135, 85, 35 mm lens, original cases, books & boxes. New $370, asking $200, or best offer. Call John 546-7487. tf12-10

'65 Chevy Van, automatic trans, heater, good condition asking $495, Call 584-5830 after 6 p.m. tf12-10

Discount stereo components and tvs, 20-60% off list price. Factory sealed and warranty. Jim Jensen 586-1385. tf12-10

Snow tires 165-14 Semperit Radials, 1 pr. mounted on MGB disc wheels. $50. Call 549-6087. tf12-17

Roberts x360 tape deck, 1 yr old, 20-20000 flat SND on/W, SND auto. rev., 3 motors, 4 heads, remote cont. Cost $830, sell $295. 253-9507. tf12-10

New and used cameras and photo equipment bought and sold. Lang's Photo 253-3148. tfsem

PERSONAL

Happy Hour at Phi Sigma Delta, 358 No. Pleasant St. Everyone welcomed. Starts at 7:30 until Friday, Dec. 10th. 12-10

Mudge, Happy Birthday. Are you old enough to know better? Granny Goodwitch. 12-10

We know who the Shadow is but what does he know? 12-10

Happy Birthday Punchinella, Love You. 12-10

Do you still believe? Write your letters to Santa now, 2117 John Adams tf12-16

"Who is the Shadow"? tf12-10

ROOMMATES WANTED

To share 2 bdrm apt in old hse, 2 firs, dog, frplc, garag, ktchn, livrm, frnshd, quiet, 3 mi from UMass, Judy, 13 Middle, Hadley 586-3784, keep trying. tf12-16

Rmte to share 2 bdrm. apt., Hobart Lane Amherst. $80/m., all utilities inc. Call 6-7320 or 6-7321. tf12-14

Roommate to share fully frnshd 1 bdrm apt, 1 mi. from campus. Can build 2nd bdrm. Call Paul (eves) 253-2025. tf12-13

Couple of people for large room in 2-bedroom apt. At beautiful Rolling Green. Cook meals together. No slobs please. Call Sookie 253-3798. tf12-10

Roommate needed for second semester in Puffton Village to share 3 bedroom apt. $55.75 a month Call 549-6335. tf12-10

Roommate wanted F, to share rent with 2 other girls, own room, ranch house in Hadley. Call anytime 586-2815. tf12-17

Female desires room in apartment, very close to Campus. Urgent. Call 253-9431. tf12-13

One or two girls who would be interested in sharing an apart. with another girl around January. Prefer open minded. Call 546-8824. tf12-13

Male wanted to share apt. in Col. Village, $55/mo. sec. semester. Call 256-6681, keep trying. tf12-16

SERVICES

Flute-clarinet-sax lessons, Jazz and Classical. Call Anoy Flacks 665-8079. tf12-14

Amherst Audio services. Stereo components, tape decks for home or car. 197 No. Pleasant St. 256-8133. tf5-12

Passports & grad school pictures-24, hr. service Lang's Photo 253-3148. tfsem

Will type term papers, no final copies of theses. 50c per page. Olympia Elec. Plea. Call 256-8408, Crown Point Apt. 12-10

CHRISTMAS GIFTS

Doll clothes-great Xmas gifts! All sizes and styles, made to order. For further info., call 549-3062. tf12-10

LOST

1 Pickett sld. rule in 65 white Dodge van on Dec 7 in ride from Rt. 9, Amherst Rt. 9 ? 91 Northampton. Please call Bob 584-0742. tf12-14

Black, white-tipped tail, dog. Companion to 4 year old. See ad elsewhere in paper. Barbara Craven, 665-2448. tf12-13

FOR RENT

Room and board available in new house on N. Pleasant St., two minute walk from campus. Call Dana 253-9031. tf12-17

4-bedroom house, excellent condition. Skibiski, realters, Northampton. Call between 6:30-7:00 p.m. 584-3428. tf12-14

Apt to sublet, own rm., kitchen fac., l.v., furnished, center of Amherst, $87/mo. inc util. Avail immed. Call 253-2540 ask for c-9, Female. tf12-13

Townehouse Apt. to share. Female or couple. $76/mo-1, $111/mo-2, available immediately. Call 256-6167. tf12-15

Apt. for rent, 1 bedroom apartment, Puffton Village available Jan. 1, 549-6288. tf12-14

Apartment-Just off Campus, $55 mo. Call 5-7 p.m. 549-0216 Roger or Frank. tf12-13

I want to share my 12 room house, 15 min. from Amherst and Northampton. I need 200-250 dollars and will consider various things. Call 247-5192. (Fine pad) tf12-10

Studio apt., Greenfield, quiet area, near route 91. Avail. Jan. 1, rent $125 mo., including util. Call 1-774-3089 aft. 6. tf12-10

1 bedroom apt. Puffton Vil. available now, take over lease, Call 256-8857, $150 rent. 12-10

WANTED

Psy research paper, 8 to 16 typed pg., any topic, will pay. Call Sue 253-5875 after 5 p.m. tf12-14

Tall Dirty ole man wants pretty shapely female love slaves for home cooking, booze and me. Nice benefits. Call eve., and wk end. Keep trying 665-2264. tf12-12

Traveling companion thru Europe for about 6 weeks in June. Female preferred. Call 253-9485 if interested. tf12-10

2 goalies with equip. to play for dorm hockey team on Friday nites at 10. Will provide trans. Call John 6-6622 between 6-8 p.m. tf12-10

For Rent/Help Wanted

Student to live in second semester. Room and board in exchange for help with children. Near Campus. Call 253-9431. tf12-15

FREE

Free kittens, nine weeks old, grey tigers. 545-0898 Jim. tf12-10

BRUINS HOCKEY

UMass Rowing Assoc. sponsoring raffle for two sets of two Bruins home games, Dec. 26 & Jan 15. See crew members or Coach Faherty in 211 Boyden. tf12-15

APT. FOR RENT

2 bdrm apt in Belchertown, air cond., w-w carpets, avail. Jan., $200 a month inc. utilities. Call 323-4450 after 6. tf12-10

MT. SUGARLOAF APTS. Avail, Jan 1, lg. 2 bdrm util. included, air-cond., pool $185. Call Skibiski Realtors 253-7222, eve. 253-2626. tf12-22

ENTERTAINMENT

Rock Band Phoenix now available for your Xmas party. Good, hard driving, dance music. Call Carl at 253-9371 for information. tf12-17

LAW SCHOOL

"Law School--Will I Like It? Can I Make It?" New book by law grad. For prospective law students. Send $2.95. Kroos Press, box 3709A Milwaukee, Wis. 53217. tf1213

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES

Play music in a band? Interested in skiing? Combine the two in the greatest business opportunity yet! Needs solid musicians for winter. Dave 549-6679. tf1210

RAFFLE

1st prize: AF Parka 2nd: 8-band radio. Tickets available in CC Concoise $.25 each- 5/$1.00. Proceeds to Boltwood Project. tf12-14

TRAVEL

Ski the Alps-Jan 14-24 Chamonix, France-air fare, hotels, discount lifts and lessons, last night in Paris. Contact Peggy 253-9667. tf12-23

Nassau-$149, from Boston & N.Y., hotel flight, transfers, 12/20-27, 12/23-29, 12/27-1/3 Ski-Australia-$325, 15 days, flight, hotel, meals, transfers, Insbruk, deluxe package, London-$187, flights in January. Call-Student Flights 584-1050. tf12-15

Crimson Travel offers low cost spring vacation trips to Bermuda and Nassau. For more info, call Rich Margil, 412 Dwight 545-0791. tf12-10

Ski the Alps, Jan 14-24 Chamonix France, air fare, hotels, discount lifts & lessons, last night in Paris $257. Contact Peggy 253-9667. tf12-23

TYPING

Typing-theses, dissertations, etc. Fast, accurate, experienced. Have Math and Chem. symbols. Call 253-3001. tf12-21

STUDENTS BOOK MATCHING

Register your book in S.U. Rm. 218. Every student with your course next semester will need your books save $ money, sell direct. tf-sem.

JOBS

International Jobs -Europe, S. America, Asia, Aust., USA. Openings in all fields-Soc. Sci, Bus, Sci, Engineers, Ed, etc. Alaska Construction & Pipe Work. Earnings to $500 weekly. Summer or permanent.

Paid expenses, No nuses, travel, Complete current info- only $3. Money back guar. Write now! Internationa! Emp. Box 721-M516, Peabody Mass. 01960. tf1216

Get ahead now, even while still in school. With 2 hr. a day, with a little work & determination you can make as much and more than $50 a day clear profit. Get your "exclusive information" concerning this fabulous opportunity now. Write Jan Inc. Pat Division PO Box 105 Seattle WN98111. 12-10

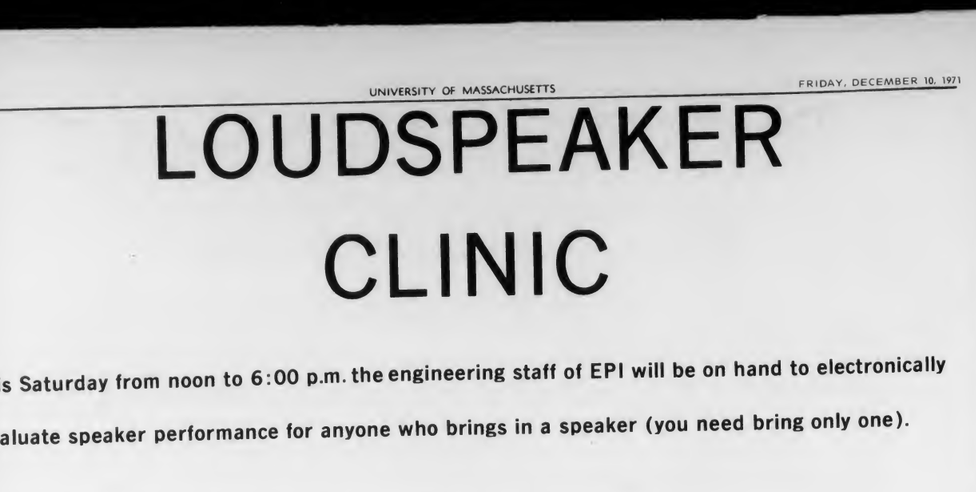
SKIING

Ski Sugarbush-5 1/2 days, includes lifts, lessons, food and lodging, Jan. 16-21, $87. Call 6-6760 or 6-6857. tf12-13

ROOM WANTED

Attractive female needs a place to stay for the rest of the semester. Urgent. Will sleep on couch or whatever. Call 584-2001 please. tf12-14

LOUDSPEAKER CLINIC



This Saturday from noon to 6:00 p.m. the engineering staff of EPI will be on hand to electronically evaluate speaker performance for anyone who brings in a speaker (you need bring only one).

Most high fidelity loudspeakers suffer from these common weaknesses:

1. Deterioration of response at both low and high frequency limits.
2. Large percentages of harmonic distortion in the available bass.
3. Differences in the energy produced between the woofer and the tweeter.
4. Differences in the radiation pattern (directivity or dispersion) at different frequencies, especially near the high frequency end of both woofer and tweeter.

The ideal loudspeaker system eliminates these four weaknesses by using seperate speakers which produce sounds within a limited frequency range. The lowest sounds each speaker can make correspond to its mechanical resonance (the frequency at which the cone structure would vibrate if the speaker were pulsed with a battery) and the highest sounds are determined by the diameter of the speaker. (This must be smaller than the wavelength of notes being reproduced, or the speaker will become directional).

If you are contemplating the purchase of a stereo system now or in the future, this clinic could be a valuable source of information as you start shopping for speakers.

Average frequency response of modern high quality speaker.

AMHERST AUDIO

197 N. Pleasant St.

THE RECORD SALE

Noon to Midnite Friday

ALL	$4.98 LP's	$2.99
	5.98 LP's	3.79
	6.98 LP's	4.29
	7.98 LP's	5.29
	8.98 LP's	5.49
	9.98 LP's	5.99
	New Chicago 4 Record Set ...	6.99

Plus a special bin of great LP's

$1.98 each . . .

values to $6.98

Bootleg 8-Track Tapes . . . 99¢ ea.

Sony Classical Reel to Reel

Immortal Series 75¢ ea.

EQUIPMENT DEALS

Buy any Aztec Speaker System and get a pair of Sennheiser HD414 Headphones for a penny.

Grado F3E Magnetic Cartridge . . . ~~List $49.95~~	$19.95
KLH Model 26 (used . . . 30 day guarantee) ~~List Now $269.95~~	$130.00
Sansui 5000 (used)	$260.00
Sony TC330 Open Reel and Cassette Recorder w/Amp. and Speakers	$150.00
AR XA Turntable (used W/M91E)	$40.00

Plus Loads of other Used Equipment

The Best $500.00 Stereo System Available

Pioneer SX 990 56 Watt RMS Receiver
PE 2038 Automatic Turntable
EPI 100 Loudspeakers
B&O SP14 Cartridge

— The Best $450.00 System

Pioneer SA800 64 Watt RMS Amplifier
Same turntable and speakers as the $500.00 system.

Saturday there will be an EPI Speaker Clinic from Noon to 6:00 p.m.

AMHERST AUDIO

Notices

AMERICAN ASSN. OF UNIVERSITY WOMEN
Meeting tonight at 7 p.m. in 1st Cong. Church in Amherst. Topic: "A Look at Fellowships -AAOW Style" followed by a family holiday Pot Luck Supper Sherry Hour and musical program.

BELCHERTOWN VOLUNTEERS
There will be a bus leaving Whitmore on Saturday at 12:45 p.m. for the State School. All interested people are welcome.

CAMPUS SCOUTS
Meeting Tuesday in CC 808 at 8 p.m. For all those interested in scouting activities. Discussion of future camping trip. Info call 6-7504.

HILLEL
Services tonight only at 4 p.m.--join us and Yeshivah students for a traditional Sabbath.

PARKING
The upper lot of "M" lot in the Sylvan area will be gravelled early Saturday morning. Any car left in the upper half of the lot after midnight Friday will be ticketed and towed at the owner's expense.

PHI SIGMA DELTA
Happy Hour! at Phi Sigma Delta, 358 N. Pleasant St. will start at 7:30. Refreshments acquired at the door, tonight!

STUDENT ART ASSOCIATION
Meeting will be held Monday evening at 7 p.m. in the CC 804-808. A film will be shown on Jasper Johns, anyone is welcome to attend.

2nd SEMESTER STUDENT TEACHERS
There will be an important meeting on Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in Boyden #251. This meeting is mandatory for all men and women registered to do their student teaching in physical ed during the 2nd semester. Be sure to be there.

STUDENTS INTERESTED IN EARLY CHILDHOOD
There will be a display of Early Childhood Learning materials and a film festival Saturday. From 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Skinner Hall. Everyone is invited.

S. T. THEATRE
Open call audition for "Peter Pan, or the Rape of Wendy" on Monday at 7 p.m. in CC Aud.

SWEET CORN THEATRE WORKSHOP
Only four more! Free this Sunday at 2 p.m. in CC 174. Bring lots of hats.

LOST
A navy blue pocketbook and a red leather wallet. Need ID, ETC. If found, please call Rae 546-6578.
Lt. blue wallet (girl's) Wed. night between Cage & SW. Call 6-9854 or return to CC lost and found. Contains ID and license very important

Set of keys with initial "W" on the chain between Bartlett & Campus Center. If found call Jessie, 545-2412.
Thre Mktg. notebooks from the University store, Dec. 8. Return to 313 Kennedy, 546-7635.

PINNINGS
Kathie Smith, '73, Chi Omega to Rick Enz, '73, Theta Chi.

ENGAGEMENTS
Cynthia Coulson, '72, Chi Omega to Jan Hospod, '72, Chi Omega to Peter McErlain, '71, Theta Chi.
Janice Comeau, '72, Chi Omega to John Anderson, Boston Univ.
Pennie Hamilton, '73, Coolidge Middle to Johnny Coleman, Medford.
Valerie M. Dean, LPN, Western Mass. Hospital to Raymond D. Duval, '73, 442 Dickinson
Maureen Fortin, '72, Gorman to Brian Martin, '72, Northampton

Saturday Night
BLACK MAGIC
featuring
Natalie Cole
DANCING
9:30 - 12:30
50¢ COVER
at
The English Pub

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SYDNEY OMARR

I tend to think of pipe smokers as Sagittarians, cigar smokers as Taureans and those who smoke cigarettes as born under Gemini. Those who gulp vitamins are, I believe, more likely to be born under the zodiacal sign of Virgo.

***

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Judgment, intuition may be slightly off base. Defer to male, partner. Check legal aspects. Keep lines of communication free. Exchange ideas. Listen to opposition. You can learn and build potential.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Accent on health, work and ways to accomplish basic goals. Gain co-operation from family members. Make gesture of reconciliation. Smooth over past misunderstandings. Improve home comforts.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Good lunar aspect now coincides with changes which are dramatic. Young persons figure prominently. You also learn where you really stand with member of opposite sex. Utilize creative resources.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You are able to display unique abilities. You earn respect of one you admire. Basic issues dominate. You get on more solid footing. Home factors, which had puzzled, fall into place. You gain.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Accent versatile approach. Natural sense of humor wins friends, influences important people. Your appeal becomes more universal. Those you aided in past sing your praises. You could win popularity contest.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Money is spotlighted. You could find ways of raising additional funds. Stress original approach. Promote the unorthodox. Lead rather than follow. Be independent in thought, action. Make new contacts.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Lunar cycle high; take initiative. Judgment, intuitive intellect are honed to razor sharpness. You could be called upon to make special, personal appearance. Be positive, direct and confident.

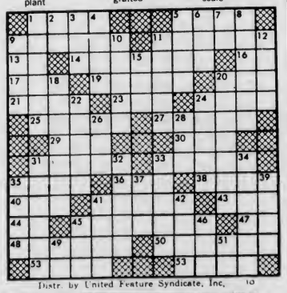
SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Realize being alone is not the same as being lonely. Some seclusion now is beneficial. Keep confidential matters confidential. Be discreet. Some are all ears and anxious to carry tales. Act accordingly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Friend who makes promises is sincere. Act accordingly. Accept social invitation. Be gregarious.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Accent on accomplishment, professional endeavors. Co-operate in community, civic project. Accept chairmanship. You gain prestige. Standing among associates is on upswing. Act like you know it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Long range projects are emphasized. See beyond the immediate. Develop philosophical concepts. Know you are the master of your own destiny. Gain indicated through writing, advertising, publishing.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Money affecting mate, business associate is featured. Get an accounting. Take inventory. Ignore pie-in-sky schemes. Stress responsibility. Subject of collateral or lack of it is spotlighted.



IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are independent, often considered rebellious. Your ideas are original; you are creative and usually "on the move." What now appears a setback is due to rebound in your favor. You make special gains through association with Leo individual.

Copyright 1971, Gen. Fea. Corp.

Crossword Puzzle

ACROSS
1 Brewer's yeast
5 Skin ailment
9 Hold back
11 Blemishes
13 Pronoun
14 Baton
16 Symbol for tellurium
17 Pigpen
19 Dined
20 Insect
21 Part of food
23 Knock
24 Gull-like bird
25 Shore birds
27 Scorches
29 Beam
30 Inlet
31 Append
33 Liquefies
35 Entreaty
36 Guido's high note
38 Places
40 Sum up
41 Pair
43 Posed for portrait
44 Note of scale
45 Wise
47 Parent (colloq.)
48 Hosts
50 More vapid
52 Cook slowly
53 Verve

DOWN
1 Improve
2 Near
3 Ethiopian title
4 Rodents
5 Solar disk
6 Vehicle
7 Symbol for nickel
8 Goes in
9 Piece of dinnerware
10 Approaches
11 Walks
12 Observed
15 Parent-teacher organization (init.)
18 Longed for 20 Chastises
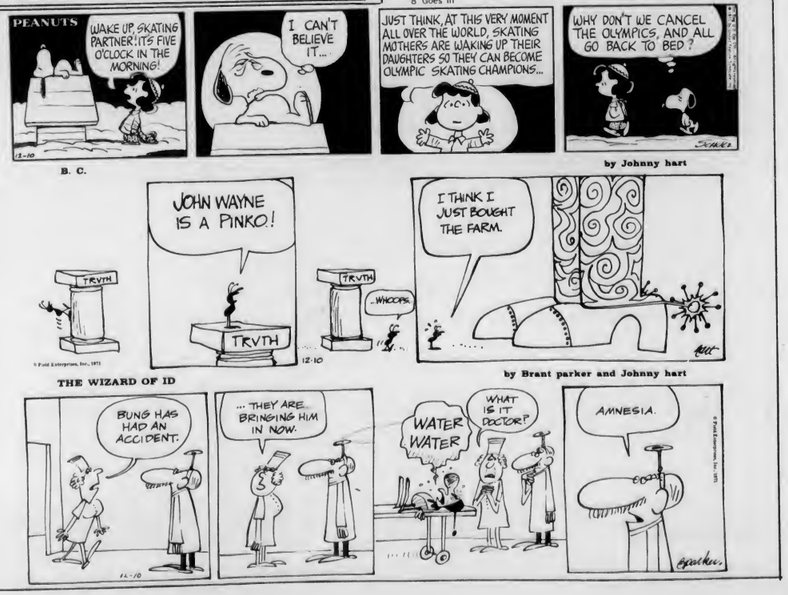
22 Climbing plant
24 Caudal appendages
26 Caustic substance
28 Before
31 Trees of birch family
32 African ground squirrel
33 Clubs
34 Part of plant
35 Brazilian estuary
37 Young boy
39 Heavenly body
41 Concoct
42 Heraldry: grafted
45 Baker's product
46 Hindu cymbals
49 Mountain (abbr.)
51 Note of scale



Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 10

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

10

LOWEST YOUTH FARES TO EUROPE $165 round-trip jet from New York

For only $165* round trip, Icelandic Airlines jets you from New York to Luxembourg in the heart of Europe for best connections to everywhere. Effective for youths aged 12 thru 29. Book within 30 days of departure. Also, check our Youth Fares to Norway, Sweden, Denmark, England and Scotland. Major credit cards accepted. See your travel agent! Mail coupon!

*Add $10 one way for departures within ten days before and after Christmas and Easter and during summer season. Fares and conditions subject to change.

To: Icelandic Airlines
630 Fifth Ave., N.Y., N.Y. 10020
(212) PL 7-8585
Send folder CN on Lowest Youth Fares to Europe ☐
Name
Street
City
State Zip
My travel agent is

ICELANDIC LOFTLEIDIR

Gymnasts Make Home Debut

By MICHAEL CUSACK

The UMass varisty gymnasts will make their first home appearance of the 1971-72 season tomorrow night in the Boyden Auxiliary Gymnasium when they host a strong So. Conn. team in a meet slated to get underway at 7:00 p.m. Although the Redmen defeated the Owls by a 157-149 score last year, a much closer meet between the two squads is anticipated Sat. night.

Scouting reports indicate that the Owls are at the same level of performance as the Redmen. So. Conn. recently defeated Temple by a 150-140 score. If one takes into account So. Conn.'s home advantage in that meet, it is apparent that the Owls, under coach A.B. Grossfeld, are capable of scoring within a point or so of the Redmen. So. Conn., one of the top teams in the nation on the College Division level, will be out to avenge last year's loss.

The Owls are led by junior John Crosby, the defending national College Division all-around champion. In addition, Crosby won eight medals at the Pan American Games, including a second place finish in the all-around. In his last meet, against Temple, Crosby took five firsts and one second place.

So. Conn. is basically an all-around team, and has a number of people to draw upon for this event. Probable lineup for Saturday will include all-arounds Victor Ziniewicz and Jay Whelan, both of whom are very strong in floor exercise and longhorse vaulting. Whelan, whose twin brother, Gene is on the UMass team, is only a freshman, and shows a great deal of promise for the future.

Redman coach Erik Kjeldsen has been satisfied with his team's workout for the past week, and feels that they should be right around the 150 level. He feels that, "If we do what we can do, we can beat them." It remains to be seen whether or not the Redmen will be able to put it all together.

Representing UMass in the all-around will be Rich Seijunas, Danny Spier, and co-capt. Tony Vacca. The Redmen will also have the services of their two top floor specialists, as Jack Berner and John Calabria return to action after injury. Steve Scuderi, the Mass. State High School All-Around titlist will go four events for UMass: pommel horse, longhorse, parallel bars, and horizontal bar. Other specialists for UMass will be John Oliver and Jay Aronstein on rings, Jay Thomsen on longhorse, co-capt. Dave Genest on parallel bars, and Tom Myslicki on horizontal bar.

Also on Saturday the UMass varsity "B" team will take on Boston State College, in their first meet of the year. This meet, also to be held in the Boyden Auxiliary Gym, will begin at 3:30.

Grapplers To Head South

By JOHN ROCK

The grapplers of UMass are back on the road this weekend and this time make their annual trip South to Lock Haven State College.

For those who know little of wrestling, which at a conservative estimate is 90% of New England, Lock Haven is a small state college deep in the heart of Pennsylvania wrestling country. It has at times been referred to as Mat Town, USA and sees crowds of at least six thousand at every dual meet.

Their field house is known as the House of Noise and achieved this name by way of housing wrestling matches.

What kind of wrestler has this college turned out? Well for starters it has produced Gray Simons, 4 time NAIA champion, 3 time NCAA champion, 2 time Olympic team member and 2 time Coach of the Year. Simons just recently left his alma mater to take the head coaching job at Indiana State of Terra Hate and left behind a squad that during his term was ranked at the top of Pennsylvania collegiate wrestling, right along side such national powers as Lehigh and Penn State.

This is the caliber of team Coach Homer Barr takes the Redmen to meet and it is no wonder that he is not to happy. "Of all years that we would have a chance to beat Lock Haven and we are missing four starters. Lock Haven suffered a big loss due to graduation and this year has four freshmen, three sophomores, one junior and two seniors in the lineup. But they will still be as tough as any team we'll see this season."

Missing in the lineup are seniors Bruce Buckbee, Jim Godkin, Dave Reynolds and Clay Jester. Buckbee and Godkin will be taking their grad school exams, Reynolds is sick and Jester has suffered a death in the family and is back in Delaware for the funeral.

Captain Shel Goldberg has rejoined the lineup and will see action at 142 pounds as he goes against Lock Haven's best bet, Rod Tate.

Russ Chateauneuf goes down to 134 while Peter Rock takes the 150 pound spot. Steve Rome moves down to 150 and freshman John Connolly takes Buckbee's place at 177.

This same shifted lineup will also take on California State College of Pennsylvania, coached by one of Lock Haven's all time greats Frank Vulcano. Vulcano also sports a weaker team than he is used to, but has one Pennsylvania college placer and an Illinois State

Wesleyan Drops Redmen

By JANIS AHMADJIAN

The UMass Varsity Swim Team bowed to a strong Wesleyan University team in Wednesday's meet 67-46. However, it was much closer than expected, Wesleyan has a strong experienced team but a couple of events could have turned the winning verdict to UMass.

There were high points for UMass including three first places. Paul Joy won first again in the diving competition this week.

UMass took a first in the freestyle relay with a winning time of 3:46.3 minutes. The relay group consisted of Dick Blaisdell, Tom Smith, Joe Hebert, and Spencer Sullivan.

The surprise win was in the 50 yard Freestyle. UMass grabbed a first place by Dick Blaisdell and a second place by Spencer Sullivan. Distance swimmer Jack Tyler again placed second in the 1,000 yard and 500 yard freestyles.

Both Coach Rogers and Coach McCafferty thought the team did a good job shwoing more experience and improvement. The team has been practicing twice daily now, at 7:00 am besides the afternoon practice.

This meet with Wesleyan has given them more experience in preparation for the big meet with Holy Cross next Tuesday night. Last year UMass pulled off a decisive victory. The team is confidently anticipating the competition.

Girl Gymnasts at Home

First meet of the University of Massachusetts girls gymnastics team will be held this Saturday, December 11th at 12:30 p.m. in the Boyden Auxiliary Gymnasium.

According to Mrs. Kitty Kjeldsen, head coach of the team, the addition of three strong freshmen to an already strong upperclass squad makes this the best team the University has ever had. The girls have high hopes for the season.

Southern Connecticut team, coached by Miss Gail Davis, has placed closely behind UMass in the Eastern Regional standing for the last three (3) years. The loss of last year's outstanding Senior, Sally Espe, will definitely be felt, but Southern Connecticut Girls seem to have plenty of depth.

Members of the UMass Varsity Girls gymnastic team are:

Margie Combs and Betsy East (co-captains), Marina Rodriquez, Anne Burmeister-Vexler, Jeannine Burger, Gail Hannan and Thanne Poth.

For the first year, UMass girls have a completely separate JV team, coached by Virginia Evans from the Women's Physical Education Department. First home meet for the JV's will be on Saturday, December 18th, when the girls will compete against Montclair YMCA.

There is a small admission charge for all the girls meets this year.

Theta Chi
Open House
Dec. 10th, Friday 8:30 —
496 N. Pleasant St.

20% OFF SHOE SALE
(Men's and Women's) NOW!!
THE SHOE-BIN In the Alley
Men's Boots $25 $22 Now $17.00

JUST PERFECT
Doubleknit Slacks
Heavy Corduroys
Imported Sweaters and Turtlenecks
Knit Shirts & Tops
...and the area's largest selection of jeans
NICE THINGS FOR EVERY BODY
WEAR-HOUSE Male SLACKS JEANS
201 North Pleasant Street, Amherst

Hoopmen Battle NU In Road Opener

By EARLE BARROLL

Jack Leaman has found his own solution to losing weight...Just coach a barn-burner like Wednesday night's game against Holy Cross and you lose ten pounds. At least that's what he said after the game.

But come the day after and you're as good as new, the ten pounds restored, the nerves a little less on edge and the smile a little more broad.

What to do about the weight gain?....go on the road and coach another barn-burner. And that's just what Leaman and his Redmen will do tomorrow night when they travel to Northeastern University for their initial road game beginning at 8:15.

Leaman is concerned with this game (about eight pounds worth). "Any team that can take Harvard (the so-called pride of Boston) down to the buzzer has to be a good team and we have to be ready to play."

He was also quick to point out that his teams haven't had overwhelming luck with the Huskies, even though his record with them since his first year as head coach is 3-1.

"Northeastern plays a discipline type of game (this has been their history) and it will be our job to get them running which means using the press," he said. "They won't be as big as Holy Cross and they'll force us to make the action and this could cause problems especially on defense....The key to this game is how well we play defense."

Coming off the big win over the Crusaders Leaman said one of his main concerns will be to get the team off "cloud nine."

"We're not good enough to take anyone lightly," he emphasized," but this is the advantage of this team...we understand we always have to be ready against anyone we play."

So far this season the Huskies stand at 0-2, but the total loss margin for these games is only five points. The Crimson were lucky to get by them in the Bean Pot opener, 57-54, when a Huskie missed a one-and-one that would have given Northeastern the game. (Harvard converted at the buzzer to make the margin three). Against New Hampshire they lost 48-46 in a historically Northeastern type game, no team hitting the half-century mark.

They'll present the Redmen with either of two type teams depending on the physical status of their floor leader, 5'6 Kevin Lecy who was injured in the UNH game. (So there is someone the same size as Ed "The Flea" Malloy, former URI pest).

If he starts the Huskies will be a more mobile team, he makes them go. If he doesn't his replacement will be 6'4 John Barros and the Huskies will be slow, but bigger.

The four other starters are 6'2 Mark Jellison at guard, 6'4 Paul McDonough and 6'4 Jim Moxley at the forwards and 6'6 John Haviland at center.

As a unit they're very patient and they have a continuity in their offense, running the same plays out of different formations. According to freshman coach "Fan" Gaudette who scouted them, the biggest thing about this team is that they don't want to get involved in a running game, a definite challenge to the Redmen.

To sum the Huskies up, they're a fundamentally sound ball club and present a stiff road opener for UMass.

NU To Test Frosh

By FRED ROSENTHAL

Tomorrow night will mark two firsts for the UMass freshman basketball team. At 6:30 p.m. the UMass frosh will play their first game away from home. Playing at Northeastern, the frosh will see the first team which can match them inch for inch.

UMass center John Murphy (6'8) will be playing for the first time against someone his own size as will forward Tom Gillams (6'6). Murphy who has averaged 26 points per game in his first three contests will be matched against Northeastern's 6'8 center, Bill Stanton. Gillams will be matched up with a good shooting forward, Jim Connors (6'6).

Northeastern's other three starters also match up well in size. They are Ed Smith (6'3), Jake Swann (6'1) and Bill Rosary, a flashy 6'0 guard from Hyannis.

Although UMass has been impressive in its first three games, Coach "Fan" Gaudette feels that the freshmen are "much better than we have shown." The Little Redmen will need to show more to beat Northeastern who promise to give them their toughest game thus far.

UMass fr. 85, Holy Cross fr. 65

Big Ten Buries Woody

CHICAGO (AP) — The Big Ten rescinded its no-repeat Rose Bowl rule Thursday, but buried another controversial item-volatile Woody Hayes--under a blanket of no comment.

A Big Ten source said that action on the outburst of Hayes, Ohio State football coach, during the season's final game, which Michigan won 10-7 at Ann Arbor, is "something we would keep within the conference family."

Wayne Duke, the new Big Ten commissioner, said "absolutely no comment," when asked if any disciplinary action was taken against the dean of conference football coaches.

It was learned, however, that Hayes' emotional episode was discussed not only by athletic directors but also by faculty representatives before they ended their annual business meeting Thursday.

The stormy Hayes may have been reprimanded for his scene at the game. He boiled over when Michigan safety Tom Darden intercepted a pass intended for Ohio State split end Dick Wakefield at the Wolverine 31-yard line in the game's closing minutes.

Hayes, finishing his 21st season as the Buckeye coach, thought there was interference. He stalked onto the field and was assessed two 15-yard misconduct penalties by referee Jerry Markbreit.

UMass Hockey On The Air

Tonight at 6:50 Dan Kamal and Bill Ballou will open WMUA's seasonal coverage of UMass hockey from Norwich as the Redmen battle the always tough Cadets in important Division II action.

Tomorrow night Ken Best and Marty Kelley will be at Northeastern to call all the action as the UMass basketball team makes its initial visit to Boston Air time is 8 p.m.

And Sunday night at 10 p.m. Kelley and Best will host a wrestling coach Homer Barr and his captain Shelley Goldberg on "Sports Talk."

A big weekend of sports for WMUA, 91.1 f.m., the Voice of UMass Sports.

Pucksters Hit Road For Two

By BILL BALLOU

If the great Andre Kile were to include hockey predictions in his mentalism act, then the big question around Amherst would be- "Andre, what will the record of the Redmen be when they return to UMass on Sunday?" And if Andre knew his hockey and did not want to lose his reputation as an allstar he would say, "I don't know."

UMass fans and of course coach Jack Canniff and his skaters are hoping that the answer will be 5-0. However the two games the Redmen play over the weekend are both on the road and both against teams that have always given UMass squads fits.

The first of these two major contests is tonight in Northfield, Vermont at Taylor Rink on the campus of Norwich University. On paper and by comparison of scores versus like opponents, this should shape up as a UMass win. But the Cadets are always tough in their own rink and through the years have generally found the Redmen to be easy pickings as they have won nine out of the ten games played between the two teams. However, UMass will be easy pickings for no one, nowhere, and at no time this year. Just ask the Catamountts from Vermont.

On Saturday night the skaters move over to Middlebury, Vermont for a game that promises to be no more easier than the Norwich encounter. In this one the high-scoring Redmen go face to face with Soph sensation Larry Perlman, a Montreal native who has been nearly unbeatable in the Middlebury nets. This is another club that has always given the Redmen trouble, with the all-time record standing at seven wins for Middlebury and five for UMass.

This is indeed a key weekend for the Redmen. Everyone knows they can and will win at home, and last Saturday night pretty much told the same story about how things will be on the road. But neither one of these teams has ever been a patsie, especially at home. Two wins would be the ideal, making them 5-0 on the season and giving them a 3-0 mark on the road with only five regular season games left away from home. But even a split leaves UMass with a super start of 4-1 with three of the five games having been played in enemy rinks. Of course losing both games puts a sizable crimp in the pucksters' playoff sails and even thinking about that type of situation is enough to make the great Andre Kole turn in his crystal ball.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian SPORTS

POINT BLANK—Eric Scrafield, Redman wing, takes a shot at point-blank range, only to be frustrated by Williams goaltender Bill Jacobs. Don Riley is Redman in background. (Photo by Dan Kamal)

Grapplers Draw 20-20 Tie

By JOHN BOCK

"We've got to go get 'em." With these words Coach Homer Barr summarized his grapplers performance in their Tuesday evening match that ended in a 20-20 draw against the Blue Devils of Central Connecticut.

A small but enthusiastic crowd saw the Blue Devils enter the match with a big change in their lineup and fully expecting a loss. By the time the 177 pound match rolled around Central was ahead 17-11.

The big problem for the Redmen was their lack of aggressiveness on their feet in the neutral position. Three takedowns and eight out of ten scoreless first periods were evidence that the grapplers need to start taking their nasty pills.

Dave Amato was one of the few Redmen lacking the lethargy that gripped the team. He went ahead with a quick takedown and predicament and stayed ahead to put UMass in the lead 3-0.

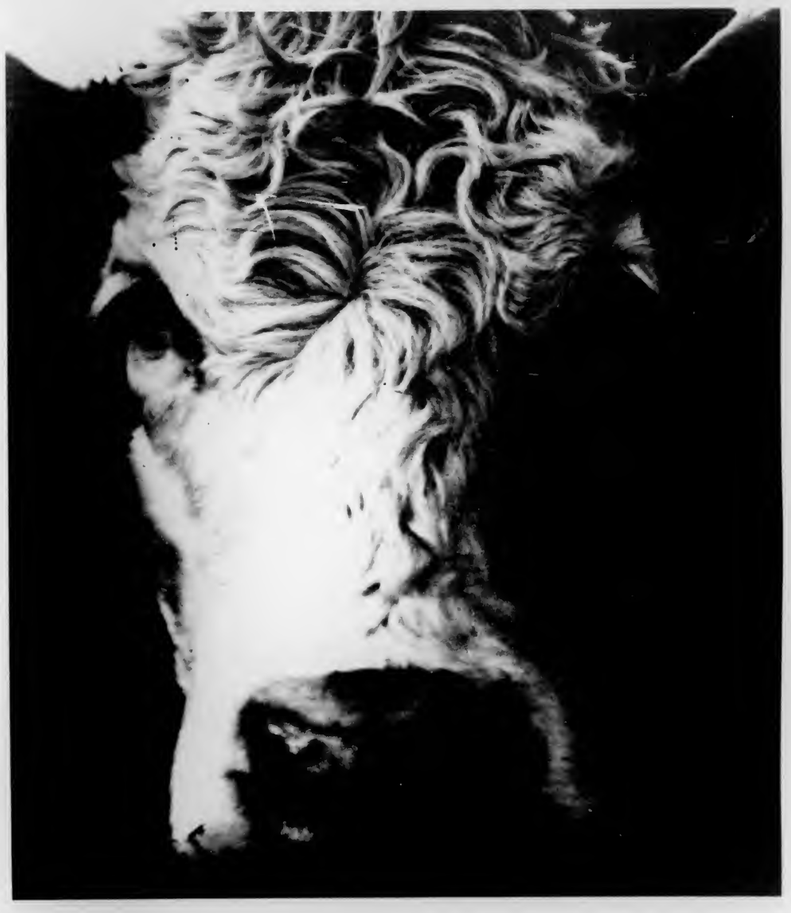
Barry Godowsky at 126 pounds lost a 4-0 decision to Central's best man, 15-3-1 John Hamilton. Barry was clearly the aggressor but made a few mistakes that cost him points.

Freshman Mike McLaughlin turned in a stellar performance by recording his first pin on the Varsity mat at 3:57 on the second period. The tough 134 pounder from Pennslyvania had the bottom position and reversed his man in a lightning fast move and then clamped him to go off and rest and take 6 team points with him to put UMass back in the lead 9-3.

Russ Chateauneuf, who, is currently holding the fort until captain Shelley Goldberg can rejoin the lineup, chalked up his first career tie at 142 lbs., against the Blue Devil co-captain.

Said the freshman from Lowell, "I've never tied in my life; I either win or lose." He almost kept that record as he brought the crowd to its feet in the last minute of action by dragging the Central grappler back onto the mat and desperately trying to turn him over for the points he needed to break the tie. Chateauneuf brings his Varsity record to 2-0-1.

Senior Bruce Buckbee showed what losing 23 pounds can do for a guy's performance as he mauled his opponent 7-0. Never has a person worked harder for a fall, but the ref just wasn't satisfied. The Central boy if asked, though, could probably tell how many lights are in the auxiliary gym ceiling.



The Blue Devil at 190 wasn't out long enough to see his opponent let alone count lights. Defending New England Champ Carl Dambman racked up his second pin and new UMass record by decking his man in 26 seconds, bettering the old record held by Clay Jester, by 5 seconds.

With tough Lock Haven coming up on the schedule this weekend the grapplers know that they will have to sharpen their takedowns and come out from under the bottom position much faster. And as far as takedowns go, the Redmen are depending on single legs for a miracle. Coach Barr has shown them some fine takedowns so the question is why aren't they using them?

Poor Richard's

A Weekly Magazine

'Take out the middle and throw the rest away'

Beg Beef is on the move. Stand back or get knocked over.

You've Gotta Wash It Like You Want It,

By DON SAINT—PIERRE

That Jane is an average girl is, at first glance, obvious. She is 20, a junior, maintains a comfortable circle of friends, and takes the Pill for "reasons of comfort".

That she is a murderer may not be so obvious. Last night in the innocence of the times she had a friend in her room "to study", with all the events that transpire at such an occasion.

Jane's problem is that her friend had gonorrhea which has now been transmitted to her. Jane will probably never know she has been infected until, in a few years when she wishes so, she will find she cannot get pregnant. You see, Jane's reproductive organs will then be covered with scar tissue and will not function properly.

If there's consolation in numbers, Jane is not alone. And her companions with this problem are increasing every day. According to Dr. Nicholas Fiamara of the Massachusetts Department of Public Health, venereal disease is growing at "epidemic proportions", and may already be out of control.

Barry Averill, Acting Director of Health Services, prefers not to classify the problem as such; he feels the facts are disturbing enough. In the school year '67-'68 there were 40 "visits" of individuals under treatment for venereal disease. (A person may make more than one visit to complete the cure). This figure rose to 174 visits in the '70-'71 school year. Though not having figures for the current year, he said the trend is continuing, possibly at a faster rate.

The current V.D. problem is two-pronged - syphilis, the more dangerous, and gonorrhea.

The danger of syphilis lies in its range of attack. The spirochetes are transmitted only through intimate sexual or physical contact. The rumor of transmission by toilets or door handles is convenient but untenable.

In its primary stage, usually about three weeks after contact, it is characterized by a chancre either on the genital organs or with homosexuals, in the anus or mouth. (I will cover this in more detail later.) The sore develops as white corpuscles pack the infected area cutting off the blood supply and killing the tissue. The lesion is painless and usually disappears in a few weeks without treatment. In a few months the second stage appears, in the form of a rash, sores, falling hair, or a fever. Then, too, these disappear. If the patient is not treated at this point the disease enters its latent or "silent stage", presenting no visible symptoms. This

Continues on Page 3A

Aardvarks

The president awoke from his purple dreams with a start. He sat up and found The Countersink standing silently at the foot of his bed.

"What are you doing?" he mumbled.

"Forgive me, forgive me, your highness," said the Countersink. "We have an emergency on our hands. Are you quite well after all the feasting and following merriment?"

"What feasting? What merriment? There's a meeting tonight. I have to spend the day meditating with the bishop, over a censer of pungent and fragrant, hmmm, shall we say, incense?"

"Incense indeed. But I have not come to this cave you call a bedroom to quibble. We have an emergency on our hands." The Countersink was wroth with anxiety.

The president lay in bed, relaxed. No emergency could rouse him on this morning of mornings. Yesterday a child, today a man. He sent Countersink away. Countersink protested, but went home to feed his dog and nurse his emergency till a more fortuitous hour when the president had a clearer head.

The president languished until he was satisfied that Countersink must be strangling on his emergency. He rose, bathed, and dressed himself in full regalia, including his dungarees with the brocade patch, the faded work shirt which had seen him through several successful seasons, and his straw hat, now tattered and torn, but with its legend still readable-"Kiss me I'm Radical." Countersink, as his trusty squire, dressed the same way, only his straw hat read "Kiss me I never got to play Hamlet."

The president strolled over to Countersink's rambling, slovenly warren and kicked his way through the layers of years-old garbage which carpeted the place.

"I say, Countersink, can't you keep a more respectable home? I can't be seen coming in here too much more if this keeps up. Now, what is your emergency, and be quick about it, because the bar opens at 11 and I must be first in line. It is the big day, you know."

"Yes, your highness. I fully realize that you are today a man, yesterday a child. But this emergency is of the utmost..."

"Nonsense. No emergency is of the utmost anything, my dear Countersink. You must remember that if you want to succeed in summer stock. Now, make me a cup of coffee."

Countersink moved off to the kitchen with a dull light in his eyes.

"The young fool," he mumbled. "No one yells at me, the Countersink, like that. No one! No one!"

Countersink began to lose control. He braced himself against the counter and began to sweat and shout.

"Oh, that this all too solid flesh would melt...no! I can't! Get hold of yourself, Countersink."

"Hurry with the coffee!" The president's voice floated in from the other room.

The Countersink looked about the kitchen feverishly, trying to find something that looked like coffee. His eyes rested on a familiar red, white and blue can. Some kind of car treatment. Three letters. S...T...P...Countersink was quick with the alphabet. Coffee? he thought? Of course, it will do.

He took a coffee cup out of a cupboard and filled it to the brim with the gooey gunk from the can.

There, he thought. That'll fix 'em for a while. We'll see who's got the emergency.

To be continued.

D.W.

GIs And The Army-The Politics Of Smoke

Drug abuse by GIs has driven the Army into fits. Brass first tried to deny the fact that grunts in Vietnam were using dope, later they admitted that there was a problem and tried to deal with it. Their plan worked, to a degree, and grass disappeared, only to be replaced by heroin and other drugs. Now, dope, smoking in the Army seems to be practically ignored while authorities try to deal with GI junkies. Lucian Truscott of the Village Voice recounts his experiences with dope in the Army in the first of a two-part series on the politics of smoke.

Pages 8a & 9a

Nuremberg And Vietnam-No Analogy

Some people feel that certain Americans military and civilian leader should be held legally responsible for war crimes and crimes of aggression because of U.S. involvement in Vietnam. In his review of Telford Taylor's "Nuremburg and Vietnam: An American Tragedy", Frank Baglione considers this claim as discussed by the author and has a little to say about what the real tragedy may be. Have most Americans been good little Germans while their leaders goosesteps them into an unjust war? Or is the comparison Nuremburg and Vietnam an unintelligent one based on emotionalism.

Page 5a

Bootlegs Again Cop A Page

Will the Bootleg curiosity never cease? What new surprises are in store for us in the months to come? This week's installment in the continuing story of Slippery Steve and his record machine features Rod Stewart, John Sebastian, The Band, and a whole slew of others.

Page 7a

And Something Scrumptiously Crunchable

Poor Richard is off the hook, friends, so we can all take a deep breath. Don't hold it too long, though. Makes your lungs turn black. Well, what interesting surprises do we have in store for you this week? To begin with, there are record reviews, and record reviews, and more record reviews. Taj Mahal, Traffic, Shawn Phillips, Soft Machine, Siegal-Schwall, just to name a few. Movies, we have movies. King Kong, Trojan Women--pages 12 and 13. Frank Johnson has reached a clearing and marks time explaining tuners before he pushes on through the verbage. Walter Kerr takes "Indians" apart. (Not for us, for the N.Y. Times.) But what we do to it is something to behold, assholes from the Collegian indeed!

Poor Richard's

Vol. I number nine

Compiled weekly by Bob Nesti and David Williams

This week's staff: Kenneth Sutin, Steve Feld, Frank Baglione, Frank Johnson, Pete Forget, Ted Pietras, Karen Walsh, Richard P. Barry, Steve Colwell, Jim Lavrakas, Gary Gomes, Wayne Tiffany, Don Saint Pierre

Photo credits: Gary Alpaugh, cover; After Dark, p. 5a; New York Times, p. 5a; Rolling Stone, p. 9a; Earth, p. 8a; Esquire, p. 13a

No responsibility assumed for unsolicited and unmarked manuscripts. If you want it back, mark it plainly

Poor Richard's is the weekly magazine of the MDC. Contributions and comments may be delivered to the MDC office. Interested staff members may contact either David [illegible] or Bob Nesti.

Or You'll Lose That Thing

Continued from Page 1A

may last anywhere from five to fifty years. If one must find a light in the darkness, in the latent stage the victim loses his infectiousness to others; he will be alone in his misery.

The late, or fourth stage, may manifest itself in any body system, but the cardio-vascular and nervous systems seem to be preferred. Syphilis attacks the heart in many ways: the valves may be destroyed rendering the pump useless; it may cause "stretched sacs" to develop in the aorta; or it may inflame the mouths of the coronary ateries cutting off the heart's blood supply. All these may prove fatal.

It may also attack the nervous system causing varying degrees of paralysis or it may lead to extreme mental and physical deterioration and death.

The problem with syphilis is that you may have it and not know it. There are a half-million undiagnosed cases. This silent character is the major problem in controlling it. Fortunately, there is an acute blood test and many cases are detected this way. Also, because of its long incubation period, public health officials are able to track down the carriers, finding all sexual partners of an infected person and treating them before they can spread the disease to others.

The blood test for diagnosing syphilis was developed by a German scientist, August Von Wassermann in 1906. In recent years improvements have been made on this technique in order to achieve greater accuracy in testing.

Penicillin is still the best and most effective treatment. (It is said that if comparable progress has been made for the treatment of heart disease or cancer, these would no longer plague mankind.) A person with syphilis can be completely cured if treated early. Treatment in the later stages will stop progress, but the parts of the body already destroyed cannot be replaced. Also, a person cured of syphilis can become infected again by having sexual relations with an infected person.

Gonorrhea, which is caused by the gonococcus germ, is also transmitted by sexual relations, but there the similarities end. In the male the symptoms are very obvious: a burning pain when urinating accompanied with a discharge of pus. But, 10 percent of the males and 80 percent of the females never develop visible symptoms. This results in what has been called "a reservoir" of infected women.

Gonorrhea is essentially a disease of the linings of the genito-urinary organs. It is highly sensitive to drying, change in temperatures and weak antiseptics. On the other hand, the eyes of new born babies and the immature sexual organs of small girls are extremely susceptible.

The incubation period is about three weeks. In women, the urethra and cervical canal are first infected, but, most are unaware of this condition. If not treated various complications may arise, the most serious being inflamation of the fallopian tubes which become twisted with scar tissue. If both tubes are affected complete sterility may result. In the male, scab tissue may develop in the tubes which carry the sperm, rendering him sterile also. Gonorrhea may also cause a form of arthritis or inflamation of the joints.

"I came back, and do I look like I'm having fun?"

In detecting gonorrhea there is no blood test screening process as in syphilis, and the vaginal smear test used for woman is only 60-80 percent accurate. Even if it could be detected easily, its incubation period is so short, the case finding method is all but useless. It has been said that tracing gonorrhea is like trying to trace the common cold.

The cause and the cures of the VD epidemic are varied and complex. They involve behavior patterns, scientific problems and, probably most important, public attitudes. For even now, despite our self-proclaimed "liberation" in sexual matters, V.D. remains clouded in myth and taboo. A public health department spokesman said that one of the biggest reasons for the continued existence of gonorrhea and syphilis is that decent people don't acquire the disease, or talk about the disease, or do anything about those who do become infected.

Syphilis and gonorrhea present somewhat different problems, but both are apparently being spread by the sexual revolution. Some researchers do not think that any more is happening now than 30 years ago, but most doctors who treat VD feel that increased sexual activity, particularly "indiscriminate" activity, contributes to the epidemic.

Most physicians agree that we could solve the syphilis problem if we really wanted to. Syphilis was a scourge until penicillin was discovered. The rates dropped swiftly after that, and in the mid-fifties health authorities relaxed, thinking the disease was headed for extinction. But the rates jumped again as soon as control efforts eased.

In 1962, after the Surgeon General called attention to the renewed problem, the Federal Government put about $7-million a year into syphilis control, most of it to pay case finders. In the last two years, Federal funds have held steady and dropped in some cases; in a time of inflation, this has produced havoc.

A few years ago, health authorities were tracking down 98 per cent of the syphilis cases; today they can reach only about 50 per cent. Thus, after a steady decline, syphilis rates leaped 8 per cent in fiscal 1970 and 15.6 percent last year.

Homosexuals are responsible for an increasing percentage of VD cases. In data reported by 28 states in 1969, homosexual relationships were responsible for 16 percent of syphilitic infections and about 9 percent of gonorrheal infections.

In New York City, 35 percent of the male syphilis patients during one recent year reported at least one homosexual experience. About 4 percent of female patients with early syphilis revealed homosexual activity.

Contact investigation of homosexuals is relatively difficult. An experienced VD investigator said, "We have to cope with the stigma society has placed on homosexuality, and with the special fear of the patient to 'name names.'"

But, in the final analysis, most doctors agree the major cause of the epidemic is the birth control pill, for in addition to ending the fear of pregnancy it replaces that traditional, if inconvenient, means of contraception, the condom, or safe. These were originally designed to prevent V.D. and remain the most effective prophylatic method (90 percent sure against syphilis, and nearly 100 percent against gonorrhea). Also, many doctors believe the pill actually changes the chemical environment of the vagina from acidic, which tends to kill germs, to alkaline, which doesn't.

One estimate says 20-30 percent of the women who are exposed to gonorrhea and are not on the pill actually catch it. Ninety percent of the women on the pill and exposed to gonorrhea catch it.

The general rule for prevention, or at least a degree of safeguard, seems to be grandma's soap and water trip. Barry Averill says, "If an individual suspects he or she may have had relations with an infected individual, or better yet, whenever an individual has relations, thoroughly wash with soap and water the genital area." He feels that washing both before and after balling will reduce the possibility of transmission of veneral disease considerably. (Perhaps we need a bumper sticker campaign proclaiming "Foreplay begins in the Shower").

If there is the slightest suspicion of contact with any venereal disease, students should remember that all information maintained by Health Services is confidential and will not be released, under any circumstances without the student's signature.

Averill said that they are prepared to handle any case and will treat all as quickly and as quietly as possible. Students need only apply through normal channels and check the "personal problem-M.D." box; thereby limiting knowledge of their problem to the doctor only.

As Averill said, "If everyone who had or was in contact with a venereal disease reported it the problem would disappear in a few weeks. We have the cure; all we need is the patient."

Feiffer

Aardvarks

The president awoke from his purple dreams with a start. He sat up and found The Countersink standing silently at the foot of his bed.

"What are you doing?" he mumbled.

"Forgive me, forgive me, your highness," said the Countersink. "We have an emergency on our hands. Are you quite well after all the feasting and following merriment?"

"What feasting? What merriment? There's a meeting tonight. I have to spend the day meditating with the bishop, over a censer of pungent and fragrant, hmmm, shall we say, incense?"

"Incense indeed. But I have not come to this cave you call a bedroom to quibble. We have an emergency on our hands." The Countersink was wroth with anxiety.

The president lay in bed, relaxed. No emergency could rouse him on this morning of mornings. Yesterday a child, today a man. He sent Countersink away. Countersink protested, but went home to feed his dog and nurse his emergency till a more fortuitous hour when the president had a clearer head.

The president languished until he was satisfied that Countersink must be strangling on his emergency. He rose, bathed, and dressed himself in full regalia, including his dungarees with the brocade patch, the faded work shirt which had seen him through several successful seasons, and his straw hat, now tattered and torn, but with its legend still readable-"Kiss me I'm Radical." Countersink, as his trusty squire, dressed the same way, only his straw hat read "Kiss me I never got to play Hamlet."

The president strolled over to Countersink's rambling, slovenly warren and kicked his way through the layers of years-old garbage which carpeted the place.

"I say, Countersink, can't you keep a more respectable home? I can't be seen coming in here too much more if this keeps up. Now, what is your emergency, and be quick about it, because the bar opens at 11 and I must be first in line. It is the big day, you know."

"Yes, your highness. I fully realize that you are today a man, yesterday a child. But this emergency is of the utmost..."

"Nonsense. No emergency is of the utmost anything, my dear Countersink. You must remember that if you want to succeed in summer stock. Now, make me a cup of coffee."

Countersink moved off to the kitchen with a dull light in his eyes.

"The young fool," he mumbled. "No one yells at me, the Countersink, like that. No one! No one!"

Countersink began to lose control. He braced himself against the counter and began to sweat and shout.

"Oh, that this all too solid flesh would melt...no! I can't! Get hold of yourself, Countersink."

"Hurry with the coffee!" The president's voice floated in from the other room.

The Countersink looked about the kitchen feverishly, trying to find something that looked like coffee. His eyes rested on a familiar red, white and blue can. Some kind of car treatment. Three letters. S...T...P...Countersink was quick with the alphabet. Coffee? he thought? Of course, it will do.

He took a coffee cup out of a cupboard and filled it to the brim with the gooey gunk from the can.

There, he thought. That'll fix 'em for a while. We'll see who's got the emergency.

To be continued.

D.W.

GIs And The Army-The Politics Of Smoke

Drug abuse by GIs has driven the Army into fits. Brass first tried to deny the fact that grunts in Vietnam were using dope, later they admitted that there was a problem and tried to deal with it. Their plan worked, to a degree, and grass disappeared, only to be replaced by heroin and other drugs. Now, dope, smoking in the Army seems to be practically ignored while authorities try to deal with GI junkies. Lucian Truscott of the Village Voice recounts his experiences with dope in the Army in the first of a two-part series on the politics of smoke.

Pages 8a & 9a

Nuremberg And Vietnam-No Analogy

Some people feel that certain Americans military and civilian leader should be held legally responsible for war crimes and crimes of aggression because of U.S. involvement in Vietnam. In his review of Telford Taylor's "Nuremburg and Vietnam: An American Tragedy", Frank Baglione considers this claim as discussed by the author and has a little to say about what the real tragedy may be. Have most Americans been good little Germans while their leaders goosesteps them into an unjust war? Or is the comparison Nuremburg and Vietnam an unintelligent one based on emotionalism.

Page 5a

Bootlegs Again Cop A Page

Will the Bootleg curiosity never cease? What new surprises are in store for us in the months to come? This week's installment in the continuing story of Slippery Steve and his record machine features Rod Stewart, John Sebastian. The Band, and a whole slew of others.

Page 7a

And Something Scrumptiously Crunchable

Poor Richard is off the hook, friends, so we can all take a deep breath. Don't hold it too long, though. Makes your lungs turn black. Well, what interesting surprises do we have in store for you this week? To begin with, there are record reviews, and record reviews, and more record reviews. Taj Mahal, Traffic, Shawn Phillips, Soft Machine, Siegal-Schwall, just to name a few. Movies, we have movies. King Kong, Trojan Women--pages 12 and 13. Frank Johnson has reached a clearing and marks time explaining tuners before he pushes on through the verbage. Walter Kerr takes "Indians" apart. (Not for us, for the N.Y. Times.) But what we do to it is something to behold, assholes from the Collegian indeed!

Poor Richard's

Vol. I number nine

Compiled weekly by Bob Nesti and David Williams

This week's staff: Kenneth Sulin, Steve Feld, Frank Baglione, Frank Johnson, Pete Forget, Ted Pietras, Karen Walsh, Richard P. Barry, Steve Colwell, Jim Lavrakas, Gary Gomes, Wayne Tiffany, Don Saint Pierre

Cover credits: Gary Alpaugh, cover; After Dark, p. 1a; New York Times, p. 5a; Rolling Stone, p. 9a; Earth, p. 8a; Esquire, p. 13a

No responsibility assumed for unsolicited and unmarked manuscripts. If you want it back, mark it plainly.

Poor Richard's is the weekly magazine of the MDC. Comments and comments may be delivered to the MDC office. Creative staff members may contact either David or Bob Nesti.

Or You'll Lose That Thing

Continued from Page 1A

may last anywhere from five to fifty years. If one must find a light in the darkness, in the latent stage the victim loses his infectiousness to others; he will be alone in his misery.

The late, or fourth stage, may manifest itself in any body system, but the cardio-vascular and nervous systems seem to be preferred. Syphilis attacks the heart in many ways: the valves may be destroyed rendering the pump useless; it may cause "stretched sacs" to develop in the aorta; or it may inflame the mouths of the coronary ateries cutting off the heart's blood supply. All these may prove fatal.

It may also attack the nervous system causing varying degrees of paralysis or it may lead to extreme mental and physical deterioration and death.

The problem with syphilis is that you may have it and not know it. There are a half-million undiagnosed cases. This silent character is the major problem in controlling it. Fortunately, there is an acute blood test and many cases are detected this way. Also, because of its long incubation period, public health officials are able to track down the carriers, finding all sexual partners of an infected person and treating them before they can spread the disease to others.

The blood test for diagnosing syphilis was developed by a German scientist, August Von Wassermann in 1906. In recent years improvements have been made on this technique in order to achieve greater accuracy in testing.

Penicillin is still the best and most effective treatment. (It is said that if comparable progress has been made for the treatment of heart disease or cancer, these would no longer plague mankind.) A person with syphilis can be completely cured if treated early. Treatment in the later stages will stop progress, but the parts of the body already destroyed cannot be replaced. Also, a person cured of syphilis can become infected again by having sexual relations with an infected person.

Gonorrhea, which is caused by the gonococcus germ, is also transmitted by sexual relations, but there the similarities end. In the male the symptoms are very obvious: a burning pain when urinating accompanied with a discharge of pus. But, 10 percent of the males and 80 percent of the females never develop visible symptoms. This results in what has been called "a reservoir" of infected women.

Gonorrhea is essentially a disease of the linings of the genito-urinary organs. It is highly sensitive to drying, change in temperatures and weak antiseptics. On the other hand, the eyes of new born babies and the immature sexual organs of small girls are extremely susceptible.

The incubation period is about three weeks. In women, the urethra and cervical canal are first infected, but most are unaware of this condition. If not treated various complications may arise, the most serious being inflamation of the fallopian tubes which become twisted with scar tissue. If both tubes are affected complete sterility may result. In the male, scab tissue may develop in the tubes which carry the sperm, rendering him sterile also. Gonorrhea may also cause a form of arthritis or inflamation of the joints.

"I came back, and do I look like I'm having fun?"

In detecting gonorrhea there is no blood test screening process as in syphilis, and the vaginal smear test used for woman is only 60-80 percent accurate. Even if it could be detected easily, its incubation period is so short, the case finding method is all but useless. It has been said that tracing gonorrhea is like trying to trace the common cold.

The cause and the cures of the VD epidemic are varied and complex. They involve behavior patterns, scientific problems and, probably most important, public attitudes. For even now, despite our self-proclaimed "liberation" in sexual matters, V.D. remains clouded in myth and taboo. A public health department spokesman said that one of the biggest reasons for the continued existence of gonorrhea and syphilis is that decent people don't acquire the disease, or talk about the disease, or do anything about those who do become infected.

Syphilis and gonorrhea present somewhat different problems, but both are apparently being spread by the sexual revolution. Some researchers do not think that any more is happening now than 30 years ago, but most doctors who treat VD feel that increased sexual activity, particularly "indiscriminate" activity, contributes to the epidemic.

Most physicians agree that we could solve the syphilis problem if we really wanted to. Syphilis was a scourge until penicillin was discovered. The rates dropped swiftly after that, and in the mid-fifties health authorities relaxed, thinking the disease was headed for extinction. But the rates jumped again as soon as control efforts eased.

In 1962, after the Surgeon General called attention to the renewed problem, the Federal Government put about $7-million a year into syphilis control, most of it to pay case finders. In the last two years, Federal funds have held steady and dropped in some cases; in a time of inflation, this has produced havoc.

A few years ago, health authorities were tracking down 98 per cent of the syphilis cases; today they can reach only about 50 per cent. Thus, after a steady decline, syphilis rates leaped 8 per cent in fiscal 1970 and 15.6 percent last year.

Homosexuals are responsible for an increasing percentage of VD cases. In data reported by 28 states in 1969, homosexual relationships were responsible for 16 percent of syphilitic infections and about 9 percent of gonorrheal infections.

In New York City, 35 percent of the male syphilis patients during one recent year reported at least one homosexual experience. About 4 percent of female patients with early syphilis revealed homosexual activity.

Contact investigation of homosexuals is relatively difficult. An experienced VD investigator said, "We have to cope with the stigma society has placed on homosexuality, and with the special fear of the patient to 'name names.'"

But, in the final analysis, most doctors agree the major cause of the epidemic is the birth control pill, for in addition to ending the fear of pregnancy it replaces that traditional, if inconvenient, means of contraception, the condom, or safe. These were originally designed to prevent V.D. and remain the most effective prophylatic method (90 percent sure against syphilis, and nearly 100 percent against gonorrhea). Also, many doctors believe the pill actually changes the chemical environment of the vagina from acidic, which tends to kill germs, to alkaline, which doesn't.

One estimate says 20-30 percent of the women who are exposed to gonorrhea and are not on the pill actually catch it. Ninety percent of the women on the pill and exposed to gonorrhea catch it.

The general rule for prevention, or at least a degree of safeguard, seems to be grandma's soap and water trip. Barry Averill says, "If an individual suspects he or she may have had relations with an infected individual, or better yet, whenever an individual has relations, thoroughly wash with soap and water the genital area." He feels that washing both before and after balling will reduce the possibility of transmission of venereal disease considerably. (Perhaps we need a bumper sticker campaign proclaiming "Foreplay begins in the Shower").

If there is the slightest suspicion of contact with any venereal disease, students should remember that all information maintained by Health Services is confidential and will not be released, under any circumstances without the student's signature.

Averill said that they are prepared to handle any case and will treat all as quickly and as quietly as possible. Students need only apply through normal channels and check the "personal problem-M.D." box; thereby limiting knowledge of their problem to the doctor only.

As Averill said, "If everyone who had or was in contact with a venereal disease reported it the problem would disappear in a few weeks. We have the cure; all we need is the patient."

Feiffer

The Lurid Truth About Religious Rock Opera

What A Friend We Have In Jesus

By JERSEY NAT MOSS

I. Why Religious Rock Operas Sell So Good

Anyone who still dares to walk the streets of our great cities knows that it's become nigh onto impossible lately to take an innocent stroll down Hollywood Blvd., minding his own God-damn business, without a pair of longhaired beatnicks forcing upon his person a slip of paper or pamphlet or what-not on which is provided either the address and phone number of some zealot who promises to do him a lot of good spiritually sight unseen or perhaps the warning that he had better get his ass in gear Christianity-wise if he doesn't want to blow it bad upon Jesus Christ's imminent return.

Simultaneously, it's become equally impossible to skim through one's favorite rock journal without bumping into news of yet another important popstar's having quit the biz in order to devote himself to this, that or the other religious pursuit.

Each of us—let's face it—is under a lot of pressure to get religion quick. It's the hip thing to do, no doubt about it.

There are plenty of ways one can go about getting religion. One method that enjoyed appreciable popularity before McLuhan started shooting off his big mouth was to make a point of reading all those articles in Reader's Digest that had been written by men of the cloth or were about some average's Joe's own personal religious revelation.

Another popular method was to spend every Sunday morning in the church of one's choice.

A variety of other methods was available to the aspiring religious person. But all of them, including the two discussed in some detail above, required no small amount of mental stamina and faith and unpleasant bending, like perhaps taking a course in Biblical history at nite-school.

Nowadays a fellow or broad doesn't have to go to all that trouble, though. Thanks to stunning advances in recording technology, he or she can simply cough up seven or eight bucks (twleve or so in the case of the eight-track cartridge or cassette, either of which is ideal for listening to while in the privacy of one's auto) and get whiever religious rock opera most closely corresponds with what he believes to be his own personal religious inclinations, if any.

Where one might have had to have read six months' worth of Reader's Digest or attended an equivalent duration's- worth of sermons or what-have-you before the aforementioned advances, he can now tell the longhaired beatnik Christians on . "Flake off, Mac, I'm already heavily into Him," with complete impunity within a matter of a couple of hours of scarfing up on the religious rock opera of his choice.

As is only fair: Just how long could this world have gotten away with having instant breakfast but no instant spirituality?

And there you have part of the answer to the question of why religious rock operas sell so good—one would have to be one rancid can of Spam to fail to move a couple of million units right off the bat, what with most everybody being good and fed up with holier-than-thou types climbing all over him because he doesn't know beans about Biblical history.

And then you can count on the clergy for another 500 thou at the very least. Pastors, ministers, deacons, schmeacons, few of them know nor care to know from good rock music or bad rock music. What matters lots, lots more is that Jesus is in the charts, with a bullet, and if that isn't going to make The Big Guy wanna put a little something extra in the old pay envelope come The Last Payday, then what is? "I know it's a lotta noisy mumbo-jumbo, Lord, but it's about your kid, ain't it?"

Heaven knows the last thing on this earth the author wants to appear is cynical. Far be it from him to intimate that any of the Jesus rock operas produced to date, in production or about to be conceived are anything less than soul- warming testaments to the devotion of the people involved. Rather, the above is intended solely to provide food for thought in the event that some creep with solely mercenary intentions does try to pull a fast one Jesus-rock-opera- wise.

II. It Ain't Easy

A Critical Guide to Religious Rock Operas and the Story of One Such Great as the demand may be, it's no nothing-to-it matter making a Christian rock opera whose notices will be as heavy as its sales, as may be surmised from a chat with the brains behind what at presstime was the latest such—Ray Ruff, who before Truths of Truths, as the former is entitled, had produced only such acts as a 1969 Van Morrison-less version of Them and Val Stoecklein.

Mr. Ruff's quotes are extracted from the transcript of a round-table discussion of Truth of Truths in which Mr. Ruff, Mr. Ruff's record label's national promotion director, a couple of clergymen, a typical college student, and that icky rock critic John Mendelsohn—who never likes anything—participated, which was aired over Los Angeles radio station KRLA on the weekend of the work's release.)

Right off the bat when you're about to make a Christian rock opera you're facing the thorny circumstance of Jesus Christ Superstar having imbedded itself firmly in the American consciousness, meaning that comparisons of your work to that one are difficult to avoid.

Probably the best way to get yourself out of such a fix is to refer in your lyrics to Biblical passages that JCS didn't so much as mention. Which oughta be a breeze in that the latter covered only the last seven days of His life, leaving at least an entire Testament untapped, if not more.

Ray Ruff: "When Superstar came out I like to had a heart attack: 'Holy cow! Now what do I do?' It felt like the whole scene had fell in on me. But then when I really analyzed Superstar, and I looked at it as seven days in Christ's life, really, you know, in essence, and I'd taken the entire Bible. Twenty-six passages—not the entire Bible, because nobody could ever...If I'd wanted to make seven LP's in one issue I could take the Bible maybe. You know, Superstar like to destroyed me, though."

Which brings up the important problem of how long to make your whole shebang. Thus far, it's been an unspoken law that one has to confine his remarks to two LP's, but, so far as the author knows, there's no written-down law anywhere stating that this is a must. Woodstock comprises three records, The Motown Story five or so, and Chicago Live At Carnegie Hall four. And if that many records can be devoted to a crumby hippie get-together or a bunch of old singles, why, for heaven's sake, can't one get-together or a bunch of old singles, why, for heaven's sake, get as many as seven LP's out of the story of two of the world's most popular religions?

The answer, of course, is simple: If you get too longwinded, your prospective consumer is going to say "Well, screw this baloney," and just go out and subscribe to Reader's Digest, which may be next to impossible to dance to, but which at least has "Humor In Uniform" and "My Most Unforgettable Character" and the like, which advantages you don't have in your religious rock opera unless you want to get secular in your inside liner copy, which isn't wholly advisable in that the clergy are sure to spot it.

Another important thing to remember is that if you're going to call it a rock opera you'd damn well better get some rock in there somewhere, lest rock critics and other cynics accuse you of trying to cash in.

Important as this point may be, it doesn't constitute the need for all that much unpleasant bending, it being possible nowadays to convince the average Joe that anything is rock, so long as a wah-wah guitar may be heard every 32 bars or so.

Ray Ruff: "It's just, you know, how you class rock. They have rock ballads and country rock, country funk, or whatever ."

Natch it's also of crucial importance to find the right crooners to sing the important parts. What would JCS have been had the hero's part not been belted out ballsily by Deep Purple's Ian Gillian? Or Truths had someone other than Jim Backus portrayed God or Donnie Brooks (a proven hitmaker—his "Mission Bell' was a smash in the early part of the last decade) Jesus?

Last, and probably most important, you've got to have that emotional element, that certain something that will reach off the turntable to grab the listener by the collar, shake him and yell in a moving ton, "Wake up, Jack, it's later than you think!"

Ray Ruff: "One of my stringplayers came to the mixdown dates and when he heard the last cut tears were streaming down his face. He said he'd played on all of Cecil DeMille's pictures and nothing moved him like this LP did. I had a cast that sat and cried their eyes out while they were doin' this stuff, and I mean literally. It was like God was 'here helpin' us..."

III. Conclusions

Don't Lose Hope

From which may be surmised the fact that divine intervention is not at all a bad thing to have going for you. If The Lord is loathe to handling your national promotion, chances are He'll be pleased as pie to be your shepherd while you're at the board.

The careful reader will by now have concluded that making a hotseling religious rock opera is nobody's idea of a pushover, however profuse may be the reasons why such a project should move a helluva lotta units, if executed with even a pauper's share of good taste—he will have noted all the intricacies involved, seen that he stands to have no little dogged competition and very likely thrown up his hands in defeat.

Such a reader is hereby advised that perseverance is the right path, and not only in a commerical sense: The odds are mightily in his favor, this wild, wacky world being what it is, that if he sees his project to fruition the day will come when some small child doomed by leukemia or some other colorful disease to a tragic death will hear said work and think to himself, "In a world without hope now for most people, with so much discord, and all our institutions so screwed up, that a record like this, with so much warmth and so much hope and so much love—well, I just hope that it reaches a lot of people, because I think it can bring people together, people of all races and religions."

About The Author

Jersey Nat Moss is the pen name of Nathan Moskiowitz, a 46-year-old Newark cab driver whose main claim to fame was his having placed third in his state's Golden Glove amateur prizefighting competition in 1948. Mr. Moss enjoys reading, swimming and billiards.

HONK! IF YOU LOVE JESUS!

The Department
of Afro-American Studies
presents
an exhibition of Student Sculpture
Opening: Saturday, Dec. 11, 1971
New Africa House
Art Gallery
1:00 - 4:00

Luis Bunuel's Masterpiece

BELLE de JOUR
with CATHERINE DENEUVE
WINNER BEST PICTURE
VENICE FILM FESTIVAL
Sunday, December 12, 1971
7, 9:15
S.U. Ballroom 50¢

Books

Nuremberg And Vietnam-No Analogy

Book Review: Nuremburg and Vietnam. An American Tragedy. by Telford Taylor. 224 pp. Bantam Books. $1.25.

By FRANK M. BAGLIONE

As the title of this book may suggest, Mr. Taylor has grossly overstated his case. One would indeed have to be extremely disillusioned by the American conduct of the Vietnam war to accept the analogy implied by Nuremburg and Vietnam. The author himself admits this through his failure to present a general historical parallel between America's involvement in Vietnam and German's World War II conquests. He concerns himself, instead, with trying to make isolated connections between Nuremburg and individual instances of American misconduct. His work, most naturally, centers on My Lai.

The most disturbing thing about this book is not found within its pages, but rather in the cheap way it is marketed. The front and back cover are farily covered with "shocking" questions as to the possibility of America being a neo-Nazi state--"Is America guilty of war crimes in Vietnam?" "Are American leadersguilty of launching a war of aggression as Hitler was with Poland?" But once the book is sold and in your hands, Telford Taylor, Professor of Law at Columbia University, America's chief counsel for the prosecution at the Nuremburg Trials, and a brigadier-general in the American armed forces, is quick to explain that no real connection can be made between the events prosecuted at Nuremburg and the events that have occurred in Vietnam.

"At Nuremburg," Telford explains, "the court's task was greatly aided by the circumstances that voluminous German military and diplomatic records had fallen into Allied hands at the end of the war, that Germans are meticulous record-makers and that Hitler and some of his subordinates had revealed their aggressive intentions very explicitly in the documents that thus became available as evidence at the trials." There was, on the whole, neither serious question as to the criminality of the conduct charged nor difficulty in proving that it had in fact occurred. The only question was whether those accused had committed the acts and, if so, were there any mitigating circumstances.

The conduct disclosed at Nuremburg did not disclose any new types of war crime. It was rather the enormous scope of the atrocities, and the systematic planning and meticulous execution of these hideous enterprises that makes the Nazi conquests unique. No similar pattern of execution or plan of aggression exists for American involvement in Vietnam. The Pentagon Papers revealed nothing comparable to the German archives, and even should the American and South Vietnam Governments make public their secret files it is unimagineable that any plan for genocide would be in evidence.

Mr. Telford readily admits to the uniqueness of Nuremburg. Such a total defeat as that suffered by Germany is unusual in modern times. For the most part, trials for war crimes have not in the past been so systematically carried out, being instead the trial and execution of an enemy spy or a captured foe who had committed some depravation on the population. It was not until the American Civil War that the United States reduced to a systematic, written form the laws of war that for all nations had remained a matter of unwritten tradition. After this a long series of meetings and conventions established a codification of the laws of war and their embodiment in a number of international agreements. They produced a series of treaties known as the Hague and Geneva Coventions, principal of which are the Fourth Hague Convention of 1907, and the Geneva Prisoner of War, Red Cross, and the Protection of Civilians Conventions of 1929 and 1949.

A drug rehabilitiation center in Vietnam. Aardvarks photo is Albert Speer at Nuremburg.

As Taylor admits, these laws of war, necessary through they are, can not be strictly enforced at all times. For example, it is pointed out that the Allied powers showed a wise restraint in not prosecuting the German's for their bombing of civilian targets, for the Allies had carried out many similar raids on German cities (Hamburg, Dresden). In some cases "military necessity" excused otherwise punishable offenses. For example, a commando group behind enemy lines would find it too dangerous to attempt to take prisoners not to mention the inability to carry out their mission while wathching over the captured foe. A commander who decided not to take prisoners (that is, not to take anyone alive) under these circumstances could hope to be excused for his action. There were other "crimes", however, which the Allies were not so fair-minded about. The London Treaty of 1930 requires a submarine captain to provide for the safety of passengers of the merchant ships they were about to sink. The improved weaponry and detection equipment of the Second World War made this clause of the London Naval Treaty virtual suicide for the submarine commander. During the war German, British and Americk submarines ignored this provision. After the war, only Admirals Erich Raeder and Karl Doenetz of the German Navy were charged with war crimes in that they were responsible for U-boat operations in violation of the London Treaty. The Nuremburg Tribunal, however, decided that because of the general violations of the treaty due to modern military necessity, no criminal penalties would be given for the offense.

On the question of "superior orders" as a defense for war crimes, Taylor can add nothing new. If an order is clearly illegal and a soldier's refusal to obey does not place him in immediate and critical danger, he could be held accountable for obeying that order. Nor can Taylor help us decide which wars are just and which unjust. Recently, any resort to war to settle disputes is becoming as unacceptable as when individuals resort to violence to settle their differences. "The reason...that the Nuremburg trials took place, was that legally trained men in the seats of power in Washington concluded that German aggression could be judicially proved, that the future peace of the world would be promoted by an international determination that aggressive warfare is a crime under international law, and that those responsible may be punished."

Having established this in 1945, could his same theory be applied to the United States in Vietnam? First of all, who is the aggressor? The United States condemns the North Vietnamese as the aggressor, saying that the South is justified in using force in repelling them, and that the United States is justified in joining the South in "collective defense." Others feel that the U.S. bombing of North Vietnam and the U.S. invasion of Cambodia demonstrate that America is the aggressor. The fact is that there is no acceptable definition of "aggressive war." The question of initial responsibility, which is the essence of aggression, may be vexingly complicated as the Israeli-Arab and Pakistani-India wars demonstrate. Like the Japanese, and unlike the Germans, in the Second World War, United States' policy is made up from a number of pressure and interest groups. In addition, the Congress has laid its hand in the affair by its implied approval of much of the conduct of this war by its appropriations of funds and its passage of resolutions supporting the president's actions.

Certainly this is not the same as Congress declaring war, and of late the Congress has evidenced an unwillingness to carry on with Vietnam involvement. For its part the Supreme Court has stayed out of the question for it is not authorized to render judgement on the validity of our involvement in the Vietnam war under the Nuremburg principles or international law in general. It is beyond the court's bounds to unravel treaties and make foreign policy. Even if aggression could be legally defined, then proven, then the guilty parties narrowed down to the real culprits, who would they be?--Nixon and Johnson? Or how about trying posthumously both Kennedy and Eisenhower? It is unnerving the way the United States refuses to conform to a fascist state. And who would try the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong for their crimes and aggression?

Unlike most critics of American policy in Vietnam, Telford does not abandon all modesty by charging that atrocities like My Lai occur frequently. Admitting it is the exception means that we can not tie it to a general plan of genocide, as some have been brash enough to insist is the real aim of our policy. But Taylor is certain in his condemnation of the massacre, the army's attempts to cover it up, and the court's reluctance to convict and sentence those responsible. He explains this recalcitrance by citing the lack of enthusiasm on the part of the American people in demanding justice be done. Fully two-thirds of American's questioned admitted that they were not shocked by the disclosures about My Lai. A great majority of these simply refused to believe that American's were capable of such deeds.

Telford Taylor can help solve none of the dilemas he presents. His book is actually two books, the one about the laws of war and the Nuremburg trials, the other about Vietnam. Neither is very intereting (we have really heard it all before) and neither relates very well to the other (just as Nuremburg and what it implies could never really relate well to America's Vietnam expreience). Perhaps Taylor should have questioned the legitimacy of much that occurred at Nuremburg, or of the trials themselves. What he should not have attempted was to by means of his weak and unartistic writing style link the spirit of Nuremburg to the events of Vietnam in an "American Tragedy."

The Vietnam War is probably best described by the acrid French epigram in that it is "worse than a crime, it is a blunder." Should we look for the real criminals or blunderers do not expect to find them among our parents or World War Two veterans who are rightly insulted by the demonstrations of the young screaming "Ho, Ho, Ho Chi Minh," and waving Viet Cong flags. They fought in a war against fascism and are proud of their military involvement. Their experiences, as just and as real as our own, shape their outlook and legitimize their position as ours do our own.

The Vietnam War was not the brain-child of construction workers, or Texas oilmen, of aircraft manufacturers, or super-patriots, or paranoid commie hunters. The war, in the massive, lethal dimensions it acquired after 1964, was the work of highly educated academics and administrators, most of whom would fit quite easily into the vice president's notion of "effete snobs." It was not Kennedy himself, but the men he brought with him to Washington as advisers who stayed on with Johnson--the Rusks, McNamaras, Bundys and Rostows--who must bear the major responsibility for the war and the course it has taken.

Aside from this paraphrased passage, Taylor rarely is eloquent in presenting his arguments. Add to this the difficult parallel he is trving to draw between Nuremburg and Vietnam, and the fact that much of the information is the same old, tired news we have been exposed to for some time, and the result is a not too interesting book on an improbable theme.

Poor Richard's Classifieds

Coming Next Thursday

Abe Burrow's and Frank Loesser's
All Time Great American Musical
GUYS AND DOLLS
MOUNT HOLYOKE COLLEGE
LABORATORY THEATER
SOUTH HADLEY, MASS.
Performances: Dec. 3-5 and Dec. 9-12 at 8:15 p.m.
Matinees both Saturdays at 2:15 p.m.
Box office now open: 10-9 Mon.-Sat. and 1-9 Sun.
Call 538-2046 Adults $2 and Students $1

Marijuana And The Army: Is Grass

By LUCIAN K. TRUSCOTT IV

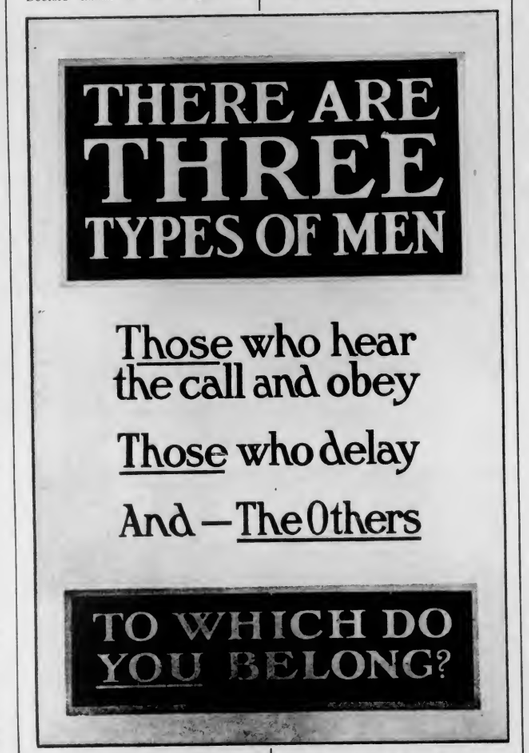
It was two years ago last week that I first became a platoon leader in the Third Battalion, 61st Infantry, Fifth Mechanized Infantry Division, located at Fort Carson, Colorado. Not long after, I wrote in these pages about my first few experiences there in an article called "I Deal With Lives for a Living." I met a mixture of praise and skepticism on publication of the article—the praise coming from those unfamiliar with the Army, who would have liked to see the Army as I described it, and the skepticism from some guys who had done their time on the other end of the rank stick—as GIs. They questioned, and rightly so, how I, a West Point graduate and brand new Second Lieutenant, could describe a tight fraternity between me and my men, an experience they recalled, was not one to be trusted, and in many cases, was to be held in a careful contempt of sorts.

That was in the fall and winter of 1969, in the first days of Nixon's "massive" troop withdrawals; before the days of VOLAR, the volunteer Army experiment; before Calley had even gone ontrial, much less been convicted; before the Life magazine articles on the psychedelicized Army; before the Army had admitted the extent of drug usage—especially heroin adiction—within its ranks. I must confess I wrote the article a bit innocently. I perceived that I had a special relationship with my men, 40-odd individuals of every color and background imaginable, but I wasn't really sure why it existed. I only knew that I never really had to iron-fist it with them; they did what had to be done in that company, and more often than not, they did it well. An inexplicable air of trust existed between us, and there was even, in that chill winter of anti-war protests and general disgust with the military, more than a taste of esprit in my platoon.

Once a bunch of them, led by my stocky, comical platoon sergeant, went out and trekked back to the platoon bay with two boulders so large they threatened to go through the thin floor of that old World War II temporary building. These they proceeded to paint with "Third Platoon" and some off-the-wall motto we came up with that I can't recall now, except for the fact it had a double meaning. Such esprit was so rare in our battalion, which was filled to overflow with impatient guys waiting to get out of the Army after Vietnam duty, that it was looked down upon by many outside the company. Within the company, however, this was not the case. It wasn't long until the other platoons had scrounged up scraps of something-or-another that boasted their crest, most of which were looked upon, somewhat schizophrenically, as badges of indifference.

When I look back on those days, I am close to incredulous that this rough form of pride and brotherhood among men could exist as it then did. Amazingly, it infested a company that was tired of "the bullshit," as we called it. They were tired of the make-work details we pulled; they were tired of being made to sit through meaningless training they would never put to use; they were tired of our company commander, a rock-brained skinhead who had done six years as a GI, and now, with captain bars upon his collar, held his enlisted men in contempt; and most of all, they were tired of being led by men they saw to be two-faced, hypocritical assholes who could pat you on the back with one hand, and stick you in the guts with another. They knew, better than anyone did at that time, the moral corruption which had begun to break the heart of the Army. They knew that the great majority of men who led them—especially their officers—would stop at nothing, including stepping on as many lives as necessary, to secure their own advancement along the Army's computer program for success.

Certain things which began to go on in my company, around the time my first article was published, made our esprit possible, if not inevitable. Many of them were akin to the spirit my skeptical friends might remember if they were ever in a unit that hung together, as it is called. But chief among these factors was something no Army has felt to the extent that our Army is feeling it right now: the contemporary ties of drug usage, primarily grass.



Sometime during my junior year at West Point, the officers running that hallowed institution decided to make a few careful mentions of drugs and the military. This was accomplished in a series of "drug seminars," held every once in a while over the next two years. These seminars were similar in three respects:

First, they were scare sessions. Doctors talked of the dangers of marijuana smoking, the unpredictable terrors of being "high," that rough come-down, those nebulous, even more frightening "long term effects."

Second, at no seminar I attended between 1967 and 1969 did anyone ever admit the extent that grass smoking was going on in the Army. I specifically recall standing at one of the last seminars to ask how widely grass was being used in Vietnam and what was to be done about it, knowing full and well that usage was rampant, if not downright countrywide. A major who had done two tours in Vietnam told that gathering of some 400 future lieutenants he had never encountered any drug usage in Vietnam, and to his satisfaction, those first reports of grass smoking by the troops were pure fabrications by the irresponsible liberal press.

And third, heroin abuse was never mentioned at a seminar. In fact, the prevailing attitude among the officials at West Point seems classic in retrospect. What they didn't know couldn't hurt them; consequently, what we didn't know wouldn't hurt us when we graduated.

At one seminar, I asked if anyone had ever been eliminated from West Point for drug abuse. The major in charge of the seminar, the post psychiatrist, told a face-wrinkling lie in reply. He said no, but I know for a fact that by that time, no fewer than two individuals had been spirited away in the dead of night—never to be seen or heard from again—for alleged drug usage. Both were taken to the hospital and were locked in a room on the third or fourth floor, with a military police guard outside the door. And both, naturally, were under the care of the man who told us at the seminar there were no drug users at West Point. By that time, I knew of at least 40 cadets who were smoking marijuana regularly, most of whom were in my regiment, and 10 were in my company alone, myself among them. A reliable source from the Military Academy has told me that, at this writing, close to two dozen cadets have been eliminated for drug abuse. We were apparently being warned about the dangers of marijuana for our own good, lest those vile fumes someday find their way down our cherry throats.

By the time I arrived at Fort Carson, I knew if a guy had been to Vietnam, the chances were that he had smoked grass there at one time or another, and the chances were almost as good he had continued the practice in his stateside unit, perhaps even importing some righteous Oriental weed on his way back. But I wasn't prepared in the least for the scene I encountered in the third of the 61st.

I had been in the company about two or three weeks, most of which time I had spent sniffing out the troops. Who were the leaders, who were the good, strong followers, and who had been wounded along the way, leaving them in a limbo that was someplace in between? One day, after I had been in the platoon long enough to know everyone's name and a little about each as a man, I figured it was time to have my squad leaders over to my place for a few beers. If you've been in the Army, you know the scenario—everyone sits around a little stiffly, the lieutenant feeling he's really "getting to know the troops," the sergeants realizing that, at the least, they're getting a "good deal" soaking up some of the lieutenant's booze. I think I even scheduled that little get-together toward the end of the month, when I knew they'd be hurting for money and could use the invite.

None of the sergeants, which included my four squad leaders and mess sergeant, had cars, so I waited around after work while they changed into civvies. I remember they all came down from the barracks together, and when they got in the car, I caught the unmistakable aroma of English Leather aftershave, a substance at least one of them must have bathed himself in, the smell was so strong. They appeared to be wearing their best informal clothes: stiffly pressed bell bottoms and shirts with wide, bright stripes—the one black in the group resplendent in threads that would have made a pimp strut. The oldest man there couldn't have been a year older than I, and none were married. Three of them had served together in the 173rd Airborne Brigade in Vietnam, a unit widely renowned for its hell-raising extra-curricular exploits across the countryside of Vietnam, and all had been to Vietnam in the Infantry. They represented the strange dilemma faced by everyone in the company who had fought in Vietnam; they were horribly, painfully proud of having been "grunts" in a war that, to a man, they despised with a depth of hatred those of us who have not been there will never feel. They were handsome, magnificent young American men, in whose faces you would see the ageless lines of one who has killed another man. When I looked them in the eye, standing around the company area or in a formation, I got the eerie feeling that though they couldn't see through me, they were surely looking right past me at something I did not understand then, and even now am not sure I ever will. A times, these men bragged of atrocities that would make even Calley blanch, and yet each of them, if pressed while apart from the others, would admit to tears and the nightly suffering of one who is disgusted with himself beyond pale. But let me tell what happened there in my tiny travel trailer, which I had towed all the way from Georgia to the shady eastern slope of the Rockies.

Somehow the six of us crammed ourselves into every available nook and cranny and proceeded to devour the two cases of Budweiser I had on hand for the occasion. There was, typically, a lot of heavy bullshitting—talk of this "dude" and that "dude," and once or twice, one of the sergeants would ask me what I thought of my fellow officers. The question would be couched deep in the guarded terms of one who knew he was overstepping the boundaries that stood between us, and my answers were generally as guarded and careful. Those men were probing me as expertly as I was going after them, if not better, and both of us were after the same thing. We wanted to get to know each other so well that relations between us would become reactive, so well that each could count on the other to act in the same manner, at the same speed, every time. They knew the rules, those young sergeants did. And they knew why the rules were there, and how they could be used to everyone's benefit—or detriment.

As time went on, talk loosened with the beer. Once all the white guys started giving the black squad leader gas about the black power movement that had begun to develop in the company. The blacks felt they were being discriminated against, and that was a valid charge, these sergeants were saying, but it didn't mean they should pull discrimination in reverse by commandeering the company Day Room and beating up on white GIs, two practices which were running pretty wild across the whole division at that time. He agreed with them and promised to keep a careful eye on the blacks in the platoon, especially on one individual who had been a Black Panther and was known to carry a gun while off duty.

The gathering was going great, and everyone was getting a little drunk when suddenly one of the sergeants, a young blond-haired guy from Arizona, turned to me, and with the rapt attention of all the others asked slowly: "Lieutenant Truscott, can I say something?" I said, "Sure, go ahead." Then, just as slowly, a beer in one hand, a cigarette in the other, "Look, sir, we know that you know. And you know that we know. And we know that you know that we know, and well....I don't know exactly how to explain it, but everyone in the platoon knows that you know, and well...." With that, he paused, long and hard and deliberately. The air was thick with cigarette smoke and the boozy moments that had gone before, and his brief rap, they all knew, as did I allowed me to go either way.

I could have assumed that he was talking about my haircut policy or the jumbled company supply system in erudite, if imprecise, terms and leave it at that. But I did know. I knew exactly what he was getting at, with those five men sitting there, 10 eyes staring right past me, just like I had noticed before. That circumstance, that fact, was stronger than any training I had ever received at West Point, than anything the manuals said, than the inane jabberings of the leadership instructors down at the Infantry School at Fort Benning, Georgia. I nodded. "Yeah, I know," I said, a smile coming to rest on my lips. "I've known all along." And it was true. The air between us had been like that, alive with the unmistakable vibes of people who understand each other perfectly, deeply, when they simply talk in terms of knowing. With that, the grass came out, and to the tune of the Grateful Dead, amidst the free-flowing idea exchange of smoke, we all got helplessly, beautifully stoned. I had smoked grass with lots of cadets, with lots of girls, with more than one fellow officer, and now I had smoked with my men. I'll never forget looking at those guys the next morning at the police-call formation. We smiled, and somehow all those worthless police-calls were different after that, for the whole platoon, and soon, for the entire company.

That night was an experience which was to have further-reaching effects on my life than I knew just then, for eventually, when all the cards were on the table and the bets and bluffing were out of the way, it led to my dismissal from the army, and to my writing for this newspaper right now. It's a long story, one I'll tell another day. First let me describe what this dope smoking did to the Army as I knew it.

As unbelievable as it may seem, marijuana smoking completely destroyed the traditional system of command and discipline within my unit at Fort Carson, and I think, taken as a whole, that's probably the effect grass has had on the entire Army. At this point, reams have been written about drugs and the Army—the extent to which they are being used, and the programs which have been set up to deal with the problem. But no one, to my knowledge, has recognized this essence of effect that is central to the use of the mild euphoriant, marijuana.

It's an old story, and my company makes it easy to tell. After that night with my sergeants, I found that for all intents and purposes the whole company smoked grass on a fairly regular basis. Oh, there were the heavy heads, the regular users, and those they called the "juicers," guys who would just as soon drink booze. But on the whole, even if a guy didn't smoke regularly, he tolerated it among his fellows. That meant Charlie Company, in its finest hour, boasted only one lieutenant, one captain, and a few stray sergeants who never touched the stuff. The rest of the company, somewhere around 150 men, including four out of five lieutenants, all the clerks, mechanics, and nearly every GI in each of the four platoons, were if not heads, at least occasional tasters. Importantly, if a guy one of the troops, didn't smoke, he could be counted on not to blow the whistle on anyone who did.

This situation—one which I would not call common, but was certainly not rare in the brigade—created a curious fraternity among the men in the company that existed in such intensity, to my knowledge, nowhere else in a stateside unit. In effect, it turned the company command and discipline structure completely upside down. To wit: A normal Infantry company, by necessity, must have a top to bottom command structure and no other. At each level of command, then, one's first allegiance must be up. Orders are given from top to bottom, and in terms of loyalty and allegiance, they are carried out from bottom to top. In my company, however, things worked the other way around. My first allegiance, and those of the other lieutenants who smoked, was to the men, not to the company commander. The same was true of my sergeants, except for one interesting twist: while for me, up the chain of command meant the company commander, a non-head, for them, up the chain meant me. And up the chain from the squad members were the sergeants, most of whom were heads. From the other platoon leaders and me on down, there existed that brotherhood and closeness endemic only to the sharing of smoke, the binding contract of a pleasurable but illegal act. But the blackmail aspects of the situation are obvious, you might say. For some reason I still cannot fully explain, they simply did not exist in our company. Perhaps our mutual predicament at the bottom of the morass of the military had something to do with it. I don't know. Whatever the case, we looked out for our men, and they looked out for us. It was, in the finest sense—as commonly symbolized by the passing of the joint—a sharing experience, and I doubt that any Army in history has faced a situation as threatening and volatile as the drug scene in our Army right now.

In my company, this impromptu style of drug-induced anarchy worked, which is to say it was efficient. We were the best company in the battalion, and stood high, if not at the top, of the brigade. The reason this was so is not difficult to figure. From the outset, relations between the ranks were improved. If guys had a gripe, they knew they could come to us and expect to get action on it. The same was true conversely. Screw-ups, however infrequent, were not tolerated, and they were normally dealt with at the lowest possible level. It was only when someone got completely out of hand that the company commander even found out what was happening and was able to get into the disciplinary act. In fact, at one point, a "head" lieutenant was the executive officer, second in command of the company, and with some subtle cooperation from the first sergeant, who functions as a kind of executive secretary, he was able to successfully divert almost the entire running of the company from the company commander.

It was an amazing situation. On one level, the company progressed from day to day as usual, and on a second, somewhat subversive level, decisions were being made and actions taken by the most unlikely people imaginable. Non-judicial punishment, for example, was regularly quashed by the executive officer with the eager aid of the clerks. After work, we used to get together with key individuals in the company and plot the days ahead. In time, the social scene lost its boundaries too, and everyone was invited to every party. Much of the complete dismay of the high Fort Carson commanders, some officers and sergeants and enlisted men even roomed together off-post.

It was this secret anarchistic aspect of the scene, I guess, that bothered me in the end. In many ways, I probably retain some of the stiff-necked traits one collects in a lifetime as an Army brat, coupled with four years at West Point. I have always valued a certain degree of order, if only an edge across which one does not cross, and when that begins to slip, I get scared—not scared for myself, or scared that someone else might get hurt—but chilled way down inside where the organs that make a man come alive churn out their daily due. And there at Fort Carson, I got a chill I won't soon forget.

The trouble is as old as man himself. Once you accept a certain level of anarchistic behavior, a degree of looseness and slippage in the machine of life, each succeeding bit becomes more and more easy to imagine, and just as simple to accept. I drew the line at court martials. Discipline was easy enough to handle in my company. As I said, we had a loose system that somehow ground discipline exceedingly fine within our own fraternity. But much to my chagrin, my name appeared on division court martial orders, which meant I could be called upon to decide guilt or innocence and mete out punishment anywhere on the post. It wasn't long until I was ordered to the Special Processing Detachment to sit on a court martial machine that cranked through 22 individuals in a single day, all of whom were charged with AWOL. So I sat there, obediently deciding their fate: the black from Chicago whose mother just died of cancer, who had gone AWOL to help support his family; the young guy from the hills of Kentucky whom I was convinced never really understood that going AWOL was illegal—they passed through that tiny Infantry Blue courtroom like characters in a bad soap opera, each with a story more pathetic and plaintive than the last.

Later, in long quiet moments by myself, I saw what I had done. I had convicted and punished men for an offense, a misdemeanor, that did not begin to measure up in illegality, to my own marijuana smoking, an offense which then was still a felony in the Army. What of this, careful, secret anarchist? Do you go back to the company, safe within its neat system of sharing and hope you don't get called upon to judge again, or do you take a stand? It is not an easy decision, believe me, for on the one hand, you have a suitation acceptable to your entire company—yourself included—and it would be simple to draw within that fraternal womb and ride out the storm. While on the other, you have yourself as part of a larger whole, out there where understandings fall by the waydside of larger laws. To quit smoking grass was no solution, except possibly a symbolic one. But that step over the brink had been taken, and there was no turning back. As I saw it, there was only one decision for metomake. I announced that I would sit on no more court martials, and that move entailed eventually admitting that my reason was the act that I had smoked, and was smoking, marijuana. This admission caused understandable consternation among the powers that be, for they were to figure that if West Pointer Truscott was doing it....christ, the limits to which it could go were too horrible to think of.

Toward the end of my nine-month tour of duty at Fort Carson, I became aware of the existence of a massive, complex underground within that division, centered around the drug market, which was so powerful that any comparison—like with "Catch 22" or "M*A*S*H"—would be ludicrous. In my wildest dreams, I would never have imagined it to be that powerful had I not seen it in operation. This knowledge did not come easily, for on a post which had a monthly payroll that totaled in the vicinity of $15 million, there was one hell of a lot of money available to be spent on drugs, and one hell of a lot of men eager to spend it. As I found out, the system which existed to supply such a demand was not very receptive to the idea of an officer finding out about it.

But the data trickled in. It began when I first learned how many guys in my own company were smoking grass. There had to be a way that they got the drugs, and it didn't take long for me to learn of the mysterious individuals who wandered through occasionally touting their wares. Some of these dealers, I found, were pretty well-heeled. It wasn't uncommon for them to be driving big cars that were loaded down with expensive speed options. The action provided by my company, multiplied by the 100-odd companies stationed at Fort Carson, was my first indication that there was something afoot under foot, and that something was big.

Later, when I was assigned to an equipment test project located about 30 miles out in the boonies south of Fort Carson, I came face to face with the drug underground in full swing. It was April, and we lived in tents on a tiny plateau at the edge of a huge grassy plain they called Sullivan Park. The test headquarters was next to us, and the plateau was surrounded on three sides by ravines. To the west, they broke up larger and larger plateaus, which eventually became mesas as they neared the eastern slope of the mountains. The land down there was splendid, semi-arid Southern Colorado dssert, and in the early days of that month, the nights were freezing cold, the days hot and sunny. To Be Continued.

Reprinted from the Village Voice.

Bad Medicine For Our Boys In Green

An U.S. Soldier in Cambodia: Yossarian is alive and well and fighting in the boondocks.

Albums

A Joyous And Fully Professional Record

Taj Mahal

By KENNETH SULIN

Last year Taj Mahal disappeared, telling absolutely no one where he was destined, when he'd back or why he'd decided to leave. As it turned out Taj fled to Spain because he was overridden with pressures and displeasures of the music business, which in his eyes, presented nothing but half-rate talent making it big with little to offer. In Spain he became the everyday character we see in towns and cities across the United States, that is a street singer, playing his six-holed fife in many of the villages, while simply enjoying his music and the reactions of Spain's inhabitants. This was Taj's vacation and now he has returned to give up probably his finest performance on record, "Happy Just to be Like I Am."

The last attempt at an album release was a live recording done at the Filmore East--live records are always excellent ways for an artist to fill any contractual debts to a company with very little energy, motivation or effort. It's been some time since any new studio work has come from Taj and his band; happily enough we've been rewarded with a joyous and fully professional record.

When Taj started out he bagan purely as a blues singer, but it just didn't seem to gain any kind of public interest since blues musicians were a dime a dozen and the already well-established contributors appeared to have a monopoly on the record industry. Naturally Taj decided a change in style was due so he became what one may call an "electric country blues artist" and has at last peaked with his musical quality.

Although he is Black,. Taj Mahal appeals to white listeners only because his compositions are done in a whitesy manner displaying a minimum of soulish content. In fact he was often scorned for his continual use of the harmonica, an instrument looked down upon by a great many Chicago blues musicians because they felt it was too "down home." So what we have here is Taj's so-called separate sound, separate in a way that makes his music completely unrelated and unparalleled to any productions today. Taj still considers himself a semiblues enthusiast but really the best and most comprehensive tag one could attach to his music would be "country blues" if that could be at all imained. He plays happy music, not rock, not folk, but impressively a sound all his own being somewhat diverse yet exceedingly enjoyable.

Much credit must be directed toward his backing musicians since Taj himself is by no means a great talent. Perhaps he's versatile in his instrument playing, trying his hand at flute, harmonica, the six-holed fife, Clarke Penny Whistle, banjo, guitar, etc., however Taj is a master at none. His singing ability is not easily analyzed, being raspy and jagged but always exact or to the point, nevertheless the selections on this album combine his artistry with that of his studio men resulting again in a distince and dignified tone.

Each song on "Happy Just to be Like I Am" was written ty Taj with the exception of the traditional "Oh Susanna" which becomes a comforting track straying away from his album's theme. In his songs Taj usually speaks of Black Americans and racial problems but also, he speaks about his present state of liberalness and the freedom he now enjoys after his recuperation, not being lyrically poetic buy sensitively realistic.

One addition to the new sound of Taj Mahal is the use of horns. Personally, I think horns tend to detract from today's music but Taj doesn't use the every day instruments expected, trumpets and saxophones, which usually signify soul based tunes. Instead, oddly enough, he has introduced tubas and trombones--tubas seem to be terribly inappropriate but believe it or not they actually sound melodious coasting the music naturally and rhythmically. Almost each song encludes horns except one particular cut entitled "Black Spirit Boogie" offering Taj alone on his Mississippi National Steel-Bodied Guitar. The entire instrumental lasts over seven minutes and features him at his best on a fine strolling guitar piece.

If you've never heard Taj before or even if you have, I suggest taking a chance on "Happy Just to be Like I Am." Possibly you'll find something just a little different here, maybe something you'd classify as conversation music or just enjoyable entertainment.

Music For A Tired Mind

By GARY GOMES

Soft Machine, FOURTH (Columbia C30754)

On the liner notes of its second album (VOLUME II, ABC—Probe) there is the proclamation that the Soft Machine "...plays music for the mind. In its strictest sense, it may impost some cerebral responsibility on the part of the listener, because you can't really hum along or have the tune in your head as you walk down the street. But the ultimate good feeling the Machine generates will always remain with you, and the emotional benefit is well worth the thinking toll." Exactly.

The Soft Machine, through a process of constant musical experimentation coupled with individual virtuosity, has gathered together an impressive array of musical works in the four albums it has put out. Each album has been different from the preceding one, as is to be expected of a group of this caliber. Soft Machine's forth offers the listener a healthy serving of avant garde jazz, both modal and free. "Kings and Queens" by Hugh Hopper (one of the finer bass players in either jazz or rock) is an example of the former; it moves smoothly and majestically on a fixed bass line, modulating keys at randon. It is the most relaxing piece on the album.

"Teeth" and "Fletcher's Blemish" (by Mike Ratledge and Elton Dean, respectively-note the strange predilection with parts of the body) are abrupt and pleasantly strident. "Teeth" opens with an acoustic bass line (played by Ray Babbington), which is later repeated on Elton Dean's saxello (a cross between a soprano and alto sax), then by the electric and acoustic basses at intervals, and still later in varying forms by the entire band. This motif is interspersed with some free playing and some modal repeated lines led by Ratledge (By the way, the tone of his organ is quite different. It has a very warm vibrato sound which reminds me of a 1967 psychedelic band, and he is the first organist that I know of to make use of wah-wah effects and fuzz box to the furthering of his instruments capabilities for emotional expression. He also uses wah-wah on the electric piano, often playing organ and pianosimultaneously, composing with his left hand on piano and soloing on organ with his right a la Keith Jarrett-not your typical rock organist by any standards. His style is so unique that one can only think of one other organist who matches him for creativity--Larry Young (Khalid Yasid) of Tony Williams Lifetime.)

"Blemish" could serve as a good introduction to free-blowing jazz for those unfamiliar with this type of music, created and shaped by such incredible musicians as Ornette Coleman, Cecil Taylor, Archie Sheop and many others (not Clotrane, however, despite popular belief). The entire band blows a fairly simple free time motif, which then breaks into collective improvisation backed by Ray Babbington's incredible bowing of the bass fiddle. Not as emotional as the black innovator's type of collective improvisation (FREE JAZZ by Orhette Coleman for exampl'), but very worthwhile anyway.

Side two consists of a four pa,t piece called "Virtually" written by Hugh Hopper. On this side and on "Teeth," the Machine shows its indebtedness to avant garde electronic composers through its use of tape machines and backward recording techniques.

The entire group is excellent instrumentally, especially drummer Wyatt who rises above the level of mere time-keeper to the status of first rate percussionist. Veteran British jazzman Alan Skidmore (who was with John Mayall for a short time) does an excellent backup job for the group. Other guests are Nick Evans (trombone), Jimmy Hastings (alto flute and Bass Clarinet), Mark Charig (cornet) and Roy Babbington.

All in all, Soft Machine has been advancing while the rest of us have stayed in one place. Feeling depressed? No challenge in what you're listening to? For those who wish to be challenged to rise to new heights of expression and emotion, Soft Machine is the group to do it.

253-5426 AMHERST Cinema
Eves. at 7:45
DAVID O. SELZNICK'S production of MARGARET MITCHELL'S
"GONE WITH THE WIND"
CLARK GABLE VIVIEN LEIGH LESLIE HOWARD OLIVIA de HAVILLAND
Winner of Ten Academy Awards
IN METROCOLOR AN MGM Rerelease
BARGAIN NITES Every Mon.-Tues.
All Seats $1.00

Tel. JU4-2310
CALVIN Northampton
NOW...Ends Tues.
Eves. 8:00 p.m.
Sat.-Sun. 5:15 - 8:15
Low Price $1.50
the ultimate trip
2001: A SPACE ODYSSEY G
Wide Screen - Color
BARGAIN NITES EVERY MON.-TUES. ALL SEATS $1.00
Dec. 15 "RYAN'S DAUGHTER"

Albums

Bootlegs Again Cop A Page

By STEVE FELD

Well, Tricky Dicky signed that all important anti-Bootleg bill. Although the emphasis is on tapes, it still will technically include our beloved bootleg records. Rick Ayres, our man here at UMass isn't too worried, so that's a good sign. Judging from the newest releases, the boots are alive and kicking.

Let It Be--The Beatles. This one is the best yet of all those "Kum Backs", etc...It has the most complete collection of songs and the quality is excellent mono. This, I'm sure is very close to what the Beatles originally intended. No reason to get any other when you can get this one.

Renaissance Minstrels (Vol. 1)--The Beatles (Renaissance Records). This is identical to the previously reviewed "Beatlegged Live!". The quality is a bit inferior, but the original was so bad that it doesn't really matter. It contains Old Beatles' songs played live. If you dig the Beatles enough, you'll get it. It's as simple as that.

Bananaz--Canned Heat (Atlasta Records-the one with balls). This is a live Canned Heat album, supposedly taped at Woodstock. It is excellent quality mono, which is surprising for an outdoor concert. Perhaps the wind was blowing the right way. Includes the fine "Reefer Blues", and we all know what that's about. The rest is all bootlegged boogies, all sounding very nice.

Crosby,Stills,Nash, and Young Live At the L.A. Forum--This is the same as the original Rubber Dubber record. It's a two-record set, fair quality. Hardly worth it since "4-Way Street" is around.

The Royal Albert Hall 1966--Bob Dylan. This is one-half of "Looking Back", the electric half. The missing half is some live acoustic stuff from Berkeley. One record or two--the choice is now yours. Either way, this electric set is mighty fine. For anyone that's ever heard the name of Bob Dylan.

Elton John--Elton John (Radiocord Records). This tape is from the same broadcast that "11-17-70", Elton's official live album, came from. The only different cuts on this album are "My Father's Gun", from "Tumbleweed Connection" and "Indian Sunset" from his new album "Madman Across the Water". Only two different songs, but they are two of Elton's finest. Needless to say, the quality here is inferior to the official.

Live At The Royal Albert Hall--Jimi Hendrix. Good quality mono, this has some nice blues, the Cream's "Sunshine of Your Love", and "Room Full of Mirrors", which was a side long on the Rubber Dubber bootleg. Hendrix, once again, "blasts out our eardrums", as he puts it. Also included on one cut are Dave Mason and Chris Wood. On the whole, it's a good record.

The Kinks Rare--The Kinks (Kinky Records). At last, a Kings bootleg! It contains all studio cuts that were either released only in Britain, or on the flip side of 45's. Thirteen songs in all, all of very fine mono. None of these songs are available anywhere in any form, so the liner notes say. Actually, one cut, "Berkeley Mews" was released on a promotional album, "The Kinks-Now, Then, and Inbetween".

Stars That Play With Laughing Sam's Dice--Jimi Hendrix, Experience, John Mayall and Cream (Munia Records). This is hard to get, but well worth the effort. Side one has two unreleased Jimi Hendrix Experience cuts that are both amazing, and two Cream songs that sound very, very old. Side Two is all unreleased Mayall. The quality on all are very good.

Santana-Live--Santana (Collector's Item Records). There are two records to this one, both very good. It is of excellent quality mono, and an impressive performance as well. Judging from the information on the liner notes, it was very professionally recorded. It also has an attractive cover and makes a fine impression. Some of the material is repetitious from the "Woodstock" album, but it's minimal. On the whole, it is not unlike a professional recording.

John Sebastian--John Sebastian (J.S. Records). This one came out of nowhere, disguised as "Bob Dylan-Isle of Wight". I'm not one to question, though, it's too good of a record. It's an indoor concert, probably in a small hall. He does some of his biggies, and takes requests from the audience. It's all very personal, which is Sebastian's nature. "I confess, I'm wasted", he opens up with, but he still sounds OK.

Plynth--Rod Stewart & The Faces. It's only of fair quality, but it's long and has a lot of good songs. Side One has "Plynth" listed, but it's really "Flying". Includes some Jeff Beck stuff, songs from his solo albums, and some Faces material. It's got a fold-over cover that struck me as interesting, also a first.

Who Unreleased--The Who (Who Records). This is a lot like the previously reviewed "Instant Party", only this has better quality, but fewer songs. It's a choice of quantity or quality. This one has "Disguises" and "Bucket T", which is not on "Instant Party". The album is ten short songs, recorded at the time when the Who sounded like the Beach Boys.

Yardbirds On Down--Various Artists. This has sixteen songs. It features Jeff Beck, Rod Stewart, Jimmy Page and Eric Clapton, in their various incarnations with the Jeff Beck group, and the Yardbirds. There is some blues, some rock, and it's all historic. Highlights include "I've Been Drinking Again", with a great Rod Stewart vocal. It is all from the studio, but of fair quality mono. Either these cuts are only released in England, or maybe not even there. It's just a matter of time before they are officially released, but in the meantime, this will do just fine.

Rod Stewart

Woodstock Nation--Various Artists (Bananaz Records). This one is from the same people that brought you Canned Heat Live. It includes The Butterfield Blues Band, B.B. King ("The Thrill is Gone"), Canned Heat, Sha Na Na, and, most notably, Country Joe and the Fish, doing their great song "Not So Sweet Martha Lorraine". There is also another "FUCK" cheer led by Joe that is completely different from the one on the "Woodstock" album. And this album claims that it is from Woodstock, so there is some controversy. It is most likely from another festival, as there is no absolute proof that it does come from where it claims. It is of surprisingly good mono.

The New Doors Make An Adequate Debut

The Doors

By RICHARD P. BARRY

Most likely you remember showman Jim Morrison when you think of the Doors; his was the voice that carried them through five years of success. The co-writer of dynamic music and lyrics, along with his on and off stage antics, Morrison was the personality of the Doors. He set the mood, but the actual music was performed by three unrecognized talented musicians.

Other Voices isn't what is left of the old Doors, but rather the result of a change in style. The direction of their music took this change with the releasing of L.A. Woman to an emphasis on blues. With the addition of a bass player and the departure of Morrison prior to his death, they attempted a new tone in their songs. Other Voices is indicative of this attempt towards a different mode as the concentration is on the blending of keyboards and guitar.

The album's best cut, "Ships w/ Sails", best shows Ray Manzarak's talent as he switches from piano and organ. Combined with a mellow Rob Kreiger guitar, the two effectively lead a bossa nova type beat to produce a relaxing mood.

Many of the cuts can be better enjoyed by ignoring the harshness of Kreiger and Manzarak's vocals. On "Tightrope Ride" a heavy on AM radio, the song takes an old rock and roll tempo and terminates with some quick finger work by Kreiger.

"Wandering Musician" begins like a Nicky Hopkins solo, dies with mundane and meaningless lyrics, but picks up and finishes with a impressive mixture of piano and guitar. In this piece, and throughout the album, Manzarak shows he is capable of being one of the best rock blues pianist today.

The trouble with some of the songs is that the listener only gets a small taste of the group's capabilities. The beginning of "Down on The Farm" begins like "Crystal Ship" with slow, smooth vocals, but turns into an imposing cluster of noise.

The album exhibits good jazz blues and rock and, although it could have been put together with a little more foresight, it is still worth getting into.

Portrait of Dylan As A Figurehead

By SNEVE FELD

BOB DYLAN'S GREATEST HITS, VOLUME TWO--Bob Dylan (Columbia Records).

Whether he is aware of it, and if he likes it or not, Bob Dylan is not the performer he used to be. He is no longer a major influence to those who once emulated him, nor is he a source of advice and guidance to those who once sought him, for whatever reason. This decadence, which had its origins within the stupor created by NASHVILLE SKYLINE, has remained in an abyss ever since. The eminent figure that was once ingenious is now mundane, and if there were any doubts, this record conveniently removes them.

Superstars make no mistakes, only transitions. When Dylan's big change came, it was overdue, and one album late. Let's go back in time.

After BLONDE ON BLONDE there was a long lull without Dylan, something that we'd have to get used to, and we knew it, although we were not conscious of it at the time. And amid the weird, spaced-out drug rumors, that John Lennon was Bob Dylan, and Jimi Hendrix had died from an overdose of speed, there appeared "SGT. PEPPER'S LONELY HEART'S CLUB BAND". And it changed a lot of our heads. It was a part of the drug weirdness that was with us for so long, and is still with us, although it's beginning to straighten itself out.

The beatles had been influenced previously by Dylan to the extent of "Norwegian Wood", and Lennon and Dylan were both reasonably together, at least in their ability to use words to confuse people. In his first "Rolling Stone" interview, Lennon described what happened when they got together. When asked if they were close, Lennon said that they knew they were close. It was just that whenever they were together they put each other so uptight that they couldn't speak. So we're not alone.

Columbia Records was also feeling the strain of having no new Dylan product, so they compiled GREATEST HITS, VOLUME ONE. The most recent songs on this were from BLONDE ON BLONDE, and were "I Want You" and "Just Like A Woman". It sold well and helped, if just a little, to relieve us.

Those who got into Dylan early in his career were the most aware and appreciative bunch of the time. I remember listening to "Subterranean Homesick Blues" for the first time and laughing uncontrollably at the one-note melody and the runaway lyrics. But we all grew up, some later than others. And we've all paid our dues.

Al Kooper, a Dylan sessionman, for a time, was once asked what it was like to work with Dylan. He said that he wasn't really sure. He was just wandering around Columbia's studios when he first started being one of Dylan's sidemen. He was sitting in a corner one day, playing his rinky-dink piano when Dylan turned to him and like the way he plays. I would sorta like him on this album (which was HIGHWAY 61 REVISITED). And Al Kooper played

And never before was he given so much freedom to play what he thought would go along with the particular tune. And if Dylan didn't dig it, he would say, "Do something else." And Kooper would do something else. And if Dylan didn't dig that, he would say, "Well do something else." And until Kooper did something that Dylan dug, that Kooper also dug, he didn't put it on the album. When Dylan did decide to put something on a record, it was something that not only Dylan dug, but what the musicians playing at the time, be it Al Kooper, Mike Bloomfield, or Charlie McCoy also dug.

Dylan was always concerned with the feelings of everybody, but specifically his particular side musicians.

Then came his motorcycle accident and the dreadful news that Dylan had broken three vertebra in his neck. He nearly died, we were told, and needed a full year to recuperate. But what followed was incredible. It was JOHN WESLEY HARDING. But that was still later.

By then we knew about Dylan and the Band, with Robbie Robertson and Rick Danko. We knew the fact that Rick Danko had also broken his neck in a motorcycle accident, near Woodstock, where Dylan took his fall. And the rumors intruded again, that Dylan was Danko and, later, that mysterious person draped over the piano on the cover painting of MUSIC FROM BIG PINK. It was Dylan's painting, and it was Dylan on the piano, but what did it mean? On the inside photograph of the Band's debut album, there was also a picture of Bob Dylan's son. He's the one on the far right, looking to the side. But it was all confusing, and we were all worried about the accident, and what it did to Dylan's head.

But the lull continued, and rumors that Dylan had scrambled his brains as well as his bike, and that his music-making days were over. But, shit, we all knew that it wasn't true, but we all have a tendency to believe these stupid rumors. And we've all been stuck inside of Mobile with the Memphis blues again.

Bob Johnston, the producer of JOHN WESLEY HARDING and other albums of Dylan before that, confirmed that JWH was, indeed, recorded after the accident, and Dylan is OK. So, because there is something greater than all of us, or at least something that sums up the total of all of us, Rick Danko is better, Bob Dylan is healthy, and everybody is making such incredibly good music, that it's almost unbelievable.

When the news of the JOHN WESLEY HARDING cover came around, it really freaked me. But it was true. When you turn it upside-down, there, at the top of the tree, are a bunch of faces, including the Beatles. This, undoubtedly, was an influence of the Beatles, with their SGT. PEPPER cover, and again, with the Rolling Stones, with their eerie THEIR SATANIC MAJESTY'S REQUEST (an obvious referral to the Beatles).

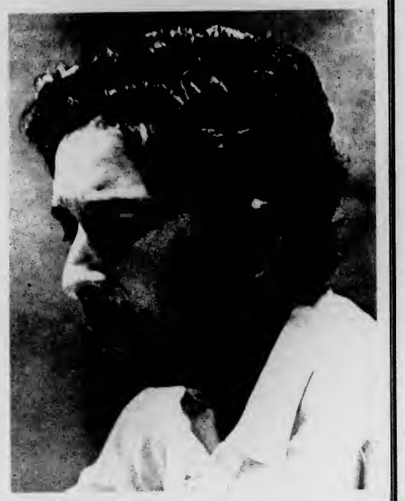
The English craze was still rampant while Dylan had his accident, though. And all the English musicians were showing off their supertalents. Meanwhile, Dylan had always said that his favorite English group was Manfred Mann and, up to that time, we never could understand why. But the first sound of Dylan, the first sign of him after his accident, was the Manfred Mann hit single "The Mighty Quinn". It was then that we had begun to understand.

With the time spent in Woodstock, and the time spent with the members of the Band, all of whom were country freaks from way back, keeping it all together for Bob, he would up sounding like Hibbing, Minnesota all over his entire body.

The Dylan Basement Tapes, as dubbed by "Rolling Stone" possessed an aura of simple beauty that was never before attained on a recording of any kind. They were a prototype in many ways, and were a major factor in the Beatles' decision to record GET BACK, at least on paper. Dylan never intended these songs to be released officially, much to Columbia's woe. The purpose of these songs, recorded with the Band, was to send to various artists, in order for them to record, as with Manfred Mann. There were various versions of these songs, literally a thousand generations of dubbed copies--passed on from performers, publishers, managers and agents, to friends, more friends, and friends of friends. It was finally released via the Underground, as a bootleg, called GREAT WHITE WONDER.

That brings us up to NASHVILLE SKYLINE and the new Bob Dylan. It was with this that Dylan made his total commitment to country music. He touched upon it with some cuts on JOHN WESLEY HARDING, but has gone to the extreme since. He is no longer the voice of the "movement", or the writer of profoundly significant songs. Maybe it was old age, or maybe it was the result of endless hours of contemplation, but it is a letdown, listening to NASHVILLE SKYLINE. Taken all by itself, it is of course, acceptable. Nice little, good-humored ditties, with that free swinging country style. Except you can't divorce a piece of art from the artist, especially when that artist is Bob Dylan.



By then, we had heard that Bob Dylan and Johnny Cash had hit it off well together, and were in the studio recording. When Cash got his TV show on ABC, he invited Dylan, and Bob accepted, though reluctantly. Rehearsals, as always, were repetitious and a drag, but it ended up fine. Dylan did "I Threw It All Away", one of the finest songs on NASHVILLE SKYLINE, then he quickly went into his next song, "Living The Blues", which was new. Columbia had said that it would be Dylan's next single, but those plans got scraped, probably because of the little reaction to it on the show. It ended up later on SELF-PORTRAIT.

Two years later, Dylan played live again, this time at the Isle of Wight, in England, where there was a mammoth rock festival. They paid Dylan a lot of bread, and he agreed. "And when it was over it felt like a dream." First the Band came on and did their set, then Dylan, backed by them. He did well, playing a large assortment of songs, and it was over all too soon. Dylan left England a few days later, after visiting some old friends like John Lennon and Keith Richards and Mick Jagger. He wanted to stay longer, but his beautiful wife, Sarah, was expecting her third child.

The next time Dylan played live was at Madison Square Garden, at the Bangla Desh benefit. He shared the stage with George Harrison, Ringo, Eric Clapton, and the rest. He did old songs, like "Mr. Tambourine Man" and "Just Like A Woman", and, much to our amazement, sounded just like he did way back then.

If NASHVILLE SKYLINE was a letdown, then SELF-PORTRAIT was a disaster. Faithful Dylanmaniacs tried and tried to convince themselves that it wasn't, but it never worked. The title alone, the most personal Dylan has ever used, is out of place. On this album more than any other has Dylan performed songs by other composers other than himself, which surely negates its purpose. He now comes across as a hybrid between Johnny Cash and Bing Crosby.

Maybe he's right though. Maybe singing love songs is The Answer, and his new directions will save the world. I just don't think so. He is now passive, while once he was active.

BOB DYLAN

Listen to Dylan singing "Like a Rolling Stone" on SELF-PORTRAIT, it was recorded live from the Isle of Wight Festival. Then listen to the live versions on the bootleg LOOKING BACK. It was recorded right during the time of HIGHWAY 61 REVISITED. The former is a country hick, yodeling nothing, while the latter is a modern day martyr, shouting to a disbelieving world. That's all it takes. It's the singer, not the song, as goes a Rolling Stones' song.

Like many people, I was sucked into all the hype that went into NEW MORNING. There was that Ralph Gleason testimonial-editorial in "Rolling Stone" and, most of all, that perplexing photograph of Dylan on the album's cover. Unlike SELF-PORTRAIT, NEW MORNING wasn't bad. It was even better than NASHVILLE SKYLINE, though far from JOHN WESLEY HARDING. NEW MORNING had Dylan delving into jazz forms, as with "If Dogs Run Free", and had Gospel overtones, as shown by "Three Angels" and "Father of Night". In fact, there were no really bad songs on it. But, likewise, there was nothing great within it.

So, what GREATEST HITS, VOLUME TWO does, more than anything else, is show this. It is possible, with alterations of the songs, to put them in chronological order and have a completely new album, THE RISE AND FALL OF BOB DYLAN. And with this album it has become clear that Dylan no longer relies on his music, but instead his name, for record sales.

Bob Dylan, in 1971, has become a figurehead.

"Watching the River Flow" opens the album on a note of mediocracy. It is a bouncy tune, with good musicianship, but it really doesn't say a hell of a lot. It is Dylan's delayed answer to John Lennon's "Revolution" single, released at the flip side to "Hey Jude". "River" sure sounds better here than on AM radio, where it was played extensively this past summer. It is followed, strangely enough, by "Don't Think Twice, It's All Right", which is early, acoustic Dylan. We are then catipulted up in time all the way to "Lay, Lady, Lay", a lovely song that creates a special mood. And then it's the pearl of the side, if not the whole album, "Stuck Inside of Mobile With the Memphis Blues Again". This is Dylan at his peak. It's an impeccable song that is still the breath of fresh air that it was years ago. It is embellished with a vibrant organ and a bubbly bass. And Robbie Robertson's guitar licks are fancy, yet subtle and fluid, playing a counter-melody with the organ. Dylan's cryptic lyrics are sung hauntingly and passionately.

Indeed, Side One is very interesting. "Don't Think Twice" seems as though it has come from another era, and perhaps it has. It is the magic of "Memphis Blues", however, that leaves one wishing for more of the same, just as it did on BLONDE ON BLONDE, an album that, by the way, is still receiving excellent record sales, and is currently going through a current upheaval. This side shows four separate, distinct, and very different sides of Bob Dylan.

Sides Two and Three are just randomly thrown together oldies, that don't equal Side One in aesthetic or comparative forms. On these sides, the accent is definitely on the older material, which, in turn, says something. These were the songs that weren't "great" enough to make it on VOLUME ONE, but were put here for posterity.

The new version of "The Mighty Quinn" is totally inferior to the one on the Basement Tapes. This time, it is an upbeat, sung in the same sloppy way that was "Like a Rolling Stone" on SELF-PORTRAIT. Dylan, by being loser, destroys the melody, and the atmosphere that was once inherent in the song.

Conspicuously absent from VOLUME TWO is "Ballad of a Thin Man", much to my distress. Someone along the way screwed up because this is one of Dylan's best songs.

So, let's face it. We can't go on expecting BLONDE ON BLONDE from Dylan any more. He has changed, and so have we. Anything that Bob Dylan involves himself becomes interesting and the very nature of his character demands that these changes take place, and there is nothing we can do about it except to accept it. If Bob Dylan wants to sit back and watch the river flow, that's just fine with me. I'll still love him.

Siegal-Schwall Flunks Out

The Siegal-Schwall Band: on Wooden Nickel

By JIM LAVRAKAS

Recorded live at the Quiet Knight in Chicago, the Siegal-Schwall Band's latest album most of the time sounds rather dead. I don't know what kind of recording studio the Quiet Knight makes but by the sound of this album it is better suited as a hockey rink.

The music itself has its ups and downs; most of the time it runs at sea level. Side one (or Heads as opposed to side two, Tails) starts off pretty well with "(Wish I Was On A) Country Road". Although sounding something like a cheap J. Geils it succeeds in its attempt at getting us to foot stomp while struggling with the acoustics.

"Devil" fizzles out completely. The song is just plain monotonous. Unfortunately for the rest of the side, "Devil" comes too early in the album for the last two songs, "Leavin'" and "Corrina", to redeem any of the side.

Heads is disappointing because it could have been so good. The recording of two of the four songs on this side are irritating enough to ruin the side. Tails starts out very well with good piano playing, good guitar picking and decent vocalization (and, thank god, a decent recording).

We're not to have this for long, however. It's saddening, and maddening, that the rest of the album fails. The recording is the primary reason for it's failure. The stuff this band plays is blues. Blues is the right word for it but it is not in the sense of what we had hoped for. It's the kind of blues you get while sitting through a boring 9:05 lecture. The performance just cannot get up enough steam to get you off.

However, if you can struggle through the second side until the last five minutes of the last song (just move the needle if you can't take it) there is a pleasing vocal harmonization along with a snappy beat which moves into an interesting guitar solo. The live crowd is aroused in one of the rare instances on this album and in a teasing manner of alternating between a soft and loud rendition of a repeated sequence of the song the Siegal-Schwall Band makes a valiant attempt to rock off the album.

Except that they're kidding nobody but themselves. The album would not have received such a mediocre rating had it not been for the inexcusable recording. This band is just not established well enough to come out with such a torture on the ears. They're not known well enough for people to suffer through the album just for the sheer joy of listening to Seigal-Schwall. These boys are going to need some more time together before they will produce the kind of music that is all theirs, smooth flowing, and, above all, easy listening.

Winwood And Company Mellow Out

By STEPHEN COLWELL

Whenever you mention Traffic, you can't really be sure who it is. Since the last studio recorded album John Barleycorn Must Die, the group has doubled in size. Joining Stevie Winwood, Jim Capaldi, and Chris Wood, are Rick Grech, who first appeared with Winwood on the Blind Faith album, Reebop Kwaku Baah, featured on congas, timbales, and bongos, and Jim Gordon, who has taken Capaldi's place at the drums, and who was last featured on the Derek and the Dominoes album with Eric Clapton, another former member of Blind Faith. All six plus Dave Mason, an original member of the group, appeared on the last Traffic album, recorded live and called Welcome to the Canteen. The latest album, titled The Low Spark of High Heeled Boys, is a lot mellower and easier to listen to than any of the previous albums by Traffic. And although it's not the best Traffic LP, it's worthwhile to listen to.

Stevie Winwood's vocals on four of the six songs are, for once, understandable. He doesn't carry any notes on any song like he did on the John Barleycorn album with the cuts "Freedom Rider" and "Every Mother's Son." There are traces of studio work with his voice throughout the album, which may be due to his straining his voice by doing so many concerts. Jim Morrison of the Doors ruined his voice in concerts, and the Doors' L.A. Woman album was a disaster as far as vocals went since Morrison's voice had to be "patched up" in the recording studio on most of the cuts. It sounds like Winwood might be trying to keep that from happening to him as he doesn't really sign on the album like he's capable of doing, but rather controls his voice so he doesn't strain it.

The music itself on the album is fantastic. Chris Wood plays the flute and saxophone better than he ever has before. Rick Grech's bass is near perfect throughout the album. The percussion by Kwaku Baah and Jim Capaldi couldn't be better. The guitars by Winwood are good, and his organ work on the title cut is his best effort since "Every Mother's Son."

The album has three cuts on each side. The first cut on side one, "Hidden Treasure," sets the musical pace for the album. It's a dreamy kind of song that makes you feel like your mind is up in the clouds somewhere just drifting along aimlessly, when in comes the sleazy sax of Chris Wood introducing you to The Low Spark of High Heeled Boys. You can picture the boys just strutting onto the scene, snapping their fingers, like they know something you don't. Stevie Winwood's vocals get the song going nicely. His piano carries the mood of the song well, but it's his electric organ that makes the song great. I haven't heard an organ that fits a song as good as this one does since Winwood did "Voodoo Child" with Jimi Hendrix in 1968. The last chord is a perfect ending to the song as the high heeled boys and Winwood exit for awhile.

The last cut of side one is a song Jim Capaldi wrote and sings himself, called "Light Up or Leave Me Alone." The song is light-hearted and Capaldi's vocals aren't bad at all. But it really doesn't fit in musically with the mood of the album set by the first two cuts. Winwood gets a chance to play his guitar, but the song doesn't come off as anything spectacular. You've heard it all before.

Side two starts off with another song not done by Winwood, but by Rick Grech and Jim Gordon. It's called "Rock and Roll Stew," and wouldn't have been bad if Stevie Winwood had sung it, but Rick Grech does and he isn't the most exciting lead singer in the world, and his vocals aren't the most desireable to hear, either. All things considered the boredom created by this song at least makes the last two cuts seem worthwhile. After letting Capaldi and Grech have their say, Winwood pulls the album back together with "Many a Mile To Freedom." A smile of relief comes over your face when your hear his voice once more. This song starts as a beautiful melody, and it's the prettiest song Traffic has done since "No Face, No Name, and No Number." The guitar solo by Winwood is nearly as good as the guitar solo on "Mr. Fantasy" but Chris Wood's flute is what makes the song as pretty as it is. This song should gave been ended after about five minutes because it repeats itself, and is pretty drawn out at the end. It is nice, though, and you'll like it best whenever the seasons are changing because it draws that kind of melancholy happiness from your soul that you get during those times of the year.

The last cut on the album, "Rainmaker" is a pleadingly mystical song with religious overtones concerning a farmer's prayer to the rainmaker for rain on his crops. The music is great and Chris Wood really shines on his flute. Toward the end of this seven-minute cut, your mind is hanging somewhere in the clouds again, waiting for the rain, that sleazy saxophone comes back for just a minute or so and so do those high heeled boys, just to let you know that they never left.

Although The Low Spark of High Heeled Boys won't get your feet moving, Winwood at least moves your mind in the way that only Traffic knows how to do. The album will put a serene smile on your face, just like you get looking out your window on rainy days or Sunday afternoons.

Everyone Loves KING KONG
Evenings at 7:15 and 9:15
THE FAIRFIELD CINEMA
NORTHAMPTON CENTER
581-6900

Traffic

Shawn Phillips:

By PETE FORGET

SECOND CONTRIBUTION—SHAWN PHILLIPS

A & M Records

Recorded on A & M records last year, this is the second album of a relatively unknown artist. Shawn Phillips has since made another album and always names them with titles beginning with the letter "C." He exhibits talents as a singer and song writer on this one. With excellent musical backup (Phillips has a dozen musicians helping him) this album makes for some very nice listening. The lyrics are printed out on the inside cover, simple and unpretentious.

There are cuts like the one entitled "She was waiting for her mother at the station in Torino and You know I love you baby but it's getting too heavy to laugh." Phillips describes a woman he has known in song which is a beautiful introduction for the music to follow.

With flute, piano, and strings in the not too distant background, this rates as one of the finest songs on the album. It leads right into the next song "Keep On" which features some nice brass arrangements and of course Phillips vocals. Then a fluid transition into a short song called 'Sleepwalker' and some fine flute and organ work.

Flip the record over and hear "A Song for Sagittarians." This one quiets down and comes back nicely. In "Looking up Looking down," Phillips tells us:

You see yourself in a coffee cup/But you cannot stimulate/the future up/Go slow/Every time I'm doing a number/ I'm thinking that I see your eyes/I keep crossing over borderlines/Seeking little babies die/The alternative to truth/is hypocrisy/If you want to choose the latter/You won't ever be free/Go slow, etc.

"What Zat" follows concerning a woman, pregnant and poor, struggling to give life. Two short instrumentals are next, especially line on headphones. Lastly is the song of a lady called "Steel Eyes." In it Phillips shows us his skill on acoustical guitar, playing some harmonics for added effect.

Shawn Phillips has a great deal to say on this album and he says it quite nicely. His songs are sensitive, the music gentle yet powerful. Look into it.

A Brilliant Cast Saves "The Trojan Women"

By NORMA DESMOND
actress now in retirement

The Trojan Women, written by Euripides, in 416 B.C., was not just the first, but the one great anti-war play. What Euripides did was to look at wars other side and the view form the losing side was not pomp and glory, but cruelty and pain. The Trojan women are powerless, defenseless. The sahame of these women is that they can do nothing, but yield to the victors. When the play opens their children have been taken from them and sent to unknown destinations, and the women are waiting to be shipped into slavery; it closes when they have all been consigned and the city is burned. THE Trojan Women is the greatest lament for the loss of freedom ever written, the greatest lament of the sufferings of the victims of war. The dramatist's vision of the women whose husbands and sons have been slaughtered is austere and controlled and complete so that, in a way, he said it all, and for all time. We knew about the miseries of war before. The play does more than confirm what we knew, it lays it out so early that we feel a deeper and higher understanding.

Despite the unevenness of the Cacoyannis film one may come out grateful for its clarity, grateful for the experience. Cacoyannis has filmed the entire film outdoors yet the film is claustrophobic, because the locations have no more relation to each other than if they were stage sets. One never knows where one is in this film You're not sure where the people are in relation to each other even when they are in the same shot. And why was the film shot in the kind of muted dark color that unimaginative people think is right for tragedy? T drained gloomy spectrum looks like stage lighting. An even more fundamental problem is one of sound. Phrases get lost when the characters are expecially upset or are in motion. These variations in audibility may make the play superficially life-like on the screen, but we regret, not hearing all the words.

Many years ago Katherine Hepburn, in A Long Days Journey Into Night, gave the crowning performance of her career. In The Trojan Women Hepburn has once again achieved the subtlities of performance. She is once again in control. In recent years, in such films as Guess Who's Coming To Dinner and even more in Lion In Winter, Hepburn has played on our emotions for her not those for the character she was portraying. As Queen Hecuba, in The Trojan Women, she gives a moving and most interesting performance. Hepburn is fine when she is angry, when she is fighting for something-when she has an antagonist. But at times her Hecuba has toom many "Oh, woe is me's" and we being to doubt the weak resigned side of her character.

Katherine Hepburn

Genevieve Bujold's portrayal of Cassandra doesn't quite come off. However, Miss Bujold gives a stunning try and should be given credit for attempting the role. It is not her fault that Cacoyannis has staged most of her scnes with Ophelia-like-flutters and with so much choruc commotion that many of her lines are lost.

As andromache, Vanessa Redgrave fares better. Andromache is not as showy a role as Cassandra. It is written in a clear purpose stule that pushes the narrative forward, and Redgrave's Andromache is magnificently uncomplicated. Her Andromache is being freshly thought out while we watch-a dazed unflirtatious, pale golden matron. Redgrave holds us by the 0uiet power of her concentration, by the marvelous little things that she does. Undoubtedly Redgrave gives the first performance in the film.

However, it is Irene Pappas as Helen of Troy who cancels out the cliches andlifts the film right out of the womens college virtuous cultural stage productions. The Trojan Women is not just a plainsong elegy disguised as a play. Euripides gave it one great melodramatic stroke, Helen the adulterous wife of King Meneleaus of Sparta, she whose flight with Paris, Prince of Troy, precipitated the war is among the trojan women survivors, Papas' Helen is a force of nature, a greedy woman who wants what she wants and who means to live. She has the vitality of the natural aggressor. While the other women mourn their dead, Helen uses her animal cunning to survive. Cacoyannis makes the point that she is not defenseless, that the ruthless have weapons that the righteous don't. Irene Papps as Helen brrethed sexuality. She is not merely a beauty, but the strongest woman one has ever seen, and the more seductive because of her strength. You can believe men would kill for her. She is not merely the cause of war, she is the spirit of war.

This play demands a plain consistent cinematic style supremly matter of fact as Euripides' language. Cacoyannis tries to make the film impressive. There's embalming fluid in the images and the tragic line breaks down into sequences. Some are derivatives, such as the whirling camera when Cassandra spins about, the Cacophanous music and the fast cuts when the characters are distraught. Some are prestigious in an overly effective way, such as the freeze frames in the opeing sequence while the narrator speaks. These are the attempts of a man without film sense to make a dramatic cinematic; it winds up an anthology of second rate film styles.

I think one would have to be foolish to let aesthetic scruples about the films mediocrity as cinema deprive one of seeing The Trojan Women with a cast one could never hope to see on the stage. The actresses do bring intensity to the screen. If a film releases that intensity, it hasn't bungled what matters most.

Irene Pappas

Hound Dog Taylor For Good Time Blues

For good-time blues, I've never seen or heard a musician who comes close to Hound Dog Taylor. I can think of few expereiences as exhiliarating as a Sunday afternoon at Florence's on Chicago's South side, watching Hound Dog as he laughs, stomps, and flails away at his guitar, infecting everyone in the vicinity with a gleeful boogie disease. "Dog" can't play a verse without breaking into happy laughter, and it's a rare listener who isn't bopping with him all the way.

And there's Taylor's great second guitarist, Brewer Phillips, flashing a toothy grin, kicking his leg up in the air, and unleashing rapid, racous riffs. Taylor and Phillips split up sometimes, but always come back together—a lot of musicians can't keep up with Hound Dog at all, and no one blends in like Phillips does. Behind them is drummer Ted Harvey, always chewing a wad of gum and yelling for another drink while he bashes both sticks on a battered snare drum.

And clustered around the band are people—people who've seen Hound Dog a hundred times before but who are still amazed at the boogies and bottleneck blues; people standing, dancing, smiling, just looking and shaking their heads. Out of all the bluesmen in Chicago, only Hound Dog consistently gets such crowd responses.

Dog has achieved enormous local popularity in the little taverns of Chicago, and lately he's won new fans at blues festivals, too, but real fame and fortune in the music world has eluded him. He's had only two 45's, both on small Chicago labels, and one LP, on Alligator Records. Perhaps his first East coast tour, in which he and his band will play in New Haven, Hartford, and Cambridge in addition to the University, will bring the attention that this man obviously deserves. - Jim O'Neal (Living Blues Magazine, 917 W. Dakin St., Room 405, Chicago, Illinois 60613

Hound Dog will perform at the, Student Union Ballroom on this coming Monday, December 13, at 8:00 P.M. Tickets are available at Superficial Smile and will be available at the door.

"Z"

Not only a dramatic personal study but an important political document.

Fri. Evening, Dec. 10 - Mahar

in color 6:30 - 8:45 - 11:00

NOW...YOUR CHOICE OF 5!

Showcase Cinemas 1-2-3-4-5

Rt. 5-W. Spfld.

733-5131

MORE NEW SHOWS!
MORE NEW LOUNGER SEATS!
MORE NEW PARKING!
MATINEES DAILY... POPULAR PRICES
Adults $1.50 Mon thru Fri Matts

1 Man in the Wilderness GP
2 Maid in Sweden X
3 French Connection R
4 Jesus The Greatest Story Ever Told G
5 Scrooge G

ACRES FREE PARKING
ROCKER LOUNGERS
CHARGE YOUR TICKETS

12" Pizza!

Plain $1.10
1 Item $1.35
2 Items $1.45
The Works $1.95

Mushrooms, Hamburg, Peppers, Anchovies, Olives, and Pepperoni.

Don't forget our catering services ..... with special discounts for fraternities and sororities.

The Black Kettle Deli

Jcts. Rts. 116 and 47
665-4084 Sunderland 665-4085

Films

"The Eighth Wonder Of The World"

THE SCREEN

A Fantastic Film in Which a Monstrous Ape Uses Automobiles for Missiles and Climbs a Skyscraper.

The following is the original review which appeared in the New York Times, March 7, 1933.

KING KONG, based on a story by the late Edgar Wallace and Merian C. Cooper; directed by Mr. Cooper; presented by RKO Radio Pictures. At the Radio City Music Hall and RKO Roxy.

Ann Redman	Fay Wray
Denham	Robert Armstrong
Driscoll	Bruce Cabot
Englehorn	Frank Reicher
Weston	Sam Hardy
Native Chief	Noble Johnson
Second Mate	James Flavin
Witch King	Steve Clemento
Lumpy	Victor Long

By MORDAUNT HALL

At both the Radio City Music Hall and the RKO Roxy, which have a combined seating capacity of 10,000, the main attraction now is a fantastic film known as "King Kong"

The story of this feature was begun by the late Edgar Wallance and finished by Merian C. Cooper, who with his old associate, Ernext B. Schoedsack, is responsible for the production. It essays to give the spectator a vivid conception of the terrifying experiences of a producer of jungle pictures and his colleagues, who capture a gigantic ape, something like fifty feet tall, and bring it to New York. The narrative is worked out in a decidedly compelling fashion, which is mindful of what was done in the old silent film The Lost World.

Through multiple exposures, processed "shots" and a variety of angles of camera wizardry the producers set forth an adequate story and furnish enough thrills for any devotee of such tales.

Although there are vivid battles between prehistoric monsters on the island which Denham, the picture maker, insists on visiting, it is when the enormous ape, called Kong, is brought to this city that the exictement reaches it highest pitch. Imagine a 50-foot beast with a girl in one pay climbing up the outside of the Empire State Building, and after putting the girl on a ledge, clutching at airplanes, the pilots of which are pouring bullets from machine guns into the monster's body.

It often seems as though Ann Redman, who goes through more terror than any of the other characters in the film, would faint, but she always appears to be able to scream. Her body is like a doll in the claw of the gigantic beast, who in the course of his wanderings through Manhattan tears down a section of the elevated railroad and tosses a car filled with passengers to the street.

Denham is an intrepid person, but it is presumed that when the ape is killed he has had quite enough of searching for places with strange monsters. In the opening episode he is about to leave on the freighter for the island supposed to have been discovered by some sailor, when he goes ashore to find a girl whom he wants to act in his picture. In course of time he espies Ann, played by the attractive Fay Wray, and there ensues a happy voyage. Finally through the fog the island is sighted and Denham, the ship's officers and sailors, all armed, go ashore. It soon develops that the savages, who offer up sacrifices in the form of human beings to Kong, their super-king, keep him in an area surrounded by a great wall. Kong has miles in which to roam and fight with vrontosauri and dinosauri and other huge creatures.

There is a door to the wall. After Denham and the others from the ship have had quite enough of the island, Kong succeeds in bursting open the door, but he is captured by the white men. How they ever get him on the vessel is not explained, for the next thing you know is that Kong is on exhibition in Gorham, presumably in Madison Square Garden.

During certain episodes in this film Kong, with Ann in his paw, goes about his battles, sometimes putting her on a fifty-foot high tree branch while he polishes off an adversary. When he is perceived on exhibition in New York he is a frightening spectacle, but Denham thinks that he has the beast safely shackled. The newspaper photographers irritate even him with their flashlights, and after several efforts he breaks the steel bands and eventually gets away. He looks for Ann on the highways and byways of New York. He climbs up hotel facades and his head fills a whole window, his white teeth and red mouth adding to the terror of the spectacle.

Everywhere he moves he crushes out lives. He finally discovers Ann and being a perspicacious ape, he decides that the safest place for himself and Ann is the tower of the Empire State structure.

Needless to say that this picture was received by many a giggle to cover up fright. Constant exclamations issued from the Radio City Music Hall yesterday. "What a man!" observed one youth when the ape forced down the great oaken door on the island. Human beings seem so small that one is reminded of Defoe's "Fulliver's Travels." One step and this beast traverses half a block. If buildings hinder his progress, he pushes them down, and below him the people look like Lilliputians.

Miss Wray goes through ner ordeal with great courage. Robert Armstrong gives a vigorous and compelling impersonation of Denham. Bruce Cabot, Frank Reicher, Sam Hardy, Moble Johnson and James Flavin add to the interest of this weird tale.

The version of King Kong now playing at the Talkie in Northampton is the original, uncut version which was not seen by the Times reviewer nor anyone. The most interesting cut, though, is the one featured in the above picture which shows Miss Wray's bare breast, not the kind of material the audience at Radio City or the RKO Roxy was capable of handling. Kong had morals, so to speak.

Merman was knocking them dead in Cole Porter's "Anything Goes", W.C. Fields was a smash at the Palace, Burns and Allen wowed them over the radio waves, and Fay Wray made them swoon on the silver screen. Them were the days.

WEEKEND Continued from page 16A

2001: A Space Oddyssey (Calvin Theater, Northampton)
Unquestionably one of the finest films of recent years and the best space epic ever. Stanley Kubrick's twelve million dollar Modern Odyessey is the surrealistic journey of Man's evolution, from Monkey to Man to Superman. The film is visually the most complex in recent years, a cosmic Marienbad, and the special effects are stunning beyond belief. It is loosely structure in three parts with more along thematic lines containing perhaps the most interesting pop philosophy ever filmed. The music score, ranging from Richard Strauss to Ligeti to Johann Strauss, is one of positive brilliant; the script is downbeat, black humor, and the direction is impeccable Kubrick, visually complete and beautifully done by perhaps America's finest director. In wide-screen and four-track stereo.

Viva Villa (Sunday, Merrill Science Center, Amherst College, 8 and 10)
Wallace Beery as Pancho Villa in this rather gruesome (for 1933) film about his exploits. Leo Carrillo (of Cisco Kid fame) is even bloodthirstier tnd Fay Wray proves her acting ability genuinely needed the addition of a big, hary ape to be of any interest. A fine script by Ben Hect is the film's major virtue.

Willard (Jerry Lewis, Cinemas, Northampton)
An immensely popular film which only proves the public interest in rather tastless excrement and is not in good films. A young man named Willard discovers he is able to speak to rats and then using this ability to his most expedient ends, much to the dismay of Ernest Borgnine who rather unceremoniously gets attacked by a viscious pack of rodents. The film isn't even frightening, just boring and tasteless.

Z (Friday, Mahar, 6, 8:15, 10)
Costas--Gravas brilliantly executed yet shamefully hollow polimic about Greece and the recent right-winged takeover. The film is breathtaking and fascinating thriller about a political leader who is murdered by a Fascist conspiracy in contemporary Greece. Director Costas--Gravas streches things a bit when he begins to push his message. Jean Louis Trintignant manages some fine acting as the government investigator who uncovers the conspiracy, otherwise the results are mediocre.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC
AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE
Now Showing
Eves. 6:45-9:05
Sat.-Sun. -con't.
NORTHAMPTON, MASS. 584-8435 - PARK MASONIC ST. LOT

ROSS HUNTER presentation
AIRPORT
BURT LANCASTER · DEAN MARTIN
JEAN SEBERG · JACQUELINE BISSET
GEORGE KENNEDY · HELEN HAYES
VAN HEFLIN · MAUREEN STAPLETON
MON. & TUE. Evenings - BALCONY SEATS $1.00!

Quicksilver

Saturday, Dec. 11

FLIGHT

8:00 p.m. 50¢

Theater

Buffalo Bill Has Arrived

Probably the most exciting and provocative play to be written in American in the last ten years will be presented by the UMass Theatre...Arthur Kopit's internationally acclaimed, Indians. Production dates are December 9th-11th & 16th-18th.

Indians opened in New York in 1969 to rave reviews. THE NATIONAL OBSERVER said of it "It may well be the great American play that everyone has been waiting for—the one that captures, in broad perspective, some substantial part of our common experience."

Indians, the action of which takes place in the center ring of Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show, is gaudy, noisy and raucuous. Mr. Kopit in writing Indians has become an Evangelist preaching hellfire in boisterous fables and parables.

The performers in this wild west show are Billy the Kid, Jesse James, Ned Buntline, Wild Bill Hickok, and assorted politicians and their victims--Geronimo, Chief Joseph, Sitting Bull, and other plains Indians. As they re-enact their parts in the conquest of the West, the legend of the western hero bravely taming a savage land is shown to be a fraudulent mythologizing of greed and stupidity, just as the Wild West Show itself was.

But beyond the so-called "message" of Indians there is pure entertainment. It is a spectacle of the rodeo arena, the western songs and the drama of triumph that is juxtaposed with the earth bound rituals, dances and chants of the Indians.

Indians is directed by Gary Stewart, who directed last year's American College Theatre Festival, winner for UMass Theatre, The Clouds. Sets are designed by Jeff A. Fiala, costumes by Elizabeth Weiss Hopper, Lighting by Janes F. Dooley Jr., choreography by Janet Craft and music by Jason McAuliffe.

Production dates are Thursday through Saturday evenings, December 9th-11th, 16th-18th, 8:30 PM, in Bartlett Auditorium. Reserved seating is available at the Bartlett Box Office or by calling 545-2579. Tickets are $1.50 for UMass students with ID and $2.00 for all others.

On February 26, 1846, in Le Claire Iowa William Cody was born; by the age of 22 he had killed over 4,000 buffaloes, not out of malice but because it was his job to see that the railroad workers building that "great link" across the United States were fed. For his supposed humanitarian efforts he received the nickname Buffalo Bill. At the age of 23, Ned Buntline wrote a dime novel called BUFFALO BILL, THE KIND OF THE BORDER MEN. This catipulted Buffalo Bill Cody into national prominence.

In the years following the Indian wars raged across the western United States, and Ned Butnline never one to turn down an opportunity to promote a "good show," wrote SCOUTS OF THE PLAINS, with Buffalo Bill Cody playing himself.

The future and fame of Buffalo Bill was made secure. He was a national hero. The fearless scout, buffalo killer, Indian slayer; he became the embodyment of all that was daring and noble in the conquest of the West. Whether this man, Buffalo Bill, was in truth a real life hero, is matter that can at best be considered suspect. But to minds of many an American for generations thereafter there has never been a doubt. He is the myth, the magic man that Americans built their dreams on.

But at what price? Is a myth made of Wild West Shows? In 1883 "Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show," was first performed. It was a great success. Such men as Sitting Bull, and Wild Bill Hickok, were fellow performers with Buffalo Bill. And from this type of showmanship, the great myth of the West was created.

There appeared in Playboy magazine an interview with John Wayne in which he said:

"I don't feel we did wrong in taking this great country from them (the Indians) if that' s what you're asking. Our so-called stealing of this country from them was just a matter of survival. There were a great number of people who needed new land, and the Indians were selfishly trying to keep it for themselves."

There seems to be a little loss of faith in that "myth" out of our past.

The UMass Theatre Production of Arthur Kopit's explores all of the above. Yet Indians is not a play about how badly we treated the Indians. We all know that. It is a play about the creation of a myth--a national mind-set. It dramatizes our national amnesia. Kopit shrewdly chooses Buffalo Bill as his focal figure. Buffalo Bill who was the significant link between the West as it was and the West as we have made it through novels, radeos, movies and television. Around his protagonist Kopit spins with great skill the theatrical sights and sounds of "Indian chants, ritual ceremony, three ring pageantry, Western Bravado.

Above all Indians is pure entertainment. It is "Thee Greatest Wild West Show" in all of America.

It is the chance for an audience to hob-nob with such heroes of our American folk lore as Billy the Kid, Jesse James, Annie Oakley, Wild Bill Hickok, Geronomo, and Sitting Bull, not to mention a U.S. President and a Russian Grand Duke.

"But If The Play Is Sick At Heart"

By WALTER KERR

Seeing Arthur Kopit's "Indians" is like seeing a three-ring circus on the night after the principal aerialist has been killed in a fall. The spectacle is all still there, but the band and the spangles and the horses at high gallop can't keep it from being sick at heart.

In one strict sense Mr. Kopit means his tanbark entertainment, with its rippling colored lights curving along a ramp into the auditorium and its vast high platforms from which godlike redmen can hurl challenges, to be sick at heart. Those of us in attendance are meant to see beyond the gaudy carnival of Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show, beyond the friendship between Bill himself and Sitting Bull, beyond the heroism of killing "100 buffalo with 100 shots," to the fraud that ended in genocide. Yes, Buffalo Bill befriended Indians, took their case to the White House, gave them star billing in his profitable vaudevilles. And yes, Buffalo Bill sold them steadily and silently down a river of no return, righteously proclaiming that all men must "adapt" to whatever the new circumstances are as he clasped hands with another brave while genially making another dollar. Buffalo Bill a rat? Buffalo Bill was an American.

Thus the message intended to discomfort us as we pick up its inflections through the blare and the blinking strobe lights of a two-a-day carnival. The carnival itself is immaculately put together by director Gene Frankel. Before the evening has begun we are persuaded by drums that we are in the presence of theatrical power: A stereophonic tatto yanks audience heads in all directions, searching for the sound that is surrounding and mesmerizing the assembled body politic. As the rattle reaches crescendo, three glass sideshow cages in which wax figures of Bil l and two Indian scouts are housed rise solemnly into the heavens, and Bill Cody in person—which is to ay in the white-maned, leather-jacketed person of a roaring, cursing, perspiring Stacy Keach—charges toward the footlights astride a superbly supple white horse. Mr. Keach is horse and rider both, of course, with sofe cotton strands flying about his steed's head as though beast and rider together were made of sea foam; the canter, the reining, the rearing constitute the happiest stage image conceivable.

Stage images pyramid until they threaten to topple. Bill's nightmares hover on the upper platforms like fox-faced snatches of protoplasm; when Bill kills his last 100 buffalo the buffalo waddle wearily into iew, saucer-eyed and grim, looking like death's-head replicas of that friendly puppet known as Ollie: when Sitting Bull's people are massacred and left to freeze in the snow a ground frost of twisted fingers is spread out to suggest the snapped twigs that these lives were.

There is ingenuity to burn, and perhaps to bewilder Sitting Bull descends to the ground on an improvised staircase made of three naked poles, no more. A chase that ends in a shoot-out dissolves without pause into a chandelier-lit evening at home with the President. With a blast of organ music and the quick choreographic twitch of a few bodies, we are into a deep blue saloon where slow-motion outlaws writhe as they drink, forgotten ghosts beneath the bright nuder over the bar. The production, designed by Oliver Smith and costumed by Marjorie Slaiman, is ready at every turn to take over for an ailing play.

The play does all in a way that exceeds Mr. Kopit's intentions for it. Mr. Kopit is too eager to penalize us for our, and Buffalo Bill's, bad habits. The evening is one of those penitential exercises so common now in which nothing can be heard but the beating of breasts and the self-inflicted scratching of flesh for past guilts. No doubt we all deserve such treatment; beyond doubt we can apply the sorry lesson of "Indians" to quite current problems, if we are not so taken up with the stagecraft that we quite forget to apply it to anything real. But we do not deserve a play in which the argument is unorganized, in which the conflict is undramatized, in which the irony is weighted to the point where it is indistinguishable from bad burlesque, in which all the speeches are tipped so far one way or the other that we never can have the sensation of touching truth at home base.

There is no true red-white clash, either. Though Mr. Kopit rigs a kind of confrontation, and repeats it far too often, in a meeting between Sitting Bull's people and a commision from Washington, the arguments are always delivered by substitutes and most often in the past tense. Bill must speak for Sitting Bull, Wild Bill Hickock must speak for Bill, the case is eternally being made by third parties instead of indirect, do-or-die meeting. In a very strange way, "Indians" is almost entirely exposition. "You tell 'em, Bill, go and tell 'em," propagandist Ned Buntline urges his hero, and so Bill goes on to tell 'em yet one more narrative saved from the past. Out of all of this one very fine remembrance emerges: Sitting Bull's horse had performed with him in Bill's Wild West show; the cue for the horse's dance had been a pistol shot; when Sitting Bull was at last and treacherously shot dead, his horse—a few yards behind him—rose to his cue and performed the whole of his dance to his master's last breaths. But there is no other image in the show quite so striking as this one, and it is, once more, verbal retrospect.

The comedy is baffingly low. A Russian grand duke spits and sputters in a Webber-and-Fields accent without achieving any comment that is genuinely biting or genuinely funny. A special performance at the White House finds a maiden tied to a stake, the maiden being performed by an Italian actress who seems to have misunderstood what Fannie Brice was getting at. Wild Bill Hickock (who is very well played by Barton Heyman) subsequently strips the lass to her corsets and stands spread-eagled above her, boasting of his reputation as a sure shot, before joining her under the White House rug. The humor, instead of stinging, seems schoolboyish or borrowed from the last remnants of the Absurd.

I am sorry to be harsh with the enterprise, of only because the production is truly skilled and may even provide enough divertissement to satisfy some comers for an evening. But the point should be made that it is all divertissement, all distraction, distraction from a play that has never been written out. We are once more in the presence of unfulfilled fragments—the notion of Total Theater is going to have a lot to answer for one of these days— and of an attempt to conceal their incomplete state by a massive and handsome use of gyrating stage tools. All of those blue-tinted, dream-drinking outlaws, for instance, come into being for the sole purpose of permitting Bill to enter the bar and say to friend Hickock that he has been having nightmares. But he has said that before, he could say it anywhere, and he ought to say it in greater detail, at greater depth. Instead, he is confiend to the single, simple statement while the body of the scene becomes the property of six rubbery mimes themselves irrelevant.

Near the end of the spectacle, Buffalo Bill says to Sitting Bull, "We had fun, didn't we?" Sitting Bull replies, "Yes, that was the terrible thing about it." An interesting idea, most workable as a theme. But in point of fact we have never for a moment seen Bill and Sitting Bull having fun together, the friendship as such has not existed in the play. Everywhere substance has been skimped. Sometimes the skimpiness is covered over by attitudinizing, sometimes it is covered over by moralizing (because we are guilty, must we accept weak dramaturgy?). Most often it is covered over by speacial stage effects, some of which are quite stunning.

Reprinted from the Sunday Times, Oct. 19, 1969.

Basic Audio

What You Need Is A Tuner

By FRANK JOHNSON

Having a record player, tape recorder, or microphone allows a wide variety of sources for a hi-fi system. These devices however require some sort of storage medium (records, tapes, or a PA system) so that they can be used. The addition of a radio would provide almost unlimited flexibility, and its shortcomings would be defined merely by the number of stations it could bring in clearly.

But when we envisage "a radio" we hardly think of hi-fi. What comes to mind is usually a small amplitude modulation (AM) receiving device that can be taken with us as a portable or else placed neatly on a bedstand as a table model. Most radios (including the consoles) have circuitry that is valued below $100. The sound that comes out of a radio would not be of sufficient quality to match the rest of our system.

What we need for this system, then, is not a self-contained radio but a tuner. This is literally a device that "tunes" in the radio station but does not amplify it. By concentrating on this one job, which is selecting and preamplifying a radio signal, it can be designed for close tolerances and high quality.

There are, of course, tuners that do come equipped with amplifiers and control facilities. These devices are called receivers, to be distinguished from the less expensive radios they superficially resemble. Not only is there a substantial qualitative difference between a receiver and a radio, but a large cost difference as well. Currently there are several receivers which list for over $1000.

We'll cover receivers in a separate column later on. Today we'll concentrate on tuners. We should keep 2 things in mind if we're interested in hi-fi. First, any tuner which is part of a high-quality system should be FM (frequency modulation) only, not AM. Not only is the programming far more advanced, but the quality of the signal is also better. AM transmission is effected primarily by signal strength, which is sent by bouncing AM waves off the lower ionosphere in the earth's atmosphere. The plus with AM is that it can be carried over long distances. (The short wave bands are a good example of long-distance AM). The drawbacks include a narrow bandwidth (width of the channel being received) and a rather restricted frequency response. In our first column we mentioned that it was desireable to get a wide frequency response. AM stations rarely exceed 5 kHz as their upper frequency limit. In addition, AM is prone to static, whistles, hiss, and obnoxious programming. It is not a hi-fi medium.

FM, on the other hand, is usually transmitted horizontally, like VHF television waves. It cannot travel the distance of AM; but it does not suffer from a restricted frequency response on the contrary, FM tuners can easily pick up a 20 kHz tone. This is because the frequency is modulated, not the amplitude. FM signals are by and large static free. Some of the signal-to-noise ratios of FM tuners are better than many amplifiers.

So now that we know we want FM, we should also realize that if we want to receive stereo over the air, we have to have FM. There were some experiments made in 1925 with stereo AM, but now there is no such thing. Stereo means multiplex FM, a process by which two signals are combined and transmitted as one. The tuner decodes this combination and arranges the two stero channels. The difference in signal quality between AM and FM is so great that stereo AM is very impractical.

Let's briefly look inside a tuner and see what it does when receiving a signal. First, this signal is collected and directed to the set by means of an antenna. When it reaches the set, it has to be sorted from the myriad of other signals. This is done in the "front end", which consists of a variable capacitor and a means of minor amplification. After the signal is sorted, it is mixed with another frequency through a process called heterodyning. Lost? Don't worry-it's complicated.

The Scott 433, or the lazy man's dream tuner. This model uses a programming system by which stations are dialed according to a pre-punched program data card. It employs RET transistors, crystal filters, and integrated circuits. For explanation, see text.

Heterodyning is necessary if we want to amplify the signal but at the same time keep a good signal-to-noise ratio. However, it must be done in stages. The signal that is injected during heterodyning is called in intermediate frequency; that is to say, it lies between the radio bands (AM: 560-1600 kHz; FM: 88-108 mHz) and the audio bands (20-20,000 Hz.). We remove the intermediate frequency progressively, by a method called detection. This is done by oddly enough, a detector. The amplified radio signal is removed from the intermediate frequency after the last intermediate frequency (IF) stage. It is now ready to go to the preamplifier.

This step-by-step process is basically the same in both AM and FM tuners. What distinguishes the two is the frequencies used and how the components are tuned. Though they are transmitted differently, the method of reception is basically the same.

We should now review a list of factors that makes a tuner "good". By "good" we don't necessarily mean "expensive". FM tuner's sensitivity is measured as the ability to pick up a signal level, measured in microvolts (1 microvolt - x 10 volts), with 30 db in excess over the noise level. A typical specification would read "2 microvolts sensitivity, IHF". This means that this tuner will pick up 2 microvolts of signal and still keep the noise level 30 db below this figure. However, an IHF sensitivity won't tell us very much about stronger signals. This can be related by means of a plotted graph, known as the "quieting curve." The tuner, when it picks up "normal" signals, should give at least a 50 db signal-to noise ratio (substantially better than the IHF figure) or else it won't do us much good.

Next, a tuner should have good selectivity, the means of separating one signal from another without the other signal interfering. This is especially important when we wish to hear a weak signal whose frequency is very close to a strong signal. Selectivity is expressed in db. In areas where the signal is very strong (such as right next to the transmitter) we also don't want the tuner to "cross-modulate", or have the same station come in at several points on the dial. Furthermore, we want the tuner to also have a wide bandwidth, or leeway within a certain tuned frequency, so that tuning isn't so critical. Wide bandwidth is especially important for stereo FM. Finally, the tuner should also have a good residual signal-to-noise ratio, so that the only offending culprit can be either a poor amplifier (your fault) or a poor signal (the station's fault), and a good capture ratio, which menas that in the event you have tuned two stations of the same channel, the tuner should select the stronger of the two. The capture ratio is also specified in db, meaning the measure in db of the stronger signal over the weaker one.

We definitely need some sort of device that can show us if we've tuned in the station correctly. A good way of doing this is to have a tuner with a meter. These meters usually come in 2 forms: a signal-strength type, which indicates the strength of the incoming signal, and a center-channel type, used only on FM, that indicates exact center of channel. Although center-channel meters are generally easier to use, it is best to have a tuner which features both.

For stereo, we want a tuner with as much separation as possible-the difference in signal, expressed in db, between 2 stereo channels. Separation varies as the frequency is changed, and it will always be best in the mid-frequencies. In this case, separation should be in excess of 30 db. Stereo FM usually has somewhat more distortion than mono FM, and its signal-to-noise ratio likewise suffers. We therefore want a tuner which keeps distortion at the lowest level possible, usually lower than 0.5% in mono and 0.8% in stero (almost inaudible).

The circuitry of a tuner will also determine what sort of a job it will do. Last time we reviewed tubes and transistors. I will generalize now and say that properly-designed transistor tuners will out perform tube tuners, all factors being equal. This superiority is due to modern circuitry that improves a tuner's performance. Transistors by themselves usually have a lower noise figure than tubes. Ordinary transistors in "front ends", however, have a tendency to cross-modulate. The field-effect transistor, which is affected by voltage and not current, will not cross-modulate so easily, and should always be found in a transistor "front end". Selectivity is limited by the use of tuned transformers, which are properly called chokes. Replacing a choke by a tuned crystal, which resonates at the desired frequency, will improve selectivity. A tuner that has crystal or ceramic filters (see earlier column that discussed piezo-electric effect) will do a better job of separating stations close together than one employing transformers or chokes; again, all factors being equal. Finally, transistors may be combined with several others and put into a single or integrated circuit. This allows much size to be reduced. Integrated circuits are especially useful in the intermediate frequency stage because they can sometimes improve capture ratio. Their widespread use is being debated, however, and many designers use them merely to reduce cost, as they may not necessarily improve performance.

One important plus of transistors is their absence of hear, which tends to de-tune the transformer in a tuner. This problem introduces the weakest link in a tuner: alignment. In tube tuners, the gradual de-tuning due to heat may require alignment once or even twice a year. In a transistor tuner, this job may be performed only once every 3 years. The tendency to fall out of alignment is further reduced by crystal filters, since they theoretically should never change frequency once they are made. So crystal filters really are an important development.

We're in tune. We want to get to the process of control and preamplification. Tune in next week for the next exciting thicket.

Weekend

By BOB NESTI

Music

Roberta Flack

Roberta Falck is probably the most underrated female vocalist today and her concert at Smith is mandatory for anyone interested in pop music. She can evoke and sustain a mood with a song that puts nearly every other singer in their respectful place. Tonight at Smith, Greene Hall, at 8.

Guys and Dolls

"The Oldest Established Permanant Floating Crap Game In New York" is what this delightful classic musical is all about. Nathan Detroit, his girl of fourteen years Adelaide, Sky Masterson, and Sally Browne of the Salvation Army are only some of the Damon Runyun characters who comprise the Times Square milieu featured in this show. The score, by Frank Leosser, is one of the most memorable in Broadway history, at the Lab Theatre, Mr. Holyoke College, tonight, tomorrow, and Sunday evenings at 8:15.

Indians

Arthur Kopit's highly acclaimed drama will be presented by UMass Theater tonight and tomorrow at 8:30 in Bartlett Auditoruim. It is reviewed on page 14A. ($)

Theater

The Wizard Of Oz

Smith College's production of the classic children's film, this time adapted to the stage. The three performances this weekend are sold out so the only way to see this production is make arrangements with your friendly scalper.($)

Films

Airport (Academy of Music, Northampton)

A glossy and obvious melodrama done in the Big Hollywood style which seems today far out-of-date. A group of airline passengers spend an evening stranded on a snowy and blocked runway and are put through nearly every cliche which can be imagined to occur. The film has a large cast, led by Burt Lancaster, Dean Martin, Jean Seberg, Maureen Stapleton, Van Heflin, and Jacqueline Bissett, but acting honors go to Helen Hayes as the little old lady stowaway.

Belle De Jour (Sunday, SU Ballroom, 7 and 9:30)

Luis Bunuel's beautifully executed erotic fantasy about a well-bred, bored girl's sadomasochistic fantasies is one of the more sensual films of recent years. Catherine Deneuve portrays the woman who has everything, save a bit of the whip and makes frequent mental visits to a brothel to satisfy her desires. Bunuel has crafted a genial and lovely fantasy. (in French with subtitles).

Bonnie and Clyde (Wednesday, Student Union Ballroom, 7 and 9)

The two of the most notorious and legendary criminals of the Thirties were transformed into two of the Sixties most popular folk heroes through the polularity of this fine film. Director Arthur Penn has made nearly mythic these two scoundrels through his excellent use of decor and color of the period. Faye Dunaway and Warren Beatty are fine in the leads, but the film's most interesting caricatures belong to Estelle Parsons and Gene Hackman as the title duo's cronies. Simply one of the more memorable film's of the late Sixties.

Casablanca (Friday, Bramble Auditorium, Mt. Holyoke, 8)

A very professional and highly enjoyable entertainment which mixes sophisticated witticism and tense, action melodrama with equal amounts of finnese. It is truly one of the best remembered romantic films of all times with Humphrey Bogart meeting his pre-World War II love Ingrid Bergman in espionage-ridden Casablanca. She and her husband, an outspoken critic of Nazi policies, seek to escape to America and the cynical, well-written script follows them through to the end. The cast is impeccable. Humphrey Bogart has never seemed so pathetic and Ingred Berggman was never as beautiful as in this film. Dooley Wilson plays the memorable "as Time Goes By." Oscars in script and direction as well as being the Best Picture on 1941.

Catch 22 (Jerry Lewis Cinemas, Northampton)

Mike Nichol's interpretation of Joseph Heller's hugely successful-surreal antiwar memoir makes for a searing film experience. Alan Arkin gives one of last year's best performances as Yossarian, the air force bombadier who discover's he's damned if he does and damned if he doesn't (which is essentially what Catch-22 is.) The film is wild, chaotic, and episodic look into the absuridity of war and takes place on a dry makeshift B—52 base in the south of Italy during the latter days of the war. Nichols assembled one of the best casts of any large, recent production and induced superlative performance from them all.

The Champ (Friday, Merrill Science Center, Amherst College, 7 and 9)

A sentimental tale about a boozy boxer and his son that won an Oscar for Wallace Beery and one for scriptwriter Frances Marion. This 1931 film also confirmed the stardom of child star Jackie Cooper, whose most recent performance in The Love Machine, should have him longing for the good, old days.

Cry Uncle! (Campus Cinemas, Hadley)

A film of positively no taste at all, and funny for anyone who finds a grossly overweight nude man humping all sorts of thunder-thighed young ladies humorous. Directed by Joe's John G. Avildsen, the film is an attempted satire of sexfilms and detective yarns that comes off more a satire of itself.

A Day At The Races (Campus Cinemas, Hadley)

"Either the man is dead or my watch has stopped!" says Groucho Marx as Hugo Z. Hackenbush, a horse doctor posing as a fashionable neurologist, in this completely captivating 1937 comedy. It all has something to do with a sanatorium, a group of bankers, a blond siren, and a steeplechase and a cast which included Margaret Dumont, Maureen O'Sullivan, and Allan Jones. The film, though, is stolen by Groucho.

Fantasia (Campus Cinemas, Hadley)

While watching rushes of the "Pastoral Symphony" sequence, Walt Disney was said to have exclaimed, "That'll make Beethoven!" Whether or not he succeeded seems a mute point, for he managed to create perhaps the most impressive cartoon feature up until the recent Yellow Submarine. The film utilizes Leopold Stokowski and the Philadelphia Orchestra playing excerpts from Tchiakovsky, Dukas, Stravinsky, Moussorgsky, in addition to Beethoven as Disney gave a visual accompaniment to works by these composers. Some seem marred by the cloying sentimentality which so often flavored Disney finlms, still there are three or four delightful sequences.

The 100 Blows (Sunday, Thompson 104, 7 and 9)

A funny and moving account of a small boy's adventure in the big city while on the run from an unhappy home and school life. Francoise Truffaut wrote and directed this 1959 semi-autobiographical film that greatly influenced the New Wave series of the early Sixties. The location photography is exquisite.

The French Connection (Showcase Cinemas, West Springfield)

A fact-based account of how police trackdown a shipment of heroin in New York City which is a fast, flashy, and fascinating thriller. The grittiness and chaos of New York City is captured at breakneck speed and brutality by director William Friedkin who has fashioned perhaps the stylish and finest thriller in some time. Gene Hackman plays a boorish detective who, as the antisocial, antihuman, detective, somewhere between Bullitt and Joe, is fast becoming the latest film cliche.

Gone With The Wind (Showcase Cinema, West Springfield)

This romantic historical pageant of the Civil War is remembered by many as the best film of all time. It crystallized an entire generation's idea of what a romance should be, full of color, character, and action. David O. Selznick mounted this gigantic production in association with MGM and utilized three directors (Victor Fleming takes the credit and the Oscar for Best Director in 1939), many of Hollywood's finest technicians, perhaps the most splendid color photography up until the time, and a cast that was chosen with impeccable care. Clark Gable plays Rhett Butler. Vivien Leigh played the memorable Scarlett O'Hara (and copped an Oscar), and featured in the huge cast are Olivia DeHavilland, Leslie Howard, and Butterfly McQueen, whose part as the maid only showed that Hollywood wasn't quite as intelligent as we may wish to remember.

John Curtis as Geronimo in Indians, the UT production reviewed elsewhere in this issue.

Goodbye, Columbus (Jerry Lewis Cinemas, Northampton)

Philip Roth's novella was transformed into a slick, stylish comedy--drama. It's about an unhappy affair between a young man, who is poor, Jewish, and works in a library; and a young girl, who is rich, intelligent, and is rich, intelligent, and is Ali McGraw. The film contains one masterfully done sequence: the essential Jewish wedding that is presented with such a cold eye as to make a complete anathema. Other than this, and the performance of Richard Benjamin, the film makes for plain drivel.

The Greatest Story Ever Told (Showcase Cinemas, West Springfield)

Jesus is big this year, which is the only reason for the re-release of this terrible film about the life and times of The One And Only. The film makes Christ out to appear as a latter day Alexander The Great who not only claimed to be the Son of God, but was treated as such by the millions of extras George Stevens employed in this mammoth (70mm. and stereophonic sound) production. Stevens has managed to make probably the worst and most blatantly inaccurate Bible spectacle to date which bears about as much relation to the life of Christ as Charleston Heston's Moses did in DeMille's Ten Commandments.

King Kong (the Talkie, Northampton)

The greatest film monster of them all makes his belated, triumphant, and uncut return in this, the original print of the 1933 film. Kong eats a native and makes an obvious play at poor, captive Fay Wray in the footage that has returned from the cutting room floor. For more see the original, New York Times review somewhere in this issue.

Kotch (Palace, Spfld.)

Walter Matthau is excellent as a seventy-year-old widower who shares his cottage with an unwed pregnant teen-ager.A neat and often touching entertainment, this film marks Jack Lemmon's thin directorial debut. Hopefully, in the future, Mr. Lemmon will devote all his time to acting.

The Leopard (Friday, Campus Center Auditorium, 7 and 10)

A dazzling historic recreation of the dying aristocracy of Italy during the latter part of the last century done by master director Luchino Visconti. A film with a wonderfully sustained sense of the period with what is probably Burt Lancaster's finest performance.

Min and Bill and Tugboat Annie (Saturday, Merrill, Science Center, Amherst College, 7:30 and 10)

Two films starring the irrepressible Marie Dressler, the first of which won her an Oscar.

A Night At The Opera

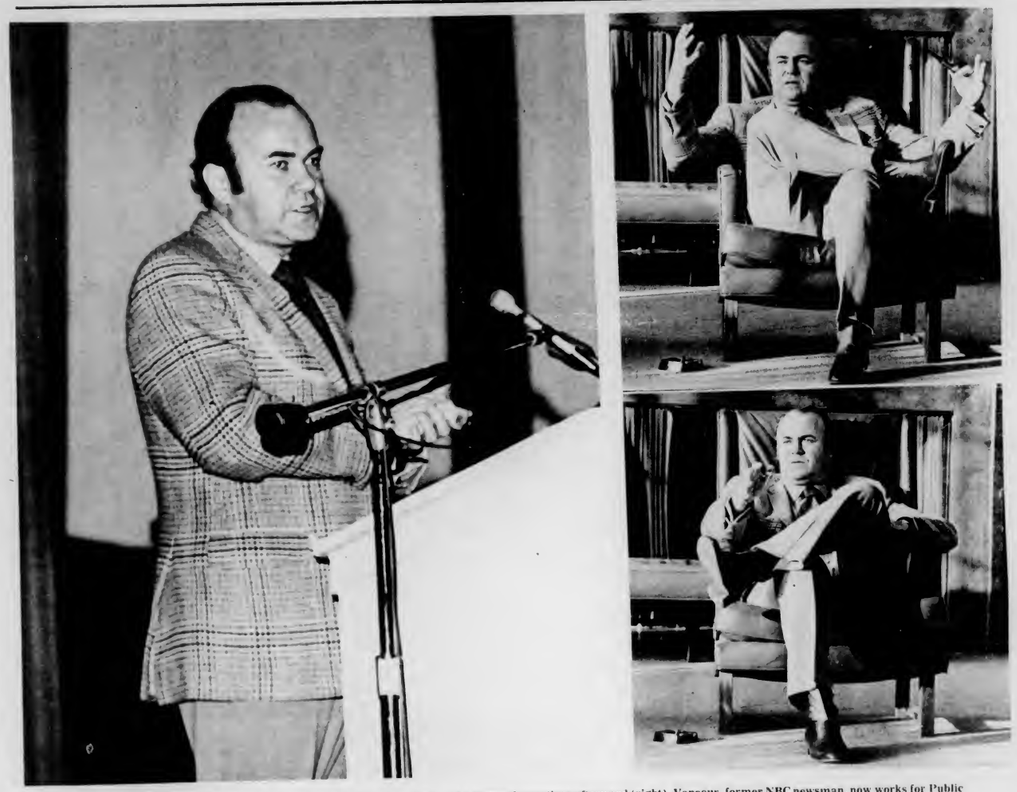
The Marx Brothers in probably their finest film. The quartet take on culture, specifically opera and do what needed to be done to "Il Trovatore" in the first place. A wonderful film.

Scrooge (Showcase Cinemas, West Springfield)

Despite the facts that it is a rather painfully tuneless musical, this recent adaptation of Dicken's classic story is worth seeing for its fine script and the brilliant characterization of Albert Finney as Scrooge. The production is handsome, the action wonderfully done, and the results are enormously entertaining, the only major fault is lacklustre Leslie Briscusse score. A fine cast is featured led by Alec Guinness, Edith Evans, and Kenneth Moore.

The Strawberry Statement (Saturday, Sage Hall, Smith College, 7:30 and 9:30)

A wretched look at college radicalism. Take uncommitted boy (a jock on the crew team) have him meet politically active girl at a rally, and watch them take over the university in the tradition of Mickey Rooney--June Allyson. They enjoy themselves until the "pigs" bust their heads in the films rather unsubtle and overly persuasive conclusion that showed us, once and for all, Hollywood wasn't quite ready for the New Left. Kim Darby looks perfectly awful throughout and gives a complementary performance as the identity crisis-proned girl and Bruce Davidson seems perfectly mindless as the apathetic jock who becomes committed to the cause.



Continued on Page 13a

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather
Twelve days to go. Ho Ho Ho.

VOLUME XCIX, ISSUE 65 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS MONDAY, DECEMBER 13, 1971

Sander Vanocur spoke before an audience of 400 Saturday (left) and answered questions afterward (right). Vanocur, former NBC newsman, now works for Public Broadcasting. In his speech, he stressed the importance of domestic issues.

Sander Vanocur:

'Domestic Issues Are Most Important'

BY BOB CALLAHAN
AND JAN AUMAN

Stressing that the media must become concerned with reality in the upcoming Presidential campaign, veteran broadcaster Sander Vanocur called for more coverage of the issues that directly affect the people and less coverage of the campaigning of Presidential hopefuls. Vanocur spoke before an audience of 400 Saturday evening at the Student Union Ballroom.

Vanocur, who resigned from NBC earlier this year to work in Public Broadcasting, said, "There is a great deal on the minds of the people...it is evident that people are more concerned about the substructure of politics." In speaking about the substructure of politics, Vanocur means the issues which most directly affect the lives of the American people.

The former White House Correspondent said that crime in the streets, pollution, and unemployment were the real problems faced by the people. He discounted the Russians and Chinese as posing any threat.

Vanocur said that people can't relate as well to issues such as foreign affairs that seem distant. But that they can relate to the domestic issues.

In emphasizing his point, Vanocur said, "When I walk down the street late at night, I don't worry about a Russian missile sneaking up and mugging me," and "I don't lie awake at night wondering whether Chairman Mao, red book in hand, will break into my house and steal my television set."

According to Vanocur, the media has to deal with "sociological reporting." "They have to talk to people and get to know what the people are thinking."

He called for less focus on the attitudes of the politicians and said that it is the duty of the media to try to avoid being a "transmission belt for established authority."

Vanocur urged those listening to work within the system as a means of effecting change. "We simply have no other way to make the system work," he said.

Vanocur pointed out that citizens should start paying attention to people in local political office. "By thinking small, none of us are entirely powerless," he said.

In a question period after delivering his prepared speech, Vanocur said that he thinks that there is a definite move away from the two party system. "We may be entering an era of multiple parties," he said.

When asked what the chances of Nixon's re-election were Vanocur replied, "President Nixon appears to be in very good shape right now, but I can't predict the outcome with any accuracy."

As for New York Mayor John Lindsay, he feels that his chances aren't too good. "I've lived in New York for a while," he said.

Vanocur discredited the belief that a campaign could be won through the media. He thinks that the American People are looking for "Charisma of non-charisma" in the candidates for the upcoming Presidential election in 1972.

Earlier in the day, Vanocur held a seminar in which questions were asked about his relationship with NBC and the control of government over the media.

On The Inside:

- SW Sex Survey — See page two
- Photo Essay — See page eight
- India-Pakistan — See page four

Diane Meltzer working on silvercraft that she sold at Sunday afternoon's Orchard Hill Bazaar. The Bazaar was sponsored by Apple Corps, Orchard Hill's social and cultural group. (MDC photo by Gary Alpaugh)

SW Sex Survey Planned

"What do college students really think about their dorms? What double standards about sex exists among men and women? Are dorms in Southwest viable places to live? What is the learning environment in a UMass dormitory?"

These are the questions that are currently perplexing Bill Laramee and Dave Hoffman in their attempt this week to learn more about the way freshmen living in Southwest see the place they call home.

They call their research study, being done for Dr. Robert Gage, Acting Vice-Chancellor for Student Affairs, "Project FLAVER." The acronym stands for Freshmen Longitudinal Attitudes-Values-Environments Research.

Beginning tonight in six dorms--Patterson Pierpont (Project 10), John Adams Lower and Middle (T-5 Experiment), Coolidge Middle, Kennedy Lower and Middle, and Washington Lower--counselors will distribute survey forms dealing with attitudes towards dormitory life as well as feelings and knowledge about sex.

"Because some of the questions about sex attitudes are very personal, and ideas about the dorms might be controversial," T-5 project director Laramee said, "all responses will be completely anonymous." Only results in general terms will be made public.

Hoffman, the assistant director of Project 10, added, "The people who make future decisions about what sorts of experiments will be encouraged to remake the environment of dorm living solid information, that's clear."

Both Laramee and Hoffman, doctoral students in higher education, see their study, being done with the collaboration of Dr Harry Schumer (Psychology), as necessary data in the reform of living conditions in the dormitories.

The survey should take about one hour, and can be done either tonight or Tuesday, Wednesday, or Thursday. "We hope people in the dorms will be able to find the time, in between term papers and tests, to fill out the questionnaires," Laramee said.

About 1000 students are expected to participate, including several hundred freshmen in Psych. 101. The survey is part of a national study. It began in the attempts, both in Project 10 and T-5, to evaluate the impact of college life upon freshmen.

Hospital Raises Controversy

Unless the governor or secretary of human resources intervenes, the state Dept. of Public Health apparently will not review the need for the controversial $55-$70 million teaching hospital of the UMass Medical School in Worcester.

This will probably mean, according to Dr. Meyer Herman, director of the health department's Bureau of Resource Development, that the four existing Worcester hospitals will have to cancel their plans for modernization, expansion and new construction for the indefinite future--since the new 400-bed hospital will more than satisfy all projected needs for the Worcester area for years to come.

The proposed teaching hospital has been widely criticized as an unnecessary addition to the medical facilities of the Worcester area.

According to the department's figures, Worcester already has 7.4 general hospital beds per 1000 population, compared with a statewide average of 4.6 beds per thousand

In addition, the UMass hospital would add another obstetrical service to Worcester's four existing maternity units and another radiation therapy center to the three existing super-voltage radiotherapy installations there.

Because of these figures and Worcester's stable population, construction of the UMass hospital "may lead to closures of one or more Worcester hospitals eventually—and presumably it would," said Peter Hiam, the department official in charge of implementing the state's new emergency authority to curb all unnecessary hospital and nursing home construction.

Nevertheless, Hiam has decided not to apply the new authority to the UMass hospital case, because he feels it was not the Legislature's intent to have the department review the need for the facility.

But Hiam said he intends to make clear to the four existing Worcester hospitals the profound impact the UMass facility will have on their future.

"Since we apparently have no control over the UMass hospital," Hiam explained yesterday in an interview, "all new projects in the Worcester area will have to be measured against the impending reality of the teaching hospital.

"We will not permit existing institutions to modernize, expand or change services if that need would be met by the UMass hospital," Hiam declared.

The health department's decision not to press the UMass case follows a non-binding opinion from the state attorney general's office that the department's new authority does not apply to the UMass facility.

The opinion of Asst. Atty. Gen. Walter H. Mayo III was in response to a request from UMass President Robert Wood to answer whether the state's new "certification of need" legislation extended to a review of the need for the new hospital.

"The opening of a teaching hospital for the UMass medical school as rapidly as possible is essential if the school is to fulfill its promise in recruiting a first-quality clinical faculty," Wood argued.

On the other hand, some health department staff, planners and Worcester hospital administrators have argued that the city does not need another major hospital and that one or more of the existing hospitals could serve as a teaching hospital for the new medical school.

Reprinted from the Boston Globe

No Tuition Rise Expected

Despite increasing pressures to raise tuition in state operated institutions of higher learning, Rep. Edward A. McColgan, D-Northampton, said Wednesday he does not believe the legislature will increase tuition rates in 1972.

McColgan, a member of the joint legislative committee on education, said his committee has consistently opposed raising the $200 a year tuition in community colleges, state colleges and the University of Massachusetts.

"I don't foresee any change in attitude on the committee, despite the large number of bills filed to increase tuitions," Rep. McColgan said.

The two term legislator, a former faculty member at Westfield State College, was in Greenfield to tour Greenfield Community College facilities and to talk to more than 150 Hampshire County area students attending the local institution. During the tour, he met with members of the GCC faculty, administration and student governments.

"The education committee has hired research assistants to study the entire question of tuition at our state institutions," Rep. McColgan said. "Philosophically, I am in favor of doing away with all tuition charges but, realistically, this is not going to happen, at least in the foreseeable future."

(Reprinted from the Greenfield Recorder)

If Grades Affect You

Tomorrow's Daily Collegian will include a questionnaire on grading systems and their affects, prepared by the School of Education.

The questionnaire is part of the School of Ed's efforts to prepare a report for the Faculty Senate on its own pass/fail grading and to deal in some depth with the problems raised by grades and grading systems in general.

According to School of Education sponsors, "The questionnaire is designed to shed light on such questions as: What is the relation between grades and learning?; What are the purposes of a grading system? and What grading system best serves the needs of students?"

The questionnaire is being carried by the Daily Collegian as a public service and in the interest of everyone who has ever worried about a grade.

Lined Gloves from $1.98

WEAR HOUSE

Quicksilver Food and Music

HOUND DOG TAYLOR & HIS HOUSEROCKERS
TONIGHT 8:00 PM
STUDENT UNION BALLROOM

ROOM TO MOVE
Campus Drug Drop-In Center
CALL 5-0400
24 HOURS A DAY
7 DAYS A WEEK

Learn to Drive
AMHERST AUTO SCHOOL
34 Main Street
256-6066

MERCURY BOOKSTORE
Astrology and Occult Sciences
549-0910
9 EAST PLEASANT STREET
AMHERST,

REWARD
to
the Good Samaritan

who has been caring for "Pups" Craven, an 18-month-old, cute, black, male mutt who strayed to the campus about two weeks ago. "Pups" is 12-inches high, always walks with white tip black tail held upright, brownish ears, some white patches on chest. Last seen wearing red collar with Montague Lic. No. 831. Collar and Lic. may be missing.

Liberal Reward

includes reimbursement for feeding, and tender loving care..

PLEASE CALL COLLECT:
Barbara Craven at 665-2448

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

The office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN is on the second floor of the Student Union on the campus of the University of Massachusetts, zip code 01002. Telephones: 545-2550 (news); 545-0344 (sports); 549-1311 (business).

Second class postage is paid in Amherst. THE DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes Monday through Friday during the academic year, except during vacation, exam periods or holidays. Accepted for mailing under the authority of an act of March 3, 1879, as amended by an act of June 11, 1963. Subscription rates are $4.00 per semester or $10.00 per year.

Cronin Named Secretary Of Education

By DON SAINT-PIERRE

Governor Sargent named Joseph M. Cronin as the new Secretary of Education of Massachusetts Friday. Cronin is presently Associate Dean of the Harvard School of Education. The appointment is the last position to be filled by Sargent in the state's government reorganization.

Sargent said of Cronin, "I have great confidence in his ability to step in immediately and give me essential policy and budgeting counsel."

The governor has been looking for the last six months for someone to fill the position, during which time there were occasional reports of an announcement "within a few weeks."

Acting Chancellor of UMass Randolph Bromery, had been considered for the position until he withdrew his name on October 14.

In making the announcement the governor said Cronin would be facing such questions as funding for secondary and elementary schools, the conditions of parochial schools, racial imbalance and the financial plight of the states colleges and universities.

At a news conference Friday, Cronin said of the state's busing policy that "400,000 children in this state are bused everyday," and that he was a "strong supporter of the METCO program," a voluntary busing program now in operation in several Massachusetts communities. He said that busing wasn't the only answer to the school intergration problem, but "it was a means to an end."

Others considered for the job, besides Bromery, who were either eliminated or turned it down were Richard Graham of Washington, head of the career training program, ACTION; Boston University Dean Stephen Trachtenberg; and John Lawson a superintendent of schools in Ohio. Also considered were Theodore Sizer, who recently announced his resignation as Dean of the Harvard School of Education; and Franklin Patterson, former president of Hampshire College in South Amherst.

The office of secretary of education will for the first time put an administrator over the sprawling state education agencies; the State Board of Education and State Education Commissioner Neil V. Sullivan, the UMass Board of Trustees and UMass President Robert Wood, the trustees of state colleges and community colleges.

At his news conference Cronin said that as a result of a California court decision on use of the local property tax to finance public school education, Massachusetts "may be forced to look at 100 percent" state financing of public education. At that point Sargent interrupted saying that he "has a personal feeling that there is no possible way" the states in the country could assume the full cost of education "and also assume the full welfare load."

Concerning parochial schools, Cronin said that as of now, no means has been found for the state to furnish aid to them. He added that the state should be prepared to aid the towns and cities as they are forced to absorb the students from the closing parochial schools by purchasing the abandoned buildings.

Cronin, who has been active in Democratic political circles, a year ago completed a study of the Boston Public schools.

He had been strongly considered for the presidency of Boston State College but lost to Kermit Morrissey. He was a member of the Massachusetts Task Force on Racial Imbalance in 1966 and chairman of the State Task Force on Education in 1969.

He joined the Harvard faculty in 1965 after receiving a doctorate in education from Stanford. He graduated magna cum laude from Harvard in 1956 and received a master of arts in education from Harvard.

Robin Morgan To Speak

ROBIN MORGAN

Robin Morgan, a full-fledged feminist and a leading voice in the women's liberation movement, will be speaking in the Student Union Ballroom tomorrow at 8:00 p.m.

She is the editor of "Sisterhood is Powerful", an anthology of women's liberation writings. She is also a poet and a frequent contributor to the underground press.

Robin Morgan has been actively involved in the feminist movement since 1967. She was the organizer of the first Miss America Pageant protest; co-founder of WITCH (Women's International Terrorist Conspiracy from Hell); member of the collective of women who seized and took over RAT (a well-known underground radical newspaper) and worked in the RAT Collective for a year, putting out a women's newspaper.

Ms. Morgan was fired from her job in a book publishing house for "union organizing and radical feminism," and was arrested in the Grove Press seizure and occupation of executive offices by women demanding that the millions of dollars earned from pornographic books that degrade women go to set up day-care centers.

NEW AFRICA HOUSE PRESENTS:

"From The Conqueror's Point of View"

DR. FRED TURNER:
"White Folks Promises - Indians Regrets"

Part I: Mon., Dec. 13 at 7:30 p.m.
Part II: Wed., Dec. 15 at 7:30 p.m.

PAUL KAPLAN:
"Images of Africans in European Art"

Part I: Tues., Dec. 14 at 7:30 p.m.
Part II: Thurs., Dec. 15 at 7:30 p.m.

Public invited, Admission Free,
New Africa House Coffee Shop

100 At Vigil Despite Rain

By JAN AUMAN

Cold, drizzly weather reduced the expected turnout at Thursday night's vigil on the Amherst Common conducted by the Western Massachusetts Student Struggle for Soviet Jewry.

Although leaders of the rally had anticipated a crowd of 300 to 400, it was estimated that only 100 people actually attended.

Most stood in the rain, while others remained in nearby cars with their windows rolled down to hear the speakers.

Rabbi Jordan Offsayer of Springfield, Father Joseph Quigly from the Newman Center, Reverend Richard Koenig of the Amherst Lutheran Church, and Melvin Steinberg, Professor of Physics at Smith College were among those who spoke at the rally.

Approximately 20 people, mainly students, stayed in a tent pitched on the common until 10 a.m. Friday.

During the night, workshops were held which discussed Jewish life in the Soviet Union and the oppression Soviet Jews.

PROFESSOR W.W. GIBSON

Happiness Is Gibson Elected

Prof. William Walker Gibson of UMass has been named president-elect of the National Council of Teachers of English.

A member of the UMass faculty since 1967, Prof. Gibson is the author if several publications, including "Tough, Sweet, and Stuffy: An Essay on Modern American Prose Style," "Persona: A Style Study for Readers and Writers," and "The Limits of Language." He has directed the UMass rhetoric program since 1970.

A lecture will be given Tuesday night at 8:00 in room 917 of the Campus Center on the subject of Ontology.

Ontology is the study of true being, and Being is the key to happiness. Some people think they find it in drugs, others in religions of all kinds and so on. There is a right way, however, according to ontologists. More and more people are finding this right way through the Universal Institute of Applied Ontology.

The lecture Tuesday night will be an introduction into Ontology.

Stopping daily internal feminine odor is easy:

Just think of Norforms as a tiny tampon that dissolves.

If you've ever used tampons, then you already know how to use Norforms'... the internal deodorant™ to stop the daily problem of feminine odor. Each tiny-as-a-fingertip Norforms Suppository is as easy and safe to insert as a tiny tampon would be. It begins dissolving instantly to kill bacteria, stop feminine odor where it starts... internally, in the vaginal tract.

You feel clean, fresh, odor-free for hours. No bath, no douche stops odor the way Norforms do.

FREE NORFORMS MINI-PACK plus booklet! Write to: Norwich Pharmacal Co., Dept. CN-B, Norwich, N.Y. 13815. Enclose 25¢ to cover mailing and handling

Name_____
Street_____
City_____
State_____ Zip_____
Don't forget your zip code

np Norwich Products Division
The Norwich Pharmacal Co.

FACES OF EARTH
159 NORTH PLEASANT STREET
AMHERST
Next To The Post Office

10% Off ALL CLOTHING
MON. thru THURS.
Dec. 13 - Dec. 16

Quicksilver 24 Hours

Getting Engaged?
VERY LOW PRICES ON DIAMONDS
Christmas Specials
Call Richard Amoroso 6-4300 anytime
In Boston call (617) 542-2226

In The Nation And The World

Indian Paratroopers Near Dacca

Pakistan Agrees To Cease-Fire

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)-The United States proposed Sunday night that the U.N. Security Council issue a new appeal for a cease-fire and troop withdrawal in the India-Pakistan conflict.

Ambassador George Bush introduced his resolution at an urgent session of the 15-nation council after declaring that the council must demand immediate compliance with a similar cease-fire call issued last Tuesday by the General Assembly.

The U.S. resolution noted that Pakistan already had accepted the cease-fire appeal.

Indian Foregin Minister Sardar Swaran Singh said his government had taken note of the assembly resoltuion adopted by a vote of 104 to 11, with 10 abstentions.

India declared Sunday night that "there can be a cease-fire and withdrawal of Indian armed forces" if the rulers of Pakistan withdraw their own forces from East Pakistan and reach a peaceful settlement with the insurgent leaders.

The conditions were laid down in a letter from Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi to Secretary-General U. Thant as the Security Council considered an urgent proposal by the United States for a new cease-fire appeal.

Sardar Swaran Singh, India's foreigh minister, read Mrs. Gandhi's letter after telling the council it was unrealistic to make a further cease-fire effort without first hearing a representative of the Bangla Desh insurgents. The council brushed aside requests for a Bangla Desh hearing at its sessions last weekend.

Singh told the 15-nation council that any "solution to the conflict will have to take into account the views of the government and people of Bengla Desh."

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Indian paratroopers beat off a counterattack and neared Dacca from the north Sunday night while a second Indian column punched toward the beleaguered East Pakistani capital from the east, India claimed.

The chief of the Indian Eastern Command, Maj. Gen. J.F. R. Jacob, said the Indian paratroopers dropped near Dacca Saturday afternoon advanced on the city after repulsing a counterattack during which they killed 23 Pakistani soldiers and took 12 prisoners.

Jacob declined to reveal his troops' exact position but it was believed at headquarters in Calcutta they had battled their way to within 15 miles of Dacca.

Jacob said Pakistani soldiers were surrendering in increasing numbers. But in Rawalpindi a Pakistani spokesman denied this and insisted "our troops continue to hold their own."

Correspondents, unable to visit the battlefront to see for themselves, were unable to reconcile the conflicring claims.

Correspondents in Dacca reported in a pool dispatch, however, that the city was preparing for attack. A total curfew emptied the streets except for trucks ferrying troops to defensive positions around the city, they cabled.

The city is believed defended by about 30,000 troops and Indian military planners believe some Pakistani forces routed in earlier engagements may now be folding back for a last-ditch stand around the capital.

No major fighting was reported along the western front-more than 1,000 miles across India from the battle for East Pakistan. However, Indian spokesmen reported the capture of some Pakistani outposts in the Rajasthan Desert and in Kashmir near Kargil.

A Pakistani spokesman in Rawalpindi denied an Indian success at Kargil and said the area "is fully under our control." The Pakistan radio also claimed the Indian attacks in the East had been blunted "in many areas."

The mountaintop outposts near Kargil are tactically important because they overlook India'a road linking Srinagar and Leh in the northern section of Indian-controlled Kashmir. These areas were claimed captured by Pakistan during earlier fighting.

In New Delhi, Mrs. Gandhi and Kuznetsov were reported to have discussed the U.S. General Assembly resolution calling for an immediate cease-fire. India and the Soviet Union opposed the resolution, and a Soviet veto blocked a similar resolution in the U.N. Security Council.

Indian officials said another item on the agenda in the Indian-Soviet talks was possible Soviet recognition of Bangla Desh, the "Bengal Nation" proclaimed by East Pakistani rebels.

The United News of India news agency quoted informed sources as saying Moscow was unlikely to recognize the secessionist government in the near future.

D.P. Dhar, chairman of India's Foreign Policy Planning Committee, was holding simultaneous talks in Moscow with Soivet officials, Indian spokesmen said.

In Washington, President Nixon called on the U.N. Security Council to try again for a cease-fire resoltuion. Previous attempts have been beaten down by Soviet veto. The White House accused India of "defiance of world opinion."

"With East Pakistan virtually occupied by Indian troops, a continuation of the war would take on increasingly the character of armed attack on the very existence of a member state of the United Nations," the White House statement said.

A nationalized newspaper in Rangoon, Burma-the Guardian--reported 25 low-ranking East Pakistani officials have escaped to Burma by plane and taken refuge in the seaport town of Akyab, close to Chittagong in southern East Pakistan.

In New Delhi, a Foreign Minister spokesman said some of the refugees who fled East Pakistan into India-creating a burden cited by India as a major cause of the war-have begun to return home.

In Brief...

Gandhi Accuses U.S.

NEW DELHI (AP)-Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, in obvious criticism of the United States, accused "rich allies" Sunday of encouraging Pakistan to stand fast while the East Pakistani conflict grew into all-out war.

Berlin Decision To Be Signed

BONN, Germany (AP)-The West German government said Sunday final signing of the all-German accords on Berlin may take place this week in a drive to start Western preparations for an East-West security conference by next May.

Viet Cong Launch Major Attack

SAIGON (AP)-Viet Cong sappers made their first major attack on U.S. ground troops in 3 1/2 months Sunday, inflicting casualties on half the GIs manning a darkened hill outpost providing security for the big Qui Nhon harbor.

Senate Criticizes Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP)-The Senate critics of President Nixon's Indochina policies plan a last-ditch struggle Monday against temporary foreign aid financing as Congress tries for a quick end to its lengthy session.

Nixon Arrives In Azores

ANGRA DO HEROISMO, Azores (AP)-President Nixon arrived here Sunday night for two days of talks with French President Georges Pompidou.

Tunnel Explosion Kills 22

PORT HURON, Mich. (AP)-More bodies may yet be found in an underground water tunnel where a massive explosion killed 22 workers Saturday afternoon, authorities said Sunday.

Founder of NBC Dies

NEW YORK (AP)-David Sarnoff, an immigrant messenger boy who became founder of the National Broadcasting Co. and head of the giant RCA Corp., died Sunday at his home here after a long illness. He was 80.

Swallow our pride

THE HUNGRY-U
103 N. PLEASANT, AMHERST
Italian submarine sandwiches

for a wide variety of Christmas Cards VISIT
A.J. Hastings
Newsdealer & Stationer
54 So. Pleasant St., Amh.

...BY HIGH AUTO INSURANCE COSTS ?
get the lowest legal rates
for all vehicles
and all coverages
with easy monthly payments
NOW'S THE TIME FOR 1972 AUTO INSURANCE!
TKO YOUR INSURANCE PROBLEMS with TEKOA INSURANCE AGENCY
Avoid downtown Spfld. parking headaches in WEST SPRINGFIELD at 366 MEMORIAL AVE. Opp. Century Shopping Plaza! Free parking for over 100 cars!
WESTFIELD 10 BROAD ST. Next to P.O.
NORTHAMPTON 160 PLEASANT ST. Opp. N'hamp. Jr. College
FAIRVIEW 1847 MEMORIAL DR. On North-South Hwy.
EVERETT-J. O'CONNOR INSURANCE AGENCY
HOLYOKE ... 206 High ... Next to Holyoke Nat'l. Bank

ATTENTION

All RSO Groups & Activities

All groups currently operating under constitutions granted by the Student Government Association (Student Senate) are required to fill out the form below. Those groups which should fill out the form include all RSO's, Activities, recent Executive Orders, and those groups who wish to apply for such status. These forms are to be returned no later than TUESDAY, DECEMBER 21, 1971, to the address below.

RETURN TO
Wm. Spinn
Govt. Affairs Comm.
Student Senate
RSO 801
Campus Center

RSO Registration Form

Name of Group _____ RSO# _____
REPRESENTATIVE _____
Rep's Add. _____ Ph.# _____
(check appropriate item)
Constituted _____ Exec. Order _____
New Group _____ Area Govt. _____ Dorm _____

FAILURE TO FILE THIS FORM WILL RESULT IN LOSS OF RSO STATUS

Stans Financial Interests Questioned

WASHINGTON (AP)-Shortly after Maurice H. Stans took office as secretary of Commerce, the private foundation he controls acquired a financial interest in a Thailand paper company which benefits directly from U.S. government money and management assistance.

In answer to a question from The Associate Press, Stans dismissed the $24,302 investment in Siam Kraft Paper Co. as a "very minor interest."

Despite direct U.S. aid to the company, said Stans, "there is nothing whatsoever in this situation that could conceivably involve conflict of interest for me."

Stans said he got no income from the foundation, which he heads as president, and couldn't conceive of any tax breaks commonly available to those who control foundations.

Disclosure of the foundation's involvement in the Siam Kraft Paper Co. is the second time this year that questions have been raised about Stan's financial holdings.

In February it was disclosed that he held a $318,000 interest in a Penn Central subsidiary at the time the Commerce Department was involved in secret efforts to save the railroad from backruptcy. Stans replied that he had disqualified himself from those efforts after attending one high-level meeting.

The Stans Foundation acquired its interest in Siam Kraft from another Nixon administration appointee, Henry Kearns, president of the U.S. Export-Import Bank.

Kearns, who was a partner with Stans in a separate Thai venture at the time they both took office, founded the paper company in 1965 with the help of a $14-million loan from the Export-Import Bank.

In March 1969, Kearns told the Senate Banking Committee that, if confirmed as Export-Import Bank president, he would put his Siam Kraft holdings-worth about $750,000 then-into a blind trust and divorce himself from any efforts by the bank to save the shaky firm.

The Export-Import Bank recently extended Siam Kraft's deadline for repayment of the $14-million loan from 1976 to 1993, and has provided other assistance, but Don Bostwick, the bank's executive vice president, said Kearns "is and will continue to be totally disassociated with Siam Kraft Paper."

Kearns himself declined to be interviewed.

While Stans put most of his personal holdings in a blind trust, he has retained direct control of his foundation whose net worth, according to tax returns, increased from $501,000 in 1962 to $1.39 million by the end of 1970. There was a $319,514 increase in 1970 alone.

In replying to written questions, Stans said "I have had no transactions with the foundation for years." But the foundation's latest tax returns, for 1969 and 1970, list him as devoting part-time to its operation.

In a 1969 letter notifying the Senate Commerce Committee that he was placing all personal financial holdings into a blind trust, "to avoid circumstances which might imply any potential conflict of interest" Stans said also he was terminating all directorships and other relationships except that with the Stans Foundation and certain real estate holdings.

House Banking Committee Experts who directed the committee's long investigation of foundations say Stans could draw a salary anytime he wishes. They also cite other benefits available to those who control foundations, including personal income tax deductions and avoidance of capital gains taxes.

Stans said, however, that "I can't conceive of any tax benefits available to me because of the activities of the Stans Foundation."

One of the Commerce Department's functions is to encourage and assist American businessmen seeking to invest abroad. In Thailand the department has a fulltime trade official and several State Department commercial officers who look out for its interests.

These officials work in the U.S. Embassy office that has been most closely involved with helping Siam Kraft Paper. But John Randolph, head of the Commerce Department at East desk, said that although "our commercial people are familiar with it, they have not been intimately involved."

Randolph said he regularly sees State Department and Export-Import Bank cables concerning Siam Kraft, but he said he has never been given any special instructions about the company.

"I have never discussed its affairs with anyone in the United States government," Stans said.

N. Ireland Senator Assassinated

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP)-Gunmen shot a hardline Protestant senator Sunday night, then wrecked his country mansion with a bomb. His body was buried under tons of rubble.

Sen. John Barnhill, a right-wing member of the Protestant-based Unionist party that rules the British province, was the first member of the Northern Ireland parliment to die in two years of violence that has now resulted in 196 deaths.

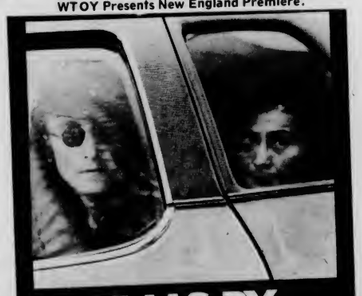
His wife said he went to answer the door at their home at Strabane, close to the border with the Irish Republic. She said she heard two shots and found her husband lying near the door with a gunman kneeling at his side. Then a second man helped drag him into the main room, where the attackers planted a gelignite bomb beside his body, she said.

Barnhill, 63 and a senator for 10 years, often had been outspoken in public denunciations of the outlawed Irish Republican Army for its terrorist campaign to overthrow the provincial government.

He was an office holder in the Orange Order, the powerful Freemasonry of Northern Ireland Protestants, and a director of a Londonderry seed firm.

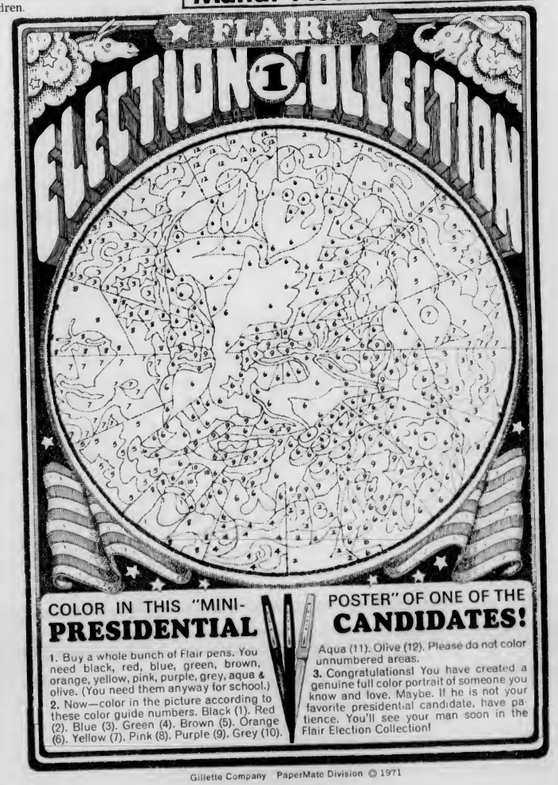
Police said the senator's wife ran for help from the ruins of her home and now was in a hospital under treatment for shock.

William Cardinal Conway, Roman Catholic primate of all Ireland, denounced bombers and gunmen who have participated in the violence as monsters.



Preaching in St. Patrick's Cathedral at Armagh earlier Sunday, Ireland's ecclesiastical capital, the Belfast-born primate delivered his toughest attack yet on a series of incidents which included the shooting down of a part-time soldier in front of his five children.

THE LEOPARD
By Luchino Visconti's



Burt Lancaster
Claudia Cardinale
Monday, Dec. 13, 7:00 & 10:00
Mahar Auditorium

WTOY Presents New England Premiere.

FILMS BY JOHN LENNON YOKO ONO
Exclusive Screenings
This Wednesday and Thursday nights only.
Dec. 15 and 16 - 7:30 and 9:30
Campus Center Aud.
Students $1.75
Gen. Admission $2.00
From Genesis Films
Produced by JOKO Film Productions

COLOR IN THIS "MINI-PRESIDENTIAL" POSTER" OF ONE OF THE CANDIDATES!

1. Buy a whole bunch of Flair pens. You need black, red, blue, green, brown, orange, yellow, pink, purple, grey, aqua & olive. (You need them anyway for school.)
2. Now—color in the picture according to these color guide numbers. Black (1). Red (2). Blue (3). Green (4). Brown (5). Orange (6). Yellow (7). Pink (8). Purple (9). Grey (10). Aqua (11). Olive (12). Please do not color unnumbered areas.
3. Congratulations! You have created a genuine full color portrait of someone you know and love. Maybe. If he is not your favorite presidential candidate, have patience. You'll see your man soon in the Flair Election Collection!

Gillette Company PaperMate Division © 1971

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — Nathan Gorenstein
BUSINESS MANAGER — James Gold
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Gib Fullerton
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR — Jerry Lazar
NEWS STAFF — Janet Hughes, George Weisslitz
DARKROOM — Gary Alpaugh, Steve Schmidt
AD LAYOUT — Terry Wanczyk
SPORTS — Dan Kamal
EDITORIAL — Don Glickstein

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

Wake Up...Cops

Police seem to be trapped into the romantic image of themselves carrying out precision raids at unnatural hours of the day. The mass drug arrests of last Spring occurred between 1:30 and 5:00 a.m. and the recent arrests at around 3:30 a.m. of people who work for Pulp, a local publication, are just two examples of the way which policemen generally conduct their affairs. It would seem that police officials are more interested in the drama of "an early morning police raid" making the early morning news broadcasts and afternoon headlines than in deflating paranoia about law enforcement.

In spite of the fact that University officials have privately asked that the police conduct themselves differently during raids on the University, police will probably continue to rely on large numbers and early morning dramatics. The reasons are obvious. Police get more publicity when they act covertly. Newspapermen and T.V. stations are sometimes tipped off, for publicity reasons, when there is a big raid and the local law enforcement people get some political brownie points.

In future arrests involving the campus, perhaps it would be wiser for the police to simply subpoena those suspects who will stand trial without coercion and be very selective about those who are arrested in the wee hours of the morning.

Brogan's Crisis

By LARRY LADD

Howard O. Brogan's address to the Faculty Senate, on page 7, is the beginning of the radicalization of Dr. Brogan.

His address was remarkably similar to speeches made by angry students over the last ten years. The rhetorical style is full of phrases such as "We must stick together," "a dog racing after the artificial publication rabbit," and "rankest paternalism." A few years ago, he would have denounced such words as irrational and childish.

His last sentence in the edited version sums up his sentiment: "If it seems unfortunate to assume an adversary relationship, we can in justification only point to our failure to achieve our objectives in any other way." It sounds like Mark Rudd justifying the Columbia takeover! After years of being told to work within the system because it is your friend, repeated failures and frustrations require radical solutions!

Why has this happened? Because Dr. Brogan wants to have a voice in decisions that affect his life and future. He is experiencing the powerlessness that we as students experience consistently within the university.

This may be the reason that he no longer regards the university as the exclusive jurisdiction of the faculty. Throughout his text, he talks about "faculty and students" as the university. Although his notions of student voice and the importance of tenure are still rigid, he has made the first and most difficult move: he has peeked out of the ivory tower.

But the most surprising revelation lies in his description of the campus-system controversy as a "conflict of interest." If he meant what he said, then he may no longer even believe in the ivory tower.

One of the most stubborn academic myths is the belief that the university's foundation rests on rationality and objectivity. Campus politicians, in sustaining that myth, have referred to the campus-system controversy with lofty "statements of principle" and asked for dialogue about those principles. Inherent is the assumption that by reasoning together we can come to a solution amicable to both sides.

Of course, rational dialogue cannot take place between two parties who hold unequal shares of power. What is rational to the holder of power is fundamentally irrational to those who are denied power. Black people have experienced this phenomena most acutely, but students have also found it true. In the final analysis, all such conflicts are over power and interest, not principle.

At the moment, all power rest in the trustees, who have the authority to delegate it to others and to consult with others about its use. Dr. Brogan is upset because the campus has no real voice in university policy. It seems rational to him that it should. It seems rational to President Wood that it should not. At the moment, it seems rational to Dr. Brogan that students should have no real voice in academic policies. To students, that is not rational at all.

If Howard O. Brogan can understand that connection, then he is a radical in a three piece suit.

Don Glickstein

The Future UMass and Yurts

If half of the recommendations of the Future University Committee are implemented, the University of Massachusetts--Boston, Worcester, and Amherst--will become one of the greatest universities in the Country.

For the first time, UMass would step down from its ivory towers and acknowledge that it exists because of all the people of the Commonwealth, not despite of them. It would acknowledge its responsibility for direct action and interaction with the cities and the farms, the dispossessed and the affluent.

Financial aid would supplement a more realisitic and flexible admissions procedure to insure that no one would be turned away from higher education because of poverty or an inferior high school education.

The City of Boston would become a laboratory for urban change and development. Students on the Boston campus would be forced to see the world beyond the neck at Columbia Point.

Realizing that the University has become the place where the Commonwealth's youth seek not only academic knowledge, but knowledge of self, the freshman year of every student would be restructured so as to bombard them with new experiences, alternatives, and responsibilities.

The upperclass years would have a strong emphasis on responsibility in an urban, atomic age. Interdisciplinary, individualized, off-campus, and public service programs would be encouraged.

Jobs would be fitted for each faculty member, rather than having the faculty fitted for the jobs. A University professoriate would be established to insure that those faculty who wish to teach will not be penalized for it.

Teaching would be nurtured on the graduate level, as well as with the tenured faculty.

Few revolutions have remembered the old. The future University would provide for an expansion of continuing education, not only with its degree programs, but with extension work.

President Robert Wood is not the most popular man on the Amherst campus. But he wants to make the University a new kind of university, one oriented toward people first, rather than ideas. Wood wants to make the University a great University in five years. The Report of the Future University of Massachusetts clearly will be the revolutionary tract to guide Wood in his quest.

*****

One of the educations that may emerge in the Future University can be seen in Southwest, behind Pierpont House.

Designed by Bill Coperthwaite, an environmental consultant for the Residential College and a faculty member of Project 10, a red-roofed yurt is rapidly becoming part of the landscape.

Unlike the fragile domes of Free University years, yurts are more than a symbol. Adapted from Mongolian dwellings made of poles and felt, and infused with modern technology, yurts are examples of what can happen when two different cultures get together. In the cast of Southwest, the yurt will be used as a warming house for a skating rink.

The point of the thing is not yurts for the sake of yurts. Coperthwaite feels that Americans can learn something from other cultures. It's not enough, he says, to travel to Ouagadougou or Alaska or Kabul for the experience. Students are obligated to learn directly from diverse people and apply what they learn to help their own communities.

The yurt is an example of a cross-cultural learning. Here, in the Northeast, it can be used for a cheap, alternative living environment, a swimming pool, or in the UMass case, a warming hut. It can also be used as a shelter for students visiting other cultures, for it is easy and inexpensive to build. A yurt can make corner-conscious Americans aware of the possibilities of round space. And the round space of the Southwest yurt, observors have noted, would even make a fine seminar room.

In the future, Coperthwaite hopes to accompany groups of UMass students to disparate places to learn from other people. It's a form of public service off-campus learning that has never before happened in this University. It builds self-respect in the minds of white man-burdened third world people who will, for the first time since Marco Polo be thanked and respected for their minds and heritages. An important aspect of Coperthwaite's two-way learning is the publication and dissemination of what his students learn.

The implications of the yurt-man's questionings are important. Old urban cultures in Mesopotamia and China may hold the key to solving our own urban problems. Although the yurt is unsuited as an urban dwelling, buildings developed from other life-styles may be a solution to the housing shortages in the cities. By exchanging what we know with others, we would be repaying part of the debt we owe to civilizations we have borrowed from and plundered.

Coperthwiate doesn't like to opt for protesting. It's too easy, he explains. "You can stop the war in Viet Nam, but if you don't get at what's causing the violence, you'll have a war again and again."

The yurt, obviously, is not going to be the panacea for what ails American education. But it is an attempt, and as Bill Coperthwaite says, "Mainly, we need people to search."

Art Buchwald

More Deviousness

WASHINGTON--The recent congressional fight over public financing of the presidential campaign has been resolved. Nothing will be changed for the upcoming election. This goes along with the Republican game plan for 1972.

The strategy was revealed to me by a relative of an official high in government circles.

"The Republicans," he told me, "will be the only ones on the ballot in 1972."

"How can you say that?" I asked.

"I have it from my cousin who has been working on the GOP strategy for the last three years. This is what will take place next summer:

"The Democrats are going to show up for their convention in Miami in July of next year. The polls will indicate Muskie slightly ahead, but McGovern, Jackson and Teddy Kennedy all will be in the running. If any of them throw their support to another candidate, the tide could be reversed."

"All right," I said.

"Now everyone, as I said, will be in Miami and suddenly a flunky in each candidate's suite will pick up a phone to order ice and soda water and glasses."

"Get on with it, for heaven's sakes!"

"The phones will be dead."

"What?"

"The phones will be dead. No one at the Democratic convention will be able to make a telephone call."

"Why not?"

"Because," my informant replied, "the Democrats haven't paid their telephone bill."

"How much do they owe?"

"One million, nine hundred thirty-three thousand dollars and twenty-five cents. The phone company will refuse to allow anyone in Miami Beach to make even so much as a room-service call until the entire bill is paid."

"But you can't have a political convention without room service," I cried.

"You bet your sweet Ay Tee and Tee you can't. And you can't have a political convention if deals can't be made on the phone and delegates can't keep in touch with their bosses, and the press has no way of reporting their news to the world. No telephones, no Democratic nominee in '72."

"Wait a minute. Are you trying to tell me that the phone company is going to decide if we have a one- or two-party system in this country?"

"Why not the phone company?" my man asked. "This nation was founded on one principle--and that is that everyone, regardless of race, creed, color or religion, must pay his telephone bill.

"President Nixon knows that there is no way the Democrats can come up with the $1,933,000.25 for their phone debt."

"Why, that's more devious than the Republican Southern strategy," I said.

"It is not devious at all," my friend said. "The President is very sincere about his objections to the public financing presidential campaigns. He believes you can always start another political party in this country, but where on earth is the United States going to find another phone company?"

Copyright 1971, Los Angeles Times

Letters To The Editor

Aggie Pollution

To the Editor:

In the December 3, 1971 issue of the Daily Collegian, your Don Glickstein wrote an article on "Spewing Smoke Sparks Spat". In the article, Mr. Edward R. Gilbert, chief engineer of the power plant, shows his ignorance by saying, "I firmly believe that the Amherst air is more threatened by surrounding farmers spreading chemicals and dust on windy days than by the pollution that is emitted from the University of Masschusetts physical plant."

The farmer long ago recognized that when one uses the environement, changes come about, some beneficial some harmful. To correct some of the harmful changes, they cover the field with a winter cover crop to hold down dust in the spring. They have granularized fertilizers to stop the dust when spreading it. They have decreased the pressure on their spray equipment to cut down the drift. They have stopped outdoor burning except where the burning is part of the normal production practice. These are just some of the things the farmer is doing to keep the air clean not only around Amherst but the whole nation. As for Amherst, I should know for, I was born, grew up and still live in Whately, just across the river from Amherst.

It is apparent that Mr. Gilbert knowns as much about agriculture as I do about making power.

Myron A. Maiewski
Assistant Commissioner
State Department of Agriculture

Montague's DPW

To the Editor:

The DPW of the Commonwealth plans to tear apart the flood plain in the town of Montague and use it, not as a regional landfill disposal area, but as a disposal area for Boston, a hundred miles to the east. This vast dome of about fourteen hundred acres is a sand and gravel dome overlyaing the water supply for the vast area which is the Town of Montague. I am sure that all concerned people are familiar with that area known as the Montague Plains. It is a unique phenomenon deposited eons ago when the vast lake bed filled in. Such a proposal will not only destroy the natural filter for recharge of the subsurface water serving the whole area, but destroy as well the springs serving the Montague fish hatchery, prime source of stocking fish for our statewide Brook trout streams.

May we hear the voices of a disturbed youth? Mr. Water Kostanski of Turners Falls, general chairman for the movement, would welcome support from the powerful tide that is youth.

Contact the Ecology Club; contact Mr. Kostanski and contact your hometown representatives during the holidays and let your voice be heard to protect the heritage of future generations who deserve better than a dispoiled environment forever.

Harold Sears

Round 2: System vs. FacSen

(Editor's Note: The following is a speech by Prof. Howard Brogan before last Thursday's meeting of the Faculty Senate. The Collegian staff is solely responsible for the editing of his text.)

We now surely recognize that unsatisfactory relations exist between the Senate, on the one hand, and the Systems Office, backed by the Board, on the other.

An early warning was the decision of Pres. Wood to split control of the labor center program and move the extension part to Boston, ninety miles from the academic part. Members of the advisory committee of that program were opposed to this move on the grounds that the academic program should not be divided from its practicum. For this reason and because of the arbitrariness of a decision made without consulting them, several members resigned.

A number of committees have been formulating a plan for the future of the University. These committees were established by the Systems Office, without consultation with faculty or student senates. A similar study of the future of the whole system of higher education in the Commonwealth was made without consulting faculty and students on this campus. Apparently the future of the University is primarily a matter for administrators and laymen to discuss and settle, with some assistance from a sprinkling of faculty and students selected by administrators to serve as individuals, in no sense representative of the faculty or student body.

A much more serious example occurred when a conflict of interest between our campus administration and the Systems Office arose, so serious that it resulted in the resignation of Chancellor Tippo. Our Faculty Senate, in conjunction with the two student senates, then set up a Committee of Concern, and all three senates approved a series of requests which this Committee prepared for presentation to the Board. Included was a request that the Board not proceed to change the administration of this campus without consulting faculty and students. This request was nullified by the Board's accepting Dr. Tippo's resignation and appointing an Acting Chancellor.

The response of the Board to the Committee's series of requests was unfavorable to the point of hostility. Since no reply to any of these requests was forthcoming at that time, the faculty and student senates asked the Board to meet on this campus to discuss them; and, after once refusing, the Board agreed. However, no reply was given to any of these requests at this second meeting, nor was any promised in the near future.

Meanwhile, the issues in dispute are apparently being determined by the Systems Office without paying attention to the principles suggested by the Committee of Concern for determining them. These issues include the degree of autonomy to be permitted to this campus, and, in that connection, the disposition of large sums of the discretionary money which has been of vital importance to the development and maintenance of programs.

The latest example of failure to consult the faculty of this campus is the memorandum from Pres. Wood, as interpreted by Provost Gluckstern, in which a policy of drastically tightening up on the granting of tenure is handed down from on high. In spite of all the promises made to us in the past that this was not to become one of those campuses on which the faculty members would be forced to compete with each other in that abominable "up or out" system, this very step is now announced as if it were a fait accompli.

Provost Gluckstern has since assured us that neither his memorandum nor the President's mean what they seem to mean. There is to be no change for now. Change is to occur, but only several years from now. However, the change is to come; and it has been announced, without consulting us, by the Systems Office.

Many of us may be tempted not to worry. We have tenure. But can we really rest easy if we permit our untenured colleagues to be thrown to the wolves for our sake? Pres. Wood has established a group to study tenure, again without consulting us; and is there anybody here so naive as to suppose that the intention is to strengthen tenure? There is a nationwide attack on tenure. Such an attack has unfortunately been invited by some of our more activisft student and faculty members, who, in their zeal to eliminate so-called "dead wood," have overlooked the fact that administrators, board of trustees, alumni, and outside pressure groups have a very unidealistic view of just what sort of faculty members should be eliminated. The profession found it necessary to fight long and hard for tenure because of gross abuses by authoritarian academic employers. That these abuses nevertheless still exist--as gross as ever--is demonstrated in every issue of the AAUP Bulletin, even if we did not have a much more immediate example to instruct us.

We must stick together, whether we have tenure or not. We must make sure that every member of the staff, tenured or not, is treated with dignity, and an individual worthy of respect, not like a dog racing after the artificial publication rabbit, and it may well turn out to be no less undignified and ultimately irrelevant to race competitively after favorable scores on machine-graded student evaluation sheets.

To sum up the situation, this representative body (the Faculty Senate), along with the student senates, is no longer participating in decision-making at the University level. We are certainly under no illusion that explaining to us what has been done after the fact is in any meaningful sense to be fact is in any meaningful sense to be considered consultation. Nor can we suppose that trusting in the fatherly benevolence of the Board to treat us fairly is at all equivalent to that cooperative working of professional educators with the administration and Board which is the intention of the AAUP Statement on Government of Colleges and Universtities and of the Morris Report.

Let us be frank, it is the rankest paternalism. We really are being treated as children rather than as professional educators vital to the operation of the University.

While we should continue to do what we can to remedy this state of affairs, many of us have begun to suspect that there is little hope of making sufficient progress in time to preserve a reasonable measure of autonomy for this campus and that there is even less hope of achieving an adequate faculty voice in the near future.

This seems to be a problem for all large scale educational enterprises. For this reason, our Commonwealth has given authorization to teachers to organize and to negotiate contracts with their governing boards. If it seems to be unfortunate to assume an adversary relationship, we can in justification only point to our failure to achieve this objective in any other way.

Editorial Points

It's real nice to see the girls and guys from the Campus Center Print Shop again. The shop had been closed for renovations. Well, keep those cards and letters printing on, folks.

*****

Who was that tall, mustached man, wearing a grey University of Oregon sweatshirt, saying "hi" to some gawking kids at the School of Ed? If you guessed Bill Cosby, you would be right.

*****

Has your laundry bill been going up? Must you shed your clothes every day? Isn't it about time to stop smoking cigarettes?

*****

Speaking of cigarettes, the sign on the Five College Mt. Holyoke bus reads "Cigarette Smoking Only". So what else is there?

*****

One of the reasons UMass is known as the Mud Capital of the World is the path between the Campus Center and North Pleasant Street. Apparently, a paved path isn't on Jack Littlefield's planning agenda.

*****

DINING COMMONS MEAL OF THE WEAK: A special tribute to Dining Commons silverware. You know its dirty when even the supervisors look it over before they put it on their tray.

*****

The proponents of grades have yet to cite any evidence other than their subjective opinion about what they measure.

*****

The ladies at Southwest's Bites and Pieces probably think all rock music sounds the same. It does, really, because there's no treble in the B & P juke box, only a rumbling bass.

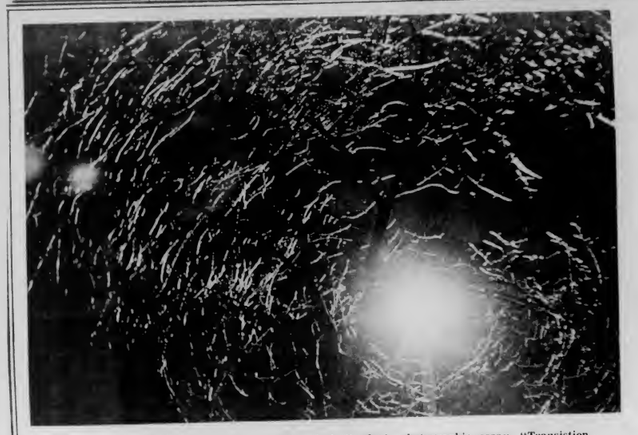
*****

You know it's that time of year when even the studies turn into studies on even the second floor of dorms that supposedly never study.

No Answer, Ma Bell

By WALTER G. CRONIN
EDITORIAL STAFF

About two weeks ago Elise Strickland wrote an article to the Editor pointing out how she had been "ripped off" by the University concerning the sale of Student Directory supplements. She questioned the practice of the sale of the Directories at the Campus Center bookstore. Her point brings up a few more.



Any off-campus student who elects telephone service is issued, besides the monthly bill, an area directory, which is, for this locality, the Northampton-Amherst area. So far no problems. But, however, the University is also in this area, and the Telephone Company does not issue this to local off-campus students. The only outlet for the Student Directory is the Campus Bookstore. And, as Elise and others have found out, this is an expensive outlet.

This leads to the question: "If the University Store is the only distributor, other than those copies delivered to the dormitories, what agency is printing the Directory?" Is it the Telephone Company or the University? If it is the Bell system which is making the publication, why can't it supply the University with enough copies for those students living off-campus who want them? If it is the University which does the printing, is it or the Phone Company bearing the cost? If it is the University printing the Directory, is it in the education business or the Telephone business?

A valuable asset to having telephone service is the ability to establish a credit rating with the Telphone Company. By this process, if you pay the bill regularly and on time, you become, in essence, a preferred customer. This is a nice status to attain, as it means that you don't have to deposit $50.00 every time you move to a new apartment. The $50.00 is returned after six months, but how many can afford to put out that money all the time?

The student living on campus is denied the opportunity to establish a credit rating. For example, if you lived in the dormitories for two years, paid your phone bills regularly, moved off into an apartment and wanted to establish phone service, the Telephone Company would still demand $50.00 deposit. And you ask: Why? Well, the Phone Company will reply: "We send the bill to the room, and not to the individuals in those rooms." What they are saying is that the room is establishing credit! And then to top it all off, both you and your roommate receive the final bill, sometime in the summer. How is the Telephone Company billing a room, when it has both names to collect that last month of the semester? And moreover, what guaranty do the two roommates have that if both pay, the Telephone Company will refund on the double payment?

This is one of the 40 prints which comprise Josh Gordon's photographic essay, "Transistion Generation". It can be seen this week in the Student Union. (Photo by Josh Gordon.)

Photo Essay On Display

The prints of Josh Gordon, a UMass student photographer, will be up in the Student Union South Corridor (opposite the bus ticket office) for the remainder of the week. The display which is sponsored by C.E.Q. consists of 40 black and white photographs compiled into a "photographic essay".

Viewing it looks and reads like a story from a picture magazine. The display is entitled "The Transition Generation" and is meant to be a comment on the new generation and its environment.

Josh hopes his show involves the viewer more than the classical photo display which is, "a bunch of photos hung on the wall". This new format does have its problems as better than half the people viewing it seem to start at the wrong end of the display and go through it backwards. However some have said that it makes perfectly good sense when read backwards. At any rate, everyone is invited to see this annual visual display.

SMC To Support April 22 Demonstration

The future direction of the anti-war movement in this country was decided upon at the fourth National Peace Action Coalition convention in Cleveland, Ohio, earlier this month. The 1400 people attending agreed to organize mass demonstrations on April 22 in New York City and a west coast city to be determined later.

The convention began Friday night with keynote speakers representing many various organizations.

At Saturday morning plenary sessions, twenty-two proposals were initially presented after which workshops were held to discuss the ideas. Major proposals were determined by at least fifty people's approval by a straw vote. The two most popular proposals were discussed Sunday. A final vote revealed the decision to hold demonstrations in New York City to be the overwhelming choice of the people.

Sunday afternoon, after the convention, the Student Mobilization Committee national steering committee met and ratified the perspective of the mass demonstrations which will be put forward at a national convention tentatively scheduled for the last week in February in New York City.

UMass SMC, which had four members at the convention, will be working in the upcoming months to build support and participation for April 22, despite any pressures from political candidates.

Science Lectures This Week

The Departments of Physics and Astronomy will present the 7th Commonwealth Lecture Series "Physics and Biology", starting this evening at 8 p.m. in Hasbrouck 124.

The lecture series will be presented by Dr. E. Pollard of the Biophysics Dept. at Penn. State.

The lectures are as follows:

Dec. 13th "Radiation in cells and people"

Dec. 14th "Physics of bacterial cells"

Dec. 15th "Life sciences, a branch of physics?"

All will be presented in Hasbrouck Rm. 124 at 8 p.m.

Baha'i Meets Tonight

The Amherst Baha'i Community will hold a public meeting in the Colonial Lounge tonight at 7:30 P.M. in accord with the United Nations' designation of 1971 as the "International Year to Combat Racism."

"Racism", said Mrs. Florence Conway, Chairman of the Amerhest Baha'i Assembly, "is the concern of every individual. Each person must find a way to free his or her mind of the prejudices that cost us all so much in terms of human dignity and justice among men."

Mrs. Nancy Jordan, of Northampton, will speak at the meeting on the Baha'i Faith as an effective means for realizing the goals sets forth by the UN in its plea for an end "once and for all to the shameful phenomenon of racial segregation and discrimination."

Showings at 7:15 and 9:15

We have the area's largest selection of

Jerseys, Knit Tops, Sweaters.

Just Perfect for Christmas

WEAR-HOUSE

dig these gift jeans

Denim Jeans
Corduroy Jeans
Double Knit
Dress Flares

Always the area's largest selection.

Male SLACKS JEANS

WEAR-HOUSE

Open Every Nite Til 9 Until X-mas

3 News from Raccoon (The Youngbloods Label)

High Country

If you thought bluegrass music was for addicts only, you're in for a pleasant surprise with High Country, winners in two categories of the Topanga Canyon Old Time Fiddlers Convention, Topanga, California. The Prize-Winning Band High Country makes championship music on Raccoon Records.

THE YOUNGBLOODS GOOD AND DUSTY

This is Raccoon Records' finest—The Youngbloods. The lineup of tunes looks like a rock 'n' roll revival, led by some new Youngbloods hits. "Stagger Lee," "That's How Strong My Love Is," "Willie and the Hand Jive," "Let the Good Times Roll" make up the revival part of the album and new songs by Jesse Colin Young, Jefferey Cain and Joe Baucr fill out the LP to make it one of Raccoon's living room studio best.

CRAB TUNES / NOGGINS

This is another fine effort from the Raccoon Bunch and their living room studio. Featured on this album are Joe Bauer and Banana of the Youngbloods. The title of the album is in fact a function of the songs contained therein since Crabtunes/Noggins has "Crabtunes" numbers 1-6 and "Noggin Attempts" numbers 1-4.

Distributed for Raccoon by Warner Bros. Records. Also Available on Ampex-Distributed Warner Bros. Tapes.

CCEBS, COP

The first stidents from the CCEBS and COP special educational projects at UMass were initiated into the campus chapter of the national honor society Alpha Lambda Delta this semester.

Left to right, Sharon Turner of 157 Schenectady Ave., Brooklyn, N.Y., COP; Sharon Somerville of 13 Orleans Court, Springfield, CCEBS; and Linda Gamble of 4705 Hilltop Dr., San Diego, Cal., COP.

CCEBS, (Committee for the Collegiate Education of Black Students) is a program of financial and academic aid for black students from Massachusetts; COP (Career Opportunities Program) is a federally-supported program that brings students to UMass from various parts of the country.

The students are in a group of 62 initiated this year into Alpha Lambda Delta. Initiation is based on academic excellence during the first semester of the freshman year.

Sylvia Plath Topic Of Smith Lectures

The art of Sylvia Plath will be the subject of a series of three Jacob Ziskind lectures to be held this week at Smith College in Wright Hall Auditorium.

Helen Vendler, professor of English at Boston University will give the first lecture at 5 p.m. tonight. She will speak on "The Poetry of Sylvia Plath."

George Gibian, professor of Russian at Cornell University, will be the second lecturer. He will speak at 8 p.m. Wednesday, on "Dostoevsky's Theme of the Double and the Works of Sylvia Plath."

The final lecture, at 8 p.m. Thursday, will be given by Smith College Assistant Professor of English, Margaret Shook, who will discuss "The Poet and the College."

Sylvia Plath, American poet and novelist, killed herself in 1963 at the age of 30. Her novel, "The Bell Jar," published and ignored in London just before she died, has sold 80,000 copies since it was issued here last April.

Her last poems, rejected by editorial eminences on both sides of the Atlantic in the last weeks of her life, are now, according the Life Magazine, "the biggest sellers in the field of serious poetry since Dylan Thomas."

Currently the subject of courses on many college campuses, Miss Plath was a 1955 graduate of Smith College.

'Fixer' at Smith

"The Fixer," the final film in the series 'Portraits of a Vanishing Era: Jewish Life in Eastern Europe," will be shown at Smith College at 8 p.m. tonight in Wright Hall Auditorium.

Sponsored by the B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundations at Smith and Amherst Colleges, the film is open to the public.

Taken from the prize winning novel "The Fixer," the film is based on a real-life incident which took place in Russia at the turn of the century. The main character, played by Alan Bates, lives a hard existence in anti-Semitic Kiev during the Czarist era. Embittered, he tries to pass as a non-Jew. When he is discovered he becomes the victim of a frame-up and sent to prison, where he demands a trial to prove his innocence.

Tues., Dec. 14 7:30 p.m. CC169

JUMP

Sport Parachute Club

Slides from NCPL. Champs.

Super Flick — Infor.

Transportation Survey Made

By BOB CALLAHAN

Questionnaires concerning transportation on and off campus will be distributed to dormitories and off-campus housing starting today.

The survey is being conducted by the Department of Mechanical and Aerospace Engineering and the Student Senate Transit Service. The results of this survey will help to improve the transportation situation on and off campus.

Robin Morgan

December 14

SUB 8p.m.

MDC CLASSIFIED

AUTOS FOR SALE

1964 VW Bug, rebuilt engine and front end, new brakes and master cylinder, just tuned up and oil change. $350 firm. 6-5197. tf12-17

60 Opel Rallye fastback, snowtires, 21mpg, radials. Asking $1250. Reg. 527-1528. tf12-21

71 Citroen, 2 cyl, 46mpg. It's a fun-car, asking $1200. Must sell, leaving the country. Call 549-6397. tf12-15

1959 chev., v8 std., good tires, runs well, must sell, $95. Call 665-4766. tf12-13

1965 Porsche 356-c, new brakes, clutch, rebuilt engine, ski-luggage rack, elec. sunroof, 545-0329, Dick Jubinville. tf12-17

'65 Fiat Sta. Wagon, good cond., 300.00; 55 VW sedan, rebl. 150.00, also Halifax double key board Port. Organ, ex., cond. Call 533-9260. tf12-14

1965 Mustang, excellent condition, must sell, leaving country, $450. Call Mike Reynolds 546-1031. tf12-13

'67 Pontiac GTO conv. 4 speed, new tires, snows, tape player, reverb. radio, spare rims, p.s., p.b., top condition. $1275. 253-5847 after 5. tf12-13

64 Comet, 6 cyl. std shift, good running condition, $175. 546-4452. tf12-14

FOR SALE

Original Turkish Sheepskin Coat for a lady, white outside, white fur inside $85. Call Ahmet 6-4210 after 7 p.m. tf12-15

Two matched 12" coaxial speakers, professional quality, like new, $45 each; new 8" TV/AM FM Clock combo $100. Call 256-8432. tf12-15

Moreshi Accordian, 48 stops, also 4" refector telescope. Call 253-3267. tf12-14

1968 tr6 650cc., excellent cond., price negotiable; electric range, excellent cond., 36", $40. Will deliver. Call George 323-7304 eves. tf12-17

Used desk and dresser plus queen size waterbed with frame, cheap. Phone 256-8472 keep trying. tf12-15

One pair of Air Force insulated flight pants, size-34, good for -20 degrees and colder $20. Call 253-2946 Barry. tf12-15

Sale-Dunham's Tyros, Wint. Insul-excel., cond., originals used 1 wk, size 9. Call Brad 549-0058. tf12-14

20-50% off stereo components, all major brands, fully guaranteed. Also! 8 track tapes $2.49. Baker Stereo, Rm. 223. Call Harry or Dave 4-5:30 p.m. Phone 546-6062. tf12-20

62 VW Sunroof, recent head job, kingpins, brake, carb, fuel pump. Starts, runs. Call 586-3495, eves. $200. tf12-14

'65 VW Bug, red, exc.body and mech..nu sno tires, battery, muffler. 53,200 miles, $550 or offer. Must sell. 425 n. Pleas. St., Univ. Apt. No. 104. tf12-15

4 tires-2 snows-new 825x14; Spitfire-brakepads; 8 track stereo tape-deck; call - 549-6316, Afi. 5. tf12-13

Die-hard auto battery. Used 1 mo. $35;-1 suede fringed jacket good condition $40. 546-4547 eves. tf12-15

Pair of Reiker Buckle Boots, size 7m., worn once. Cheap. Call 1-369-4091. tf12-14

Diamond eng. ring and dia. band-deal on either or both. Dia. is 85 points w/bag. You won't find a better deal. Call Jim at 5-0055/549-6394. tf12-15

Tenor Sax, Selmer MKIV, good condition. Call 549-6087. tf12-17

Snow tires 165-14 Semperit Radials, 1 pr, mounted on MGB disc wheels. $50. Call 549-6087. tf12-17

New and used cameras and photo equipment bought and sold. Lang's Photo 253-2140. tfsem

PERSONAL

Male Doct. Cand. seeks relationship with yg. lady who types well and would like to help with his thesis. Please write Box 199, Amherst, Mass. tf12-14

Bonnie, Merry Christmas and look under the pillow of a Lowellite bb. tf12-13

Love you Spoolie Girl-good luck in the future. 12-13

Elliott-Mazel Tevon big achievement. Remember you dared us!! Sweeties. 12-13

FOR RENT

Room and board available in new house on N. Pleasant St., two minute walk from campus. Call Dana 253-9031. tf12-17

3-bedroom house, excellent condition. Skibiski, realtors, Northampton. Call between 6:30-7:00 p.m. 584-3428. tf12-14

Apt to sublet, own rm., kitchen fac., t.v., furnished, center of Amherst, $87/mo. inc util. Avail immed. Call 253-2548 ask for c-9. tf12-14

Female. tf12-13

Townehouse Apt. to share. Female or couple. $76/mo-1, $114/mo-2, available immediately. Call 256-6467. tf12-15

Apt., in Amherst available, immediate, $90 a month, heat and water included. Phone 256-8472, keep trying. tf12-15

Furnished efficiency apt. Available Jan. 15, all electric air cond., includes utilities, $130. Quabbin Village, Belchertown call 323-6376. tf12-17

1-4 F roommates needed for So. Deerfield house. In the woods, own rooms. $55/mo. plus util. Call 665-2265. tf12-15

Squire Village, modern 2 bdrm apt., all utilities incl. Married couples only. Avail., Jan 1. Rent $190. Call evenings 665-3218. tf12-17

6 bedrms., 2 baths, kitchen and rec. room in Holyoke, 14 mile from U. of M. All util., ex. phone, much furn., $300 per month. Call 323-7893. tf12-15

Apt. for rent, 1 bedroom apartment, Pulfton Village available Jan. 1. 549-6288. tf12-14

Apitment-Just off Campus, $55 mo. Call 5-7 p.m. 549-0216 Roger or Frank. tf12-13

SKIING

Ski Sugarbush-5 1/2 days, includes lifts, lessons, food and lodging. Jan. 16-21, $87. Call 6-6760 or 6-6857. tf12-13

ROOMMATES WANTED

Roommate wanted, F, to share apt., own room, $80 mo., util inc., 1/2 mile from campus. Call 546-5472. tf12-15

Roommate wanted to share 3-bedroom apt. Squire Village. Call 665-2605. tf12-15

To share 2 bdrm apt in old hse, 2 firs, dog, frplc, garag, kitchn, lvrm, frnshd, quiet, 3 mi from UMass, Judy, 13 Middle, Hadley 586-3784, keep trying. tf12-16

Rmte to share 2 bdrm. apt., Hobart Lane Amherst, $60/m., all utilities inc. Call 6-7320 or 6-7321. tf12-14

Roommate to share fully frnshd 1 bdrm apt, 1 mi. from campus. Can build 2nd bdrm. Call Paul (eves) 253-2425. tf12-12

Roommate wanted F, to share rent with 2 other girls, own room, ranch house in Hadley. Call anytime 586-2815. tf12-17

Female desires room in apartment, very close to Campus. Urgent. Call 253-9431. tf12-13

One or two girls who would be interested in sharing an apart. with another girl around January. Prefer open minded. Call 546-8824. tf12-13

Male wanted to share apt. in Col. Village, $55/mo. sec. semester. Call 256-6681, keep trying. tf12-16

WANTED

Used tropical fish tanks in good condition. Will talk about price. Call 546-9765. tf12-13

Psy research paper, 8 to 10 typed pg., any topic, will pay. Call Sue 253-5875 after 5 p.m. tf12-14

Tall Dirty ole man wants pretty shapely female love slaves for home cooking, booze and me. Nice benefits. Call eve., and wk end. Keep trying 665-2264. tf12-13

FREE ROOM AND BOARD

Free room and board in exchange for babysitting afternoons while mother goes to class, Jan. 1st thru Spring Semester. 586-3619. tf12-17

APT, WANTED

2 bdr. apt. wanted in Pulfton Village. Call 256-8723 after six or box 468, No. Amherst. tf12-17

LOST

One pair gold wire-rimmed glasses near graduate center. REWARD. Larry 584-7606. tf12-14

"Lost" from Herter Hall-tape cassette and recorder. Keep recorder if you must, but please return cassette to Fine Arts Council office or arrange clandestine through 5-0203, Transfer. tf12-17

Black, white-tipped tail, dog. Companion to 4 year old. See ad elsewhere in paper. Barbara Craven, 665-2448. tf12-13

1 Pickett sld. rule in 65 white Dodge van on Dec 7 in ride from Rt. 9, Amherst Rt. 9 ? 91 Northampton. Please call Rob 584-0743. tf12-14

SERVICES

Flute-clarinet-sax lessons, Jazz and Classical, Call Anoy Flacks 655-8070. tf12-14

Amherst Audio services. Stereo components, tape decks for home or car. 197 No. Pleasant St. 256-8133. tf5-12

Passports & grad school pictures-24 hr. service Lang's Photo 253-2140. tfsem

For Rent/Help Wanted

Student to live in second semester. Room and board in exchange for help with children. Near Campus. Call 253-9431. tf12-15

BRUINS HOCKEY

UMass Rowing Assoc. sponsoring raffle for two sets of two Bruins home games, Dec. 26 & Jan 15. See crew members or Coach Faherty in 211 Boyden. tf12-15

APT. WANTED

MT. SUGARLOAF APTS. Avail. Jan 1, lg. 2 bdrm util. included. air-cond., pool $185. Call Skibiski Realtors 253-7222, eve. 253-2626. tf12-22

ENTERTAINMENT

Rock Band Phoenix now available for your Xmas party. Good, hard driving, dance music. Call Carl at 253-9371 for information. tf12-17

LAW SCHOOL

"Law School—Will I Like It? Can I Make It?" New book by law grad. For prospective law students. Send $2.95. Kroos Press, box 3709A Milwaukee, Wis. 53217. tf1213

RAFFLE

1st prize: AF Parka 2nd: 5-band radio. Tickets available in CC Concolse $.25 each- 5/$1.00. Proceeds to Bolivood Project. tf12-14

TRAVEL

Ski the Alps-Jan 14-24 Chamonix, France-air fare, hotels, discount lifts and lessons, last night in Paris. Contact Peggy 253-9667. tf12-22

Nassau-$149, from Boston & N.Y., hotel flight, transfers, 12/20-27, 12/23-29, 12/27-1/3 Ski-Australia-$325, 15 days, flight, hotel, meals, transfers, Insbruk, deluxe package, London-$187, flights in January. Call-Student Flights 584-1050. tf12-15

Ski the Alps, Jan 14-24 Chamonix France, air fare, hotels, discount lifts & lessons, last night in Paris $257. Contact Peggy 253-9667. tf12-22

TYPING

Typing-theses, dissertations, etc. Fast, accurate, experienced. Have Math and Chem. symbols. Call 253-3001. tf12-21

STUDENTS BOOK MATCHING

Register your book in S.U. Rm. 318. Every student with your course next semester will need your books save $ money, sell direct. tf-sem.

ROOM WANTED

Attractive female needs a place to stay for the rest of the semester. Urgent. Will sleep on couch or whatever. Call 584-2661 please. tf12-14

Help: Two males need one large or two bedrooms. Call 549-6660 anytime. tf12-17

Notices

ANIMAL SCIENCE CLUB
Meeting tonight at 7:30 p.m. in CC. Guest speaker Dr. Sydney Lyford will talk on "Dairying in Denmark" All welcome.

ART STUDENTS
Prof. Roskill will hold a presentation entitled "Pop Arts in the 19th Century" tonight at 7:30 p.m. in Herter Hall, rm 231.

BLACK CORRIDOR
Any conscientious brothers who wish to move on the Black Corridor in Grayson House (Orchard Hill) next semester, or want to know more about it; please contact John Davis, rm 508, 66985 or Sidney Davis rm 507, 66984 as soon as possible.

CAMPUS CENTER PROGRAM COUNCIL
Meeting tonight at 7 p.m. in CC 905-909. Members please attend.

COLLEGIATE FLYING CLUB GROUND SCHOOL
Ground school at 7:30 p.m. in CC 162. Test on navigation--bring coputer, plotter, maps (N.Y. sectionals) Will continue on FAR's.

No Ambulance

Contrary to information previously printed in the Collegian, UMass does not have an ambulance service. It does have a Health Service vehicle which runs between dorms and the infirmary, however.

Dr. Barry Averill, Director of Health Services said that there are three options open to students when they do need the services of an ambulance. They call all Security Police at 52121, off campus (9) 911 for the town ambulance, for which they must pay, or they can call 52671 (Health Services) if in doubt as to what to do.

Health Services recommends that students call the Security Police.

CONCERT
Hound Dog Taylor and His House Rockes--SU Ballroom at 8 p.m.

GERMAN CLUB
Meeting tonight in CC 804. Miss Bauschinger will speak on German theatre. All invited.

OLYMPICS
Film on Olympics shown free of charge. Mon & Tues in the language lab in Herter at 10:15 & 2:30. Model of the 1972 Olympic field in Munich is on display on the 5th floor of Herter.

PSYCH 101
Kathy O'Rourke's sections 060 and 078 (ed systems) will meet on Tuesday at 2:30 in Coolidge 5th floor lounge for a movie.

SOUTHWEST WOMEN'S CENTER
An informal rap on Women's Liberation tonight at 7:30 p.m. Come and join us. Southwest Women's Center, JQA lobby.

S.T. THEATRE
Open call audition for "Peter Pan, or the Rape of Wendy" tonight at 7 p.m. in CC Aud.

SIGMA DELTA TAU
Sponsoring a fund raising drive for cerebral palsy on Monday and Tuesday there will be table in the Campus Center.

STUDENT ART ASSOCIATION
General meeting & movie tonight on Jasper Johns at 6:30 p.m. in CC 804-808, free, all welcome.

STOWE TRIP
Anyone who has signed up or who wants to, to ski Stowe Jan 16-21, please come to our special meetings Tuesday at 7 p.m. in Mahar or call Chris in 422 at 5452303 or Carol at 5468129.

WOMEN'S SWIM TEAM
Now recruiting new members for 2nd semester. Interested swimmers come to WoPE pool today at 3:30.

WPIRG
The Western Mass. Public Interest Research Group will hold orientation classes every Monday night at 7:30 in CC. Next semester it will be offered as a modular credit course.

LOST
Stat 315 notebook, in Goessman Aud, or CC. Desperately needed for finals. Call Diane 65068.

15 meal-meal ticket, somewhere in Southwest. Desperately needed. I'm getting very hungry. Call Richie 67724.

A pair of navy blue driving gloves at the Jonathon Edwards concert last week. Please return to Joan 400 Dickinson, or call 66609.

Fundamentals of Spanish book...on Friday. This is your 2nd chance. Please bring to CC lost & found or call 5466477.

Gold sweater in Machmer on Nov. 9. Call Dave 66235.

FOUND
In cage Thurs. night a girl's pin, initials LLM. Can be claimed at 117 Thatcher or call 64611.

A boy's 1972 UMass ring in Medway, Mass. Contact Marcia Bassett, Crocker Hall, 8739025.

Quicksilver
Happy Hours

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

by SYDNEY OMARR

Where versatility is concerned, Gemini has no peer. Natives of this zodical sign adjust, use alternatives, work with material at hand. These persons are quick with a quip, fascinating, up-to-date and exasperating. Some famous persons born under Gemini include Rosalind Russell, Dean Martin and Nancy Sinatra.

***

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Blue chips are down, the game is for high stakes. Means put forth best, concentrated effort. Halfway measures now would be costly, wasteful. Cash flow may be delayed by third party. Do some personal investigating.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Finish rather than initiate projects. Accent now is on public relations. Those with opposing views have right to express them. Aries individual can aid in creating more appeal, sales. Accept!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): New approach to basic chores now is necessity. Dependents make demands. Frank discussion of needs, desires should be on agenda. Get priorities in order. Don't neglect your own health.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Creative thinking is order of day. Accent is on maturity, ability to change game plan when necessary. Follow through on hunch. One who aided in past could make reappearance. Be receptive.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Blocked efforts should not discourage. You tend to attract that upon which you dwell. Know this and respond accordingly. Home, basic values are major points of consideration. A change is in offing.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Dealings with neighbors, close relatives these are emphasized. One who is argumentative is merely crying for attention. Leave details for another time. Grasp overall picture. Use alternatives.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Gain what you need through perception, exchange of information. Availability depends on your willingness to give as well as to receive. Debts, payments and collections are apt now to be featured.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Lunar cycle coincides with time for you to move ahead. Stress independence, original approach. Obtain hint from Libra message. Brighten surroundings. Get what you need for greater happiness.

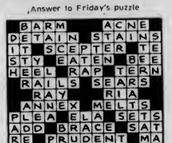
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Look behind scenes for "the action." What occurs is apt to be low key. Avoid any tendency to be overbearing. You flourish now through quiet, efficient procedures. Eliminate guesswork.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Accent is on how you make use of opportunities. There are apt to be numerous chances to improve position. But some friends now tend to be timid. This lack of confidence could prove contagious.

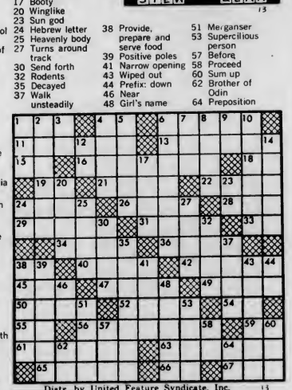
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Study Capricorn message. Refuse to be discouraged by one who lacks vision. See and perceive your goal; then aim for it. More persons now are favorably impressed. Know this, take advantage of it.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Reading, writing and advertising figure prominently. You make gains but they are "stored for future." Means you find out what is needed, where you are going and how to arrive.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you often are considered blunt. But, if truth be known, you are frank and revere veracity. In short, you are no hypocrite. You usually say what you mean and mean what you say. In upcoming months you gain in business and personal areas. And, if single, marriage is on horizon.



Copyright 1971, Gen. Fea. Corp



Crossword Puzzle

ACROSS
1 Music: as written
4 Paid notice
6 Haste
11 Nobleman
13 Christian festival
15 Old pronoun
16 Pointless
18 Symbol for iron
19 Parent (colloq.)
21 Entrance
22 Silkworm
24 Cronies (colloq.)
26 Christmas carol
28 Everyone
29 Growing out of
31 Former Russian ruler
33 Printer's measure
34 Male sheep (pl.)
36 Mast
38 Symbol for calcium
40 Tears
42 Spirited horse
45 Collection of facts
47 Weight of India
49 Withered
50 Small children
52 Electrified particles
54 Note of scale
55 Man's nickname
56 Liquefying
59 A continent (abbr.)
61 Honor
63 Sounded a horn
65 Stitched
66 Hebrew month
67 Unusual

DOWN
1 Secret agent
2 Surgical saw
3 Three-toed sloth
4 Caustic substance
5 Monster
6 Prophetess
7 Dance step
8 Actual being
9 Latin conjunction
10 Befoul
12 A continent (abbr.)
14 Domain
17 Booty
20 Winglike
23 Sun god
24 Hebrew letter
25 Heavenly body
27 Turns around track
30 Send forth
32 Rodents
35 Decayed
37 Walk unsteadily
38 Provide, prepare and serve food
39 Positive poles
41 Narrow opening
43 Wiped out
44 Prefix: down
46 Near
48 Girl's name
51 Merganser
53 Supercilious person
57 Before
58 Proceed
60 Sum up
62 Brother of Odin
64 Preposition

Answer to Friday's puzzle

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

WMUA

7:00 pm EVENING NEWS-a complete half hour of news and information.
7:30 pm CAMPUS WEEK IN REVIEW-magazine of the past week's campus news.
8:00 pm UJAMMA DRUM-black programming with jazz, poetry, soul, and information for the black community. (three hours).
11:00 pm LATE NIGHT NEWS-another half hour report with news from the major wire services, and audio network and local reporting by WMUA News.
11:30 pm THE ROD HANSON SHOW-R.J. plays lots of good records til 3:00 a.m.

NOW..YOUR CHOICE OF 5
Showcase Cinema 1-2-3-4-5
Rt. 5-V.V. Spfld.
733-5131
MORE NEW SHOWS!
MORE NEW LOUNGER SEATS!
MORE NEW PARKING!
MATINEES DAILY...POPULAR PRICES
Adults $1.50 Mon thru Fri Matts
1 Man in the Wilderness GP
2 Maid in Sweden X
3 French Connection R
4 Jesus The Greatest Story Ever Told G
5 Scrooge G
ACRES FREE PARKING
ROCKER LOUNGERS
CHARGE YOUR TICKETS

JV Pucksters Beaten 10-6

By EMORY ROUNDS
AND BOB CALLAHAN

The Harvard J.V. hockey squad untracked itself early in the second period and swamped the J.V. Redmen with seven unanswered goals on its way to a 10-6 rout over the UMass squad at Orr Rink last Saturday.

"They just skated us right off the ice." UMass Coach Russ Kidd commented after a game which saw scoring spurts from both teams. "I've never seen a team so dominated as we were in the second period."

Harvard drew the first blood of the contest at 12:47 of the first period as Harvard's Thomas beat UMass goalie Chick Rheault. Ten seconds later, however, the Little Redman came back as Dave Keough lifted the puck past Harvard goalie Rose for the tying score.

But Dave Keough was far from finished. A little more than a minute later, at 13:45, Keough assisted Steve Dee for the go-ahead goal as Dee tipped in the puck between Rose's outstretched legs.

The first period scoring ended as the Redman went ahead 3-1. Keough once again earned an assist as he aided Mike Ellis, who slapped the puck in from the point over Rose's right shoulder. UMass was to be denied a further goal in this hard-hitting period as the bell sounded just half a second before the puck landed deep in the Harvard goal.

In the second period UMass was to be denied the scoreboard as Harvard dominated the Redmen. At 1:04, Cowen, assisted by Barry and Watson, beat the Redman to bring Harvard one goal from the tie. The tie did come at 9:56 of the period as Millie stunned Rheault. Then came two quick gaols 25 seconds apart as Harris and Olchouski slipped the black disk in at 11:02 and 11:27.

Harvard enjoyed another scoring spurt, with two goals separated by less than a minute, as Barry connected at 16:28 and Olchouski chalked up his second of the day at 17:16. The scoring was to end at 19:45 as Harvard's Milley concluded the second period shutout, but by then the score was 8-3 in favor of Harvard.

The third period looked as if it was to be a repeat of the second as Harvard's Shea beat Rheault to advance the score 9-3 at 1:31.

However, the Redman discovered some skating room in the next minute, and Ted Flynn drove a breakaway shot into the Harvard goal, assisted by Mike Ellis.

But Harvard bounced back and caught UMass goalie Steve Moran standing at 3:07, and Jahnke pushed in what would be Harvard's last score of the day.

Both teams continued to battle as they did in the first period, looking equally as fast and strong, and at 11:15 Ted Flynn scored on the new Harvard goalie, assisted by Kevin Thompson and Kevin Connors.

Thirty-six seconds later, Tom Casey accounted for the final score of the game with the aid of Ted Flynn and Kevin Connors, as the tally became 10-6.

The J.V. Redman are now 2-1 on the season.

Jets Edge Patriots

NEW YORK (AP)-John Riggins smashed one yard for the tie-breaking touchdown after a fumble recovery by Phil Wise in the third period, leading the New York Jets to a 13-5 victory over New England Sunday in a game marked by the first meeting of Joe Namath and Jim Plunkett.

Wise recovered the fumble t New England's Carl Garrett at th Patriots' five-yard line an returned to the one. Riggins goir the last yard just 25 seconds aft the start of the second half for th touchdown that snapped a 3-3 ti

That proved decisive in the gam between American Footba Conference losers, as neithe Namath nor Plunkett was provide any explosive fi

Namath, the Jets' quar playing his first full gam returning to action, compl seven of 12 passes for 95 yards a had two intercepted. Plunket described by New England Coac John Mazur as "the next Namath, completed 17 of 31 attempts for 17 yards. He had one intercepted.

The only score besides Riggin came on field goals 16 and 42 yard by the Jets' Bobby Howfield and 3 and 47 by Charlie Gogolak.

One of Namath's completion went to Don Maynard, the 660th c Maynard's career. Raymon Berry of Baltimore holds the all time record with 631.

Frosh Rout NU

By FRED ROSENTHAL
By FRED ROSENTHAL

BOSTON-Paced by the hot shooting of center John Murphy (17 points), the UMass freshman hoopsters opened up a close game midway through the first half and went on to soundly beat the Northeastern freshmen, 87-69, at Northeastern on Saturday night. The win was UMass' fourth of the season against no losses.

With Northeastern's forwards getting inside for some easy hoops and guards Bill Rosary and Joe Tavares controlling the tempo of the game, the score remained close for the first 12 minutes. Then with Bill Endicott and Murphy leading the way, the UMass frosh opened up a fifteen point lead at the half.

Early in the second half the UMass frosh put the contest out of reach. Endicott and Tom Gillams scored the first two hoops of the second half. And then after two short jumpers by Rosary sandwiched around a basket by UMass guard Mike Flanagan, Gillams scored five straight points on a three point play and a pretty fast break basket on a feed from Murphy. A basket on a steal by Endicott gave UMass a 24 point lead and the game was all but over.

UMass passed what was supposed to be their toughest test with ease. They played aggressive defense and after some sloppy plays early in the game kept Northeastern's big men outside.

With this game behind them, the Little Redmen will be looking forward to another tough game against a strong University of Connecticut freshman squad on Tuesday at the Cage.

Girl Gymnasts Win Opener

"I was pleased with the team's performance," beamed Coach Kitty Kjeldson after the varsity girls overpowered Southern Connecticut State College Saturday, 93.55 to 71.35. Mrs. Kjeldson said her team did as well as could be expected; and although some routines were not quite ready, and confidence was lacking, the girls showed great promise. Mrs. Kjeldson explained, "Confidence makes a difference in presentation. If the presentation is not good, you don't score." Whether or not the girls felt confident, however, they did an excellent performance in their first official meet of the season.

Coach Kjeldson was particularly pleased with co-captains Betsy East and Margie Combs, and Anne Burmeister-Vexler, who were all overcoming injuries. Betsy, who was out all last year with an ankle injury, earned 2nd place on the unevens with a score of 7.9. Margie, overcoming a knee injury, placed 3rd on the bars. Anne, who dislocated her elbow last summer, won both the floor exercise and balance beam events, scoring 8.5 on each.

Another exceptional member of the team is freshman Jeannine Burger, who amazed the audience with a full twist in the air and a back handspring on the balance beam. She placed on all four events: 2nd floor ex., with a score of 8.35, 2nd in vaulting with a 7.65, 2nd on the balance beam with a 6.85, and 1st on the bars with a score of 8.25. Mrs. Kjeldson feels that Jeannine "shows promise of being an outstanding performer."

Other UMass girls took 1st, 2nd, and 3rd places or nearly every event. They were: Gail Hannon--3rd in floor ex. scoring 7.9 and Marina Rodriquez--1st in vaulting with 8.1, and 3rd on the balance beam with 6.7.

Co-captain and sophomore Marge Combs agrees with her coach in that "the girls will do much better as the year goes on." Of the eight varsity gymnasts, one girl is a junior and the rest are freshmen and sophomores. Coach Kjeldson feels that the girls need more experience in competing at the college level. Both she and Marge feel that the team should do well against the defending national champion, Springfield College; and they look forward to the national meet. If the girls are this good as freshmen and sophomores, just think what they'll be like 2 or 3 years from now!

Don't miss the J.V. meet next Saturday at 1:00 p.m., when UMass hosts the Montclaire Y.M.C.A.

CO-CAPTAIN SHOWS STYLE--Anne Burmeister-Vexler, shown here on the balance beam, turned in a fine performance Saturday as the girl gymnasts defeated So. Conn. Anne is coming back from a recent elbow injury.

THE VIEW FROM PEKING
A Colloquiam On China
MOUNT HOLYOKE COLLEGE
January 11 - 12
Guest Speakers, Panels, Informal Discussion.

PRINT SALE
A sale of unusual graphic art will be held December 15, 16, and 17 at the Cape Cod lounge in the Univ. of Mass. Student Union. This exhibition of prints, the work of university undergraduate and graduate printmakers and selected local talent, will include original lithographs, woodcuts, serigraphs and etchings. The exhibition will be open to the public from 9AM to 5:30 PM each day and until 8PM on Thursday the 16th.
SPONSORED BY THE PROGRAM COUNCIL

Beechwood Ageing could be an "advertising gimmick."
But it isn't.
(For instance, last year we bought almost 2½ million pounds of Beechwood strips . . . enough to fill 67 freight cars.)
WHEN YOU SAY Budweiser.
YOU'VE SAID IT ALL!
ANHEUSER-BUSCH, INC. • ST. LOUIS

Hockey Team Sweeps Crucial Road Series

By BILL BALLOU

In all proper New England homes there hangs a cloth sign that says, "Home, Sweet, Home". And, although he is a proper New Englander, it would not be too surprising if varsity hockey coach Jack Canniff decided to put in a special order for the same kind of sign with the words, "Road, Sweet, Road" on it.

Of the first five games they've played this season, the Redmen have played three on the road where last season they could compile only a record of three wins against six losses and a tie. And of those three, UMass has equalled last year's road victory total by winning all of them.

The most recent of those victories came this past weekend when the Redmen headed up into the snows of Vermont to take on the Cadets of Norwich University and the Panthers of Middlebury College in an abbreviated road trip. The journey was, of course, crucial in that UMass picked up two vital road wins against two Division II clubs, but it also proved to be just what the doctor ordered to cure the ailing hockey stick of Junior center Pat Keenan. It wasn't that Keenan had been doing that poorly, for in the first three games he had scored two goals and collected three assists for five points; good hockey but not the pace of last year when as a sophomore Keenan broke all sorts of records by scoring 28 goals and assisting on 28 others for 56 points. But something about that cold Vermont air really made him fly as he upped his goal production by a factor of three, scoring four against Norwich and two against Middlebury.

Friday's game in Northfield against the Norwich Cadets proved to be little more than a skating exercise for the Redmen as they fired 53 shots at Cadet goaltenders and scored on eight of them while the two Norwich scores came after UMass had already built a three goal lead.

Coming into the game the line on Norwich had been that the Cadets were composed of one man, sophomore goalie Bill Cantwell and the rest just weren't good enough to make much difference. Cantwell had an off night, but his teammates weren't much help and in some cases hindered him.

Keenan said that, "They bunch up too much in front of the goaltender and it makes it pretty hard for him to see sometimes." They bunched up enough for Keenan to score four times but they were totally ineffective down in the UMass end as they were only able to beat P.J. Flaherty once, that on a beautiful two-on-one break with Tom Cadigan making the perfect feed to co-captain Phil Beaney for the score.

The other Norwich goal came off the skate of UMass captain Brian Sullivan when he accidentally deflected a centering pass by Norwich's Bill Cahill past his own goaltender in a fluke that Flaherty said "usually happens about twice a year". Toward the end of the game, Norwich coach Bob Priestey sent in spare goaltender Bob Peacock to relieve the shell-shocked Cantwell but it was a futile gesture and the Redmen had an easy 8-2 win.

Saturday night in Middlebury was a much different story. The outcome was the same but the script was different, as the Redmen were forced to scramble to a tight 3-2 win thanks to a fired up Middlebury club led by the 41 save goaltending of Larry Perlman. Prior to the game, Perlman had been touted as one of the best in Division II and he lived up to his billing by holding a UMass offense that had scored thirty goals in four previous games to just three. Again Pat Keenan was the big gun with two goals, one of which was the game winner. The other was put in by defenseman Bob Bartholomew and was his first of the season. Again the Redmen received tight goaltending from P.J. Flaherty and the senior from South Boston now is the owner of an incredible 1.92 goals against average.

SOLID DEFENSE--Redman defenseman Bob Shilalie, battling a Williams College player in action last week, played an important part in an overall solid performance by the UMass defense in two weekend wins. (Photo by Dan Kamal.)

The feeling up north is that the Redmen are the class of Division II and should take the divisional title pretty easily. George Turner, public relations director at Norwich says that "UMass is head and shoulders above the rest of Division II and I can't see anyone touching them." After watching UMass demolish the Cadets, he's even more convinced, but the Redmen still have plenty of games remaining including tough ones with Bowdoin and Merrimack at home and three big road encounters against the improved St. Anselm's and Boston State as well as perennial power Merrimack. Boston University has also been added to the schedule and this gives UMass fans a chance to rank their club in relation to considerably stiffer competition than say a Norwich or a Salem State.

The Redmen return to action this Wednesday night at Orr Rink when they take on Boston State in a Division II battle.

Hoopsters Edge NU In Squeaker

By EARLE BARROLL

BOSTON--"We almost bombed them. If Jellison hadn't hit that jumper at the end we would have beaten them by three." Sounds like a cynic? No. Sounds like a relieved coach? Yes...a relieved coach by the name of Jack Leaman.

Only moments earlier he was on the brink of his second cardiac arrest in as many games as his Redmen came from behind in the last five minutes to hold off a stubborn Northeastern University, 62-61, here Saturday night.

Leaman's post game analysis was not all that cynical as his Redmen got caught up in the Northeastern style of play, something he had feared all week, and to come out alive is in itself a big win.

The head coach put it this way: "It's awful difficult to play Holy Cross and then come back and play an average team like Northeastern. But we're very thankful we got out of there alive and it's the sign of a good team when they can come from behind (three points in the last five minutes) after a game like Holy Cross and pull it out...it was a hell of a win.

"Northeastern is the type of team that gives us trouble. They size up well with us, they play good defense and they hold the ball on offense. If we come and play their type of game it poses problems."...This was obviously the case.

The Huskies were content in controlling the ball on offense and trying to force the Redmen into miscues on defense. "They lull you to sleep on offense and go after you on defense," is the way Leaman put it.

Couple this with the limited amount of shooting both teams did and the scrappy take-it-anyway-you-can-get-it Northeastern game plan and you have all the ingredients for a historically sound Northeastern basketball game.

UMass gave signs as to what was to come when they missed their first five shots from the field and the Huskies held on with the scoring of one individual, Jim Moxley, who hit for 24 in the evening.

The lead changed hands four times in the first half before the Redmen went on a 10-0 spree in the last three minutes to take a six point, 38-32, margin into the locker room.

Sophomores Rick Pitino and Peter Trow gave the team the spark it needed during this binge as UMass went into one of its few successful presses in the game. Leaman said of their performance: "I'm very thankful for my two sophomores. They did a real good job especially in the closing minutes of the first half."

As to why his team couldn't get the press working effectively he said, "We didn't chase after the ball and this effected our full court trap and half court trap presses."

The second half was incredible.

Think back to the last time a UMass team took only 13 shots in a half. If you're stuck just go back a couple of days. That's right, the Redmen took that many shots in this second half and maybe it was that number which ushered in the follies yet to come.

How can a team like UMass do that? The answer: More ball control by the Huskies and a propensity for them to pick up the offensive fouls on the Redmen...something in the vicinity of seven in the half.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

SPORTS

With just under 15 minutes to go in the game, RickVogeley converted an offensive rebound for an easy layup to give UMass a five point lead...this was a milestone of some note as it wasn't until some 11 minutes later that another Redman, Tom McLaughlin, was able to get another, giving UMass a 55-53 lead.

It almost proved costly as they fell behind by three, 53-50, with five minutes to go and the Northeastern fans coming alive...a setting reminiscent of the almost travesty at UNH last year. During this eleven minute two-pointer draught UMass matched game-saving accurate free throw-shooting with the Huskies' once-in-a-blue-moon field goals.

If there was one play that turned the game in UMass' favor, it came with just over two minutes to play with the Redmen leading by one. Leaman called time out and his assistant "Fan" Gaudette, sent in "The Rhody Special" which called for a long pass on the inbounds play to a sprinting John Betancourt for an easy layup...it worked.

Mike Pagliara got the nod to throw the pass seeing that he "looked the most like Sonny Jurgenson" according to Leaman.

From there on a tough man-to-man defense bailed the Redmen out and prevented any further hair-raising aggressions on the part of the Huskies outside of desperation fouls and two 40-footers that miraculously for aHuskie went in.

Vogeley's two free throws on a one-and-one with six seconds to play gave the Redmen their final margin of victory.

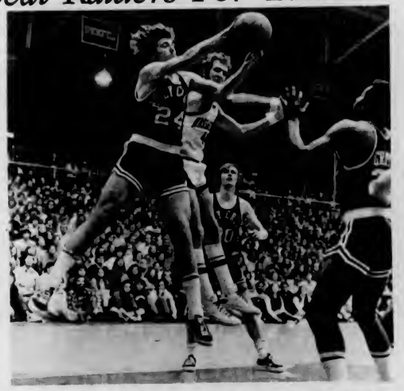
A complimentary Leaman said, "Northeastern is the best 0-3 team you'll find. They're well disciplined, well coached, they play a controlled offense and it's tough getting anything going with them."

So far the Huskies have lost to Harvard by three, UNH by two and UMass by one.

Box Score

	G	F	T		G	F	T
UMass				Northeastn
Skinner	2	3	7	Moxley	9	6	24
Coffin	4	1	9	McD'ah	3	0	6
Vogeley	7	7	11	Haviland	0	0	0
Bet'n'cl	4	1	9	Jellison	4	0	8
Pagliara	1	3	5	Lecy	2	3	7
McL'lin	1	4	6	Barres	4	2	10
Pitino	5	0	10	Delgardo	1	1	3
Austin	1	1	3	Minishak	1	1	3
Trow	1	0	2
	21	20	62		24	15	61

Chiefs Beat Raiders For Title



KANSAS CITY (AP) — Jan Stenerud's 10-yard field goal with 1:34 remaining climaxed a 93-yard drive that gave the Kansas City Chiefs a 16-14 victory over the Oakland Raiders Sunday and the American Football Conference West Division Championship.

A crowd of 51,215 saw the nationally televised game, played in freezing weather on a wet field ringed by remnants of an early-morning snowfall.

The victory left Kansas City with a 9-3-1 record, while Oakland is 7-4-2. Each team has only one game remaining.

Stenerud's kick, his third of the brutal battle, ruined George Blanda's brilliant comeback performance. Blanda, who played more than half the game, came off the bench with the Raiders trailing 10-0 and passed and kicked them into a 14-13 advantage with 14:19 left.

The first time Blanda came into the game late in the first half, he guided the Raiders on a 67-yard march that ended with Marv Hubbard scooting into the end zone from the one.

TOP SCORER--Rick Vogeley, shown here in rebounding action at the Cage against Holy Cross last week, led the Redmen in scoring against a tough Northeastern University team. UMass won by a point. (Photo by Gib Fullerton.)

Notice

Members of the Crew Club will be selling chances for night on the town in Boston plus pairs of Bruin's tickets for games during vacation. The chances will be sold in the Campus Center lobby and in selected dining commons today through Wednesday. Price is $.50 each. Proceeds will go to supplementing the Crew budget.

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather

Nick Morotti Lives.

VOLUME XCIX, ISSUE 66 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS TUESDAY, DECEMBER 14, 1971

Hounddog Taylor played a driving set of Chicago blues last night in the Ballroom. The crowd was, to say the least, appreciative and gave the Student Union--Campus Center a genuinely strange aura last night. (MDC photo by Jim Lavrakas.)

Ombudsman Barnard Resigns

By MARY M. KURTZ

Dr. Ellsworth Barnard has submitted a letter of resignation, stating that he wishes to cease his activities as university Ombudsman at the end of this year. "When I accepted the position, it was with the understanding that I would hold the office only until the end of this year", stated Dr. Barnard.

Stressing that it is a job that needs to be done, the Ombudsman explained that his work has been going well and that he has no complaints about the support he has received. "I've had very good cooperation from the administration," said Dr. Barnard. This year most of the cases he has handled have dealt with some failure of administrative machinery as experienced by the students, but the Ombudsman has handled faculty and professional problems also.

Dr. Barnard suggested that the next person to hold the position has to be someone who likes people, especially students and is fairly objective. "You have to keep an open mind until you have all the evidence in" continued the Ombudsman, and must deal with matters promptly, without being intimidated by people.

The next Ombudsman will probably be chosen by a joint student-faculty committee and Dean Field, as was Dr. Barnard.

Wanting to resume his full-time position as an English teacher next year, Dr. Barnard confessed, "teaching is what I like best." He said he would like to get another year of teaching in before he retires.

The office of the Ombudsman has been in existence since last February. Commenting on his experience, Dr. Barnard said he enjoyed the position, and hopes "that since the office has been functioning for almost a year, it will be easier for someone to carry it on."

Some of the functions of the office include the following as taken from the formal proposal of Barnard's appointment:

The Ombudsman shall be provided with the necessary staff and services to enable him to fulfill his function...

The function of the Ombudsman shall be to assist any petitioner in the procurement of a just settlement of a grievance. All members of the University community are expected to cooperate with the Ombudsman in the discharge of his duties...

Every complaint or grievance by a petitioner to the Ombudsman shall be submitted in writing.

If in the course of his duties it appears to the Ombudsman that under existing channels there is an adequate remedy or right of appeal, or if it appears that, having regard to all the circumstances of the case, any further action is unnecessary, he may in his discretion refuse to pursue the matter further.

If in his opinion the subject matter of the complaint is frivolous, or vexatious, or is not made in good faith, or the complainant has no sufficient personal interest in the subject matter of the complaint, the Ombudsman shall not be required to investigate the complaint.

In any case where the Ombudsman decides not to investigate or further investigate a complaint, he shall inform the complainant of that decision and shall state his reasons therefore in writing.

Every investigation by the Ombudsman shall be conducted with due respect for the privacy and reputation of others.

No person shall be entitled as of right to be heard by the Ombudsman, except that before any report is issued, persons or organizations adversely affected by such report must have been afforded an opportunity to be heard.

The Ombudsman shall report his opinion, and his reasons therefore, to the appropriate organization or person, and may make such recommendations as he sees fit. In any such case he may request the organization, or person involved, to notify him, within a specified time, of the steps that it proposes to take to implement his recommendations.

If within a reasonable time after issuance of the report, no action is taken which appears satisfactory to the Ombudsman, he may send a copy of his report and recommendations to the President of the University.

The Ombudsman shall in any case inform the complainant of the result of the investigation and recommendations.

The Ombudsman shall submit a written report at the beginning of May of each year to the Faculty, Graduate Student, and Student Senates, to the President of the University, and to the Board of Trustees of the University on the general functioning of his office. Copies of this report shall be made available for general distribution. In addition, from time to time, he shall issue such other reports as he may determine necessary.

On The Inside:

- Nader Raiders? See page two
- Indians Near Dacca See page four
- Down And Out In Baltimore See page twelve

Naders Raiders Coming To Campus

By SHELLEY LAUZON

A group whose initials are pronounced "Wim-perg" expects to become well-known on the UMass campus and in the region next semexter. Naderism is what its all about.

WMPIRG, the Western Massachusetts Public Interest Research Group, is a non-profit corporation which will engage in research projects oriented to the public interest, such as consumer protection, corporate responsibility, and environmental protection. Through publicity and other methods of exposure, the group will seek to bring about changes in areas where injustices exist. One example of the Nader-type work these groups do occurred in Minnesota, where lead-based paints were causing acute case of lead poisoning. Officials said there was no connection between the two, but the Minnesota PIRG investigated and found a direct relationship. Ordinances pe 'aining to lead based paints were adopted by the state based upon the findings of the group.

The Connecticut Valley Committee (CVC), which received a $25,000 Rockefeller grant, is funding the group and will continue to do so until April, 1972. Funding in the future will depend upon student support. A voluntary student tax of $4 a year per student has been proposed, according to the WMPIRG office in the Campus Center, which will enable the group to establish a regional office and staff it with professionals who can provide the necessary expertise to engage in research projects as well as in aiding students and others desiring to do research.

The WMPIRG regional office and funds raised through the tax will be controlled and directed by a regional Board of Directors, composed entirely of student representatives from the member colleges. In addition, local boards will be directing and aiding efforts on each campus. The regional board presently consists of 25 students, with one representative per 3,000 students, thus giving UMass six.

The UMass PIRG began in early October and is constantly working to gain support, learn the basic techniques, and build a strong foundation on which to operate. According to three officials of the office in an MDC interview, no projects are underway, but a progressive educational campaign is being undertaken from now until Christmas. Its aim is to make the campus aware of the organization's goals and potentials, and to gain student support through publicity and dorm organization.

The officials also stated that a massive campaign will be undertaken in February to provide further publicity and education, reaching a climax when Ralph Nader will speak on campus. Sufficient funds haven't yet been received to bring Nader here, but the office feels certain the goal will be reached and that the only problem will be that of fitting UMass into his schedule.

A petition drive will be initiated in hopes of obtaining the signatures of 70% of the student body, saying they are in favor of the additional tax. The Student Senate will then be approached for endorsement, and the final step will be the presentation of the proposal before the UMass Board of Trustees.

The PIRG is an attempt to involve students in decision-making processes which affect all aspects of their lives. The WMPIRG slogan is "a new set of tools", applying to the methods Nader has used to get action. Following Nader's contributions in this field, the organization hopes to apply what students feel is the best way of dealing with problems confronting them. The activities of each PIRG group, including UMass, are coordinated through Nader's office, although he has no control over them.

WMPIRG, its officers say, is both education and action. Next semester a program will be initiated which offers up to 3 modular credits with an option for another 3, plus a separate independent study program involving research in issues and problems of the Western Mass. community and the opportunity for community involvement. A list will be published in February of the community involvement programs and research rojects. Students are also free to choose their own directions in research areas.

WMPIRG sums its purpose up simply by saying they hope to provide the public with a broader, more honest base from which they are able to decide values, goals, and actions.

The Whys And Wherefores Of Student Judiciary

By GEORGE WEISSLITZ

Although most students are reasonably familiar with the Student Senate and its operation, very few seems to be aware of the Student Judiciary--the other branch of student government. Technically, the Student Judiciary is the co-equal of the Senate in power, and the Chief Justice of the General Court of the Student Judiciary is the equivalent of the president of the Student Senate.

Any undergraduate is allowed to apply for a position on the Student Judiciary during the first six weeks of the fall semester, or the last six weeks of the spring semester. Criteria for selection include "fairness", and "intelligence" and the acceptance rate is presently only 5%. Under a newly proposed system, half the membership of each court will be appointed by the Student Senate, and the other half will be selected by the justices of the particular judiciary that one is applying to.

Presently, the various judiciearies are Area East, Area West, the Greek Judiciary, Non-Residential Jucidiary, the General Court, and residence hall judiciaries. The General Court of Justice is the "highest" judiciary and has the power of judicial review over the other judiciaries.

It is the General Court which decides such cases as misuse of funds by RSO organizations, and cases referred to it involving violation of Massachusetts laws. Also, the General Court has the power to override any act of the Student Senate which it considers inconsistent with the Student Government constitution.

Last year the General Court heard such cases as whether it was constitutional for Glenn Elters to be Student Senate president since there was a controversy regarding his status as an undergraduate. Another case concerned the funding of MOBE. One of the better known cases last year involved students who were charged with running a bar on Orchard Hill in Grayson Dormitory. The case of the students, who became known as the "Grayson 7", was referred to the General Court of the Student Judiciary, rather than Northampton District Court.

This year the vast majority of cases has involved disciplinary action and violation of the Code of Student Conduct, rather than fundamental, constitutional issues.

A great number of the cases that the Student Jucidiary hears involve theft from the Campus Center Bookstore. At present, 8% of the total volume flow from the bookstore is unpaid for because it is stolen. This theft, which involves an enormous sum of money when one considers the size of the bookstore and student body, has caused an increase of over six dollars per student in the Campus Center Tax. Although theft from the bookstore is an offense for which a student could be arraigned in Northampton District Court, the Student Judiciary has been hearing these cases, so that convicted students will not have a permanent police record.

Jerry Moriarty, Chief Justice of the General Court, said in an MDC interview that "an attempt to keepUniversity problems on campus" is being made by the Judiciary, and this could necessitate more severe penalties for theft from the bookstore.

One of the most significant cases heard by the General Court this year involves the claim by sophomore John McEleney that he and about 350 other students are being denied scholarship aid, since UMass has not collected some $35,000 in outstanding parking fines. The case was heard a number of weeks ago, and a decision has been made in this case, which will be announced on Tuesday, December 21. The decision is presently being written.

Sanctions which the judiciary is currently empowered to impose include expulsion from the University, probation, suspension, letter of censure, and verbal admonition.

At present only a letter of censure is kept in a student's record. Record of this letter is kept until graduation. Because of this, a letter of censure has been used quite often this year, as it is the only way by which the judiciary can know whether a student charged with some offense has been found guilty of any previous offenses. In an MDC interview, Steve Effman, chief justice of the Non-Residential Court, proposed a system whereby a record of all offenses committed by a student would be kept by the Student Judiciary until a student graduates. Under this system the judiciary would be able to know about past offenses by a student, without having to arbitrarily assign a letter of censure. This record would be destroyed when a student graduates or leaves UMass.

The record would, according to Effman, be used solely for the purpose of knowing who is a first offender--no one else on or off campus would have access to it.

Another proposal by Effman was that the Administration should establish a loan bank so that students could take out small, interest-free loans if they had to have money, but could not get it for a number of days. He said that in many of the cases he has heard involving shoplifting from the University store, students have said they stole some article because they needed it, but did not have the money available to buy it. The establishment of this loan service would eliminate the need of money as a rationale to steal something.

Although the Student Judiciary has not always been as visible as the Student Senate, it has nevertheless played an important role in student self-government. Bruce Davidson, Chief Justice of Area West described the Student Judiciary as "a peer judging system which enables peers to oversee their community."

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

The office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN is on the second floor of the Student Union on the campus of the University of Massachusetts, zip code 01002. Telephones: 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), 549-1311 (business).

Second-class postage is paid in Amherst. THE DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes Monday through Friday during the academic year, except during vacation, exam periods or holidays. Accepted for mailing under the authority of an act of March 8, 1879, as amended by an act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $6.00 per semester or $10.00 per year.

MDC
NEWS HOTLINE
5-2550

NOW..YOUR CHOICE OF 5!
Showcase
Rt. 5-W. Sptld.
Cinemas 1-2-3-4-5
733-5131
MORE NEW SHOWS!
MORE NEW LOUNGER SEATS!
MORE NEW PARKING!
MATINEES DAILY...POPULAR PRICES
Adults $1.50 Mon thru Fri Matts
1 Man in the Wilderness GP
2 Maid in Sweden X
3 French Connection R
4 Jesus The Greatest Story Ever Told G
5 Scrooge G
ACRES FREE PARKING
ROCKER LOUNGERS
CHARGE YOUR TICKETS

Every Wednesday is
STAMPEDE NIGHT
A little bit of the Far West in New England.
Our cowgirls, in Western garb will serve you Western Steer Beef by the ounce — 45¢ per ounce for Prime Sirloin, 70¢ per ounce for Filet Mignon, and 35¢ per ounce for a Rib of Broiled Beef. Just tell the chef how thick of a slice you want, and how you like it done.
Keep our Friday Night Buffet in mind 6:30 to 9:00 p.m. $5.50 per person.
The Lord Jeffery
30 Boltwood Ave. AMHERST, MASS. 253-2576
RAOUL DIETRICH, INNKEEPER

Some of the Pakistani refugees in an Indian refugee camp. A year of war and floods have helped to do it. (Photo by Vera Etgion.)

News Analysis-Athletic Fees

Students Don't Get Returns

By HUGH OWEN

Whether or not UMass student's Athletic Fees are being used to the best interest of the students is a question which has come before the Student Senate.

UMass students paid $30 each for Athletic Fees in the fiscal year 1970-71. Altogether this made up $469,050.00 of the $575,050.00 Athletic Budget.

Only $96,000.00 of this budget went to General P.E., Intramurals, Free Play, and recreation. Students paid their fee but only got a very small amount back for their direct use.

Women comprise 44% of the student population, paid $30 for Athletic Fees like anyone else, but received only 2% of the total Athletic budget. This amount is not even enough to pay for uniforms, which the women must buy themselves.

The football stadium requires $80,000.00 for maintenance. The students also pay for this with their Athletic Fee. Before permission was given to hold concerts in the stadium, students paid for a stadium they only used for football games and commencement.

The football stadium can hold every UMass student. The Cage can only hold about one-fourth of the student population for basketball games. There is not even a place for the hockey team to play on campus. Players and fans must go to Amherst for the games.

Publicity uses up $5,400.00 of the budget. Football, basketball and hockey schedules are printed up and issued. How many people know when gymnastic, swimming, wrestling or skiing competition is held?

Some of the other disbursements of the Athletic are:

Intercollegiate Athletics	$205,000.00
Refunds	7,500.00
Capital Outlay	12,300.00
Contingency	5,500.00
Operating Expense	120,000.00
Cheerleaders and Band	5,700.00
Travel	20,000.00
Athletic injury care	17,000.00

There are some students who feel they are not equally represented in the distribution of these funds. The Student Senate wishes to change it so that students will be equally represented. To do this they have introduced a proposal that would give students control on the Athletic Council.

Larry Ladd, Vice President of the Student Senate, has said "Our goal will be to increase student influence over athletic policy and programs. It is students who participate in the program and students who pay for it, so it should be students who control it."

SW Center Organizes Women

The Southwest Women's Center, open a month last week, welcomes all University women, employees and students, to come to the center to talk with their sisters.

Located in the lobby of John Quincy Adams dormitory, the center is open every Tuesday and Thursday from 10 am to 10 pm.

According to Eilleen Stuart, student director, the center's aims are "to be focal point for organzing women in Southwest," and a place for all women: secretaries, janitors, employees of the Food Services, as well as students to just get together and talk.

The idea of a women's center was first conceived last spring in the Southwest 390 Colloquim "Sexuals in Contemporary Society" and was first set up in the office of Jacqueline Lehany, Program Coordinator in JQA. This November, the center was moved to its own room, and was allocated funds by the Southwest Assembly, providing for a salaried director's position.

Apart from the student director, the other women who staff the center are interested volunteers. Some are teachers and students of the Southwest 390 course and some are students from a course "Female Awareness" taught by Alice Sargeant of the School of Education. Alice is available for counseling on Wednesday afternoons and Fridays by appointment. "Counseling for women, by women, is very important," commented the student director.

Besides this program, there are numerous other projects offered. A "consciousness-raising" meeting will take place Thursday, December 16, in the 12th floor lounge of Coolidge dormitory.

A monthly newsletter is being published for the first time this week, and contributions of essays or poems are welcome.

Future plans include a gay women's caucus, which will mainly be a support group for gay women. Open meetings, which will start second semester, will be a place "where straight and gay women can interact," stated Eilleen Stuart. Another program, although still in the talk stage, is a black women's caucus. The people at the center also hope to sponsor some speakers second semester who would talk on such topics as women in literature and women in sports.

In addition, the women's center has information on birth control, pregnancy, and abortion. Five College course listings of women's studies offered next semester are also available. The center boasts a library of books about women, ranging from classics like Jane Austin's "Pride and Prejudice" to contemporaries like "Sisterhood is Powerful" by Robin Morgan.

Although very happy with the response received in only one month, Eilleen Stuart hopes that more women will come to the center for counseling, information, or just informal chats.

SCREW Awards Help Raise Funds

By ED SLOAN

S.C.R.E.W. is a word typically associated with negative connotations, but UMass' service fraternity, APO, is trying to break with tradition, at least for this week in the Campus Center. S.C.R.E.W. is their acronym for the Student Committee to Reappraise our Educator's Weltanschaung.

The program's essential feature according to S.C.R.E.W.'s project chairman, Steve Snyder, is designed to promote spirit on the UMass campus while simultaneously raising money to sponsor an American child through Christian Children's Fund Inc. The award and the award-giving is a variation of the Harvard Lampoon's annual satirizations for worst actor, worst actress, etc.

In a similar vein, a one-foot mounted wooden screw award will be given nominees who the UMass campus body thinks that the "screws should be put to." A vote can be bought for one penny with no limit on the number of votes per person.

Snyder said, however, "It is by no means intended to deliberately hold up to ridicule or to attack any individual or the faculty as a whole. No professor's name will be used unless we have his permission." The chairman emphasized that the S.C.R.E.W. award is intended as a gigantic put-on: "good, clean college humor and all that."

Nevertheless, some professors refused the invitation to have their names put on the ballot. Snyder conceded that these profesoors were not receptive to the idea that their names would be associated with "this" word. "Despite the worthiness of the cause, they expressed the sentiment that students casting their ballots did not always vote in the true and humorous spirit contemplated," Snyder said.

Program Offered For Med Schools Abroad

Senior or graduate students who are considering attending a recognized medical school overseas for the Fall 1972 session, may be interested in the European Medical Students Placement Service, Inc. of Albertson, N.Y. They offer a program to aid and assist a limited number of qualified students to secure admission and achieve successful adaptation to a recognized European medical school.

Their Comprehensive program consists of the following:

1) Intensive 8 week orientation course, attended with other American students, to help the student adapt to the new country, culture and school environment.

2) Intensive 8 week special practical and language course, programmed for the American Student entering a European medical school.

European Medical Students Placement Service, Inc., will arrange lodging for the student during this 8 week period.

Students who will have received their degree on or before June 1972, can write for an application form and brochure to European Medical Students Placement Service, Inc., 3 McKinley Avenue, Albertson, N.Y. 11507.

There is no charge for application forms and subsequent interview.

We have the area's largest selection of Jerseys, Knit Tops, Sweaters.
Just Perfect for Christmas
WEAR HOUSE

Kodak
• SALES & REPAIRS CAMERAS ACCESSORIES • FILM PROCESSING
LANG'S PHOTO
• AGFA • NIKON • MINOLTA • PRAKTICA • SAWYER • FAMICONI • BRAUN . . and others
BANKAMERICARD
STUDIO
• RENTALS OF STILL & MOVIE EQUIPMENT
• SPECIALISTS IN CUSTOM PHOTO FINISHING (COLOR & BLACK & WHITE)
COMPLETE STOCK OF DARKROOM EQUIPMENT & MATERIALS
"Want To Learn Photography? JOIN OUR CLUB!"
We Have the Service You've Been Looking for 253-3148
460 West St., South Amherst - Route 16 and 183 No. Pleasant St. (next to Whole Wheat Trading Co.)

KNOCKED FLAT...
...BY HIGH AUTO INSURANCE COSTS?
get the lowest legal rates for all vehicles and all coverages with easy monthly payments
NOW'S THE TIME FOR 1972 AUTO INSURANCE!
TKO YOUR INSURANCE PROBLEMS with...
TEKOA INSURANCE AGENCY
Avoid downtown Sptfd. parking headaches in WEST SPRINGFIELD at 366 MEMORIAL AVE. Opp. Century Shopping Plaza! Free parking for over 100 cars!
WESTFIELD 10 BROAD ST. Next to P.O.
NORTHAMPTON 160 PLEASANT ST. Opp. N'hamp Jr. College
FAIRVIEW 1847 MEMORIAL DR On North-South Hwy.
EVERETT J. O'CONNOR INSURANCE AGENCY
HOLYOKE 205 HIGH ST. . . Next to Holyoke Nat'l. Bank

In The Nation And The World

East Pakistani Capital Under Tight Siege

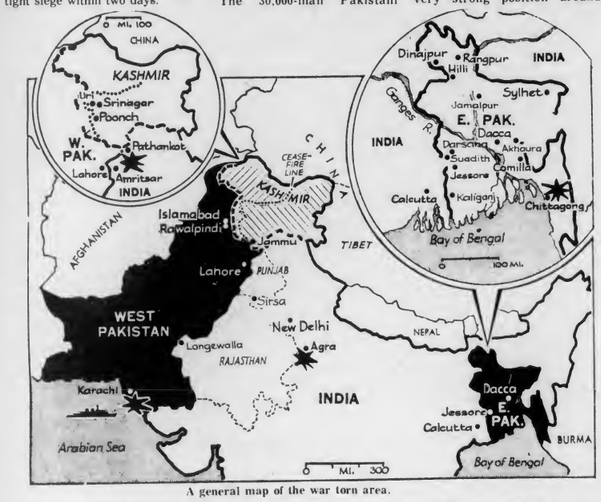
(THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)
Indian soldiers backed by two separate helicopter assaults are closing in on Dacca and an Indian spokesman claimed the East Pakistani capital will be under tight siege within two days.

Infantry columns advanced Monday from the northwest, the north and the east, the spokesman said, battling to within 15 miles of the beleaguered city at some points.

The 30,000-man Pakistani garrison at Dacca has been buttressed by straggling soldiers falling back from Indian victories on the way to the city, he said, but added: "There is no doubt that within 24 or 48 hours we will be in a very strong position around Dacca."

Radio Pakistan reported the helicopter-born Indian troops descended into battle at Tangail, 50 miles northwest of Dacca, and Narsingdhi, about 30 miles northeast. A Pakistani spokesman in Rawalpindi claimed defenders took on the Indians and fighting raged at both points.

But Indians in New Delhi and Calcutta contended the advancing Indian troops had already crushed the defenses at Narsingdhi and were continuing toward Dacca. Briefing maps in Calcutta indicated some Indians were as close as six miles from the city but spokesmen refused to pinpoint their positions.



With correspondents unable to visit the front, there was no way to verify the claims. Lt. Gen. A.A.K.Niazi, commander of Pakistan's forces in the east, rejected any idea of surrender as demanded in a fresh appeal by Gen. Sam Manekshaw, the Indian chief of staff.

A government spokesman said Manekshaw sent his third surrender appeal in a week to the Pakistani leadership in the East.

U.S. policy came under attack in Calcutta and New Delhi, where demonstrators shouted their opposition to President Nixon, President Agha Mohammed Yahya Khan of Pakistan and Chinese Mao Tse-tung.

China is a firm Pakistani ally in the war and Washington has blamed India as the principal aggressor. Police reported the anti-American demonstrators in Calcutta smashed windows and set fire to furniture in the Pan American World Airways office.

An Indian Foreign Ministry spokesman said India had detected chinese troop movements designed "to show political solidarity with Pakistan." But a Defense Ministry spokesman said the reports were incomplete and it was too early to tell whether the information on Chinese troops was "a plant or a fact."

A general map of the war torn area.

Soviets Declare Cease Fire Unacceptable

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) - The Soviet Union declared Monday night that the new U.S. proposal for an Indian-Pakistan cease-fire was "totally unacceptable."

Denouncing the U.S. approach as "wrong and unrealistic," Soviet Ambassador Jacob A. Malik made it clear he was ready to cast his third veto in nine days to block Security Council action on a cease-fire.

Malik plunged into the council debate after India and the Societ Union had sought unsuccessfully to win a hearing for Bangla Desh representative.

Malik plunged into the council debate after India and the Societ Union had sought unsuccessfully to win a hearing for a Bangla Desh representative. Malik contended a political settlement in East Pakistan must be linked by any ceast-fire appeal.

The move to bring a representative of the Pakistani insurgents into the discussion was overruled by the council president, Foreign Minister S.A.J. Pratt of Sierra Leone. He held that the existence of Bangla Desh as a state had not been established.

Bangla Desh is the name used by the East Pakistani insurgents. India and Bhutan have recognized the rebel organization as a government.

As the council discussion took place, Justice Abu Sayeed Chowdhury, a Bangla Desh representative, waited in a nearby lounge for the proposed invitation.

Soviet Ambassador Jacob A. Malik proposed that he be heard as an individual with special competence and not as a representative of a government.

The Argentine representative, Charlos Ortiz de Rozas, noted, however, that Chowdhury had already formally requested to be heard as leader of the Bandla Desh delegation to the United Nations. He said the council would be setting a dangerous precedent if it invited the representative of a secessionist movement.

The procedural debate delayed action on the U.S. proposal.

Consultationa among the five big powers during the morning failed to produce a compromise which might have averted a showdown on a U.S. resolution similar to one already vetoed by Moscow.

U.S. Ambassador George Bush was reported to be determined to force a vote in the 15-nation council despite Soviet threats to invoke the veto for the third time in nine days.

Bush tried unsuccessfully to get a vote during the early morning hours, but he yielded finally to pressure for additional consultations and agreed to defer action.

Societ Ambassador Jacob A. Malik accused Bush at the Sunday night emergency session of being more interested in getting another Russian veto than in finding a formula to end the war.

Before the Sunday meeting was adjourned Malik made it clear that he would not hesitate to use the veto if Bush insisted on a vote. It was generally conceded by council members privately that the Soviet Union would not permit a cease-fire appeal until India was ready militarily.

India had in effect rejected the earlier cease-fire call by the General Assembly by laying down its own conditions. These were that Pakistan must withdraw its forces from East Pakistan and reach a settlement with the Bangla Desh, the name for the East Pakistani insurgent.

Peace At Last

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)- The state police have appointed John Spottswood, a University of Maryland senior, Special Advisor on Student-State Police Relations for the state of Maryland.

The appointment was in recognition of Mr. Spottsweed's efforts in the past years to promote mutual understanding between the two groups.

Mr. Spottswood initiated a program in which policemen are invited to his fraternity house for coffee and students are invited to ride in state police cars.

(Reprinted from the New York Times p. 67, 1/12/71

ROOM TO MOVE
Campus Drug Drop-In Center
CALL 5-0400
24 HOURS A DAY
7 DAYS A WEEK

Pipes of Peace for family use
MIZAUR'S MERCANTILE
9 E. Pleasant St
Amherst, Mass.
NEXT TO AMHERST TOWERS

WTOY Presents New England Premiere.

FILMS BY JOHN LENNON YOKO ONO
Exclusive Screenings
This Wednesday and Thursday nights only.
Dec. 15 and 16 - 7:30 and 9:30
Campus Center Aud.
Students $1.75
Gen. Admission $2.00
From Ganesa Films
Produced by JOKO Film Productions

SKI CLUB MEETING
Speaker from Mt. Tom
Room Payments Due for Intersession Trips
Tues., Dec. 14 at 8 p.m. Maher Aud.

In Brief...

S.Vietnamese Paratroopers Make Further Penetrations of Cambodia

SAIGON (AP) - South Vietnamese paratroopers and armored units reached the southern edge of the Chup rubber plantation Monday in their deepest penetration of eastern Cambodia in nearly a year.

Leading elements of the three-pronged attack were reported three miles from the town of Chup, on strategic Highway 7. Field officers said their initial objective would be to seize the town, 35 miles inside Cambodia and 110 miles northwest of Saigon.

60% Fail Safety Evaluation

WASHINGTON (AP) - In the first six months of operation of new federal job-safety agency has cited 60 per cent of the firms it inspected for alleged health or safety violations, the Labor Department said Monday.

Concentrating its fledgling efforts in high-hazard firms and industries, it inspected 9,300 establishments and issued 5,536 citations calling for $361,692 in proposed fines, most of which have been paid without an appeal by the violators.

In addition the department said in a report sent to Congress Monday, another 20 per cent of the firms were found to have minor hazards that did not result in citations. Only 20 per cent were found to be violation-free.

Congress Causes Pentagon to Over indulge by One Billion

WASHINGTON (AP) - Deputy Defense Secretary David Packard said Monday on his last day in office that congressional opposition to closing military bases prevents the Pentagon from saving $1 billion a year.

"There's no question we could make savings if we could take actions without constraints," said the multimillionaire California electronics manufacturer who has been know for his candidness and independence of thought during his three years at the Pentagon.

Asked what kind of constraints were imposed on the Pentagon, Packard said, "Political." It was a reference to the hostility of congressmen to Pentagon plans to shut down military facilities within their districts.

Assassination Opens Wounds

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) - The assassination of a senator set off a blazing row among rival groups of gunmen today and brought stiff British pressure on the Irish republic to crack down on guerrillas.

Sen. John Barnhill, 63, was shot down in his Strabane home Sunday night be assassins who then dynamited the house. The guerrillas apparently fled to sanctuary across the nearby border into the Irish republic.

In the British Parliament, Sir Alec Douglas-Home, the foreign secretary, promised "urgent representations" to the Irish republic for action against gunmen operating openly over the border.

Nixon-Pompidou Agree To Correct Monetary Problems

ANGRA DO HEROISMO, Azores (AP) - President Nixon spent five hours talking with President Georges Pompidou of France on Monday. They were reported to have agreed on the urgency of reforming the international monetary system.

Treasury Secretary John B. Connally told a news conference he hoped Nixon's round of summit talks with allied leaders will lead to a monetary solution "in a reasonable time thereafter."

Connally reported that Nixon and Pompidou spent considerable time in their private sessions discussing the monetary upheaval triggered when Nixon last August halted, at least temporarily, sales of gold to foreign governments at $35 an ounce.

Nixon's press secretary, Ronald L. Ziegler, said the two chief executives agreed to begin their final session Tuesday 1 1/2 hours ahead of their original schedule, in the hope of promoting broader mutual understanding about key issues.

A French spokesman at a separate news conference said both presidents presented their respective views and he added: "Tomorrow they will try to find ways and means to get out of the current impasse."

Connally spent most of the day closeted with French Finance Minister Valery Giscard D'Estaing, discussing monetary and trade negotions.

Connally said, "We have made considerable progress," not in terms of reaching an alternate solution, but "in getting issues out on the table" for detailed discussion.

He said the French have not mentioned any particular amount by which they would want to see the dollar devalued as part of a settlement.

THE PRESIDENT

But noting that finance ministers from the 10 richest non-Communist countries will meet in Washington within a week to continue their search for a monetary agreement, Connally said:

"I think we have made some progress that will be helpful in the next meetings of the Group of Ten."

Nixon eased into summit talks by discussion international affairs before grappling with economic policy.

Nixon was said to have explained in detail his upcoming trip to Peking in February and discussed the Indian-Pakistan conflict, the situation in Southeast Asia and possibilities for a European security conference.

French sources said Nixon discussed at length the U.S. objectives of his trip to China.

Supreme Court Upholds Poor Defendent's Rights

By DON McLEOD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court ruled Monday that the right of indigents to the materials necessary for their defense and appeal is as binding in minor cases as it is for those accused of major crimes.

The court struck down an Illinois Supreme Court rule that trial transcripts must be given free to poor defendants appealing felony convictions but not to those fighting lesser charges.

But the high court reaffirmed its position that in most cases only a record of sufficient completeness and not necessarily a verbatim transcript must be provided.

In a North Carolina case, the court rejected by a 5-2 vote the appeal of an indigent convicted of murder who claimed his defense at the retrial was hindered for lack of a transcript.

But in the Illinois case, the court held it is the need for the transcript and not the defendant's wealth or the seriousness of his offense which determines his right to one.

"The size of the defendant's pocketbook bears no more relationship to his guilt or innocence in a nonfelony than in a felony case," Justice William J. Brennan Jr. wrote for a unanimous court.

In the leading decision, the court said the city of Chicago was wrong in denying a trial transcript to a youth arrested during an antiwar demonstration and who said he did not have the $300 to buy a transcript for his appeal.

Jack L. Mayer, who was a third-year medical student acting as a medic at the 1969 Chicago demonstration, said the denial of free transcripts in nonfelony cases discriminates against poor people.

The Supreme Court agreed, but it specified that a literal transcript is not automatically necessary in every case.

"We emphasize, however, that the state must provide a full verbatim record where that is necessary to assure the indigent as effective an appeal as would be available to the defendent with resources to pay his own way," the court said.

Chicago had asked the court to allow exception to minor-offense cases.

The court ruled also 5-2 Monday that a longshoreman injured by dock equipment cannot bring suit under maritime law unless he was actually engaged in loading or unloading a ship at the time of the accident.

Chinese Free Two Captive Americans

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two Americans crossed into Hong Kong Monday and headed for the United States aboard a U.S. military plane. President Nixon welcomed "the act of clemency" by China and expressed pleasure the pair would be able to spend Christmas with their families.

Richard Fecteau, 43, a civilian Army employe from Lynn, Mass., captured during the Korean War, and Mary Ann Harbert, who was captured while sailing on a yacht in 1968, crossed the border early in the afternoon. Miss Harbert will be 26 on Dec. 27.

Peking also announced that the life sentence of John T. Downey, 41, New Britain, Conn., had been commuted to five years from the time of commutation, believed recently.

The Communists said Miss Harbert's companion when she was arrested while sailing in Chinese territorial waters north of Hong Kong on April 21, 1968, Gerlad Ross McLaughlin, committed suicide on March 7, 1969.

Until the New China News Agency announced that Miss Harbert was being released, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Harbert of Menlo Park, Calif., had given their daughter up for dead. Harbert, a civil engineer, said his daughter left San Francisco for Hong Kong, to meet McLaughlin, a family friend. McLaughlin had bought a yacht in the british crown colony, and Miss Harbert planned to help him sail the craft home, Harbert said.

White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, with Nixon in the Azores for the meeting with French President Georges Pompidou, foreign affairs adviser Henry A. Kissinger brought appeals on behalf of the imprisoned Americans from Nixon to Peking and Pompidou to Chou En-lai.

dvp
JOYCE LADNER
"Black Women and Women's Liberation"
Wednesday, 8 p.m. SBA 120

SANTA'S HELPER

JUST PERFECT
Doubleknit Slacks
Heavy Corduroys
Imported Sweaters and Turtlenecks
Knit Shirts & Tops
...and the area's largest selection of jeans
NICE THINGS FOR EVERY BODY
WEAR-HOUSE Male
SLACKS JEANS
201 North Pleasant Street, Amherst

Future University Report

Trustees Should Stick To Main Issues

(Ed. note-this is the fifth of a series of excerpts from the future University Report. This and the following ones will deal with those portions of the report considered important to the future condition of the University community.)

In the body of this report we have recommended many changes: some gradual, some immediate, some modest, some very ambitious, some for developing new attitudes, some for new bricks and mortar. We have urged the University to grow with a new image and a new role. None of this, obviously, will happen by itself. The University's evolution in the last decade has required major organizational changes. To build the public university of the future further mechanisms for change must be created.

The problem of the seventies, however, is in many ways far more difficult than that of the sixties. The size, complexity and diversity of the University of Massachusetts in 1971 make changing it a far more demanding task than was the case in 1961. The University is now, after all, among the 50 largest universities in the country. With three independent campuses and more possible, as well as satellite centers, and with the rapidly growing diversity of research, public service and study programs, the difficulties involved in giving a sense of direction and mission to the University are humbling.

Decision-making In The University

There are a number of places within a university in which decision-making power reposes. Ultimate power within the institution is held by the Board of Trustees. There are also campus-wide units of governance which make some decisions, and there are clusters of power in departments and schools within the campuses. Cutting across the power of the various collegial bodies at the various levels is the day-to-day administrative decision-making power of the President, Chancellors, deans and department chairmen.

The appropriate distribution of power within universities has of course been a central issue of the last few years, and the controversy has brought substantial change. At the University of Massachusetts and throughout the country students are represented at all levels in ways they never were before. Faculty, too, are involved in areas of decision-making previously not within their ambit.

Nonetheless, we believe there are a variety of further changes that could enable the University to respond more effectively to new educational issues as they arise.

Board of Trustees

As the University becomes larger and more complex, the question inevitably arises whether the Trustees can continue to govern-in a sense, manage-the University in the same fairly detailed way that they have through the past decade of development. The Trustees have been a remarkably conscientious body. The appointed members, particularly, have worked hard, coming not only to monthly meetings of the Board, but to frequent Standing Committee meetings as well.

When the University was smaller, the Trustees were in effect both planners and managers. They planned for the Boston campus and the Medical School, anticipated the need for a University-wide President and Systems Office, and at the same time concerned themselves with a myriad of details concerning the day-to-day operation of the institution.

Our main recommendation for the operation of the Board, above all others, is that the University will be best served during the seventies by a Board which concentrates on major policy issues, leaving details of elaboration and management to administrators and other decision-making bodies within the institution. The capacity of the Board to make intelligent, far-sighted judgments on questions like admissions policy, tuition, the future of the Columbia Point project, further development at Worcester, and basic academic direction will be enhanced by the extent to which it takes the time to give full and mature consideration to these issues. That time will be available only if the Board is able to keep itself from taking time to consider questions like fees for the use of meeting rooms at the Amherst Campus Center or transfers between petty cash funds.

We realize there are statutory questions about the extent of formal delegation the board can engage in. But the Board already stays out of dozens, even hundreds, of decisions that are made within the University daily. This de facto process of self-denial needs to become more consciously selective and disciplined.

Related to the objective of freeing time for basic policy deliberation is the standing committee structure of the Board. Under the 1966 by-laws of the Board, it has six standing committees, including the Executive Committee. At least six Trustees must serve on each one, so each Trustee is on two or three standing committees. The committees have been quite effective, because some of the Trustees have been unusually dedicated. For the future, however, we think the Trustees' ability to function as a policy-making body would be improved by changing the standing committee structure to reduce the number of Trustees on each committee and supplement them with non-trustees, like the visiting committees which many universities have.

This kind of approach could help bring a highly useful outside perspective and criticism to bear on the University, and greatly broaden the information base on which the Board as a whole relies for its deliberations. Such an approach could also serve as a departure point for creating ad hoc committees to deal with particular issues. And it could be a vehicle for involving faculty and students to the people of the state. We are mindful that such an approach may engender controversy and even demagoguery, but we think it will more surely ensure an ultimate mutuality of understanding between the University and the people.

Finally, we believe the ex officio membership of the Board should be re-examined. With the recent reorganization of the state government, there is a serious question whether the present ex officio structure, including the Commissioners of Education, Agriculture, Public Health, and Mental Health, is still appropriate.

Campus Governance

Governance on campus also reposes at the department level and, at Amherst, in the dormitories. Considerable effort has already been made to involve students on departmental committees of various kinds at both Amherst and Boston, and somwhat more responsibility has been decentralized to student urge that steps be taken to make them campus-wide in their application.

If students should have greater representation, there is also a question whether the views of faculty are adequately solicited, at least at Amherst. The conscientiousness of faculty and the responsiveness of administrative at Boston have combined to ensure that the faculty's views are very well known there, but the size more directly in providing information and ideas to the Board.

The Report suggests that the Trustees stick to making major decisions and leave the minor aspects of running the University to each campuses administrators.

For the Board to function effectively it must also have effective research and informational support. The suggested standing committee changes will help here, but it is essentially the Systems Office to which the Board must look for the formulation of its agenda and for the information it needs. One reason why the Board has set up to now been unable to free itself from some of the extraneous detail is because the Systems Office has not had the staff capacity to sift and select adequately among the many items which percolate up through the administrative hierarchy of the campuses. This has begun to change on the financial-budgetry side, and the President's Council has helped the President in improving the agenda determination process. Nonetheless, far more needs to be done to ensure the Trustees that their time will be conserved by careful research and evaluation of the items that come before them.

If the Board should endeavor to be more oriented to dealing with major policy issues, it should also be a more publicly visible body. The law requires that all state boards and commissions meet in public, with some limited exceptions as when what is at stake is "the public security, the financial interests of the Commonwealth or its political subdivisions of such authority, or the reputation of any person."

The Board has certainly not disobeyed the law, but our impression is that it has done less than it might have to hear directly the views of those whose lives its decisions affect-students, faculty, residents of Amherst, Columbia Point, Dorchester, Savin Hill, South Boston, and Worcester, and citizens of the Commonwealth generally. Some of this kind of exposure would be facilitated by the standing committee changes we have suggested, but we urge the Trustees to consider other ways to make themselves more accessible

Not surprisingly, the subject of governance on the campuses of the University has been the subject of considerable recent discussion and some action. At Amherst a series of faculty/student/administration efforts have produced a draft constitution for a unicameral campus-wide senate, the ultimate fate of which is still uncertain. At Boston such a campus-wide senate is now in temporary existence until governance mechanisms for Colleges I and II are developed and put into effect. Worcester is still small enough to have the luxury of "town meeting" style governance.

We find the draft Amherst constitution to be a constructive document. It recognizes that students have an interest in the decision-making process, and that the extent of that interest varies from issue to issue, being greater with reference to issues like dormitory living and less but still extent with reference to curriculum and academic policy.

Universities are complicated institutions to characterize for purposes of deriving an ideal system of governance. They are not polities like a municipality. Their constituent elements have no inherent moral or constitutional "rights," and their constituencies are not similarly situated as the citizens of a democracy theoretically are. What is clear is that faculty, students and administrators all have interests, and we believe sound educational and administrative policy suggests that the interests of all be represented in the campus decision-making process. The difficulty is to examine the balance of interest on an issue-by-issue basis, and to develop accordingly an issue-by-issue balance of power and responsibility. In some areas students should have effective control, attempts this balancing process for the over-all membership of the Senate and for each of its committees. One can disagree with the particular ratios chosen, but we believe the basic effort was in the right direction. We trust that consideration and and growth rate of Amherst have complicated the situation on that campus. The administration there has begun to move to engage in greater informal consultation with faculty on relevant issues, and we hope that activity will be expanded.

Role of the President

The President is also ,obviously, a key force in the decision-making structure of the University. Yet his role and the determinants of his effectiveness are far less rooted than the "legislative" bodies in particular attributes of structure. Structure is meaningful, to be sure enough staff, a program budgeting system, and self-study and evaluation mechanisms are structure items that will help the President carry out his responsibilities more effectively.

But the President's role is enormously varied, especially in a multi-campus system. He is part leader, part diplomat, part broker, part manager, part negotiator, part cajoler, part commander, part spokesman, and part of many other things as well.

To the public he is spokesman for the University and for much higher education in the State as well. His leadership will help determine the direction and extent of public support not just of the University but also of much of the rest of higher education. If the University is to be re-created as a "university of the public interest," in William Arrowsmith's phrase, it is the President more than anyone else who will have to lead the way in persuading the Commonwealth that an investment in the direction is wise.

Within the University' the full range of descriptive worlds listee above is applicable. Much of the University is not his to command directly even with Trustee approval, at least not without great potential cost to the future of the institution and his own future effectiveness.

Major Recommendations

The most important of the Reports recommendations concerning organizational change are summarized below.

Board of Trustees

The role of the Boaru of Trustees should be re-examined to orient it more to broad issues of policy.

Campus Governance

Governance on campus should include students in the exercise of authority and responsibility in accordance with their degree of legitimate interest in each set of issues.

Self Evaluation

Self-study and evaluation staffs should be created in the President's Office and on the campuses.

Program Budgeting

A program budgeting system should be instituted.

Budget Increase

The budget for fiscal 1973 should be increased by the order of magnitude of $6 to $7 million to reflect the recommendations made in this report.

Cooperation

The University should take a greater initiative in helping to create new cooperative efforts with the other parts of the public higher education system and with private institutions, and should join in seeking to clarify the difference in mission as between the various kinds of institutions.

School Of Ed. To Examine Pass-Fail Grading

This series of AAHE research reports is made possible by a grant from the W. K. Kellogg Foundation. The goal of the series is to summarize the thrust of current research on selected topics and to speculate on what this research implies for future practice.

Coordinator of the series is K. Patricia Cross, director of college programs, Educational Testing Service, and research educator, Center for Research and Development in Higher Education, University of California, Berkeley.

Questions concerning the article--sources, data, and the like--should go to the author, Jonathan R. Warren, research psychologist, Educational Testing Service, 1947 Center Street, Berkeley, California 94704. The article is condensed from a state-of-the-art paper by Mr. Warren which will be published soon by the ERIC Clearinghouse on Higher Education, George Washington University, One Dupont Circle, Washington, D. C. 20036.

Copies of Research Report Number 3 may be ordered from the Publications Department, American Association for Higher Education, One Dupont Circle, Suite 780, Washington, D. C. 20035, at the following rates: single copies free; 2-50 copies 5¢ each; over 50 copies 3¢ each.

Grades are considered necessary to prod students to study, to guide their learning, to reward those who have done well, to keep a check on academic standards, and to sort students for later selection to graduate schools and jobs (15, 20). Grades are also considered a deterrent to effective learning, a cause of cynical game-playing in place of productive study, and an inducement to docile plodding rather than imaginative, independent thinking. They are said to make adversarics of faculty and students instead of collaborators in learning and to contribute to a stifling academic rigidity (15, 16). The extent and intensity of views for and against grades probably account for the large number of experimental modifications of grading systems now going on, for the limited nature of most of them, and for the great apprehension that has accompanied the introduction of new approaches.

About half the colleges and universities in the country have introduced some modification into their grading system in the past five years (25). Students and faculty members have pushed hard for the change and spent countless committee hours in deliberation. The most common consequence has been the introduction of a pass-fail option that permits students to take one course per term on a pass-fail basis if the course is not in the student's major field. Students who choose to use the option--typically about half the student body--complete their college careers with about 10 percent of their courses graded pass-fail. Yet graduate schools, individually and in associations, have expressed alarm over the threat to their selection processes if the pass-fail method is permitted to spread.

Present concerns over grading tend to have two unexpected characteristics. First, they arise from a large body of firmly held opinion and little objective evidence. Second, relatively unimportant issues are given great attention while far more fundamental ones are almost ignored.

The first characteristic is clear from the volume of literature on grades that consists mainly of summaries of opinion and broad inferences from questionable observations. That students taking one pass-fail course give more attention to their other courses, for example, leads to the inference that multilevel grading is necessary to make students work. Observations of how students actually spend their time or of what they accomplish under different forms of grading have been rare.

The neglect of fundamental issues while lesser ones are pursued is evident in the band-wagon spread of pass-fail grading. Its effect is to remove the distinctions between several levels of acceptable performance, while adding nothing to a grading system widely acknowledged to be inadequate. Tinkering with the machinery of grading leaves the more fundamantal assumptions underlying its purposes unexamined. Grades are intended, for example, to be useful descriptions of student accomplishment. But is the certification of accomplishment an appropriate function for teaching institutions? This question has received less attention than whether performance should be rated on two or five levels.

Some other important issues that have been lost in the concern with the external form of grades are: How well do grades, of whatever form, serve the purposes for which they are intended? Do those purposes merit the enormous expenditures of time and energy involved in grading? Are alternative ways of accomplishing the same purposes available? What are the unintended consequences of grading practices for students, for individual colleges, and for society at large? What do grades represent?

To Return Questionaires..

Completed questionnaires may be left in collection boxes at the Information Desk on the Concourse level of the Campus Center; the cigarette and candy counter of the Student Union; the ground floor of John Adams tower in Southwest; or in Room 121 in the School of Education building.

For further information concerning the questionnaire, please contact Chuck McMillan at the School of Ed, telephone 545-0236. The results of the questionnaire will be made public through the Daily Collegian.

Clip

School of Ed. Questionaire

Clip

The Faculty Senate of the University has requested that the School of Education prepare a report based on the School's experiences in using the pass/fail grading system.

The School of Education, in circulating this questionnaire to all undergraduates and graduates, is attempting to go beyond the Faculty Senate directive and deal in depth with the problems raised by grades and grading systems in general. The questionnaire is designed to shed light on such questions as: What is the relation between grades and learning? What are the purposes of a grading system? What grading system best serves your needs as students?

We will appreciate your assistance in responding to this questionnaire. It should require no more than about 10 minutes of your time.

Please fill it out and return to 1) School of Education, Rm 121, or 2) The Information Table in the Campus Center, or 3) the cigarette/candy counter of the old Student Union, or 4) the ground floor of John Adams tower in Southwest.

Grad student ——— 1st year ——— 2nd year ——— 3rd year ———
Undergrad ——— year ———
Department ———
How many pass/fail courses have you taken? ———
How many graded (A,B,C, etc. or A,AB,B,BC, etc.) courses have you taken? ———

A. Four Learning Objectives are listed below.
On the left of the list, please rank (where 1 - highest) those learning objectives that are most important to you in your courses. Do not rank those you consider unimportant.
At the right of the list indicate a grading system that you think best encourages each of the ranked learning objectives.
Use the following key: A - A,B,C,D,F, or A,AB,B,BC...; PF - Pass/Fail; CN - Credit/No Record; 0 - Other (Please specify)

——— a. Attain subject matter competency (acquistion of information). ———
——— b. Develop critical thinking processes (Intellectual skills). ———
——— c. Develop interest in the subject matter, for self-motivation. ———
——— d. Discover your own needs, seek to facilitate self-growth, self-fulfillment. ———
——— e. To gain admission to graduate school or employment ———
——— f. Other (Please specify) ———

B. Grading systems have mutiple purposes. Nine purposes are listed below.
On the left, rank (where 1 - highest) any purposes that you consider important. Do not rank those purposes that you consider unimportant.
On the right, indicate a grading system that best facilitates each of the ranked purposes, (they may differ).
Use the following key: A - A,B,C,D,F or A,AB,B,BC...;
PF - Pass/Fail; CN - Credit/No Record; O - Other (Please specify).

——— ———
——— a. To increase learning ———
——— b. To reward those who perform well. ———
——— c. To encourage exploration of new areas. ———
——— d. To motivate students to enjoy and self-direct their learning. ———
——— e. To motivate students to achieve. ———
——— f. To facilitate student-faculty interaction. ———
——— g. To maintain academic standards. ———
——— h. To help in selection by graduate schools and employers. ———
——— i. To provide a record of achievements. ———
——— j. Other (Please specify). ———

C. The School of Education is now using a total Pass/Fail grading system. The University is using a partial Pass/Fail system. For any of the purposes you consider important, rate how effectively you believe the pass/fail system is operating in your own courses. (Note: do not rate those purposes you consider unimportant).

	Degree of Effectiveness
	Very	Fairly	Barely	Ineffective
a. To increase learning	———	———	———	———
b. To reward those who perform well.	———	———	———	———
c. To encourage exploration of new areas.	———	———	———	———
d. To motivate students to enjoy and self-direct their learning.	———	———	———	———
e. To motivate students to achieve.	———	———	———	———
f. To facilitate student-faculty interaction.	———	———	———	———
g. To maintain academic standards.	———	———	———	———
h. To help in selection by graduate schools and employers.	———	———	———	———
i. To provide a record of achievements.	———	———	———	———
j. Other (Specify)	———	———	———	———

D. Rate how effectively you believe the A,B,C,D,F, or A,AB,B,BC... system is operating in your own courses. (Note: do not rate those purposes that you consider unimportant.)

	Degree of Effectiveness
	Very	Fairly	Barely	Ineffective
a. To increase learning	———	———	———	———
b. To reward those who perform well.	———	———	———	———
c. To encourage exploration of new areas.	———	———	———	———
d. To motivate students to enjoy and self-direct their learning.	———	———	———	———
e. To motivate students to achieve.	———	———	———	———
f. To facilitate student-faculty interaction.	———	———	———	———
g. To maintain academic standards.	———	———	———	———
h. To help in selection by graduate schools and employers.	———	———	———	———
i. To provide a record of achievements.	———	———	———	———
j. Other (Specify)	———	———	———	———

E. Check which grading system comes closest to your preference for the University of Massachusetts.
——— a. percentages (100, 99, 98, etc.)
——— b. A, AB, B, BC, C, CD, D, F
——— c. A,B,C,D,F
——— d. Pass/Fail
——— e. Credit/ No Record
——— f. Other (Specify)

F. If, when all is said and done, it boils down to a choice between total P/F or total A,AB,B,BC... which system would you prefer?
——— P/F
——— A,AB,B,BC,C,CD...

G. If there is a choice between total Pass/Fail and total Credit/No Record, which system would you prefer?
——— P/F
——— CR/NR

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — Nathan Gorenstein
BUSINESS MANAGER — James Gold
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Gib Fullerton
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR — Bob Nesti
EDITORIAL — Ann Gurnett
SPORTS — Earle Barroll
DARKROOM — Alan Chapman, Jim Lavrakas
AD LAYOUT — Jerry Lazar

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.
Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

"That Extra One Hasn't Exactly Cleared The Air"

©1971 HERBLOCK

Cracked Mirrors

By DIETRICH SCHWANITZ

The violent reaction to my article in DIE ZEIT reprinted by the Daily Collegian under the headline Education for Sale made it plain to me that my first impressions of UMass must have been mistaken. I am now convinced that I should have asked those with a more intimate acquaintance with the scene what my first impressions should have been.

Nevertheless I feel bound to comment on some misunderstandings characteristic of a reaction that was elegantly phrased in Professor Aczel's letter to the Editor on Friday, Dec. 10.

The article was aimed at a portion of the European public whose intense interest in American affairs reveals something of the way the Europeans view themselves. Thus the fact, that the image of America among German and European intellectuals has undergone a drastic change in the last five years is part of the history of European ideology. The shift of attitude of journals and newspapers like DIE ZEIT is a case in point. So I should like to suggest that my critics should not only be dismayed about my writing such a perverse article on UMass but also about the fact that DIE ZEIT printed it. The change of attitude towards America denotes a disillusionment with the American way of life which was, five years ago, still considered to reflect a model democracy for a Europe that had, in recent history, shown a predilection for self-destruction. In the meantime, however, the latent problems of American society that formerly only a few people had been conscious of came into the open: political corruption, racism, the breakdown of urban life, the influence of the military industry, which landed the country in the Vietnam war and all the other fleurs du mal (to use Professor Aczel's apt phrase). This created a shock in Western Europe and especially in Germany which, because of a loss of a political and moral identity caused by the Third Reich, displayed a greater tendency than others European countries to imitate America. The amount of Americanisms in modern German indicates this trend. This disillusionment set the scene for a revival of Marxism at German universities which, in order to disown any connection with doctrinaire communism and Stalinism, called itself critical theory.

More aware of this context than certain of my countrymen with whom I have had contact here I wrote an article that explicitly questioned its own categories under which a European might now get a first (I repeat: a first) impression of an American university. The sentence in my article which makes this plain seems to have been constantly overlooked in spite of all philological acumen. There fore I feel bound to repeat it here (using the translation helpfully provided by the German Department): 'The question one must ask oneself is whether this fragmentary impression is not the result of an image of America as formed in Europe, whether one hasn't brought along the categories under which everything is perceived.' This is clearly meant to direct the attention of a European public back to its own image of America and make it conscious of its historicity. In a part of the article that was left out in the reprint I speak of America as of a projection of European cultural critics.

This, then, being the context in which the article has to be viewed I feel bound to comment on some of Professor Aczel's observations. First I cannot see how I accept impressions as facts when I call them fragmentary impressions myself. What has surprised me most, however, is that Professor Aczel sees a contradiction between channeling the students into a fixed system and their unquestionable authority as consumers. Any glance at the functioning of a consumer society shows that the system is fixed by the necessary relation between production, consumption and waste, and that the choices offered are pseudo-choices between products, which, in their turn, are made artificially different by packaging and advertising. At the same time the thus artificially produced needs and the feeling of freedom of choice provides the absolute standard for salesmanship. The producers themselves, alas, usually believe in the ideology they help to produce and stabilize. This is why a consumer is always right and yet not free.

Whether the students show consumer habits is of course a debatable point, and my deliberate exaggeration is corredted by the manifold assertion that they don't. I was only relying on my first impression that the language used to describe literary works sometimes resembled the language of advertising. If this is a false impression I hope to correct it through getting used to TV-commercials. Furthermore I did not say that the students are constantly swinging between ego-trip and identity-crisis. This is again an improved version of the German original where I said that radical individualism manifests itself in a preoccupation with one's identity which finds expression in the fact that 'ego-trip' and 'identity-crisis' are the terms used for describing the extremes in changes of mood. But here Professor Aczel has unwittingly and innocently fallen victim to the somewhat bold translation.

But then he takes it for granted that I am complaining when I say that the names Adorno and Habermas are largely unknown here. For a German public this reads differently: they are informed that people they might think have an international reputation are only known in their all too parochial homeland. Professor Aczel bears testimony to that by describing Adorno as 'a somewhat diluted version of Georg Lukacs.' This is a rather suprising description in the light of the controversy on about all major issues between both thinkers. As opposed to Lukacs' indictment of modern western literature as decadent Adorno has constantly advocated avant-garde literature with the battle cry 'qu'il faut etre absolument moderne'. Furthermore he has never been in agreement with Lukacs on the latter's theory of mimesis. Since I take Professor Aczel to be not only a fellow-European but also a compatriot of Georg Lukacs I hope that he will not be disappointed to learn that Adorno actually opposed Lukacs' literary theory. What the students could have done about Adorno's heart attack I cannot possibly see.

With regard to Habermas Professor Aczel speaks of his ideological contribution to students radicalism.' Whether he means Professor Habermas' theory of hermeneutics and criticism of ideology I cannot tell. That they are not worth knowing implies that Gadamer, Dilthey and Hegel are not worth knowing.

Finally, I want to apologize to all those who have felt offended by my mild article. That this was not intended goes without saying. Instead I wanted to contribute to a process of self-reflection on the relations between Europe and America as mirrored in their attitudes towards each other. That this does not aim at individual persons but rather at questions of social organization and their ideological reflection is taken for granted. And why it should be with sarcastic self-decreciation that I call myself an exchange professor from Germany, as Professor Aczel maintains, I cannot see. I had considered it as one of my tasks as such an exchange professor to stimulate discussion beyond the mutual admiration syndrome. We live, after all, in the same society, and Nr. Nixon's decisions concern me in Germany just as much ks Professor Aczel, though a fellow-European, in America.

Art Buchwald

In Case The Phone Bill Gets Paid

WASHINGTON–In my last column I revealed the Republican game plan for 1972. Basically it was quite simple. Since the Democrats owe the telephone company $1,900,000, the phone company will pull out all their lines in Miami, and it will be impossible to nominate anyone on the Democratic ticket for President. Therefore President Nixon, like his buddy President Thieu, will have to run alone.

This was Plan A. It turns out the Republicans also have Plan B, in case, by some wild accident, the Democrats pay their phone bill.

Plan B was revealed to me by Mr. Kent Corey of the San Fernando Valley Democratic Assn., who got it straight from Henry Kissinger's 10-year-old son, when he was visiting Disneyland.

This is how Plan B will work.

The Democrats will meet in Miami in July. The phone bill will be paid by royalties from Howard Hughes' autobiography, and the convention will begin in good spirits and fellowship.

On the second day of the convention, just as the nominations are getting under way, President Nixon will decide to address the Democratic National Convention as he did the AFL—CIO convention last month.

The President will announce through his press secretary Ron Zeigler that he would like to explain his economic program to the Democratic National Convention. He will have Zeigler assure the country that he is not going to the convention for any political motives, but as President of the United States.

All Mr. Nixon's advisers will warn him not to go, pointing out that he will be addressing a hostile audience, who will probably give him a very bad reception.

Nixon will reply, "I am used to hostile conventions in Miarni, and I will not be intimidated. The President of the United States should be able to go anywhere any time."

Larry O'Brien, Chairman of the Democratic Party, will receive word of Nixon's plans in horror. Nixon's advance man will tell O'Brien he wants the band to play "Hail to the Chief" when the President enters the hall.. O'Brien will balk at this. (What he can't admit is that because of the lack of funds, the Democrats couldn't afford to hire a band.)

The President will arrive sans "Hail to the Chief" and go directly to the podium. He will throw away the prepared speech and start talking extemporaneously, telling the Democrats what he has done for the country and for the economy. Mayor Daley and the Chicago delegation will start booing, and pretty soon everyone in the hall will hiss and catcall.

Oblivious to the boos, the President will clench his fists and continue a list of his achievements.

Then at the conclusion of his talk the President will step down from the podium and start shaking hands with the delegates.

Larry O'Brien will try to gavel the meeting back to order, and he will say, "Can we now get back to nominating our candidate?"

This will cause laughter in the hall. President Nixon will finally leave, his face grim, and his lips pursed.

But all over the United States the American public will be shocked that anyone could treat the President of the United States this way, and Nixon will pick up 12 points in the Gallup Poll and assure his re-election.

I was skeptical that the Republicans would do anything like this, so I called a source at the White House, who confirmed that there was a Plan B. "If it worked with George Meany," he said, "why shouldn't it work with Larry O'Brien."

Copyright 1971, Los Angeles Times

'JUST IGNORE ME—I'M NOT RUNNING!'

Editorial Points

Next time you see one of the faculty walk off with a Collegian, remember that you're the one who's paying for it. Maybe you could go over and ask the teacher for a dime–that's the going rate at Augie's. Or you could just stand and point an accusing finger at him. How dramatic.

*****

While we're on the subject of faculty members ripping off Collegians at the student's expense, who's the Economics professor who walks out of the Union with an armload of papers every day? The first faculty member to turn him in will get a free week's subscription to the Collegian.

*****

Ever since the article in Friday's Poor Richards on V.D. appeared, we've been hearing rumors to the effect that the Health Services were swamped with patients. Someone said they remained open all weekend, giving out penicillin shots at the door. Aren't modern technology and medicine wonderful?

*****

The Student Senators who went to Colorado this summer for a convention sure missed the bet on that trip. Too bad they didn't hold off till intercession rolled around–they could have gotten a little skiing in at Aspen with no one the wiser for it.

*****

It has come to our attention that the alligators in the University drainage system are not responsible for the recent rash of maintenance men disappearances. It seems that there is a small city constructed in the tunnels which honeycomb the ground beneath most of the buildings. Living in this troglodyte paradise is a fat old man with a contingent of elves. These creatures have been abducting the maintenance men at a slow but steady rate and have forced them to slave at the construction of different sorts of toys. Where have I heard this before?

Letters To The Editor

Christmas Fast For Refugees

To the Editor:

How often this Christmas time we hear that war is the world's salvation! Soon (people say) India will win against Pakistan and the refugee "problem" will be over. The Bengalis will return home to East Pakistan (Bangla Desh!) and live happily ever after in a newly created democratic paradise. Does anyone believe the refugees will disappear? Not really, but the war has provided the West a kind of saving grace at Christmas time by which it might shift its attention from the misery of refugees to questions of military strategy and power politics. By a similar stroke of "luck" we are able to forget the refugees of Israel, the Arab states, Biafra, and now Vietnam. Anyway (say the same cynics), what can you do?

Here is what we are going to do this week. We invite you to join students, faculty, and staff Wednesday and Thursday of this week (Dec. 15-16) in a two day Christmas Fast that will take place in the Campus Center by the Pakistani-Indian Refugee Relief table. Through fasting, donations, and prayer, express your concern and stimulate action on behalf of the refugees.

There are several reasons for fasting at this time of the year. By fasting and donating whatever you can, you will help those who have nothing to share this Christmas but their misery. This week we also ask for clothing (please search your closets before you go home). Gift certificates will be available which will say to relatives and friends that you have donated gifts in their names to the refugees. We want the fast to be a memorial that reminds us of the innocent dead on both sides–and the dying caught in the middle (item: an orphanage in Dacca was bombed accidentally last week killing 300 children. Does this remind you of Vietnam?). While residents, Prime Ministers, and Generals figure out who is to blame and who is to fight, who gets "aid" and who doesn't, we would like to try to make the Christmas holidays meaningful again through a spiritual form of preparation. Those of you who join the fast will experience a true peace and concern that can be shared with family and friends this Christmas. Why not pause amidst another luxurious American Christmas of things and affirm a Christmas of people? Please come and join us.

A meeting for those interested in the Christmas Fast will be held today (Tues., Dec. 14) at) at 4 p.m., Campus Center, Room 805-809.

Lucien Miller

Don't Pay War Taxes

To the Editor:

Last week some 40 members of the UMass? Amherst community gathered informally to discuss tax refusal as a form of conscientious opposition to the continuing war in South-East Asia. Out of this meeting an ongoing project has emerged. Affiliated with the Valley Peace Center, WAR TAX RESISTANCE has opened a savings account into which anyone who is refusing Federal taxes can deposit an amount equal to the unpaid tax. Most of these pooled funds will come from refusal to pay the 10% Excise Tax on all telephone bills, a tax which Congress specifically retained to help pay for American expansion of the Vietnam War. Each time you pay your phone bill, simply subtract the item designated "Tax" and send another check in that amount to: War Tax Resistance, c/o Valley Peace Center, 1Cook Place, Amherst. (You should send a note along with your phone bill explaining why you are not paying the tax. The Internal Revenue Service will probably take steps to recover the amount you owe. After several warnings, the IRS usually levies your bank account for the taxes due plus a few cents interest.)

Meanwhile the money deposited in the War Tax Resistance account, along with any interest accumulated, will be publicly handed over each month or two to a local recipient chosen by participating refusers to dramatize our demand that Federal revenues be spent to meet pressing social needs rather than to perpetuate a bloody and immoral war. The more people who take a stand in this way against the slaughter from the air which "Vietnamization" has led to, the greater the sum we can hand over for life-enhancing purposes. The killing will not stop until enough Americans join in non-violent resistance to policies of death.

(We are particularly anxious to hear from students living in UMass dorms who wish to refuse the phone tax but who are prevented from doing so because of University billing procedures. This issue can be raised with the administration if a number of such students band together.)

On behalf of War Tax Resistance,

Jean Matlack
Jim Batlack
Asst. Prof. of English

Who Knows Best?

To the Editor:

In his letter of December 10th ('Ein Mistaken Impression, Perhaps?') Tamas Aczel makes the contention that although the names Adorno, Horkheimer, Habermas, Schmidt et,al. may be elusive to most UMass students and faculty this reality is not the case in the 'eneralized sense' that Professor Schwanitz describes to us. But before substantiating the above remark Mr. Aczel sets out to protect himself by offering the hypothesis that this institutional indifference to the work of the Frankfurt School may be a 'consumer' indicator that there is not very much to gain from what contributions the Frankfurt School may have to offer. This is supported by an 'ad hominem' critique of Adorno whom he characterizes as a 'diluted version of Lukacs' and a remark directed at Habermas that appears to indicate that his, i.e. Habermas's, contributions to social theory are inconsequential due to the later's recent political behavior vis-a-vis the German student movement.

If in fact Adorno's contributions to 'Ideologierkritik' are to be dismissed because one wishes to characterize him as a 'diluted VERSION' OF Lukacs, should we in turn dismiss Lukacs because he was a 'diluted version' of Marx, and inturn Marx because he was a 'diluted version' of Hegel? And fruthermore what is the significance of Habermas's politics vis-a-vis his meta-theory of knowledge and its relation to social theory?

With regards to the fact that Habermas's contribution to the critique of ideology has yet to transcend the borders of Germany, is it not fair to assume that the intellectual boycott of the Frankfurt School, in this country, particularly in the field of sociology, is in some way a major contributory factor to this phenomena? It seems superfluous to remark that consumers cannot buy what is not on the market.

In conclusion, it is my feeling that Mr. Aczel offers us a type of 'consumer rationalizing' that leads him to a type of 'generalized and, unfortunately, rather condescending, journalistic impressionism. Apparentlyhis is a case where the 'accuser knows best.'

Walter Uhlein

Vacation Bonanza

By WALTER CRONIN

Remember last summer? Recall those hours spent working, or hours consumed trying to find a job. For many of us it became a struggle to earn enough money to be able to return to school for the fall. Some did not earn enough. Look around the University during the school year. How many of our fellow students depend on part time work around the Amherst area, and the campus, to pull their way through?

While most of us were nearing the end of our summers, still working and getting ready to return for another academic year, seven of the Student Senators were preparing to spend some of our hard earned money on a well planned "junket," or vacation to Colorado. At the time when you and your parents were figuring out how to make that payment to the University, which includes the Student Activities Tax, seven Senators were well on their way toward spending $1065 for room and board (six x $155 and one at $165) at a student "conference"– the National Student Association–in that beautiful, picturesque state of Colorado (I've only seen it in books). That's not all. Their meals were paid both ways at the dining commons rate around $4 dollars per day, per person. While six drove out, having an allocation for gas money–a Student Senate funded credit card,–one Senator, for some reason, could not make it by car, so he flew–at the students' expense. Furthermore, the President and Treasurer, Mr. Sandwen and Mr. Verrochi, respectively, knowing beforehand that they had to go to a Board of Trustee's meeting the same week, felt the need to fly back–again at the students' expense. Why did Mr. Verrochi have to fly back? He's not on the Board. Was there a confidence gap there? Couldn't Mr. Sandwen, as the valid representative of the student body, present the necessary view point at the meeting by himself? I enjoy flying myself. However, when I go by jet I pay my own way.

The totals for room and board, and three plane fares, is $1463. That doesn't include the gas bill for those who drove (the bill hadn't been received from the Oil Company when I looked into the figures). That total doesn't include the food bill expenditure. Where those charges went, out of the many varying expense accounts which the Senate controls, is anyone's guess. Without these costs added in to the total, the average cost for each of our seven student Senators is $209. To me that figure represents about two weeks pay in a hot summer, and that $209 for me is a gross figure. I worked for $2 an hour. How many of the students picked up an extra $200 this summer?

Well, Senators as a group, how do you explain this to the student body? For, a couple of weeks ago, the Student Senate upheld tue spending of this "Student Senate Social Action Committee" budget when a move was made, in Special Business, to evaluate these expenditures. And, student Senators who went on the trip, can you, in good conscience, justify this extravaganza? Was there a need for seven of you to attend? Was there a need for anyone to attend?

And, fellow students, keep this in mind when elections roll around. You might want, considering the shape of the economy, to take a nice little "junket" next summer.

Women's Lib Lecture Tomorrow

Dr. Joyce Ladner, a young, leading Black intellectual, will be speaking on "Black Women and Women's Liberation" tomorrow sponsored by DVP.

After graduating from Tougaloo College in Mississippi, she became intensely involved in the Civil Rights Movement. Working with SNCC (Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee), she helped organize the state-wide voter registration project in Mississippi. She also helped formulate and develop the Mississippi Freedom Democratic Party and COFO (Council of Federated Organizations).

She received her M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from Washington University in St. Louis after which she has been a member of the faculty at Southern Illinois University and a research associate for the Pruit-Igoe project studies. While a Senior Research Fellow at the Institute of the Black World in 1970, she researched the development of Black Studies Programs and wrote her most recent book, Yesterday's Tomorrow: The Black Woman, published by Doubleday.

Last year Miss Ladner travelled in East Africa examining the role of Tanzanian Women in nation building. An article based on this study appears in the December, 1971 issue of the Black Scholar. She is presently teaching in the Sociology Department at Howard University, Washington, D. C. and working on a new book of theories and methods in Black Sociology.

Among her other publications are "Rape and White Racism", and "Black Repression in the Cities", Black Scholar, April, 1970. Her lecture will be held in S.B.A. 120 at 8 p.m. with a coffee hour following.

DR. JOYCE LADNER

Police Ordered To Pay For False Arrest

SALT LAKE CITY, Dec. 11 (AP) — A former University of Utah student who charged two university policemen with false arrest has been awarded $5,000 damages by a United States District Court jury.

Stewart E. Greene, 20 years old, was arrested a year ago for passing out handbills advertising a 50-cent-a-plate dinner at the same time Vice President Agnew spoke at a $100-a-plate dinner.

He was charged with littering while distributing the handbills at a university football game.

Judge Willis Ritter ruled that Mr. Greene had been falsely arrested in violation of the First Amendment, and that two campus policemen, Boyd Ward and Richard Haas, were liable for damage under the Civil Rights Act.

He instructed the jury to determine the amount of damages. Mr. Ward and Mr. Haas were each ordered to pay $2,500. Mr. Greene had sought $5,000 in general and $20,000 in punitive damages.

N.Y. Times p. 8 12/12/71

Peer Sex, Anyone?

By PAUL JOHNSON

The Peer Sex Education Program is a pilot project in Central Area. This year the outset of the program has been strong with each of the residence halls having a counselor in the program.

While this is not the first P.S.E. Pilot Program at UMass, it is new for Central and it is expected to develop with the needs of the Area. The idea of the program is to close the information and assistance gaps between Health Services and students. Many students lack the knowledge available concerning sexuality and Peer Sex Education aims to provide the information.

The counselors become part-time members of the University health team. They are also responsible for establishing programs in their residence halls and for serving as resource people for their fellow students. While the P.S.E. program is a pilot project for this year, it is with anticipation by its program coordinator, Barbara Headrick, that it will be a continuing aspect of Central Area. The counselors participate in a weekly class for which they receive 3 credits. Funds for the program come from the offices of the Central Area Director's and Associate Provost for Special Projects.

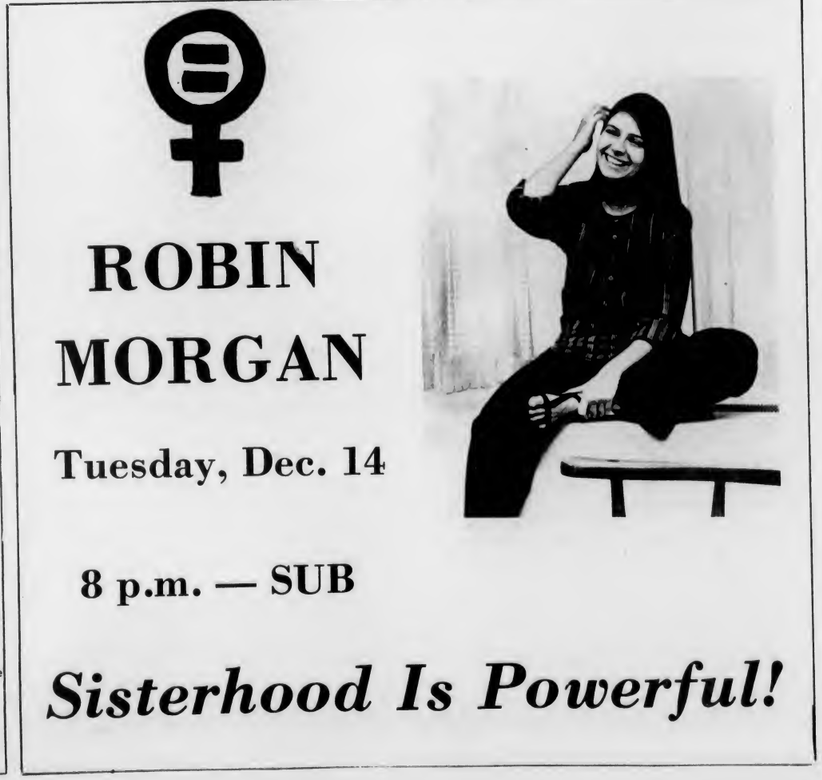
The curriculum contains not only facts on various aspects of sexuality but training in education techniques, information on referral agencies, group dynamics and counseling skills. The importance in the appraoch of this program is that, "students can be most effective in working with other students in an educational, counseling, and supportive role," as Miss Headrick pointed out.

In most of Central Area's residence halls, the P.S.E. counselors will be offering programs of Human Sexuality to their peers.

Students interested in the program next semester should consult with their Head of Residence or counselors.

Debaters Knockout In Whirlwind Tour

By JUDY BENNETT



In the latest debate activities, tournament results were again excellent. At Columbia University, novices Karin Kramer, a Smith College sophomore from Levittown, Pa., and freshman Mark Dunn, from East Longmeadow, achieved a 5-3 record, beating Rutgers, Pace, Bucknell, LaSalle, and Anderson and thereby qualified for the quarter final elimination round in varsity competition. They met the Univ. of Pennsylvania in quarter finals, losing to this team which later won the tournament. Nonetheless a fine show by the trophy winners Karin and Mark. Sophomores Jeanne Bayer, of Dorchester and Harry Feinzig, of Brookline, also attended the tournament, going 4-4, victorious over Harvard, Bucknell, Iona and Brandeis.

At the Vermont tournament, UMass earned second place in varsity competition. Debating affirmatively, freshmen Rosemary Connors, of Leominster, and Gary Jakacky, of Pittsfield went 3-2, defeating Muhlenberg, Fitchburg State, and Utica. Freshman Ellen Kirch of Randolph and sophomore Jim Lane, of Greenfield, had a perfect 5-0 record--their wins being over Bridgeport, St. Anselm's, Rhode Island College, Temple, and East Stroudsburg.

Over the Thanksgiving vacation, junior Roger Legendre, of Leominster, and senior Paul Lamarche, of Worcester, attended the highly-rated Georgetown tournament. Competing with some of the best teams in the nation, they managed to go 4-4, beating Emerson, Emory, N.Y.U., and Pennsylvania.

At all three of these tournaments, the teams debated "that greater controls should be imposed on the gatherine and utilization of information about U.S. citizens by government agencies, and at all three of these tournaments, UMass did exceptionally well.

He Blinded Himself In A Baltimore Jail

By DANIEL ST. ALBIN GREENE
FROM BALTIMORE

Immediately following publication of Daniel St. Albin Greene's front-page article of November 6, 1971, the editor of The National Observer, Henry Gemmill, received requests for thousands of reprints. Because of this great interest we are reprinting this article in its entirety.

When Ed Stefankiewicz reported for the night shift in the lockup on the first floor of Baltimore police headquarters, he was advised to keep an eye on the stoned hippie who was talking to the walls in Cell 2. So when he noticed after midnight that Cell 2 was suddenly quiet, Officer Stefankiewicz opened the gate to the front row - where women, rum heads, and "mental cases" are usually kept - and walked the few steps to the second cell. In the shadows he saw a heavily bearded young man, naked, sitting on the bare, two-board bench that is the only furniture in each of the tiny, dismal cells.

"You all right?" the turnkey asked. The naked man glanced at him, he recalls, but said nothing.

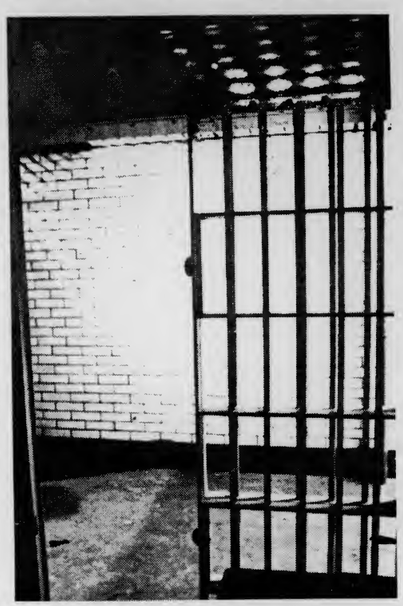
The burly jailer returned to his desk, and busied himself with paper work for the next few minutes. Then, still wondering about the longhair's curious change of behavior, he decided to take another look. What he saw when he got to Cell 2 this time, Ed Stefankiewicz avows he will never forget. This is how he tells it:

The first thing that Sefankiewicz noticed was a pair of forearms jutting through the bars of the cell, the hands bloody. Behind the bars the young man, now wearing a hospital robe, stood in the shadows, stoically, almost spiritually. For an unreal moment, the hairy, robed apparition reminded Ed Stefankiewicz of a picture he had seen of the Apostle Paul. Yet there was a ghastly difference: Staring from this apostolic face were two mutilated, partially dislodged eyeballs.

"I am God....Let me touch and save you," the apparition pronounced. Only after Stefankiewicz extended his arm for the touch of salvation would the blinded youth let his jailers put a strait jacket on him for the trip to the hospital.

Whether or not Charles Innes, in dark moments of lonely anguish or unreality, tried to gouge his eyes is hard to determine. The stark impression that Sefeankiewicz retains is of torn eyeballs that apparently had been replaced in their sockets, only in front of the eyelids. A doctor who operated on Innes, but who asked not to be identified, says the eyes, though mutilated beyond repair, were never severed from the sockets.

Fantastic Series of Events



Five months later, after extensive psychiatric observation in a state hospital, Charles can finally talk about his longest and — he swears — his last "trip". An intelligent, articulate man of 25 from a distinguished Boston family, he recently described in a long interview the fantastic series of events that climaxed in Cell 2 last May 20. He says that he even remembers destroying his eyes — without feeling a thing.

Still, when the inevitable question comes—"Why did you do it?"—Charlie's characteristic volubility wavers, as though he were confronted by a specter. He becomes evasive, suspicious, agitated. Behind the red, shrunken, sightless eyes that the doctors couldn't repair must be awful memories that, for now at least, can't gain voice.

Even if he could unlock all his impressions of that night, however, Charlie Innes probably couldn't answer some questions that his experience raises: What provoked and prolonged such a bizarre trip? How can a drug so warp a person's mind and deaden his senses that, days after taking it, he could mutilate himself without feeling pain? Why would anybody take, or sell for human use, a drug with such terrible potential? Did the system of handling drug-abuse cases contribute to Charlie's tragedy?

The National Observer's inquiry into Charles Innes' case produced some chilling revelations:

The underground drug market is so contaminated by ruthless profiteering, deception, and product falsification that it's practically impossible nowadays for even a veteran "head" to be sure of what he's buying.

The Baltimore cellblock where it all happened.

A potent drug known as PCP, marketed legitimately as an anesthetic and analgesic for animals, is being produced by "underground chemists" nationwide and foisted upon unwitting young buyers as everything from an "aphrodisiac" to "mescaline."

There are widespread misconceptions among police and hospital personnel about how to handle and treat people under the influence of psychedelic drugs. Standard procedures for "drug cases" can exacerbate reactions from some drugs, especially psychotic effects.

Homemade Tragedies Beckon

All of this adds up to a distrubing conclusion: Not many people — dealers, dopers, or straights — know much about the homemade chemicals that untold young Americans are smoking, eating, or shooting into their veins.

Seldom has this fact been so shockingly illustrated as in the case of Charles Hiller Innes. There are no villains in his story, and no heroes. Only people, himself included, who had no way of knowing what a weird drug that he ate was doing to his body and mind. Consequently, those responsible for Innes in his last few days of sight did what they thought they should; they didn't know what else to do.

"I've accepted my blindness but I haven't accepted the blame," he says. "I know my actions in some ways led to it, but the actions of others were responsible too."

Charles still lives alone in the two-story rowhouse where it all started. He pays the $150 rent out of his $186 montly welfare check. It's not a bad place to live: a quiet residential neighborhood in back of Memorial Stadium, where the Colts and Orioles play. But it's nothing like his boyhood homes.

A Brahmin Background

He was named after his grandfather, a prominent lawyer and Republican politician who in 1911 founded the country's first night law school in Boston. Today motorists on Huntington Avenue in Boston see the name as they go through the Charles H. Innes Memorial Underpass.

Like his grandfather, Charlie's father, Charles J. Innes, devoted his professional life to law and GOP politics. He served 23 years in the Massachusetts legislature, and since 1956 has been counsel to the state Senate, which a couple weeks ago passed a resolution praising him as "a legal scholar, a legislative craftsman, and a most necessary and integral part of the legislative process."

Charles Hiller Innes, his parents' first son, was reared to follow in the footsteps of his father and grandfather. He recalls meeting the Kennedys in Boston and once accompanying his father to a national convention, where they had breakfast with Vice President and Mrs. Nixon. Inevitably, he was sent to the Noble and Greenough School in Dedham, Mass., to prepare for Harvard. A short, muscular lad, he rowed crew and made the soccer and wrestling teams. But his final grade average was a point or two low for Harvard, his father's alma mater, so he enrolled in Johns Hopkins University here instead.

The Drift Into Drugs

At Hopkins Charlie was an erratic student, nominally majoring in philosophy but auditing more and more courses just because they interested him. He turned on to marijuana and radical politics, and gravitated into Baltimore's drug-oriented counterculture. He split to San Francisco for a spell, and returned to Baltimore last year considering himself a permanent member of what he calls the Third World.

Last January Innes and Robert W. Rettman were arrested in a Baltimore suburb and charged with possession of cocaine. On May 14 undercover narcotics detectives, acting on a paid informant's evidence, obtained warrants to search Innes' and Rettman's residences.

There is little resemblance between Innes' and the police's version of events during the raid on his house. He says that the officers beat him; the police deny it. But this much is undisputed: When two plain-clothes men confronted Innes in the back yard that evening, he bolted into the house, grabbed a 35-mm. film can, and swallowed its contents.

What Did Charlie Eat?

Officer James Dugent recalls that all the way to the station Innes repeated slogans: "PCP...LSC...Peace...Right On...." He was taken from the police station to Union Memorial Hospital, where his stomach was pumped. He was kept overnight, and released the next afternoon on $3,000 bail, charged with possession of marijuana. (Police say they found some residue in a homemade pipe in his kitchen.) The charge was later dismissed.

What did Charlie eat?

To this day, Jim Dugent believes that it was pot laced with LSD. He says he found in the film can "a residue of a green, grasslike substance" resembling marijuana, but that it wasn't enough to test. In the police file is a lab analysis indicating traces of LSD in the gastric material pumped out of Innes at the hospital. The man who runs the laboratory says that this analysis is no more than 85 percent certain.

But Innes insists that he ingested neither pot nor LSD, but parsley cured with "PCPA"—enough "to get at least 30 smokers high."

He describes PCPA as a derivative of PCP, an animal tranquilizer, but with "an extra molecule" that nobody knows much about. Once he referred to PCPA's mysterious aphrodisiac quality; several times he described its ability to stimulate the senses: "It was like being born again...like everything was new...like your mind is completely open....I was energized." Other effects were "complete ego loss" and "intensive audio and visual hallucinations."

Whatever it was, Charles Innes says the drug kept him stoned for five days. This defies belief, unless he reinforced it with something else later. But Dr. David Smith, founder and medical director of the Haight-Ashbury free clinic in San Francisco, offers a possible explanation: "It's highly unlikely that the drug reaction would have lasted that long. But a very intense delirious drug experience can precipitate a psychotic reaction.

To be Continued

(Reprinted From the National Observer)

For the student body.

THE HUNGRY-U
103 N. PLEASANT, AMHERST
Italian submarine sandwiches

Wed., Dec. 15
Bonnie & Clyde
SUB 75¢
Sponsored by the UMass Fencing Club

dvp
"Black Women and Women's Liberation"
DR. JOYCE LADNER
Sociologist from Howard University
Wednesday, Dec. 15 8p.m. SBA 120

TONIGHT
Comparative Literature Film Series presents
Bryan Forbes'
"The Wrong Box"
Wildean Decadence a la Keystone Cops with Peter Sellers, Ralph Richardson, John Mills, Peter Cook, Michael Crane
THOMPSON 104
8 and 10 p.m.
Tickets - $.75 on Sale at Door

Protests Hit Capitol For Bangla Desh Delay

NEW YORK (LNS)--Wearing signs like "Capitol Records Values Profit Over Human Life" and "Pakistanis Starve Because of Capitol's Greed", 25 people including the infamous Dylanologist A.J. Weverman demonstrated here December 3 to protest Capitol Records' hold-up of the George Harrison-Bangla Desh Concert record which was finally released last Thursday.

The three-disc live album was recorded in Madison Square Garden early in the summer by George Harrison, Bob Dyland, Ravi Shankar and a host of other well-know performers who donated their time to East Pakistani refugees.

So far, the Beatles' Apple Records, absorbing all costs of the concert, has given UNICEF $250,000 -- the gross receipts from ticket sales.

But Capitol Records wasn't prepared to go along with this. So outside Capitol's swank skyscraper offices in downtown Manhattan, the demonstrators, circled by cops, took turns with the mike to tell curious passersby their demand that Capitol, as distributor of the record, follow Apple and the performers' lead in earmarking all profits from the record for the East Pakistani refugees.

Harrison, on the Dick Cavett Show November 24, estimated that total sales of the $12.98 record will earn $15 million for the refugees.

"This record should have been out months ago," said Harrison. "All they want to know is how much do we make on it.. every other company and artist gave their stuff for free."

In the midst of the impromptu speechmaking, a man pushed his way into the center of the group waving a letter. "I've just been kicked out of Capitol's office! They're gonna do it--but don't you see," he said, gathering more breath, "that album's gonna sell like crazy and they'll write it off as a tax loss." He then read the official Capitol press release which said that the album would be released in late December.

BOB DYLAN

The crowd, not knowing exactly whether to be happy or sad, buzzed quietly while A.J. Weberman grabbed the mike and said that it could be predicted that Capitol would not go profitless--by hook or by crook.

Suddenly out of nowhere two people clothed from head to foot in black hooded sacks appeared. One wore a sign saying "Capitalist stop trying to split up John and Yoko. He is no lo a Beatle." Speculation was high that it really was John and Yoko, but no one knew for sure. A.J. explained the facts behind the puzzling sign.

Apparently, Capitol is trying to include Yoko as a Beatle (because she is married to John) under an old contract which the Beatles made before they became superstars. That way Capitol can get away with paying her less than if she was considered on her own merit. Capitol is holding up her album because of the dispute.

Yoko plans to give all the money she would get through a more lucrative contract to various political groups.

A.J. Weberman announced that John and Yoko are the newest members of the Rock Liberation Front (RLF), a group dedicated to exposing hip capitalist counter-culture ripoffs and politicizing rock music and rock artists.

In closing the demonstration, A.J. mentioned the Rolling Stones files which were ripped off from that rock magazine's office several months ago in an RLF action. The files will soon be published in the Realist and are full of information such as a letter from Rolling Stone to Ford Motor Co. telling them to "put a stereo in each car and the hippies will buy it up."

A. J., well-known TV appearances and articles in

A.J., well-known through TV appearances and articles in Esquire and Rolling Stone for his Dylan fetish which included analyzing all of Dylan's garbage, remarked that Dyland was "coming around" since he had recently given money to a free clinic and written The Ballad of George Jackson. "I'm never going to harass him or his family against," A.J. said.

Student Paper Sues For Right To Run Abortion Ads

Richmond, Va. (LNS)--Fifteen students have brought charges against the state of Virginia for attempting to restrict college students' rights to free speech and press after the state tried to stop a college paper from publishing because it printed abortion ads.

Broadside, the student paper of George Mason College (a four year satellite college of the University of Virginia) has been running ads in the paper referring women to out-patient abortion clinics in New York. However, there is a Virginia law that says "any persons by publication, lecture, advertisement...or in any other manner encouraging ...the procuring of abortion...shall be guilty of a misdeameanor." The offenses are punishable by a year in jail and a fine of up to $1000.

In a letter to Broadside's editorial staff, dean of students Robert Turner commented on an abortion counseling ad placed in the paper despite warnings: "this type of advertising is not to be printed in any future editions as long as the law reamins part of the code of Virginia."

In addition, the students reported that Turner followed up his November 17th letter with verbal threats that college funds would be cut off if an article about avortion was published. They said that Turner Continued pressuring the paper by requiring special authorization on checks for the paper's printing expenses.

During the constitutional hearings to decide the question late last month, U.S. District Judge Robert R. Merhige issued what was in effect a temporary injunction against the state of Virginia to bar them from any attempts to restrict free speech and press.

ACLU lawyers entered as evidence in the hearing, the letter from Virginia Assistant Attorney General William G. Broaddus to college Chancellor Lorin A. Thompson which said:

"I...(ask) that you encourage your editors to keep this statute in mind should a similar advertisement be placed with your paper. The mere fact that abortions may be legal in New York does not mean that publication of such in violation of Section 18.1-6 of the code of Virginia may be made with impunity."

At the hearing, however, Broaddus claimed that the controversy was a mistake and at no time was a fund cut-off a real threat.

Continuation of the hearing and a final decision by Merhige is being delayed until the Virginia State Supreme Court decides whether to hear an appeal from a member of the Virginia Weekly, an alternative paper for the Charlottesville community and the University of Virginia, who was arrested and convicted by Circuit Court for violating the abortion statute.

Linda Clayton, Assistant Editor of the Mary Washington College Bullet, the student paper at the women's campus of the University of Virginia, has announced that she will join the fifteen George Mason students in their suit against the state. She says that the Bullet was also threatened by college officials with a funding cut-off if further abortion counseling advertisements were run.

WMUA

TONIGHT ON 91.1 FM:
7:00 pm EVENING NEWS—30 minutes of news and information.
7:30 pm THE BEST OF SHERLOCK HOLMES-the saga of the famous sleuth and his friend Watson goes on.
8:00 pm LIVE MUSIC FESTIVAL-one hour of live locally recorded music featuring many local groups. Anyone who has a group or is a musician and wants to appear on this program should contact WMUA. Our number is 545-2425.
9:00 pm FIRESIGN THEATRE-one hour.
10:00 pm FOCUS-Tonight the discussion will center on Project 10, the experimental program at UMass. Moderator Ken Mosakowski's guests for the live form will be: UMass English professor Charles Adams, who is director of the project; Entomology professor John Hanson, a teacher in the project; and a group of Project 10 freshmen.
11:00 pm LATE NIGHT NEWS-a half hour report.
11:30 pm THE SES CANNELL SHOW-music til 3:00 am.

ROOM TO MOVE
Campus Drug Drop-In Center
CALL 5-0400
24 HOURS A DAY
7 DAYS A WEEK

Science Fiction
Myth—Legend
UM TUT SUT BOOKERY
Books For The
New Age
Last WHOLE EARTH
$4.50
Find Us At
FACES OF EARTH
159 North Pleasant St.
Amherst, Mass.
Next To The Post Office

Tonite John Morgan Tonite
at
The English Pub
9:30 till 1:00 Only 25c
Tonight - Ladies' Night

Poor Richard's Comes Out This Thursday Afternoon.

PRINT SALE

A sale of unusual graphic art will be held December 15, 16, and 17 at the Cape Cod lounge in the Univ. of Mass. Student Union. This exhibition of prints, the work of university undergraduate and graduate printmakers and selected local talent, will include original lithographs, woodcuts, serigraphs and etchings. The exhibition will be open to the public from 9AM to 5:30 PM each day and until 8PM on Thursday the 16th.

SPONSORED BY THE PROGRAM COUNCIL

Evening Of Dance At Smith

The Smith College Department of Theatre and Speech will present two evenings of dance in Hallie Flanagan Studio Theatre, today and tomorrow at 8 p.m.

The first part of the program, entitled God's Trombones, is a presentation by the Black Theatre Workshop at Smith. God's Trombones consists of three choreographed sermons dealing with the Creation, the Crucifixion, and Judgment Day, and a choreographed prayer set against a Baptist background. All are directed by Willie Calhoun, a graduate student in the Theatre Department.

The second part of the program consists of dances presented by the students in the dance program. "Jellyfish with Lunch and Sandcastle" is a project done by students in an improvisational dance class, and includes sounds and images created by the students as they move.

In addition, there will be two ballet pieces in the classical style. One, choreographed by Mrs. Rosalind deMille, Director of Dance, is accompanied by a Schubert Waltz which will be played by Miss Monica Jakuc of the Music Department. The other ballet piece, which is about daydream, is choreographed by Candice Morse, a graduate student who teaches at UMass.

A fourth dance, entitled "Nigger vs. Whitey" is a duet dealing with racial tension; and the final piece is a project in non-dance movement which uses all reas and levels of the Hallie Flanagan Studio Theatre.

Admission to the program is 50¢. Tickets will be available at the Theatre box office today between noon and five o'clock, and one hour prior to each performance.

Vergil And You Today

Professor Michael C. J. Putnam will talk on "THE VERGILIAN ACHIEVEMENT today at 4 p.m. in Herter 301. Professor Putnam, presently Chairman of the Classics Department at Brown University, is one of the foremost authorities on Latin poetry in America today. His publications include two books on Vergil (The Poetry of the Aeneid and Virgil's Pastoral Art) in addition to many articles and reviews.

Miss Clara Ashley from Newton, Massachusetts, will talk on 'THE STRUCTURAL APPROACH TO TEACHING LATIN" Thursday at 3:45 p.m. Miss Ashley has adapted the structural approach to teaching Latin for use on the high school level, and she has published a widely used Latin textbook, Living Latin: A Contemporary Approach. She is probably the best known and most highly respected Latin teacher in America today. Her talk will be of special interest to all students planning on careers as Latin or foreign language teachers.

Both lectures open to the public without charge.

Room To Move

The Biggest Drug Of Them All

Alcohol use is so prevalant today that few people even consider it a drug and yet alcohol is very much a drug (if you have ever had any I'm sure you'll understand why), and it is the drug most used on this and most other campuses and communities. If abused, it can be a very dangerous drug physically, psychologically and emotionally. By abuse, it is meant the use of alcohol to the extent that it interferes with your life and or lifestyle, your family life, your job, your self-actualization. This condition is usually termed alcoholism.

Following are some questions designed to have you look at the way you use alcohol and what your score means in terms of alcohol abuse. Think about the questions and answers honestly, only you know the score.

1. Have you ever tried to stop drinking for a week (or longer), only to fall short of your goal?
2. Do you resent the advice of others who try to get you to stop drinking?
3. Have you tried to control your drinking by switching from one alcoholic beverage to another?
4. Have you taken a morning drink in the past year?
5. Do you envy people who can drink without getting into trouble?
6. Has your drinking problem become progressively more serious during the past year?
7. Has your drinking created problems at home?
8. At social affairs where drinking is limited, do you try to obtain extra drinks?
9. Despite evidence to the contrary have you continued to assert that you can stop drinking on your own whenever you wish?
10. During the past year have you missed time from work or school as a result of drinking?
11. Have you ever blacked out during your drinking?
12. Have you ever felt you could do more with your life if you did not drink?

Scoring: If you answered yes four or more times chances are that you have a drinking problem, or will have one in the future. These questions were designed by recovered alcoholics to get at the symptoms of their drinking.

If you have any questions concerning this article, please call John Barbaro at Room To Move, 545-0400 or Dr. Chittum, Infirmary, 545-2671.

Poor Richard's Classifieds Arrive On Thursday

Bach, Tchaikovsky Tomorrow

The UMass Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Ronald Steele, will present a concert tomorrow at 8:15 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium.

Works on the program will be: "Brandenburg Concerto No. 4" by Bach, "Hymn and Fuguing Tune No. 3" by Cowell, "Psalm and Fugue for String Orchestra" by Hovhaness, and "Romeo and Juliet Fantasy Overture" by Tchaikovsky. UMass students Barbara Rohnert, Heidi Straube, and Dean Radin will be soloists in the "Brandenburg Concerto."

Members of the University Symphony include students from UMass, Hampshire and Mount Holyoke Colleges; and other reisdents of the Amherst area.

The program is open to the public without charge.

MDC CLASSIFIED

AUTOS FOR SALE

1961 VW Bug, rebuilt engine and front end, new brakes and master cylinder, just tuned up and oil change. $350 firm. 6-5197. tf12-17

69 Opel Rallye fastback, snowtires, 23mpg, radials. Asking $1250. Reg. 527-1528. tf12-21

71 Citroen, 2 cyl, 40mpg. It's a fun-car, asking $1200. Must sell, leaving the country. Call 549-6397. tf12-17

1965 Porsche 356-c, new brakes, clutch, rebuilt engine, ski-luggage rack, elec. sunroof, 545-0329. Dick Jublinville. tf12-17

64 Comet, 6 cyl, std shift, good running condition, $175. 546-4452. tf12-14

'65 Flat Sta. Wagon, good cond., 300.00; 55 VW sedan, rebil. 150.00, also Halifax double key board Port. Organ, ex., cond. Call 323-8260. tf12-14

Red Porsche 1966 Radial Snow Tires AM-FM-SW, radio $1800. Call 545-2330 or 253-9689. tf12-17

1965 Olds, 112, good condition, new tires, A.T., P.S., Call 253-8676. tf12-17

FOR SALE

Leica M3 w/150 f/2 Summicron $215, Weston V Meter $25., 12" Dagor/Ilex Shutter $200. All excellent condition. Peter 256-6737, 7 - 7 1/2. tf12-14

(Hart Javelin SSL) 195 cm w/(Marker) bindings $125. Rosemount Fastback Boots, perfect fit/8-10, N-M $110. Peter 256-6737, 7 - 7:30. tf12-14

Dual 1209 turntable w/cartridge $100. Call 253-9876. tf12-17

Gibson GB-3 Bass, good condition, with case $200. Call (617)544-2921 collect. tf12-21

Original Turkish Sheepskin Coat for a lady, white outside, white fur inside $85. Call Ahmet 6-4210 after 7 p.m. tf12-15

Two matched 12" coaxial speakers, professional quality, like new, $45 each; new 9" TV/AM FM Clock combo $100. Call 256-8432. tf12-15

Moroshi Accordian, 48 stops, also 4" refector telescope. Call 253-3267. tf12-14

1968 trd 650cc., excellent cond., price negotiable; electric range, excellent cond., 30", $40. Will deliver. Call George 323-7304 eves. tf12-17

Used desk and dresser plus queen size waterbed with frame, cheap. Phone 256-8172 keep trying. tf12-15

One pair of Air Force insulated flight pants, size-34, good for -30 degrees and colder $20. Call 253-2986 Barry. tf12-15

Sale-Dunham's Tyros, Wint. Insul-excel., cond., originals used 1 wk, size 9. Call Brad 549-6058. after 5. tf12-14

20-50% off stereo components, all major brands, fully guaranteed. Also: 8 track tapes $2.49. Baker Stereo, Rm. 222, Call Barry or Dave 4-5: 30 p.m. Phone 546-6063. tf12-20

62 VW Sunroof, recent head job, kingpins, brake, carb, fuel pump. Starts, runs. Call 586-3495, eves. $200. tf12-14

'65 VW Bug, red, exc body and mech, nu sno tires, battery, muffler. 53,200 miles. $550 or offer. Must sell. 425 n. Pleas. St., Univ. Apt. No. 104. tf12-15

Die-hard auto battery. Used 1 mo. $35;-1 suede fringed jacket good condition $40. 316-1517 eves. tf12-15

Pair of Reiker Buckle Boots, size 7m., worn once. Cheap. Call 1-369-4091. tf12-14

Diamond eng. ring and dia. band-deal on either or both. This is 85 points w/hng. You won't find a better deal. Call Jim at 5-8055/549-6284. tf12-15

Tenor Sax, Selmer MKIV, good condition. Call 548-6087. tf12-17

Snow tires 165-14 Semperit Radials, 1 pr. mounted on MGB disc wheels. $50. Call 549-6087. tf12-17

New and used cameras and photo equipment bought and sold. Lang's Photo 253-3118. tfsem

PERSONAL

Male Doct. Cand. seeks relationship with y.g. lady who types well and would like to help with his thesis. Please write Box 190, Amherst, Mass. tf12-14

Bill, wishing you happiness on our 3rd! Love Kitten. 12-14

Happy Birthday Lunch and Barbs. Stick to it. From 436. 12-14

FOR RENT

Room and board available in new house on N. Pleasant St., two minute walk from campus. Call Dana 253-9031. tf12-17

1-bedroom house, excellent condition Skibiski, realtors, Northampton. Call between 6:30-7:00 p.m. 584-3428. tf12-14

Townehouse Apt. to share. Female or couple, $76/mo-1, $111/mo-2, available immediately. Call 256-6467. tf12-15

Apt., in Amherst available, immediate, $90 a month, heat and water included. Phone 256-8472, keep trying. tf12-15

Furnished efficiency apt. Available Jan. 15, all electric air cond., includes utilities, $130. Quabbin Village, Belchertown call 323-6376. tf12-17

1-1 F roommates needed for So. Deerfield house. In the woods, own rooms. $55/mo. plus util. Call 665-2265. tf12-15

Squire Village, modern 2 bdrm apt., all utilities incl. Married couples only. Avail., Jan 1. Rent $190. Call evenings 665-3218. tf12-17

6 bedrms., 2 baths, kitchen and rec. room in Holyoke, 14 mile from U. of M. All util., ex. phone, much furn., $300 per month. Call 323-7893. tf12-15

Apt. for rent, 1 bedroom apartment. Puffton Village available Jan. 1. 549-6288. tf12-14

2 bedroom apt. 118 Colonial Village, all utilities inc., $160/month. Avail. end of Jan. 72. Call 253-2986 or Kamins Realty. tf12-16

2 room furnished apt., 15 minutes from Campus, avail. Dec. 23, lease until June 1, $140 includes utils. Call 247-5618 btwn. 5:00 - 7:00 p.m. tf12-17

POT SALE

Ceramics sale, BFA and Grad Student work - signed original pieces for holiday gifts, Dec. 15 and 16 10 a.m.-4:30 p.m. Munson Hall, annex, basement. tf12-16

ENTERTAINMENT

Need a band for your party? All local bands are represented by Stan. Call 546-9215. tf12-15

Rock Band Phoenix now available for your Xmas party. Good, hard driving, dance music. Call Carl at 253-4371 for information. tf12-17

ROOMMATES WANTED

Roommate wanted, F, to share apt., own room, $80 mo., util inc., 1/2 mile from campus. Call 546-5472. tf12-15

Roommate wanted to share 3-bedroom apt. Squire Village. Call 665-2905. tf12-15

To share 2 bdrm apt in old hse, 2 firs. dog, frplc, garag, ktchn, lvrm, frnshd, quiet, 3 mi from UMass. Judy, 13 Middle, Hadley 586-2784, keep trying. tf12-16

Rmte to share 2 bdrm apt., Hobart Lane Amherst. $60/m., all utilities inc. Call 6-7320 or 6-7321. tf12-14

Roommate wanted F, to share rent with 2 other girls, own room, ranch house in Hadley. Call anytime 586-2815. tf12-17

Male wanted to share apt. in Col. Village, $55/mo. sec. semester. Call 256-6681, keep trying. tf12-16

Male or female roommate wanted for squire vill apt. for second semester. Call Sonny 665-4495. tf12-16

Need 2 rm. twnhse. apt. 57.25/mo plus $115 sec. dep., no lease, 1/15. Call April 6-5971. 12-14

Roommate wtd., house in town, own bdrm., $75/mo. and utilities. Prefer Grad Student. Call 549-6458. tf12-16

ACTRESS NEEDED

Experienced actress needed by local film company for short feature film-part calls for nudity-if uneasy, not your part. Simply need sophist, actress for serious film. Pay $50, 4-6 hours filming. Leave message for Cue Films bet. 9-2 at Switchboard, no. 542-4000 by Wed., Dec. 15. Also Name, Number, reachable time. Good opp. Open to U. tf12-14

ROOM FOR RENT

Just off Campus/share house - own bedroom/male or female/single or double ($90 and $120) avail. 1/1/72. Call Ron 549-3871 (evenings) tf12-16

APT. TO RENT

Sublet Cliffside 2 bedroom, furnished, available Jan. 1, 665-3674. tf12-16

WANTED

Psy research paper, 8 to 10 typed pg., any topic, will pay. Call Sue 253-5875 after 5 p.m. tf12-14

FREE ROOM AND BOARD

Free room and board in exchange for babysitting afternoons while mother goes to class, Jan. 1st thru Spring Semester. 586-3819. tf12-17

APT. WANTED

2 bdr. apt. wanted in Puffton Village. Call 256-8723 after six or box 468, No. Amherst. tf12-17

MT. SUGARLOAF APTS. Avail. Jan 1, lg. 2 bdrm util. included, air-cond., pool $185. Call Skibiski Realtors 253-7222, eve. 253-2626. tf12-22

LOST

One pair gold wire-rimmed glasses-near graduate center. REWARD. Larry 584-7606. tf12-14

"Lost" from Herter Hall-tape cassette and recorder. Keep recorder if you must, but please return cassette to Fine Arts Council office or arrange clandestine through 549-0203. Transfer. tf12-17

1 Pickett sld. rule in 65 white Dodge van on Dec 7 in ride from Rt. 9, Amherst Rt. 9 ? ? 91 Northampton. Please call Bob 584-6743. tf12-14

SERVICES

Flute-clarinet-sax lessons, Jazz and Classical. Call Anoy Flacks 655-8079. tf12-14

Amherst Audio services. Stereo components, tape decks for home or car. 197 No. Pleasant St. 256-8155. tf5-12

Passports & grad school pictures-24, hr. service Lang's Photo 253-3148. tfsem

For Rent/Help Wanted

Student to live in second semester. Room and board in exchange for help with children. Near Campus. Call 253-0431. tf12-15

BRUINS HOCKEY

UMass Rowing Assoc. sponsoring raffle for two sets of two Bruins home games, Dec. 26 & Jan 15. See crew members or Coach Faherty in 211 Boyden. tf12-15

RAFFLE

1st prize: AF Parka 2nd: 5-band radio. Tickets available in CC Concoise $.25 each- 5/$1.00. Proceeds to Boltwood Project. tf12-14

TRAVEL

Ski the Alps-Jan 14-24 Chamonix, France-air fare, hotels, discount lifts and lessons, last night in Paris. Contact Peggy 253-9667. tf12-23

Nassau-$149, from Boston & N.Y., hotel flight, transfers, 12/20-27, 12/23-29, 12/27-1/3 Ski-Australia-$325, 15 days, flight, hotel, meals, transfers, Insbruk, deluxe package, London-$187, flights in January. Call-Student Flights 584-3050. tf12-15

Ski the Alps, Jan 14-24 Chamonix France, air fare, hotels, discount lifts & lessons, last night in Paris $257. Contact Peggy 253-9667. tf12-23

TYPING

Typing-theses, dissertations, etc. Fast, accurate, experienced. Have Math and Chem. symbols. Call 253-3001. tf12-21

STUDENTS BOOK MATCHING

Register your book in S.U. Rm. 318. Every student with your course next semester will need your books save $ money, sell direct. tf-sem.

ROOM WANTED

Attractive female needs a place to stay for the rest of the semester. Urgent. Will sleep on couch or whatever. Call 584-2081 please. tf12-14

Help: Two males need one large or two bedrooms. Call 549-4660 anytime. tf12-17

Notices

C.E.Q.
There will be a short meeting of the Recycling Committee Tuesday, 7 p.m. in the Student Activities Office (c.c.) If you can't come, call Elaine 549-6861 for information.
CHRISTMAS FAST
Meeting for Pakistani. Those interested in Christmas Fast for Pakistani Indian Refugees come to C.C. 805-809 at 4 p.m.
COMMITTEE ON NUTRITION AND HUMAN NEEDS
Meeting at 7 p.m. in C.C. 105 tonight.
CUSP
The final meeting of the semester will be held tonight, at 7:30 in the Graduate Lounge in the basement of Bartlett. Programs for next semester will be discussed. Please try and attend.
FENCING CLUB
The Fencing Club will meet in Rm. 8 WoPE tonight at 7. Everyone is welcome.
GAMMA SIGMA SIGMA
Meeting at 6:30 p.m. in Rm. 805-809.
HEYMAKERS SQUARE DANCE CLUB
Regular square dance will be held tonight in the C.C.A. Lessons from 7:30-9:30 and club level dancing from 9:30-10:30.
HILLEL
Israeli Dancing in Cape Cod Lounge tonight from 7-9 p.m. Anyone interested in visiting with Prof. & Mrs. Schimmel tonight please call the office 5-2526.
Happy Chanukah - 3 candles tonight.
LIBERATION - WOMEN
A very brief meeting tonight at 7:30 p.m. in Rm. 902 C.C. Prior to Robin Morgan's speech.
SKI CLUB
Meeting tonight at 8 p.m. in Mahar Aud. Speaker from Mt. Tom. Room payments due for intersession trips.
SPORT PARACHUTE CLUB
Yes, we're still at it, all year long! Come find out about us. Tonight C.C. 169 at 7:30 p.m.
STUDENTS INTERESTED IN PRE-PROFESSIONAL PROGRAMS
If you are interested in majoring (or affiliating) with the pre-med programs please pick up an application in the Pre-Med Office, 217 Hasbrouck Lab. Deadline is Dec.
SWEET CORN THEATER WORKSHOP
Only three more! Free tonight at Amherst College's wrestling room at 6 p.m. Bring bells and blue things.
ZOOLOGY MAJORS
There will be a meeting of the Student Faculty Liaison Committee Wed. Dec. 15 at 8:15 in Rm. 351 Morrill. All interested please come. We will discuss next semester Lunch Club.
LOST
On Nov. 16 or 23, lost between Southwest and Goodell L a special gold-link bracelet in floral design. If found, please call Linda 6-8436.
Between Bartlett and Coolidge, last Mon., 12/11, a scarf with purple and yellow stripes. Call Jim 6-8008.
A white pullover sweater lost between Union and Southwest Saturday. Please return to C.C. Lost & Found.
FOUND
Sat. in C.C. Garage; Joseph Connolly's name in them; accounting 110 & economic 125. Pick up in C.C Lost & Found.

Moving Right Along

Questionnaires concerning transportation on and off campus will be distributed to dormitories and off-campus housing starting today.

The survey is being conducted by the Department of Mechanical and AeroSpace Engineering and the Student Senate Transit Service. The results of this survey will help to improve the transportation situation on and off campus.

For further information, contact the Student Senate Transit Service Office at 545-0046.

English Dept. Assists Women's Rights

While a lot of people are doing a lot of talking about equal status for women, the Department of English at UMass is doing something about it.

And what they're doing comes in words of one syllable, being the good rhetoricians they are.

In the recent distribution of a new teacher evaluation form to 5,390 students enrolled in English courses, the department's Undergraduate Studies Office split its mimeographing run to 106 English faculty.

The evaluation form carried ten statements about the teacher being evaluated. But instead of using the pronoun "he" to refer to all techers, regardless of sex, the 1,220 forms delivered to the 18 female faculty included the appropriate pronoun "she", as in the statement, "She put material across in interesting ways."

A total of 4,160 forms using the "he" designation was distributed among 88 male faculty.

According to Director of Undergraduate Studies, Charles Moran, "All credit belongs to Dr. Roberta W. French, who made the suggestion at a meeting of our Committee."

As to the reaction of the women on the faculty to their newly-won recognition, "They were pleased," Moran reported.

Their "pleasure" climaxes the English Department offering this semester of a course titled, "Woman As Hero." Scheduled for Spring semester is "Stereotypes of Women in Literature."

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SYDNEY OMARR

Pisces can uncover secrets. People contess to natives of this zodiacal sign. Pisces is the doctor and nurse and guru combined with Pisces, life can be a labyrinth and the byways and highways are never fascinating, filled with intrigue. For a time example of Pisces writing, read the works of Anais Nin.

*****

ARIES (March 21 April 19): Idealism dominates. You may not be too practical now in evaluation of situations, persons. Take time to be positive. Applies especially where money, partnership deals are concerned. Another Aries is in picture.

TAURUS (April 20 May 20): What appears a certainly may require additional study. Obtain hint from Aries message. Let others declare their intentions. Some, with opposing views, seek your counsel. Be flexible, but firm on principles.

GEMINI (May 21 June 20): Relative in transit may make special request. Do what you can without wasting valuable time. Aquarius person could figure prominently. Unorthodox approach is featured. Stick to basic issues.

CANCER (June 21 July 22): Children occupy thoughts. You could become involved with individual who changes from moment to moment. Ride with any emotional storm. Refuse to be confused by situation which is more humorous than threatening.

LEO (July 23 Aug. 22): Be meticulous about details. What appears minor may actually be of major importance. Know this, respond accordingly. Don't play games with security. Check locks, safety devices. Avoid unnecessary risks.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 Sept. 22): Learning process is emphasized. Know that change of opinion is no disgrace. Gemini individual tires barrage of questions. Answer to best of ability; avoid mere gossip. Stick to facts.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 Oct. 22): Accent on money, valuables, personal possessions. You could be recipient of gift. Family member is in picture. Conciliatory gesture is in order. Seek harmony. Collect, synthesize information.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 Nov. 21): You may be called upon to make special, personal appearance. Be ready. Toss aside false modesty. Don't play role of kicking toe in sand. Encourage new contacts, challenges. Cycle remains high.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 Dec. 21): Fine for attending theater, changing routine. Romance is featured; clandestine conference could be featured. Be discreet. A confidential matter must now be considered and decided.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 Jan. 19): Desires fulfilled if you take overall view. Avoid petty persons and situations. Emphasis is on friends, hopes and wishes. A promise is fulfilled. Express gratitude without being maudlin.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 Feb. 18): Career matters, ambitions now take precedent. Your concepts, ideas find wider audience. Stress originality. Avoid cliches. You are given more responsibility. Chance for added reward is greater.

PISCES (Feb. 19 March 20): Accent on journeys, future plans. Communicate with those at a distance. Get thoughts, ideas on paper. Gain shown through written word. Obtain valid hint from Aquarius message. Teach and learn.

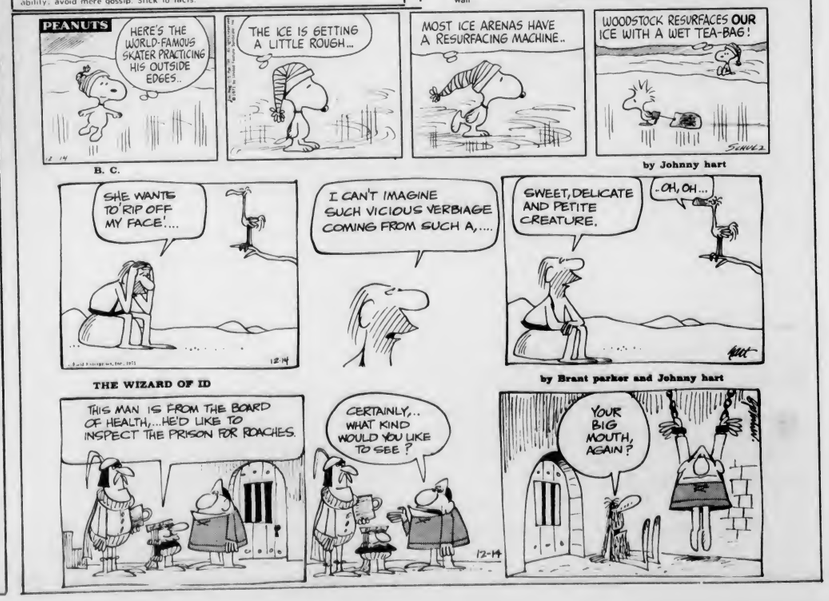
IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are perceptive, analytical. You are able to size up situations, persons. You are a natural character analyst. You are due for challenge. You can meet it and succeed. Individual who "wore you down" with problems will be out of picture.

Copyright 1971, Gen. Fea. Corp.

Crossword Puzzle

ACROSS
1 Clean by brushings
6 Repairs
11 Makes neat
13 Colorful bird
14 Printer's measure
15 Forest wardens
17 Negative
18 Paid notices
20 Clayey earth
21 Policeman (colloq.)
22 Witty remarks
24 Rodent
25 Biblical weed
26 Lose freshness
28 Ventilates
29 Man's name
30 Heraldry: grafted
31 At a distance
32 Deer's horn
34 Again
35 Limited (abbr.)
36 Wife of Geraint
38 Hostelry
39 Satiates
41 Vessel's curved planking
42 Compass point
43 Yearly publications
45 Earth goddess
46 Opened with a lancet
48 Plunderer
50 Choice part
51 Walks wearily

DOWN
1 Vapor
2 Opening in wall
3 Man's nickname
4 Goddess of healing
5 Toll
6 Planet
7 Bitter vetch
8 Near (abbr.)
9 Givers of gifts
10 Mine excavation
12 Breathed loudly in sleep
13 Nuisance
16 Outfit
19 Become rigid
21 Lurches
23 Stalk of grain
25 Name
27 Pronoun
28 Emmet
30 Make beloved
31 Fuse
32 Aleutian island
33 Encircled
34 Passageway
35 Alight
37 Those who tint cloth
39 Dirk
40 Strike
43 Perform
44 Yellow ocher
47 Symbol for nickel
49 Note of scale



Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

S	T	A		A	D		S	P	E	E	D
P	R	I	N	C	E		E	A	S	T	E	R
Y	E		A	I	M	L	E	S	S		F	E
		P	A		D	O	O	R		E	R	I	A
P	A	L	S		N	O	E	L		A	L	L
E	N	A	T	E		T	A	R		E	M
			R	A	M	S		S	P	A	R
C	A	R	I	P	S		S	T	E	E	D
A	N	A		T	O	L	A		S	E	R	E
T	O	T	S		I	O	N	S		L	A
E	D		M	E	L	T	I	N	G		S	A
R	E	V	E	R	E		T	O	O	T	E	D
	S	E	W	E	D		A	B		O	D	D

14

PARKA JACKETS
Nylon Jackets
LEATHER JACKETS
WEAR-HOUSE

Kathy Lawson Ties American Dash Mark

By TOM DERDERIAN

UMass coed Kathy Lawson won the 50 yard dash in 5.8 seconds tieing the indoor American record in the Christmas invitational track meet Saturday in Burlington Vermont. Charlotte Lettis ran her first track race finishing 4th in the mile with a time of 5:14. The race was won in 5:02 by Mrs. Francie Johnson. Robby Austin of Alfred University and Janet Bristol of Burlington were 2nd and 3rd.

Kathy also anchored the Liberty A.C.'s sprint medley team. A Sprint medely consists of a 440 yard leg, two 100 yards sprints and a 220 dash. Kathy ran a very impressive and fast 220yards making up almost a complete straightaway on the second place team but failed to catch her by a scant few yards. The Liberty A.C. however won the woman's section of the meet. Both runners compete for the Liberty A.C.

Kathy said she felt good and strong in the 220, but was suprised by the competition in the 50. She didn't expect the sports international woman's team from Washington, D.C., to show up. Kathy said, "They have several good sprinters like Jane Burnette, Esther Stroy and Lacy O'Neil who were with me on that European tour." Kathy went on to say about her training, "I'm almost in top shape, I've been mostly working on 110 yard sprints and need, , now, to work on endurance."

"My knees, which have been giving me a lot of trouble didn't bother me at all before, during or after the meet. I'm going to run the 50, the 300, and the relay at the U.S.T.F.-F. meet at Dartmouth early in January."

About her race Charlotte said, "I was scared and didn't push hard enough, I think I'll be able to break five minutes for the mile this year. At Dartmouth I'm going to try the 600, they don't have a mile for women there."

READY TO RIP is UMass coed Kathy Lawson in her record tieing indoor track debut of the season Saturday at Vermont. She ran 50 yards in 5.8 seconds to tie the American record. (MDC photo by Tom Derderian)

Volleyball Club Wins Tourney

The UMass Volleyball Club scrimmaged Choate Athletic Assoc. of Conn., Saturday afternoon, in a best out of five series. UMass lost the scrimmage 3 games to 2, but any coach will tell you that scrimmages don't mean a thing and it appears this is true, for UMass had bigger and better things on its mind, namely, a five team tournament scheduled for that night at the Greenfield YMCA.

The five teams were UMass, Holyoke, Turners, Greenfield, Frontier High School, and pre-tourney favorite, Wallingford, Connecticut YMCA. The set-up was a double round robin with the top teams meeting in the best out of three series for the championship.

UMass opened by splitting with Wallingford in two hotly contested games. The Redmen won the first game 16-14 and lost the second 15-12. Key players in the UMass victory were Mike Madden and Tom Fearing, but the most important thing was UMass' double block was starting to work as they stopped many of the opposition's spikes at the net.

UMass played Greenfield next and after easily winning the first game 15-5, let up in the second and were upset 15-11. The Redmen could ill afford to lose another game if they had any hopes for the playoffs and rose to the occasion by romping in their final four games, as both starters and subs played flawlessly. UMass finished with a 6 and 2 record, good enough for second place and a playoff berth.

All this time Wallingford had been rolling up seven strait victories after its opening loss to UMass, finished first with a 7 and 1 record, and gained the other playoff berth.

UMass lost the first playoff game 15-11, and it looked as if they were out of gas, for they had just finished their 14th game of the day. They needed the next two games if they were going to come away winners and it looked like it was going to be all up hill.

In the second game UMass fell behind early, but came out of its slump with a bang behind the power spiking of Paul Slack and the alert play of Yurgos Courmouzis. UMass was also stopping most of Wallingford's spikes at the net, as Jon Wilson and Tom Fearing contributed many key blocks. This combined with near perfect setting by Bruce Simpson and Rich Lousararian led to a 15-11 UMass victory with the third and deciding game remaining.

The third game was a see-saw battle with both teams getting their points in spurts. The UMass offense was again supplied by Slack and Courmouzis, whose spikes complimented fine setting by Simpson and Lousararian. Wilson and Fearing provided key defensive plays to keep the Redmen's attack in gear. After many long volleys and hard fought points, UMass finally won 17-15. The victory was a total team effort with every player contributing many key plays.

UMass takes on last year's ECAC champ, Springfield, Wednesday night at WoPE. Springfield is undefeated in its last 22 dual meets and is supposed to be a better team than last year's champs. UMass has already played the Chiefs once this year and lost three games to one, but UMass has improved much since then and the contest promises to be an exciting one.

AN ARTIST AT WORK is Freshman Jennine Burger in Saturday's opening meet for the Women's gymnastics team. Miss Burger placed in all four events and can be seen in action next week when the UMass gymnasts host the Montclaire YWCA. (MDC photo by Al Chapman)

What Else Is New?

UCLA Still No. 1; Marquette Second

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

South Carolina went north and North Carolina moved south, but UCLA just stayed in its familiar location atop the college basketball poll Monday.

After winning the Cable Car Classic in San Francisco with a 67-59 beating of California Saturday night, undefeated South Carolina bolted from No. 11 to No. 3 this week.

The Gamecocks unseated North Carolina's Tar Heels, who dropped a place to fourth after losing their first game of the year, 89-73 to Princeton.

A nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters, however, still stuck with UCLA as the No. 1 team. The powerful Bruins, 117-53 victors over Texas A&M over the weekend for their fourth straight, collared 37 first-place votes for an overwhelming 898 points.

Marquette, also winner of four games, remained second with six first-place votes and 708 points. The Warriors beat Memphis State 74-73 and Michigan 81-52 last week.

South Carolina uniquely made it to third without a first-place vote. The Gamecocks had 508 points and a big margin over North Carolina's 421. The Tar Heels, however, did get a vote for the No. 1 spot.

Penn, with 409 points, leaped five places to No. 5 after whipping Duke 50-49 in overtime and Manhattan 87-66. Brigham Young took a giant step to No. 6 from No. 15 after stopping New Mexico State 90-80 and Creighton 96-68.

Kentucky, although losing to Indiana 90-89 in double overtime, remained No. 7. St. John's N.Y., bounced from No. 14 to the eighth spot and Florida State moved to No. 9 from No. 18 after three victories last week, including a 90-83 success over Jacksonville.

Ohio -State, fourth last week, skidded to a tie with Southern California for 10th after losing to Ohio 79-68. The Trojans were No. 13 last week, but moved up three spots after victories over Leyola-Los Angeles and Utah.

The Second Ten includes: Indiana, Long Beach State, Jacksonville, Maryland, Southwestern Louisiana, Louisville, Princeton, Virginia and Houston.

The Top 20 with first place votes in parentheses and total points on the basis of 20 for first, 18 for second, 16, 14, 12, 10, 9-8-etc.:

1. UCLA 37	898
2. Marquette 6	708
3. South Carolina	508
4. North Carolina 1	421
5. Penn	409
6. Brigham Young	294
7. Kentucky	256
8. St. John's, N.Y.	265
9. Florida State 1	223
10. Ohio State	211
Southern California
12. Indiana 1	199
13. Long Beach State	179
14. Jacksonville	146
15. Maryland	138
16. SW Louisiana	131
17. Louisville	101
18. Princeton	99
19. Virginia	85
20. Houston	81

Women Hoopsters Drop Close Battle in Opener

The women's varsity and J.V. hoopsters opened their season last Thursday at the WoPE gym with a tight, frustrating 31-30 loss at the hands of a determined UConn squad.

The game, which kept the fairly good-sized crowd on the edge of their seats until the end, was marred by mistakes, careless plays and missed foul shots by both teams.

UMass Coach Jane Parr used her bench to full capacity as everyone saw action. Junior forward Beth Fay, a newcomer to the varsity this year, brought her two years of junior varsity experience to the losing cause as she accumulated the team high total of 12 points.

Sue Chapman and Vicki Pagel, both varsity veterans, collected four points apiece to bolster the attack, followed by Pat Bash and freshman Pat Glispen who added 3 each.

The contest was no "night at the Cage," but it exhibited all the properties of a first-class thriller with the lead bouncing from one team to another. A one-point difference separated the teams at the end of each quarter, and eventually, at the outcome.

With a minute remaining in the game, it looked as though UMass might pull out the victory as they had some foul shot chances and executed some potentially fine breakaways. But with only eight seconds left, UConn got control of the ball and the game was over.

The enthusiastic bunch of spectators who stuck it out til the end were treated to a few surprises in the impressive debuts of freshmen Glispen and her amazingly accurate jump shot, Chris Mollonea and Jeanne Abrahamson. They all exhibited a lot of poise and outside shooting ability, and complimented the more experienced starters, Ms. Bash, Fay and Chapman to name a few. Together, they provided good overall strength needed to overcome their height deficiency.

Admittedly a disappointing start, but with a long season stretching well into March, it shouldn't be long before the women get on the winning track. And who knows---maybe, one night...The Cage?

Next game... Wed. Dec. 15 away at Worcester State. 6:30 J.V.'s host Greenfield CC on Mon. Dec. 13 in the WoPE gym-6:30.

Swimmers Host Crusaders

By JANIS AHMADJIAN

The UMass Varsity Swim Team hosts Holy Cross tonight in a meet scheduled for 7:00 p.m. at Boyden Pool. This is the big meet of the season which the team has been eagerly anticipating. Last year they put it to the Cross and this year they are hoping for the same.

Coach McCafferty listed some of the swimmers participating in the meet:

David Guiney and Ed Johnson will be swimming Breast stroke.

Joe Hebert will be attempting to break two minutes in the 200-yard freestyle.

Dick Blaisdell, Peter Ouellette and Spencer Sullivan will be aiming for a repeat of last week's strength in the sprints against Holy Cross.

Jack Tyler will again be distance swimming in the 500 and 1,000 yard swims.

Paul Joy who has placed first for UMass in the last two meets in diving will be performing.

This should prove to be the most exciting meet of the season with a lot of close competition.

UConn At The Cage...Tonight

The Beginning Of A Big Week

By EARLE BARROLL

The following is a truism: "If Rhode Island is as good as everyone says it is then we can't stumble along the way. We cannot help them by us losing, because we want to play them for the championship."

The following is from where this truism came: Jack Leaman.

The following is a possible stumbling block: UConn.

Tonight at Curry Hicks Cage these three forces will meet head on as the Huskies from UConn come to do battle with the Redmen with the center tap set for 8 p.m.

In publications across the nation Rhode Island has been rated as the team to beat in the Yankee Conference... the Redmen are the challengers...UConn and the rest are so-called "also rans."

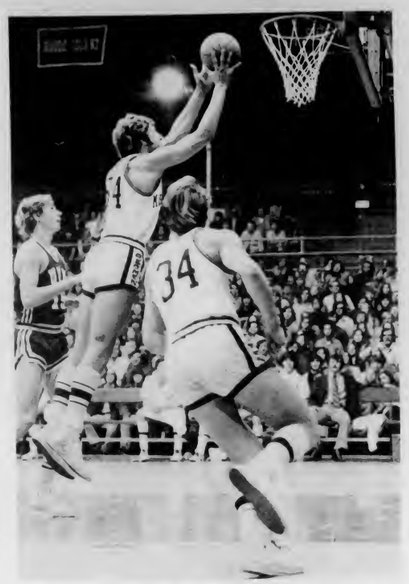
But for those who have followed the trend of the conference in recent years, they know that the impossible is possible and the sure bet can sometimes meet with disaster.

This is what faces the Redmen tonight. "For us it's a big game, this being a conference game on "It is not a win or else type of game, but if you don't win at home you have to go out and win on their home court."

Tonight also ushers in the start of a tough three game stretch for the Redmen that will see them facing Manhattan at Madison Square Garden on Thursday and Harvard at Cambridge on Saturday.

What effect can this have on the team? "The quality of the competition will effect us more than the quantity," Leaman pointed out. "Most of them present similar problems with each having big front lines and adequate backcourts. Our job will be to control the tempo of the game with out defense."

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian SPORTS



But first things come first and tonight it's UConn and they have the big front court (6'7, 6'7, 6'6) and the adequate backcourt (6'3, 6') that Leaman speaks of.

So far this season the Huskies are 2-2 with wins over Yale and Vermont (by 30 points) and losses to Fairfield and Dartmouth. They are a young team with only one senior in the starting five and they use their height to their advantage by employing a stack on offense (two men low post on both sides of the lane).

Last season the UConn offense was built around the twin-gunners, Bob Boyd and Bob Staak, but this year five players are sharing the scoring and in pure logic five is going to be harder to stop than two, especially when the five are good.

For the Redmen Leaman plans to make some changes in the starting lineup to get the offense rolling again.

JUST A FEW NOTES--The first New England coaches poll should be coming out today or tomorrow and the top three will most likely be Rhode Island, Providence and UMass...Leaman noted on the trip back from Northeastern that he needs 13 more wins to reach the 100 win mark in his six years here...The Varsity M Club will be sponsoring a bus to the Harvard game for anyone on campus. For tickets call Ron Barrett at 549-6236...Tickets are still on sale for the Manhattan and Harvard games at the ticket office in Boyden...In a Boston newspaper recently the following was written: "If you're one of those avid UMass fans (you are the best around here)....."

GO AHEAD...TRY TO FIND YOURSELF IN THE CROWD--A survey has shown that this has become one of the favorite pasttimes of sports page readers on Campus. If you have some time though check out what Charlie Peters (54) is doing...he's rebounding the ball!!! Tonight Jack Leaman will be using the big guy to restore some firepower on the boards after the Northeastern game. Peter Trow (31), after a fine game against the other Huskies, will also see his share of action...Did you see yourself? (MDC photo by Barbara Brecher.)

Lock Haven Turns Lock Ness; Matmen Need A Win Tonight

By JOHN BOCK

One might say that the UMass wrestling team is like a bowling ball as it starts out slow, gathers momentum and is only stopped by the pins at the end of the alley.

The analogy is well documented as the Redman grapplers dropped their two matches on the weekend trip south. It was California State College of Pennsylvania upsetting the Redmen 20-11 and preparing the mat for the ninth ranked NCAA College Division team, Lock Haven State College and their romp over the UMass 29-7.

It was a long drive down on a rainy and foggy night and perhaps the weather had a foreboding feeling that the Redmen couldn't shake off. Or it could have been the fact that Thomas Field House was living up to its reputation as the House Of Noise as the Lock Haven fans brought the roof down for their home team. Either way Coach Homer Barr's team wrestled like they just did not enjoy being out of New England.

Arriving on Friday night just in time to see Lock Haven beat Cal. State 19-15, the Redmen saw what both teams were like. Cal State wrestled a team that highlighted upper classmen in seven out of ten weight classes while the youngest team in Lock Haven history (four freshmen) came on with the right amount of wrestling to win the match.

On Saturday afternoon it was UMass vs. California and it was also UMass getting off to a bad start as Dave Amato recorded his first loss of the season due to an ankle injury sustained in the opening minutes of the bout.

Barry Godowsky looked impressive as he cleaned up Mullins of Cal. State 4-2.

Things got darker at 1:34 when freshman Russ Chateauneuf lost his first match of the season, 4-2, to senior co-captain Jim Jones. He also incurred a knee injury that kept him out of the evening match and makes his performance for the remainder of the semester doubtful.

It was tie-loss-loss and big win for UMass in the next three matches. Freshman John Connolly, from Westford Academy in Mass., won his first varsity match 11-2 over freshman Carl Felice. Connolly dominated the match from the second period as he took Felice down and then put him on his back several times for the big decision.

NEIWA Champ Carl Dambman, still feeling the effects of an injury incurred during eliminations, found himself wrapped up in legs for two periods and lost his first, 3-0.

The big event of the match was Captain Sheldon Goldberg's first appearance of the season and his suosequent record breaking win over Zaccaro of California. Shelley showed the effectiveness of his single leg as he took his opponent down four times to win 9-4. This was Shelley's 29th win, one better than former UMass great Jesse Brogan, who held the record since 1965.

For all the effort the match went to Cal. State and UMass went to prepare for Lock Haven.

No amount of preparation could have helped the Redmen as they came out to face a crowd of 3,500 Lock Haven fans rooting for the Eagles to get their 250th career win. Going into the match Lock Haven sported an outstanding record of 249-38-7 and faced the question of could the New England champs give them their 250th?

UMass did and in fine style as both NEIWA champs tied and only one win was recorded. Amato and Godowsky fell to the team of Jim Rupp and Donny Fay. Rupp trounced the injured Amato 10-3 and Fay, Lock Haven's two time NAIA champ and outstanding wrestler, showed his takedown skill on the way to an 11-1 decision over Godowsky.

Mike McGlaughlin took Chateauneuf's place and did a commendable job plus being the first UMass grappler to fall to the biased refereeing. Close to but not off the edge of the mat Mike pancaked his man right on to his back and not only did he not get the pin but he didn't even get the takedown. Coach Barr, normally agreeable with the refs vigorously protested the call but to no avail.

The rest were all losses with the exception of Shelley's and Carl's tie and Chris Hodson's impressive win at heavyweight.

As UMass faded away to the locker room the score stood 29-7 and Lock Haven had their 250th win. To Coach Barr the weekend was a disappointment to say the least. "We are at the point now where a loss to teams like California and Lock Haven don't help us at all. If we had all the starters and a few other things in our favor then the score wouldn't be so bad. They (Lock Haven) comes to UMass next year and they better come prepared for surprises because I think we'll have a few."

Grapplers At MIT

After coming off of a disasterous weekend road trip the Redman wrestlers travel to MIT in Cambridge this evening for an 8:00 match with the Engineers.

Last year MIT finished in the Top Ten in the NEIWA and will not be pushovers. Last year UMass beat them 22-11 and the Engineers thought that they could have beaten the Redmen. A few weeks later at the New Englands they saw the fallacy of their notion as the Redmen wrestled flawlessly against their boys.

With injury and weight problems the Redmen go to grapple and hopefully bring back a win that would help the ailing 1-3-1 record. At 118, it will be Amato or Phillips and Barry Godowsky follows at 128. Mike McGlaughlin comes at 134 while Dave Reynold goes up to 142. Goldberg takes it easy (as far as cutting weight goes) at 150. Clay Jester will hold down the 158 spot and Bruce Buckbee comes back to the lineup at 177.

Pups Test Little Redmen

By LOUIS J. GROCCIA

Tonight at six o'clock the freshmen basketball team will be going after their fifth victory without a loss; opposing them will be the freshmen from UConn. The pups are coming into this game with a one and one record, losing to Yale by a point in their opener and rolling over Kingsley Hall.

Starting in the backcourt for UConn will be Tom Ryser, a 5-11 defensive whiz and 6-3 Larry Livramento, a steady player who has the capaicity to turn a game around. Up front at the forwards will be 6-5 Earl Wilson and 6-4 Curt Johnson. Wilson scored 24 points in their opener against Yale and how well he is contained by the UMass forwards will be a key to the outcome of the contest. Roger Lawton, at 6-7 will be playing opposite John Murphy tonight in what should be a good match-up of big men.

UMass will be going with the same starting five of Murphy, Tom Gillams, and Jim Burke up front with Bill Endicott and Mike Flanagan in the backcourt. Either Gillams or Burke will have the task of containing Wilson in what will need to be quite an act of containment.

HOOP NOTES--Through four games Murphy is leading the team in points scored, shooting percentage, and personal fouls. Gillams leads in rebounds, Endicott in assists, Flanagan in free throws.

Notices

CO-REC SWIM-The co-rec swimming meet will be held Thursday evening at 7:30 at the Boyden pool.

HANDBALL AND PADDLEBALL-Campus handball and paddleball championship competition must be completed by December 21.

PHYS ED STUDENT TEACHERS-Due to so many scheduling conflicts, the meeting for the second semester student teachers in physcial education will be held in Boyden 251 immediately following the UConn basketball game, today. All prospective student teachers for next semester MUST attend this 9:45 p.m.

BASKETBALL TICKETS-Tickets for Thursday's game vs. Manhattan at Madison Square Garden are now on sale at the Boyden ticket office at $1.50 student prices. More tickets for Saturday's game at Harvard will be on sale at $2 at the ticket office in Boyden.

GRADUATE STUDENTS-All graduate students who possess fall semester Recreational Activity cards are asked to either renew their cards for the spring semester or return their equipment, prior to December 22, 1971. Spring semester Recreational cards may be obtained by paying the appropriate fee at the Athletic Ticket Office -225 Boyden-and bringing their payment receipt to the Intramural Office-251 Boyden.

A Big Upset

Now there are only three undefeated teams in New England. UMass, Dartmouth and Maine, yes Maine. Last night at Orono the Black Bears pulled the upset of the season so far in defeating previously unbeaten and nationally touted Rhode Island, 58-53. There is certainly trouble in Orono this season. The Redmen travel there for their last game of the season, March 8.

Skins Top Rams

George Allen and his travelling band of former Rams (now Washington Redskins) got sweet revenge last night at the Los Angeles Coliseum in defeating the Los Angeles Rams, 38-24 in Allen's first appearance in L.A. since going to the nation's capitol.

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather
Well what I think I mean is I like you.....

VOLUME XCIX, ISSUE 67 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 15, 1971

ASIF THE BRIDGE WEREN'T BAD ENOUGH--The Planning Office laughed when they got a chance to put up the bridge. Thought they were going to disrupt everything. Well, the joke is on them because now we've got a troll living under the bridge and he likes to eat innocent freshmen girls, so watch it! (Photo by Gary Alpaugh)

Ms. Morgan Says Women's Movement Alive

By BUFFY SPENCER

Robin Morgan, one of the nation's leading feminists, spoke last night to a capacity crowd in the Student Union Ballroom. The audience was predominantly, but not exclusively female.

Ms. Morgan, standing behind a too tall podium, said that she felt that in coming to UMass she was coming home. She said that she felt no need to talk about why women felt they were oppressed here because the women's movement at UMass is alive and kicking. She did seek to correct what she termed the male-media-fostered illusion about the movement.

She then went into a breakdown of the women's movement in three areas. The first is the women's rights movement. This group she said is characterized by moderate leadership and is concerned mostly with getting women into government, which is understandable since women have been made to be satisfied.

The second area is that of women's liberation. Ms. Morgan criticized the media-expression "lib" for diminishing the seriousness of the issue.

The third area is the radical feminist movement, which she got involved in about a year ago, believing it is the smallest, newest, and fastest growing area.

Ms. Morgan added that sexism is the root of all oppression, developing from when men discovered that they played a role in reproduction, patriarchy and capitalism.

Ms. Morgan declared, "Women live under a system of extended feudalism. A housewife works 99.6 hours per week with no pay and no benefits. The sole means of a women's survival is to get a man and hold a man. Women are judged on their looks, men on what they do."

She feels one of the biggest problems is rape. She stated, "Women are always made to feel the guilt in a rape. Only 4% of all rapes are reported. The feminist definition of rape is any time sexual intercourse occurs when women don't initiate it out of true love and desire."

Ms. Morgan went on to define the male in contemporary society. "They are white, straight, and male, preferably fat, old, and wealthy. If one is young, non-white, homosexual and poor he has some heavy problems."

She pointed out the women's movement was once confined to white, middle-class, college-educated women. It has now she says spread to housewives, working women, high school students, welfare mothers, and grandmothers. With this has come a planning and channeling of a cooled rage.

Ms. Morgan then urged women to stay in school, "If you could stomach it." Outlining future developments such as extra-uterine birth and sex determination she said that 1984 would seem like a picnic if these developments were left in the hands of men.

She also called for good women's programs in colleges and universities instead of the experimental facade like that of UMass with enough courses to allow a major in women's studies.

She summed up what's happening in the women's movement as a new level of seriousness replacing the rosy glow of sisterhood. Emphatically she stated, "I ain't playin' no more!" She closed by saying that women were going to change the face of the earth and the way men had been mucking it up they had better do it soon.

At the close of her speech, she threw the floor open for questions. She explained that she would not take questions for men. "It's not that I can't handle them; it's just that I'm fucking bored by them." This was greeted by another round of applause from her supporters.

On The Inside:

- McCloskey page 2
- S.C.R.E.W. page 7

Robin Morgan, one of the leading feminists, makes a point about why she feels women. She discussed the womens movement in great depth, including the media fostered illusion of what women are and supposed to be. (Photo by Gary Alpaugh)

Businesses Promise To Steady Price Freeze

WASHINGTON (AP) - Almost 30 per cent of America's largest businesses say they hope to hold the line on prices, Price Commission Chairman C. Jackson Grayson said Monday.

About 26 per cent say they have filed or intended to file requests to raise prices on some or all of their product lines, while the remainder have not responded or have answered in a way that leaves their intentions unclear, he said.

Grayson, concerned that too much public attention was being paid to companies seeking price increases for autos, steel, coal and other goods, sent a personal telegram last Nov. 27 to the 1,500 biggest firms asking them what they intend to do about prices.

These are the firms, with sales of $100million or more a year, that must seek advance approval of the Price Commission before increasing their prices. Together, they represent almost half of all sales in the economy.

As of Monday 973 replies had been received, the commission said. Of those, 428 said they hoped to hold the line or even in some cases reduce prices.

Another 395 said they intend to seek price increases, or have done so already.

Another 150 either said they would answer later or replied in such a way as to leave their intentions a mystery.

Grayson said that even among those firms that planned to seek increases, "I find that most requests will be limited to specific products and services."

Meanwhile Monday the full Price Commission took up the matter of rent controls.

A spokesman said the recommendations of the Rent Advisory Board reached the commission Monday, and that a decision on rents was expected by Wednesday. The commission also is expected to form guidelines on health costs by then.

The Pay Board, which meets Tuesday through Thursday, was scheduled to review a pattern-setting aerospace contract of the United Auto Workers that reportedly calls for increases of about 30 per cent over three years.

Welfare Bill Approved

WASHINGTON (AP) - The House and Senate gave final approval and sent to President Nixon Tuesday a bill to require able-bodied welfare recipients to sign up for job training.

The measure passed both houses by voice vote. It came before the House as a Senate rider to a minor bill and won approval despite suggestions that approval might impair the chance of passage of the overall welfare reform bill.

This measure, largely embodying Nixon's recommendations, was passed by the House early this year, but has been stuck in the Senate Finance Committee.

"It would be better to insist that the Senate action on HR One the welfare bill instead of action on a piece of it here and there," Rep. John W. Byrnes, R—Wis. told the House.

Later, speaking with reporters, Byrnes said the welfare bill contains both incentives and requirements for welfare recipients to take jobs.

"The incentives are not affected by the bill we passed today," Byrnes said. "Those still require passage of H.R. One. But some of the requirements in the welfare bill now are in this legislation–and conceivably this could make some people less eager to pass the bigger bill.

Existing law directs the states to require welfare recipients in appropriate cases to sign up with the Work Incentive Program WIN to be trained for jobs.

Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D—Ark., said practice in different states has varied widely, some directing large numbers of beneficiaries to the program, others exempting nearly all.

The bill passed Tuesday would specify which persons would be exempt, principally those too old or too young to work.

Paul McClosky Lectures Tonight

By STEVE TRIPOLI

Tonight at 8 p.m. Congressman Paul N. McCloskey will appear at Johnson Chapel, Amherst College to talk on liberal republicanism and his reasons for campaigning against Richard Nixon for the Republican presidential nomination. The speech is sponsored by the Amherst College Lecture Committee and is open to the public.

McCloskey was unknown in Washington until a special election in 1967, noticed by people mostly because one of his opponents for the Republican nomination was Shirley Temple, won him the congressional seat he now holds. He still clearly faces an uphill battle to capture the New Hampshire primary next March, but his campaign is moving along better than would have been expected. Significant elements of the liberal Republican leadership are backing him, including Robert Reno, the Concord lawyer who is state chairman of the campaign. There is now a sixteen member staff working out of his Concord headquarters, all but three of whom are being paid $35 a week.

A rather interesting background follows the Congressman wherever he goes, one which may make people wonder how he ever became a "dove." As a young man he worked his way through Stanford University as a garbage collector, hod carrier, laborer, and athletic coach. He also was a college baseball player. He graduated from Stanford Law School and played some semi-pro baseball for a while.

He was an enlisted man in the Navy from 1945-47, and a second lieutenant and platoon leader during the Korean War, for which he was awarded the Navy Cross and the Silver Star for gallantry and heroism in action, along with the Purple Heart. He is presently a colonel in the U.S. Marine Corps Reserve.

He has also been active in conservation, as Co-Chairman of the first nationwide "Earth Day" in 1970 and as a recipient of the 1970 Congressional Award from the National Recreation and Park Association.

Congressman McCloskey and his wife Caroline have four children, aged 20 to 13, who along with his wife McCloskey claims is enough to keep any Presidential aspirant from going on an ego trip. "Much better to have your family tell you you're a dummy once a day" he says, to which his wife once answered, "No problem, dear."

Home Ec Dean Retires

Miss Helen G. Canoyer, who retired as dean of the N.Y. State College of Home Economics at Cornell University in 1968, recently retired from the position of dean of the UMass School of Home Economics.

In September 1968, the Cornell University Dean Emeritus began a three-year assignment at UMass. While there, she served as chairman of a committee to study the future of the School of Home Economics. The Study Committee submitted its report to the Chancellor in April, 1971.

At Cornell, Dean Canoyer started the evaluation program for the College of Home Economics, and helped develop its international program. One of her long-range goals for the College was realized in May 1968 when the North Wing, a four-story, multipurpose addition to Martha Van Rensselaer Hall, was dedicated.

Before becoming dean at Cornell in 1953, Dr. Canoyer taught in positions ranging from instructor to full professor in marketing and economics at the School of Business Adminstration, University of Minnesota. She received the B.S., the M.A., and the Ph.D. degrees from the University of Minnesota.

She has written extensively about marketing and economics for both national and international publications.

In 1962, Miss Canoyer was appointed by President John F. Kennedy as chairman of his first Consumer Advisory Council.

She was named the first woman member of the Board of Directors of the Grand Union Company (1966) and continues to serve on the Board.

Dean Canoyer, who has traveled throughout the world, was a member of a team of six women educators sent to Africa by the government in 1961 to conduct workshops on the problems of educating African women and children.

She received the National "Citation of Appreciation" from the American Home Economics Association, in recognition of her services to the federal government and to other countries.

The University of Minnesota presented her with an Outstanding Achievement Award in 1956. On her retirement from Cornell University, the Alumni Association of the New York State College of Home Economics established the Helen G. Canoyer undergraduate scholarship in her honor.

Dr. Canoyer, who resides at 15 Hickory Lane, Amherst, Massachusetts is now serving as a consultant.

Should the U.Mass. Campus Police continue wearing guns on campus?

Hear Officer Scott of the Campus Police and Richard Verrochi of the Student Senate present their views on Thurs., Dec. 16, at 8 p.m. in Thompson 104.

Sponsored by the U. Mass Debate Union

Quicksilver 24 Hours

MDC NEWS HOTLINE 5-2550

Learn to Drive AMHERST AUTO SCHOOL 34 Main Street 256-6066

AMHERST Cinema Wed. to Tues. Eves: 8:00

An epic drama of adventure and exploration!

MGM presents a STANLEY KUBRICK PRODUCTION 2001 a space odyssey

BARGAIN NITES Mon. - Tues. All Seats $1.00

Women's Leather Hikers $23 $20

Men's Hikers Leather and Suede $14.50 to $23.00

Get 'em before you go.

THE SHOE-BIN In the Alley

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

The office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN is on the second floor of the Student Union on the campus of the University of Massachusetts, zip code 01002. Telephones: 545-2550 (news); 545-0344 (sports); 549-1311 (business).

Second-class postage is paid in Amherst. THE DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes Monday through Friday during the academic year, except during vacation, exam periods or holidays. Accepted for mailing under the authority of an act of March 8, 1879, as amended by an act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $6.00 per semester or $10.00 per year.

Here we see the masterpiece of craftsmanship known as the Screw. It will be presented to the most ambitious professor, in the field of academia who is chosen by a series of Student Ballots. (Photo by Gary Alpaugh.)

Peace Corps, Vista Recruits This Week

By HUGH OWEN

Wednesday and Thursday of this week Peace Corps and Vista recruiters will be on the Concourse Level of the Campus Center offering information of these programs. Anyone wishing to pick up an application or to just talk with the recruiters is welcome to do so. Assistance will also be available to people who already have applications and are having difficulty filling out the lengthy forms.

The basic process in joining the Peace Corps or Vista is to first fill out an application. It is then sent to Washington and applicants are notified when their applications have been received.

A training session of roughly two weeks comes next. For Peace Corps volunteers the training takes place in the country the people will be working. Vista volunteers are trained in the poverty area they will be working in. The main outline of the training session consists of instruction in the language of the area, the cultural background of the people, and a brushing up on basic skills.

Charles Everett, one of the recruiters who will be here at UMass, said "A good percentage of UMass students in the past have joined the Peace Corps and Vista programs. We are lacking, however, applicants in the fields of agriculture, civil engineering, architecture, and math and science teachers. We hope people in these areas will come down and talk to us."

Peace Corps and Vista service is now no longer an alternative to military service. It is, however, recognized by all draft boards as an alternative service for Conscientious Objectors. Those Conscientious Objectors who may wish to join the Peace Corps or Vista as an alternative service are invited also to talk with the recruiters.

Student Committee Proposes Athletic Council Change

By MDC STAFF

A compromise plan for reorganizing the Athletic Council has been proposed by the Student Affairs Committee of the Faculty Senate. The compromise seeks to reconcile the conflicts between the proposal of the Faculty Senate Committee on Committees and the proposal of the Student Senate.

The compromise maintains the Athletic Council as a committee of the Faculty Senate. The Student Senate plan would have made the council a committee of the student government.

According to the Student Affairs Committee's plan, the new Athletic Council would be composed of six members of the professional staff (including the Executive Vice President of the Alumni Association) and five undergraduate students (including the President of the Student Senate). The Director of Athletics would serve as an ex officio member without vote. A separate Alumni Committee would "recommend and promote ways of obtaining greater alumni support" for athletics. The proposal allows for maximum student representation under an interpretation of NCAA policy.

The committee's proposal further specifies that all athletic accounts and budgets would be open to scrutiny by representatives of the Student Senate, but does not grant the Student Senate veto power over the rate of the undergraduate athletic fee, a provision that is in the Student Senate proposal.

The Student Affairs Committee is composed of eight faculty, one administrator, and eight students. Its recommendations will be presented to the Student Senate tonight and to the Faculty Senate on Thursday.

Council Bars Students

By MDC STAFF

Nine students tried and failed to gain admittance to yesterday's meeting of the Executive Committee of the Athletic Council. The session had been called to discuss ways in which students who participate in athletic programs could also participate in formulating athletic policy.

The students wanted to attend the session to discuss their ideas about student participation. Prof. George Richason, chairman of the Athletic Council, told the students that the council's policy on attendance by outsiders had not been formulated, but that meetings were usually closed. He stated that he did not think it "advisable" to admit them. After some discussion, Richason consented to allow one representative of the group to attend the meeting.

According to Senate President Sandwen, who is the only student member of the Council, the session was devoted to discussion establishment of a "Captain's Council" to be composed of the captains of the varsity intercollegiate teams, and an "Intramural Council," to be composed of representatives elected from the intramural teams. Sandwen reported that the Student Senate would help the Athletic Council organize the groups, but he added that such councils were "an inadequate gesture" toward student participation. He asserted that only reorganization of the Athletic Council itself would guarantee students the representation they deserve.

Senior's Discuss Grad Money

By SUSAN LOBAO

The 1972 Senior Committee met last night at the Campus Center to elect new officers and to discuss proposed plans for graduation.

In an open ballot the following members were elected to the 1973 Executive Board: Margie Davis, Chairman, Walter Cronin, Vice-Chairman, Bill Robinson, Treasurer, and Marsha Reilly, Secretary.

During a two hour forum the Committee disputed the use of $12,000 received from Senior dues. Some members preferred the idea of a traditional Senior Day beer party while others proposed to help support the erection of a school in Ecuador.

The question of a class gift also raised a problem--whether it should be a scholarship fund for higher education, or a donation to a charitable organization.

The Committee voted for a Senior class poll on Registration Day to determine the overall view concerning the Senior Day activities, class gifts, and Commencement procedures.

Jerry Lewis Twin Cinema 584-3209

Cinema 1 Bonnie and Clyde 6, 10 Bullit 8

Cinema 2 Music Lovers 5:45, 9:50 Burn 7:50

Admission $1 with College ID M-TH

Hamp Shopping Plaza King St., Northampton

dig these gift jeans

Denim Jeans Corduroy Jeans Double Knit Dress Flares

Always the area's largest selection.

Male SLACKS JEANS

WEAR HOUSE Open Every Nite Til 9 Until X-mas

MDC Classifieds

We're Open!

The Campus Center Printing Shop has been renovated (finally) and is now operating.

Our hours: Monday - Friday 8:45 - 5 p.m. Saturday 9:00 - 4:30 (closed 12:00 - 12:30)

FACES OF EARTH 159 North Pleasant St. Amherst Next to the Post Office

Wooden Bowls Boards and Chopping Blocks for Christmas

Open til 10 p.m. Mon. thru Sat.

In The Nation And The World

Monetary Agreement Reached In Azores

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon and French President Georges Pompidou climaxed more than nine hours of talks Tuesday by reaching broad agreement to devalue the dollar and, in general, revamp the international monetary system. Nixon, returning to Washington after two days of talks with Pompidou in the Azores, said he could not go into details of the agreement.

It was clear, however, that the two presidents had reached an accord that would likely end a prolonged muddle in international money markets–perhaps as early as this coming weekend when finance ministers of the ten richest non-Communist nations meet in Washington.

Generally, the agreement was understood to envision a devaluation of the dollar by up to eight percent, revaluation of the German mark and the Japanese yen and an increase in the range through which exchange rates of major currencies could fluctuate in world money markets.

The announcement that the dollar may be devalued drew support from congressional leaders, with Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott noting that a modest devaluation "would hardly be noticeable internally."

In Brief...

Alaskan Natives Get Land

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House passed a bill today to give Alaskan Natives $962.5 million and 40 million acres in settlement of their century-old land claims.

The Senate was expected to complete congressional action promptly on a compromise of bills passed earlier by both houses. This would clear the bill for President Nixon's signature.

The compromise was worked out by a Senate-House conference committee.

New Cambodian Fighting

SAIGON (AP) — New fighting broke out on Cambodia's northeastern front Tuesday. South Vietnamese troops reported capturing the rubber plantation town of Chup in their cross-border offensive into eastern Cambodia.

On the northeastern front, Cambodian soldiers clashed with North Vietnamese troops near the town of Taing Kauk, 48 miles from Phnom Penh.

The Cambodian command said government soldiers fought a 20-minute battle.

India Closes In On Dacca

Indian soldiers strengthened by two separate helicopter assaults are closing in on Dacca and an Indian spokesman said the East Pakistani capital will be under siege within two days. Inside the city, the Pakistani military commander said his troops would "fight it out to the last man."

In New York, the Soviet Union used its veto in the United Nations Security Council for the third time in nine days Monday night to kill a proposed U.N. appeal for a cease-fire.

U.N. Resumes Talks

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The General Assembly called Monday for resumption of Middle East peace talks through U.N. mediator Gunnar Jarring and for an Israeli commitment to withdraw from occupied Egyptian territory.

Ignoring a warning by Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban that it was creating a war atmosphere, the assembly approved the measure 79 to 7 with 36 abstentions.

This is one of the Indian-made Gnat fighters near Calcutta. Pilot's superior officer, at right, not identified and neither are the airmen. Mrs. Ram is in white in background.

Nixon May Reconsider Trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon may reassess his plans for a historic journey to Moscow next May, it is understood, unless the Soviet Union begins to exercise a restraining influence in the India-Pakistan war.

The Nixon administration would like to see the Soviets emerge as a force for restraint within a very few days.

There was reason to believe that, in the absence of such a development, reappraisals here might go beyond Nixon's summit-visit plans to embrace the entire American Soviet relationship.

As of the moment, however, there was no indication that Moscow's role in South Asia had reached the point where Nixon's planned visit to Moscow in late May had been affected.

However, the administration has made clear its strong displeasure at two Soviet vetoes of resolutions passed by the United Nations Security Council calling for an India-Pakistan cease-fire and withdrawal of troops from foreign territories.

Early Tuesday morning, White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler summoned reporters to a 1 a.m. briefing in the Azores, where Nixon was conferring with French President Georges Pompidou, to veto

The Soviet Union is a chief military supplier of India, which one State Department spokesman has called the principal aggressor in the outbreak of fighting. Communist China, which Nixon plans to visit next Feb. 21-28, gives much of its military aid to Pakistan.

American officials, it is understood, suspect the Soviet attitude toward the conflict may be motivated by a desire to humiliate mainland China-to demonstrate to the world that China is unable to prevent the military disaster that has overtaken its Pakistani allies in the Eastern, or Bengali, section of Pakistan.

Buy One Get One Free

every Wednesday Night

BRUNI'S PIZZA

Corner of Main & Triangle

256-6676

Terror Gangs Strike In Belfast

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Terror gangs struck at the homes of politicians and judges Tuesday in a coordinated assault on public officials. Three persons were hurt and three homes were wrecked by bombs.

The British government made a stern new demand to the Irish republic in the south to stop providing a haven to gunmen of the outlawed Irish Republican Army. The British, in effect, rejected an Irish proposal to bring the U.N. Security Council into the conflict.

The terrorist campaign against public officials was launched Sunday with the slaying of Sen. John Barnhill and the bombing of his home in Strabane, County Tyrone near the border with the Irish republic.

He was the first legislator killed in more than two years of violence and brought Northern Ireland's death toll to 196.

The home of Ulster's only woman senator, Edith Taggart, was attacked Tuesday. She escaped injury but her husband, who tried to grapple with the raiders, was hit on the hip with the butt of a pistol.

The three guerrillas then fled without planting the bomb they had with them.

The residences of three judges and a leading Unionist party politician were also attacked in a half-hour of violence in Belfast's exclusive Malone district.

One attack failed completely when the wife of one judge answered a call at her door. She saw a terrorist with a stocking mask and slammed the door in his face. He fled.

dvp

JOYCE LADNER

"Black Women and Women's Liberation"

Wednesday, 8 p.m. SBA 120

PRINT SALE

APPROVED! BY THE N.P.A.L.A. LICENSE COMMITTEE

2ND ANNUAL UNDERGRADUATE PRINTMAKERS SHOW

RECOMMENDED FOR CHILDREN

HOLIDAY BAZAAR

A sale of unusual graphic art will be held December 15, 16, and 17 at the Cape Cod lounge in the Univ. of Mass. Student Union. This exhibition of prints, the work of university undergraduate and graduate printmakers and selected local talent, will include original lithographs, woodcuts, serigraphs and etchings. The exhibition will be open to the public from 9AM to 5:30 PM each day and until 8PM on Thursday the 16th.

SPONSORED BY THE PROGRAM COUNCIL

Indians Begin Dacca Bombardment

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Indian artillery began a bombardment of Dacca Tuesday. A dispatch from the East Pakistani capital said the battle for the city had begun, fires had broken out from shelling and the provincial governor and his Cabinet had sought refuge with the Red Cross.

As fighting was reported seven miles from Dacca, the Indian navy said it had struck a devastating blow at Chittagong with an air and sea pounding that touched off fires in that most important port in East Pakistan.

Lt. Gen. A.K. Niazi, Pakistan's commander in East Pakistan, declared in Dacca he would fight to the last man if necessary "for the sacred soil of Pakistan." A doctor there said more wounded were flowing into hospitals "than we can deal with."

An Indian spokesman said 47 Americans remained in Dacca.

Radio Pakistan was silent on the fighting around Dacca, but reported Pakistani air raids on the western front, 1,000 miles across India. India said two Pakistani planes were shot down on that front over Srinagar, capital of the Indian State of Kashmir. A New Delhi spokesman reported an Indian plane was shot down in a dogfight over Srinagar.

Defense Minister Jagivan Ram told the Indian Parliament "it is our hope" that East Pakistan will be conquered soon, but gave for the first time a breakdown of what the cost was in 10 days of fighting.

The totals were 1,978 of the Indian forces killed, 5,025 wounded, 1,662 missing and 41 warplanes lost. He did not have figures for Pakistani losses escept for more than 4,000 troops captured and 83 planes shot down.

Indian troops were marching on Dacca from the northwest, east, northeast, and backed by tanks, against a thinned Pakistani army, bleeding from casualties and with whole units cut off. Indian intelligence sources said 15,000 to 20,000 Pakistani troops may be in Dacca, their numbers swelled by stragglers. About 80,000 Pakistani troops are believed to be in the province.

An India spokesman in New Delhi said Indian advance units were six miles from Dacca.

Meanwhile, Pakistani political leader conceded Tuesday that West Pakistan had lost control of the tide of battle in East Pakistan as the guns of India's advancing forces set fire to Dacca. Radio Pakistan said Indian bombs struck the house of the provincial governor, who resigned and sought Red Cross asylum.

In Karachi, heads of the seven political parties that constitute Prime Minister Nurul Amin's United Coalition, said: "The situation at present is that there is no liaison between West and East Pakistan."

They appealed to President Nixon and Communist China's premier, Chou En-lai, "to urgently arrange for practical help to Pakistan" in its war with India.

With fighting reported seven miles from Dacca, the Indian navy said it had given Chittagong a devastating air and sea pounding and set ablaze parts of the city, East Pakistan's most important port.

In New York, Justice Abu Sayeed Chowdhury-head of an unofficial delegation of the Bangla Desh rebels-called the resignation of government officials in Dacca "a great moment of the birth of a new nation." He added: "Dacca has been liberated."

The U.N. Security Council, stymied three times by Soviet vetoes of cease-fire proposals, continued its efforts to act. Britain and France took the initiative in compromise negotiations.

Sargent Orders Premium Reduction

BOSTON (AP-The Sargent administration Tuesday announced it has ordered the insurance industry to reduce 1971 premium rates for compulsory bodily injury coverage 55.2 per cent from the 1971 level.

Gov. Francis W. Sargent and Insurance Commissioner John G. Ryan said compulsory rates will be cut 27.6 per cent next year.

Additionally, they said, the insurance industry has been ordered to provide a 27.6 per cent credit against next year's rates because of excessive profits earned during 1971.

The total of the rate deduction and the credit means motorists can expect to pay 55.2 per cent less next year than they did this year for bodily injury insurance, the only type of coverage included in the limited no-fault auto insurance law which went into effect last Jan. 1.

Sargent said, however, that "the insurance companies question our authority to provide...credits.

"Candidly, we can't be sure the extra premium credits we're trying to deliver will survive a court test."

The Insurance Division reduced bodily injury rates for 1971 15 per cent when the no-fault law was implemented.

Despite the reduction, it was charged that the industry has realized windfall profits because of the success of no-fault.

The law provides claims under $2,00 be settled out of court and paid by the motorist's own insurer regardless of blame in the accident. Claims for pain and suffering are barred under the law unless actual medical expenses exceed $500.

The legislature this year gave Ryan the authority to investigate credits to motorists because of excessive profits earned by the industry in 1971.

It was disclosed at recent hearings held by Ryan that the average cost per claim decreased 60 per cent during the first nine months of 1971 compared to the first nine months of 1970.

Senate Reforms Campaigning

WASHINGTON (AP)-A compromise bill to reform campaign spending practices was passed by the Senate today amid indications the House would delay final congressional action until next year.

Passage came on voice vote.

The Senate's decision came less than a day after congressional conferees settled on a final version of legislation designed to control the cost of seeking federal elective office.

ATTENTION

All RSO Groups & Activities

All groups currently operating under constitutions granted by the Student Government Association (Student Senate) are required to fill out the form below. Those groups which should fill out the form include all RSO's, Activities, recent Executive Orders, and those groups who wish to apply for such status. These forms are to be returned no later than TUESDAY, DECEMBER 21, 1971, to the address below.

RETURN TO
Wm. Spinn
Govt. Affairs Comm.
Student Senate
RSO 801
Campus Center

RSO Registration Form

Name of Group _____ RSO# _____

REPRESENTATIVE _____

Rep's Add. _____ Ph.# _____

(check appropriate item)

Constituted _____ Exec. Order _____

New Group _____ Area Govt. _____ Dorm _____

FAILURE TO FILE THIS FORM WILL RESULT IN LOSS OF RSO STATUS

dvp presents

JOYCE LADNER

Howard Univ. Sociologist speaking on

"Black Women and Women's Liberation"

8 p.m. Wed., Dec. 15 SBA 120

The lovely Peter Pan spreads his youthfulness and joy throughout the Christmas Season, by adamantly proclaiming its "hip" to be young. (Photo by Gary Alpaugh)

ROTC Expands Scholarships

More money and additional scholarships are now available to students who get their college education under the Army ROTC program.

Opportunities for more students to win valuable Army ROTC scholarships opened up on Nov. 24 when President Nixon signed into law two bills--one to increase scholarships; the other to double the monthly subsistence allowance.

The scholarship law--Public Law 92-166--increased the ceiling on Army ROTC scholarships from 5,500 to 6,500. There are now 5,500 students attending college on Army ROTC scholarships.

The subsistence law--Public Law 92-171--doubles ROTC subsistence allowance from $50 to $100 per month for 10 months of each academic year.

All ROTC Advanced Course and scholarship students currently receiving a subsistence allowance will have their allowance increased to $100 retroactive to Nov. 14, the day the government lifted its temporary freeze on wages and prices.

The new law also permits for the first time up to 20 percent of the scholarships to be granted to students in the two-year ROTC program. These are junior college graduates and students of four-year colleges who have not taken Army ROTC during their first two years.

Each scholarship pays for tuition, textbooks and lab fees for each academic year during the length of the scholarship. ROTC cadets receive one-half the basic pay of a second lieutenant when they attend a six-week advanced camp in the summer between their junior and senior years.

Steps to award some 780 additional scholarships this current academic year have been taken by the ROTC Directorate, U.S. Continental Army Command. These scholarships will take effect with the beginning of the next registration period.

This fall 1,067 high school graduates began their college studies on four-year Army ROTC scholarships. About 180 qualified alternates will be offered 3 1/2-year scholarships as result of the new law.

Another 600 new scholarships will be distributed among one, two, and three-year scholarship candidates, students already enrolled in the ROTC.

The Army is now receiving applications for four-year ROTC scholarships to be awarded next spring.

More than 2,000 ROTC scholarships will be offered in school year 1972-73. Nearly 1,100 of these will be four-year scholarships to high school seniors entering college for the first time.

Financial aid applications for the Summer of 1972 and the 1972-73 academic year will be available in the Financial Aid Office, Room 232, Whitmore, beginning Friday, December 17. Whether or not aid has been received previously, a new application must be filed each year for all Scholarships, Loans, Grants and Work Study. The deadline for filing is MARCH 1, 1972.

For the Sub-conscious

THE HUNGRY-U
103 N. PLEASANT, AMHERST
Italian submarine sandwiches

Student Court Punishes Those Who Do No, No's

Last year the General Court heard such cases as to whether it was constitutional for Glenn Elters to be Student Senate president since there was a controversy regarding his status as an undergraduate. Another case concerned the constitutionality of funding MOBE. One of the better known cases last year involved studentswho were caught running a bar on Orchard Hill, in Grayson Dormitory. The case of the students, who were known as the "Grayson 7," was referred to the General Court of the Student Judiciary, rather than Northampton District Court.

This year the vast majority of cases have involved disciplinary action and violation of the Code of Student Conduct, rather than fundamental, constitutional issues. A great number of the cases that the Student Judiciary hears involve thefts from the Campus Center Bookstore. Presently, 8% of the volume flow from the bookstore is stolen. This theft, which involves a huge amount of money when one considers the size of the bookstore and student body, has caused an increase of over six dollars per student in the Campus Center tax. Although theft from the bookstore is an offence for which a student could be arraigned in Northampton District Court, the Student Judiciary has been hearing these cases so that convicted students will not have a permanent police record. Jerry Moriarty, Chief Justice of the General Court, said in an MDC interview that "an attempt to keep University problems on campus" is being made, and this could necessitate more severe penalties for theft from the University Store.

Another proposal by Effman was that the Administration should establish a loan bank so that students could take out small, interest-free loans if they had to have money, but could not get it for a number of days. He said that in many of the cases he has heard involving shoplifting from the University Store, students have said they stole something because they needed it, but did not have the money available to buy it. The establishment of this loan service would eliminate the need of money as a rationale to steal something.

Although the Student Judiciary has not always been as visible as the Student Senate, it has played an important role in student self-government and the protection of the university community and the individuals who make up this community.

Amherst Film Shown

AMHERST, Mass. - "The Hour of the Furnaces" by Octavio Getino and Fernando Solanas, a three-part film, will be shown as the conclusion of the "Films for Intellectuals" series at Amherst College on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday (Dec. 15, 16, and 17).

Sponsored by the Amherst College Lecture Committee, the films will be shown at 7:30 p.m. in the Converse Assembly Room, Converse Hall, on the Amherst campus. All films are open to the public without charge.

Wednesday's section, "Neocolonialism and Violence," using Argentina as an example, tries to bring home the point that life and death "are ruled by the violence of daily existence." "Act of Liberation," to be shown on Thursday, is concerned with the act of liberation and uses Franz Fanon's thesis that "every spectator is a coward or a traitor." "Violence and Liberation" is the final part of "The Hour of the Furnaces" and will be shown on Friday, December 17. Using interviews and letters, the film gives a first-hand account of the Argentine struggle for national liberation

At the conclusion of "Violence and Liberation," a short, 26-minute film, "Black Panthers: A Report," will be shown. Directed by Agnes Varda, the film uses interviews with Bobby Seale, Kathleen Cleaver, and Bill Brandt to reach its objective of letting the Black Panthers speak for themselves.

FACES OF EARTH
159 North Pleasant St.
Amherst
Next to the Post Office
Give a Pipe
Open till 10 p.m.
Mon. - Sat.

You May Be Eligible

After 2 years of under graduate training to enter a Chiropractic College as a candidate for a Doctor of Chiropractic or Chiropractic Assistant

If you desire more information write:

International Chiropractic Assoc.
Box 43C
VALATIE, NEW YORK 12184

PARIS HELSINKI MOSCOW MONACO BRUSSELS BELGRADEGENEVA BUCHAREST OSLO DUBLIN MONROVIA EDINBURGH ATHENS MADRID SAN MARINO WARSAW PRAGUE LUXEMBOURG COPENHAGEN OUGADOUGOU
LONDON ROME MADRID LISBON VATICAN CITY MONACO

FLY SUPERCHEAP

Los Angeles $199
Dec. 18 - Jan. 3 — Boston - L.A.-Boston. Round trip jet for $199. Can give info. on connecting flights to San Francisco.

Ski Europe $325
15 days/14 nights at Innsbruck, Kitzbuhel & St. Anton. Departures from JFK & Logan begin 12/18/71 and continue through 3/31/72. Includes air fare, meals, double occupancy hotel & all taxes.

Youth Fare
Guaranteed Round Trip reservations at no additional charge.

Pay with MASTERCHARGE

Nassau $179
Dec. 27-Jan. 3. $179 includes round trip jet from Boston, all taxes & tips & accommodations at the Montagu Beach Hotel, Flagler Inn or Pilot House Hotel*

London $187
Dec. 17-Jan. 2 $187 includes round trip jet air fare from Boston* Dec.

American Student Travel
27 Massachusetts Ave., Boston 02115
For further information call Steve German 253-3359

*open only to 5 College students, faculty, staff & immediate family

Faculty Takes Tenure Stand

"Faculty status and related matters are primarily a faculty responsibility. This area includes appointments, reappointments, decision not to reappoint, the granting of tenure, and promotion."

This statement was adopted by the Faculty-Senate in May of 1969. It is part of the 1969 American Association of University Professors, AAUP, "Statement on Government of Colleges and Universities." The Secretary from the Faculty-Senate presented the statement to the Board of Trustees in September and it was taken under advisement.

Prof. Joseph D. Burroughs, the present Faculty-Senate Delegate to the Board of Trustees, and chairman of the University Tenure and Grievance Committee, presented some "unresolved issues confronting the committee," in his annual report to the Senate. Mr. Burroughs said, "The committee's work has been greatly complicated by the Board of Trustees Policy Statement which recommends the head of the department shall retain full authority to recommend or not members of the department for promotion, merit raises, or tenure."

Prof. Burroughs added, "This is in conflict with faculty sentiment and the adopted AAUP statement which states "The governing board and President should, on questions of faculty status, as in other matters where the faculty has primary responsibility, concur with faculty judgement except in rare instances and for compelling reasons that should be stated in detail."

Prof. Burroughs added that the Tenure and Grievance Committee is in the untenable position of being expected to follow conflicting mandates from its two masters, a Board which has ruled one thing, and a Senate that has willed the opposite.

Burroughs says in October 1970 Chancellor Tippo, said he and the Board of Trustees objected to the language as "primary responsibility," "rare instances," and for "compelling reasons." Finally he maintained the conflicting mandates were brought into the open in January of 1971, when the case of a "Prof. X" arose. "Prof. X", Burroughs declared, "was supported by her colleagues at every possible level, yet the Administration (dean, provost, and president) continually vetoed their recommendation. The Administration gave no reason for their action to the Tenure and Grievance Committee or any Senate member." Borroughs, claims President Wood offered this explanation in a letter by saying, "As a state institution, the University of Massachusetts is governed by the laws of the Commonwealth, under which the Board of Trustees is and must remain the final authority on all matters relating to reappointment of members of the faculty."

Burroughs says that the AAUP is following the case of Prof. X through the courts and might publish its response after it is legally resolved. "The case represents a further rift in communication and mutual confidence," Burroughs added. "Unfortunately," he continued, "We are feeling growing pains in the light of President Wood's visualization of a central systems office, and Amherst's fight for autonomy.

AMHERST Cinema
253-5426
The Art Of Gentle PERSUASION
In COLOR
Late Show
Fri., Dec. 15
at 11:30
No one under 21 admitted.

Army Vacancies Available

Colonel Howard W. Dye, Jr., Commander of the 905th Military Airlift Group, Air Force Reserve, Westover Air Force Base, Chicopee, Massachusetts, announced today that there are several openings for non-prior service youth who are between the ages 17 and 26.

Applicants must be willing to remain on active duty for a period of four months or more.

After release from active duty, the reservists participate one week end a month plus a 15 days annual summer encampment.

Vacancies presently exist in the following career fields: Medical; aircraft maintenance; air freight; air passenger; and civil engineer related fields.

Applicants may apply by visiting the 905th Military Airlift Group, Recruiting Office, Building 5632, Celia Street, Westover AFB,MA 01022.

This is just a depressing example of the sickening conditions in Arkansas which many people live in. RESPECT is an organization which is trying to help improve this environment, by raising funds for the cause.

RESPECT Aids Poor

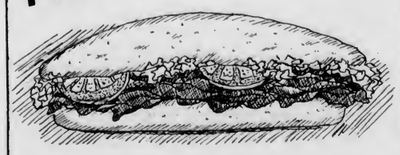
"Hunger in Eastern Arkansas" will be the subject of a discussion and slide presentation tomorrow at 8 p.m. in Room 804 of the UMass Campus Center.

Leaders of the discussion will be Eugene Richards, Charles Imhof, and Dorie Lynch of RESPECT, INC., a private, social service agency in West Memphis, Arkansas.

RESPECT, INC., was founded in May, 1970, by Richards, Imhof, and other former VISTA's who had worked primarily in the Arkansas Delta. RESPECT was incorporated in July, 1970, its two goals being the organization of a bi-weekly newspaper, Many Voices, written for and by the blacks and poor in eastern Arkansas; and the establishment of a Community Information Center in West Memphis.

RESPECT also serves as a welfare referral service for many of the thousands of poor people in the Arkansas Delta. Nearly 60 percent of the families in the region earn less than $3,000 per year; 25 percent earn less than $1,000 per year. Yet, according to RESPECT, welfare reaches only 14 percent of the poor population. The anti-poverty workers also claim that in the Delta region, 80 percent of the housing is substandard, educational facilities are woefully inferior, and a crisis exists in medical health care.

The presentation, sponsored by the UMass Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs, is open to the public free of charge. The program will highlight the Committee's annual Christmas Fund-Raising Drive, all proceeds of which will be donated this year to RESPECT, INC. Last year the Committee raised more than $500 for malnourished blacks and Indians in Dorchester County, South Carolina.



Further information may be obtained from Ann Nichols, Committee chairwoman, at 549-1224.

ROOM TO MOVE
Campus Drug Drop-In Center
CALL 5-0400
24 HOURS A DAY
7 DAYS A WEEK

Quicksilver
Food and Music

FACES OF EARTH
159 North Pleasant St.
Amherst
Next to the Post Office
Indian Beaded Dresses $11.95
Open till 10 p.m.
Mon. - Sat.

HATCH Grinders

- Roast Beef
- Italian Sausage
- Tuna Salad
- German Salami & Cheese

Line No. 3:
Open 11:30 — 1:30
Weekdays

only 59¢

COLLEGE DRUG STORE
"On the Green"

For Her:

Shalimar	Intimate
L'Air Du Temps	Windsong
Fidji	Cachet
Nuit de Noel	Femme
Maja	Madame Rochas
Love	4711
Chanel	Moondrop
Arpege	Aquamarine

For Him:

Monsier Lanvin	Success
Brut	Grand Marque
Pub	Royall
Canoe	Bay Rum
Black Watch	Ly Me
Chanel	English Leather
Wind Drift	British Sterling
Timberline	Balafre
Braggi	Old Spice
Game Plan	Panetene

all at COLLEGE DRUG

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — Nathan Gorenstein
BUSINESS MANAGER — James Gold
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Gib Fullerton
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR — Steve Fine
NEWS STAFF — Bev Adamonis
EDITORIAL — Barry Rubenstein
SPORTS — Earle Barroll
DARKROOM — Jim Reardon, Gary Alpaugh
AD LAYOUT — Jerry Lazar

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

"Now, Are There Any Democracies We Haven't Offended Or Any Dictatorships We Haven't Cozied Up To?"

Vacation Bonanza II

By WALTER E. CRONIN
EDITORIAL STAFF

"Some Persons owe their Prosperity to the Violation of their Trust; and to the Concealment of such Violation from the Public Eye. The interrupting those in their iniquitous Obscurity, by dragging them into open Day- light, is much-what as agreeable as letting in the Light of the Sun upon a Nest of Owls, to whom it is painful and offensive."
The Independent Reflector p. 55
William Livingston

Excuse me, Senators, but why did you go?
Was it because you thought we wouldn't know?
Or was it because you'd think us too busy,
Playing games, having fun throwing that frisby?

We realized last summer the extent of recession.
Many of us students possessed with obsession
To find the means to return to our abode
To realize that you'd begun spending our load.

For as we worked, slaved, and sweated away
Seven of you took more than $1400. to N.S.A.
Colorado, Colorado, onward you went
Our money you took was easily spent.

Two of you returned by jet to Boston
You had to get there to save exhaustion
The Board of Trustees was sitting down
Appeared Lee and Kick to show their frowns.

The story is out as most of us know
The question now is: "Where does the rest go?"
Students--stand, question, and demand--
Show that Oligarchy we give a damn!
*****
Is the Senate living off the work of our hands?

PointBlank

Women Against Wall Street

By MARTHA TREGOR

Women employees are undependable. They're just not serious about a career. Consequently they should not be regarded as equals by their male colleagues.

The prevalence of this sexist rot is currently being investigated by the Human Rights Commission in New York City. The Investigations Division of the Commission is pursuing a complaint of sex discrimination in employment filed by thirteen women against ten prestigious "Wall Street" law firms.

At the basis of the complaint is an alleged pattern of discrimination in recruitment, hiring, and promotion that accounts for a dismaying statistic: the placement office at Columbia has calculated that of the 3,926 lawyers in New York City's fifty largest firms, only 161 are women.

The problem first surfaces at a job interview. One of the thirteen women complaining to the Human Rights Commission alleges that at an interview with the illustrious Wall Street firm of Shearman & Sterling, the male interviewer, after reviewing her resume, leaned over the desk, looked downward, and announced, "Miss Jordan, your problem is that you are wearing a skirt."

Then the interviewer allegedly asked Miss Jordan what she was going to do with her babies after she was married. When her responses were lightly dismissed, she asked whether the firm had a "pipeline" for male law students facing military service--i.e., men may be hired now for employment starting after military service is completed.

According to Miss Jordan, the interviewer answered affirmatively, but he had no response when she pressed the point and inquired why there was no similar leeway for women who have a child and, shortly thereafter, return to the practice of law.

The course of an interview may also reveal the prospect of discriminatory working conditions after a woman is hired. According to one of the complaints filed with the Human Rights Commission, a female applicant was told by an interviewer that some of his law partners believed women are intellectually inferior: "The way women reason is disasterous when they step into a law library."

The interviewer allegedly offered a hypothetical: "If a woman sees a river that is polluted and discovers that a particular factory is doing the polluting, she will recommend getting rid of the factory. A man in that situation can see further, and would look to see if the factory were necessary for the general economic good and keep it there if it were."

Such irrational generalizations tend to relegate women who are hired to a limited corner of the law firm's practice: trusts and estates. When asked why most women attorneys were assigned to trusts and estates, one Wall Street partner allegedly replied: "There is no doubt that women are specially suited for Trusts & Estates work because they must deal with widows and orphans."

And a Park Avenue lawyer allegedly explained: "I don't know exactly why, but for some reason women are really good at Trusts & Estates; they really love the detail work and they're very competent at it. Most men don't like this kind of work...."

Keeping women out of "tough" "thinking" areas--e.g., courtroom litigation, corporate work--avoids having women travel on assignment with male colleagues who litigate and service corporate clients. In a memorandum filed with the complaint to the Human Rights Commission, attorneys Carol Bellamy and Harriet Rabb charge: "Women interviewees are often told that, if hired, they would not be assigned to cases or areas of work requiring travel because the firm believes it ill-befits a wife or mother to be away from home and/or because the firm wants to avoid even the possibility of jealousy among its partners' wives whose husbands would be on out-of-town business in the company of female colleagues. Such reasoning is as humiliating to female attorneys and their colleagues' wives as it is insulting to male attorneys. It assumes pettiness and philandering and a view of women fundamentally as sex objects."

Frustrated by such inhibitions, women lawyers often quit out of boredom and anger after having been insulated from client contact, challenging intellectual work, travel, and the opportunity to prove one's merit. As a sad result, the myth of female unreliability appears to generate its own self-fulfilling prophesy. The Human Rights Commission may act to break this vicious cycle so that no male interviewer will say to a woman lawyer again: "Our time is getting short. This has been so much fun."

Copyright 1971 by Martha Tregor

Martha Tregor is a freelance writer who specializes in the women's liberation movement.

Even Ma And Pa Kettle Get High

We, the staff of Room To Move, would like to express our support of the Student Senate bill calling for the compilation and dispersal of the identities of all undercover agents operating at UMass. The bill, as we see it, is a strong expression against the "legitimate" use of "spies" in an educational institution in order to politically appease local townspeople concerned about the growing use of drugs in their communities. Room To Move agrees with the substance and especially the political intent of the Student Senate action.

District Attorney Callahan has a multi-pronged solution to the drug traffic problem; one of these involves the use of state policemen and students as undercover agents which we feel is an inept, misdirected and harmful approach. Furthermore, it is politically and educationally dishonest to foist the idea on the naive and gullible voters that several big busts a year at UMass is making a drastic impact on the flow of drugs into Hampshire County. The District Attorney should spend his "undercover money" to supplement the existing programs in drug education that he is currently supporting that they may help the local populace to have a better understanding and knowledge of drugs, their use and abuse in our society, and their relation to their own children. This would seem to be a much more worthwhile and effective way of dealing with the drug problem in small communities.

Contrary to what Mr. Callahan says, this bill will not actually endanger the police. Its main effect is to positively state the abhorrence by almost all of the students at the University of the use of undercover agents. In addition, we do take issue with Mr. Callahan's statement that the use of such agents is an effective means of controlling drug sales. The side effects are much more detrimental to the campus population as a whole when compared with the meager effect the past year's drug busts have had on the availability of really dangerous "hard" drugs (such as alcohol, barbiturates, diet pills and heroin). It is simply unrealistic to conceive of the drug problem in this community being solved by busting people, unless the District Attorny is willing to incarcerate two thirds of the population, including many prominent doctors, lawyers, mothers, professors, young executives and secretaries.

Undercover agents are not a "legitimate means" to controlling the drug problem. Police tactics of this sort form the basis of a Fascist society. Such a method of maintaining public order, whose by products are pervasive fear and deprivation of privacy (of every member of the community) is morally and logically harmful to the community. The total state of paranoia which runs dangerously high after any drug bust (even near campus) is, by its very nature, totally destructive to the sense and ideals of an educational institution. This fear of detection and arrest for a "crime" has now reached the point where it is considered normal and healthy to be suspicious and distrustful of anyone you don't know very well. We believe this result, in itself, is enough to warrant the cessation of undercover agent use on campus.

To a much larger extent, the entire issue of the maijuana laws and their enforcement must be considered much more dangerous to society than their non-enforcement. The nature of the drug use crime is (in most instances) a victimless one. By rigidly and inflexibly enforcing the drug laws (something law enforcement agencies seem to have difficulty accomplishing in other crimes), the youth of this country are becoming outlaws at their own choice. When a large minority (?) of society becomes outside of the law in victimless crimes, the ultimate payoff is that they become total criminals with no allegiance to any of the laws, good or bad. The District Attorney should consider this thought before zealously pursuing his present direction in drug traffic control.

Room To Move strongly supports the Senate in this action and urges students to do likewise. Furthermore, we firmly suggest that District Attorney Callahan consider the issues and points raised here, and reconsider the withdrawal of all undercover agents from campus. We believe their presence to be much more harmful and dangerous to the health of this community than any small impact they may have on local drug traffic. We feel that all control should come from within the community rather than being imposed from uninvolved, misinformed external forces. Each one of us is responsible for taking care of our brothers and sisters. Let's do it well!

Room To Move

Editorial Points

We laud the Zoology Department for their efforts to pay the Collegian So students, you can stop boycottting all your Zoology 101 classes now.

****

CEQ offers the following quotation from Henry Ford 2nd: "Automobiles as long as I'm going to be a working man are certainly going to be the basic means of transportation in this country (Denmark) and other parts of the world...Mass transportation in certain areas is certainly a necessity, but if you think mass transportation is going to replace the automobile I think you're whistling Dixie or taking pot."

Too bad dear old Henry didn't make automobiles as badly as he made cars. Or then again, maybe he did.

****

Not that we don't like SES, but it might be a good idea if some of you out there tried going to class once in a while, just to see who is teaching the class. Like today, for instance.

****

One of Deputy Secretary of Defense Packwood's disappointments upon his retirement from government service the other day was that so many useless military bases remain open because of political pressures. Although much of the blame for this must go to Congressmen who feel they must protect their districts, President Nixon is also afraid that the closing of these bases might worsen the unemployment problem. In this case, maybe Nixon is using the military a la Roosevelt in the 30's and maybe the New Deal shoe fits Nixon. But then again, that was the last time you could buy American shoes anyway.

Letters To The Editor

Wit For Its Own Sake

To the Editor:

This letter is in response to "Brogan's Dilemma", (MDC 12/14/71); a critique, by Larry Ladd, concerning Dr. Brogan's address to the Faculty Senate.

Although the tone of the article was primarily complimentary, it did create some misconceived images. Mr. Ladd's comments were, no doubt, meant to be witty--but the wit seemed to exist merely for its own sake. We particularly note the several references to an "ivory tower".

It is fashionable, these days, to go about saying that professors exist in ivory towers--and in many cases this may , unfortunately, be true--but we mustn't let ourselves become blind to those who are here on the ground with the rest of us mortals.

In answer to your "surprsing revelation", Mr. Ladd, concerning the possibility that Dr. Brogan "may no longer believe in the ivory tower", it is our opinion that he never did. Having had him as a professor, we saw in Dr. Brogan a man who not only listened to his students, but encouraged them in their self-expression.

And, in regard to Howard O. Brogan's becoming "a radical in a three piece suit"; it's cute rhetoric, but we doubt his desire to do so.

Ken Aubert
Chris Everett

It Would Be Nice

To the Editor:

This last Saturday night there was an event that took place in Boyden Gym that attracted over 800 people I believe, and to my knowledge has had no recognition in the Daily Collegian yet this week. I am referring to the Men's Gymnastics meet with Southern Connecticut in which the Redmen won by a score of 152 to 144, a sizeable win! It would seem to me that our own school newspaper would recognize a sport of this caliber, and a team of this caliber over such things as Associated Press and United Press International reports of events in OTHER schools and the professional sports. Or even recognize it over athletic CLUBS on campus, or other Freshman sports. Last year our team had some men place in National meets, and as a team, they are a threat to any team they come up against. Has anyone thought about how long they practice for a season? How about from September to May! Would you believe the next meet is going to be held in the CAGE against Penn State?! Wouldn't it be nice if our newspaper, next April reserved a little one inch square on the last page that reads "Oh, by the way, the Men's Gymnastics team won the NCAA meet last week"!!

Duncon N. Campbell

Nothing Radical

To the Editor:

You are premature in announcing my radicalization. I need only point out, in correcting this mistaken impression, that organization of the faculty as a bargaining agent is specifically authorized by the laws of this Commonwealth. It is also a policy approved by the staid National Education Association and even by the downright conservative American Association of University Professors.

My conception of academic government is that administration, faculty, and students all have legitimate differences of opinion as well as interests in common. Therefore, each of these groups needs its own organ of government in which it can pursue its own interests, and that there should be a method of coordinating efforts on those interests we have in common.

I strongly support the right of the students to govern themselves. I am prepared to insist that the faculty play its proper role. There is nothing radical about either proposition.

Howard O. Brogan

Bloody Good

To the Editor:

I take great pleasure in thanking the University of Massachusetts for the recent gift of 1,080 units of blood for anyone in need.

This fine showing of positive action reflects the combined voluntary efforts of your community to help solve the nation's blood shortage. Your voluntary blood donations will reduce the paid donor risk of hepatitis and help eliminate the ill practice of bartering the human body to the highest bidder.

Your success will convince people that only they can help by giving of themselves.

Thank you for caring.

Harold C. Durgin
Chairman

The War Goes On

(Ed. note-We thought the following editorial went along nicely with the greetings we received from Vietnam.)

Put two or three current news items together, and some vital questions to which President Nixon alone has the answers ask themselves.

News Item: American casualties in the Vietnam war last week were reported as the second lowest since the U.S. Command started keeping weekly totals nearly seven years ago. Four GIs were killed in action, 11 died from other causes, 14 were wounded.

The officially listed deaths do not include 34 who died in a helicopter crash Nov. 28. These were not included the previous week because, it was explained at the Pentagon, "their bodies have not been recovered." The reason for not listing them this week, though the bodies have been recovered, is not known. Certainly they are very dead indeed. Just as certainly, had they been listed, the total casualties would not have been "the second lowest since, etc."

Civilian casualties were not officially listed either, and never are. It was reported that more than 1100 Vietnamese soldiers, North and South, were killed. Unofficial reports, not including deaths in Cambodia on which American bombs pour down without letup, list 5000 South Vietnamese casualties per month. The air war in Laos and Cambodia has added 250,000 refugees to the tragic roll of about $8 million. Vietnam forests and fields are being destroyed at the unofficially reported rate of 1000 acres a day in the U.S. bulldozing program.

Total American deaths now near 56,000, of whom nearly 46,000 were killed in action. About half of the American deaths have occurred since the presidential campaign of 1968 in which Mr. Nixon declared he had a plan for ending the war. About 600 have died since the Hanoi-Viet Cong offer of a cease-fire last July 1.

News Item: "Fifty U.S. Army doctors in Vietnam urgently appeal for an immediate and total withdrawal from Vietnam. In a letter to the U.S. Senate, they state that they "see little good coming from our endeavors to our servicemen, to our allies, or to the Vietnamese, who strongly feel the fighting and the dying they know so well will end when the American forces leave this country and that our presence tends only to prolong their suffering."

They report that most of the U.S. casualties they treat result from self-inflicted wounds, fighting between GIs, accidents, jungle diseases and drugs. They further assert that some Americans (unnamed) are profiting from the war and such profits are a factor in prolonging the U.S. engagement.

The questions which ask themselves, in all of these circumstances, are as to why President Nixon persists in sticking to his own agonizingly slow schedule of withdrawal? Why does he still refuse to recognize the validity of the law, incorporated in the arms procurement bill which he has signed, requiring him to set a date (a date of his own choosing) for our withdrawal? Why did he fight the Mansfield proposal which, if his congressional aides had not lobbied it to death, would have given him until next June to wind up the whole misadventure?

The anticipated pre-election announcement of withdrawal will not or at least should not erase the memory of the President's current adamancy and the nation's current agony.

(Reprinted from Boston Globe 12/13/71)

It Won't Be Christmas Everywhere

The greetings shown below were received yesterday in the Collegian office from one of the thousands of servicemen still serving in Vietnam. So much has happened in the last few weeks that there is a strong tendency for many of us to fall into Nixon's trap and forget that a war is still going on. We owe it to all the guys still over there to continue efforts to end the war as soon as possible because between the rice patties and Bob Hope, Vietnam is a bad place to be for Christmas.

WE'RE STILL HERE WHAT ARE YOU
CPT JACK E. DANEL Jane Doe DOING ABOUT IT?

Weapons

All of the mouths

With all of their ears,

Attack one another

In the battle of fears;

Each of them speaks,

Each claims to have heard,

But they will all be lost

In the great battle of words.

Daniel Haslegrove

He Blinded Himself In A Baltimore Jail

By DANIEL ST. ALBIN GREENE
FROM BALTIMORE

Between 6 and 7 p.m. on May 19, four days after Innes got out of the hospital, Patrolmen Frizell Bailey and John Denholm were ordered to check on a nude man acting strangely on the back porch of an apartment building on Bolton Street. When the scout car pulled up in the alley, a crowd of young people was staring and giggling at a muscular man with wild sandy whiskers, but not a stitch on his stocky body. The two uniformed officers climbed the rusty metal ladder to the landing, then coaxed the man into the apartment. The man was speaking nonsense, so the officers wrapped a blanket around him and called for the wagon.

Back Into Custody

Bailey rode with Charles Innes. "He wouldn't let my hand go," recalls the 27-year-old black officer. "And he was talking the whole time: 'I'm Charlie Innes...you're Frizell Bailey...you are my friend...Charlie Innes likes his friend.' He would say things like that and repeat them backwards and forwards."

At police headquarters Bailey got a call from his partner, who had stayed behind to question the tenant, a young woman named Mindy who was Charlie's girl friend; she told Officer Denholm that he had taken an overdose of a drug a few days ago. Denholm told Bailey what she said.

Bailey decided to take his prisoner, still swaddled in a blanket, to nearby Mercy Hospital for an examination. The hospital-admission report lists "alleged ingestion of PCT" (sic) under "Complaint or Description of Accident." A senior resident physician examined Innes, but apparently found nothing physically wrong. But on the physician's report, a copy of which was given to Bailey, "psychoneurosis" is written in the column labeled "Impression," and "advise psychiatric evaluation" is in the "Treatment" column.

'He Was Physically Normal'

Was the decision not to hospitalize Innes that night justified? This is one hospital official's rationale: "Our responsibility was to see if he was physically well or if there was an acute psychiatric emergency. The examination indicated that he was physically normal. And there was no evidence in the examination that he was intending to harm himself. I'm reasonably certain that if he had been kept here the same thing would have happened."

Frizell Bailey, for one, didn't like the idea of taking Charlie Innes back to jail in his condition. "It was never my opinion that he should have been put in that cell," Bailey says. "I think the doctors should have requested that he stay in the hospital under observation."

Yet there was nothing else for Bailey to do. After they had locked Charlie in Cell 2, Bailey went back to say good-by. Bailey recalls: "I said, 'You take care of yourself; I'm going to talk to the judge tomorrow morning and see if he can send you some place where you can be helped.' And he was holding my hand and saying, 'You're a good man, Frizell, you're really a good man.' He was standing there holding on."

About three hours later Charles Innes quietly blinded himself.

His impressions of that night are blurred, dismal: "There was a drunk on one side of me and a drunk on the other...The floor was slimy for a foot away from the john....The cell was the filthiest place I had ever been in....There was no pain....I went through a rare spiritual experience."

He contends that his continuous pleas for water were ignored; Ed Stefankiewicz says Innes never asked for water.

The National observer, after hearing his story, asked several authorities on psychedelic drugs to comment on the way Charlie was handled that week. None of their responses was positive.

Dr. David Smith, whose Haight-Ashbury clinic has treated countless drug-overdose cases in recent years, suggests that Charlie was the victim of a series of bad decisions: "There's a complex interreaction among the chemical, the psychological state of the individual, physical factors, and environment. The worst time to take a drug like that is under duress, as he was when they raided his home. In general, when the person is in a delirious state, the act of pumping the stomach makes the situation worse. That was an extremely dangerous time for that kid, and he should have been in a hospital intensive-care unit, watched at all times. Jailing can be a major contributory factor in a drug-induced psychotic reaction."

Compounding Treatment's Problems

According to a new paper prepared for the Student Association for the Study of Hallucinogens, a private research company in Beloit, Wis., treatment for adverse reactions to psychedelic drugs should include these essentials: "A warm and nonthreatening environment: one-to-one contact with an empathetic individual who would be capable of determining the deterioration of the individual's physical state; protection from self-harm; and the availability of hospital facilities."

The problem of treating a spaced-out kid is compounded when nobody knows what he got loaded on.

Officer Dugent still believes that Charlie Innes gobbled an overdose of LSD -laced pot. Charlie insists that it was parsley sprinkled with PCPA; that's what the dealer told him it was. But there is strong circumstantial evidence that both are mistaken. What ripped Charles Innes was almost certainly "angel dust"—PCP.

There is widespread confusion about PCP and PCPA in the drug culture. Despite what he knows about chemistry, Charlie seems to hold some of the common misconceptions, including the one that PCPA is a derivative of PCP.

PCP: It Spells 'Danger'

They are, in fact, totally different kinds of drugs. PCPA is a synthetic chemical compound that can reduce the level of serotonin in the human brain. It has been used experimentally to treat patients with tumors and some mental patients. But the most publicized PCPA research was done by a team of visiting Italian scientists in Washington, D.C., who noticed that it increased sexual activity in rats and other animals. This inspired some underground chemists to manufacture the stuff and peddle it as an "aphrodisiac." But it never found a market in the counterculture.

PCP, on the other hand, is an anesthetic that in small doses can produce a moderate "high" but in drug darts can immobilize a rhino. The only pharmaceutical company licensed to market the drug—phencyclidine—restricts its sales to veterinarians for experiments with animals. The label on each container reads: "Sernylan (the trade name) is a potent drug which produces disorientation in many species. It must not be used in animals other than primates."

PCP's Bad Side Effects

Studies in the 1950s produced some hope that phencyclidine could become an effective anesthetic for humans. It depresses the central nervous system so that a wide-awake person does not feel pain. But in many people it also induced anxiety, depression, fear, excitability, and, in higher dosages, delusions, confusion and weird behavior.

An extreme overdose of PCP conceivably could provoke the side effects that Innes experienced. Smoked, the drug produces a marijuanalike high; ingested in larger does, it can trigger extended delusions and paranoia much like an LSD trip.

The most compelling evidence that PCP caused Innes' tragedy is in a 1959 paper written by a research team at Wayne State University that administered the drug to 102 patients. To some people who were given large doses, the scientists reported, "objects seemed to 'float away' and the subjects had the sensation that the body went numb and was displaced....Many of our patients with strong religious backgrounds reported 'God was talking them away,' or that they were being 'carried up into the clouds.' " (Charlie's prattle in jail continuously mentioned God.) One woman in the Wayne State study stayed in a "prolonged state of confusional psychosis" for four days.

Drug Has Many Guises

Understandably, PCP has never become very popular in the underground-drug market. But its illicit producers won't stop trying: They simply turn it out in a variety of forms and hawk it under different names. It first emerged in California in 1967 as the "Peace Pill." The next year it was peddled in capsules passed off as "THC," which is thought to be the active ingredient in marijuana. In 1969 it reappeared as "Hog."

Last year PCP was sprinkled on oregano and parsley and smoked as "angel dust"—confounding police, who kept confiscating stuff that looked like pot but didn't pass the lab tests for marijuana. Most of the "mescaline" being peddled this year, according to students of the drug culture, is PCP or LSD in disguise. Furthermore, many chemists combine PCP with another substance without telling anybody.

"These people have learned marketing techniques from their parents," San Francisco's Dr. Smith points out sarcastically.

PCP, or "PCPA," hasn't been available in Baltimore, Charlie has been told, since he freaked out. Kids elsewhere are still eating and smoking it, though, whether they realize it or not. Many dealers and customers heard the macabre story of the hippie who gouged out his eyes, but counterculture sources say that not many believe it. The prevailing view is that the story was just another drug-scare hoax promulgated by the "narcs."

That's one reason to hope that Charles Innes realizes one of his ambitions: to become a drug counselor. For anybody who looks into those dead eyes sees that Charlies has been where nobody wants to go.

Reprinted from The National Observer.

INPORIUM

Pre-Christmas Red Tag Sale

Flannel and Corduroy Shirts	$1.00
Jeans	$2.00
Furs	$10 - $80
Overalls	$3.00
Denim Jackets	$3.00
Sweaters	$2.00
Wool Coats	$10 - $15
Corduroy Coats	$3.00
Denim Shirts	$3.00

Main St. Amherst

Heidi Straube and Barbara Rohnert, flutes, and Dean Radin, violin, will appear as soloists in a performance of Bach's Brandenburg Concerto No. 4, Fuguing Tune No. 3, and Alan Hovhaness' Psalm and Fugue for String Orchestra.

This concert will be presented in Bowker Auditorium at 8:15 p.m. and is open to the public without charge.

Fast To Be Held

By HUGH OWEN

Wednesday, December 15, a Christmas fast will be held by Wednesday's People. The purpose of this fast is to remind people of the plight of the East Pakistani refugees.

Wednesday's People is a group of UMass students, staff, and faculty who wish to encourage student concern and action over the present conditions in Pakistan and India. They urgently request students to pray, fast, or give up something and donate the money saved to Wednesday's People.

Volunteers are also needed to sit at the Pakistani-Indian Refugee Table (Wednesday's People). This table is set up each Wednesday in the Concourse level of the Campus Center from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Anyone who may want to sit for an hour or so can call Mrs. Nancy Gardner at 545-0929. She is in charge of scheduling hours.

All money collected will be sent to Project Relief, INC, Providence, R.I. Aid to the refugees will be sent in the form of feed, clothing, and medicine.

Also at the Wednesday's People's table is a collection of pictures taken by Vera Etzion. Miss Etzion took these pictures while visiting the refugee camps in India this summer.

WMUA

TONIGHT ON 91.1FM:

7:00pm EVENING NEWS - a complete half hour report.
7:30pm VIEWPOINT - a half hour public affairs program focusing on many different topics from the university and the world.
8:00 pm UJAMAA DRUM - the popular black program with jazz, soul, black information and news compiled by the Black Mass Communications Project, poetry and commentary. (three hours)
11:pm LATE NIGHT NEWS - 30 minutes.
11:30pm ERIC BENJAMIN SHOW - Rock and roll and other good sounds til 3:00am.

GIFT SHIRTS

Stripes — Solids
Prints — Knits

FROM $4.98

201 North Pleasant Street, Amherst

Campus Carousel

Pius Ross Pockets Thief

By TONY GRANITE

WHAT'S IN A NAME? Chief of the campus cops at Louisiana State is one Pius Ross. He earned his pay this Fall, by arresting a non-student accused of being responsible for up to 85 per cent of the campus pocketbook thefts. The thief is being held on $1,500 bail for one caper at which he was caught by Pius, according to an item in the Daily Reveille.

* * * *

SKIING FOR TEXANS? Just about the last place one would expect to find reports about skiing conditions is the Texas Tech University Daily.

But there it is. A recent issue of the student newspaper carried a full section of features on skiing, advertisements and news items that included a directory of distances to the slopes of New Mexico and Colorado. The closest ski run, apparently, is 250 miles away at Sierra Blanca, N.M. Loveland, Colo. is 525 miles away. And Techsans apparently travel as far as 660 miles to reach Mr. Werner.

And to keep the Techsans up on skiing and snow conditions, the local radio station is broadcasting weekly reports every Wednesday. To prepare them for a long weekend, no doubt.

* * * *

PENNINGS FROM THE PEN... It isn't every campus newspaper that is read with enough interest in an out-of-state bastille to warrant a letter to the editor from an inmate. But that's the way it was, recently, in the pages of Central Michigan U's Life.

Inmate #111712 of the State Prison of Southern Michigan wrote the Lifers in response to a statement in a column which carried the complaint, "I eat like a prisoner."

#111712, in his letter, offered a copy of the prison's weekly menu to Life's columnist, pointing out that the prison's bill of fare is restricted to two menus which are rotated weekly.

"...just the sound of your CMU menu leads us to believe that if we were to swap menus for a day we here may well be on the losing end of such a deal...Of course we all love and know there is nothing greater than good ole mom's cooking and yet one must realize momdoesn't have to cook for 3 or 4 hundred people making that 9 to 12 hundred meals a day..."

Expressing the hope that the columnist would never have to learn first-hand what prisoners really eat, #11172 added: ", peanut butter sandwiches with half a glass of milk (we get water at 90% of our meals - if you don't drink coffee all the time.) Certainly sounds good going with the 'freedom' to order a pizza if you wish..."

Dining Commons, we love you freely.

* * * *

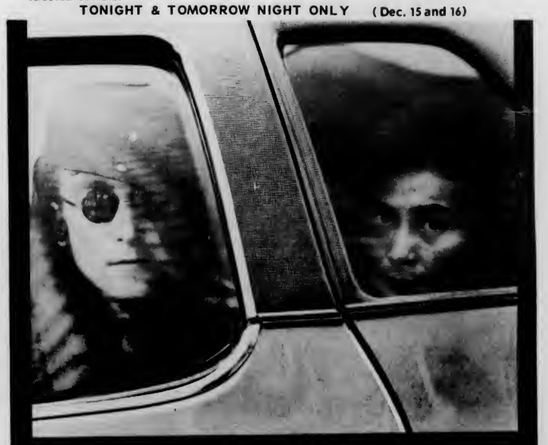
SEX ED IS A HOME EC THING! At least it is out at Central Washington State, where their Campus Crier has started carrying a series of columns that answer sex queries from students.

The columnist and expert on sex? One Dr. Luther Baker, chairman of the Home Economics Department.

Typical questions he answers are: Is it possible to be come pregnant without sexual intercourse? His answer is "Yes." For details, consult the UMass Health Service. Another question: "What is a 'technical virgin'?"

* * * *

Quicksilver
Happy Hours



weekend it somewhere

Wherever you're going . . . there's a bus going there too. And the trip to somewhere starts with Peter Pan. Schedule or Charter Buses.

Peter Pan
Student Union
Tel. 545-2006

WTOY PRESENTS:
Short films by two of the world's most celebrated, most controversial, multi-faceted artists.
TONIGHT & TOMORROW NIGHT ONLY (Dec. 15 and 16)

FILMS BY JOHN LENNON YOKO ONO

From Genesis Films
Produced by JOKO Film Productions

Dec. 15 and 16, 7:30 and 9:30 — C.C. AUDITORIUM
Students $1.75 General Admission $2.00
Advance tickets RSO Office

Student Senate Calendar

Committee & Chairman	Meeting Time and Place	Main Topic of Discussion
Rents & Fees Robert Chiller	See chairman for information.	Provost Gluckstern will discuss the Teacher Evaluation Report.
Academic Affairs Nick Apostola	Tues., Dec. 14, 7 pm Room 811-815, CC	Last budget hearing to fund.
Budgets John Stevens	Tues., Dec. 14, 7:30 Room 801, CC	Important meeting to discuss the direction of the committee for the rest of the year.
Social Action Maggie Houghton	Wed, Dec. 15, 6:15 Room 178, CC	Financial appropriations
Financial Affairs Skip Olmstead	Thurs., Dec. 16, 8 pm Room 177, CC	Student Affairs Office Residence Hall regulations Concert finalization (important)
Student Matters Bruce Bernstein	Thurs., Dec. 16, 8 pm Room 175, CC
Governmental Affairs Bill Spinn	Sun., Dec. 19, 6 pm Room 802, CC	General Laws

Merry Of Mary Lyon
I Do..I Think. Weather (I)

Food Service Column

Expect The Same Thing

Although there is considerable discussion on board plans (present and future), the system in operation this semester will be in operation again for the spring term. Briefly, the Food Service Department (Dining Commons) offers the following:

A 15-meal per week meal ticket at a cost of $306.50.

A 10-meal per week meal ticket at a cost of $271.50.

This plan enables the holder to eat any two meals per day. At this point, bills for second semester have been sent out. As you read it, you will find the board fee listed as $306.50. If you want a 15-meal per week plan, pay that amount. If, however, you want a 10-meal per week plan, please deduct $35 in the appropriate area so that the ticket cost of $271.50 is reflected in your final bill. The Food Service Department wants to remind you of this detail, so that you will end up purchasing the type of plan you want and not have to go through the hassle of changing plans after the bills have been paid.

Services offered by the dining commons will be the same next semester as they are now. You will be able to eat at any dining hall you want to, including the Basic Foods lines at Hampden and Worcester. The Modified Continuous hours of service will still be available. Hampshire and Worcester are open for breakfast from 7:00 AM-10:30 PM, Lunch from 10:30 AM-2:00 PM, and Dinner from 4:00 PM-6:30 PM. Franklin and Berkshire are open for Lunch from 10;30 AM-2:00 PM, Late Lunch (soup, sandwich & trimmings) from 2:00 PM-4:00 PM, and Dinner from 4:00 PM-7:00 PM. The Basic Foods lines are open for Lunch and Dinner on a continuous basis from 10:30 AM until 6:30 PM at Worcester and 7:00 PM at Hampden. The "Seconds" policy will prevail and we ask you to please take what you want, but eat what you take. There are no plans for opening Franklin Commons for breakfast on a board plan basis.

JOHNSON HOUSE
presents
SABBATH TUESDAY
appearing
Friday, Dec. 17
8:00 p.m.

20% Off Shoes
THE SHOE-BIN In the Alley ♂ & ♀

Boots $13.00 — $30.00
THE SHOE-BIN In the Alley ♂ & ♀

THE UNIVERSITY STORE
presents a
Christmas Special

THE JERUSALEM BIBLE — READER'S EDITION
Special Gift Edition
Alexander Jones, General Editor
Illustrations by Salvador Dali

The famed Jerusalem Bible is now available in a deluxe format illustrated throughout with 32 full-page, 6-color illustrations by Salvador Dali. These illustrations—rich in color, imagery and insights—were specially selected to provide an overall view of the events, themes, and personages of the Bible. This handsome new edition contains the complete and unabridged text of the Jerusalem Bible. Notes and introductions have been especially condensed to make them more suitable for the general reader. Other outstanding features include: a large, readable typeface; single-column pages with verse numbers in the margins; and two silk ribbon markers. Luxuriously bound in padded sturdite, it is gilded with gold foil on all sides with gold stamping on the front, back and spine. Supplementary material includes 8 pages of Family Record, 8 pages of maps (4 color, 5 black-and-white maps), Chronological Tables, and a Table of Measures and Money.

~~39.95~~ — 17.95

THE GRAHAM KERR COOKBOOK
by The Galloping Gourmet

The expertise, wit, and personality of "The Galloping Gourmet," television's newest and wildly successful cooking program, captured in a book which provides a complete cooking course, seasoned with anecdotes and international humor. Over 200 recipes gathered from all over the world, illustrated with "how-to" photographs and 16 pages in stunning full color, make this an unusually exciting—and unusually helpful—book.

Graham Kerr is the handsome and talented Scotsman who has made "The Galloping Gourmet" a household institution from the South Pacific to North America. He and his wife live in Sydney, Australia, visiting Ottawa twice a year to tape his programs.

Supply Limited

Plans Stated For Park

Amherst Representative John W. Olver will report on the Mount Holyoke Unit of the proposed Connecticut Historic Riverway as part of a C.E.Q. workshop to be held tonight at 8:00 p.m. in Campus Center Room 804-808. Rep. Olver is the Chairman of the Massachusetts Citizens Advisory Committee.

Rep. Olver will explain the revised plan for the Mt. Holyoke Unit of the park. The plan stresses limited low-impact development using many of the historic features and facilities already existing on the Holyoke Range in Amherst and Hadley and on the Connecticut River in Hadley and South Hadley.

The proposed Federal park would involve buying 12,400 acres of land plus 750 acres of unzoned river waters.

The public is invited to the workshop to review the plans for the Mt.. Holyoke Unit of the National Historic Waterway in terms of its ecological, social and economic impact and to form a consensus as to what future action should be taken regarding the proposal.

These professors have lent their body and soul to the S.C.R.E.W.. S.C.R.E.W. is an acronym for the Student Committee to Reappraise our Educator's Weltanshaung, which is sponsoring a poll on these profs to see who should get the screw. The whole thing is designed to raise money to sponsor an American child through Christian Children's Find Inc. A vote can be bought for one penny with no limit on the number of votes per person. So come on, cast your ballot today and give 'em the screw.

Studies Exchange Underway

UMass has recently arranged an academic year student exchange program with the University of Keele in North Staffordshire, England. Each of the two universities will send three undergraduates to the other for 1972-73.

Keele is one of England's most innovative universities. Founded in 1949, it aims at encouraging interdisciplinary studies and at breaking down some of the traditional divisions between different branches of study. Keele operates on the basis of close contact between students and faculty.

There are three openings for undergraduates who would like to study at Keele next year. Among the disciplines taught at Keele are English, History, American Studies, Philosophy, Economics, Government, Geography, Sociology, and most of the sciences. UMass undergrads studying at Keele next year will receive full academic credit for their work.

To apply for the program students must have a cumulative average of 3.0.

Getting Engaged?
VERY LOW PRICES ON DIAMONDS
Christmas Specials
Call Richard Amoroso 6-4300 anytime
In Boston call (617) 542-2226

MDC CLASSIFIED

AUTOS FOR SALE

1964 VW Bug, rebuilt engine and front end, new brakes and master cylinder, just tuned up and oil change. $356 firm. 6-3197. tf12-17

69 Opel Rallye fastback, snowtires, 23mpg, radials. Asking $1250, Reg. 527-1529. tf12-2

71 Citroen, 2 cyl, 40mpg. It's a fun-car, asking $1200. Must sell, leaving the country. Call 549-6397. tf12-15

1965 Porsche 356-c, new brakes, clutch, rebuilt engine, ski-luggage rack, elec. sunroof, 545-0329. Dick Jubinville. tf12-17

Red Porsche 1966 Radial Snow Tires AM-FM-SW, radio $1800. Call 545-2330 or 253-9680. tf12-17

1965 Olds. 442, good condition, new tires, A.T., P.S.. Call 253-9876. tf12-17

1962 Ford Econoline Van - Good running condition, snow tires, $200. Call Tom 256-8144. tf12-16

65 Falcon, eng., in excel., cond., new rad., bat., starter, exhaust system, and rear snow tires. Call 617-342-9138 on Fri. or Sat. Best offer over $400. tf12-17

70 Datsun 1000 radio, heater, radial tires, trunk rack with ski adapters, grey/black top. Call 586-3249. tf12-17

66 Barracuda Fast back, 4 speed, 4 bbl carb., orig. owner. Days 545-0074, eve; 665-3547. tf12-17

1971 VW Super Beetle convertible, 8,000 miles, still on warranty, must sell. Call 247-5677 after 5:30. 12-15

1964 VW Microbus, rebuilt engine, new clutch. Body and interior excellent. Leaving country. Best offer. Karuna 253-9264. tf12-16

67 Barracuda Fastback, exel., condition air/cond., p.s., gd. snows, 273 V8, 18-20 m.p.g., must see and drive. Call Dave 586-1321, leave message, $1200 or b.o. tf12-21

1964 Plymouth 4-door sedan, a honey of a car, good deal at $200 (just got a new car for Xmas gift) 256-8174. tf12-17

1964 VW Sunroof, black w/black naug., interior, fiber belted tires, 67 rebuilt engine, 53 hp super clean, $525. 1-734-6563. tf12-21

1963 VW Microbus Camper, radio, gas heater, toilet, ice box, (4) new ww tires, new paint, mech exc., $950 or best offer 256-8489. tf12-21

FOR SALE

Bicycle, 10 speed, Phillips Racer $80 or best offer. Call 549-0979. tf12-20

Guitars: Martin, Yamaha, Aria, Harmony. Also; Dulcimers, autoharps. Find out what you want, then call John 6-5401 late. tf12-16

ASTROLOGICAL BIRTH CHARTS: 11 full page complete report $10. Specify, place, month, day, yr., and time of birth. Send to David Zeno, 7 Joyce Rd., Waltham. tf12-21

BSR Minichanger $40. Realistic Amp $65. Call Ken 546-6477. Will negotiate. tf12-16

Scott 382c Stereo Receiver, 30 watts/chan, rms. Garrard SL. 72b turntable. both in excellent condition. Best offer. Call Bob 665-4983. tf12-17

Camera 35mm Pentax Spotmatic, 55mm lens with light meter, 1 yr. old, best offer. Karuna 253-9264. tf12-16

Two matched 12" coaxial speakers, professional quality, like new, $45 each; new 9" TV/AM FM Clock combo $100. Call 256-8432. tf12-15

1968 tr6 650cc., excellent cond., price negotiable; electric range, excellent cond., 36", $40. Will deliver. Call George 323-7304 eves. tf12-17

Used desk and dresser plus queen size waterbed with frame, cheap. Phone 256-8172 keep trying. tf12-15

Dual 1209 turntable w/cartridge $100. Call 253-9876. tf12-17

Gibson GB-3 Bass, good condition, with case $200. Call (617) 544-2921 collect. tf12-21

Snow tires 165-14 Semperit Radials, 1 pr. mounted on MGB disc wheels. $50. Call 549-6087. tf12-17

New and used cameras and photo equipment bought and sold. Lang's Photo 253-3148. tfsem

Original Turkish Sheepskin Coat for a lady, white outside, white fur inside $85. Call Ahmet 6-4210 after 7 p.m. tf12-15

'65 VW Bug, red, exc.body and mech.,nu sno tires, battery, muffler. 53,200 miles. $550 or offer. Must sell. 425 n. Pleas. St., Univ. Apt. No. 104. tf12-15

One pair of Air Force insulated flight pants, size-34, good for -30 degrees and colder $20. Call 253-2906-Barry. tf12-15

20-50% off stereo components, all major brands, fully guaranteed. Also! 8 track tapes $2.49. Baker Stereo, Rm., 223. Call Barry or Dave 4-5:30 p.m. Phone 546-6063. tf12-20

Die-hard auto battery. Used 1 mo. $35;-1 suede fringed jacket good condition $40. 546-4547 eves. tf12-15

Diamond eng. ring and dia. band-deal on either or both. Dia. is 85 points w/bag. You won't find a better deal. Call Jim at 5-0653/549-6384. tf12-15

Tenor Sax, Selmer MKIV, good condition. Call 549-0987. tf12-17

PERSONAL

Ginny - 216 Knowlton - I have brown eyes, Ho, Ho, Ho, - your secret Santa. 12-15

Happy Birthday yesterday, Doody! 12-15

It's obvious that you don't know who The Shadow is and what he knows. -The Shadow. 12-15

It's not what the Shadow knows; it is who he knows that counts. 12-16

HOUP8- Thanks for the parties. We were waiting. Better luck with your Secret Santas. "Surprised". 12-15

Now in Fernando's Hideaway, suede jackets, coats, skirts, midis - whole sale prices, XMass gifts. Next to Post Office in Student Union. tf12-16

Looking for male traveling partner to see Europe next semester. Bored with School? Call Rob at Rm. 110, 256-6825 soon! 12-15

One, two, three. . .Oh my gosh! What a sleeze! ! ! 12-15

Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year, Kappas. Elaine Z. Ellen L. 12-16

Big Ole Tarzan, 6 ft., calling 4 attractive, sensuous Jane type gals 4 swinging in der trees. Damn good food and booze. Call eve. wek. ends. Keep trying. 665-2264. tf12-22

Brunette and blonde gals in navy coats D.O.M., waited 4u c.c. newstand Fri eve. 8:00-8:45 p.m.?? Am very interested. Please call D.O.M. 665-2264. tf12-16

FOR RENT

Female - free room and board, modern apt., adjacent univ., in lieu of minimal child care. 549-3653. tf12-21

One furnished room, 5 1/2 mi., from campus, kitchen privileges, utilities included. Call 586-0030, available Jan., first. tf12-21

Room and board available in new house on N. Pleasant St., two minute walk from campus. Call Dana 253-9031. tf12-17

Townehouse Apt. to share, Female or couple, $76/mo-1, $114/mo-2, available immediately. Call 256-8467. tf12-15

Apt., in Amherst available, immediate, $90 a month, heat and water included. Phone 256-8472, keep trying. tf12-15

Furnished efficiency apt. Available Jan. 15, all electric air cond., includes utilities, $130. Quabbin Village, Belchertown call 323-6376. tf12-17

1-4 F roommates needed for So. Deerfield house. In the woods, own rooms, $55/mo. plus util. Call 665-2265. tf12-15

Squire Village, modern 2 bdrm apt., all utilities incl. Married couples only. Avail., Jan 1. Rent $190. Call evenings 665-2310. tf12-17

6 bedrms., 2 baths, kitchen and rec. room in Holyoke, 14 mile from U. of M. All util., ex. phone, much furn., $300 per month. Call 323-7002. tf12-15

2 bedroom apt. 118 Colonial Village, all utilities inc., $160/month. Avail. end of Jan. 72. Call 253-2986 or Kamins Realty. tf12-16

2 room furnished apt., 15 minutes from Campus, avail. Dec. 23, lease until June 1, $140 includes utils. Call 247-5418 btwn. 5:00 - 7:00 p.m. tf12-17

POT SALE

Ceramics sale, BFA and Grad Student work - signed original pieces for holiday gifts, Dec. 15 and 16 10 a.m.-4:30 p.m. Munson Hall, annex, basement. tf12-16

ENTERTAINMENT

Need a band for your party? All local bands are represented by Stan. Call 546-9215. tf12-15

Rock Band Phoenix now available for your Xmas party. Good, hard driving, dance music. Call Carl at 253-9371 for information. tf12-17

ROOMMATES WANTED

Roommate wanted, F, to share apt., own room, $80 mo., util inc., 1/2 mile from campus. Call 546-5472. tf12-15

Roommate wanted to share 3-bedroom apt. Squire Village. Call 665-2005. tf12-15

To share 2 bdrm apt in old hse, 2 firs, dog, frpic, garag, ktchn, livrm, frnshd, quiet, 2 mi from UMass, Judy, 13 Middie, Hadley 586-3784, keep trying. tf12-16

Roommate wanted F, to share rent with 2 other girls, own room, ranch house in Hadley. Call anytime 586-2815. tf12-17

Roommate wtd., house in town, own bdrm., $75/mo. and utilities. Prefer Grad Student. Call 549-6458. tf12-16

Male or female roommate wanted for squire vill apt. for second semester. Call Sonny 665-4485. tf12-16

Male wanted to share apt. in Col. Village, $55/mo. sec. semester. Call 256-6681, keep trying. tf12-16

Roommate wanted for 3 brm in Pufflon, own room, 549-6258 after six p.m. tf12-21

Female roommate wanted for Rolling Green Apartment. Call Leslie 253-5140. tf12-21

M or F, own room, Puffton Village apt. 258. Call 549-5486. tf12-21

Rmte to share new 3 bdrm town house for 2nd semester. 2 miles from campus. Prefer male grad students. Call 253-5888. tf12-17

ROOM FOR RENT

Just off Campus/share house - own bedroom/male or female/single or double ($90 and $120) avail. 1/1/72. Call Ron 549-3871 (evenings) tf12-16

APT. TO RENT

Sublet Cliffside 2 bedroom, furnished, available Jan. 1, 665-3674. tf12-16

Tired of dorm life? A new apt., for you and your roommate waits to be rented. Pick up lease, $140/month, Amherst. For info 253-3955. tf12-16

FREE ROOM AND BOARD

Free room and board in exchange for babysitting afternoons while mother goes to class, Jan. 1st thru Spring Semester. 586-3819. tf12-17

APT. WANTED

2 bdr. apt. wanted in Puffton Village. Call 256-8723 after six or box 468, No. Amherst. tf12-17

MT. SUGARLOAF APTS. Avail. Jan 1, sg. 2 bdrm util. included, air-cond., pool $185. Call Skiblail Realtors 253-7222, eve. 253-2826. tf12-22

Married studeut couple need eff. or one bedroom apt. Reasonable rent, Jan., 1st, 253-9909. tf12-17

RAFFLE

1st prize: AF Parka, 2nd: 5 - Band Radio. Tickets available in C.C. Concourse. 25¢ each, - 5/$1.00. Proceeds to Boltwood Project. tf12-16

LOST

Lost in Clark Hall, Nov., 17, high school German book, important! Please call Jeff MacGray 549-0716. tf12-17

"Lost" from Herter Hall-tape cassette and recorder, Keep recorder if you must, but please return cassette to Fine Arts Council office or arrange clandestine through 5-0205. Transfer. tf12-17

FREE

Black puppy - 4 months old and housebroken. Call 549-1283 evenings after 6 p.m. tf12-17

HELP WANTED

Ex. auto mechanics and attendants, good pay and benifits. Ambers and Area (No heavy work). Call 586-3351. tf12-21

WANTED

1 or 2 roommates wanted for spring semester in Puffton. Call Joan or Carolyn 549-6462. tf12-17

Emergency ! Lost Psych/290 Notes. Will pay for yours. Call-546-1106. tf12-17

TOSUBLET

Married couple wanted to sublet 2 bdrm furnished apt., at Cliffside, Occ. - 1/1/72, lease 'till Sept., 72. Call after 6, 665-3570. tf12-17

Squire Village, two bedroom townhouse available Jan., 1. Call 665-3254. tf12-21

SERVICES

Experienced typist will type Term Papers, Olympia elec. pica type, 50¢ per page. Thesis 55¢ . Call 256-5403 Crown Point Apt. tf12-16

Amherst Audio services. Stereo components, tape decks for home or car. 197 No. Pleasant St. 256-8153. tf5-12

Passports & grad school pictures-24, hr, service Lang's Photo 253-3148. tfsem

For Rent/Help Wanted

Student to live in second semester. Room and board in exchange for help with children. Near Campus. Call 253-0431. tf12-15

RIDE WANTED

Desperate - RDELETE
Desperate - ride wanted to Florida near Miami for 2 on or around Jan. 7. If you can help call Bev. or Joan 549-6721. tf12-16

ROOM WANTED

Help: Two males need one large or two bedrooms. Call 549-6660 anytime. tf12-17

TRAVEL

Bermuda from $189 or Nassau from $230 during the week of Spring Vacation. For more info call Rich Margli, 412 Dwight 545-0791. tf12-21

Nassau-$149, from Boston & N.Y., hotel flight, transfers, 12/20-27, 12/23-29. 12/27-1/3 Ski-Australia-$325, 15 days, flight, hotel, meals, transfers, Insbruk, deluxe package, London-$187, flights in January. Call-Student Flights 566-1050. tf12-15

Ski the Alps-Jan 14-24 Chamouix, France-air fare, hotels, discount lifts and lessons, last night in Paris. Contact Peggy 253-9467. tf12-23

Ski the Alps, Jan 14-24 Chamonix France, air fare, hotels, discount lifts & lessons, last night in Paris $287. Contact Peggy 253-9467. tf12-23

TYPING

Typing-theses, dissertations, etc. Fast, accurate, experienced. Have Math and Chem. symbols. Call 253-3001. tf12-21

BRUINS HOCKEY

UMass Rowing Assoc. sponsoring raffle for two sets of two Bruins home games, Dec. 26 & Jan 15. See crew members or Coach Faherty in 211 Boyden. tf12-15

STUDENTS BOOK MATCHING

Register your book in S.U. Rm. 318. Every student with your course next semester will need your books save $ money, sell direct. tf-sem.

Notices

AHORA
(Church services for Spanish-speaking students.) Luis Medina meeting is Dec. 16 rather than Dec. 15.

AMATEUR RADIO ASSOC.
Meeting in CC 169 at 6 p.m. tonight. This is the night before we go to the Senate, please come.

ARBOR AND PARK CLUB
Christmas Party, Dec. 18 at 6:30 p.m. on X at the Hatfield Barn. Reservations with Lesley, 401 Dwight, 5-2304. Before Dec. 16.

COMMUTER ASSEMBLY EXECUTIVE COUNCIL
Meeting will be held Thursday at 5:30 p.m. in CC. Commuters welcome.

CHESS CLUB
Come tonight to the New Hatch at 7 p.m.

ENTOMOLOGY SEMINAR
There will be an Entomology seminar in Rm. F, Fernald Hall today at 3:30 p.m. Mr. Edward J. Blyth, Graduate Student in Entomology of the University, will speak. His topic will be: "The European Red Mite In The Apple Orchard".

EQUESTRIAN CLUB
Meeting tonight at 7 p.m. in CC 805-809. Short business meeting followed by talk on History of the Morgan by Dr. Ruse Smith.

FENCING CLUB
Bonnie & Clyde cancelled--was to be shown tonight but it won't.

HEALTH SERVICES STUDENT ADVISORY BOARD
Meeting tomorrow in CC 802 at 3 p.m. This is the time and place for all your complaints, comments, and suggestions. Come and talk with us.

HILLEL
HAPPY CHANUKAH. 4 candles tonight.

JOHNSON HOUSE XMAS PARTY
Live band--East Wind. At 8 p.m.

MOBE
Meeting tonight at 7 p.m. in the MOBE office, 2nd floor or old Student Union (Franklin Room). New England coordination of SMC to speak. All invited.

OUTING CLUB
All those needing ride to sale meet in back of Hatch at 8:30 tonight.

PSYCHOLOGY 210
Sensation and Perception: Course evaluation will be today. Please try to attend.

LOST
Poodle--8 mos., blonde and apricot ears. Amherst tagged. Call 323-6631.

1 gold pierced earring between SU via Campus Ctr. and Puffton Village. Call 549-6984.

Fundamental Spanish book, on Friday, 12/3, in Bartlett or Herter. Bring to CC Lost & Found or call 546-6477.

Chain with 2 medals in Aux. gym at Boyden. Great personal value. Contact Mike at 6-4084.

SYLVAN AREA PRESENTS
Warner Bros. recording artists 30 Days Out. Also Rush and 4th Street. At Worcester Dining Common, Friday night at 7:30. Admission: 50 cents. Sylvan residents Free.

Dean Takes Banking Interest

Dr. Lawrence A. Johnson, assistant dean of the Business School at UMass, has been named the first president of the new Franklin Park Community College in Roxbury.

He was appointed last week by the Board of Regional Community Colleges.

Johnson holds a bachelor's and master's degree from Boston University and was awarded his doctorate in October, 1970, by Stanford University.

Johnson is the founder and chairman of the board of the Committee for Collegiate Education at Amherst. He also founded and heads a program designed for minority students seeking a master's degree in business administration.

DR. LAWRENCE JOHNSON

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SYDNEY OMARR

The next time you visit a hospital, check zodiacal signs of the Personnel. The probability is that an abundance of persons connected with the institution were born under Virgo and Pisces. Let me know your findings!

...

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You may be drawn in two directions simultaneously. Accent is on desire to "get away." But needs of relative may dictate that you "stay put." You do have life of your own to live. Stress independence.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Be cautious in money affairs. Important now to provide extra protection for assets and "cushion" against inflation. If you don't know what to do, do nothing. No need to rush decisions.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Some persons who oppose your views may sink to threats, intimidation. Hold fast to principles. Law is on your side. Stress versatility. You are not stuck with one method. Proceed accordingly.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Apparent restrictions may be necessary and, ultimately, to your advantage. Study Gemini message. Avoid panic. You are not being "closed in." Relative who talks much may have little knowledge.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Those who attempt to toss cold water on creative endeavors should be ignored. Communicate in your own way. Don't be influenced by threats, promises, cajoling. Gemini and Virgo persons are involved.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): What appears blocked by circumstances may actually be restricted by design. Know this and hold off on final decisions. Those in authority tend to disagree. Don't get caught in middle.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Some financial pressure is relieved. But you may now have to contend with relatives. Key is to maintain sense of humor. See in realistic light. Put off journey, if practical. Take special care with written word.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You are in better position to get across ideas, policies than might be imagined. Key is to deal from position of strength. Means play your own game. Don't permit others to maneuver you into unfamiliar style.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Tie down financial commitment. Means get promises in writing. Don't be satisfied with sweet nothings. Others will respect you if your position is fair but firm. Modernize approach to problems.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Throw off burdens that are not rightly your own. Take a more independent stance. Emphasize originality, creative endeavors. Pacing now is more important than usual. Avoid extremes.

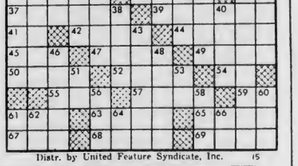
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Trust hunch. One who claims to be "on your side" may merely be talking. Friends could quarrel, call upon you to referee. This is a role that will not be appreciated by either side.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Spread efforts. Means fight tendency to be confined. Break loose. You have more of a solid anchor of security than might be realized. There is no need for fear. Begin dancing to your own tune.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are completing a cycle, on the brink of new adventure and challenge. You draw to you talented persons, those with something to offer. Your sense of drama is highly developed. You are attractive and key is to perceive your own potential.

Copyright 1971, Gen. Fea. Corp.

Crossword Puzzle



Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

S	W	E	E	P				M	E	N	D	S
T	I	D	I	E	S		P	A	R	R	O	T
E	N		R	A	N	G	E	R	S		N	O
A	D	S		L	O	S	S		C	O	P
M	O	T	S		R	A	T		T	A	R	E
		W	I	T	H	E	R		A	I	R	S
		F	R	E	D		G	E	N	T	E
		A	F	A	R		A	N	T	L	E	R
A	N	E	W		L	T	D		E	N	I	D
I	N	N		S	A	T	E	S		S	N	Y
S	E		A	N	N	U	A	L	S		G	E
L	A	N	C	E	D		R	A	I	D	E	R
E	L	I	T	E			P	L	O	D	S

'5

ACROSS
1 Greek letter
5 Poems
9 Vessel
12 Sea in Asia
13 Mountain of Europe
14 The self
15 Greek letter
16 Poker stake
18 Distant (poet.)
20 College degree (abbr.)
22 Gaelic
24 Algonquian Indians
27 Liquefy
29 Slave
31 Once around track
32 Chemical compound
34 Long ago
36 Note of scale
37 Tallies
39 Lose vigor
41 Symbol for tellurium
42 Small rugs
44 Platform
45 Abstract being
47 Tropical fruit
49 Man's name
50 Sicilian volcano
52 Irritate
54 Teutonic deity
55 Time gone by
57 Keen
59 Maiden loved by Zeus
61 Distant
63 Pleat
65 Row
67 Fruit drink
68 Liberate
69 The caama

DOWN
1 Prohibit
2 Blushing
3 Symbol for tantalum
4 A state (abbr.)
5 Style of painting
6 Stylish
7 Babylonian deity
8 Crafty
9 Pertaining to punishment
10 King of Bashan
11 Preposition
17 Compass point
19 Bone
21 Singing voice
23 Plenty (poet.)
25 Classes
26 Steeples
27 Octoroon
28 Fixed period of time
30 Goddess of discord
33 Peruse
35 Girl's name
38 Heavenly body
40 Part of harness
43 Smother
46 Trap
48 Omit in pronunciation
51 Symbol for silver
53 Printer's measure
56 Away!
58 Greek letter
60 Native metal
61 Note of scale
62 Paid notice
64 Conjunction
66 Exists

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 15

Science Fiction
Myth—Legend
JUM TUT SUT BOOKERY
Books For The New Age
Find us at
FACES OF EARTH
159 North Pleasant St.
Amherst, Mass.
Next To The Post Office

Commentary

"Free Football"

By BILL GORCZYCA

If you're a football fan and like to watch "free" football games on television, you better watch as many as you can because within 10 days there is a good chance that these broadcasts will not be free any more. Recent developments in the intricate economic relationship between the major television networks and the National Football League threaten to force the American male out of the warmth of his home to some strange environment in order to supplement his psyche with the normal dose of weekend violence.

All over the country athletes are forming unions, salaries are going up and pension funds are zooming. R.L. Schecter recently stated in Look that this development is creating "a cost squeeze on owners of sporting organizations." Unlike their contemporaries in baseball and hockey owners of NFL, teams cannot rely on the steady attendance of loyal fans over a season that runs more than 100 games. The exigencies of football demand that the season run not more than 20-25 games, including exhibitions and post-season competition. This places owners in the unenviable position of relying on contracts with television networks in order to bail out and make a profit.

Over the years, owners have asked for more and more money as evidenced in the comments of CBS sports executive Bill MacPhail: "Twelve years ago when we paid $14-million to televise NFL games I said we had reached the top. The last time we signed it was for $24-million.

According to the Saturday Review network television has been losing heavily in the money game by assuming the financial burdens of the NFL and are slowly being pushed to oblivion, even though they are at present the world's largest distributor of sporting events. Increases in NFL contract demands have been matched with increases in rates for ad spots on televised football games. A one-minute commercial spot on the Monday Night Football Game now costs $72,000. These prices are so high that advertisers will soon experience diminishing returns on their advertising dollar and the ad spots will cease to be so attractive.

Of course, there have been attempts by both the major networks and the NFL to combat this price spiral. The networks instituted the 30-minute commercial, doubleheaders and even tripleheaders in order to broaden the number of advertisers and provide more exposure for the advertising dollar. Commissioner Pete Rozelle of the NFL sold Monday Night Football to ABC for a reported $8.5-million a year in order to lessen the NFL's financial demands on CBS and NBC.

According to P. Boyle of Sports Illustrated Rozelle received the networks' agreement to reduce the number of doubleheaders and eliminate tripleheaders. Rozelle feared that the networks would over-expose the game and bore audiences to death. By instituting Monday Night Football (which draws an audience of 35% according to a national TV rating service), Rozelle feels he has picked up many new fans across the nation.

In spite of these attempts, however, both CBS and NBC are reportedly losing money on professional football and ABC is making only small profits. When it comes time for contract renewals the NFL will undoubtedly be true to its reputation and hike its prices. This time, however, the networks could tell the NFL to pick up their footballs and play someplace else. Faced with this situation the NFL would be welcomed with open wallets by cable television or closed-circuit television promoters.

A recent article in the Saturday Review said, "The development of cable antenna systems over the past few years has made it possible to provide television viewers with broadcasts of local sporting events for a nominal monthly fee." When a cable antenna system was introduced in New York, reviewers were tempted to subscribe to the service by the promise of regular telecasts of New York Rangers hockey games and New York Knicks basketball contests. Since both of these teams rely mainly on the steady attendance of local fans, their demand for remuneration from the cable television promoters were not overwhelming. However, it is not difficult to imagine the use of cable TV to broadcast professional football games with both a lucrative contract to the NFL and increased monthly rates for viewers.

Another avenue open to the NFL would be a contract with closed-circuit sports promoters. This method of broadcasting has already proved successful for the telecast of championship boxing matches. 300-million fans in 42 countries poured $30-million into the outstretched arms of the promoters of the Ali-Frazier fight last March. Promoters are hungry for another kill, as evidenced by the promotion and telecast of a bullfight from Mexico last June. Signing promoters and theater owners across the nation who are experiencing an economic depression at the box office.

There are some who believe that the NFL would not sign a contract with anyone except network TV. Newsweek stated after the Ali-Frazier fight, "It is inconceivable that pro football, which owes its prosperity to network TV, would betray its fans for a closed-circuit profit." However, past prosperity and future prosperity are two different things. The lure of the green will override any NHL pretense of loyalty and the strong hold that football has on the heartstrings of the American male will be turned into crisp dollar bills for the NFL and promoters if network TV ever fails to meet the financial demands of the NFL.

Gymnasts Break 150 Barrier In Defeating Southern Conn.

By MICHAEL CUSACK

Over the weekend an overflow crowd in the Boyden Auxiliary Gym saw the UMass varsity gymnasts pick up their second win in as many starts, as they downed a highly touted So. Conn. team, 152.45-144.60. This marks the first time this season the Redmen have been able to crack the 150 barrier. The Redmen's best effort to date, coupled with So. Conn.'s below par performance, enables UMass to enter their first league competition with an undefeated slate. Their first E.I.G.L. opponent will be Army, on Sat., Dec. 18 at West Point.

High scorer for the Redmen was co-capt. Dave Genest who had a 9.25 routine on parallel bars. Right behind him was co-capt. Tony Vacca, whose horizontal bar routine was good for a 9.20. One other Redman routine bettered the 9.0 mark, as sophomore Jay Thomsen won longhorse vaulting with a 9.05.

High score of the meet went to So. Conn. sensation John Crosby on his best event, floor exercise. He amazed spectators and judges alike as his routine included a double back somersault and a double twist, good for a 9.45 score. Crosby also had a 9.0 on still rings, which was good for first place.

The final first place went to UMass' Steve Scuderi on pommel horse. Scuderi, a tough, durable competitor, had an 8.4 routine, which was a full .9 ahead of his nearest opponent.

Other strong performances for UMass included Vacca on floor, Aronstein and Oliver on rings, and Scuderi on high bar. Jack Berner, who was back in competition after an injury, had an 8.55 floor exercise routine, which was good for fourth place. The Redmen's other top floor specialist, John Calabria, suffered another injury shortly before the meet, and was unable to compete.

In the all-around event, the Redmen's Tony Vacca was the surprise winner, as he upset Crosby, 49.90-48.60. So. Conn's Jay Whelan was third with 48.55.

As was expected, UMass' strong events proved to be the last three, vaulting, parallel bars, and horizontal bar. Their weak event, one which could become a major problem in the team's success, was pommel horse, as the Redmen could manage only 23.30 points. This is an area in which the Redmen must improve if they are to have success in the close league meets.

Coach Kjeldsen's squad is now training hard for their upcoming meet with Army. Scouting reports indicate that the Redmen should be able to take Army, and will hopefully keep their undefeated record intact.

In earlier action, the varsity "B" squad downed the team from Boston State College, 118.60-118.45. A recheck of the score indicated that the Redmen actually had won by .15 rather than .05 as originally announced. The UMass squad entered the meet as heavy underdogs, but were able to put it all together to upset the highly confident Boston State squad. The next meet for the varsity "B" will be this coming Sat., as they take on Army's "B" team.

Mental Preparation Key To Lakers' Success

LOS ANGELES (AP)-Bill Sharman gets the credit for preparing the Los Angeles Lakers physically, but his players say the mental preparation was more important.

The Lakers go after their 22nd consecutive victory Tuesday night in Portland, hoping against an emotional letdown after their record-breaking 104-95 victory Sunday night over Atlanta. In the wake of that triumph, praise and champagne flowed for the first-year coach who has made the Laker players feel like winners.

"The main reason we're winning is that we're moving the ball, hitting the open man, playing defense" said sophomore forward Jim McMillian. "This is truly a team, not a group of individuals.

"This team runs like Boston did a few years ago. Each man knows what his job is and he does it, but more than that, we know we can beat anybody."

The players admit Sharman's preseason schedule was rigorous, with two workouts a day not uncommon. But the extra conditioning may have provided the last-minute spark that gave Los Angeles its 21st victory.

The Hawks had closed to within a point with one minute to play. In came Gail Goodrich, who had been given a fourth-period breather, and his pass to Wilt Chamberlain under the bucket led to a dunk shot and a three-point lead with 39 seconds left.

"Yes, I definitely think we have won many games during the streak on our conditioning," said Sharman. "They've worked hard and now it's paying off."

"The conditioning is one thing," said McMillian. "But the big thing is mental. We go out there knowing we're going to run for 48 minutes. It's a positive thing. We're oriented to running and doing what we have to and the rest more or less comes easy."

"It's like we put a large sum of money in the bank when the season started. Now all we're doing is drawing out the interest," said quick-handed guard Goodrich.

But now that one-third of the season has been played, Sharman says the extra workouts will taper off.

"From now on it's a matter of each player watching his diet, getting plenty of sleep and keeping ready mentally," said Sharman. "They're in good shape and I don't want to overdo it."

"Mostly, it's mental. When you lose that many in a row, you come into the arena knowing you're going to lose a ballgame. The way this team is, we come in knowing we are going to win."

Esposito Vaults Into Scoring Lead

NEW YORK (AP)-Lanky Phil Esposito, Boston's two-time National Hockey League scoring champion, reached a major plateau with his 300th career goal Sunday and it kept him in front in the scoring race this week.

Statistics released by the NHL Monday showed Esposito with a slim one-point lead in the scoring derby, 51-50, over New York's Jean Ratelle. The margin was Esposito's milestone goal scored Sunday night while Ratelle was chopping into his lead with a couple of assists.

Ratelle, the stylish center of the highest scoring line in the league, now leads the NHL with 33 assists. This marks the first week since Jan. 5, 1969, that a player other than Esposito or his teammate, Bobby Orr, has led in the category.

Orr is in fifth place in the scoring race, separated from Esposito by the explosive Ranger line of Ratelle, Vic Hadfield, and Rod Gilbert. Hadfield is third with 22 goals and 24 assists for 46 points and Gilbert has 20-25-45.

Behind Orr's 13-30-43 is a three-way tie for sixth place with Chicago's Bobby Hull sharing the spot with Buffalo's Rick Martin and Gil Perreault at 35 points. Frank Mahovlich of Montreal is ninth with 32 points.

New York's Brad Park and Fred Stanfield of Boston share 10th place at 31 points.

Quarry No. 3

SYLVANIA, Ohio (AP)-Jerry Quarry's recent first round knockout victory over Jack Bodell of England advanced the Bellflower, Calif., heavyweight to the No. 3 ranking in the division, according to ratings released Monday by the World Boxing Association.

Above Quarry on the list are champion Joe Frazier and the Nos. 1 and 2 challengers, Muhammad Ali and George Foreman.

Brockington Reaches 1000

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP)-It wasn't one of the better games for Green Bay Packers running back John Brockington, but his performance against the Chicago Bears Sunday placed him in select company.

His 63 yards rushing in 26 carries gave him 1,032 yards for the season and made him one of four rookies in National Football League history to crack the 1,00-yard mark.

The big moment came on a six-yard burst up the middle, the first play of the second half. Brockington went into the game 32 yards shy of 1,000, and he ran for 29 in the first half.

"I was trying not to think about it," said Brockington, "but the minute I made that run, the crowd reacted and I knew I had gone over it."

On the next play, the rookie scored on another six-yard run giving the Packers the lead which they never relinquished, winning 31-10.

Fencing

In a Novice Foil Meet sponsored by Berkshire Community College, Arthur L. Stacy of the UMass Fencing Club went undefeated through twelve bouts to take first place in the men's class. Genny Sawyer, from the P.E. fencing course here on campus won second place in the women's division. This is the first time that UMass fencers have fenced in an actual competition in several years.

Rugby Meeting

The UMass Rugby Club will hold an organizational meeting in room 259, Goessman at 8 P.M. tonight. The main item on the agenda will be the election of club officials for the coming year. All members are urged to attend. Non-members who are interested in participating in a contact sport which combines aspects of soccer, lacrosse, and American football are also invited.

WORRIED ABOUT A JOB?

Assure yourself of an interesting, challenging, well-paying job through Air Force ROTC 2 year Program.

Consider these points:
- $100 a month while in AFROTC
- $1000 worth of free flight instuction
- $9400 + starting salary
- Draft deferment

These are just a few of the benefits available through the

AFROTC 2-YEAR PROGRAM
Call DICKINSON HALL 545-2437

Redman Dramatics Again, 69-67

By EARLE BARROLL

You can bet your last dollar that Jack Leaman will not be in any hurry to see another Huskie for a long time.

Last night before a full house at Curry Hicks Cage the UMass basketball team went through its second case of Huski-itis in as many games (Northeastern on Saturday night) before hanging on to a 69-67 win over UConn.

While the impetus has been laid forth in recent games for Leaman to teach a course next semester in dramatics for aspiring coaches, he has one he himself sees as very important to teach at the present moment...mental preparation 100.

"Never in my life have I been 5-0 and worried about mental preparation for the team," he said dejectedly after the game. "We played very poorly and very dumb out there tonight."

Dee Rowe, head coach of UConn, was not as dejected over his teams performance but also divorced any idea of a moral effort. "I thought we played well," he said. "We didn't crack near the end which happens so often to teams on the road. We were picked to lose by as much as 20 points tonight, but two or 20, it's still a loss."

It was UConn who actually changed the game around, going from a straight man-to-man in the first half to a zone defense in the second half, and according to Rowe this saved his team. "We had to do something. UMass destroyed us man-to-man."

John Betancourt, who put on another super performance with 26 points in a complete game effort and who was lauded by Rowe "for a great game", pinned the problem to a flatness the team has been under in the past couple of weeks. "We didn't shoot well over the zone, like we did against Holy Cross and when we missed we were just standing around and they were getting all the rebounds."

UMass opened right off the bat with a full court press intended to cause mistakes by UConn, but what actually transpired was a series of turnovers and easy lay-ups for both teams...Leaman scrapped the press. "We weren't hustling out there and a press is no good when you're standing around," he explained.

Good defense vaulted the Redmen into a four-point lead with just over six minutes to go in the half and then an outburst of nine UMass points to one for the Huskies built the lead to 11 where it stayed for the remainder of the half.

This was the end of the man-to-man.

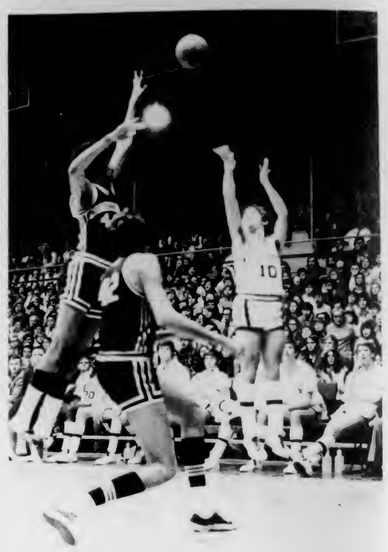
It was in this first half that Chris Coffin, who has made a habit of doing his job secretly on the court but with positive results, brought the Huskies' outstanding forward Cal Chapman under wraps...this saved the Redmen.

Chapman was averaging over 20 points and a dozen rebounds a game. Coffin gave him maybe half...Leaman said of his performance, "He's a super defensive player, the best in New England the past two years."

Rowe was just as awe-struck: "He's fabulous. I told my team he'd be one of the best defenders they'd face this year. He's been around awhile and his experience showed up on Chapman who is a sophomore."

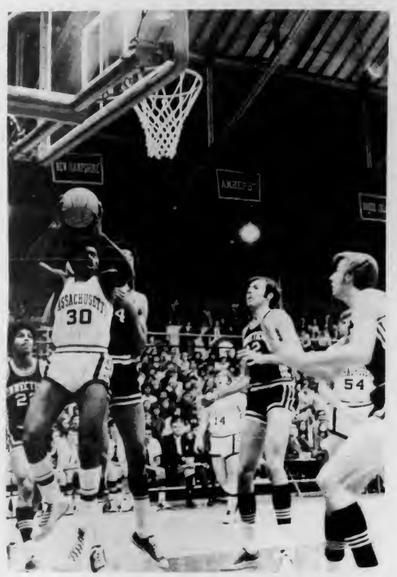
In the second half the UConn zone limited the Redmen to a single shot at the basket while the Huskies controlled the boards and nibbled the lead away in the process.

UConn came within two with 13 to go, UMass held them off. They came within two again some seven minutes later, this time the Redmen couldn't hold and the score was tied at 56.



Betancourt hit two jumpers to give UMass a four-point bulged and the order from the UMass bench was not to foul. From the UConn bench the order was different...the Redmen played it cool and waited for the Huskies to foul them to the one-an-one...they did.

Again UConn came back, the Redmen held. Mike Pagliara was the target of their aggression and he canned four free-throws that built a seven-point lead which UConn was unable to make up. "I figured I might as well do something tonight," he said.



What irked Leaman at this time was that his players were fouling UConn when they shouldn't have and this is what made the end so tight. "We got a five-point lead and we fouled them instead of them fouling us."

Box Score

UMass	G	F	T	UConn	G	F	T
Skinner	4	4	12	Chapman	8	4	20
Coffin	1	2	6	Parsons	2	0	4
Peters	1	0	2	Cuslick	5	3	13
Bet'n'cl	12	2	26	Vaughn	2	7	11
Pagl'a	2	7	11	Melody	1	7	9
Pilino	0	0	0	Pr'stas	1	2	4
Vogeley	3	0	6	Mullin	0	2	2
McL'lin	3	0	6	Deehan	0	0	0
Austin	1	0	2	Bell	2	0	4
				Barbach	0	0	0
	27	15	69		21	25	67

THE IDEA IS TO FIRST LOOK AT THE GRACEFULNESS OF JOHN BETANCOURT'S SHOT and then go looking for yourself in the stands. John had 26 points last night and kept the Redmen on the winning trail as they now stand at 5-4. (MDC Photo by Barbara Brecher.)

NOTE THE EXPRESSION ON AL SKINNER'S FACE...There weren't many UMass rebounds last night and maybe he's a bit surprised at being able to snag one away from the UConn front line. (MDC Photo by Gib Fullerton.)

Skaters At Home Tonight

By ALAN WRIGHT

Boston State invades Orr Rink at 8 tonight to tangle with the phenomenal Redman skaters who have now compiled statistics listing five straight wins and 33 goals. By comparing records, the boys from Bean Town shouldn't prove to be very formidable foes as they stand at 0-3 on their season schedule so far. However, those losses were sustained from the likes of Bowdoin, Colby, and Vermont, who are all noted hockey powers.

Boston State should have some local hub talent to offer tonight, but don't look for them to pose too much of a threat. The important thing for the UMass pucksters is not to develop too much of a cocky attitude as a result of their early season good fortunes.

It's interesting to realize that enroute to this '71 Redmen hockey success story, a lot of hard work and preparation was necessary. Five short years ago, the UMass hockey team had to scramble to win a third of their season's games. The whole program needed revamping and coach Jack Canniff was the man selected to do it. He left Gloucester High where he had established himself as a successful coach and ascended to UMass's collegiate ranks with the task of building a winning team here.

The rest is history, and as anyone connected with sports here knows, Canniff's teams have shown nothing but steady progress since those days of Lean, Green hockey prowess. This year's squad looks more invincible with each victory and this could be the climatic winter when puck playing becomes king on Campus.

Despite their methodical winning habits, though, the saving grace that will deter the pucksters from becoming too confident is their schedule. It never really allows them to cool their blades too much because they are matched up against mediocre teams as well as Division I and II stalwarts all season long. For instance, as soon as they beat Boston State tonight, they will have to start psyching themselves up for Yale at New Haven on Friday.

Freshmen Have It Easier; Hit Century Mark Vs. Pups

By LOUIS J. GROCCIA

Coach Fan Gaudette's little Redman are on a five game win streak thanks to an impressive 100-85 dumping of the Conn. Freshmen last night at the Cage.

The Redmen were led by big John Murphy, who poured in 32 pts. and 17 caroms, and smooth Tom Gillams, who contributed 22 pts. and 16 rebounds. Murphy was simply immense as he shot 11-18 from the floor and 10-12 from the line as he threatened Rich Vogeley's freshman scoring record of 36 pts.

But Murphy fouled out of the game with seven minutes left. Meanwhile Gillams was picking off the crucial rebounds and scored four hoops late in the second half when UConn had cut their deficit to 11 pts.

For all intents and purposes the Redmen iced the game early as they jumped out to a 15-4 lead which they increased to 20 as the game progressed and the subs came in.

In addition to Murphy and Gillams, the other three starters for UMass, Endicott, Burke, and Flanagan all hit double figures and played good defense in beating a tall and talented UConn five.

The fans at the Cage were treated to an excellent performance by a Earl Wilson of UConn. Wilson scored 39 pts. and collected 7 rebounds while being constantly harassed by the UMass defense all night.

He shot 14-28 from the floor and 11-15 from the line as he gave UMass fits all night. He jumped and blocked shots and used marvelous body control in a style reminiscent of Charlie Yelverton of Fordham.

UMass won the game up front as they penetrated well and hit the offensive and defensive boards all night. This rebounding strength was evident in the stats as UMass out-rebounded UConn 59-41. UMass shot 47% from the floor while UConn could only manage a 38% showing, in spite of the display put on by Wilson.

This was the freshmen's last game of the year as they now have a long lay-off until Jan. 29 when they play Bryant-Stratton at home.

LAYUP LINES--Joe Leone got the basket that reached the century mark for UMass on a reverse layup from the right. Bruce Guzowski filled in admirably for Gillams, getting four caroms and handing out two assists. Wilson's dunk shot off of a foul attempt brought memories of the old days when the art of dunking was legal and a joy to behold.

Luncheon Today

The UMass Redmen Sports Luncheon will be held at the Newman Center today at 12:15 p.m. with gymnastics coach Erik Kjeldsen the featured speaker. Kjeldsen will go over this year's gymnastics program and will also show a film of a gymnastics meet. He will also have a scouting report of upcoming meets. There will be the usual door prize and raffle of choice tickets to a basketball game. All for $1.50...the public is welcome.

BBall Tickets

Basketball tickets for the Manhattan game at Madison Square Garden on Thursday night and the Harvard game at Cambridge on Saturday are still on sale at the Boyden Ticket Office.

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather
Variable cloudiness, with a chance of rain or snow. Temperatures ranging from 25°-50°, with variable winds.

VOLUME XCIX, ISSUE 68 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS THURSDAY, DECEMBER 16, 1971

Republican Presidential aspirant Paul N. McCloskey discusses liberal Republicanism and his reasons for trying to "dethrone" Richard Nixon in 1972 before a packed house in Johnson Chapel at Amherst College last night. (MDC Photo by Gary Alpaugh.)

McCloskey Calls Administration Liars

By ERNIE ROTMAN

"The executive branch of our government today has concepts of power never thought to be given it by the framers of our Constitution."

This statement summarizes what Republican candidate for President, Congressman Paul N. McCloskey feels is wrong with this country today. From this quote, last evening, McCloskey discussed the procedures that the Excecutive branch has adopted during the Nixon administration and explained why he disagreed with them.

Brought up in his talk was the point that the President, and Executive Branch in general, continually lies to the public and Congress. Several examples of this included the refusal of the government to print the Pentagon Papers; their main purpose being to prevent the unification of Vietnam, and the continued denial of our President that soldiers were being killed in Laos. "He only stated this because it finally became known that soldiers were fighting in Laos."

According to McCloskey from California, before this point was released to the public, he had been told by various individuals that they had themselves fought in Laos. This, constituted McCloskey, means that the President "forces himself" to deceive the public and Congress, both of which might hamper the Executive's actions if facts were known about what he really was doing.

McCloskey continued that even though the constitution has stated that the President should be Commander in Chief, Chief Diplomat, etc., today's "limit" on the Executive Branch's power has led us to distortion of its powers. To clarify, he added as examples that the allocation of money for expenditures made by Congress was withdrawn by the President and that Congress power to declare war now has been overridden by the President's power such as that shown in Vietnam. The Gulf of Tonkin Resolution, McCloskey said, should have limited the President's power in Southeast Asia, but he decided to ignore this resolution.

This, McCloskey added, has made Congress the weakest it's ever been in terms of separation of power, checks and balances, provided by the Constitution. He stated other examples such as when the President ignored the Mansfield Amendment, Congress just acquiesced and didn't take retaliatory action like stopping the funds in his pet projects.

"What Constitutional power gives the President the right to do these things?" asked McCloskey. He said that he himself had been duped by the President into passing bills like SST and appropriations for $1 million to the secret war in Laos in that he was given false reasons to pass these bills.

Also brought out in the talk was that on a poll taken these last twelve years on "Do you believe the government?" the percentage of affirmative responses has dipped from seventy to fifty per-cent. In dealing with the policies of the Executive Branch on the whole, McCloskey summed it up with this: "The wisdom of sending the Pueblo into Korean waters compares with the sending of ships into the Bay of Bengal."

"We use the most affluent society and technology to destroy rural towns in Southeast Asia because our President doesn't want to be the first President to lose a war. All his policies deal in prestige and pride." McCloskey feels that the Executive Branch today is free to conceal and disclose any information wanted and he also said that "they" have taken the media and printing of information for public reading into their own hands. McCloskey meanwhile, stated that in running for President, he would stand on a firm truth of government platform. He would try to be honest with all people at all times on all issues even if his views were different than theirs "unlike our present President".

Before going into a question and answer period, Congressman McCloskey stated that the only way to "dethrone" Nixon is for the public to vote for him or any other Republican candidate rather than Nixon in the primaries. "Maybe, as happened in the '68 primaries, the national party will change their minds on who to put up for nomination."

On The Inside:

- Joyce Ladner See page 3
- India-Pakistan See page 4

Schwanitz Is Surprised

"Who, me?" a surprised Prof. Schwanitz asks concerning the furor raised over his recent article in the Collegian. (MDC photo by Gib Fullerton)

By STEVE TRIPOLI

Professor Dietrich Schwanitz of the English Department yesterday expressed his "extreme surprise" at the reaction of many people to his article in last Wednesday's Collegian.

Being an exchange teacher from Germany, Prof. Schwanitz admits that he was not at all prepared for a reaction that he feels he would not have received in Europe. He explained the difference by saying that his article was not an analysis of the situation, but "first impressions on the basis of an image of America formed in Europe" and that they were written in "current European terminology" that is "somewhat to the left of center' and "exhibits the views of the Frankfurt School of Philosophy."

He also stated that the main objections to his article came from the German Department, where it was characterized as "arrogant", "exhibiting an attitude of superiority", "grotesquely exaggerated", and "irresponsible". He also said that some of the students "have reservations" about it but that he has received moral support "from quite a few people."

Some of Professor Schwanitz's colleagues in the English Department were asked to comment on his article, and they were in agreement with him on most of the issues. Professor Vernon Helming had this to say about the reasons behind the uproar: "Germans have a very strong historic and intellectual tradition; they take education extremely seriously. This means it's difficult for a German to think of education as pleasant or easy."

He summarized the typical concept of education in Europe (where he claims the "drudgery of fundamentals is inescapable") by quoting an English school teacher whose views on curricula are that "it makes no difference what a boy studies, provided that he hates it."

When asked if he agreed with some of the members of the English Department who characterized the UMass student as ill qualified, Prof. Helming said that again this was by the standard of the European prep school, and that he felt that Prof. Schwanitz might consider the American student a bit immature. He concluded by saying that it would take Professor Schwanitz the rest of the year to be able to appraise us properly, but that it was unlikely that either side would ever really understand the other.

Virginia Grahame, also of the English Department and a teacher of mostly freshmen and sophomores says that students in America are becoming increasingly well prepared for college and that her freshmen, although they are "still very ignorant of the world" due to the fact that they do "very little serious thinking," are vastly improved by sophomore year due to their exposure to university life. She also stated that Prof. Schwanitz should in her opinion "observe us over a longer period of time before judging". She also said that the student in Europe has "had it" by the time he gets to college due to his rigorous preparation whereas in America this is not so.

She closed by saying that "on the whole a very valuable point was made" and that the analogy of the student as consumer was "very well taken". She said that it is "very valuable to have a foreign teacher here" so that we can get a view from more than one perspective.

SES Threatened With Lawsuit

By ROBERT MEDEIROS

The Student Educational Service's notetaking function may be headed for a court fight which would determine its immediate future at the University.

George Cheah, owner of SES, said in an MDC interview that he is willing to go to court to defend his right to print notes from the lectures of any professor at UMass. Cheah's outline of his future strategy marks a breakdown in negotiations between him and the Student Affairs Committee of the Student Senate.

Nick Apostola, chairman of the Student Affairs Committee, said in an earlier MDC interview that he hoped Cheah would not push the issue of taking notes in a lecture against the wishes of the instructor. He said that Cheah's efforts in this area would only hurt the chances of future expansion of notetaking on the campus.

The problems surrounding the SES program broke out in the open this past week when Cheah dropped nine courses from the 40 he is offering. He said he was forced to drop them under the threat of a restraining order which would have closed down his business. Cheah decided to drop the courses instead of going to court because, he said, he was under the impression that his losses would be reimbursed by the Senate.

Cheah said he soon came to realize that no money would be forthcoming from the Senate. He has now decided for next semester to reinstate the nine courses he recently dropped.

Commenting on Cheah's future plans, David Bischoff, associate provost, said, "If it comes down to the point where faculty rights are being encroached upon, then it will be necessary to consider how we proceed from that point. Legal action is a possibility but it would be a last recourse."

Cheah said he will write a letter next semester to every professor informing him of his option to have all lecture notes copyrighted in the professor's name.

Apostola said a joint subcommittee of the Financial and Services Committees has been formed to study another proposal - an attempt by the Senate to buy out SES and turn the notetaking service into a student-run organization.

Newton Charges Dropped

OAKLAND, Cal. AP - A judge dropped a manslaughter charge Wednesday against Huey P. Newton, cofounder of the Black Panther party, after the district attorney said there was no new evidence to warrant trying him a fourth time for allegedly killing a policeman.

"It would be fruitless to have another hung jury," Dist. Atty. Lowell Jensen told Superior Court Judge William Hayes. Jensen added, "We think he is absolutely guilty of the offense, make no mistake about that."

Newton, 29, Black Panther minister of defense, originally was charged with murder and was convicted in 1968 of manslaughter in the 1967 slaying of Oakland policeman John Frey, 23.

Newton spent 22 months in prison before the state Court of Appeal ordered a new trial, ruling the trial judge did not properly instruct jurors. A second trial ended in a hung jury last August and a third trial resulted in a deadlocked jury last Saturday.

Newton rushed from the courtroom after Hayes approved Jensen's motion to dismiss the charge. He embraced friends and followers.

"No comment," he told newsmen.

"It's about time they dismissed this case," said his attorney, Charles Garry. "He should not have been charged in the first place."

Newton, who founded the Black Panther party with Bobby Seale in 1966, was accused of killing Frey in a street battle after Frey stopped Newton's automobile on a traffic investigation. The prosecution said Newton struggled with Frey, grabbed the policeman's pistol and shot him.

The defense said Newton was shot in the stomach by Frey when the officer became infuriated because Newton began reading his constitutional rights from a law book.

Garry said Frey was accidentally shot by another officer, Herbert Heanes, summoned by Frey to assist.

Newton, who lives in an Oakland penthouse, has been free on bail since the appellate court ordered a new trial. He announced this year that the Black Panther party is switching from militant tactics in a move to regain favor with the black community. The Panthers frequently have clashed with police in many cities around the country.

He has been involved in a bitter interparty struggle over tactics with Eldridge Cleaver which surfaced last February when Newton and Cleaver clashed in a televised telephone interview.

'Aged Conference Successful' -Barkin

By GEORGE WEISSLITZ

Among the Massachusetts delegates to the recently concluded White House Conference on Aging was Professor Soloman Barkin, of the Economics Department here at UMass. More than 3400 delegates, most of them elderly, attended the conference from all parts of the country.

Speaking on WGBY TV in Springfield, Prof. Barkin termed the Conference "an extremely important meeting" and noted that there appeared to him to be a unanamity" and "singlemindedness' of need and purpose, in terms of improving health services, income, and housing for the elderly. Prof. Barkin said that in his opinion, the apparent unanimity "will result in action" and will have a definite "political clout." Comparing the Conference with a similar conference held in 1961, Barkin thought that this conference will bring about "a great many individual improvements and advances," just as the 1961 conference brought about such programs as Medicare. Specifically, Prof. Barkin saw progress towards the implementation of a National Health Insurance for everyone, regardless of age, as a direct result of the Conference.

One of Prof. Barkin's own proposals at the Conference was that there be an ombudsman for elders within the government, to cut through governmental red tape and aid elders in their business with the Federal government.

Barkin mentioned that, in his opinion, the general "feeling and prevailing attitude was that the elderly were demanding a return on their investment in American society." Also, Prof. Barkin said that two of the factors of the Conference that he was very impressed by were the "the grass-roots nature of the delegations" attending the Conference, and the high degree of organization which marked the running and overall coordination of the affair.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

The office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN is on the second floor of the Student Union on the campus of the University of Massachusetts, zip code 01002. Telephones: 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), 549-1311 (business).

Second class postage is paid in Amherst. THE DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes Monday through Friday during the academic year, except during vacation, exam periods or holidays. Accepted for mailing under the authority of an act of March 8, 1879, as amended by an act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $6.00 per semester or $10.00 per year.

Hero worship

THE HUNGRY-U
103 N. PLEASANT, AMHERST
Italian submarine sandwiches

"Should the U.Mass. Campus Police continue wearing guns on Campus?"

TONIGHT
hear Officer Scott of the Campus Police
and Richard Verrochi of the Student Senate debate the issue
in Thompson 104
at 8 p.m.

Questions will be answered after the debate.

Sponsored by the U.Mass. Debate Union

Verrochi Resigns; Olmstead Elected

By DON BISHOP

In their final meeting of this semester, the Student Senate appeared headed for a lengthy session last night. The first three hours of the meeting were occupied with special motions, budget hearings, and the resignation speech of departing Senate Treasurer Richard Verrochi. Skip Olmstead was elected to replace Verrochi.

The three special business motions heard last night dealt with the narcotics informers issue, the restructuring of the Athletic Council, and the possible transfer of the SES note service to the Senate.

The motion dealing with the narcotics informers, as introduced by its sponsors: Senators Doran, Spinn and Booker reads:

"In order to increase the effectiveness of 72-S61 (the bill calling for the exposure of known 'narc') the undergraduate Student Senate charges the Communications Coordinator to solicit the support of the Student Governments of all colleges and universities in the Commonwealth in passing like legislation, and to establish a central clearing house for the processing and dissemination of all information in regard to State and local police use of undercover agents."

Senator Skip Olmstead contemplates his new role as Senate Treasurer. He replaces Rick Verrochi, whose resignation takes effect January 15th. (MDC photo by Barbara Brecher)

This motion brought some debate on the likelihood of the bill ever being implemented. The consensus of the Senate in supporting the motion was that although there are great difficulties in carrying out this bill and last week's bill, the possible political effects of the bills justified their passage.

The special business motion dealing with the Athletic Council merely called for the Senate's approval of the compromise plan for reorganizing the Council; which was outlined in yesterday's Collegian. This proposal was granted unanimous approval by the Student Senate. It will be considered at today's Faculty Senate meeting along with two other proposals.

The possible transfer of theSES note service to the control of the Senate came up as a special business motion also. Discussion on the projected transfer will be carried out with its present owner George Cheah, who is encountering difficulties in his running of the service. (See story on p. 2.) If the Senate fails in its negotiations and Cheah is forced to close his business, then the Senate will proceed to use $1000 in funds granted last night, to keep the service going on a temporary basis next semester.

The resignation of Senate Treasurer Richard Verrochi was accepted at last week's meeting. It will become effective January 15. Voted by acclamation to succeed Verrochi was the present Chairman of the Senate's Financial Affairs Committee: Skip Olmstead.

Senate President Lee Sandwen thanked Verrochi for his four years of service to the Senate and the student body. He commended the job Verrochi has done as Senate Treasurer and said that while he has been President he has had a very good working relationship with the Treasurer. Verrochi gave a farewell speech to the Senate, some excerpts follow:

"This being my fourth year in the Senate, I guess I can claim the honor of being one of the veterans of the battles for open-house, alcoholic-beverages in the dorms, curfews for women, and co-ed dorms. It seems very strange now looking back at these issues, realizing how passe they have become. Student Government, in particular our Student Senate, seems to be heading down newer and more different roads.

"...As the war movements lowered their profiles, as the killing became lesser, farther off, and immediately intangible, the dynamism and energies of the antiwar movements were turned to within the University. The demands for change became less national, and more parochial. And with this change in demands, Student Government turned down a new road, that of institutional change within the University. Grading proposals were drawn up, presented, and compromised on. Co-ed living arrangements arrived in full force. Demands for change in the living environment on the campus were presented and met. And all of this was done quietly, coherently, and with a sense of aforethought and rationality which had never been present before. But the strangest thing about it was that it worked.

"This, I guess, is my real message to you tonite. Having lived through four years of intense involvement in Student Government, I have, through hindsight, seen a major change.

"The Student Senate had become a vehicle, a "facilitator" if I may use the colloquia, for change. It has the resources, the talented people, and the expertise to effect most necessary changes. Student Government, at this University, is no longer just an extracurricular activity. It is a serious endeavor, a curriculum within itself.

"...Unfortunately, though, we seem to be headed down the road of other "great" institutions. The stress appears to be placed on research, public service, and Graduate education, all at the expense of the undergraduate. This is the issue which I present to you most strongly. Don't allow this University to be hallowed solely by public service and graduate education. The basic intent of public higher education is to offer quality education to the poor and middle-class at a modest price. Don't be parochial to Amherst, yet at the same time do not regard the University system superficially. Trust and be candid with thse members of the administration and faculty whom you can trust and work well with. This is the place to forge your alliances. But above all your job is to survive, and to keep on fighting. I would offer to you some words by Thomas Jefferson:

We confide in our strength without boasting of it;

We respect that of others without fearing it.

"Use your power judiciously. Force upon the University only those things which are necessary and hold long-term advantage for the students. Lee Sandwen's low-key approach to the Athletic Council is an example of this.

"Be rational and persistent, and you will succeed. It will be up to you for the next year or two: the positions you take, the demands you make, will determine the future of student power on this campus, and the future of the University itself."

At the time of the Collegian deadline, the Senate was debating the request of various campus groups for budgeting next year. The following groups were approved for funding: Office of International Programs, CEQ, Northampton Volunteers, Action Lab, and NES.

Black Women Must Face Double Jeopardy - Ladner

By KAREN BRASIER

"The Black woman is subject to the 'double jeopardy' of being Black and female in a society that places no special value on being either," said Howard University sociologist Dr. Joyce Ladner as she spoke last night at the SBA before approximately sixty people.

Dr. Ladner told of the importance of the Black woman concentrating on the Black revolution rather than being sidetracked into the "White, middle-class" women's liberation movement which she believes to have narrow sexist goals rather than broad political ones.

"After women's lib has achieved its goals, Black women will still be discriminated against because their skin is of a darker hue," Dr. Ladner said. She emphasized the point that Black men, women, and children must all work together to fight oppression. "No oppressed people can afford to subjugate any portion of its population," she said.

The attractive sociologist also made the point that Black women must not allow themselves to be placed on a pedestal by their men as White women allowed themselves to be.

The traditional White view of the Black woman as a somehow pathological matriarch was attacked by Dr. Ladner. "The Black woman has been the carrier of Black culture," she said. "She has survived in a country where survival has not always seemed possible. She has transcended pain and discrimination and has always remained courageous. For these reasons, the Black woman should serve as a most viable model of womanhood to be emulated by all females."

The Black man should not be blamed for the problems of the Black community either, Dr. Ladner feels. "He has become the victim of the hang-ups which the White society have inflicted upon him by denying him equal opportunities."

Although Dr. Ladner feels that she has received far more discrimination as a Black than as a woman, she has had experiences with both kinds of discrimination and feels that the feminist movement can help Black women through the gaining of equalized salaries, better job opportunities, liberalized abortion laws and government sponsored day-care centers. She also stated that if the women's lib movement can remove the White woman from her pedestal it will have served some purpose.

Dr. Ladner, author of a book entitled Tomorrow's Tomorrow: The Black Woman, believes that what is needed is not a re-definition of the Black woman's role in society but rather a re-structuring of the whole society beginning with the more equal distribution of wealth.

Johnson House
presents
SABBATH TUESDAY
appearing
FRIDAY, DEC. 17
8:00 P.M.
Beer Sold

Speaker Bartley Proposes Health Insurance Plan

BOSTON (AP)-A health insurance plan to cover "catastrophic" family medical costs was proposed Wednesday by Massachusetts House Speaker David M. Bartley, D-Holyoke.

The plan announced by Bartley at a news conference is aimed at the "average" family with an annual income between $6,000 and $17,000.

He said it would not cover medical expenses included in normal health insurance policies but would take over where they leave off to protect a family from bankruptcy.

"No single danger threatens the financial solvency of the average American family today as does the cost of medical care for long term and terminal illnesses," Bartley said.

Bartley's proposal, co-sponsored by Reps. Paul Murphy, D-Boston, and Dennis Duffin, D-Lenox, would be run by the state and probably would be financed by some sort of taxes, he said.

He denied that it was a form of socialized insurance.

"It would not compete with private health insurance plans. It would be intended to meet, under defined conditions, the 'above insurance' costs of major illnesses or accidents."

Bartley said details of the plan have not yet been worked out, but he was hopeful that the plan would be formulated early next year and passed during the 1972 session.

ATTENTION ALL TALENTED MUSICIANS
SUPERBAD PRODUCTIONS will be on campus conducting auditions for possible contract opportunities. Come to Pierpont-Private Lounge Saturday, December 18 from 1 to 5 p.m.
For further information contact Melvin Hall or Michael Philipp 445 and 461 Pierpont
Tele. 546-5299. Any evening after 7 p.m.
(brass, guitars, drums, key board)

FACES OF EARTH
159 North Pleasant St.
Amherst, Mass.
Next To The Post Office
CAMPING EQUIPMENT FOR CHRISTMAS
Open to 10 p.m. Mon.-Sat.

In The Nation And The World

Indian Forces Bombard Dacca

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Indian armed forces resumed their air and artillery bombardment of Dacca Thursday morning after the commander of pakistani forces in East Pakistan failed to reply to an Indian ultimatum to surrender, the Indian Defense Ministry announced.

A spokesman for the ministry said an all-out offensive on the East Pakistani capital began at 9 a.m.-10:30 p.m. EST Wednesday-the surrender deadline set by Gen. Sam Manekshaw, the Indian army chief of staff.

Radio Pakistan said its troops in the city "have reorganized their defenses and are fighting with renewed vigor the enemy forces closing in on all sides."

The Pakistan radio made no mention of an earlier cease-fire request by Pakistan's commander in Dacca or the call to surrender that resulted.

President Agha Mohammed Yahya Khan will make a broadcast address to the nation Thursday, the radio said, but gave no indication what he would say. Yahya is in West Pakistan 1,000 miles away from Dacca.

India indicated bombing raids would be resumed against the East Pakistani capital as Indian troops and artillery prepared for a final assault.

The Indians had given the Pakistani commander, Lt. Gen. A.A.K. Niazi, 16 hours to capitulate in response to his cease-fire appeal. The Indian government radio said it had received no word from him by 9 a.m. Thursday-10:30 p.m. EST Wednesday-when the allotted time ran out. Bombing had been period.

An Indian Defense Ministry spokesman said ground action continued while New Delhi's forces awaited Niazi's decision, and Indian mortars hurled shells into Dacca from positions less than two miles from the city.

Gen. Sam Manekshaw, Indian chief of staff, had established a radio link with Dacca to await a reply from Niazi.

In other developments:

—In New York, Zulfikar Ali Bhutto, Pakistan's deputy prime minister, denounced the United Nations Security Council as a "fraud" and a "farce" for not acting to stop the war. Communist China blamed council inaction on the Soviet Union's three vetoes of cease-fire proposals.

—Karachi area officials of Bhutto's Pakistan People's party urged the government to send the deputy prime minister to Peking to "immediately sign a defense pact with China." Bhutto said he would "not rule out an early visit to Peking."

—In Washington, presidential press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said any continuation or expansion of the war could affect U.S.-Soviet relations. He said cancellation of President Nixon's scheduled May trip to Moscow would be considered only if the South Asian situation deteriorated.

—In New Delhi, a Soviet delegation led by Vasily Kuznetsov, deputy foreign minister, delayed its departure for the second day to continue talks on the war with Indian officials.

Niazi asked for the cease-fire although he had vowed only Tuesday to fight to the last man.

This time he apparently was backed by President Agha Mohammed Yahya Khan of Pakistan, who vetoed an earlier cease-fire appeal, a dispatch from Dacca said.

United News of India claims Niazi had reported he was ready to stop fighting and wanted his forces repatriated to West Pakistan on U.S. 7th Fleet warships. There was no confirmation of his report, but in any case India would not consent to using U.S. warships for the purpose.

Nothing was said, however.

It's all said on the faces of these Pakistani refugees. (By Vera Elgion)

In Brief...

PRISON RIOT QUELLED

BORDENTOWN, N.J. (AP) — Rebellious inmates at the Yardville Correction Center here seized two hostages Wednesday.

Approximately 100 of the 744 inmates were believed to be involved in the disturbance.

Those seized were Richard A. Seidl, the assistant superintendent of the institution, and Ira Friedman, a correction officer.

Neither was believed injured, according to G. Thomson Durand, public information director of the Department of Institutions and Agencies.

Durand said the disturbances had been confined to the south housing unit, one of 10 wings of the institution for youthful offenders.

Durand said 43 inmates transferred to Yardville following the Rahway Prison riot on Thanksgiving Day were not involved in the disturbance.

OUTA SLAYER GETS DEATH SENTENCE

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (AP) — A jury Wednesday ordered that John Linley Frazier, 25, be put to death in the gas chamber for the murder last year of Dr. Victor Ohta and four others.

In his final argument in the penalty phase of the trial, prosecutor Peter Chang called for the death sentence. The jury could have sentenced him to life in prison.

LEXINGTON GI DIES IN VIET

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Robert Taft, R-Ohio, was critical Wednesday of the way he said Edward M. Kennedy investigated and condemned a cancer treatment program at the University of Cincinnati.

In a Senate speech, Taft called for full public hearings by the health subcommittee of which Kennedy is chairman to resolve questions raised about the Pentagon-sponsored program.

Cubans Seize Miami Freighter

MIAMI (AP) — A Cuban gunboat attacked a Miami-based freighter Wednesday in Bahamian waters and took possession of the vessel after wounding the captain and two crewmen, the U.S. Coast Guard reported.

Coast Guard spokesman Ron Wright said the Johnny Express-sister ship of the Lyla Express which was seized by the Cubans Dec. 5-was being taken to Cuba.

"According to the Cuban government," said Wright, "the injured have been removed from the ship and taken ahead. Our planes have turned back. The vessel was of Panamanian registry and not in U.S. waters. Our hands are tied."

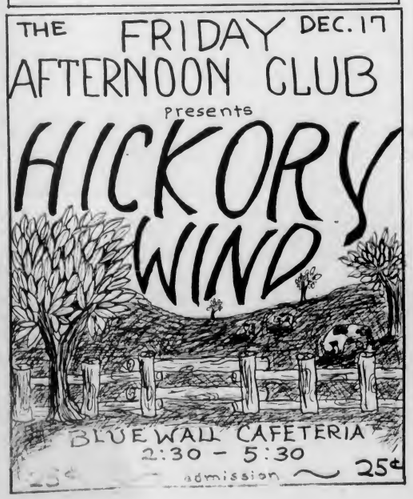
The high seas drams, which became known when the Johnny Express sent out a mayday about 1 p.m. EST, apparently last about 90 minutes. The ship's last broadcast, at 2:40, reported it had been rammed and was sinking.

The Coast Guard said the attack-in which the Cuban boat allegedly strafed the Johnny Express with a machine gun and then rammed it-took place about 100 miles off Cuba's eastern coast, and some 350 miles southeast of Miami.

Both the Johnny Express and the Lyla Express are operated by Bahama Lines of Miami, a firm owned by four Cuban exile brothers the Fidel Castro regime says have been prominant in counter-revolutionary activity against Cuba.

A spokesman for the firm, Manuel Alen, said Cuban gunboats have harassed Bahama Lines vessels "day and night for the last two or three months." He said in each case, the Coast Guard was notified but no action was taken.

Alen said the company started routing its ships further away from Cuba after the Lyla Express was seized Dec. 5, but to no avail.



Alen said it appeared Castro had a personal grudge against the Bahama Lines. "They've never bothered any other ships but ours."

Pakistan Walks Out

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — In a moment of high drama, Pakistan stalked out of the U.N. Security Council on Wednesday, denouncing the council for inaction in the India-Pakistan war.

Hours later, at a night meeting, Pakistan's chief backer, Communist China, blamed the Soviet Union and its three vetoes for the council's failure to act.

Chinese delegate Huang Hua expressed shock at the Soviet behavior which he said had been motivated by a desire to shield India's military occupation of East Pakistan by forcing the council to mark time.

3 Big Bands
at the Christmas Boogie
CLEAN LIVING
The Ed Vadas'
Off-White Blues Band
Jack Veronisi and Friends
Dec. 23, 8:00 p.m.
Park Theatre, Westfield Mass.
A Colonel Green's Chocolate House Production
$2.25

Congress May Up Adjournment Date

WASHINGTON (AP)-Congress abandoned hopes for final adjournment Wednesday and set a new target date-late Thursday. There was no assurance it would hit that mark.

The House completed its 1971 legislative program late Wednesday but quit until noon Thursday to give the Senate more time to act on the last appropriations bill, a temporary measure financing the foreign-aid program.

Three money bills that had delayed adjournment were rushed through the House Wednesday and two of them were sped through the Senate and on to the White House.

The two bills cleared for the President appropriated $70.5 billion for the Defense Department and $166 million for the District of Columbia to supplement funds raised by local taxes.

A third measure passed by the House included financing for a group of government activities whose regular money bills for the current fiscal year have not been provided. The temporary funding bill would expire next March 15, when more than eight months of the fiscal year will have passed.

Largest of the operations funded in the temporary measure is the foreign-aid program, for which $2.64 billion was voted.

The emergency bill could delay completion of the Senate's work, since some senators don't like its provisions and may explain their position at length.

Because neither branch of Congress may adjourn sine die without approval of the other, a long Senate debate could hold up adjournment.

Before passing the final money bill, the House sent to the Senate a compromise measure providing additional unemployment compensation for states having an above-average rate of joblessness. Funds to pay the bill were included in the appropriation measure.

The day's financial activities boosted to $153.7 billion new appropriations voted this year by Congress in 17 bills already sent to the President. This is $1.2 billion less than the President requested. The total does not include funds in the temporary foreign-aid bill.

Fecteau In Good Health

PHILADELPHIA (AP)-An Army civilian employe who spent nearly half of his 19 years in a Communist Chinese prison in solitary said Wednesday he was generally well treated by his captors but that the loneliness had left its mark.

"I was alone so long," said Richard G. Fecteau, 43, Lynn, Mass., his voice almost inaudible at times as he met with newsmen for the first time since his release Monday in Hong Kong. "I was in solitary the first three years and the last five or six years" in a prison in Peking, the Red Chinese capital.

A newsman described him as withdrawn and cautious.

Otherwise, Fecteau, a former college football star, appeared in good health.

Clad in blue military pajamas, hands clasped in front of him he stood erect in front of a Christmas tree. He replied to questions in short, sometimes incomplete sentences.

Mary Ann Harbert, 25, Palo Alto, Calif., a Red Chinese prisoner for more than three years, was released at the same time as Fecteau.

Physical examinations of both were completed at the nearby Valley Forge Medical Center and Hospital where they were brought Tuesday after a 27-hour flight from Hong Kong.

Maj. Allen Yanoff, a staff physician, said both appeared somewhat fatigued but "otherwise were essentially normal, although Miss Harbert" who weighs 97 pounds, "appears somewhat thin."

He said both experienced eye trouble during their confinement that was diagnosed by Chinese doctors as trachoma, an infectious disease that could lead to chronic problems without treatment.

"I am not bitter at the Chinese," Fecteau said. Asked if he was saying that because he feared retaliation against other American prisoners in China, Fecteau replied "No comment."

He said his trial on spy charges "lasted about an hour."

"I was tried two years after my capture and I got a lawyer the day of the trial," he said and then grinned, explaining: "He the lawyer said something about that I was educated in American schools and therefore didn't know anything."

He declined to comment on his capture and on the spy charges.

Fecteau said that in the first six months after his capture he was interrogated constantly but had declined to give any information to his interrogators.

He said that, for the most part, he was able to keep abreast of news happenings by reading the English-language Peking Review, which was supplied him weekly.

He said he knew that Americans had walked on the moon and that President Nixon was planning to visit China.

"I think that visit is important," he said. "It will help ease relations between our countries."

Cambodia Gets It On 2 Sides

SAIGON (AP)-South Vietnamese paratroopers swept into Indochina's largest rubber plantation Wednesday in their push through eastern Cambodia, but the Cambodian command reported a serious setback on the northwestern front.

Associated Press correspondent Huynh Minh Trinh reported from the town of Chup that the paratroopers, backed by 120 tanks and armored personnel carriers, drove north into the plantation after securing the town without opposition.

South Vietnamese air force F5 jets and A1 Skyraiders and South Vietnamese army artillery pounded the southern and eastern sections of the Chup plantation and the area around Chup town.

On the northeastern front, the Cambodian command said, the key town of Taing Kauk was cut off by North Vietnamese forces after new fighting erupted in the area.

Capt. Chhang Song said a multibattalion government force at Taing Kauk, 48 miles northeast of Phnom Penh, was under heavy fire from enemy rockets, mortars and automatic weapons.

Highway 6 from the capital was reported cut by enemy troops south of Taing Kauk, making resupply and reinforcement of the garrison there impossible.

North Vietnamese forces control all of Highway 6 between Taing Kauk and Kompong Thom, 70 miles northeast of Phnom Penh. The Cambodian garrison there also is isolated.

If Taing Kauk and the key road junction at Skoun-10 miles farther south are lost, North Vietnamese troops will control almost all of northeast Cambodia.

Lt. Col. Am Rong, another Cambodian spokesman, reported earlier Wednesday that two regiments of the North Vietnamese 9th Division had pulled back to engage South Vietnamese forces in the Chup plantation, leaving a lone regiment around Taing Kauk.

Field sources, however, said the North Vietnamese were making an all-out drive on the town.

There has been no significant fighting in the three-day push toward Chup by 6,000 South Vietnamese troops.

Field officers reported that two North Vietnamese regiments have withdrawn to the north, possibly across the Mekong River.

In Saigon, the U.S. Command reported that American fighter-bombers attacked radar and millile sites in North Vietnam Monday after a surface-to-air missile was fired at them.

The raid, the 96th of the year over the North, was the deepest so far. The command said two Navy A7 jets attacked the sites 50 miles northwest of the coastal city of Vinh. The area is about 210 miles north of the demilitarized zone and 145 miles south of Hanoi.

The command said the A7s were supporting bombing missions against the Ho Chi Minh trail in Laos when the radar began tracking them. They were diverted into North Vietnam to attack the radar and missile sites, about 15 miles from the Laotian border.

They fired air-to-ground missiles at the sites with unknown results. The two planes were undamaged and returned safely to the carrier Constellation in the Tonkin Gulf.

Doctor Fee Hikes Limited

WASHINGTON (AP)-The Price Commission said Wednesday that special government permission will be required for doctors to raise fees more than 2.5 per cent a year, or for hospitals to raise prices more than 6 per cent.

Any increases must be justified by allowable increases in costs, minus any gains in productivity, and cannot raise profit margins, the commission said.

Commission chairman C. Jackson Grayson Jr. said the goal to to halve the 12.9 per cent rate of inflation in the health services industry. The commission has said that its goal for the economy as a whole is to keep price increases to no more than an average of 2.5 per cent.

This would mean that, if both goals are met, the previously skyrocketing cost of health care still would be allowed to go up more than twice as fast as other prices.

"We were concerned with not reducing the quality of health care in the country," Grayson said. "That was very important to us."

On another subject, the commission said that for the time being businesses with less than $1 million in sales may raise prices enough to increase their profit margin to 3 per cent.

Previously all firms had been barred from increasing profit margins at all, even if they were losing money. The commission said it would have further rulings in this area later.

It also deferred until sometime next week rulings on residential rents and all insurance rates, including health insurance. Meanwhile house and apartment rents remain generally frozen, with increases allowed only in a few specific cases. The commission has retained ultimate authority over insurance rates, but has not yet decided what increases will be allowed.

In another economic development—The Pay Board met for the second day to consider what circumstances might justify wage increases exceeding its general 5.5 per cent a year guideline. No decision was announced.

Student Homophile League
OPEN HOUSE
Come and see where your student tax funds are going - have a cup of coffee with us.
Friday, 9 a.m. - 12 Noon
S.U. 411-413 - Balcony above Lobby

The UNIVERSITY STORE
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS

MEMORANDUM

To: All Secret Santas

Subject: Christmas Shopping

Only nine more days till Christmas and many of you still haven't taken advantage of the great bargains available at the University Store.

We're the only store in the area able to offer you the thousands of books, games, puzzles, shirts, jackets, music boxes, stuffed animals, posters, pewter and other unique gifts - all under one roof for your shopping convenience. Oh, did you know, we can personalize sweatshirts and jackets to your specification.

Ho, Ho, Ho!

Happy holidays,

Santa Claus Cummings

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — Nathan Gorenstein
BUSINESS MANAGER — James Gold
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Gib Fullerton
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR — Charlie Berkow
NEWS — Steve Tripoli
SPORTS — Bill Ballou
DARKROOM — Jim Lavrakas, Rich Hinkley
EDITORIAL — Ann Gurnett
AD LAYOUT — Elaine Stogel

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

"Next — Ho Ho Ho, Merry Christmas — Next — "

©1971 HERBLOCK

Art Buchwald

The Travel Agent

WASHINGTON—"Can I help you, sir?"

"Yes, I'd like to buy a round-trip ticket to the Azores."

"How long were you planning to stay?"

"Two days. I have to meet with a Frenchman named Georges Pompidou."

"We can arrange that. Your last name, please?"

"Nixon."

"First initial?"

"It like in Richard."

"Very good."

"Now from the Azores I have to go to Bermuda to see Edward Heath of London."

"Why don't you fly directly to London, sir?"

"No it has to be in Bermuda, and by Dec. 20."

"All right, sir. We can fly you to Lisbon and then you change planes and we'll have you in Bermuda on the 20th. Will that be all?"

"No, from there I have to go to Key Biscayne to meet with Willy Brandt. I should be there on the 28th of December."

"That shouldn't be any trouble. We have two flights a day from Bermuda to Miami. Will you be staying in Key Biscayne?"

"Of course not. From Key Biscayne I have to get to San Clemente, Calif., to meet with Eisaku Sato of Japan on Jan. 6."

"Let me look at my schedules here. You're in luck. There's a flight from Miami to San Clemente on the night of the 5th. It should get you there in time for your meeting."

"That's fine. Now one more thing. Can you get me from San Clemente to Peking by Feb. 21?"

"What state is that in, sir?"

"It's not a state. I want to go to Peking, China."

"Oh, I see. Hmmmmnn. There don't seem to be any planes leaving from San Clemente to Peking, China. Let me look in the new schedules. Pekin, Ill., Pekin, Ind., Pekin, N.Y., Pekin, N.D.—dear, me, no Peking, China. I'll check if there is anything leaving from Los Angeles. Ah, yes, here it is. You fly to Hong Kong and take a bus to Canton, which connects with a plane for Peking."

"How much is it family plan?"

"How many of you are going?"

"My wife Pat and Henry Kissinger."

"Is Henry related to you, sir?"

"No, but he's like a son to me."

"We're sorry, he'll have to pay full fare. It will be $4,000 round trip, plus tax."

"Can I fly now and pay later?"

"Not to Peking, sir. Ever since the Cultural Revolution the airlines prefer their money in advance."

"Don't I get a discount for going in the winter?"

"No, but you're allowed a free stopover in North Korea on the way back."

"I don't want a free stop in North Korea. I have to go to Moscow after I go to Peking."

"Well, why didn't you say so? You can fly back to the United States via Moscow and save $33."

"I don't have to go to Moscow until May."

"My goodness, you have a bit of time in there between Peking and Moscow. Where would you like to spend it?"

"It really doesn't matter. Do you have any suggestions?"

"Let me look at my travel brochures a moment. Would you be interested in visiting Washington, D.C.?"

"What for?"

"It's the nation's capital. There are many things of interest there. There's the Lincoln Memorial, the National Gallery and they have a new tourist attraction called the Kennedy Center."

"I'd better check it out with my wife."

"Why don't we put you down for Washington between Peking and Moscow? If you change your mind, we can always write you out a new ticket."

Copyright 1971, Los Angeles Times

A Prickly Affair

By ANN GURNETT

Despite the fact that what Robin Morgan suggested Bob Corry could do with his most 'obvious' of male protuberances would not be considered a civil remark by most people, perhaps it has taught him a timely lesson. Mr. Corry will now be able to remove his foot from his mouth and insert another bodily appendage in its place. It is to be hoped that this will bring about some change in Mr. Corry's rather narrow and archaic mentality on the question of sexual equality.

It is doubtful whether an act of this kind would be harmful to Mr Corry's nutrition. It seems that he has been spoon fed on crap all his life--the kind of crap that is resulting today in racial and sexual inequalities that are twisting our society. This mutilation of humanity will, alas, perpetuate itself as long as Corry and men of his caliber continue to foist their injustices on society.

Corry is most adept at portraying his own narrowness. No doubt he felt himself to be a crusader of sorts to even think of talking to a dedicated woman's liberationist and self admitted 'dyke' (to use Corry's phraseology). Yet even a simple confrontation with beliefs not his own reduced him to thinking in alternatives. Corry professed to be shocked at Miss Morgan's vocabulary. Perhaps if he paid a little more attention to the discussions of many women on this campus he would be less shocked by Miss Morgan's choice of words. It might also let him see that when women use 'obscene' words they are not affecting a 'tough boy' attitude. Since when has the use of certain words been restricted to men only? Just one more example of Corry's ignorance.

It is also ironic that Corry considers spilling hot chocolate all over someone to be an 'uncouth' action when physically assaulting that same person would be allowable. Allowable, of course, except for the fact that Daddy once said that a boy should never raise his hand against a girl. Truly a noble sentiment, except one thing was omitted--nobody ever told Corry to raise his hand in peace and understanding to one of his sisters. It seems as though it's too late to try to teach him that lesson.

So Corry will continue to turn his back on equality and walk away, fantasizing about Humphrey Bogart and vicious things, thinking he's one up on the little Dutch boy when it comes to stopping up dykes. He may be able to get it up, but he'd better watch out lest that dyke collapse on top of him.

Letters To The Editor

Who Votes For What?

To the Editor:

Throughout the semester, there has been a paper going around campus that contains the headline, "McGOVERN VOTES FOR WAR APPROPRIATIONS!" It has been presented to me on several occasions and one time, I even found it plastered on my door. In effect, the paper states that Senator McGovern has voted for bills which contradict his antiwar policies. I would like to clear up any doubts this paper has fostered.

The first part states that McGovern voted for the following bills which appropriated money for Vietnam: bills S-665; HR-7123; and S-666. In bill S-665, however, the money allotted was for Defense Department procurement, research, and development, and military construction. Nowhere does this bill state that this money would be used in Vietnam. In addition, the bill also states that Congress supported "(1) persons trying to bring about an honorable settlement of the Vietnamese war, and (2) the convening of an international meeting to plan an end to the Viet Nam conflict." Concerning HR-7123, this bill also stated that the money would be used to help end the war, rather than fight it. As far as S-666 is concerned, there is no mention of Vietnam anywhere in the bill, making it an average defense appropriations bill. The paper also states that McGovern voted against the amendment to HR-10738, which would reduce total defense appropriations by 10% or 7 billion dollars. However, this bill also gave the Secretary of Defense full discretion to decide where the cuts should be applied, thus taking the power away from Congress and giving it back to the administration.

The second section, still concerning 1967, concentrated on Senator McGovern's record concerning the draft. On this issue, most of the controversy is over bill S-1432, the Selective Service Act. On this bill, he voted to replace the draft with an all-volunteer army. He also voted to limit the draft to 2 years instead of 4. Only after both these bills were rejected, did he decide to vote to extend the draft, providing the following revisions be made: "to prohibit the president from instituting a draft lottery, and to limit the president's authority to order other draft revisions."

Section three, moving to 1968, was concerned with the following bills: S-3293; HR-16703; and HR-18707. All three bills concerned defense appropriations, but none mentioned Vietnam in any way. What confuses me even more is that Senator McGovern was absent the day that HR-18707 was passed, and therefore didn't vote either way, although the paper states that he did.

The fourth section was concerned with the "Omnibus Crime Bill", which Senator McGovern supposedly voted for. The bill, S-917, disqualified from federal employment, for five years, anyone convicted of a felony related to a riot. It also authorized large sums of money for state and local police and permitted wiretapping by police in a wide variety of cases. However, once again this paper has goofed. Senator McGovern was absent that day too.

Getting even more off the track of Vietnam, the fifth section is concerned with the bill HR-18037 which allows institutions of higher learning "to cut off federal aid to students convicted of a crime against the institution, by directing such institutions to cut off aid only if the student's action contributed to "substantial disruption" of the institution." The paper then adds, "It is the capitalist institutions of this society which are responsible for crime, violence, and disruption, not students who engage in independent struggle for social change." Of course, we all know that students never do anything wrong. Senator McGovern knows this too. That's probably why he voted in favor of this bill.

And finally, this paper finishes by saying, "Bring all the GIs home now! Vote for Jenness and Pulley."

It seems to me that this paper only goes to strengthen George McGovern's stands. It shows that he has consistently voted against those bills meant to aid the war in Vietnam. It shows that he has always voted against those bills which would strengthen the administration and take power away from the American people. It also shows that he is in favor of retaining a military for purposes of defense, (a policy which Linda Jenness also shares).

I am not in favor of the type of smear campaign that the Socialist Workers are trying to conduct. If Linda Jenness is such a good candidate, why don't they concentrate on her policies, rather than attack those of the other candidates. I believe that even if she had a former political record, I would not level baseless statements against it. I'm looking forward to a more civilized and worthwhile campaign from the Socialist Workers Party in the future.

Reid Fishman
Students for McGovern

It's A Secret

To the Editor;

I think the students of this university have been sold short by their own student court. The General Court Justices in a recent decision found that the students will have to pay their parking fines. Why, Mr. Moriarty, do you run scared and not let this decision be made known to the student body? Why such secrecy? Do you expect time to cloud the issue? Mr. Sandwen, will you stand by and let this unresponsiveness and unethical conduct go unchecked? Mr. Bouffard, you're representing the students; are you representing the students?

Not only are student monies being collected but also needed to fund this collection process. Why is the entire issue being forced outside student judiciary system into the Northampton Court? Should there not be any recourse for contesting undeserved parking fines within the General Court? There is a definite priority system in assigning parking spaces. Why does the faculty get prime spots while the students get shafted? Why does the student court uphold this practice? It's time the student government started representing the students!

George Vasquez

Broken Barricades

To the Editor:

It would be more appropriate if Room To Move rushed to the editorial barricades as quickly protesting the day to day devastation of drug use as they did to protest the "total state of paranoia which runs dangerously high after any drug bust".

George Deering

All letters to the editor must be typed at sixty spaces, double spaced. Length should not exceed one typewritten page. All letters must be signed with the author's phone and address in case contact is necessary. Addresses and phone numbers will not be printed.

The Collegian reserves the right to edit letters because of space limitations. We also reserve the right to publish according to space limitations.

Editorial Points

We wonder if the real reason that Ellsworth Barnard retired as Ombudsman was that Don Glickstein is not going to be here next semester.

****

Not that we don't like SES, but it might be a good idea if some of you out there tried going to class once in a while, just to see who is teaching the class. Like today.

****

Hooray for Poor Richards-they're finally coming out independently. 24 pages in color, even. Give Poor Richard a pat on the back when you see him. For me.

Here Comes The White Knigh

To the Editor:

I see that once again Walter Cronin, the holy crusader against th Senate rides again. He has for the second day in a row charged blindly a his tormentor, attacking blindly and even worse, poetically, at th Student Senate's use of $1400 to send delegates to the National N.S.A Conference. However, Walter, I feel that several things must be se straight. First of all, the money which sent those seven delegates t Colorado had been appropriated for just that purpose in this year budget. If you remember, Walter, that budget was passed by both th Senate and the Board of Trustees. Secondly, there has never been ar effort to hide this expenditure. It is now and has always been public i formation. The purpose of the Conference and the sum appropriated for were carefully explained to each Senator (remember them, the peop you elected), at budget time last year. Thirdly, the cost, when considere on a per person basis, amounted to about 17¢, or in Croninian work tim about 5-1/2 minutes of work at two dollars per hour. In return for th investment, the average student will stand to save several dollars in ou of pocket expenses because of the information brought back from th Conference. Finally, after answering Mr. Cronin's questions about th Conference, I have one for him. Walter, how can you with a clear con scious produce your misleading drivel while receiving six Universil credits for it? I hate to see holy crusaders pimp themselves out.

William Spin
Student Senat

He Deserves It

To the Editor:

I sure got what I deserved.....yessiree bob!! Tuesday night I walked u to the table where Robin Morgan, (Sisterhood is Powerful!), was sittir with some girlfriends. They were talking so not wishing to break into th conversation, I waited several long minutes before I could interject polite, "Excuse me, Robin, I missed your talk. I'd like to ask you question." Miss Morgan, without even giving me the benefit of a co descending glare, cooed in a soft voice, "F--you!! Why don't you tak your (most obvious male protuberance)....stick it in your mouth, and se it up!!"

I reflected on this course of action briefly, and figured it wou probably be bad for my nutrition and decided against it. Three oth alternatives became available to me at that moment: first, spill the c of hot chocolate she had in front of her, onto her her lap, (but that wou have been uncouth!); second, punch her head through the plate gla window to her rear, because a girl who talks like a tough boy should able to fight like one too, (but, a boy shouldn't raise his hand against a gi under any circumstances--or so my father told me once), thirdly, wa away-hide in a corner, and fantasize vicious things.

I walked away. Humphrey Bogart would have slugged her. That settl one thing--I'm no Humphrey Bogart. However, the encounter wasn completely without merit!! Now, at least I know what that little boy Holland didn't-- it's hard to plug up a dyke with only one protuberanc (even if you can find it!!).

Bob Corr

Brevity Is The Soul Of...

To the Editor:

In the interest of all concerned, I'll be as brief as possible although t problems raised in Professor Schwanitz's "Cracked Mirrors" wou seem to deserve closer scrutiny.

1. The reaction to his first article was only partly "violent". T editorial of the Collegian hailed it as some kind of a revelation th "should cause professors and students to take note." It is, I think, qu flattering.

2. That the "image of America among German and European tellectuals has undergone a drastic change in the last five years" is qu true. However, Professor Schwanitz lays the blame for this appare disillusionment squarely but not so fairly on America alone. As dialectician, Professor Schwanitz must know that the sources disillusionment can be found also in the disillusioned that, lacking certa historical or psychological knowledge, accepted, at face value, "ideal" that had never really existed. It would be interesting to know what extent the "illusions" of those German and European intellectua contributed to their eventual "disillusionment".

3. That "this disillusionment set the scene for a revival of marxism German universities" is, again, true. But it is questionable that th creating of a "critical theory" - "in order to disown any connection w doctrinaire communism and Stalinism" really barred the way of filtration and eventual takeover of the most radical elements in German student movement. West Berlin's Free University is a ca worth considering. Here, the intellectual marxism of some of professors led to the establishment of the Red Cells of students that ca out lately and now quite openly in favor of a Soviet-type communism a an alliance with what is ostentatiously called the German Democra Republic.

4. By "Adorno being a diluted version of Lukacs" I simply meant t their approach to literature and sociology was basically similar desp their different conclusions. In that sense, Lukacs was the more profou thinker and philosopher. Of course, Lukacs was a "classicist" a Adorno a "modernist". That accounts for their different views. But fundamental similarity of their approach still remains.

5. Needless to say that I did write neither of the "hermeneutics" no the "criticism of ideology" of Professor Habermas. After all, he w until the revolt became manifestly violent, one of its ideologues and was what I mentioned. At least, he is credited with coining the phr "linke Faschismus" but even this is not that original as it may appe

6. Professor Schwanitz cannot see "what the students could have d about Adorno's heart attack." I don't know many simple answers in but this is quite simple: they should have left him alone.

7. Finally, I am very sorry for the mistranslations to which I have fal victim however "unwittingly and innocently".

Tamas Ac
Department of Engl

N.Y. Private Colleges Ask State Aid

(Editor's Note--The Collegian Reprints this article from the New York Times. (12/15/71) because it presents a proposal for a solution that we might see to problems which have plagued private schools in Massachusetts.)

Warning of "the impending financial collapse" of many private colleges, the presidents of six of the state's largest and most presitigious universities proposed yesterday a series of state measures to eliminate the schools' mounting deficits and assure future growth.

The steps were announced at a joint news conference by the presidents of Cornell, Syracuse, Fordham, Rochester, Columbia and New York University. Each president said he considered his institution to be "in financial difficulty."

Their proposals, which will be submitted to the Governor's special Task Force on the Financing of Higher Education, included the following:

—Creation of a temporary state emergency fund of several million dollars "to sustain those private institutions facing immediate financial disaster."

—An increase in charges to students at public colleges "to cover their full educational costs," including instructional expenses and those for meals, rooms and health services.

—Simultaneous expansion of the state's scholar incentive program from the present annual maximum of $600 in scholarship aid to $1,500, usable by the student at the college of his choice, whether public or private.

—Maintenance of current institutional state aid at present levels at least.

The presidents called their proposals among "the most significant in the history of New York State higher education."

They said they would increase the dollar resources of the state's public and private colleges without increasing taxes. At the same, they said, they would maintain the diversity of the state's institutions of higher learning and enable students to choose any college, regardless of its costs.

In effect, the proposals, which were developed by the six schools for the Commission on Independent Colleges and Universities, would require those public college students who can afford to pay the real expense of their education to subsidize those who cannot.

The report maintained that the new tuition income would balance out the new scholarship costs.

The proposals come at a time of increasing deficits at the state's more than 100 private colleges, which enroll 43 per cent of New York's college students. The six schools alone have a combined projected deficit of $29.6-million for the current year.

To cover their rising costs, the private schools have been forced to increase tuitions. This, in turn, has caused more students to choose the less expensive public schools and has further reduced the private schools' income.

For instance, the tuition at N.Y.U. is now about $2,700, compared with about $500 at a state college and nothing for full-time undergraduates at units of the City University.

Such an enrollment trend, the presidents said, is wasteful because it has left about 15,000 vacancies in the state's private colleges at a time when the public schools are overcrowded.

The trend also threatens the future of a number of private schools. "Unless there are new sources of revenue such as our proposals provide," said Dr. James M. Hester, N.Y.U.'s president, "there are a number of private colletges in the state, including mine, which within the next two or three years face some very serious questions on their future."

Dr. Hester's university, which with 42,000 students is the state's largest private school, had a record $6.7-million deficit this year. It covers such deficits by borrowing from unrestricted endowment funds.

Dr. Hester noted that should any private college close, the already hard-pressed state schools would have to shoulder the additional student burden. He said it was more economical for the state to support the private schools before they closed.

In addition to Dr. Hester, the college presidents at the news conference were Dr. William J. McGill of Columbia, Dr. Dale R. Corson of Cornell, the Cornell Medical Center, 1220 York Avenue, Rev. Michael P. Walsh of Fordham, Dr. W. Allen Wallis, Chancellor at Rochester, and Dr. Melvin Eggers, Chancellor at Syracuse.

Also attending and sponsoring the proposals were Dr. John W. Chandler, president of Hamilton College and the commission's chairman, Dr. Edward Mortola, president of Pace College, and Dr. Thomas Bartlett, president of Colgate University.

Fire Hits UMass-Boston

A mysterious fire that swept a general classroom building under construction at the new Boston campus of the University of Massachusetts in Columbia Point early Tuesday may have set back work on that building up to four months.

However, Fire Lt. Edwin G. Steidinger of the Boston arson squad, said a spokesman for the contractor, S. Volpe & Sons, said work on the site, Building 1-20, had been "way ahead" of schedule.

Steidinger said damage was estimated at $100,000.

The arson inspector said cause for the three-alarm blaze that was punctuated with the explosions of propane gas tanks was of "undetermined origin."

BUT A SUPERVISOR on the job for the Volpe firm declared it was of "suspicious origin."

Firefighters had theorized the blaze was started by the heaters used to keep new concrete from freezing.

THE FLAMES fed on wooden forms set up for concrete on the second floor of the 25,000 square foot building that measures 200 by 150 feet. The special forms, which may take up to six weeks to replace, and reinforcements, were all ready for concrete pouring today. Now, instead, the charred timbers will be removed by wreckers today.

The company supervisor, contrary to other reports, said "there have been problems" at the Columbia Point construction site.

A SHORT TIME prior to that there was a fire on the site of the Poorvu Construction Co. of Waltham. A spokesman for the company, which is constructing a service building, said damage was relatively minor in the fire that started about 2 a.m.

(Reprinted from the Boston Globe, 12/15/71)

Another

Amherst Audio

RECORD SALE

Coming

This Friday and Saturday

SYLVAN AREA PRESENTS

30 DAYS OUT

Warner Bros. Reprise Recording Artists

also Rush and 4th Street

Fri. Nite, Dec. 17

Worcester Dining Common 7:30 p.m.

Admission: 50' Sylvan Residents Free

PARKA JACKETS
Nylon Jackets
LEATHER JACKETS

WEAR HOUSE

INPORIUM

Pre-Christmas Red Tag Sale

Flannel and Corduroy Shirts	$1.00
Jeans	$2.00
Furs	$10 - $80
Overalls	$3.00
Denim Jackets	$3.00
Sweaters	$2.00
Wool Coats	$10 - $15
Corduroy Coats	$3.00
Denim Shirts	$3.00

Main St. Amherst

The University Chorale pictured here under Richard du Bois, will perform the premiere of "Dies Domini Magans", by Philip Bezanson, at a Winter Choral Concert, Sunday, at 3:00 P.M. in Bowker Auditorium. Also appearing will be the University Chorus, Women's Choir, and Chamber Singers.

Chorale To Give Concert

Several University choral groups will present a varied program of music, including the premiere performance of a new work by Philip Bezanons, Head of the Music Department, at the annual Winter Choral Concert on Sunday at 3:00 P.M. in Bowker Auditorium.

The University Women's Choir, directed by Alan Harler, will begin the program with the Troisieme Lecon de Tenebres (Lamentations of Jeremiah) by Francois Couperin (1668 - 1733). The program will continue with Richard du Bois directing the University Chamber Singers and University Chorale. The Chamber Singers will perform Claudio Monteverdi's (1567 - 1643) Lagrime dell'Amate al Sepolcro dell'Amata, a somber and moving portrayal of a lover's grief at the death of his beloved. The Chorale will perform three motets from the Renaissance and Baroque periods: O Magnum Mysterium by Tomas Luis de Victoria, Venite Exultemus Domino by Jan Sweelinck, and Tristis est Anima Mea by Johann Kuhnau.

The Chorale will also perform the premiere of Dies Domini Magnus (The Great Day of the Lord), written for the Chorale by Philip Bezanson, Head of the Music Department. The piece, scored for chorus, brass septet, and timpani, is a powerfully dramatic setting of the prophet Zephaniah's vision of the Lord's impending destruction of the corrupt district of Maktesh in Judah. The text, dating from approximately 600 B.C., is overwhelming in its tone of wrathful vengeance and vivid in its description of imminent doom. The music, reflecting the text, is highly dissonant, and jagged in its melodic contours; it is one of the most difficult and challenging pieces the Chorale has worked on.

Following intermission, Mr. Harler will direct the University Chorus, with chamber orchestra, in a performance of Handel's Dettingen Te Deum, a festive piece written in commemoration of the victory of King George at the battle of Dettingen. Soloists will be Donna Harler, soprano, Calliope Shenas, contralto, Jon Humphrey, tenor, and John d'Armand, bass.

MDC CLASSIFIED

AUTOS FOR SALE

1964 VW Bug, rebuilt engine and front end, new brakes and master cylinder, just tuned up and oil change. $350 firm. 6-5197. tf12-17

69 Opel Rallye fastback, snowtires, 23mpg, radials. Asking $1250. Reg. 527-1529. tf12-21

1971 Fiat 850 Conv., 13,000 mi. $1650. Call eve. 253-7037. tf12-20

1963 VW Bus, not running - good for parts, 4 new tires. Leave msg., for Bill at 253-7140. tf12-20

1965 Corvair, in very good running condition. Has snow tires. 3 speed stick shift. Call John 7 p.m. 256-6874 $250. 12-16

62 VW sedan, $200, religned brakes, rebuilt engine, 253-5221 after 5. tf12-21

1965 Ford, custom 500, V8, automatic, p.s., new std. tires, excellent cond., $350. Paul Hughes 256-6800. tf12-21

1967 Mercedes 230s, 4 door, mint condition, low mileage, maroon, black interior. Asking $2,250. Phone Shelbourne 625-6856 after 5:30. tf12-20

1965 Porsche 356-c, new brakes, clutch, rebuilt engine, ski-luggage rack, elec. sunroof, 545-0329. Dick Jubinville. tf12-17

Red Porsche 1966 Radial Snow Tires AM-FM-SW, radio $1800. Call 545-2330 or 253-9800. tf12-17

1965 Olds, 442, good condition, new tires, A.T., P.S. Call 253-9876. tf12-17

1962 Ford Econoline Van - Good running condition, snow tires, $200. Call Tom 256-8144. tf12-16

65 Falcon, eng., in excel., cond., new rad., bat., starter, exhaust system, and rear snow tires. Call 617-342-0138 on Fri. or Sat. Best offer over $400. tf12-17

70 Datsun 1600 radio, heater, radial tires, trunk rack with ski adapters, grey/black top. Call 586-3240. tf12-17

66 Barracuda Fast back, 4 speed, 4 bbl carb., orig. owner. Days 545-0074, eve; 665-3547. tf12-17

1961 VW Microbus, rebuilt engine, new clutch. Body and interior excellent. Leaving country. Best offer. Karuna 253-9264. tf12-16

67 Barracuda Fastback, exel., condition air/cond., p.s., gd. snows, 273 V8, 18- 20 m.p.g., must see and drive. Call Dave 586-1321, leave message, $1200 or b.o. tf12-21

1964 Plymouth 4-door sedan, a honey of a car, good deal at $300 (just got a new car for Xmas gift) 256-8174. tf12-17

1964 VW Sunroof, black w/black naug., interior, fiber belted tires, 67 rebuilt engine, 53 hp super clean. $525. 1-734-6563. tf12-21

1963 VW Microbus Camper, radio, gas heater, toilet, ice box, (4) new ww tires, new paint, mech exc., $950 or best offer 256-6409. tf12-21

FOR SALE

Bicycle, 10 speed, Phillips Racer $80 or best offer. Call 549-0079. tf12-20

Guitars: Martin, Yamaha, Aria, Harmony. Also; Dulcimers, autoharps. Find out what you want, then call John 6-5401 late. tf12-16

ASTROLOGICAL BIRTH CHARTS: 11 full page complete report $10. Specify, place, month, day, yr., and time of birth. Send to David Zeno, 7 Joyce Rd., Waltham. tf12-21

BSR Minichanger $40. Realistic Amp $65, Call Ken 546-6477. Will negotiate. tf12-16

Scott 382c Stereo Receiver, 20 watts/chan. rms. Garrard SL 72b turntable, both in excellent condition. Best offer. Call Bob 665-4983. tf12-17

Camera 35mm Pentax Spotmatic, 55mm lens with light meter, 1 yr. old, best offer. Karuna 253-9264. tf12-16

1962 Chevy Impala convert., with new tape deck. Asking $225. King size H2O bed with liner and finished frame $40. Call Brian 584-7720 or 253-5877. tf12-21

1 pr. Rosemount Ski Boots, 6-8, shrel; 1 pr. Lange Ski Boots, size 6 1/2. Call 546-5270 Conrad. tf12-17

1968 trf 65ecc., excellent cond., price negotiable; electric range, excellent cond., 36", $40. Will deliver. Call George 323-7304 eves. tf12-17

Dual 1209 turntable w/cartridge $100. Call 253-6876. tf12-17

Gibson GB-3 Bass, good condition, with case $200. Call (617) 544-2921 collect. tf12-21

Snow tires 165-14 Semperit Radials, 1 pr. mounted on MGB disc wheels, $50. Call 549-6087. tf12-17

New and used cameras and photo equipment bought and sold. Lang's Photo 253-5148. tfsem

20-50% off stereo components, all major brands, fully guaranteed. Also: 8 track tapes $2.49. Baker Stereo, Rm. 223, Call Barry or Dave 4-5:30 p.m. Phone 546-6063. tf12-20

Tenor Sax, Selmer MK1V, good condition. Call 549-0087. tf12-17

PERSONAL

Dear Weird Sisters: Compassion is our aim, apathy is our name, and Spewing is our game. Milton Bradley. 12-16

Dear SS: Is it really just another pretty face? Thanks Bonnie. 12-16

Wanted, super 8 movie camera for 1 day use, any day. Call Steve 6-7775. 12-16

It's not what the Shadow knows; it is who he knows that counts. 12-16

Now in Fernando's Hideaway, suede jackets, pants, skirts, midis - whole sale prices. XMas gifts. Next to Post Office in Student Union. tf12-16

Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year, Kappas. Elaine Z. Ellen L. 12-16

Big Ole Tarzan, 6 ft., calling 4 attractive, sensuous Jane type gals 4 swinging in der trees. Damn good food and booze. Call eve. wek. ends. Keep trying. 665-2264. tf12-22

Brunette and blonde gals in navy coats D.O.M., waited to c.c. newstand Fri eve. 8:00-8:45 p.m.?? Am very interested. Please call D.O.M. 665-2264. tf12-16

FOR RENT

Available: bedroom in Puffton Village apt., available immediately or for second semester. Call 1-549-6044, keep trying. tf12-21

1 bedroom apartment for rent, available Jan. 1, Puffton Village. 156/month 549-0719. tf12-20

Room and board available in new house on N. Pleasant St., two minute walk from campus. Call Dana 253-9031. tf12-17

Female - free room and board, modern apt., adjacent univ., in lieu of minimal child care. 549-3653. tf12-21

One furnished room, 5 1/2 mi., from campus, kitchen privileges, utilities included. Call 586-0630, available Jan., first. tf12-21

Furnished efficiency apt. Available Jan. 15, all electric air cond., includes utilities, $130. Quabbin Village, Belchertown call 323-6376. tf12-17

Squire Village, modern 2 bdrm apt., all utilities incl. Married couples only. Avail., Jan 1. Rent $190. Call evenings 665-3218. tf12-17

6 bedrms., 2 baths, kitchen and rec. room in Holyoke, 14 mile from U. of M. All util., ex. phone, much furn., $300 per month. Call 323-7893. tf12-15

2 bedroom apt. 118 Colonial Village, all utilities inc., $160/month. Avail. end of Jan. 72. Call 253-2986 or Kamins Realty. tf12-16

2 room furnished apt., 15 minutes from Campus, avail Dec. 23, lease until June 1, $140 includes utils. Call 247-5618 btwn 5:00 - 7:00 p.m. tf12-17

POT SALE

Ceramics sale, BFA and Grad Student work - signed original pieces for holiday gifts, Dec. 15 and 16 10 a.m.-4:30 p.m. Munson Hall, annex, basement. tf12-16

ENTERTAINMENT

Rock Band Phoenix now available for your Xmas party. Good, hard driving, dance music. Call Carl at 283-0371 for information. tf12-17

Nothing to do on a Sunday afternoon? How about a matinee featuring Laurel & Hardy, Cartoons and many other good things? Dec. 19, 2 p.m. tf12-17

ROOMMATES WANTED

Roommate wanted to share 3 bedroom apt., in Northampton, Walnut st., $50 per month, utilities inc. Leave note: 228 Engin. East. tf12-17

Roommate wanted to share 2 bdrm town house apt. Mt. Range, Amherst, $75/mo., all utilities includ., avail., any time in Jan. Call 256-8765. tf12-21

To share 2 bdrm apt in old bar, 2 firs, dog, frplc, garag, kitchn, livrm, frnshd, quiet, 3 mi from UMass, Judy, 13 Middle, Hadley 586-3784, keep trying. tf12-16

Roommate wtd., house in town, own bdrm., $75/mo. and utilities. Prefer Grad Student. Call 549-6458. tf12-16

Male or female roommate wanted for squire vill apt. for second semester. Call Sonny 665-4495. tf12-16

Roommate wanted F. to share rent with 2 other girls, own room, ranch house in Hadley. Call anytime 586-2815. tf12-17

Male wanted to share apt. in Col. Village, $55/mo. sec. semester. Call 256-6681, keep trying. tf12-16

Roommate wanted for 3 brm in Puffton, own room, 549-6258 after six p.m. tf12-21

Female roommate wanted for Rolling Green Apartment, Call Leslie 253-5140. tf12-21

M or F, own room, Puffton Village apt. 258. Call 549-5486. tf12-21

Rmte to share new 3 bdrm town house for 2nd semester. 2 miles from campus. Prefer male grad students. Call 253-5888. tf12-17

ROOM FOR RENT

Just off Campus/share house - own bedroom/male or female/single or double ($90 and $120) avail. 1/1/72. Call Ron 549-3871 (evenings) tf12-16

APT. TO RENT

Sublet Cliffside 2 bedroom, furnished, available Jan. 1, 665-3674. tf12-16

Tired of dorm life? A new apt., for you and your roommate waits to be rented. Pick up lease, $140/month, Amherst. For info 253-3955. tf12-16

Squire Village, 2 bdrm apart, utilities inc., available end of Jan. Call 665-2842. tf12-21

BAND AVAILABLE

Good live music for any occasion. Call "Caidance", ask for Charlie 1-634-2273. tf12-17

FREE ROOM AND BOARD

Free room and board in exchange for babysitting afternoons while mother goes to class, Jan. 1st thru Spring Semester, 586-3819. tf12-17

APT. WANTED

2 bdr. apt. wanted in Puffton Village. Call 256-8723 after six or box 468, No. Amherst. tf12-17

MT. SUGARLOAF APTS. Avail. Jan 1, lg. 2 bdrm util. included, air-cond., pool $185. Call Skibiski Realtors 253-7222, eve. 253-2926. tf12-22

Married student couple need eff. or one bedroom apt. Reasonable rent, Jan., 1st, 253-9903. tf12-17

RAFFLE

1st prize: AF Parka, 2nd: 5 - Band Radio. Tickets available in C.C. Concourse. 25¢ each, - 5/$1.00. Proceeds to Holtwood Project. tf12-16

LOST

1 cost in Clark Hall, Nov., 17, high school German book, important! Please call Jeff MacGray 549-6716. tf12-17

"Lost" from Herter Hall-tape cassette and recorder. Keep recorder if you must, but please return cassette to Fine Arts Council office or arrange clandestine through 5-0283. Transfer. tf12-17

FREE

Black puppy - 4 months old and housebroken. Call 549-1283 evenings after 6 p.m. tf12-17

HELP WANTED

Ex. auto mechanics and attendants, good pay and benifits, Ambers and Area No heavy work). Call 584-3351. tf12-21

Leading newspaper needs people to distribute daily newspaper m - f on UMass Campus, 2nd semester. Apply at Collegian office.

WANTED

1 or 2 roommates wanted for spring semester in Puffton. Call Joan or Carolyn 549-6462. tf12-17

Emergency ! Lost Psych/280 Notes. Will pay for yours. Call-546-1106. tf12-17

TO SUBLET

Married couple wanted to sublet 2 bdrm furnished apt., at Cliffside, Occ. - 1/1/72, lease 'till Sept., 72. Call after 6. 665-3570. tf12-17

Squire Village, two bedroom townhouse available Jan., 1. Call 665-3254. tf12-21

SERVICES

Experienced typist will type Term Papers, Olympia elec. pica type, 50¢ per page. Thesis 55¢ . Call 256-8408 Crown Point Apt. tf12-16

Amherst Audio services. Stereo components, tape decks for home or car. 197 No. Pleasant St. 256-8133. tf5-17

Passports & grad school pictures-24, hr. service Lang's Photo 253-5148. tfsem

PERFECT XMAS PRESENTS

Silver, gold bracelets, rings, pendants, hand embroidered handbags, merchaum pipes. 256-6660. Call - after 6:00.

RIDE WANTED

Round trip ride wanted daily from Amherst to Deerfield or Greenfield vicinity - during January. Will pay. Call 545-3198. tf12-20

Ride to Chicago or Madison, Wisc. Xmas vacation. Share gas. Call Singh 546-9930. tf12-20

Desperate - ride wanted to Florida near Miami for 2 on or around Jan. 7. If you can help call Bev. or Joan 549-6721. tf12-16

ROOM WANTED

Help: Two males need one large or two bedrooms. Call 549-6660 anytime. tf12-17

TRAVEL

Bermuda from $199 or Nassau from $230 during the week of Spring Vacation. For more info call Rich Margil, 412 Dwight 545-0791. tf12-21

Ski the Alps-Jan 14-24 Chamonix, France-air fare, hotels, discount lifts and lessons, last night in Paris. Contact Peggy 253-9667. tf12-23

Ski the Alps, Jan 14-24 Chamonix France, air fare, hotels, discount lifts & lessons, last night in Paris $257. Contact Peggy 253-9667. tf12-23

TYPING

Typing-theses, dissertations, etc. Fast, accurate, experienced. Have Math and Chem. symbols. Call 253-3601. tf12-21

STUDENTS BOOK MATCHING

Register your book in S.U., Rm. 318. Every student with your course next semester will need your books save $ money, sell direct. tfsem

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS

FARFISA COMBO COMPACT ORGAN. Light use (usually for jamming), top shape, reasonable. 549-6615 1-733-1020. tf12

Notices

ANGEL FLIGHT AND ARNOLD AIR
Important meeting tonight (Thurs.) at 9 p.m. at Dickinson. All attend.

BLUES CLUB
Meeting 6:30 p.m. CC 162.

BOLTWOOD COFFEE HOUSE
The Coffee House will be Friday night this week. A bus will be leaving from the back of John Adams at 6 p.m.

BRIDGE CLUB
There will be a bridge play tonight at 7:30 in CC 165.

CENTRAL AREA RESIDENTS
Come join a caroling party starting in front of Van Meter at 7 p.m. We have 100 doz. doughnuts and 50 gallons of cocoa that must go! All is free!

CEQ
The next regularly scheduled steering committee meeting will be Tuesday, Jan. 23 at 6:30 p.m. at the office. Some officers will be at the office at 6:30 p.m., Tuesday, Dec. 21 if a quorum is present, we may have a special meeting.

CONCERT COMMITTEE
Tonight at 9 p.m. in CC 175. All are welcome to attend and participate. For more details,contact Joe Tropiano, Dwight House.

CHEERLEADING
Will the people who were helping to record for the cheerleaders at the UConn game, please leave the tape recorder at the CC desk, or call Karen in 403 at 52418.

DEBATE\UNION
Tonight at 8 p.m. in Thompson 104, hear a debate on Resolved: That the UMass Campus Police Should Continue Wearing Guns On Campus. A question & answer period will follow the debate.

EDUCATION-E-40 METHODS
Important meeting on Thursday at 4 p.m. in School of Ed. Aud. or Friday at 8 a.m. in Rm 128 School of Ed.

FEAST
Final Bagavad Gita meeting & Transcendental Love Feast at 4 p.m. in Amherst Folklore Ctr. Come one, come all. Have a ball! Fill your stomach and your heart.

FENCING CLUB
The fencing club will meet tonight in Rm 8 WoPE. Everyone is welcome to come down and learn to fence, or if you already fence, to challenge Art Stacy, a gold metalist in Pittsfield last Sunday.

GAY WOMEN'S CAUCUS
Raising consciousness with Gay Sisters. 5-7 p.m. on the 19th floor of JQA.

GIRLS
This is it. Chadbourne will be a newly renovated co-ed dorm in September '72. If you want to be a part of this all-new community, call Head of Residence at 64534.

GHETTO
The case against "Christianity" vs. Representatives of a new humanity. Discussion and planning for conference in late January with Bill Pannell. Come to 27 Fearing St (3rd floor) Tonight at 8 p.m. or call 5496726 or 5466908.

ENGLISH MAJORS
There will be an E.D.U.C. meeting tonight at 7:30. Student-faculty lounge Bartlett Hall lobby. All English majors invited.

HILLEL
HAPPY CHANUKAH. 5 candles tonight.
Come see our display of pictures of Israel.

HUNGER IN EASTERN ARKANSAS
Slides & discussion. CC 804 at 8 p.m. tonight. Committee on nutrition and human needs.

INTERVARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP
Christmas service and party. Friday at 7:30 in Herter 301. Communion will be served. Cal Fox will apeak. Everyone welcome.

NEW COURSE OFFERINGS
The Plant Environment and Crop Production: Plant & Soil Sciences 115(E). A new course for non-science majors. Call 5452254 or 5452249 for additional info.

OPEN HOUSE
At Zeta Nu. Tonight at 7:30 to 8:30.

SKI PATROL
There will be a meeting for all members who plan on patrolling during Christmas and Intersession. Meeting will be in 905 CC at 6:30.

SOUTHWEST WOMEN'S CENTER
All women interested in finding out about conscious-raising groups or thinking about joining one, please come to Coolidge 12th tonight at 7:30 p.m.

STUDENT HOMOPHILE LEAGUE
Evening meeting in CC 917 at 7 p.m.--Bring paper and pencil to explore the realities of the Gay Game--5450154 or -411B S.U.--balcony over lobby.

USCC
Meeting tonight at 8:30 p.m. in CC 163.

VOTER INFORMATION, RUNNING FOR TOWN OFFICE
A Voter Information display has been set up at the second floor Information Desk of the Student Union to inform interested students about voter registration and running for town office.

WILDLIFE SOCIETY
Meeting tonight in 305 Holdworth Hall at 7:30 p.m. Slides from Mass. Div. of Fish and Game on their Wood Duck Nest Box program will beshown.

LOST
A rabbit fur jacket with hood last Friday nite at Phi Sigma Delta--second one since Thanksgiving and I'm cold. call 5467418.

In September or Oct. a class ring from Rockland with blue stone; was lost on WoPE tennis courts. Call Denice 5467260.

One ladies gold watch, btwn. Nuttings Ave. & Whitmore call 5496050.

Class ring '73, name: Bruce Arthur Pronovost inside. If found contact SAM fraternity house. 5450845.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SYDNEY OMARR

If you want the lowdown on a diet or food supplement, call on Virgo. If your desire is to know which book is currently on the "best seller" list, check with Gemini and Sagittarius. If stock market figures interest you, make inquiries to Taurus.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Idealism now tends to dominate. Be generous, not foolish. Control impulse to trust wrong persons. One at a distance really is not twelve of clos1 up situation. Know this and respond accordingly.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Partnership prospects need careful review. Tendency is to be deceived concerning assets, investments. Check procedures. Caution now is your ally. Check with one born under Cancer. You'll get truth.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Lie low, do more listening than talking. Obtain hint from Taurus message. Be receptive. Permit mate, close associate to take initiative. Tendency now for others to misquote could cause problem.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Steer clear of those who seem to have talent for upsetting you. Stick to basic issues. Refuse to be sidetracked. Do your own investigating. Then conclusions are more apt to be valid. Gemini is involved.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Improve relations at home base. Make conciliatory gesture. It will pay dividends, especially in emotional area. One who means much to you needs reassurance. Permit affectionate side of nature to come forth.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Marriage, home, domestic security: these areas highlighted. Count your change! Take inventory. Get accounting. One who depends on you may exhibit tendency to be too dependent. You will understand.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Accent on separating fact from fiction. Don't fall prey to gossip. Ferret out information. Develop ideas. Control tendency to respond on impulse. Give logic equal time. Neighbors, relatives may not be too well informed.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Strive to get true financial picture. Don't hang on to outmoded concepts, methods. One who wants to borrow may only be testing. Stay away from those who whine. You have a right to get money's worth.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Avoid self-deception. See situations, persons as they actually exist. Wishful thinking now can be costly. Obtain hint from Scorpio message. You can now, successfully put ideas into action.

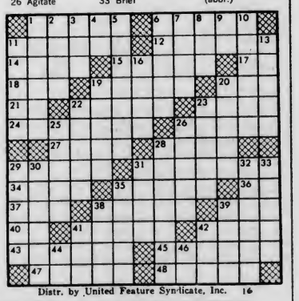
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Relative may confide secret. Don't cast first stone. Be understanding. But there is no need to become inextricably involved. Visit one who is confined to home, hospital. Gift now would be doubly appreciated.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Don't take friends too seriously. Be willing to listen and laugh in good natured manner. Unorthodox approach now serves your best aims. Know this act accordingly. Some desires are impractical.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Heed your own counsel. One who is brusque is covering up lack of knowledge. Double-check details. You could make money-saving discovery. Your intuitive intellect is your great ally.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you tend to be introspective, studious. You are a natural researcher, would make fine interpretative commentator, reporter. Project started this year is due to blossom, real payoff comes in 1973.

Copyright 1971, Gen. Fea. Corp.

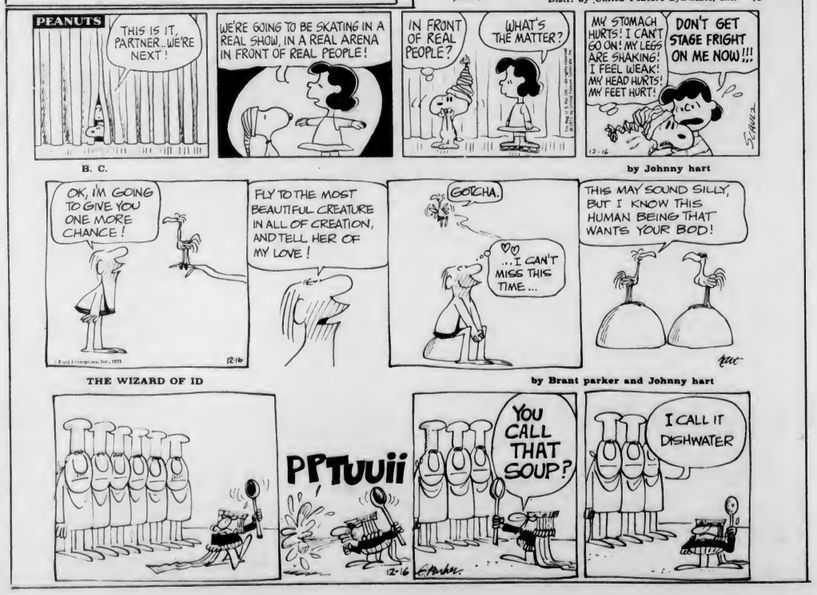


Crossword Puzzle

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

B	E	T	A		O	D	E	S		P	O	T
A	R	A	L		U	R	A	L		E	G	O
N	U		A	N	T	E		Y	O	N
	B	A		E	R	S	E		S	A	C	S
M	E	L	T		E	S	N	E		L	A	P
E	S	T	E	R		Y	O	R	E		T	I
S	C	O	R	E	S		W	I	T	H	E	R
T	E		M	A	T	S		S	T	A	G	E
E	N	S		D	A	T	E		A	M	O	S
E	T	N	A		R	I	L	E		E	R
		A	G	O		F	I	N	E		I	O
F	A	R		F	O	L	D		T	I	E	R
A	D	E		F	R	E	E		A	S	S	E

ACROSS
1 Sightless
6 Uninterested
11 Mouth of volcano
12 Idolized
14 Part of face
15 Man's name
17 Negative
18 Paid notices
19 Later
20 Wooden pin
21 Prefix: not
22 Change
23 Waste metal
24 Contagious disease
26 Fissile rock
27 Perished
28 Pretense
29 Part of fortification
31 Leanest
34 Paradise
35 Wager
36 Hebrew letter
37 Evergreen tree
38 Look fixedly
39 Prefix: air
40 Latin conjunction
41 Fruit (pl.)
42 Macaws
43 Spinning
45 Realm
47 Parts in play
48 Rosters



DOWN
1 Horse's headgear
2 Turns around track
3 Possessive pronoun
4 Compass point
5 Sketched
6 More revealing
7 Aroma
8 King Arthur's lance
9 Teutonic deity
10 Negation
11 Maintain
13 Evade
16 The sweetsop
19 American patriot
20 Blaze
22 Native of Asia
23 Portion
25 Snake
26 Agitate
28 More scattered
29 Allude
30 Newspaper executive
31 Heavenly body
32 Lances
33 Brief
35 Remains
38 Withered
39 Solo
41 Crony (colloq.)
42 Likely
44 Preposition
46 A state (abbr.)

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 16

They're not cheaper. . or more expensive They're not new, funky or flippy. They're Real Navy jeans. Authentic U.S.N. cut and quality.
Made of 10 oz. denim from Erwin Mills. And they will fade to the desired wash-out look.
WEAR HOUSE

Ring Great Tiger Dies

ENUGU, Nigeria (AP) — Dick Tiger, the champion boxer who won 64 of 81 fights, is dead of a liver ailment at age 42.

Tiger twice held the world middleweight title and once the light heavyweight crown. In 1962 and 1966 he was named Fighter of the Year by Ring Magazine.

He was honored by the Boxing Writers Association in 1963 and 1966 with the Edward J. Neil Memorial Award as the Fighter of the Year. He also, in 1963, was made a member of the Order of the British Empire.

Tiger was born in Amaigbo, Orlu, in the heart of Biafra, as Richard Ihetu pronounced ihat-you on Aug. 14, 1929, one of four children of a chicken farmer.

He lived the life of a pauper when he was in the United States, where he gained his fame and fortune, prompting raised eyebrows when he spoke in a cultured British accent learned from Angelican missionaries who schooled him. But he lived in high style in his native Nigeria, where he was extremely popular and relatively wealthy until the Biafrian war.

Tiger, who turned professional at age 23 after learning to fight from British military officers in Ata, near Lagos, was a champion at age 33 when he took the world middleweight crown from Gene Fullmer in San Francisco in 15 rounds.

He lost the title to Joey Giardello in Atlantic City in 1963 but two years later, at Madison Square Garden, won it back. Emile Griffith finally dethroned him in 1966 by a unanimous 15-round decision at the Garden the first time Tiger was floored.

Eight months later, Tiger took the light heavyweight crown from Jose Torres but the next year Bob Foster won it with a knockout.

Tiger returned to his homeland last July and announced his retirement from the ring to devote his time to physical training programs for soldiers in secessionist Biafra's rebel army.

Tiger, whose death Monday was confirmed Wednesday, is survived by his widow, Abigail, and five children.

Redskin Retread Kilmer Gets Offensive Nod

WASHINGTON (AP) — On a date now lost to history, Bill Kilmer took one of the psychological tests pro clubs force on their players now and then. One look at Kilmer's paper, told the tester that he would make a "perfect Kamikaze pilot."

Kilmer never did become a Kamikaze pilot, although he did the next best thing in 1962 by driving his car off a California freeway in an accident that almost cost him his life. Ane he channeled the traits that surfaced in that test into becoming a winning quarterback in the National Football League.

Cocky despite what the pros consider limited skills and gutty because of it, Kilmer has provided the passing ability and the leadership to guide the Washington Redskins to spot in the NFL's post-season playoffs.

And, suddenly, people are asking what's Billy Kilmer like, just as they asked several years ago what Joe Namath was really like.

Billy Kilmer, some say, is tough enough to be a Marine lieutenant, and entertaining enough to charm the ladies. He dresses mod, but the hairstyle is somewhat of a compromise between Namath long and Johnny Unitas short.

His main weapon seems to be his ability to get his troops to follow him and the nickname Furnace-Face has been tagged on him because of how red his face gets when he is angry.

It may be because he remembers what it was for him when he wasn't playing football.

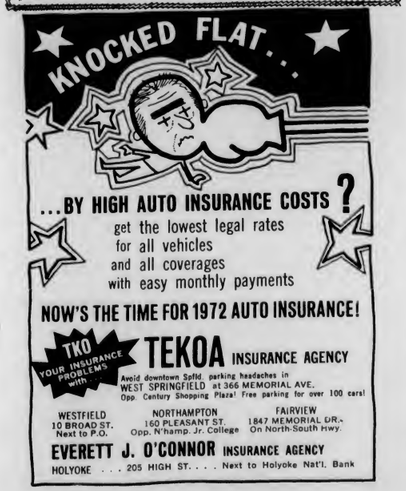
"I'd probably play football for nothing," he says. "I found that out after my leg got busted in that car accident. I went to work pressing pants in my dad's dry-cleaning place. Boy, that speeded my rehabilitiation. I knew I wanted to play football come hell or high water."

Kilmer's personal high water mark has come this season after playing for the San Francisco 49ers and New Orleans Saints and old Furnace-Face now is the toast of Washington, saluted as the guy who brought the Redskins their first post-season berth since 1945.

He led the Redskins to a 38-24 victory Monday night over Los Angeles in what many referred to as a revenge game for his coach, George Allen, who was fired as the Rams' coach last Christmas.

In his first trade after being hired in January, Allen had given a reserve linebacker Tom Roussel plus his fourth and eight round choices in last year's draft to the Saints for Kilmer who had been selected in the first round by San Francisco in the 1961 draft.

"This was probably my most gratifying win in my pro career," said Kilmer who was named Wednesday as the Offensive Player of the Week by The Associated Press. "I've never been on a team that has been in the playoffs before.



"I wanted to get away from New Orleans because they were rebuilding and I didn't want to spend that many years with a young club. I wanted to be with a winner," he said.

"Of course, I had my doubts about coming to Washington. I never even thought that I could beat out Sonny Jurgensen, and I didn't want to spend a year on the bench. You get rusty in a year and then nobody wants you. I wanted to go somewhere else where I could play regularly."

There was no doubt that Kilmer would be No. 2 quarterback to Jurgensen, a 37-year-old, 15-year all-pro, when he arrived in Washington. Then, Jurgensen injured his arm in a pre-season game and was scheduled to be out for a minimum of seven weeks.

Same Old Story?

From October of 1965 to December of 1967, the Rhode Island Reds of the American Hockey League compiled the all-time record for futility. In that span, the Reds played a total of 64 games on the road and did not win a single one. As of this moment, the 1971-72 Reds are on their way to equalling or surpassing this dubious record. Of the thirteen games they have played away from home this season, the Roosters have not won even one. Is there no justice?

Notice

GYM BASKETS--All students who plan on using their gym equipment second semester, renew basket at table in room. Those who do not renew will be picked up after December 22, 1971.

Kjeldsens Steal Show At Varsity M

By EARLE BARROLL

"Two teams...helping each other out...when they are in the gym they are treated as athletes...there are no distractions."

Sounds like a liberation movement in the athletic department? Definitely not, but it does represent the theme presented by gymnastics coaches Erik and Kitty Kjeldsen yesterday at the Varsity M Club luncheon.

And to be sure the coaches did distinguish themselves in a right old professional manner. "In the gym she's a coach...at home she's my wife," Kjeldsen chuckled. And likewise, "In the gym he's a coach...at home he's my husband." Yes, Mrs. Kjeldsen was there to stay.

It was perhaps gymnast Margie Combs who put it best when she said, "Women have just as much energy to expel as men have." She was referring to the gymnastics program, but this comment seemed to set the tone for what was to come during the noontime hour...Mr. and Mrs. Kjeldsen did expel the ssame amount of energy.

If you haven't caught on yet, the UMass gymnastics team put on a coed get-together at the weekly luncheon(there was a mixed audience), and from the reaction, there just may be a huge throng at the next home meet...male chauvinists to be sure.

But in a serious vain, Mrs. Kjeldsen did point out the pride and time-consuming practices that the female athlete in the gymnastic program must go through. "It does curtail their social life," she stressed.

Miss Combs went on to say, "Gymnastics is a beautiful sport to women especially on the balance beam where women are more geared to the balancing than men."

Why did she come to UMass? "There were only three colleges in the country that offered gymnastics and an education at the same time. I chose UMass."

Mrs. Anne Vexler, who has also made her mark as a gymnast, stressed the need to do away with private clubs in favor of collegiate competition. "Private clubs rather than high schools have been the biggest source of competition for the girls," she said, "but they should be done away with."

Mrs. Kjeldsen closed on a rather stimulating note...a movie featuring girl gymnasts in action. Rated GP, it was a refreshing ending to a pretty refreshing debut by the woman gymnastics team.

Mr. Kjeldsen as stated earlier did get to expel as much energy as the women. He called this a rebuilding year for his team. "We graduated six mature seniors last year and I'll emphasize that these six were 'men' in the real sense of the word. What we need this season is scoring from the returning seniors and juniors and I'm waiting to see them to do it under fire."

He pointed to four seniors, Dave Genest, Tony Vacca, John Calabria and Tom Mysliicki, who he is counting on for the leadership needed to bring some of the less experienced boys along.

Just recently the Redmen topped the 150 mark against Southern Connecticut and according to Kjeldsen they're pointing to the Penn State meet during intersession at the Cage.

Just how good are the Nittany Lions? Try this one on. "Penn State means to Eastern gymnastics what Boston College means to New England football," Kjeldsen said. Take it from there.

New Course Offering for Spring, 1972.

The Plant Environment and Crop Production. Plant and Soil Sciences 115 (E)
A new course offering for non-sciences majors dealing with the relationship between plants and their environment.

For additional information contact:
Paul Jennings 545-2254
William Rosenau 545-2249

SUNDAY, DEC. 19 - 6:30 P.M.
MONDAY, DEC. 20 - 6:30 P.M.
at the Campus Center Auditorium
University of Massachusetts

Christwas feast

March of the Comestibles
CHRISTMAS THEATRE
Madrigals and Traditional Songs of Christmas
Musical Rendition of "The Night Before Christmas"
Charles Dickens' A CHRISTMAS CAROL by the Lions Share Company Performers
Songs of Christmas Present Caroling

BILL OF FARE
Cranberry cup - Salad with oranges
Roast Beef - Yorkshire pudding
Baked potato - green beans with almonds
Apple pie with hot cinnamon sauce
Home made breads and rolls

Tickets are $5.00 per person, $4.00 per U.M. student, $2.00 children under 12.
For reservations call Mrs. Lois Qureshi 545-0418 Mon.-Fri.
Tickets are obtainable at University Book Store and on Concourse Level Lobby Campus Center.
$1.00 per person discount for the student-adult groups of 25 or more.

Skaters Continue To Roll, 8-3

By ALAN K. WRIGHT

If Jimmy the Greek had been in Amherst last night, chances are he would have placed a heavy bet on UMass to skate Boston State right off the ice. He would have collected, too, because the Redmen picked up their sixth straight win 8-3. The problem he would have had to face though, was sweating it out for a period to wait for UMass to wake up and start to play the brand of hockey they've been known for all season. That's how long it took for Jack Canniff's skaters to ignite their patented offense that featured a hat trick for prolific Pat Keenan.

Sure enough, Boston State came out hungry and they surprised everybody at Orr Rink by scoring three quickies before anybody knew what happened. Paul Fischer lit the red light with only 45 seconds of playing time elapsed. This was followed by beautiful angle shots by Tom Lordon and Duncan Campbell at 1:46 and 5:57 respectively.

It was evident that Boston State was really rallied for this tilt, especially after having recently been beaten by Vermont 16-0. They displayed an uncanny ability to control the puck early in the game and used their man for man size advantage well. UMass answered the Boston outburst finally at 6:53 on a shot by Mike Waldron assisted by Lonnie Avery and Dennis Grabowski. The Redmen started to come alive in the latter part of the period, but no more scores got on the board and both teams headed for the locker room amazed at themselves.

In the second period, UMass stormed back to really start playing and from then on, they truly dominated and you might as well have said the game was over. P.J. Flaherty was extra alert on the rest of the Boston State shots and starting at 12:29 Orr Rink came alive with an unassisted goal by Keenan. This was the spark that the team needed, and it more or less broke the back of Boston State. Jack Edwards and the rest of the attack continually unleashed bombs for shots while Nickerson, Sullivan and Lowe kept getting more stingy on defense.

As usual, when the going gets rough, the rough get going and Boston started using cheap shot tactics on a lot of their checking, but Keenan just started hustling all the more, handling the puck like it was his life's fortune. As a result, the inevitable occurred and Keenan hit home again at 11:31 to tie it up. That relieved a lot of people, particularly Coach Canniff, who later exclaimed "We didn't expect much from Boston State tonight, but in that first period, they showed us all we wanted to see."

Blood really started flowing, in the second period as Mike Waldron and Dennis Grabowski both received facial cuts that needed doctoring as well as rugged Al Nickerson, who nearly snapped his neck off in a collision with a Boston State wing later in the final period.

The go-ahead goal came at 13:27 by way of a sleazy lifter from Eric Scrafield at the point. But they all count, and so did Lonnie Avery's insurance shot at 6:17 of Period 3. Waldron got the nod for assist credit on that one, but nobody did on goal number six attributed to Pat Keenan. His was a real horror show goal for Boston State goalie Mike Sullivan because Sullivan put it in himself when it was shot from in back of the cage, caught on his skate, and carried in by accident.

After Jack Edwards scored his 37th career goal at 8:49 on assists from Reidy and Bartholomew, Boston looked like Pee Wee hockey players in the final period. They really dragged, trying to keep executing the powerplay, but it wasn't even a reasonable facsimile, as UMass continually broke it up.

The grand finale marker came with less than three minutes remaining off the stick of Donny Lowe on a pass from Pat Keenan, who never ceased to outdo himself all night.

 the J.V.'s lost in their game against New Prep from Cambridge, but Kevin Thompson, Paul Allen, and Ted Flynn all looked sharp, scoring single tallies in the 5-3 decision.

WHAT IS SO RARE AS.... A strange occurrence this season has been a puck flying past Redmen goalie P.J. Flaherty. Here Boston State's Paul Fisher tips one by Flaherty as UMass defenseman Bob Bartholomew (11) looks on. (MDC photo by Dan Kamal)

Hoopsters Face Manhattan At Madison Square Garden

By DAN KAMAL

"They're a good-shooting, very big, aggressive and not too quick basketball team. They're a good match for our quickness; if they can slow us down, their size will hurt us. All in all it's a good matchup for a basketball game."

"They" are Manhattan College. The game is tonight at Madison Square Garden in New York City beginning at 7 p.m.

Somehow, it's going to feel a lot different going to Madison Square Garden so early in the season. But just maybe it won't be the last appearance for the Redmen this year. Probably, but maybe not.

After all, the team is 5-0. Naturally, Coach Jack Leaman is pleased with the record so far. "We've received good play from a lot of people. But as we get into better competition, we'll need more consistency. Only John Betancourt has been consistent."

"I'm happy that we've been rebounding evenly with our opponents so far, despite the loss of Mathias and Erving. I've been pleased with the improvement of Charley Peters, Tom Austin, and Peter Trow, and I feel the team as a whole will show continual improvement."

As far as rebounding goes, the Redmen will need a strong performance off the boards against Manhattan who boast a front line measuring 6'7, 6'7, and 6'8. Senior Bob Gregory plays one of the forwards, stands 6'7 and is averaging seven points a game. Center Ron Manning, also 6'7, is averaging almost 16 points a game. The third party in that huge front court is Mike Moore, a 6'8 junior transfer from New York University. NYU dropped basketball this year, so Moore was not prohibited from playing for a semester, which is usually the case with transfers.

However, Manhattan's best player operates out of the backcourt. His name is Richie Garner and he's shooting at a 55% clip from the floor and an 88% mark from the line while averaging 28 points. The 6'1 floor general will pose a problem for the UMass guard that covers him.

Rounding out the Manhattan starting five is 6'3 guard Lorenzo Tarvin who is averaging just under 10 points a game.

Leaman equated the Manhattan offense to that of Holy Cross and mentioned that "Manhattan plays a man to man, a switching man to man, and a full court man to man defense." The latter defense is similar to the zone.

A large share of the job of defending against the big front line of the Jaspers will fall on Chris Coffin. It's nothing new to Coffin who has had the assignment of covering "star" forwards throughout the young season. Leaman had a lot of praise for his senior forward.

"The defense of Coffin has been outstanding. It is a real asset to be able to sit on the bench and know someone is out there that can stop the opposing star."

According to Leaman, the next three games are very big ones for his team. "We're playing tall, talented teams with a tradition of winning."

The biggest one of the three is probably Harvard Saturday night. Harvard is just starting to roll, and they're tough, maybe too tough.

It will be part two of the five-part drive to the New England championship.

Stay tuned.

Swimmers Take First Win

By JANIS AHMADJIAN

Tuesday night the UMass Swim Team for the first time this season emerged the victors - downing the Crusadors from Holy Cross 64 to 49. Close, keen competition contributed to the present excitement of the atmosphere. This was the big meet. The team was out to win and win they did displaying much team effort and determination.

It was a tense situation throughout, touch and go in some places.

Holy Cross won the first event, the 400 yard Medley Relay.

In the 1,000 yard Freestyle for UMass Jack Tyler paced second and Bruce Taylor third.

The next event, the 200 yard Freestyle Joe Hebert won with a time of 2:02.5. Spencer Sullivan gained a third.

Pete Ouellete grabbed a first in the 50 yard Freestyle with Dick Blaisdell placing a second.

Our lead continued through the 200 yard Individual Medley with Captain Herb Schuster placing second and Kevin McGuinn third.

During the first Diving Competition Holy Cross got their lead by two points. However, Mike Queen placed second for UMass doing a very good job.

The tenseness built up during the 200 yard Butterfly. Tom Smith placed second and Herb Schuster third but the Crusaders won a first making the score 32 to 29 in their favor.

Dick Blaisdell placed a first in the 100 yard Freestyle with a winning time of 54.0 seconds.

It was an extremely close race in the 200 yard Backstroke, Kevin McGinn just barely missing a first place and George Kwiecien placing third.

Jack Tyler again placed second in the 500 yard Distance Freestyle.

Another close race, 200 yard Breastroke - this time in favor for UMass. Dave Guiney won a first in 2:38 minutes and Herb Schuster placed second pulling UMass into the lead 49 to 48.

The next event up, the Individual Diving competition would be the main deciding factor of the meet. It would make or break us. Senior Tom Mysliciki did an excellent job for UMass placing first. He was pulled in at the last moment from gymnastics to fill in for absent Paul Joy and showed his stuff in a pinch. Mike Queen also did a fine job placing second.

The score was 57 to 49 UMass with one event left. The relay team consisting of Dick Blaisdell, Pete Ouellete, Joe Hebert, and Spencer Sullivan, put the frosting on the cake, winning, the 400 yard Freestyle Relay with a time of 340.9 pushing the score up to 64 to 49 for UMass.

This was by far the most exciting meet of the season displaying an all out team effort. Coach Rogers and Coach McCafferty both felt great about the team's success.

The next meet is scheduled for this coming Saturday at 4:00 Boyden Pool when UMass hosts Central Connecticut.

Matmen Engineer Win At MIT

By JOHN BOCK

There must be something to the "fat and happy theory" and proponents of this theory would have been pleased to see the UMass grapplers beat MIT 28-7 via a team that consisted of four wrestlers who wrestled at least one weight class above their normal bout weight.

"Fat and Happy" is the term reserved for wrestlers that grapple close to their normal body weight and even though the Redmen were not that far from their best wrestling weights the difference was considerable.

Consider, for example, Dave Reynolds. Last year Dave wrestled at 126 pounds in the New Englands and at the Nationals; Tuesday night he cleaned up the MIT boy 9-2 at 142. Then Captain Shelley Goldberg, wrestling 16 pounds above his usual weight, destroyed his opponent by a greater than ten point spread.

Freshmen Mike McGlaughlin wrestling away from 126 and up to 134 had about as much trouble putting his man away as Clay Jester did at 158 instead of 150.

The rest of the regulars romped over their men. At 190, "Wrestline Reverend" Carl Dambman scored his third pin of the season and prepared the mat for heavyweight Chris Hodson's come-from-behind victory in the last period by virtue of a takedown.

Probably the most interesting match and certainly the most frustrating was Chris Cadwallader's bout at 167. "I wrestled Hercules" gasped the freshman from Pennsbury, Pa. as he came off with a 1-1 tie. His opponent did indeed look like the mythological strongman as he lifted Chris off his feet with a bear hug many times. But it takes more than that to keep a Redman down and Chris salvaged a draw.

Just as impressive were the Little Redmen as they showed MIT what practicing with the Varsity can do to the tune of a 47-3 rout. Three MIT forfeits did help but even without, the JV's had enough pins to keep the score way ahead.

Pinners included Allan Elmont, John Connolly and Greg Scanlon. Scanlon had everyone on the edge of their seats as he rolled on his back and then off three times before finally coming to rest atop the MIT boy.

Connolly showed them what a State Champ can do in fine style as he clamped his man early in the second period. Other big wins came from Don Rice and Steve Rome as they both outscored their opponents by over ten points.

The most appropriate comment about the UMass performance came in the form of a Homer Barr smile and comment "I guess you could say we're coming back" and everyone knows that back is the New England title!

WMUA

Be sure to tune in to WMUA, 91.1 FM, at 6:50 tonight for Redmen basketball. Ken Best will call the play-by-play and Marty Kelley the color as the undefeated hoopsters take on Manhattan at Madison Square Garden.

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather
Don't worry, it will all be over soon.

VOLUME XCIX, ISSUE 69 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS FRIDAY, DECEMBER 17, 1971

Upper right, Lee Sandwen; Far left, David Booth; Middle Prof. Burroughs.

Fac-Sen

Composition Of Athletic Council Revamped

By DON POUTRY

The Faculty Senate passed a motion yesterday which would change the Faculty Senate Constitution in regards to the composition of the Athletic Council.

After considerable debate and the rejection of two similar proposals, the Senate accepted an amendment which was drawn up by the Student Senate.

This amendment is designed to give students a more powerful voice on the Athletic Council and to reduce the power of the alumni.

According to the amendment, the Council will be composed of eleven voting members. Six of these will be from the professional staff: four faculty, one administration representative and the Executive Vice-President of the Alumni Association.

The seventh member of the Council will be the President of the Undergraduate Student Senate.

The last four members of the Athletic Council will be undergraduate students, appointed for a period of two years.

The Director of Athletics will be a non-voting members.

Also included in this amendment is a provision that the Council must report once a year to both the Student and Faculty Senates. All Council meetings will be open to anyone who wishes to attend.

The passing of this motion was the first step of the required four steps to amend the Faculty Senate Constitution. The Senate must vote on it again and then it will be presented to the general faculty twice.

The two proposed amendments which were defeated did little to curtail the power of the Alumni on the Council. The first one eliminated one alumnus while the second one advocated keeping all alumni members. Both of these proposals added student members.

During the debate on which proposal to accept, Lee Sandwen, Student Senate President, stated that the purpose of the Athletic Council was not "to cater to three alumni members."

According to Sandwen, the Council has been using funds which were partly derived from student athletic fees to buy free food and liquor for the alumni members.

Sandwen also pointed out that the athletic program was mainly intended to benefit students, not alumni. Immediately after these remarks the floor was closed to debate and the proposed amendment was approved.

In other matters Professor Joseph Burroughs, Faculty Senate Representative to the Board of Trustees, reported that the Trustees have not yet made any statement concerning the report made to them by the Committee of Concern on Oct. seventh.

Burroughs reported that the Trustees wanted to know if the Faculty Senate was still as concerned as it had been earlier. In response to this question he comprised a list of the motions pertaining to this that have been passed by the Senate in the last few months.

The list included motions which would have three faculty members appointed to the Board of Trustees, a motion to look into the possibilities of collective bargaining and a motion which would screen possible candidates for chancellor on their views on issues important to the faculty.

Burroughs added that he still has not received any response from the Trustees.

Responding to this, Lee Sandwen, who is on the Board of Trustees, said that a formal reply was currently being formulated and that the Faculty Senate will receive it when it is completed.

Other business taken care of was a motion that was passed which recommends the approval of an independent department of Classics.

Another motion which was also passed ratified the appointments made by the Committee on Committees to fill vacant Faculty Senate committee positions.

On The Inside:

● East Pakistan Surrenders See page 4

● Gary Gets A Page See page 12

● Mrs. Nixon Paints a Fence See page 15

A Look At Rents And Rent Increases

I. Base Price is Redefined
The base price for a lease of an interest in real property is the highest price charged by the person with respect to the same or substantially identical rental units in a substantial number of transactions during the Freeze base period.

NOTE: The important effect of this redefinition is that the rent ceiling for a unit is no longer controlled by the rent on that very unit during the Freeze base period; it is determined by a substantial number of transactions (10% or more) during the Freeze base period on the same or substantially similar units rented by the same person (no comparability to substantially similar units owned by other landlords).

II. Property Vacant For More Than One Year
Use the provisions applicable to new real property. Vacant also means owner occupied according to Arnold Gordon.

III. New Property
The base price on real property never before offered for lease shall be determined by a computation based on the average arms-length price received by persons leasing comparable property in the same marketing area.
A property or part thereof which undergoes a substantial capital improvement shall be treated as new property for purposes of a lease. Substantial capital improvement equals three months rent and exceeds $250.

NOTE: In considering comparables, the landlord may use units other than those he owns.

IV. Exemptions (Totally exempt from any and all controls during Phase II)
a. Industrial, farm and nonresidential commercial property.
b. Units on which construction is completed and which are first offered for rent after 8/15/71.
c. Rehabilitated dwellings (cost of rehabilitation exceeds 1/3 of total value of rehabilitated property) first offered for rent in the newly rehabilitated condition after 8/15/71.

V. Reporting Requirements
The following records must be made available on request of any tenant, prospective tenant or representative of the Price Commission:
a. The base price charged with respect to each unit of real property. (This is the highest price charged by the person with respect to the same or substantially identical rental units in a substantial number of transactions during the Freeze base period.)
b. The reason for any difference between the price in "a" and the price allowable on or after 11/14/71. Such a difference would be due to rehabilitation and newly announced changes.
c. The reason for any difference between the price described in "a" and the maximum price allowable from 8/15/71 to 11/13/71. Such a difference would result from the redefinition of the base price.

Permitted Rent Increases

Q. May landlords raise rents after November 13, 1971?

A. Yes. The rent rules now provide that the base price for a rental unit is the rent charged for the same unit or substantially similar units during the freeze base period. This means that if at least 10% of similar apartments were being rented for a higher price during the period from July 16 - August 14, the landlord may raise the rent to that level if the lease permits the increase.
Price increases in leases in which the rental price is determined by a formula may take effect. However, any increases in the consumer price index shall not be allowed.
Increases in rent above the permitted base price are prohibited. Further rent guidelines will be recommended by the Rent Committee for consideration by the Price Commission.

Q. How can a tenant determine what a landlord may charge?

A. A landlord must keep records and make them available at the request of any tenant, prospective tenant, or representative of the Price Commission (including the Internal Revenue Service).
These records must reflect:
(1) The base price for the unit (generally - the rental he charged for a least 10% of the units like yours during the freeze base period);
(2) The reason for any difference between the base price and the maximum price he was allowed to charge you during the freeze.

Belching Power Plant Will Smoke For Years

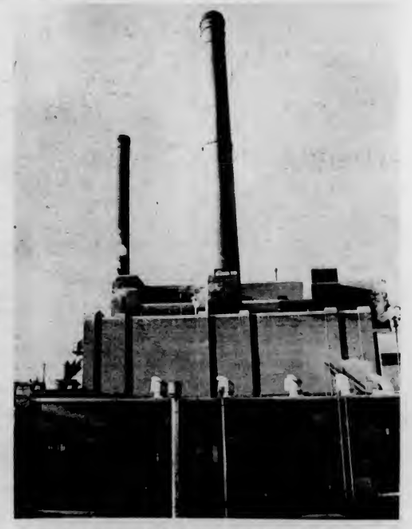
By STEVE TRIPOLI

It looks as if the smoke emissions from the smoke stacks of the Physical Plant are going to keep on coming for at least another year and a half.

Two of the men who run the plant told the Collegian yesterday that nothing has been done about the problem and no plans are being made to do anything. Mr. Edward R. Gilbert, Chief Engineer of the plant said yesterday in an MDC interview that since the Physical Plant Department received a letter of warning (dated November 19, 1971) from the Pioneer Valley Air Pollution Control District of Springfield "not a thing" has been done. He went on to note that under the present conditions he "has to operate according to the Department of Public Safety regulations" and release smoke and soot three times a day in order to clean out the stacks and prevent the boilers from blowing up due to accumulation of excessive soot.

George Norton, Director of the Plant, was also interviewed. He said that the University was handling the problem by constructing a new plant to replace the present one. This new plant, however, is not scheduled to be opened until the fall of 1973.

He also stated that nothing is slated to be done to tone down the problem in the old plant. "It would take a major outlay (later quoted at not less than $500,000) to clean up the old (present) plant, and the state is not willing to throw away that kind of money on a place that will soon be closed down."



When shown the article in the Friday, December 3 Collegian in which it was stated that the Pioneer Valley Air Pollution District threatened legal action if the stacks were observed emitting excessive smoke again, Norton replied that it was possible. "I expect they could" he said, but he went on to explain that it was unlikely because "there are very few if any plants that meet the criteria; we're all in the same boat". He said that "maybe a timetable" for cleaning the plant up would be imposed, but he added that the infraction would probably be pardoned in view of the fact that there is a new plant in the works which would be less polluting, and that they would also be allowed to continue in all probability because "one of the prime reasons for the building of the new plant instead of expansion of the old was the pollution problem."

He added that "whereas it might appear that the present plant could be altered sooner this is not the case under the state system of capital outlay" and that they would first have to go through "design, feasibility, and capital outlay plans; it would take three to five years."

There is also the factor of when the work would be done. Norton stated that they would "have to shut down the plant to convert it. This could only be done during the summer and to half the plant at a time so it couldn't be done very quickly."

A phone call to Pioneer Valley Air Pollution Control cleared up some of the legal questions concerning the problem. Michael Salvon of Pioneer Valley was asked if anything had been done since the initial letter of warning. "There's been no action here" he stated. "They're in the process of putting a new plant in at UMass and we're waiting for people to implement a program so there's been no legal action. They can ask for a six month to one year extension on cleaning up in any event."

That was all the information that Mr. Salvon had on the situation, although he added that there has been some reaction from the community here. "We do get some complaints, but all that I can say for now is what I've just told you. I can't quote any plans for the future."

It looks as though we're going to be covered with soot and grime from the power plant for at least another year and a half. That's how long the powers that be say it will take to get the new power plant now under construction in working order. In the meantime, wear a gas mask.

The original student ski discount program offers guaranteed savings to grads & undergrads

Student Ski Association

--save on lifts EVERYDAY, save most on weekdays.

--lessons - rentals 50% off weekdays.

--no limit to number of uses at an area, no buddy-system or group necessary to get the discount.

--prospective skiers - novices: join SSA BEFORE you try out skiing. One day's use can save you $10.

NO MAILING necessary. SSA cards sold at BARTLETT 13. Dave Ellis, Regional Mgr. $5 price also includes subscription to STUDENT SKIER and a great SKI GUIDE.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

The office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN is on the second floor of the Student Union on the campus of the University of Massachusetts, zip code 01002. Telephones: 545-2550 (news); 545-0344 (sports), 549-1311 (business).

Second class postage is paid in Amherst. THE DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes Monday through Friday during the academic year, except during vacation, exam periods or holidays. Accepted for mailing under the authority of an act of March 8, 1879, as amended by an act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $6.00 per semester or $10.00 per year.

MDC Classifieds Pay

Kodak • SALES & REPAIRS CAMERAS ACCESSORIES • FILM PROCESSING

LANG'S PHOTO

• AGFA • NIKON • MINOLTA • PRAKTICA • SAWYER • PAMICONI • BRAUN . . and others

BANKAMERICARD

STUDIO
• RENTALS OF STILL & MOVIE EQUIPMENT
• SPECIALISTS IN CUSTOM PHOTO FINISHING (COLOR & BLACK & WHITE)
COMPLETE STOCK OF DARKROOM EQUIPMENT & MATERIALS
"Want To Learn Photography? JOIN OUR CLUB!"
We Have the Service You've Been Looking for 253-3148
460 West St., South Amherst - Route 16 and 183 No. Pleasant St. (next to Whole Wheat Trading Co.)

SGC Says "Pay Fines"

By ROBERT MEDEIROS

The Collegian has learned from reliable sources that it is likely the Student General Court will recommend that students be forced to pay their traffic fines.

Jerry Moriarty, Chief Justice of the General Court, said the official decision will not be released until Monday night at 7:45 in an open meeting of the Court in the Council Chambers in the Student Union. The results of the session will be reported in the Collegian Tuesday.

John McEleney was the student who brought the suit before the Court which would force the Student Attorney General to initiate action in the recovery of all parking fines. McEleney felt that he was being deprived of a source of financial assistence since all traffic ticket money is returned to the University by the courts for use as a scholarship fund.

Under the expected decision, Henry Bouffard, the student attorney general, would coordinate a group to assist in the collection of $31,000 in fines. Bouffard said the procedure involved would be the same as the one used to collect $99,000 in non-student fines. Bouffard had said earlier that if the decision did rule in favor of collecting student fines, he would then initiate action in the collection of $4,000 in faculty fines.

Bouffard in outlining the plans for collecting the fines said letters would be sent to all offenders asking them either to pay or to contest the fine within 30 days. The offender may also make arrangements to pay the fine within the 30-day period.

If the offender refuses to follow these recommendations within the stated period, he will be issued a summons from the Northampton District Court. Bouffard said the letters will not be sent out until after Christmas in order that "no undue burden" be placed on the offenders.

The administration will await until the Court releases their official decision before they decide upon their next move.

Section E-3 of the Student Handbook states, "Charges and fines owed to the courts for violation of the University's motor vehicle regulations are viewed as charges owed to the University since these funds are returned to the University by the courts for the scholarship fund. These charges, if unpaid may result in denial of permission to register as a student for a succeeding semester, or for permission to register a motor vehicle, or both.

Randy Dahl staff assistent to the Dean of Students said, "Holding up registration is a possibility under limited circumstances." He said it will not be taken under mass action.

Dahl said the holding up of registration might be used against people who are reluctant or non-willing to pay traffic fines in the area of $50. He called the $50 an arbitrary sum and said it might be lower but doubted if it would be higher.

"The holding up of registration would take place as a last recourse," said Dahl. "The people involved would be given a fair amount of forewarning."

An informed source also said that many of the references were incorrect relating to the Court decision which were made in George Vasquez's letter to the Editor in the Collegian on Dec. 16.

Tree Thiefs Caught

AMHERST—Two would-be tree snatchers were caught in the act yesterday a few feet away from the entrance to police headquarters here as they attempted to make off with a 20-foot spruce destined for decoration today inside the town hall.

Two University of Massachusetts students, a boy and a girl, were struggling to mount the weighty prize on the roof of their compact car when Patrolman Thomas O'Connor spotted them.

Miss Patricia A. Palanza and John Degrofenreid, both of 85 North Whitney St., pleaded not guilty to a charge of larceny of less than $100 in Hampshire County District Court this morning.

Their cases were continued to Dec. 21.

Other items on the Amherst police log for the 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. today include:

At 12:01 p.m. Monday party reported bumping into a vehicle on Spring Street.

At 12:36 p.m., Bank deposit bag found and returned to bank.

At 12:42 p.m., College Street, a report a limb was down and electric company notified.

At 10:35 p.m. Reported to Amherst Police of a mail box down in Shutesbury.

At 10:36 p.m., College Street, suspicious car near filling station. Gone when police arrived.

At 7 p.m. West Street, two cars racing almost struck a pedestrian crossing the highway. Vehicles not located.

At 10:50 p.m., Farview Way Christmas lights outside dwelling taken.

At 7:15 a.m., Pine Street, damage to motor vehicle believed kicked.

Student Fined In Hamp. Court

A 24-year-old University of Massachusetts student was fined a total of $90 for drunkenness and driving under the influence of alcohol in Hampshire District Court yesterday.

Special Justice Raymond R. Cross fined William E. Crowe $15 for drunkenness and $75 for driving under the influence, despite his argument that his vehicle was "under his control at all time."

Crowe was arrested Nov. 21, 1971, after two police spotted him driving off the road at the University. Police stated that Crowe smelt of alcohol, that his speech was thick, and that he staggered slightly as he got out of his vehicle.

Crowe's lawyer, Steven Monsein, challenged police testimony. Monsein pointed out that Crowe had not driven over a curb as specified in the citation against Crowe. Monsein also disputed Amherst police Sergeant Miner Tuttle's testimony that Crowe was drunk when he was brought to the Amherst police station.

UMass prosecutor Donald Dunphy rested his case on the opinion of three policemen that Crowe was indeed drunk.

In other district court activity yesterday, James D. Moriarty of 32 Park St., Florence was found guilty of stealing a $49.95 coat from Caldor's department store Nov. 15. After hearing Moriarty's plea that he stole the coat because he was on unemployment and couldn't afford to buy one, Judge Cross fined Moriarty $300 and then suspended the fine for one year. Moriarty was released pending payment of $500 bail.

John A. Postizzi, 25, of Framingham was found guilty of hunting with a bow and arrow on Quabbin Reservation. Postizzi was fined $20 each on charges of hunting on a state reservation, hunting without a license in his possession, hunting without an archery stamp, and $50 for using the driver's license of another for identification. The $50 fine was suspended until March, 1972.

James Tomolillo, 22, of 81 Pleasant St., Northampton and Nanci Normand, 18, of 17 Prospect St., Easthampton denied charges of breaking and entering at nighttime and possession of heroin. Their cases were continued until Dec. 21.

Joseph Venuti, 23, of Brockton denied five counts of assault with a dangerous weapon with intent to rob, nine counts assault with a dangerous weapon, possession of a hypodermic syringe, and possession of opium. His case was continued until Dec. 21.

Charges of possession of a harmful drug against James D. Lewis of 361 Northampton Rd., Amherst were continued until Dec. 28.

Patricia A. Palanza and Joan P. Degraffereia of 85 North Whitney St., Amherst denied charges of larceny of less than $100. Their case was continued until Dec. 21.

Thomas Peterson, 22 of School Street, Northampton denied charges of larceny less than $100. His case was continued until Jan. 5.

Kim Houchin, 24, of Williamsburg, denied charges of drunkenness, possession of hashish, possession of a narcotic drug and possession of a narcotic drug with intent to sell.

Robert A. St. Peters was found guilty of drunkenness, driving under the influence of alcohol, and driving at nighttime without lights. St. Peters was fined $15 on the first charge, $100 on the second, and $10 on the third. When he appealed the conviction on the second charge, he was released on his own recognizance pending appeal.

Continued until Dec. 21 were charges of drunkenness and disturbing the peace against Frank Mikelis, 49, of 24 Lasell Ave., Northampton.

John C. Lynch, 19, of 5 Strong Ave., Northampton denied charges of forgery, his case was continued until Dec. 21, as was the case of Michael Adamski, 20, of South St., Northampton. Adamski had been charged with breaking and entering in the daytime and larceny.

Hot License Case Dec. 29

Two University of Massachusetts students charged last month with manufacturing counterfeit licenses and selling them for $30 to $35 apiece will have their cases heard Dec. 29 in Hampshire County District Court.

The two were arrested Nov. 18 and Nov. 19 after a team of state investigators raided a room in John Quincy Adams Dormitory at UMass and seized a number of counterfeit licenses and paraphernalia necessary for making more.

Found in the room, Philip Riley, 20, of Lowell was arrested for possession of counterfeit licenses, possession of marijuana, and possession of marijuana with intent to sell. The next day his girlfriend Janet Freiman, 19 of Brockton surrendered to UMass police and was charged with three counts of making counterfeit licenses.

Yesterday in Hampshire District Court another UMass student Michele D. Cunningham, 19, of Revere, denied a charge of possessing counterfeit licenses. Her case was continued to Dec. 29.

In another Amherst case, David O. York, 20, of Auburndale denied a charge of larceny less than $100. The arrest was in connection with a theft at the Listening Post record and audio store in Amherst, according to police.

Martin Saylor, 17, of Aqua Vitae Road, Hadley, denied charges of driving without a license, driving with no license in his possession, and carrying alcoholic beverages while being a minor. His case was continued to Dec. 28 and he was released on his own recognizance.

Brian McElligott, 20, 261 Crescent St., Northampton, denied charges of drunkenness and driving under the influence. His case was continued to Dec. 28.

George Costanza, 22, of South Hadley denied charges of speeding and driving without an inspection sticker. His case was continued to Dec. 22.

Thomas Urekew, 21, of 10 Chapman Ave., Easthampton, was found guilty of a charge of speeding. He was fined $25.

Michael H. Filipaik, 29, of Swampscott, denied charges of drunkenness, driving under the influence of an intoxicating beverage, and leaving the scene of property damage. His case was continued until Dec. 21.

William E. Dostal, 35, of 21 Birch Hill Rd., Northampton, was found guilty of driving under the influence. He was fined $100.

Henry A. Kapinos, 28, of 49 Cherry St., Easthampton denied charges of assault and battery. His case was continued until Feb. 15.

Herbert Baker, 64, of 653 Westhampton Rd., Northampton denied charges of drunkenness and driving under the influence. His case was continued until Dec. 29.

Gerald R. Waskiewicz, 21, of 14 Meadow St., Hadley was found guilty of speeding. He paid a $25 fine.

Appearing in district court Tuesday to answer speeding charges was Dennis P. Cole, 21, of 7 Lang St. Wilmington. He was found guilty and paid a $10 fine.

Daniel R. Cote, 24, of Wilbraham pleaded guilty to a charge of speeding. He paid a $10 fine.

Dennis Routhier, 17, of 15 Lyman Ave., Easthampton pleaded guilty to a charge of speeding. He paid a $10 fine.

Northampton Hotline Inc.

The Northampton Hotline, an organization of volunteers who man telephones weekends to counsel and advise area residents having difficulties with drugs, pregnancies or just coping with life, is seeking incorporation as a non-profit organization.

"It's the proper way to organize," said Ralph Levy, president of the board of directors. "It gives us stability and it won't affect our operations at all.

"Most service organizations like the Kiwanis and the Circle Players, for instance, have adopted non-profit incorporation," Levy said.

"It protects the individuals, and becoming a non-profit corporation provides taxbreaks to contributors," he said.

Levy said that the legal formalities were being handled by counsel for the group, Atty. Donald Dunphy, who is also a member of the board of directors.

New Course Offering for Spring, 1972.

The Plant Environment and Crop Production. Plant and Soil Sciences 115 (E)
A new course offering for non-sciences majors dealing with the relationship between plants and their environment.

For additional information contact:
Paul Jennings 545-2254
William Rosenau 545-2249

Choral Concert Sunday

Choral groups of the University of Massachusetts-Amherst will present their Annual Winter Concert Sunday, at 3 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium, Stockbridge Hall.

The University Women's Choir, directed by Alan Harler, will begin the program with Francois Couperin's "Troisieme Lecon de Tenebres" (Lamentations of Jeremiah). Also on the program will be: Claudio Monteverdi's "Lagrime d'Amante al Sepolcro dell'Amata," performed by the University Chamber Singers; works of Victorian Brahms, and Sweelinck, done by the University Chorale, which Dr. Richard deBois will direct: and the premiere of "Dies Domini Magnus" (The Great Day of the Lord) by Philip Bezanson, head of the UMass music department.

For the second half of the program, the University Chorus, directed by Alan Harler, will perform Handel's "Te Deum Laudamus."

AMHERST Cinema
253-5426
The Art Of Gentle PERSUASION
In Color
Late Show
Fri., Dec. 17
at 11:30
No one under 21 admitted.

In The Nation And The World

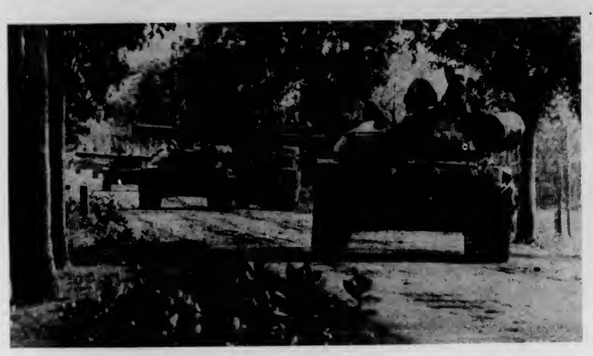
East Pakistan Surrenders

India Declares Western Front Cease Fire

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pakistan's army in East Pakistan surrendered Thursday and as Indian troops marched into Dacca the New Delhi government declared a unilateral cease-fire on the West Pakistan front, 1,000 miles to the west.

Pakistan's president, declaring the loss of East Pakistan after 24 years of Pakistani rule is a temporary setback, vowed to fight on "until occupied area are taken back."



But India seemed sure of its position. It said the cease-fire will go into effect Friday night on the western front-where a fierce tank battle had been reported raging Wednesday.

The Pakistan army has been outnumbered by Indian forces throughout the fighting. One of Pakistan's problems was that much of its army, normally stationed in the West, has been tied up for months in the east wing.

It seemed part of Indian strategy to keep them there until an over-all peace settlement can be worked out under impetus of the cease-fire.

The Indian cabinet's decision for the western cease-fire was conveyed to Foreign Minister Swarah Singh, now at the United Nations. India had brushed aside an earlier U.N. General Assembly appeal for a cease-fire.

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi told a cheering Parliament in New Delhi that after 13 days of fighting "Dacca is now the free capital of a free country."

Indian tanks photographed near Jessore prior to the surrender of East Pakistan. A new nation is now in existence, Bangla Desh.

She said some of the nearly 10 million refugees who fled to India to escape the Pakistani army had begun to return to Bangla Desh, as the Bengalis call East Pakistan.

There was one last bloody note. Excited Bengalis shooting in the air may have provoked a skirmish between Pakistani and Indian troops in front of the Intercontinental Hotel. One Pakistani soldier and two other persons were killed.

An Indian government spokesman told newsmen in New Delhi that Indian troops would remain in Bangla Desh "until mopping up operations are completed, until normalcy is restored, until the task set for the army is fully done, until the health and municipal services are restored, and the refugees are repatriated."

The spokesman added that the Bengla Desh civil administration, led by four senior civil servants, was expected to take over general administrative responsibilities Friday in Dacca.

Indian and Pakistani troops mingled freely in Dacca, and the Pakistanis accepted surrender stoic calm, an AP reporter in the city reported.

"The Indian armed forces will not remain in Bangla Desh longer than they are needed," Mrs. Gandhi told her parliament.

She said India's only aim was "to assist the people of Bangla Desh and the Mukti Bahini to end the reign of terror" that began last March when West Pakistani troops moved against an independence movement. The Mukti Bahini are guerrillas who fought the Pakistanis.

The prime minister expressed hope that Sheik Mujibur Rahman, the East Pakistani leader under arrest in West Pakistan, "will take his rightful place and lead the Bangla Desh people to peace, progress and prosperity."

It was disclosed that she had written a letter to President Nixon blaming the United States and other great powers for failing to take steps to avoid the conflict. One step they could have taken, she wrote, was to obtain the sheik's release. She spoke of U.S. "innuendos and insinuations" that India was to blame for the war."

Nixon still seeks an Indian withdrawal from East Pakistan, the White House reported. A presidential aide, acknowledging that Nixon has received Mrs. Gandhi's letter, remarked: "The way to avoid war is not starting up tanks and putting bullets into rifles."

In West Pakistan, President Agha Mohammed Yahya Khan said in a nationwide broadcast: "If India does not agree to come to terms with Pakistan, then the whole of Asia will be involved in a bloody war."

Yahya heads a military government. He said his troops in East Pakistan "though vastly outnumbered and cut off from supplies and reinforcements by land, sea and air due to the enemy blockage, held out for months against a perfidious and ruthless enemy, massively equipped and backed by a superpower."

The Soviet Union backs India.

The president said he will announce on schedule Monday a new constitution that will contain "clear and unequivocal provisions guaranteeing maximum autonomy to East Pakistan, consistent with the concept of one Pakistan."

Referring to the people in East Pakistan, Yahya declared:: "This is not the end. We shall fight for our country relentlessly...The torch of resistance to India's naked aggression shall never be allowed to be extinguished."

The Indians listed their material losses at the end of 13 days of fighting as 42 aircraft, 81 tanks and one warship. They claimed to have destroyed 86 aircraft, 226 tanks, four warships, two submarines, 16 gunboats and 12 miscellaneous craft.

War Weakens U.N.

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

There can be some worrisome spinoffs from the India-Pakistan war.

For one thing, it looks like a new blow to the image of the United Nations as a keeper of the peace, at a critical moment in U.N. history.

For another, it raises new questions whether legal frontiers are sacrosanct, whatever the moral or humanitarian issues involved.

The lopsided 104-11 vote in the General Assembly for a cease-fire had illustrated the hope of most nations. Thus there were many attentive ears when the enraged foreign minister of Pakistan, Zulkifar Ali Bhutto, lashed the United Nations for "impotence and incapacity."

While Indian forces cut into East Pakistan like a hot knife into butter, the Security Council debated and did nothing else. It couldn't. Russian "nyets" made any meaningful action impossible. The United Nations could help bring about a cease-fire on the West Pakistan front only after India accomplished what it wanted to accomplish in the East.

Does this reflect a low regard to the U.N. future, whatever the members' delegates might say publicly?

Despite the useful role played by the United Nations in such crises as the Middle East, the Congo and Cyprus, the India-Pakistan conflict may have done its peacekeeping image serious damage.

FACES of EARTH
159 North Pleasant St.
Amherst
Next to the Post Office
Special Close Out
PARKAS
$29.95
Open till 10 p.m.
Mon. - Sat.

HATCH Spaghetti SPECIAL
Heaping Platter of Hot Spaghetti covered with Meat Sauce plus Hot Garlic Bread
ONLY 59¢

Served in the Student Union Hatch
every Saturday from 5 p.m. - 10 p.m.

O.W.H.
Old Weird Harold's
(New & Used Clothes from farmers jeans to Alaskan Parkas)
Dear People,
Please visit O.W.H. soon because if you don't O.W.H. may never be back and O.W.H. may just breathe his last breath. So try recycled clothes. In any event Happy Holidays from
O.W.H.
Open
11-9 M-Sat.
Rt 9 bet Amherst and N.Hampton
(Next to Hadley Bookshop)

Campus Center Program Council
A Boy Named Charlie Brown

Charlie Brown and the 'Peanuts' Gang in their First Movie!
Sunday, December 19, 1971
S.U. Ballroom
50¢
7, 9 p.m.

Conservatives Attack Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP)-Conservative Republicans sharpened their attack on President Nixon Thursday and moved closer to openly challenging him in next year's presidential primaries.

Rep. John Ashbrook of Ohio, the likely candidate if the challenge is made, placed a blistering criticism of Nixon in the Congressional Record, accusing him of turning his back on the conservative causes he supported in his 1968 campaign.

Continued support of Nixon by conservatives on the grounds they have no place else to go, "amounts to a virtual suicide pact" for conservatives, Ashbrook said.

The 43-year-old congressman said he is still not decided whether he will make the run against Nixon but conceeded that his statement in the Record indicated a growing resolve to do so.

He said he is going to New Hampshire next week to assess his prospects if he enters the state's March 7 primary. Nixon already faces a liberal challenger, Rep. Paul N. McCloskey, of California, in New Hampshire.

Ashbrook said he will announce his final decision during the week between Christmas and New Year's Day, probably on Dec. 28.

His statement in the Record also criticized such leading Republicans and conservatives as Sens. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, Strem Thurmond of South Carolina and John Tower of Texas. All have opposed the idea of a primary challenge by conservatives.

He said their stand, and their refusal to criticize Nixon publicly even when they disagree with his policies, have contributed considerably to the dilemma facing conservatives.

Ashbrook, who entitled his statement, "The first 1,000 days," said the hallmark of the Nixon administration so far has been "the presentation of liberal policies in the verbal trappings of conservatism."

On the domestic front, he said, "the most notable feature of President Nixon's performance has been his readiness not merely to continue but to expand upon the social and economic programs of his Democratic predecessors."

In foreign policy, Ashbrook said, Nixon has made overtures to Red China and Russia that have weakened anti-Communist forces around the world.

"Considering the fact that his public reputation was made as a tough and knowledgeable anti-Communist, this has been his principle apostasy," Ashbrook said. "And, because it involves the question of our national survival, it is also the most frightening."

In Brief...

State of Union Address

WASHINGTON (AP)-White House sources said Thursday President Nixon plans to address a joint session of Congress at 12:30 p.m. Thursday, January 20.

The address will be the annual State of the Union message. In recent years, the messages have been delivered at night when they have a larger radio and television audience.

Congress plans to convene its 1972 session on January 18.

Harbert Never in Prison

PHILADELPHIA (AP)-Mary Ann Harbert, an attractive, outgoing young woman who showed no visible signs of her 3 1/2-year confinement in Communist China, said Thursday she lived from day to day with uncertain hope of release.

"I had no trial. I was never charged and they were very careful not to harm me," Miss Harbert said during her first interview with newsmen since she and an Army civilian employe were released Monday in Hong Kong.

Bolivian Hijack Attempt

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP)-An attempt to hijack a Bolivian airliner to Chile Thursday resulted in the shooting death of the pilot and the hijacker, identified as a leftist guerrilla.

Authorities said both died in firing that occurred after the plane landed at Cochabamba, presumably to refuel for the flight to Chile. The Lloyd Aereo Boliviano plane had been seized after taking off from Sucre.

Muskie to Announce Candidacy

BOSTON (AP)-Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, said Thursday he'll formally announce his candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination Jan. 2.

Speaking to a breakfast meeting of some 300 Massachusetts Democrats at the Parker House, he said, "I ask for your help informally today, formally Jan. 2."

Pentagon Gains Power

WASHINGTON (AP)-The authority of the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff to act in crisis situations has been strengthened under a new Pentagon directive issued Thursday for streamlining the military's global communications command system.

The directive was signed Dec. 2 by David Packard in one of his final acts before resigning last week as deputy Secretary of Defense.

Officials said it formalizes in writing what has been, as a practical matter, the role of the chairman acting for the Joint Chiefs as a group when decisions must be made quickly.

The directive provides that the Joint Chiefs retain their role as the President's top military advisory body, but makes clear the chairman is the single official responsible for relaying the president's orders to the military commands in the field.

WORRIED ABOUT A JOB?
Assure yourself of an interesting, challenging, well-paying job through Air Force ROTC 2 year Program.
Consider these points:
- $100 a month while in AFROTC
- $1000 worth of free flight instuction
- $9400 + starting salary
- Draft deferment
These are just a few of the benefits available through the
AFROTC 2-YEAR PROGRAM
Call DICKINSON HALL 545-2437

India-Pak. Surrender Ceremony

DACCA (AP)-Lt. Gen. A.A.K. Niazi sat at a table in front of the Dacca race track Thursday and signed the surrender of his Pakistani troops.

Niazi did not have a pen, so Lt. Gen. J.S.Aurora, commander of the eastern theater, gave him one.

"Then Aurora stripped Miazi's insignia of rank off his shoulders, as is the custom," Lt. Col. B.P. Rikhye, an Indian officer reported. "The Pakistani troops who had arms laid them down. Aurora was raised by the crowd and every Indian officer was mobbed by people throwing flowers." Although Niazi had vowed "to fight to the last man," Indian officials said he surrendered because he wanted to prevent further loss of life. He surrendered in behalf of his 80,000 men in East Pakistan, but nowhere near that number were in Dacca when the end came.

Hundreds of shouting Bengalis crowded around the race track and were restrained during the ceremony by lines of Indian troops. Niazi was grim as he signed the surrender and near tears when he moved away.

The first Indian troops to arrive were mobbed in their jeeps by Bengalis, hugging and kissing. There were shouts of "Joi Bangla"-victory to Bengal. The crowds threw flowers at the passing soldiers.

In front of the Intercontinental Hotel, declared a neutral zone by the Red Cross, excited Bengalis fired guns into the air.

House Rejects Withdrawal; Congressional Logjam Breaks

WASHINGTON (AP)—The congressional logjam on foreign aid, the sole issue delaying adjournment, began to break up Thursday after a hastily arranged House vote to reject total withdrawal from Indochina in six months.

House Democratic Leader Hale Boggs said the vote signified that adjournment was possible Thursday night.

Senate-house conferees on the original foreign aid authorization bill, deadlocked for weeks over the end-the-war Mansfield amendment, promptly met to clear that measure for final action.

Agreement on that would open the way for action on one of two measures: the regular foreign aid appropriations measure or a stopgap measure providing aid funds until early next year. Both have already passed the House.

The strange sequence of events began to unfold after the White House and House leaders rejected a Senate proposal to provide temporary funding for foreign aid at an annual level of $2.6 billion until Feb. 15, $1.5 billion to March 15 and just salaries and administrative expenses thereafter.

While key members of the Senate and House Appropriations Committee and the Senate Foreign Relations Committee were meeting, Rep. William F. Ryan, D—N.Y., rose on the House floor and, with only bare notice, moved that the House accept the Mansfield amendment.

Rep. Thomas Morgan, D—Pa., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, moved to table Ryan's motion, and the New York congressman's effort was killed on a vote of 130 to 101 with just 13 members more than the needed quorum of 218 on hand.

Rep. George Mahan, D—Tex., chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, and Morgan then announced that this vote was the House vote that Senate leaders led by Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield had been demanding on the end-the-war amendment.

As a result, Morgan said, the conferees on the original bill could now go back into session, the Senate would drop its insistence on the Mansfield amendment and the $2.7 authorization measure could be cleared for passage.

This in turn would permit Senate consideration of an appropriations bill for foreign aid. The House provided about $2.6 billion in the regular appropriations bill for the aid program, and about $3 billion in the stopgap measure.

The temporary funding measure was being processed by congressional leaders in the absence of the regular authorization and appropriations bills, despite strong beliefs by many senators that to do so would destroy power of the authorizing committees such as Foreign Relations.

Dollar Value Due Tomorrow

WASHINGTON (AP)-Decisions are possible by Saturday on new currency values for the non-communist world-including a devalued dollar-and removal of America's 10 per cent import surcharge, participants in the "Group of Ten" monetary conference said Thursday.

On the eve of weekend negotiations of the ten richest nations, French finance minister Giscard D'Estaing predicted in Paris the surcharge will "disappear" simultaneously with a realignment of exchange rates.

The Japanese finance minister, Mikie Mizuta, told newsmen on his arrival for the Friday and Saturday talks there is about a 50-50 chance for agreement here on realignment of the disrupted monetary system.

Mizuta said the agreement between President Nixon and French president Pompidou on an historic devaluation of the dollar, announced Tuesday in the Azores, brightened the prespect for early settlement.

Responding to D'Estaing, the Treasury emphasized that removal of the surcharge depends not only on a currency realignment but on a package agreement including the removal of trade obstacles and sharing of defense costs.

Deputies of the Big Ten ministers conferred in secret at the International Monetary Fund headquarters in preparation for the weekend meeting, and the IMF's board of executive directors held a late session.

There a spokesman for the "Little Nine"-the nine underdeveloped nations represented on the 20-member IMF board-called for greater IMF authority to police the international monetary system.

...BY HIGH AUTO INSURANCE COSTS ?
get the lowest legal rates for all vehicles and all coverages with easy monthly payments
NOW'S THE TIME FOR 1972 AUTO INSURANCE!
TKO YOUR INSURANCE PROBLEMS WITH
TEKOA INSURANCE AGENCY
Avoid downtown Spfld. parking headaches in WEST SPRINGFIELD at 366 MEMORIAL AVE. Opp. Century Shopping Plaza! Free parking for over 100 cars!
WESTFIELD 10 BROAD ST, Next to P.O.
NORTHAMPTON 160 PLEASANT ST. Opp. N'hamp. Jr. College
FAIRVIEW 1847 MEMORIAL DR. On North-South Hwy.
EVERETT J. O'CONNOR INSURANCE AGENCY
HOLYOKE . . . 205 HIGH ST. . . . Next to Holyoke Nat'l. Bank

Science Fiction
Myth — Legend

Books For The New Age
Last Whole Earth $4.50
Find us at
FACES of EARTH

Verrochi, Scott Debate Police Arms

By DON BISHOP

The issue of the wearing of guns by the Campus Police was debated last night by Student Senate member Richard Verrochi and Campus Police Officer Brian Scott. A group of around 35 people heard the hour long debate in Thompson 104.

In his defense of gun carrying, Officer Scott began by stating his belief that in a campus community of this size it was inconceivable to him that an officer would not need a gun. Scott further argued that the majority of individuals committing serious crimes on this campus are from outside the campus community. Because these people have not made a commitment to the school they would be more likely to engage in the type of activity in which a police officer would need to be armed.

Scott stated that "Sometimes the very simplest complaints result in a violent crime." Therefore an officer would need to be armed to be prepared for any eventuality.

To Officer Scott, when a person confronts a policeman he should concern himself with the man behind the gun and not the gun itself. To him the problems of law enforcement will not be improved by taking the gun away from the policeman, but rather through better training and education of the police.

Scott concluded his initial remarks by stating that if the choice came down to disarming that Campus Police to staisgy the demands of a majority of students on campus, that their demands would be ignored because the officer's lives would be jeopardized.

Senator Verrochi opened by his own personal abhorrence of guns and violence. He debated on two points: firstly, the visible presence of guns on Campus Police officers and secondly, the need of the Campus Police to carry guns at all.

In his debate on the first point, Verrochi stressed what he feels are the harmful psychological effects created by seeing a gun being carried by a policeman. To Verrochi, it is not the badge that gives the cop his authority and power, but rather the mere fact that he has a visible weapon. He feels this bad because in his words, "It is is irrational power, power based on fear and intimidation."

Verrochi cited a survey at USC to support this previous statement on the gun being the policeman's authority. He feels that if a policeman must wear a gun it should be concealed by a blazer or some other means. On this particular campus, where the majority of active duty is carried out in police cruisers, Verrochi feels that the Campus Police should carry their weapons in a readily accessible compartment in the car.

Verrochi granted that there are times where an officer would need a weapon, but this need is not great enough to justify their being worn "on the hip pocket". By having their weapons in the cruiser Verrochi stated that they would be close by if needed and the stigma of exposed weapons would be removed.

Officer Scott countered the concealed weapon argument by charging that in the case of immediate need officers and bystanders lives would be endangered in the terms of the time necessary to draw a weapon carried on the body and getting a weapon carried in a car.

Verrochi in his rebuttal gave the opinion that in the vast majority of cases on campus a gun is not needed in confronting individuals.

Scott and some of the people in the audience felt that even if there was one case where a live would be saved by the wearing of a gun by a Campus Police officer, then the carrying of weapons was justified.

In the question and answer period it was evident that most people in the audience were for the most part, behind the position of Officer Scott.

Measles? Mumps? V.D.?

By MDC STAFF

Gonorrhea, the most common venereal disease, is spreading to epidemic level in the United States, especially among teenagers. The 13 to 19-year-old group accounts for 25 per cent of the estimated 1 to 2 million infected people in this country. Gonorrhea is also a problem on the UMass campus.

According to Dr. Barry Slater of the UMass Infirmary Staff, "2 per cent of all vaginal smears the Infirmary takes are positive for gonorrhea. The level is higher in men."

The disease is transmitted from an infected person to another person when the gonococcus bacteria contacts the genital area during sexual intercourse.

Women who are infected may experience a burning sensation on urination and have a vaginal discharge. Dr. Slater says that 80 per cent do not have symptoms. Gonorrhea is more easily detected in men than in women. Most men who contract the disease have symptoms of a urethral discharge and pain on urination two to three weeks after being exposed.

The disease is diagnosed by finding the gonococcus organism in the vaginal smear of an infected female or in the urethral discharge of a male.

Large doses of penicillin or tetracycline are used by doctors in treating the disease. During treatment, cultures are repeatedly taken until they show no traces of the gonococcus bacteria.

If untreated, gonorrhea can cause bodily damage. The infection can reach the reproductive system. Sterility may result. Peritonitis, an inflamation of the abdominal membrane, occurs if the organism enters the abdomen. Blindness, arthritis, and some other problems may result.

Methods exist for people who want to prevent infection from this disease. "Abstinence is the only sure way" says Dr. Slater. "More sexual discrimination is also helpful though gonorrhea is found in all socio-economic groups."

Sexual mores once hindered the spread of gonorrhea. Changing sexual mores, population increase, and the greater frequency of sex with a greater number of people are partially responsible for the rise. As a communicable disease, gonorrhea is outranked only by measles. New drugs and information concerning this disease will hopefully halt the spread of gonorrhea.

Belchertown Benefit Auction Feb. 19

Awareness has been growing in the University community about the situation at the Belchertown State Hospital. Students have come to realize that there are too few necessary facilities for all the patients, and that especially the children have been deprived of many things which could make each day a little more cheerful.

It is now the Christmas season, and everyone should stop to think about these children when it comes time to receive gifts. A small toy could make all the difference to the Christmas of a young child. The adult patients at Belchertown are in great need of exercise equipment, and other items useful in maintaining their health.

It is for these reasons, that Coolidge Tower has decided to hold an auction on Saturday, February 19th, at Hampden Dining Commons. It would be appreciated if every student would think about the patients at Belchertown, and, upon returning from vacation, would bring any items from home, either new, or in good condition, that could be auctioned off. A professional auctioneer will be hired, and all proceeds will be used in buying the items which the hospital so desperately needs.

Pizza Party

ALL YOU CAN EAT $1.25

EVERY SUNDAY NIGHT

BRUNI'S PIZZA

corner of Main & Triangle 256-6676

FACES OF EARTH

159 North Pleasant St.
Amherst
Next to the Post Office

Wooden Bowls Boards and Chopping Blocks for Christmas

Open til 10 p.m.
Mon. thru Sat.

Sugarbush Ski Trip!

Room Payments Due!

Put the money in an envelope with your name and turn it in all day Friday or Monday at the RSO Office

We have the area's largest selection of Jerseys, Knit Tops, Sweaters.
Just Perfect for Christmas

WEAR HOUSE

"love is ..."

1022 — Love is . . . telling him you love him this much.

1012 — Love is . . . when he's the most important person in the world.

1013 — Love is . . . when making up lasts longer than the spat.

here

Specialty Shop of Tripod Camera

98 N. Pleasant St.
Amherst

Dec. 17 Today Dec. 17

hear

HICKORY WIND

AT THE FRIDAY AFTERNOON CLUB

2:30 - 5:30

Wall Cafeteria

25¢ admission 25¢

Future University Report

Lost And Timetable For The Future

(Ed. note-This is the final segment of the Future University Report. We have attempted in this series to communicate to the University community those portions of the report we felt to be vital to the future of the Amherst campus. Any comments from our readers will be welcome)

The Cost of Our Recommendations

It will not be inexpensive to create the public university Massachusetts deserves. Even without our recommendations, the anticipated increased in size and the effects of inflation will probably increase the University's budget by 200 to 300 percent over ten years. Our recommendations, fully funded, might increase the 1980 total by ten percent, or, if student-faculty ratios are changed, by as much as twenty percent.

The first issue, then, is whether the basic investment will be made, let alone our suggested additions to it. The legislature has treated the University relatively well in recent years; Massachusetts' rate of increase in spending on higher education has been fifth among the states. Yet the state remains 49th among the states in its per capita spending on higher education.

We know what the competing demands are. These are hard times for state and local governments everywhere.

But the State needs its public university now as it never has before, and there is no way for that institution to maintain the quality which the people deserve without money. We can only hope that this report will help develop the necessary public support to ensure that the needed funds are forthcoming.

There are a number of key ways in which our recommendations will add to the cost of running the University. We emphasize that the actual dollar estimates we have derived are very rough, amounting to orders of magnitude rather than budgetary figures, and the figures for 1980 are of course quite conjectural. And we have listed only the larger costs. Some of our recommendations undoubtedly involve costs which we do not list here, but we believe we have listed the major items of additional cost.

First, the cost of recruitment and financial aid will rise. The President and Trustees have already decided to ask the State for an additional $4.5 million in this area for fiscal 1973, which we think is an ample initial increase. We believe, however, that our recommended emphasis on low-income students will, by 1980, cost something like $8 million more than what the University's recruiting and financial aid effort is otherwise likely to be.

Second, the cost of advising and counseling, and skill development services will rise. We estimate that the University should include an additional $1 million to $1.5 million in its budget for these activities in fiscal 1973, with the bulk of the funds to be spent on advising. By 1980 our proposals would add $5 million or more to what the University's budget in this area would be if present expenditures were simply projected for student body growth and inflation.

Third, there is a substantial cost associated with the planning, development and evaluation of our various academic recommendations, and for on-going staff to administer them. This might amount to an additional $500,000 to $1 million in the fiscal 1973 budget, and perhaps an additional $1.5 to $2 million in 1980.

Fourth, we estimate that perhaps $500,000 could usefully be added for additional support staff for faculty, mainly secretarial, in 1973, and that this might rise to an additional $1.5 million in 1980.

Fifth, expanded public service staffing and support for service to clientele who cannot afford to pay could involve an additional $500,000 in 1973, rising to an additional $2 million in 1980.

Sixth, the library and computer facilities could easily use an additional $500,000 to $1 million beyond projected increases in fiscal 1973, and this might increase to an additional $2.5 to $3 million in 1980.

Seventh, development of the Open University, or the cost of applying new technology to the University of Massachusetts, will be quite costly. Expenditures for fiscal 1973 might be quite low--perhaps $200,000--as planning begins, but the University's share in the development costs, assuming other institutions are involved and pay half the cost, might be a total of $10 million over a period of years. These should be capital funds, since the investment will produce hardware and materials that can be used for a long period of time. Perhaps more relevant than the British experience in determining more exact projections will be the New York experience, since New York's Empire State College has in fact opened to students this fall. The actual cost in Massachusetts will vary tremendously depending on the extent of the investment in new curriculum development and technology. And we would emphasize that the project is not worth doing if the attempt is made to do it cheaply.

Eighth, and most troublesome, is the question whether any of our academic recommendations require that the over-all 15 to 1 student-faculty ratio be changed. The Board of Higher Education has recommended that the University's student-faculty ratio be changed to 12.5 to 1, a step which would add something on the order of $8 to $10 million to the University's current budget. The overall student-faculty ratio is of course not a very meaningful figure, since the actual ratio differs from school to school and department to department, and by the level of study involved.

A lower over-all ratio would provide the University with resources it badly needs for particular academic changes. It would ensure adequate support for faculty in some of our suggested activities that we know will require more concentrated faculty involvement--the new freshman year, field work in courses, problem-oriented learning, and so on. More broadly, it would lessen the extent to which graduate teaching has to be supported at the expense of undergraduate teaching at Amherst and lessen the pressure against graduate programs at Boston.

Thus, consideration of changing the overall student-faculty ratio is important, and if it could be achieved, it would be worthwhile. Perhaps, however, a selective approach would be a more realistic way to proceed in the present circumstances. We suggest, therefore, that the University seek funds for the creation of a sizeable undergraduate teaching fund to support student-faculty ratio changes on a program-by-program basis, both in new programs and existing ones.

We believe $3 million would be a fair amount for this fund in fiscal 1973, rising to $10 million in 1980. This would enable additional recruiting to begin for faculty for our suggested University professoriate, for the freshman year, for problem-oriented learning efforts, and for field study supervision.

It would also enable the hiring to proceed more easily for the adjunct faculty we have suggested.

Including faculty changes, then, we are suggesting the addition of roughly $6 to $7 million to the 1973 budget, and we are saying that our recommendations would enlarge the 1980 budget by something like $30 to $35 million.

The only additional capital outlay cost we have estimated is the $10 million for the Open University.

mending a larger overall student body than the 50,000 now contemplated, but we think these additional students can be accommodated by the "open unit" and by using existing and presently planned facilities on evenings and weekends, and during summers. That will, of course, involve added maintenance costs, and that is an item which we have not tried to estimate.

The one matter which may result in additional physical plant need is our recommendation for partial dispersal of the Boston campus, but since we did not finally recommend an exact mix as between the extent of building at Columbia Point and the extent of dispersion, it is difficult to attach an estimate to the costs involved in dispersion.

Our estimates, then, represent only additional operating costs to the University arising out of the recommendations we make, over and above the increases which will come as the present level of program reaches more students and suffers the effects of inflation.

Calendar for Change

Implicit in Table I is our recommended calendar for change, at least as to those matters where additional funds are required.

For fiscal 1973, the academic year 1972-1973, we urge action in the following eleven areas:

1. Initial steps in changing recruitment and admissions procedures in order to assure the lower-income and old student representation we have stressed, with concomitant efforts, already under way, to increase financial aid resources.

2. Planning and initial implementation of academic changes we have suggested: the new freshman year; a College III of Public and Community Service at Boston; two problem-oriented learning units, in environmental problems and urban affairs, at Amherst; expanded use of field experience in course work; changes in the academic calendar and the timing of higher education opportunities; and setting aside a fund to adapt dormitories to student interests and needs, and another fund to encourage curriculum evaluation and change.

3. Steps toward changing the faculty reward system, and changed staffing and recruiting patterns as we have suggested.

4. Initial implementation of our suggestions for a greatly expanded advising and counseling effort.

5. Continued efforts to modify the governance systems of the University to make them responsive to current and future needs.

6. Rationalization of public service activities and determination of directions for the future.

7. Development of academic self-study, evaluation, and planning mechanisms for the future.

8. Exploration of the "Open University" approach and the new technologies.

9. Installation of a program budgeting system for the University.

10. Re-examination of the Columbia Point construction plan, to develop the soundest educational approach to the development of facilities for the future Boston campus.

11. Initiative toward greater inter-institutional cooperation and coordination.

Some of these items for priority action will cost money. Some will not. Others may save money ultimately. The action required to pursue this eleven-point immediate agenda will have to be taken in various quarters: some by the President and Trustees, some by the faculty, students, and campus administrators and some by the elected officials of the Commonwealth.

Insofar as this agenda requires funds, we hope that action need not await fiscal 1973, i.e. that by reprogramming 1972 funds the President and Trustees will be able to start initial planning and hiring on a number of these points. Insofar as the agenda depends on faculty and other on-campus discussion and action, we hope that the report will stimulate that, and that it will proceed expeditiously.

We think these eleven points do constitute a set of priorities. Beyond them we suggest no detailed calendar of implementation. We believe that all of our recommendations are important, that all can be pursued as the decade unfolds, and that all can be implemented by 1980.

If our recommendations are implemented, the University of 1980 will have a full diversity of backgrounds in its student body, including students of all ages. Students will not longer be expected to enter at age 18 or never. There will be no fixed timetable within which a degree is to be earned, and part-time study will be encouraged, as well as time off for students to work and do community service. Academic programs will stress professional skills in conjunction with the liberal arts in new combinations. Learning and research will take place both on and off campus: in the classroom and the laboratory, in the field, and in clinical situations. Teaching will be carried on through lecture and group discussion, through experience, through packaged materials, and through electronic communication. As a consequence, the University will have many faces, some in the form of campuses, some storefront, some not associated with any building. The University and the Commonwealth will be intertwined--for learning, for research, for service. Learning will be organized along problem-centered lines as well as those of disciplines, and student self-inquiry will be encouraged by teachers from broad arenas of experience. The University will be one among many sources of post-secondary credentials. Institutions of higher education will offer many joint programs, and extensive sharing of faculties and facilities will occur.

We're Open Tonight Till Midnight

SALE TODAY ONLY

Records Tape Recorders Components

Columbia and Epic Records

SALE 7.54

SALE 4.54

SALE 7.48

SALE

All Records Shown

D 5.98 List 3.74

David Clark HEADPHONES

Model 100	$50 value	$35
Model 250	$34 value	$24
Model 200	$29 value	$21
Mode! 300	$21 value	$15

AIWA Tape Recorders

TP742 Portable Cassette Recorder 29.88

TP Portable Cassette Recorder with AM/FM Radio 24.88

SAVE $100

on a KLH Stereo System KLH 20FM was $399.95

NOW 299.95

DUAL TURNTABLES

Dual 1215 with Base and Pickering Phase IV ATE Cartridge $150.40 value — Sale $99.50

Dual 1218 with Base and Pickering Phase IV AME Cartridge $200.40 value — Sale $139.50

Dust Cover for 1215 or 1218 — $9.95

Sale Friday, Dec. 17 9:30 a.m. to 12 midnight at

THE LISTENING POST

25 So. Pleasant St., Amherst

186 Main St., Northampton

I Was A Teenage War Lover

A Vietnam Vet Tells His Story

PHILADELPHIA (LNS)--To be thought of as a liar, a coward, and a traitor is probably the most painful and humiliating experience a person can be subjected to in his life. At the very least, it isn't fun. I know I get called these names often. I am known in my neighborhood as a radical punk, a disrespectful, unpatriotic, pinko turncoat. I am a Vietnam Veterans Against the War.

I wasn't always against the war. As a matter of fact I used to be a flying hawk! The change I went through was monumental, but change I did.

I was born and raised in Tioga, a white working class neighborhood and went through twelve years of Catholic education. I hung out on the corner, drank, and got into fights.

Like the rest of the guys I listened to my father's war stories, watched "Combat" and saw every John Wayne movie ever made. By the time I reached my senior year in Cardinal Doughterty I was trying to decide which branch of the service to enlist in. It was my intention to prove to my family, my friends, my girl, and the whole damned world that I was patriotic, wild, and had guts.

I also wanted the GI Bill so I could put myself through college, something my family could never do. Two weeks after graduating from high school I enlisted in the Marine Corps.

My first impression of boot camp was, if there was ever a hell on earth, this was it. I struggled through 19 weeks of basic training and graduated with the Senior Drill Instructor still not knowing my name. This was good; I had played it safe.

Through the rest of my training preparing me for Vietnam, there were good times and bad times, but I recall wondering why they were sending us to Vietnam. Of course, I knew all of the reasons that they had taught us; I had them memorized. "We are protecting our country." "We are helping to stop the spread of communism." "We are helping the Vietnamese people."

Although I knew all of this, I still wondered why we always called them "gooks", why old people and kids were to be considered suspect or enemy, and why did my instructors hate these people so much? They kept stressing "survival" and I wanted to survive so I figured that was it. Besides, who was I to doubt my government?

In the late part of February, 1968, I landed in Vietnam. My unit was a "grunt" company, but I couldn't join it right away because it was busy being mauled in Hue City. I wasn't encouraged.

The unit returned to the rear area in early March and for the next 11 months I went with them to Khe San, Con Thien, Quang Tri, An Hoa, Hoi An, and countless provinces that I never knew the name of. I was shot at, mortared, rocketed, napalmed, ambushed, starved, cut, horny, lonely, and scared, just like every other grunt. Also, like every other grunt, I shot at, kicked, spit at, threw C-rations cans at, fucked, and hated the Vietnamese people.

In March 1969, I was finally flown back to "the world". I was home! I didn't dig telling war stories but people were always pressuring me to tell them (in 225 words or less) what it was like in Vietnam. On several occasions I attempted to tell them but I soon found out that they never really wanted to hear it in the first place. They liked the stories about the patrols and fire-fights, but whenever I would begin talking about how we treated the Vietnamese they would ask me to stop, saying that it was making them sick. I sometimes think they thought I was some kind of an animal.

During my remaining time in the service my older brother wrote many letters to me. I respected him a lot, but he was starting to get on my nerves with his anti-war talk. I mean, after all, he knew I killed those "gooks" so he could go to college.

But the letters made me think about my experiences in Vietnam. I began wondering how the Vietnamese were threatening Philadelphia, or Los Angeles, for that matter. The Vietnamese I saw seemed only interested in selling me a Coke for a dollar, stealing my watch, or getting the Marine Amtracks out of their rice-paddies. I began wondering how we are stopping Communism when the Vietnamese seemed less concerned with "Communism" than getting the Americans to go home. I began wondering how we were helping people by spitting on them, killing their chickens, burning their homes, and sometimes killing them. But I was safe now, and, besides, the President was starting to withdraw troops. The war was ending.

In May of 1970, just three months after my discharge from the Marine Corps, Cambodia was invaded. I couldn't believe it! I was so pissed that I wrote a long letter to the President asking him why he gave such a ridiculous order. Didn't he know how many guys would be killed in that operation? I also told him I was a Vietnam Veteran.

I sent copies of the letter to both Senators Scott and Scheiker. A few days later four kids were killed at Kent State because they thought the order was stupid and tried to tell someone about it. I was shocked! Two of them were girls!

About two weeks later the replies to my letter arrived. Senator Scott said he was glad to hear I was a veteran, but he agreed with the President. Senator Schweiker said he opposed the invasion but couldn't do much about it.

Former Attica Inmate Reveals Murder Of Melville

ATTICA, NY (LNS)--According to a recently-released Attica inmate, Sam Melville was murdered while he was waiting to get into the hospital after Attica had already been taken. Melville pleaded guilty to the 1969 New York City bombings which included the Whitehall Street Induction Center, United Fruit Company, the Marine Midland Grace Trust and others.

The inmate, who wants to remain anonymous so he won't lose his parole, said that he saw Sam after the recapture and that at that time he only had leg wounds. Sam died of gunshot wounds that went up through his chin and through his neck under his chin.

"He could barely walk," the former inmate said. "I saw him leaning against a wall...I heard he had been dressing the wounds of other prisoners before he was taken away."

He saw Sam again, on a stretcher supposedly being carried to the prison hospital in A yard.

"...his left arm was hanging out of the stretcher and his right arm was in. His body was covered up to his chest and there were no visible wounds. He lifted his head a few times, twisted his body on his side and readjusted his blanket. He seemed to be all right."

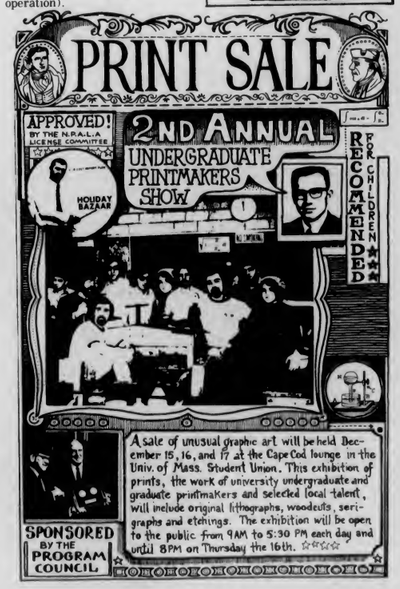
According to the National Lawyers Guild which is representing all the Attica inmates, they have six or seven other statements from inmates who say they saw Sam alive after the massacre. Several other inmates also say they saw Elliot (L.D.) Barkeley and Thomas Hicks alive after the invaders had retaken the prison (both are officially listed among the victims of the recapture operation).

"If anybody was respected as a revolutionary, whose politics were always clear, and who could talk to other people, it was Sam," said one lawyer.

In fact Sam's was the first death which was announced. Deputy Corrections Commissioner Walter Dunbar passed out a printed press release with a picture of Sam right after the "mop up" operations. At the time, officials claimed that he had been gunned down while sprinting across the prison yard carrying bombs he had made.

The former inmate who described seeing Melville alive also mentioned that the ambulance drivers who took wounded to the city hospitals were "inconsiderate and slow."

"I saw one driver get out of his ambulance after they loaded two wounded prisoners in it. He went to the Salvation Army truck and got coffee and donuts and stayed there for 15 or 20 minutes."



Only seriously wounded prisoners were taken to the Buffalo hospitals even though the prison hospital contained only about 50 beds

...

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — Nathan Gorenstein
BUSINESS MANAGER — James Gold
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Gib Fullerton
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR — Ann Gurnett
NEWS STAFF — Don Saint Pierre, Nathan Gorenstein
SPORTS — Bob Medeiros
DARKROOM — Gary Alpaugh
EDITORIAL — David Williams
AD LAYOUT — Person or Persons Unknown

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

"Brother, It Happened Over Here Long Ago"

"Principled" American Politics

By TOM MORIARTY

Yesterday's Collegian carried a letter epitomizing precisely the vacillating, hypocritical politics of this year's capitalist messiah, George McGovern. In attempting to defend McGovern's voting record, Reid Fishman ran up against the contradictions and inconsistencies that disgust an ever growing number of Americans. The leaflet referred to by Mr. Fishman was printed by the Socialist Workers Campaign Committee, distributed on this campus by the USA, and we stand behind it. But you need believe neither Mr. Fishman nor myself. All information on that leaflet was taken from the Congressional Quarterly, and can be checked.

Strangely enough, Mr. Fishman's letter itself sufficiently indicts McGovern's voting record. Bill S-665: Mr. Fishman states that McGovern voted for this Defense Dept. procurement, research, and development, and construction bill, but that "Nowhere does this bill state that this money would be used in Vietnam." Why then, Mr. Fishman, do you in your next sentence quote two portions of that bill that state "Congress supported '(1) persons trying to bring about an honorable settlement of the Vietnamese war, and (2) the convening of an international meeting to plan an end to the Viet Nam conflict.'" In the first place, what are these statements doing in such a harmless Defense Dept. procurement bill? In the second place the term "honorable settlement" is an ugly echo of the Nixon administration policy to maintain U.S. imperialism in S.E. Asia. And thirdly, we can, if we try, recall "an international meeting to plan an end to the Viet Nam conflict." It was held in Geneva and it planted the seeds that have flowered in S.E. Asia for the past 15 years.

Mr. Fishman calls S-665 "an average defense appropriations bill." Is that the kind that maintains American military presense in nearly 3000 bases around the world? Or is that the kind that supplies the dictatorships of Pakistan, Spain, Greece, Brazil, Guatemala, South Vietnam and our other allies with the arms needed to suppress popular movements? Exactly what kind of "average" bill was it Mr. Fishman? Mr. McGovern?

Knowing full well the purpose served by the draft, George (amnesty for draft resisters) McGovern voted to extend the draft for two years. This being defeated, McGovern voted in favor of extending the draft for four years. If any of your friends were drafted and later killed or maimed in S.E. Asia, try not to think about them as you ring doorbells for George McGovern.

H.R. 18707 was a bill allotting $71,886,893,000 for "Defense." S-917, the "Omnibus Crime Bill" has all of the noxious provisions listed by Mr. Fishman, and more. Even if McGovern were absent (check the Congressional Quarterly) when these bills were put to a vote, is that something about which a presidential candidate should boast? Would McGovern duck such vital issues of record because the political repurcussions might damage his career? Are these the principled politics to which the American people are entitled?

In the end Mr. Fishman, you, as well as McGovern himself, will have to do more than merely say he is against the war, especially when his record states differently. Equating the defense policies of McGovern with those of Linda Jenness and the Socialist Workers party was a slander not lost on the university community. The program of the SWP is continually counterposed to that of the capitalist parties (read the back of the leaflet you criticized). Our politics are clear, contrary to McGovern's. And finally, when examining the policies supported by George McGovern, Mr. Fishman's demand for a "civilized" campaign on the part of the SWP rings hollow and cynical.

Tom Moriarty is a member of the Amherst YSA

Meanwhile...

Muskie Seen Far Ahead

WASHINGTON - Long, long ago, in the British constitutional dissensions just before World War I, the House of Lords was accurately described as "Mr. Balfour's poodle." Mr. Balfour, of course, was the British Tory leader of that era, who floated in the whirlpool of dissension like a conservative but pliable piece of seaweed.

It would be unkind, indeed quite inaccurate, to call Sen. John Tunney of California the "poodle" of Sen. Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts. But it is certainly true that this handsome, hard-working senator has never diverged, by so much as a micromillimeter, from the Kennedy line on any question on record.

In consequence, a lot more attention should certainly have been given to Sen. Tunney's ringing, elaborately publicized but inadequately noticed endorsement of Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine. To begin with, the Tunner-Muskie endorsement set off immediate local repercussions.

The other liberal Democratic senator from California, the hard-jogging, painfully virtuous Alan Cranston, instantly called Sen. Muskie as soon as he got advance news about Tunney. This was some time before Tunney appeared on television, showing all his shining teeth, to say that he was for Muskie all the way.

Cranston Position

Sen. Cranston graciously intimated that he, too, would like to come out for Sen. Muskie--but at a very modest price. He wanted, in fact, to be named chairman of the Muskie slate of California delegates.

There was a Muskie-Cranston summit meeting just before the Muskie-Tunney television show. Sen. Muskie told his California colleagues that he would like to have him as co-chairman. The Cranston shoe, more saturated with high-mindedness than a normal shoe with shoeblacking, therefore remains to drop as these words are written.

These developments in California nonetheless make a political point that no one seems to have made. Sen. Muskie has, alas, paid enough blackmail to the ultra left-wing Democrats not to drive them up the wall. As a solid, decent obviously good man, he does not drive the centrist Democrats up the wall either.

He is not merely the front-runner. Barring cruel accidents in the crazy primaries, Muskie is so far ahead that the others, at the moment, can hardly see him for the dust. Sen. Henry M. Jackson nearly gambled very high in New Hampshire--which just might have changed everything. But it was a 1-to-4 shot. So "Scoop" Jackson is pinning his hopes on Florida--which is unlikely to change anything much.

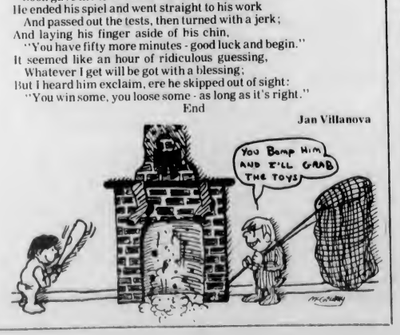
Sen. Jackson's decision to duck the high gamble in New Hampshire was really a decision that he did not want to spend 25 to 30 days trudging through the snow, effusively shaking the hand of all the tiny band of New Hampshire's voters in the Democratic primary. This New Hampshire primary is a comedy, invented by the media. Yet Jackson's decision may still be remembered as the turning point.

This is because of its reported effect on Sen. Kennedy, and through Sen. Kennedy, on Sen. Tunney. One may be certain that Sen. Kennedy would have reacted differently--for he is a very shrewd politician--if he had thought there was an outside chance of a major upset in New Hampshire.

Bandwagon Leap

That question has already been settled, however. Meanwhile, there was Sen. Kennedy's loyal friend, Sen. Tunney. There had been an abortive move to put together a Tunney-as-favorite son (and therefore pro-Kennedy) instead urged Sen. Tunney to leap athletically into a prominent place on the Muskie bandwagon.

Sen. Kennedy genuinely means that he does not want the Democratic nomination in 1972. He will sign the necessary affidavits taking his name out of the necessary primaries. After masterminding Sen. Tunney's decision for Muskie, there is only one more thing Sen. Kennedy can do. He can announce for Muskie himself.



Such an announcement is unlikely because of the divisions in the Kennedy camp. In Sen. Kennedy's entourage, many are fatally fascinated by the Democratic Party's left-wing fringe--though this is by no means true of the senator. But what has happened is still a very major signal.

Reprinted from the Hampshire Gazette
12/16/71

Christmas Poem

'Twas the night before Finals, when all through the school
Not a student was cramming, not even a fool;
Books were half open by the window with prayer,
In hopes that the teachers would somehow be fair;
The students were wasted all snug in their beds
While visions of passing danced in their heads;
But me in my skivies, and I in my vest,
Had just blown my brains for the ultimate test -
When out in the hall there arose such a clatter,
I sprang from by bunk to see what was the matter;
Away to the door I flew like a fly
And opened it slightly to ascertain why;
The light on the breast of a girl that I know
Made it perfectly clear how the whole thing would go.
When what to my wondering eyes should appear,
But one of her friends and a six-pack of beer.
It came without warning; it happened so quick,
I knew in a moment it must be a trick.
More rapid than eagles the evening got tight;
My conscience was heavy, but the scene wasn't right.
"Now History, now English, now Anthro and Psych,
On Physics, on French for the rest of the night;
To some other room, in some other hall,
Now dash away both of you, dash away all
As my luck would have it, the big day arrived.
When I meet with an obstacle, grossly contrived;
So up to the building I crawled feeling blue
With a head full of facts and a pencil or two;
And then in a twinkling, I entered the class,
Sick to my stomach and beat to my ass.
As I draw in my fact and was turning around,
Into the room the professor was bound;
He was dressed quite as usual to blend with the crowd,
But his manner of being was pretentious and loud;
A bundle of tests he had stuffed in his sack.
And I knew then and there, he could not win me back.
His speech, how it bored us; his jokes, only fair -
He tried very hard, but I just wasn't there.
And his little droll mind, with hang-ups complete,
Hashed over the rules and why not to cheat.
The stump of a ciggy he held in his teeth,
And the smoke it encircled his head like a wreath;
He was holding his Masters and working for more,
That proved, when he talked, he was equally bored;
He was morbid and crass, a right leftist old elf,
And I burped when I saw him, in spite of myself.
A stare from his eye and a twist of his head,
Soon gave me to know I was better off dead.
He ended his spiel and went straight to his work
And passed out the tests, then turned with a jerk;
And laying his finger aside of his chin,
"You have fifty more minutes - good luck and begin."
It seemed like an hour of ridiculous guessing,
Whatever I get will be got with a blessing;
But I heard him exclaim, ere he skipped out of sight:
"You win some, you loose some - as long as it's right."
End

Jan Villanova

"BAH, HUMBUG!"

Letters To The Editor

They Got The Shot Away

To the Editor:

In the December 15, Collegian Robin Morgan is quoted as having said, "Women are always made to feel the guilt in a rape. Only 4% of all rapes are reported..." Thereafter she said something to the effect that a confirming witness was necessary to prove rape and that this was usually only a friend of the rapist (who presumably would perjure himself).

In trying to understand Miss Morgan's views I am unable to comprehend her decision to state the law concerning rape prosecutions in a way that appears calculated to discourage women on this campus from complaining when and if it occurs to them.

The law in Massachusetts at least, does not require an eyewitness extraneous to the rape in order to prosecute and gain a conviction. The law does require corroboration of rape, which would appear reasonable, even to Ms. Morgan. Corroboration may be by eyewitness, of course, but is most often the testimony of a doctor who has examined the victim shortly after the attack. A doctor can ascertain two important elements of rape: intercourse and forcible entry by examination.

If the esoteric definition of rape offered by Miss Morgan is the only one she accepts, then the law is clearly not in point. In a case such as she relied on, "rape is any time sexual intercourse occurs when women don't initiate it out of true love and desire" there would be no possible utility in seeking a confirmatory witness since only the women's personal thoughts would determine the crime and no conceivable proof could be used in defense, if indeed there were any with which to prosecute.

Those women on this campus who feel that they have a complaint for rape and for which there is no additional witness save the rapist and his friend, may choose to rely upon the present laws by calling the police and going to the infirmary, in either order. The doctor's testimony and the woman's own testimony are usually sufficient for conviction if a rape occurred.

Richard M. Howland
General Council

Dumb Ol' MDC

To the Editor:

On Monday December 6, 1971, the Collegian carried a story on the proposed by-law which would allow for the President of the Graduate Senate to be paid beginning July 1, 1972. We are concerned however that that the Collegian does not seem to care about carrying the story that the by-law was enacted, and that a subsequent resolution to pay the present President a reduced amount was passed at the December 13, 1971 meeting of the Graduate Senate. Although we hope that our constituency will learn of the enactment of these items through their respective representatives, we are somewhat dismayed that the Collegian did not respond to our request for someone to be present at that meeting so that the story would have more immediate circulation nor to the fact that I called in the information the following morning, December 14, 1971. No news may be good news to some, but the Graduate Senate has a policy of open disclosure to all constituents on all matters, and the lack of interest on the part of the Collegian staff toward graduate students interferes with the implementation of this policy.

Veda B. Ross
President, Graduate
Student Senate

Impetuous Youth

To the Editor:

Upon reading the article, "A Prickly Affair", by Ann Gurnett on yesterday's editorial page, I wondered whether or not I had missed one of Bob Corry's candid and interesting letters. To my shock and dismay, I found that the letter that Miss Gurnett was referring to was on the letters page. This aroused my curiosity to such an extent that I proceeded to the Collegian office. Upon questioning one of the staff I was surprised to find out that Miss Gurnett is a member of the Collegian.

I questioned her on her use of unfair tactics to support her position. Am I to understand that this is Collegian policy to ridicule one's point of view if it does not conform to their own? Miss Gurnett also stated that the reason she put the article in was that enough people were aware of the incident in the cafeteria. I didn't realize that the majority of 20,000 students frequented the Hatch. In any event, are we as students and supporters of the paper to allow these inequities to exist? I wonder if Miss Gurnett accorded Mr. Corry the access of her article before publication.

Ron Watt

Stupid Crummy MDC

To the Editor:

Like many others on campus, I have at various times relied on the Daily Collegian as a means to communicate with people on campus. Since I joined the university three years ago, the Collegian has never failed to publish stories I sent to it and to print them in their entirety. This perfect record ended with the December 15 issue of the Collegian.

Under the caption "Studies Exchange Underway", you printed some but not all of a story on our new student exchange program with the University of Keele in England. While it was not essential to the story to include the paragraph describing the close student-faculty contact at Keele, omitting where students interested in the program obtain more information and where they apply was a major gap. Students should apply at the International Programs Office, 239 Whitmore, and soon. And, another omission, the basic cost of participation excluding international travel is the same as a year at the Amherst campus.

Barbara B. Burn
Director
International Programs

Good For Nothing MDC

To the Editor:

I think it somewhat strange that criticisms of a student tax-funded convention in which seven Student Senators took part last summer have graced the MDC's editorial pages twice this week.

Yet, no mention has been made of the two student tax-funded Collegian automobiles that have been greatly damaged and/or totalled within the past six months during the staff's various "business" trips.

Out of the $1400 of student money for last summer's NSA Convention came the formation of a permanent Women's Committee of the Student Senate and a Nader-style Public Interest Research group (WMPIRG) with almost 20 working members.

Out of over $5000 of student money spent on Collegian cars has come two vehicles' destruction and the request for a third automobile.

Denise Magnell
Student Senate

Editorial Points

Poor Richard's hit the newsstands a little bit late last night, thanks to a little bit of ineptitude along the way. Though we wanted you all to have it as you dug into that terrific dining commons Christmas dinner, we hope you will pick it up today and take a look at it.

*****

It's too bad this fascist-feminist feud didn't flare up while the Yahoo people still had some copies of Screw around. Self-abuse can work wonders if you're feeling mean. Gives you a chance to put some of that energy that you can't seem to handle too well to good use. Just a suggestion, folks. Let's keep it clean. Remember our purpose here.

An Angela Primer

To the Editor:

Angela Davis is a twenty-six year old Black woman, Communist, and leader in the struggle for Black liberation. The case against Angela Davis originally began while she was a philosophy professor at U.C.L.A. Though her classes were attended by close to 2,000 students the California Board of Regents voted for her dismissal. She was fired because of her membership in the Communist Party. This was done despite opposition from her colleagues, the faculty and the students at U.C.L.A. Even when the decision reached by the Board was overturned in court, the Regents still refused to reinstate her.

Angela Davis is now accused of murder, kidnapping and conspiracy in connection with the Marin County Courthouse "shootout" at which she was not present. The charges of murder and kidnapping are not separate from, but only a continuation of, the persecution which Angela faced because of her political acitivities and beliefs. Included in the indictment against her are references to her "overt" political acts. These acts which were cited were her work in the defense of the Soledad Brothers and her visits to George Jackson before he was shot down while in prison.

Angela Davis is being accused of a crime she was nowhere near. She is accused of kidnapping and she held no one, and she is being accused of murder when she did not fire a gun. The dead from the Marin County "shootout" were in a van that was fired upon by prison guards outside of the van. Besides the false and trumped-up charges which have been placed against her, Angela was extradited to California unconstitutionally.

The reactionary forces of Reagan and Nixon have done their best to railroad Angela by preying upon the racism and anti-communism which exists in this country. They promoted fear in the press by labeling her "armed and dangerous" and by placing her on the most wanted list of the F.B.I. And it is racism which is preventing her release on bail. There can be no other explanation because she meets all the necessary criteria for bail.

On Dec. 2 at 4 a.m., Angela was taken from her cell, handcuffed, driven for three hours in a roundabout route to the Palo Alto Holding Facility. Her cell is 6*8, it is in the basement, and until a few days ago there was no heat and there is no natural light.

Her defense had made motions to have the trial switched to San Francisco. These motions were denied and the judge switched the case to Santa Clara County. The judge was not ignorant to what he was doing, knowing full well that the population of Palo Alto where the trial is to be held is mainly white and upper-middle class. It is a town surrounded by defense industries and Blacks are only 2% of the population. This maneuver, like everything else in the repeated frame-up, is all a part of the conspiracy which is being waged against Angela because she is a Black woman and a communist.

The Young Workers Liberation League will have tables set up this week in the Campus Center. Bail for Angela must be granted, her trail must be transferred to San Francisco. Petitions may be signed for her defense at the table, and money will also be collected and given to the Emergency Defense Committee to Free the Bay Prisoners.

Margie Levenson
Young Workers
Liberation League

Misleading Drivel

To the Editor:

In reply to Mr. Spinn's article, Here Comes The White Knight, I wish, with a clear conscience, to answer a question posed to me. Specifically, it went: "Walter, how can you with a clear conscious produce your misleading drivel while receiving six University credits for it? I hate to see holy crusaders pimp themselves out." For Mr. Spinn's information, I am not receiving six University credits for it. To set the record clear, I am presently taking eighteen credits: History 301-Argentina, History 316-Colonial History, History 325-Cons. & Reform, History 334-Diplomatic History, Public Health 123, and General Business 270.

I was considering the possibility of Independent study for next semester concerning University problems, but that is still in the future. I wish that, in the future, Mr. Spinn would confirm his source of information, when talking about my courses at the University. If anyone would like to certify this information, concerning my present courses, I will be glad to accompany him to the Registrars office, to show them my present schedule.

In my article of 12-14-71, entitled Vacation Bonanza, I did not question the existence of the budget of the Senate Social Action Committee, but the upholding of this fund by the Senate. I was asking, and still am asking, how does the Senate justify this expenditure of over $1400, for seven student Senators?

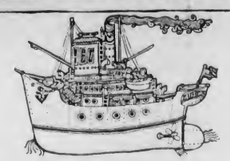
Mr. Spinn states that "the average student will stand to save several dollars in out of pocket expenses because of the information brought back from the Conference." Why then, Mr. Spinn, did Mr. Sandwen move to go into Special Business for a UMass student delegation to the National Student Association at one of the Student meetings. "I quote an article by Hugh Owen entitled NSA Delegation Funds Upheld in the MDC back on November 4, 1971: "Sandwen argued that the NSA conference was a waste of time and student money, especially when the money could go to much worthier causes. He also cited that the students were only going on a "junket" and not really obtaining any worthwhile information at the conference."

The only way to get to the dollars, Mr Spinn, is to add up the pennies (17¢).

Walter E. Cronin

Copping A Page

A collection of photos by Gary Alpaugh. Hope you enjoy them.



AMHERST Cinema
Wed. to Tues.
Eves: 8:00
An epic drama of adventure and exploration!

MGM presents a STANLEY KUBRICK PRODUCTION 2001 a space odyssey
BARGAIN NITES
Mon. - Tues.
All Seats $1.00

The Scupper's Coming
...but before it does, we would like to wish everyone a MERRY CHRISTMAS
CALIFORNIA - NEVADA - MASSACHUSETTS

You Are What You Eat

NEW YORK (AP) — El Morocco, one of New York's top night clubs for decades, has been revived by a group of millionaires, actors and titled Europeans, swash with nostalgia and eager to beat high restaurant tabs.

The club now is a private, nonprofit discotheque-restaurant. It boasts a membership of 1,000, including designer Emilie Pucci, actory Gregory Peck and Mrs. Charles Payson, owner of the New York Mets.

"We are, all of us, young as well as old, tired of being charged ridiculous and ruinous high prices," wrote the Duke of Windsor, an honorary member in congratulations.

However, members are also enthusiastic because they remember the 30 years from 1931 to 1961 when the owner, the late John Perona, made the old El Morocco a gathering place for "people of accomplishment"–South American tycoons, New York society figures, actresses and writers.

Jacqueline and Aristotle Onassis turned up as guests at a preview dinner for the Board of Governors on Wednesday. The room was decorated "nail for nail" like the original El Morocco: the famous zebra-striped banquettes, blue ceiling, white palm trees and twinkling stars on the ceiling. It officially reopened Thursday night.

Mrs. Onassis was short on nostalgia for the old El Morocco.

"I haven't been here very often," she said. However, the late President Kennedy often visited El Morocco in the 1950s. And Onassis, himself, was once a judge at a Sunday night dance contest, according to Toots Shor. When asked about it, Onassis just laughed and shook his head.

Despite all the nostalgia, one-third of the members are under age 35. They can remember only back to the 60s when El Morocco changed hands several times.

In 1964, it featured an LBJ DISCOTHEQUE. In 1968, there was a McCarthy for President room. The night club finally closed in 1969.

Members pay a $500 initiation fee and $200 a year in dues. Dinner will run $8.75 for one person, without wine. Inexpensive sandwiches will be served. Music is recorded, not live.

The board of 24 governors will serve without pay. They include author Stephen Birmingham, designer Bill Blass, the Earl of Mornington who is the great-great-great grandson of the Duke of Wellington, and Jerome Zerbe, original photographer at the old El Morocco.

Collapse Indictments Made

BOSTON (AP) — Twenty-three indictments, 16 of them for manslaughter, were handed down Thursday by a Suffolk County grand jury investigating the collapse of a 16-story apartment building last Jan. 25.

Four workmen were crushed to death under tons of concrete when half of the $5 million building then under construction crumbled into ruins.

Dist. Atty. Garret H. Byrne said the 16 counts of manslaughter included in the secret indictments named four individuals. Seven indictments on conspiracy charges were also handed down, he said.

The grand jury returned the indictments to Judge Lewis Goldberg after hearing 29 witnesses during four days of hearings.

Byrne said those named in the indictments included one corporate defendant but no public officials. He said the persons named were from both the United States and Canada.

Byrne's office said warrants for the arrest of those named were being prepared, but that all of them would be given a chance to surrender for arraignment.

The building was owned by 2000 Commonwealth Avenue Association Trust. The contractor coordinating construction for the trust was Toulon Construction Co. of Montreal, a spokesman for the trust said following the collapse.

George Michaels of Newton, a lawyer for the trust, said at the time the building was designed by the architectural firm of Webb, Serafa and Menkes with offices in Montreal, Toronto and Paris.

Muskie Campaigns In N.H. Makes Case On Own Merits

BEDFORD, N.H. (AP) — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie (D-Maine), said Thursday the Nixon administration was wrong not to have expressed publicly "our moral outrage" against tactics used by the Pakistani government in East Pakistan.

In a news conference where he drew the support of Sen. Thomas J. McIntyre (D-N.H.), in his bid for the Democratic presidential nomination, Muskie said, "By pursuing quiet diplomacy, we abandoned the restraining and inhibiting influence we might have had with a statement of public outrage.

"I think that by failing to do that, we may have contributed to the escalation of pressures which finally prompted India to move," Muskie said.

Muskie, making a one-day visit to the state with the nation's first presidential primary, declined to say how big a margin he would need in his neighboring state's primary to consider it a significant victory.

"The test I've always used is that the fellow who gets the most votes wins," he said. "I haven't seen any other test referred to in the New Hampshire statutes relating to the primary...All they say is you need a plurality..."

"I'd be happy with 100 percent. I'd be happy with anything," he said. "I've never been unhappy with a victory in my life. I won one election by one vote when I ran for the legislature, and I was delighted to get by with one vote."

McIntyre, who indicated he would let his support rest with the endorsement and not actively campaign for Muskie, also declined to make any predictions.

"You're looking at the guy who said he'd never make a forecast of percentages again as long as he lived," McIntyre said. "I don't know if you fellows lived through my 10 percent for Gene McCarthy, my 20 percent for Gene McCarthy and then, on election night, saying, "We'll be doing good to hold him to 35 percent."

He referred to the former Minnesota senator who won the majority of the state's national convention delegates from former President Lyndon Johnson in the 1968 New Hampshire primary.

Muskie was asked about Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty's contention that the senator is "naive" on foreign affairs.

"If that means I'm a clean American boy, that's all right," Muskie said. "I'm never sure what Mr. Yorty means by his rhetoric. It seems to be suited to some of his past experience more than it is to northern New England. I guess I'll have to get used to it before I know how to respond."

McIntyre endorsed Muskie as "my close, personal friend and New Hampshire's good neighbor."

But he said, "Ed Muskie must make his own case in his own merits to New Hampshire."

Ride to Philadelphia Sunday or earlier or someone to hitch with-call 253-3825.

FACES OF EARTH
159 North Pleasant St.
Amherst
Next to the Post Office
Give a Pipe
Open till 10 p.m.
Mon. - Sat.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC
AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE
NOW SHOWING
Eves - 7:15-9:05
Sat-Sun- Con't.
NORTHAMPTON, MASS. 584-8435 - PARK MASONIC ST. LOT
Exclusive Area First Run Engagement
CLINT EASTWOOD

"PLAY MISTY FOR ME"
...an invitation to terror...
A UNIVERSAL-MALPASO COMPANY PICTURE · TECHNICOLOR®
MONDAY & TUESDAY Nights..BALCONY SEATS $1.

This Saturday Only
BLACK MAGIC
with Eddie Peterson
DANCING
9:30 - 12:30
50¢ COVER
at
The English Pub

sunday, dec. 19 - 6.30 p.m.
monday, dec. 20 - 6.30
at the campus center auditorium university of massachusetts

CHRISTMAS FEAST
march of the comestibles
christmas theatre
MADRIGALS AND TRADITIONAL SONGS OF CHRISTMAS
MUSICAL RENDITION OF "THE NIGHT BEFORE CHRISTMAS" charles dickens'
a christmas carol
by the LIONS SHARE COMPANY PERFORMERS
SONGS OF CHRISTMAS PRESENT
CAROLING

Bill of fare
CRANBERRY CUP - SALAD WITH ORANGES
ROAST OF BEEF - YORKSHIRE PUDDING
BAKED POTATO - GREEN BEANS WITH ALMONDS
APPLE PIE WITH HOT CINNAMON SAUCE
HOME MADE BREADS & ROLLS
TICKETS ARE $5.00 PER PERSON, $4.00 PER U.M. STUDENT,
$2.00 CHILDREN UNDER 12.
SPECIAL RATES FOR STUDENTS AND ADULTS
FOR GROUPS OF 25 OR MORE.
MRS. LOIS QURESHI 545-0418 MON. - FRI.
FOR RESERVATIONS CALL

THE RECORD SALE

AGAIN All Labels Included This Sale, This Is Not A One Label Sale. AGAIN

Noon to Midnite Friday

ALL $4.98 LP's $2.89

5.98 LP's 3.69

6.98 LP's 4.19

7.98 LP's 5.19

8.98 LP's 5.39

9.98 LP's 5.89

New Chicago 4 Record Set ... 6.89

Plus a special bin of great LP's

$1.98 each . . .

values to $6.98

All 8-Track Tapes

$4.85 each

values to $9.98

Sony Classical Reel to Reel

Immortal Series 75¢ ea.

EQUIPMENT DEALS

Sony TC160 Professional Cassette Deck $199.95

Sony TC352 Reel to Reel Tape Deck $189.95

TEAC A1230 Reel to Reel Tape Deck $349.50

Buy A Garrard SL55B Automatic Turntable with Base, & Dust Cover $70.50 and get a $50.00 Magnetic Cartridge included.

Sennheiser HD414 open aire headphone $25.95 the pair.

B & O SP14 Cartridge $29.95

Marantz 1060 Integrated Amplifier - 60 watts RMS at 8 ohms. Bass, midrange, & treble controls, tape to tape dubbing, 3 year guarantee.

Aztec Picasso Loudspeakers - 10" woofer with density loading, 6 1/2" midrange, 2x6 horn tweeter with 3/4" element. This speaker proved itself at our clinic last Saturday. 5 year guarantee.

Dual 1219 Automatic Turntable and Grado F3E magnetic cartridge ($49.95)

List Price $682.00 SALE - $490.00

Harman Kardon 230 Receiver

Aztec Du Lane Loudspeakers

Garrard SL55B with Grado F3E Cartridge

List Price $456.00

Sale - $318.00

The Best $500.00 Stereo System Available

Pioneer SX 990 56 Watt RMS Receiver

PE 2038 Automatic Turntable

EPI 100 Loudspeakers

B&O SP14 Cartridge

— The Best $450.00 System

Pioneer SA800 64 Watt RMS Amplifier

Same turntable and speakers as the $500.00 system.

AMHERST AUDIO

Well armed mothers, aren't they? The Wells Fargo on their daily visit to UMass for the bread. Note the shotgun and revolver. (MDC photo by Gib Fullerton)

Mrs. Nixon Visits The Ghetto

WASHINGTON (AP)-Mrs. Richard Nixon visited two of the shabbiest sections of Washington Thursday to laud efforts of volunteers she said "will being magic back into this country we love."

She jiggled welfare babies on her knees, helped paint a kitchen wall and was greeted at a community center by a half-dozen girls who clutched her hands, elbows, belt and jacket.

The tour was arranged by the National Center for Voluntary Action, which has opened coordinating centers in 51 cities since early 1970.

Mrs. Nixon visited the Barry Farm housing unit in southeast Washington to see a renovation project.

"This is sort of unbelievable," she exclaimed as she stepped over a threshold littered with glass and walked into the shell of a house in which plaster was ripped from the walls and the stuffing of a couch were strewn across the room.

Several houses down, a renovated house was undergoing a final sprucing up.

"This is a beautiful color," Mrs. Nixon said. "How long does it take this paint to dry?"

"About a day," said 16-year-old David Horne, a volunteer.

"So someone will have a home here tonight," Mrs. Nixon said. "You're certainly doing good. You're making people happy and that's what the world is all about."

Downstairs in the kitchen, she borrowed a long-handled paint roller and to the delight of neighbors peering through windows applied a few rows of blue paint herself.

Mrs. Nixon took the initiative in approaching the neighborhood people, both those expecting her who'd put on finery for the occasion and those caught unawares and still in hair curlers.

She became particularly entranced with 21-month-old Rolanda Bellamy, daughter of welfare parents who showed her the four-bedroom house they have occupied for little over a month.

Inside, resting briefly on the couch, Mrs. Nixon jiggled Rolanda on her knees.

Having trouble

finding something NICE and MEANINGFUL for your better half this Christmas?

FOWLER Jewelers OF AMHERST

We want BOTH of you to be happy.

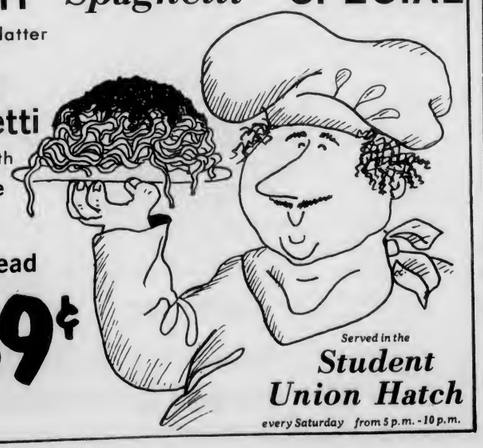
Son of Thresher Captain In Navy

BRANFORD, Conn. (AP)-The son of the man who commanded the ill-fated submarine Thresher has been nominated for the U.S. Naval Academy at Annapolis by Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn.

He is Bruce W. Harvey, son of the late Lt. Comdr. John Wesley Harvey.

The elder Harvey, a 1950 graduate of Annapolis, perished along with 128 other officers and men when the Thresher disappeared in the Atlantic in 1963.

His son, now 17, is a student at the Taft School in Watertown. He and his mother, Mrs. Irene Harvey, live here.



Mrs. Harvey called the appointment "a wonderful tribute to his father."

Bruce says he is "very happy" about the appointment and that he's interested in a Navy career. He says he wants to study oceanography and ocean engineering-but is not interested in submarines.

HATCH Spaghetti SPECIAL

Heaping Platter of Hot Spaghetti covered with Meat Sauce plus Hot Garlic Bread

ONLY 59¢

Served in the Student Union Hatch every Saturday from 5 p.m. - 10 p.m.

Women's Conference On Monogamy and Law

The women of New England will be descending on UMass this weekend to discuss such problems as alternatives to monogamy and auto mechanics.

Workshops will be held all day Saturday beginning at 10:00.

Included in the topics are: women and the law, collectives and alternatives to monogamy, media, problems with class in the women's movement, gay women, child care, and automechanics. A Karate demonstration will be given in the afternoon.

Two films will be shown in the evening. Dealing with abortion and menopause. There will also be a party on Saturday night.

On Sunday morning, there will be a discussion of the conference. There are a great number of women's groups and projects that many women are unaware of. The conference was planned to put women in contact with each other so they can call upon one another for information and support in their activities. One of the workshops will deal specifically with how to maintain communication between women in the New England regions. There will be women from various parts of New England at the conference to share their experiences.

Child care will be provided. Places for out of town women to stay will be arranged Friday night If anyone has room, she should sign up at the information table in CC 163. The workshops on Saturday will be held on the 9th floor of the Campus Center.

Muskie Happy With Help

BOSTON (AP)-U.S. Sen. Edmund S. Muskie has told Massachusetts Democratic leaders they're sticking their necks out to support his presidential quest at this time, but he's happy for their help.

The Maine Democrat met the leaders for breakfast Thursday, a day after they made public a list of Massachusetts Democrats who have formed a steering committee for his campaign effort.

Conspicuously absent from the list was the name of the U.S. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., leader of the state party and considered a front-runner for the presidential nomination despite his disavowals of candidacy.

It was Kennedy the Maine senator apparently referred to when he told the leaders he was grateful for their encouragement "especially because you are sticking your necks out before all those concerned have made their intentions clear."

Before leaving Boston for a one-day swing into New Hampshire, Muskie charged that President Nixon had fallen short on campaign promises now three years old.

More than 20,000 Americans have died in Vietnam since Nixon promised to end the war, Muskie said, and the President's plans to leave a residual force there meant continued American commitment.

On the economic front, he said Nixon was changing position "as rapidly as a weathervane at sea off the New England coast."

During the 1968 presidential campaign, the nation's unemployment stood at 3.5 per cent. Muskie said. Now it is 6 per cent and "last year for the first time in 10 years, the nation's economic growth stopped."

The senator said that if Nixon achieves his economic goals "we will have an unemployment rate...40 per cent higher than when he took office."

Learn to Drive
AMHERST AUTO SCHOOL
34 Main Street
256-6066

SANTA'S HELPER

JUST PERFECT

Doubleknit Slacks
Heavy Corduroys
Imported Sweaters and Turtlenecks
Knit Shirts & Tops
...and the area's largest selection of jeans

NICE THINGS FOR EVERY BODY

WEAR-HOUSE Male SLACKS JEANS
201 North Pleasant Street, Amherst

Plug In To The Nearest Satellite

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)-To solve a growing power crisis on earth, man is studying how to use orbiting satellites to convert the sun's rays into pollution-free electrical energy.

The Air Force, the space agency and some industrial concerns have looked into the possibility of placing a network of satellites in stationary orbits. The idea would be to have their banks of solar cells capture solar heat and transform it to electricity. Generators then would convert the electricity to microwaves, which would be beamed to an earth station for reconversion to electricity.

The studies show such a system could be developed in this country. It initially would be costly, but proponents say the eventual saving to the environment might make it worthwhile.

Peter E. Glaser of Arthur D. Little Inc., a leading research organization, said the world's supply of fossil fuel will be exhausted within a few centuries.

"This rapid exhaustion of our basic fuel can be readily understood when one considers that world demand for electrical power is doubling about once every decade," he said.

"At present, all efforts to meet the energy crisis are keyed to a single energy source-nuclear power-and to a single technology-the fast breeder reactor."

He claimed his approach is potentially harmful to the environment.

"The ecology of the earth simply may not be capable of sustaining or even tolerating the growth of power-generating capacity so long as power plants are based on the principles of thermodynamics and have to utilize the surface of the earth or its atmosphere as a heat sink or as a repository of its waste materials," he said.

That is why science is looking to the sun as a possible power source, Glaser reported.

Glaser said a stationary satellite orbiting 22,300 miles above the earth "would be exposed continually to the sun except near the spring or fall equinoxes when it would be eclipsed by the earth for a maximum of one hour, eight minutes. These short periods of nonexposure can be overcome by using at least two satellite power stations, each displaced in orbit from the other."

Solar cells have been used for years to provide power for unmanned satellites and have lasted for as long as seven years.

Glaser said that at the present cost of about $1,000 for each pound of material carried into orbit, a network of such satellites would be very expensive.

The key to developing such a system, he said, would be the space shuttle, the reuseable rocket plane which NASA is developing to operate like an airliner, making 100 or more trips into space before wearing out.

Glaser said "cost projections based on an extension of presently known technology indicate the system would generate power at two to five times the cost from competing power generating plants."

He said the price could come down as technology improves the system and depending how widely it might be used in the world.

Library Vacation Hours

Schedule of Library Hours, December 1971-January 1972

CHRISTMAS VACATION
December 22-24 (Wed.-Fri.)	8:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m.
December 25-26 (Sat. & Sun.)	CLOSED
December 27-31 (Mon.-Fri.)	8:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m.
January 1-2 (Sat. & Sun.)	CLOSED
EXAMINATION PERIOD
January 3-12 (Mon.-Wed.)	Continuous opening from 8:30 a.m., Jan. 3, through 1:00 a.m., Jan. 12.*
January 12-13 (Wed.-Thurs.)	8:30 a.m.-1:00 a.m.
January 14 (Friday)	8:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m.
INTERSESSION & REGISTRATION
January 15-16 (Sat.-Sun.)	CLOSED
January 17-21 (Mon.-Fri.)	8:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m.
January 22-23 (Sat.-Sun.)	CLOSED
January 24-25 (Mon.-Tues.)	8:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m.
SECOND SEMESTER
Regular hours resume January 26 (Wednesday)
Monday-Friday	8:30 a.m.-12:00 midnight
Saturday	8:30 a.m.-10:00 p.m.
Sunday	1:00 p.m.-12:00 midnight

Washington's Birthday and Patriot's Day Holiday hours to be announced later.

*During continuous opening, only Reserve books and level 4 study hall will be accessible from 1:00 a.m. to 8:30 a.m.

Schedule of Library Hours
December 22, 1971-January 14, 1972

Christmas Vacation
December 22-23 (Wednesday and Thursday)	All Libraries close at 5:00 p.m. at 5:00 p.m.
December 24 (Friday)	Morrill 8:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m. Physical Sciences 8:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m. All other branches closed
December 25-26 (Saturday and Sunday)	All Libraries Closed
December 27-30 (Monday-Thursday)	Labor 9:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m. Physical Sciences 8:30 a.m.-10:00 p.m. All other branches 8:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m.
December 31 (Friday)	Morrill 8:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m. Physical Sciences 8:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m. All other branches closed
Examination Period
January 1-2 (Saturday and Sunday)	All Libraries closed
January 3-13 (Monday-Thursday)	Regular hours for all Libraries
January 14 (Friday)	All Libraries close at 5:00 p.m.
Intersession
Hours to be announced.
Spring Semester
January 26 (Wednesday)	Regular hours resume

Nader Group Charges Many Die Needlessly

WASHINGTON (AP)-A Ralph Nader associate charged Thursday that at least 10,000 Americans die annually as a result of two million unnecessary surgical operations.

The victims "are not exclusively the old and the sick who would die anyway. Tragically, they often include the young and the healthy," Dr. Sidney Wolfe told the Commission on Medical Malpractice.

Wolfe, a representative of Nader's Health Research group, said the 10,000 include at least 250 victims of "unnecessary tonsilectomies and adenoidectomies, the 500 that die of unnecessary performed appendectomies and another 500 that die from unnecessary hysterectomies..."

Wolfe said the rising number of malpractice suits "offers partial testimony to the incompetence of doctors as to proper diagnosis and treatment of disease" but is only a symptom of what he called a national health care crisis.

Up to now, he said, attempts to deal with the medical malpractice question have been limited to physicians, lawyers and insurance companies.

"In the rarified atmosphere that exists when decisions affecting the public are made without significant public input, each of these professions predictably makes recommendations which serves its own interests while blaming the other parties. The public suffers," he said.

"At best, the malpractice issue can be used as a foot-in-the-door to improve quality," Wolfe said. "The medical-legal- insurance trinity must now welcome a new partner, the public."

The commission was created six months ago to study and propose solutions to the malpractice problem. Its report is due a year from now.

¼ ct. Fine White Diamond
$100.00
at Baker-Winn
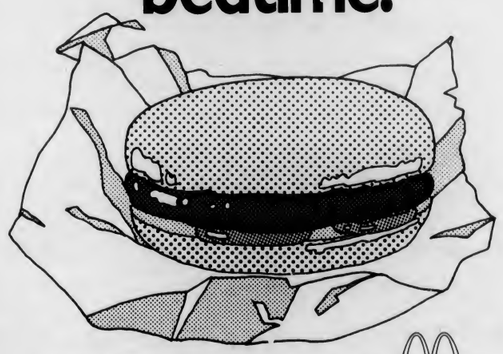
JEWELERS
"everyone's favorite jeweler"
31 S. Pleasant St., Amherst

We sell good stuff.

THE HUNGRY-U
103 N. PLEASANT, AMHERST
Italian submarine sandwiches

dig these gift jeans



Denim Jeans
Corduroy Jeans
Double Knit
Dress Flares

Always the area's largest selection.

Male
SLACKS JEANS

WEAR-HOUSE
Open Every Nite Til 9
Until X-mas

Take one before bedtime.

So your stomach won't go to bed unhappy, we stay up late. McDonald's

Open Every Night 'til 12

377 Russell St., Hadley

Bulletins

Management Club

Eighty percent (80%) of all University Students will be in direct association with the business world. The Management Club will give the student a chance to become associated with management. It will also give the individual valuable experience with job opportunities for the future. All majors will be able to reap the benefits of this club.

There are no dues required. The objectives of the club are to present a variety of guest speakers in an informal atmosphere. The speakers will be active members in the business world and the university community. In the past such encounters have resulted in prospective career opportunities without the formality of an interview.

The Management Club will help any individual with organizational problems that arise in the academic community. All interested individuals should contact the following: Donald Masson #253-2990, Steve Beckler #256-8084, Mike Cocci #665-3435, Joe Santora #665-3067.

Foreign Language

Herter Hall will be the scene of a panel discussion on student teaching in the area of foreign languages, Monday night at 7:30 in the third floor lounge.

Language majors presently student-teaching and recent graduates now teaching languages on a full time basis will be asked to discuss the following:

–problems of student-teaching –comparisons between student-teaching and "the real thing"
--the methods course in retrospect...desiderata for future methods courses –success and frustrations of the initial teaching experience

All those planning to teach foreign languages at the secondary level are urged by their departments to attend. Prospective cooperating teachers should also find this meeting to be of interest.

Project Self

Project SELF, a program of the Valley Women's Center and the UMass Division of Continuing Education, will begin the new year with a workshop January 4, 11, and 25.

Clinical Psychologist Sue LaFrance will explore "Female Identity and Sexuality," through the study of theoretical and literary works and self observation. The workshops will be from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. in the Herter Hall third floor faculty lounge.

Additional workshops will be offered in February. Registration for the January workshop is $20. Checks may be mailed to Continuing Education, 920 Campus Center, UMass, Amherst. Scholarships are available in exchange for babysitting through Lois Phillips, at 545-2596 mornings.

Modular Curriculum

The School of Education is hoping to implement a Completely Modular Curriculum (CMC) in September 1972. One of the basic purposes of the CMC is to offer undergraduates some of the same flexibility and relevance that doctoral students already enjoy. It is not another new program, but rather a modification of the existing structure, which should make the School of Education a far more livable place.

An open meeting for all undergraduates, regardless of major, who are interested in modularization at the School of Education will be held on December 20 in Room 128, School of Education, from 2 - 3:30 p.m.

Students interested in the Completely Modular Curriculum but unable to attend this meeting, should contact the Modular Credit Office, Room 227-C, 5-0944.

New Worship

Possibilities for new forms of worship will be presented in a service to be held in the Chapel of the First Congregational Church on Sunday, December 19th at 5:00 p.m.

Under the Shared Ministry, the Worship Commission of Grace Episcopal Church and the Board of Worship of the First Congregational Church are sponsoring this first Joint Innovative Worship Service. Members of local churches and friends in the community are most welcome to attend.

Further details can be obtained by contacting Mrs. Paul Eldridge at the School of Business Administration.

Financial Aid

Financial aid applications for the Summer of 1972 and the 1972-73 academic year will be available in the Financial Aid Office, Room 232, Whitmore, beginning today. Whether or not aid has been received previously, a new application must be filed each year for all Scholarships, Loans, Grants and Work Study.

The deadline for filing is MARCH 1, 1972.

Free Store

Now there is a store with no clerk and no cash register. The Free Store at the Valley Women's Center provides a place for people to pick up what they need, and drop off what they don't.

It is open Monday and Thursday nights, and Tuesday and Sunday afternoons. There are clothes, small household appliances, and some furniture, but you never know what you'll find. Call or drop by the VWC, 200 Main Street, Northampton, Massachusetts.

MDC CLASSIFIED

AUTOS FOR SALE

1964 VW Bug, rebuilt engine and front end, new brakes and master cylinder, just tuned up and oil change. $350 firm. 6-5197. tf12-17

68 Opel Rallye fastback, snowtires, 25mpg, radials. Asking $1250, Reg. 527-1528. tf12-21

1971 Fiat 850 Conv., 12,000 mi. $1650. Call eve. 253-7037. tf12-20

1963 VW Bus, not running - good for parts, 4 new tires. Leave msg., for Bill at 253-7148. tf12-20

62 VW sedan, $200, religned brakes, rebuilt engine, 253-5221 after 5. tf12-21

1965 Ford, custom 500, V8, automatic, p.s., new std. tires, excellent cond., $350. Paul Hughes 256-6800. tf12-21

1967 Mercedes 230s, 4 door, mint condition, low mileage, maroon, black interior. Asking $2,250. Phone Shelbourne 625-6656 after 5:30. tf12-20

59 VW Bus needs work $150. 253-2475 after 5. tf12-20

67 VW Squareback in excellent condition; good brakes, engine, body, rack, etc. $900. Call 584-1030. tf12-21

1963 Chevy Impala, 2-dr. hardtop, 283, V8, auto., 4 good tires, 2 new snows, good condition and reliable $225. Call 549-0848 anytime. tf12-21

68 VW, white square b., prof's commuter, 41,000 miles, ten exc. tires studded etc., 6 wheels block-heater, etc. $1485. 5-0661, 625-6484. tf1221

64 Buick Special, runs well, good tires, $150. Call Peter 549-6574. tf12-21

Internat. Metro Van, must sell quick. Call Old Weird Harold's 586-3727. tf12-22

1965 Porsche 356-c, new brakes, clutch, rebuilt engine, ski-luggage rack, elec. sunroof, 545-0329, Dick Jubinville. tf12-17

Red Porsche 1966 Radial Snow Tires AM-FM-SW, radio $1800. Call 545-2330 or 253-9690. tf12-17

1965 Olds, 442, good condition, new tires, A.T., P.S., Call 253-8876. tf12-17

65 Falcon, eng., in excel., cond., new rad., bat., starter, exhaust system, and rear snow tires. Call 617-342-0158 on Fri. or Sat. Best offer over $400. tf12-17

70 Datsun 1600 radio, heater, radial tires, trunk rack with ski adapters, grey/black top. Call 586-3249. tf12-17

66 Barracuda Fast back, 4 speed, 4 bbl carb., orig. owner. Days 545-0074, eve; 665-3547. tf12-17

67 Barracuda Fastback, exel., condition air/cond., p.s., gd. snows, 273 V8, 18-20 m.p.g. - must see and drive, Call Dave 586-1321, leave message, $1200 or b.o. tf12-21

1964 Plymouth 4-door sedan, a honey of a car, good deal at $300 (just got a new car for Xmas gift) 256-8174. tf12-17

1961 VW Sunroof, black w/black naug., interior, fiber belted tires, 67 rebuilt engine, 53 hp super clean, $525, 1-734-6563. tf12-21

1963 VW Microbus Camper, radio, gas heater, toilet, ice box, (4) new ww tires, new paint, mech exc., $950 or best offer 256-6488. tf12-21

FOR SALE

Bicycle, 10 speed, Phillips Racer $80 or best offer. Call 549-4079. tf12-20

ASTROLOGICAL BIRTH CHARTS: 11 full page complete report $10. Specify, place, month, day, yr., and time of birth. Send to David Zeno, 7 Joyce Rd., Waltham. tf12-21

Scott 382c Stereo Receiver, 30 watts/chan. rms, Garrard SL 72b turntable, both in excellent condition. Best offer. Call Rob 665-8063. tf12-17

1962 Chevy Impala convert., with new tape deck. Asking $225. King size H2O bed with liner and finished frame $40. Call Brian 584-7728 or 253-5877. tf12-21

1 pr. Rosemount Ski Boots, 6-8, sheel; 1 pr. Lange Ski Boots, size 6 1/2. Call 546-5270 (Conrad. tf12-17

1968 trk 650cc., excellent cond., price negotiable; electric range, excellent cond., 36", $40. Will deliver. Call George 323-7304 eves. tf12-17

Dual 1209 turntable w/cartridge $100. Call 253-9876. tf12-17

Gibson GB-3 Bass, good condition, with case $200. Call (617) 544-2921 collect. tf12-21

Snow tires 165-14 Semperit Radials, 1 pr. mounted on MGB disc wheels. $50. Call 549-6047. tf12-17

New and used cameras and photo equipment bought and sold. Lang's Photo 253-3148. tfsem

20-50% off stereo components, all major brands, fully guaranteed. Also! 8 track tapes $2.49. Baker Stereo, Rm. 223. Call Harry or Dave 4-5:30 p.m. Phone 546-6063. tf12-20

Tenor Sax, Selmer MKIV, good condition. Call 549-6087. tf12-17

Refrig; 2.1 cu. ft.; price-$50. Call daily after 8 p.m. 549-6097. tf12-22

(2) 13" rims for snowtires, used only 3,000 mi., like new. 5-2040 or 584-3402 Dave. 12-17

PERSONAL

Dear Weird Sisters: That's right. You heard right. The secret word for tonight is Slithering. Love, Tommy T. and Zoomer. 12-17

Tiger of the 10th: where do you think - Fire Marshall? Your S.S.B. 12-17

Diane H. in Patterson - Merry XMass from your Warm Weather Warrior -P.S. I still hate snow. tf12-20

Jim: You're the bestest buddy in the world. "Yak Tam Vicht", We Love You. 12-17

Smarty Doll - thanks for the good times this semester. It's been a lot of fun. Love Kitty. 12-17

MM - I will keep our secret. Sleep well next year. DD. 12-17

Sandy Beach leaving? Yes fans it's true! Sandy Beach and company of WKBW fame are leaving UMass. Never fear as they will return. 12-17

Happy, Happy Birthday Kevin XOXO. Liz. 12-17

Oh, Ferd! I'm gonna miss ya Ferd!! Really !!! oh, Ferd!!! 12-17

Big Ole Tarzan, 6 ft., calling 4 attractive, sensuous Jane type gals 4 swinging in der trees. Damn good food and booze. Call eve. wek. ends. Keep trying. 665-2264. tf12-22

FOR RENT

4-bedroom house excellent condition. Call 6:30-7:00 p.m. Skibiski Real Estate 584-3426. tf12-22

Avail. Jan. 1-private room with shared bath and kitch., facil., loc. on campus - lease also/unfrn. and quiet. See David -67 Butterfield Terr., eve. tf12-20

Squire Village two bedroom townhouse available Jan. 1: Call 665-3254. tf12-21

Available: bedroom in Puffton Village apt., available immediately or for second semester. Call 1-549-6864, keep trying. tf12-21

1 bedroom apartment for rent, available Jan. 1, Puffton Village. 156/month 549-6719. tf12-20

Room and board available in new house on N. Pleasant St., two minute walk from campus. Call Dana 253-9031. tf12-17

Female - free room and board, modern apt., adjacent univ., in lieu of minimal child care. 549-3653. tf12-21

One furnished room, 5 1/2 mi., from campus, kitchen privileges, utilities included. Call 586-0030, available Jan., first. tf12-21

Furnished efficiency apt. Available Jan. 15, all electric air cond., includes utilities. $130. Quabbin Village, Belchertown call 323-6376. tf12-17

Squire Village, modern 2 bdrm apt., all utilities incl. Married couples only. Avail., Jan 1. Rent $190. Call evenings 665-3218. tf12-17

2 room furnished apt., 15 minutes from Campus, avail. Dec. 23, lease until June 1, $140 includes utils. Call 247-5618 btwn. 5:00 - 7:00 p.m. tf12-17

ENTERTAINMENT

Rock Band Phoenix now available for your Xmas party. Good, hard driving, dance music. Call Carl at 253-9371 for information. tf12-17

Nothing to do on a Sunday afternoon? How about a matinee featuring Laurel & Hardy, Cartoons and many other good things? Dec. 19, 2 p.m. tf12-17

ROOMMATES WANTED

M or F, own room Puffton Village, apt., 256. Call 549-6096. tf12-21

Wanted: female to share room in 3 bedroom Puffton Apt., rent @ $55. Call 549-0456. tf12-21

Roommate wanted, male, own bedroom in 3 bedroom Puffton Apartment. Call 549-2816. tf12-21

Roommate needed to share two bedroom apt., Beacon Hill, Boston. Call 617-742-6003. tf12-22

Le Petite Prince, vouler-vous de faire connaissance avec moi? La Merrie Fleur 12-17

Roommate wanted F. to share rent with 2 other girls, own room, ranch house in Hadley. Call anytime 586-2815. tf12-17

Roommate wanted to share 3 bedroom apt., in Northampton, Walnut st., $50 per month, utilities inc. Leave note: 228 Englm. East. tf12-17

Roommate wanted to share 2 bdrm town house apt. Mt. Range, Amherst, $75/mo., all utilities includ., avail., any time in Jan. Call 256-6768. tf12-21

Roommate wanted for 3 brm in Puffton, own room, 549-6258 after six p.m. tf12-21

Female roommate wanted for Rolling Green Apartment. Call Leslie 253-5140. tf12-21

Rmte to share new 3 bdrm town house for 2nd semester, 2 miles from campus. Prefer male grad students. Call 253-2808. tf12-17

APT. TO RENT

New 2 bedrm apt., in Belchertown, w/w/carpet, air cond. Call 323-4450 after 6. tf12-21

Squire Village, 2 bdrm apart, utilities inc., available end of Jan. Call 665-2842. tf12-21

BAND AVAILABLE

Good live music for any occasion. Call "Cadance", ask for Charlie 1-634-2273. tf12-17

FREE ROOM AND BOARD

Free room and board in exchange for babysitting afternoons while mother goes to class, Jan. 1st thru Spring Semester, 586-2819. tf12-17

APT. WANTED

2 bdr. apt. wanted in Puffton Village. Call 256-6723 after six or box 166, No. Amherst. tf12-17

MT. SUGARLOAF APTS. Avail. Jan 1, lg. 2 bdrm util. included, air-cond., pool $185. Call Skibiski Realtors 253-7222, eve. 253-2626. tf12-22

Married student couple need eff. or one bedroom apt. Reasonable rent, Jan., 1st, 253-9908. tf12-17

LOST

Class ring 73, name Bruce Arthur Pronovost inside. If found contact Sam, Fraternity House 545-0845. tf12-22

Young man seeks year old German Shepard, lost, Echo Hill area, 12/9, black markings, tan socks. Reward. Call 256-8853, 16 Cranberry Lane. tf12-21

Lost in Clark Hall, Nov., 17, high school German book, important! Please call Jeff MacGray 549-6716. tf12-17

"Lost" from Herter Hall-tape cassette and recorder. Keep recorder if you must, but please return cassette to Fine Arts Council office or arrange clandestine through 5-0203. Transfer. tf12-17

FREE

Black puppy - 4 months old and housebroken. Call 549-1283 evenings after 6 p.m. tf12-17

HELP WANTED

Ex. auto mechanics and attendants, good pay and benifits. Ambers and Area (No heavy work). Call 584-3351. tf12-21

Leading newspaper needs people to distribute daily newspaper m - f on UMass Campus, 2nd semester. Apply at Collegian office.

WANTED

1 or 2 roommates wanted for spring semester in Puffton. Call Joan or Carolyn 549-6162. tf12-17

Emergency ! Lost Psych/280 Notes. Will pay for yours. Call 546-1106. tf12-17

TO SUBLET

Married couple wanted to sublet 2 bdrm furnished apt., at Cliffside, Occ. - 1/1/72, lease 'till Sept., 72. Call after 6, 665-3570. tf12-17

SERVICES

Amherst Audio services. Stereo components, tape decks for home or car. 197 No. Pleasant St. 256-8133. tf5-12

Passports & grad school pictures-24 hr. service Lang's Photo 253-3148. tfsem

PERFECT XMAS PRESENTS

Doll clothes all sizes and styles, made to order. For further info. Call 549-2662. tf12-20

Silver, gold bracelets, rings, pendants, hand embroidered handbags, merchaum pipes. 256-6689. Call - after 6:00.

RIDE WANTED

Round trip ride wanted daily from Amherst to Deerfield or Greenfield vicinity - during January. Will pay. Call 512-3198. tf12-20

Ride to Chicago or Madison, Wisc. Xmas vacation. Share gas. Call Singh 546-9930. tf12-20

ROOM WANTED

Help. Two males need one large or two bedrooms. Call 549-6650 anytime. tf12-17

TRAVEL

Bermuda from $199 or Nassau from $239 during the week of Spring Vacation. For more info call Rich Margil, 412 Dwight 545-0791. tf12-21

Ski the Alps Jan 14-24 Chamonix, France-air fare, hotels, discount lifts and lessons, last night in Paris. Contact Peggy 253-9667. tf12-23

Ski the Alps Jan 14-24 Chamonix France, air fare, hotels, discount lifts & lessons, last night in Paris $257. Contact Peggy 253-9667. tf12-23

TYPING

Typing-theses, dissertations, etc. Fast, accurate, experienced. Have Math and Chem. symbols. Call 253-3661. tf12-21

STUDENTS BOOK MATCHING

Register your book in S.U. Rm. 318. Every student with your course next semester will need your books save $ money, sell direct. tf4em.

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS

FARFISA COMBO COMPACT ORGAN. Light use (usually for jamming) top shape, reasonable. 549-6645 or 1 733-1020. tf12-17

Notices

BELCHERTOWN VOLUNTEERS
The last bus of the semester will be leaving Whitmore on Saturday at 12:45 p.m. All interested people are welcome. The bus will resume next semester.

FINANCIAL AID
Financial aid applications for the Summer '72 and the '72-'73 academic year will be available in the Financial Aid Office, Rm. 222, Whitmore, beginning today. Whether or not aid has been received previously, a new application must be filed each year for all Scholarships, Loans, Grants and Work Study. The deadline for filing is March 1, 1972.

GIRLS
Girls interested in Co-ed living. We are interested in you and your ideas. Washington Lower Co-ed Living Community. Come and join us before vacation.

HEYMAKERS SQUARE DANCE CLUB
Our monthly open dance will be held tomorrow, Saturday, from 8-11 p.m. at the Worcester Dining Commons. All the club level dancers should attend if possible.

HILLEL
Services at 7:30 p.m. in Hillel rooms. 6 candles tonight. 7 tomorrow and the last night is Sunday.

MODULAR CREDIT
Modular Credit is available to UMass students who participated in the most recent Workshop on Racism (12/7). Only for full-day participation. It is worth 4 modular credits. Come to the Modular Credit Office, Rm. 227-C, School of Ed. before Dec. 22 to fill out an appropriate form.

OVER 21 CLUB
Christmas Party tonight, 9 p.m. in Alumni Hall. Come and be Merry!

MASSACHUSETTS ALUMNI
There will be an organizational meeting--Saturday nite at 8 p.m. at Coatte Ford's 4 Squire Village, Sunderland. For info, call 665-4997.

MUSICIANS
There will be auditions for Superbad Productions in the Pierpont Main Lounge on Saturday, 1-5 p.m. For info call Melvin Hall or Michael Phillip 445, Pierpont 546-5299. (Brass, guitars, drums, keyboard.) Bring your own instruments.

STRUGGLE FOR SOVIET JEWRY
This Saturday evening, Theodore Bikel will give a free concert at a Soviet Jewry rally in Springfield. Transportation will be provided--meet at Bowker Aud. at 6 p.m. Those interested call Jeff, 6-5155 or Dov 6-4004.

WOMEN
Come to a WOMEN'S CONFERENCE...workshoos will be from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Saturday on the 9th floor of the Campus Center. There will be an introductory meeting Friday night in CC 163 at 7 p.m.

LOST
Zoology 135 textbook: Physiology of Man lost in Franklin Dining Commons yesterday. Please return it to the CC Lost & Found.

10 SSA booklets lost in Bartlett-Curry Hicks Cage Area. Bartlett 13 5-2040 or 584-3402.

Dark brown wallet, Kris Beatty. Has all ID's and other irreplaceable items of personal value. If found call 546-9238.

Tramp, 3 year old male orange cat, looks like Morris, missing from 337 Puffton since Thanksgiving. Please call 549-6786.

ENGAGEMENTS
Linda K. Gary, '74, Van Meter North to Roy V. Johnson, '73, Springfield College.

Marilyn C. Denapoli, '72, Brooks to Philip R. Cappaso, Somerville.

Elaine Chara, '73, Dickinson to Michael Darman, '71, John Adams.

Henderson Goes To Jury

FT. MEADE, Md. (AP) — The jury began deliberating Thursday the guilt or innocence of Col. Oran K. Henderson in the coverup of the My Lai massacre, admonished to "scrupulously avoid" being influenced by emotional reaction to the incident itself.

Col. Peter S. Wondolowski, the military judge, slowly read 33 pages of instructions to the seven senior officers on the jury before they retired. The length of the instructions reflected nearly four months of trial in which 106 witnesses were heard.

The jury began its deliberations at 2:25 p.m., after first requesting that it be allowed to see to prosecution exhibits, a transcript of a tape and to hear a rereading of the entire testimony of Brig. Gen. Samuel W. Koster.

Koster, who lost a star because of My Lai, commanded the Americal Division at the time of the attack.

The judge told the jurors to put themselves into Henderson's shoes, as a brigade commander, in the days of My Lai.

"The accused's conduct is not to be judged from hindsight or retrospect but from the perspective of a person in the position of the accused at the time alleged," the judge said. It was the sixth time in little more than a year that a military court has tackled a case arising out of My Lai. It also is the last.

Henderson, born in Indianapolis, began his Army career in 1941. He served in World War II, the Korean War and Vietnam and was wounded and decorated in all three.

Two of the counts against him charged dereliction of duty; another alleges he lied under oath.

WMUA

TONIGHT ON 91.1 FM:
7:00 p.m Evening News - a complete summary of the day's events with emphasis on local reporting. (30 minutes)
7:30 p.m. Radio Theatre - a half hour experimental program in radio theatre.
8:00 p.m. UJAMAA DRUM - the popular three hour black program with jazz, soul, commentary, and news from the staff of the Black Mass Communications Project.
11:00 p.m. JOHN LORING SHOW - preceded by UPI World News.
1:00 a.m. THE BEST OF SHERLOCK HOLMES - Sherlock tracks down a clever thief who thought he had found the perfect hiding place for a precious gem he had stolen.
1:30 a.m. til 3. John Loring is back with more rock, jazz, and other nice sounds.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

by SYDNEY OMARR

Libra can fool people. The gentle nature of this zodiacal sign hides the fact that Libra persons can fight when they feel the cause is right. Libra is symbolic of justice. Natives of this sign are marriage-oriented, can be extremely popular with the public and can set standards in fashion and the arts.

***

ARIES (March 21-April 19): New moon position emphasizes journeys, philosophy, your ability to develop ideas into solid concepts. Key now is to reach beyond what seems to be your limit. Spiritual adviser should be in picture.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Lunar position now accents legacies, new outlook on financial picture and relations with mate or partner. Stress thorough approach, attention to detail. Don't overlook fine print.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Spotlight now is on marriage, how you relate to public. Legal aspects of any project require special attention. Don't take persons or situations for granted. Seek expert counsel. Then you save time, money.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Dependents could surprise you. Appears to be of pleasant variety means you receive token of appreciation. If there is entertaining to do, do it at home. Include family members.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Imaginative response is a necessity. Break out of any rut. Change routine. Be with young persons. Pursue creative endeavors. Release emotions; find outlet for pent-up emtions. You will be happier.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): New moon now spotlights dealings with those who control land, property. Know what you want--time your moves, requests. Financial structure is strengthened. Others display faith in you-ultimate ability.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): New form of communication indicated with "special" neighbor, relative. Means a relationship is put to test. If it is worthwhile, necessary adjustment will occur. Otherwise, go with tide.

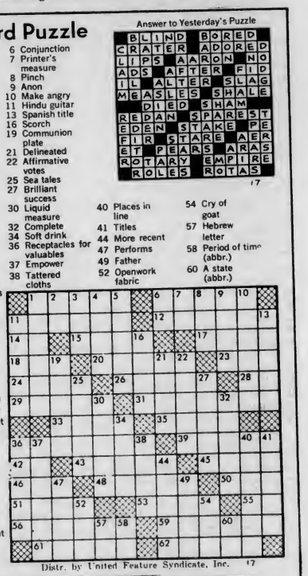
SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Extra effort now results in solid gain. Know it and act accordingly. Begin project. Financial backing is due. Obtain hint from Virgo message. Collect what you need--and make known your need.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): New moon in your sign stresses fresh viewpoint, success through creative endeavors. Take lead. Trust intuition, judgment. Expand. Refuse to be discouraged by one who is excessively timid.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): What may have been hidden now is definitely revealed. Previously darkened areas receive benefit of greater light. Mystery is solved as puzzle pieces fall together. You know where you stand.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): New, constructive alliance can be formed. Break ties which restrict. Added income indicated through occupation, professional endeavors. Gain shown and you should be optimistic. Element of timing is with you.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): What you want is available. Know this-proceed accordingly. Be ready for change of scenery. Welcome variety of experiences. Career matters accented; ambitions can be fulfilled. Open communication lines.



IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are a natural executive. You can give orders without arousing resentment. Financial position improves in later years. Social activity now is accelerated. Be selective. Have fun without wasting time.

Copyright 1971, Gen. Fea. Corp.

Crossword Puzzle

ACROSS
1 Blended fabric
6 Feeling
11 Glossy fabric
12 Vegetable (pl.)
14 Pronoun
15 Small lumps
17 Tiny opening
18 Gratuity
20 Covered with thick grasses
23 Girl's nickname
24 Wine cups
26 Peep show
28 Proceed
29 Pertaining to rates
31 Saver
33 Shield
35 Wale
36 Lawmaker
39 Mephistopheles
42 Indefinite article
43 Style of automobile
45 Tissue
46 Novelty
48 Rants
50 Edge
51 Black
53 Propel oneself through water
55 Compass point
56 Drowsy
59 Wipes out
61 Chemical compound
62 Peruses

DOWN
1 Bluebeard's last wife
2 Old Testament (abbr.)
3 Recent
4 Beloved
5 Beneath
6 Conjunction
7 Printer's measure
8 Pinch
9 Anon
10 Make angry
11 Hindu guitar
13 Spanish title
16 Scorch
19 Communion plate
21 Delineated
22 Affirmative votes
25 Sea tales
27 Brilliant success
30 Liquid measure
32 Complete
34 Soft drink
36 Receptacles for valuables
37 Empower
38 Tattered cloths
40 Places in line
41 Titles
44 More recent 47 Performs
49 Father
52 Openwork fabric
54 Cry of goat
57 Hebrew letter
58 Period of time (abbr.)
60 A state (abbr.)

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

BLIND BORED
CRATER ADORED
LIPS AARON NO
ADS AFTER PID
IL ALTER SLAG
MEASLES SHALE DIED SHAM
REDAN SPAREST
EDEN STAKE PE
FIR STARE AER
ET PEARS ARAS
ROTARY EMPIRE
ROLES ROTAS

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 17

BOOTS
for Men and Women at PRICES you can AFFORD
THE SHOE-INN in the Alley
in the Alley
BOOTS from $14
HIKING BOOTS
WORK BOOTS
LEATHERS
SUEDES
FLEECE-LINED
VIBRAM-SOLED
FRONT-LACED
SIDE-LACED
AND MORE
And More
And More
Open
Tonight
Til 9
Special SHOES
20% Off

Gymnasts Trek To Army

The UMass varsity gymnasts will open their 1971-72 E.I.G.L. season on Sat., Dec. 18 at 2 p.m. when they will be hosted by the team from Army. Although the Redmen are currently sporting a 2-0 record, their wins came against non-league opponents. The Redmen are hoping to start their league competition with a strong win over the Cadets.

Last year, in a meet held in Boyden, the UMass team scored a convincing 155-140 victory over Army. This year, the Redmen don't figure to be quite as strong on paper as last year's team. Army is also expected to be somewhat stronger than they were a year ago. Nonetheless, they should not be strong enough to overtake the Redmen.

With the loss of six experienced competitors via graduation, the Redmen squad was expected to have something of a rebuilding season, resulting in a drop in their predicted League standing. However, new leadership material on the squad has been very effective. As a result, the Redmen are now looking for a strong season in the E.I.G.L., rather than a mediocre position.

The Redmen should be able to best the service academies, Army and Navy, as well as Syracuse and Pittsburg. Temple will be a close meet, while Penn State and Springfield will be even tougher. If the Redmen are to win, then they must live up to their predicted scores. A team that is potentially good on paper cannot rely on mere potential to win the close meets.

Leading UMass against Army on Saturday will be senior co-captains Tony Vacca and Dave Genest. Both gymnasts are seasoned competitors and E.I.G.L. medalists. Other key performers will include John Calabria and Jack Berner of floor, Steve Scuderi on pommel horse, parallel bars and horizontal bar, Jay Thomsen in vaulting, Jay Aronstein and John Oliver on rings, and Tom Myslicki on horizontal bar. In addition, Rich Seikunas will bolster the Redmen lineup in the all-around event.

Following Saturday's meet, the Redmen will have more than a month layoff, as they prepare for the Penn State meet. This meet will be at home on Jan. 22, beginning at 7 p.m. in the Cage.

Girls' JV Gymnasts To Host Montclaire YMCA

By KAREN ATRAN

It's a brand new team with a brand new coach. "This is the first year the girls' gymnastic team has had a definite J.V. squad with a meet schedule separate from the varsity," explained Kitty Kjeldson, coach of the varsity team. The junior squad is coached by Miss Virginia Evans, formerly the coach of the girls' gymnastic team at Towson State College in Maryland.

Miss Evans' girls have worked hard to prepare for this week's meet against the young but talented Montclaire YMCA. Competing Saturday will be co-captains Candy Gross and Marion Kulick. Also competing will be Heidi Armstrong, Judy Cardozo, Cherie Chase, Diane Meltzer, Casey Cearnal, and Thanne Poth. Miss Evans hopes to have Marion, Thanne, and Heidi compete on all four events. All of these girls possess the ability and potential of becoming valuable varsity gymnasts in the near future.

This will be the last meet until after Christmas vacation. Both the varsity and the J.V. teams have practiced long hours since September, and will be devoting much of the intersession time to working out in the Boyden gymnasium.

Saturday the J.V. girls will try to match the varsity squad with a winning start; but they need your support. So come to the Boyden auxiliary gym at 1:00 p.m. and watch the J.V.'s prove their skill. Your admission ticket is your student I.D.; otherwise 75¢ for adults and 25¢ for children. All proceeds help send the girls to the national meet in Idaho.

Johnson House
presents
SABBATH TUESDAY
appearing
FRIDAY, DEC. 17
8:00 P.M.

The Grinch Who Stole Christmas

NEW YORK (AP) - Protests against the playing of the National Football League's post season playoffs on Christmas Day appeared to be mounting Thursday and one legislator said he would introduce a bill to prohibit any repetition in the future.

In Minneapolis-St. Paul, where the Vikings will host either Dallas or Washington on Christmas Day, the club said it had received numerous complaints, both by phone and letter, and revealed that of the 89,000 tickets offered for sale last Sunday, about 5,800 remain unsold.

In Kansas City, where the Chiefs will host either Baltimore or Miami the same day, a columnist for the Kansas City Star said NFL Commissioneer Pete Rozell was being equated in many households with the "grinch who stole Christmas." A state legislator said he would introduce a bill to ban any such games in the future.

In New York, Jim Kensil, executive director of the NFL and Rozelle's chief aide, acknowledged that the league also had received complaints but pointed out "all told we've received only about a dozen communications."

According to the playoff schedule, released at the same time as the over-all NFL schedule in late April, the playoff games were scheduled for Saturday, Dec. 25 and for Sunday, Dec. 26.

On each day, one game will begin at 1 p.m. EST, and the second at 4 p.m. EST, allowing for national telecasting of all four games.

"We've told the public they would see four games every year," Kensil pointed out. "Obviously television is involved, but we also have a commitment to our fans and we feel we have to keep it. If we played all four games Sunday people could see only two of them and they expect to see four.

"We're also contractually committed to deliver one game each day from each conference for television."

Kensil said if Monday had been a national holiday the NFL might have considered playing two games on that day "but then we probably would have had complaints from people who would be working Monday and couldn't see the games."

Asked why the two Saturday games couldn't be played the following Saturday with the championship games delayed a week, Kensil cited the fact that several college bowl games are scheduled "and we would have been in conflict with those."

Kensil also said there was a competitive factor involved in any such change-the championship games when held would have two weeks of preparation and two teams that had only had one week to prepare.

Besides the two playoff games scheduled for Christmas Day, the two scheduled for Sunday are at Cleveland, where the Browns will meet with Baltimore or Miami, and at either San Francisco or Los Angeles, with the visitors being either Washington or Dallas.

Baltimore currently leads Miami by one-half game in the race for the American Conference East title and would be at Kansas City if it wins its final game Sunday.

Bruins

The winners of the Bruin's Raffle held this week by the UMass Crew Team were announced yesterday. First prize of two tickets to see the Bruins and the Chicago Black Hawks went to Peter Torosian of Bradford, Mass. The second place winner of two tickets to see the Bruins and the Toronto Maple Leafs went to Kathleen Welch of Winchester, Mass.

Sunday Matinee
Laurel & Hardy in Abbott & Costello, Charlie Chaplin & Cartoons
"The Music Box"
Keystone Kops
50¢
2 p.m.
S.U. Ballroom
Sunday, Dec. 19

WMUA Notice

Tomorrow night beginning at 7:50 Ken Best and Marty Kelly will call all the action from Cambridge as the Redmen take on highly touted Harvard.

On Sunday night Kelly and Best will host freshmen Coach Fan Gaudette of Sport Talk at 10 p.m. on WMUA 91.1fm.

GIFT SHIRTS
Stripes — Solids
Prints — Knits
FROM $4.98
201 North Pleasant Street, Amherst

COME TO A PRE-HOLIDAY TREAT!
Fresh Roast Turkey
with Dressing
& Giblet Gravy
Whipped Potato
Buttered Green Beans
Cranberry Sauce Assorted Mints
A LA CARTE
Assorted Pies, Puddings,
Fruit, Ice Cream
Specials
Only 84¢
MONDAY 20 Dec. 71
Served at HATCH 11:30 - 2:00, 4:30 - 7:00
BLUEWALL 11:30 - 2:00, 4:30 - 6:30

Hoopsters Top Manhattan

Big Test At Harvard Tomorrow

By EARLE BARROLL

New York-Assistant basketball coach Ray Wilson made his first UMass basketball game last night at Madison Square Garden...and the Redmen didn't want him to miss anything he missed in the previous ,hree games.

The Daily Collegian SPORTS

Once again UMass saved the best for last and held on for another squeaker, 85-83 over Manhattan College in the opening game of a Garden doubleheader. (In the second game Columbia was leading by ten at the half over 19th ranked Rutgers.)

It was perhaps this New York setting that won the game for UMass. The chief product in the Redmen starting five, Al Skinner, saved this win with a 25 point-13 rebound performance which included 17 of 19 from the freeline.

"He played his best all around game of the season," said a graying Leaman. "We weren't getting many second shots on offense and if it wasn't for Al we might not have gotten any."

Manhattan was just this big...and it took a quicker effort on the part of the Redmen to come out on top. Leaman summed it up: "We were quicker than they were bigger."

Who would have thought that after six games the Redmen would be 6-0? Not Leaman. "Nobody thought we would be 6-0 at this time and I probably would be listed as one of them."

"It was a great win," he added. "Manhattan was as good a team that we played this year. They're big up front and good in the backcourt and our kids just kept battling at them...maybe they want me to get older."

And battle they did. It was an extremely rough game, a Johnny Most type "he killed him" affair.

The first half ended at 40 all with both teams holding leads at different junctions (the biggest lead was four points). The way each got their 40 was different, the Redmen on speed, and the Jaspers on strength but the end product was the same.

UMass came out roaring in the second half ("ran" up a ten point lead, 61-51...but the Wilson whammy took over).

For a period of some eight minutes, the Redmen allowed the Jaspers back into the ballgame with mistake after mistake and with just over seven minutes to go in the game the score was tied at 69.

At 71-71 Skinner and John Betancourt went on a scoring binge and the UMass lead jumped to 83-77. But why spoil success...an abnormal game ending was not to come.

Both teams traded hoops, UMass had their game total, 85.

Betancourt had another superb performance with 25 points while his backcourt partner Mike Pagliara hit for 11. Their output offset the hot shooting of Manhattan's Richie Garner who had 32. Tom McLaughlin another New York product had a dozen points and Chris Coffin grabbed nine rebounds to go with another excellent defensive effort.

Tomorrow the Redmen play at Harvard. Ray Wilson will not be there. "I'm going to stay out on the road and hear it on the radio."

BETANCOURT RETURNS--John Betancourt shown here going in for a lay-up against North Carolina in the NIT's last year, returned to the Garden last night and responded with a 25 point effort to lead the Redmen to a 85-83 victory over Manhattan.

Pucksters Travel To Yale

By BILL BALLOU

For those of you who haven't seen this year's Redmen hockey team at Orr Rink in 1971, forget it. '71 has seen the last of Coach Jack Canniff's skaters, at least in the Orr Rink vicinity, and all that's left for them before the New Year is a road game against Division I's Yale tonight and the Williams Tournament during December 28-30.

The pucksters are probably sorry to see the year go, for up until now the month of December has been very good to them. As of this writing UMass has played six times and all have been in December, all have been against Division II competition, and all have been victories. It's not particularly surprising that the Redmen are unbeaten at home, for home is where a hockey team picks up most of its points and it's been a long time since a UMass hockey team has lost at Orr Rink. The surprise of the season, though, has to be the phenomenal success this club has enjoyed on the road. They are unbeaten in enemy rinks in three games, having taken Vermont 4-3, Norwich 8-2, and Middlebury 3-2. Last year the Redmen could muster just three wins over the entire season while losing six and tying one. The improvement is obvious.

Coach Canniff is naturally enough delighted with this development and figures the reason for the improvement is a result of "Experience. Last year we'd go out and beat ourselves with foolish mistakes, but we're a year older and we don't make them now." This team is loaded with experience especially in the nets and on defense where you must have the solid play if you want to win away from home.

Tonight's game should give Canniff a chance to relax a bit, since Yale is a Division I team and the results of this contest don't count in the Division II standings. Not that anyone is going down to New Haven just for the exercise, but the strategy involved in playing a Division I team is different than that used when you play someone in your own league.

The chief difference won't be in how the team plays, but who plays how much. Canniff's strategy generally is that "This is a chance for the guys who normally don't play that much to show. It gives us a chance to better evaluate them, against top competition, and we don't have to worry about the outcome of the game." So tonight the fourth line of Charlie Donovan, Jim Coleman, and Jim Lynch will get a shot at taking a regular turn rather than just playing in spots as they have been doing up until now. This line, although they haven't played as much as the three regular lines, has hustled when in there and have proved to be a valuable cog in the powerful UMass attack. Sophomore centerman Coleman has looked particularly impressive.

This one should be a good test for the Redmen. Last year was pretty bleak for the Elis as they could only muster a 5-17-1 record, but the competition was tough and a lot of last year's players are returning. Senior Greg Rivet from North Bay, Ontario and Soph D'arcy Ryan from the same province have both been enjoying great seasons and can fly up and down the ice. This fact prompts Canniff to say, "That's one thing we don't need, because that's one thing we can't do."

Skating might not be the strong point of this club, but it's got plenty of others. Just ask Williams' head coach Bill McCormick. But don't ask Canniff. He's still recovering from the first six minutes of Wednesday night's game.

SETTING UP--Dennis Grabowski (21) waits in front of the Boston State goal for a centering pass from one of his teammates. The pucksters went on to win the game, 8-3 and will travel to Yale for tonight's match. (MDC photo by Dan Kamal.)

Tracksters Open Season At Brown

By RICHARD BARRY

The UMass track team opens its season tomorrow at Brown University on the Moses Brown Track. Throwing events will get underway at 12:30.

The trackers have been involved in six weeks of hard training while certain individuals have looked impressive in practice meets with New Hampshire, Springfield and Amherst.

Last year, the teams were so closely matched that a UMass victory was not decided until the final event, the mile relay. Coach O'Brien anticipates a similar situation this year.

Brown's greatest strength lies in its weights and throwing events. UMass will be up against Bob Price, last year's New England champ in the shotput. Barry Schneider will be throwing for UMass but many feel Price is unbeatable. UMass' best high jumper Ed Shaughnessy along with frosh Mark Hughes will be up against five Brown jumpers who have all cleared six feet two. In the long jump, Ryan, Gerraty and Shaughnessy all have shown they are capable of sweeping. The jumping events will be a well balanced event for the Redmen.

UMass will be getting its point scoring in their sprint and hurdle events. Hurdlers John Merger, Jim Graves and Bob Landry will all be battling for places. Dave Annis, after an excellent performance in last week's practice meet, along with Ron Harris, Tony Pendleton, Dennis Busa and Ed Haywood will all be after a victory in the dash.

Coach O'Brien said, "The 600 yard run will be the pivotal point in the meet." Steve Crimmins and Steve Levine, who have been running within a tenth of a second of each other, will battle in what could turn into the day's best race.

The scoring can be broken down into three sections. The weight events which Brown will dominate, the jumping events that will probably score evenly, followed by UMass' strength in the running events.

The middle distance will be where UMass gains many of its points. John Maloney and Arnie Morse will battle for first place in the 1000 yard run. Milers Rick Barry and Randy Thomas and 2 Miler's Doug O'Connell and Roger Nasaka will all have to finish one-two to secure a Redman victory in the meet.

Why All The Fuss?

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Dorothy Nyland says she doesn't understand the fuss about women joining men in the Indiana University bare skin sauna.

Miss Nyland, 21, a former student, said she and a few other girls like to bask in the dry-heat room of the university's physical education building because of the health benefits.

Women students at present have no sauna or steam bath facilities.

The girls began invading the sauna Nov. 11 but university officials didn't believe the early reports. However, campus security police assured them the co-ed basking was going on.

George Huntington, director of the campus police, told the administration there was nothing they could do except ask the girls to leave.

He said that under Indiana law, if a nude man invades a women's locker room he can be arrested on the spot. But if a nude woman invades men's territory, she can be arrested only on a signed complaint to the county prosecutor.

Nobody complained about the girls.

"Nobody ever asked my name or became uptight when I'd walk in the first few times," Miss Nyland said, "but after the publicity the safety police asked me to leave; visits became a hassle."

Miss Nyland, a former pompon girl with the Indiana University band, dropped out of school two years ago to join a commune at Needmore, Ind., about 20 miles east of Bloomington. She is the daughter of Air Force Col. Edward Nyland of Arlington, Va.

Harvard, Yale To Egypt

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Yale and Harvard are sending their rival heavyweight rowing crews to Egypt for races on the Nile River next week, Yale announced Wednesday.

The two American schools will row against Egyptian crews including a Cairo police unit, and against Oxford and Cambridge. The two British schools competed in a similar event last year.

The combined British and American party is expected to reach Cairo Thursday and to arrive Friday in Egypt's Luxor Valley.

The first race will be held in the valley Sunday over a 2,000-meter Nile River course. On the following Wednesday, the teams will compete on another 2,000-meter olympic course in Cairo.

An invitation for the event from the Egyptian government was originally extended "some weeks ago" but was then "withdrawn because of a worsening of relations with Israel," Yale said. The invitation was "reactivated a week ago and immediately accepted by Yale and Harvard."

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather
You can laugh if you want, but don't look at me when they knock you down.

VOLUME XCIX, ISSUE 70 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS MONDAY, DECEMBER 20, 1971

These children are pretty lucky, wouldn't you say? Well some children aren't. They live in constant poverty, malnutrition, and filthy living conditions. As you sit there munching on your breakfast, lunch, or dinner the choice is yours if you want to help and save just a little part of the World, during the Christmas season or any season for that matter. There's an organization known as RESPERT, founded in May of 1970, to help children a little less fortunate as the kids above. Call Ann Nichols Committee chairwoman at 549-1224. It's the least you can do for yourself.

World Welcomes Nixon's Dollar Move

LONDON (AP) — Governments around the world generally welcomed the Washington monetary agreement Sunday as a fair compromise for settling the worst international currency crisis since World War II.

They also regarded it as a likely boon for world trade, ending the last four months of uncertainty and averting the threat of the kind of tariff war that helped touch off the Depression of the 1930s.

But many governments, moving cautiously, put off until Monday at the earliest the disclosure of new fixed exchange rates for their money. Britain, West Germany and Japan were among the few to announce new rates.

Most foreign exchange markets were ordered to remain closed Monday to ease preparations for coping with the new rates.

The key element of the Washington package raised the official price of gold from $35 to $38 an ounce, in effect a devaluation of the U.S. dollar of 8.57 percent, based on the old price of gold. Some governments chose to interpret the dollar devaluation as 7.89 percent, basing it instead on the new price of gold.

But there was general agreement that the package, however interpreted, returned stability to the international monetary trade systems for the first time since Aug. 15.

On Aug. 15 President Nixon temporarily suspended the link between the dollar and gold, the backbone of the international monetary system for 37 years. The move forced currencies to float without fixed exchange rates.

Under the floating system, international firms faced investment and contract difficulties because uncertain exchange rates clouded price and cost forecasts.

In addition there was always the danger that governments would act individually to protect their own interests, with a series of competitive devaluations, tariffs and quotas that could have ended in a trade war.

The Washington agreement averted that danger, not only by fixing a framework for new exchange rates, but also by promising removal of the U.S. 10 percent import surcharge. In time the surcharge could have invited retaliation by America's overseas trading partners.

Britain's chancellor of the exchequer, Anthony Barber, called the Washington package "equitable and realistic." "Fair for all," said Finance Minister Valery Giscard D'estaing of France.

Conrad Ahlers, the West German government spokesman, said the Washington settlement forms "a good basis for the development of world trade."

Japanese foreign minister Takeo Fukuda called the agreement, "The greatest economic shock" for Japan since World War II. Japan will revalue its currency by more than any other nation under the settlement terms, forcing up its prices further in competitive markets and probably losing more than its commercial rivals.

But Prime Minister Eisaku Sato said the terms were "not unreasonable" in order to regain stability.

There were these specific announcements on new exchange rates:

Britain-The pound will be pegged at $2.6057, compared to the old parity of $2.40. In the floating markets the pound had already moved up to $2.5293.

In effect, the pound is being changed only in relation to the dollar. Unlike the West German mark and the Japanese yen, it is not to be revalued further. This will make British exports more expensive than America's, but leave them cheaper than German or Japanese rivals.

West Germany-the dollar will be set at 3.223 marks, compared to the last floating rate of 3.2575 marks and the old parity of 3.66 marks. The change reflects both a new relationship with the dollar and a further revaluation against other currencies totaling 13.57 percent.

Japan-Like West Germany, the Japanese had one of the world's strongest currencies. It too will be revalued both against the dollar and other monetary units. The Japanese estimated their revaluation at 16.88 percent. The new fixed rate for the dollar in Tokyo is 308 yen, compared to 320.58 yen on the floating market Saturday and the old parity of 360 yen.

France-Like the British, the French will adopt a new exchange rate reflecting only the dollar devaluation. An announcement on the new rate is expected by the Bank of France Monday.

On The Inside:

- Nuclear Plant Page 2
- Athletic Council Page 3
- Play Center Page 8

Professor Mackleboy explains to his freshman Engineering class about the quality of homemade rockets which were launched at the stadium last Friday morning.

About 20 people, including channel 22 news, watched the colorful, meticulously decaled projectiles catapult 250 M.P.H. skyward to a range of 150 to 300 feet.

(Photo by Gary Alpaugh)

UMass Student Drowned

Medical Examiner Thomas F. Corriden ruled Friday that drowning was the cause of an 18-year-old University of Massachusetts freshman who died in a swimming pool minutes after the completion of a senior life-saving course.

Autopsy Performed

Dr. Corriden made the ruling after an autopsy was performed on the body of Michael D. Sullivan of Nahant by a state pathologist from Boston.

Exactly how the student fell into the UMass Frank L. Boyden Gymnasium pool about 10:30 Thursday night was not immediately clear, but Dr. Corriden said there were no unusual circumstances surrounding the death. UMass police are continuing their investigation.

According to a UMass spokesman, Sullivan was a member of a class of six or seven students and an instructor who were completing the last lifesaving session of the semester.

Efforts Fail

The instructor and other members of the class, thinking Sullivan was with them, left the pool area. They returned in less than five minutes and saw Sullivan lying on the bottom of the pool, the spokesman said.

Two swimmers dove in to attempt to revive the victim. University police were called but their artificial resuscitation efforts also proved fruitless, according to the spokesman.

The victim was taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital in Northampton in an ambulance at 10:47 and he was pronounced dead on arrival there at 11:12 by Dr. Corriden.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter P. Sullivan of 97 Wilson Road, Nahant. He was captain of the track team at Classical High School in Lynn. His father is a Boston fire fighter and he has two brothers and a sister.

(Reprinted from Springfield Gazette)

Vermont Nuclear Plant Encounters New Troubles

Anothony Z. Roisman counsel for the New England Coalition on Nuclear Pollution (N.E.C.N.P.) has filed a comprehensive reply to an Atomic Energy Commission (A.E.C.) Operating Licensing Board, which was created to openly examine and judge for the public's use, the impact and safety of a large new nuclear power plant being built just north of the Massachusetts border on the Connecticut River. The reply was filed in response to a motion by Vermont Yankee Nuclear Power Company, who represents a consortium of power companies building the plant, to stop 1% full power testing in advance of the conclusion of the hearing.

Since the application for 1% testing, the hearings have been accelerated by doubling up with both day and evening sessions.

Roisman's 16 page reply includes as its major points to stop testing:

- The safety, environmental impacts, and operating procedures planned by Vermont Yankee have not yet been fully examined through the hearing process, therefore, the operation of the plant, even at low power, may have unforeseen consequences or those the Board would not approve of, and these conditions may be avoided by complete examination of the plans.
- Pre-operational testing and important parts of the construction; pipe restraints, containment inerting equipment, etc., have not been completed.
- Vermont Yankee claims that the plant is needed to meet the winter peak demand. "Yet the applicant cannot possibly provide electricity from this plant in the Winter, nor does it attempt to prove that it can. Also, Applicant offers no evidence of its testing schedule..."
- On the New England electrical supply, which Vermont Yankee gave as a reason for accelerating testing, the 1967 Zinder Report, 1970 Zinder Report, and the Federal Power Commission letter of December 8, 1970, which Roisman cites, indicate power reserves during this winter of about 17% for Vermont, and about 25% for all of New England.
- "...by using the fuel, the Applicant will virtually eliminate any opportunity to conduct tests for leaking fuel rods..."
- "A second irreversible effect of the 1% testing is that the interior of the reactor vessel itself and its internal parts will become highly radioactive and not susceptible to further testing of their integrity."
- Finally, in analysing Vermont Yankee President Cree's tactics in presenting the motion for 1% testing, Roisman casts doubts as to the timing of the application for testing; "...and Applicant's position is underscored by the assertion contained in Mr. Cree's Affidavit...which demonstrates that Applicant has believed for some time that it needed this low power testing license and that there were no special circumstances which only arose recently which necessitated this request. Despite this fact, Applicant waited until the last day and nearly the last minute of the recent hearing session to file its motion."

In sum, N.E.C.N.P. has expressed its concern that this speedup, together with the inadequate opportunity given for discussing the supposed power shortage and radioactive waste disposal, indicates that the Licensing Board may be reaching a decision on Vermont Yankee's interim license request before all relevant matters have been discussed at the Brattleboro hearings.

LANG'S PHOTO STUDIO

460 West St. So. Amherst, Rte. 116 AND 183 No. Pleasant St. (next to Whole Wheat Trading Co.)

OPEN THIS WEEK WITH THESE SUPER SAVINGS until 8 P.M. Mon.-Fri.!

- An additional 10% off on all film
- Values up to 50% off on the following.....

While they last...all brand new:

1.) Sterex C-60 tape cassettes $.75, Sterex C-90 tape cassettes $1.00
2.) LENTAR Lenses 135 mm 3.5...List $59.00 Now $30.00
3.) ARGUS Cosina 35mm SLR Camera...List $210.00 Now $125.00
4.) YASHICA TL 35mm SLR Camera...List $270.00 Now $185.00
5.) ARGUS Instamatic Cameras $6.00
6.) AGFACHROME film with processing...List $4.35/roll Now $2.85/roll
7.) ACME Strobe (electronic flash) $13.95
8.) BUSHNELL Binoculars, waterproof, will float List $32.00 Now $24.00
9.) LUMIPAN 120 film-B&W-30' roll; 126-12-45' roll.
10.) CRESTLINE Projectors-List $37.00 Now $22.95
11.) RICOH Camera TLS 401, 1.7 lens, with electronic flash List $274.00 Now $185.00
12.) MINOLTA SRT101 Camera w 1.7 lens List $289.00 Now $199.
13.) RICOH 126C Reflex Camera (with wide angle Telephoto lens) List $129.00 Now $100.00
14.) CASES from $4.00

We try harder
(Check our prices)

© VOLKSWAGEN OF AMERICA, INC.

It gets the once over 1,013 times.

Only after a Volkswagen goes through 1,013 inspections and all of the inspectors give it their thumbs-up, is it a Volkswagen.

If any one of them gives it his thumbs-down, then it isn't.

That's our rule of thumb.

JONES Volkswagen
721 Worthington Street
SPRINGFIELD, MASS. 01101

AUTHORIZED DEALER

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

The office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN is on the second floor of the Student Union on the campus of the University of Massachusetts, zip code 01002. Telephones: 545-2550 (news); 545-0344 (sports); 549-1311 (business).

Second class postage is paid in Amherst. THE DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes Monday through Friday during the academic year, except during vacation, exam periods or holidays. Accepted for mailing under the authority of an act of March 8, 1879; as amended by an act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $6.00 per semester or $10.00 per year.

TRAVEL – SPRING VACATION – TRAVEL

Bermuda: Deluxe $279 Sonesta Beach
Economy $219 Elbow Beach

* WATERFRONT ACCOMODATIONS
* KITCHEN FACILITIES
* FREE COLLEGE WEEK ACTIVITIES, MORE!

also, Puerto Rico $239, Nassau $269, Jamaica $254

Call 665-3412 or at Fernando's Hideaway next to S.U. Post Office

Acting Chancellor for Student Affairs Robert Gage at Thursday's meeting of the Faculty Senate, at which the reorganization of the Athletic Council was initiated.

Commentary

Antagonisms And Stupidity

By RICHARD C. HANSON

SCENE I-A referee for an intramural basketball game in Boyden gym makes a stupid call against one of the players on an all-black team playing an all-white team. The game is tense. The black team is out to win, because they play basketball to win, especially against white kids. There aren't many other places outside of the basketball court that blacks as group have dominated whites.

"Racist honkey!" yells one of the black players at the referees.

SCENE II-"The bastard elbowed our best player on purpose just to get him out of the game," fumed one guy playing on a dormitory team about a black player from an all-black team who had a habit of playing rough.

"Whenever we are playing basketball at the gym, we let one black kid play and then he brings his friends and they kick us off the court. There's an awful lot of tension down there in Boyden," added another white kid.

SCENE III-An administrator in the School of Physical Education after hearing that some black kids have been starting fights: "Kick 'em out of school. If they aren't going to play by the rules. They aren't going to play. And I make the rules."

And so the minor antagonisms and stupidity of individuals and institutions continue to make race relations the most volatile issue here on campus. The situation in the School of Physical Education has done everything except defuse the tensions. At present, incidents like the fight in Boyden Gym during the intramural basketball playoffs are just "symptoms of a much larger problem here on campus" says Acting Vice-Chancellor for Student Affairs, Robert Gage. Dr. Gage was at the basketball game Tuesday night, but left before the fight broke out.

He had been told that things were ripe for a little trouble. He and David Bischoff, Asst. Dean in Boyden, concurred with the decision not to finish the rest of the games Tuesday night and agreed that the rest of the playoffs would be better off cancelled for at least the rest of the week. A meeting of the managers of the intramural teams contending for the campus wide championship found most people ready to cancel for the rest of the year. If only coming to grips with some of the attitudes blacks and whites hold towards each other were so simple as cancelling some basketball games.

Blacks at UMass form a distinct minority amongst the hordes of white middle class students that UMass was designed for back in the days when there were only 50 black students out of 10,000. Inspite of all the pap about efforts to recruit more blacks around campus there are still bastions which have made little or no effort to either understand the problems of black students here or to change to make-up and attitudes of their faculty and staff.

The School of Physical Education, under the leadership of retiring Dean Warren McGuirk, has only one black faculty member. It is widely known amongst both blacks and whites that some of the administrators and faculty in Boyden are not exactly enlightened in their feelings towards racial problems. Many are trying, but the efforts so far have not reduced the levels of friction amongst both black and whites using the facilities.

Students around campus are for the most part un-acquainted with the factors that a black student must face here at UMass. One can imagine that for many coming to UMass is like a white taking the Seventh Avenue subway in New York City past 96th Street into the all black world of Harlem. The most obvious fact about American race relations is that we are just beginning to break down the distinctions that being black have thrust upon an individual.

There is still some blacklash sentiment amongst white students, dating back to the bungled conversion of Mills House into a Black Cultural Center (bungled by the UMass administration). One can hear attitudes like "The blacks are given everything," and "All you have to do to get something around here is be black and look intimidating." Black students can justifiably be resentful of people who still insist on thinking that American society has not warped the racial conditions enough to warrant a re-ordering of priorities.

A white student can also become justifiably confused when confronted with the proposition that a bad call in a basketball game is "racist" or that he or she is "racist" just for being white.

What is required here at UMass is a good, long look at hiring practices and attitudes of faculty and administrators and a lot more understanding on the part of both blacks and whites about the fact that more than a hundred years after the civil war ended, at 20th century UMass, basketball games are still cancelled over fights between whites and blacks.

Commentary

The New Athletic Council

By ROBERT MEDEIROS

The members of the Student Senate received an early Christmas gift last Thursday when the Faculty Senate voted in favor of the Faculty Senate's Committee on Student Affairs proposal concerning the Athletic Council.

The overwhelming vote was on the first of three hurdles in making the proposal actual constitutional law, but it was surely the major hurdle. The proposal which is basically a student proposal will now be brought to another Faculty-Senate meeting where a three-fifths vote will be needed to bring the proposal to a vote of the general faculty. At this final hurdle a simple majority of the general faculty will be needed to make the proposal law.

Before the Faculty-Senate could vote on the student proposal it was necessary for the Senate to vote on the Committee on Committees' proposals for the Athletic Council. The Senate voted in favor of the majority proposal while voting down the minority proposal. At this time the student proposal was presented on the floor of the Senate. A vote was taken between the majority proposal of the Committee on Committees and the Student Affairs proposal. The Fac-Sen voted in favor of the student proposal and the student senators had their early Christmas victory.

The main differences in the student proposal and the majority proposal were concerned with the degree of faculty representation. For instance the majority proposal made room for three alumni on the Athletic Council while the Student Affairs proposal makes room for only one alumnus, the executive vice-president of the Alumni Association. The Student Affairs proposal did allow for an Alumni Committee which would recommend and promote ways of obtaining greater alumni support for the university's athletic interests.

The Student Affairs proposal essentially keeps the size of the Athletic Council at eleven while increasing the number of undergraduates from one to five and decreasing the number of alumni from four to one. According to this proposal the professional staff-alumni ratio would be changed from ten-one to six-five. An obvious increase in student power.

The Student Affairs Committee had three main objections to the recommendations of the Committee on Committees. The first objection was that the Athletic Council is not in any way accountable to the Student Senate, especially in determining the rate of the undergraduate athletic fee. According to the student proposal all athletic accounts shall be open to review by the President of the Student Senate. Also all meetings of the Council shall be open to the campus community, except in extraordinary circumstances. The Council shall also submit a detailed breakdown of all athletic program budgets to the Faculty and Student Senates.

Another objection is that the Student Senate is not free to determine its own method of selecting its representatives on the Council. The last objection is that the alumni receive representation that is disproportionate to their contribution to the athletic program.

It was at first feared that if and when the student proposal came to a vote of the general faculty, the Athletic Department would lobby against the proposal by organizing its faculty members to vote against the bill. It appears there will be no organization against the proposal since many of the Athletic Department heads have come to the conclusion that this new undergraduate revision of the Athletic Council could indeed lead to a responsible committee. The athletic people in Boyden now believe that students are responsible enough to handle the responsibilities of this advisory Council.

Basketball Playoffs Suspended

By ROBERT MEDEIROS

A 15 minute brawl between black and white players at the conclusion of an intramural basketball game on the opening night of playoff action last Tuesday has led to the suspension of all further playoff action.

The fight broke out when two individuals, one black and one white, from opposing teams began to mix it up at the immediate conclusion of the game. The two opposing teams were quickly drawn into the fight while other individuals on the Boyden Gymnasium court also began to take part in the action.

Police were called to the scene of the fight and arrived just as the trouble was being broken up. A total of six or seven policemen arrived at the court and quickly dispersed the crowd. The rest of the games scheduled for the night were suspended.

It is common knowledge that tensions on the Boyden Gymnasium court between blacks and whites have been increasing in the last two months. Of the two teams involved in the fight, one was made up of all black players while the other was reported as being a predominately all white team.

Dr. Robert Gage, acting Vice-Chancellor of Student Affairs, said the fighting after the basketball game was a "symptom of a bigger University problem." Gage and David Bischoff, Dean of the School of Physical Education, decided the playoffs should not be resumed until a meeting between the managers of the playoff teams met in conference with the directors of the intramural program.

Last Thursday all 12 team managers involved in playoff action met and discussed the various aspects of the fight. Even though the exact details of the meeting were not made available to the Collegian, it is known that a majority of the managers decided that the playoffs should not be resumed until certain problems related to the intramural program are ironed out.

Dr. Gage and Bischoff have already initiated action in the solving of these problems. It can be expected that work in this area will continue throughout the upcoming Christmas vacation and intercession period.

CORRECTION: Contrary to what was previously printed in Friday's Collegian, the Senate has not passed an amendment, but has adopted a motion leading to the passage of an amendment.

Mount Holyoke College Lecture Committee
Presents:

The View From Peking

A Symposium
Jan. 10, 11, 12th

Featuring: Jan. 10
8:00 - Chapin Auditorium

PAUL LIN
Director, Center for East Asian Studies
"China's Social Transformation and World Outlook"
Plus other speakers, panels and informal discussion.
For more information call: 538-2045

PARIS HELSINKI MOSCOW MONACO BRUSSELS BELGRADEGENEVA BUCHAREST OSLO DUBLIN MONROVIA EDINBURGH ATHENS MADRID LONDON ROME MADRID LISBON VATICAN CITYMONACO

FLY SUPERCHEAP

Los Angeles $199
Dec. 18 - Jan. 3 — Boston - L.A.-Boston. Round trip jet for $199. Can give info. on connecting flights to San Francisco.

Ski Europe $325
15 days/14 nights at Innsbruck, Kitzbuhel & St. Anton. Departures from JFK & Logan begin 12/18/71 and continue through 3/31/72. Includes air fare, meals, double occupancy hotel & all taxes.

Youth Fare
Guaranteed Round Trip reservations at no additional charge.

Pay with MASTERCHARGE

Nassau $179
Dec. 27-Jan. 3. $179 includes round trip jet from Boston, all taxes & tips & accommodations at the Montagu Beach Hotel, Flagler Inn or Pilot House Hotel*

London $187
Dec. 17-Jan. 2 $187 includes round trip jet air fare from Boston* Dec.

American Student Travel
27 Massachusetts Ave., Boston 02115
For further information call Steve German 253-3359

*open only to 5 College students, faculty, staff & immediate family

SAN MARINO WARSAW PRAGUE LUXEMBOURG COPENHAGEN OUGADOUGOU

In The Nation And The World

Nixon-Heath Meet In Bermuda

Karl Schiller of West Germany and U.S. Treasury Secretary John B. Connally during a break in the Group of Ten talks on monetary crisis. (see page 1).

LONDON (AP)-The Nixon-Heath meeting starting Monday in Bermuda will carry forward a 30-year tradition of summit talks between American and British leaders.

This is President Nixon's seventh summit session with the British.

Most of 34 such meetings have been friendly and fruitful but a few ended in acrimony.

The tradition began Aug. 14, 1941, aboard a British battleship and an American cruiser off Maine. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Winston Churchill produced the Atlantic Charter which set forth their aims for a better future for mankind.

President Woodrow Wilson had paid a brief courtesy visit to Britain in 1918 on his way to the Versailles peace conference, but had no substantive talks with Prime Minister David Lloyd George.

The summit talks over the years have been supplemented by numerable telephone conversations. The London-Washington "hot line" telephone was installed during the Roosevelt-Churchill era.

Despite his relatively brief term of office, President John F. Kennedy had eight meetings with Prime Minister Harold MacMillan.

The most acrimonious of the 34 summits was the MacMillian-Kennedy encounter in Nassau in December, 1962, although Harold Wilson has some tough bargaining sessions in his six meetings with Lyndon B. Johnson.

On his return from Nassau, MacMillan told the House of Commons there had been some "plain talking" between him and Kennedy-a diplomatic way of describing a row.

The issue was the abrupt cancellation by the American administration of the Skybolt missile program because of operational failure and soaring costs. Britain had scrapped its own Blue Streak missile in favor of Skybolt, which was to prolong the effective life of the V-bombers of the Royal Air Force by five years.

The British were hardly mollified by Kennedy's offer to provide Polaris missiles instead-but MacMillan accepted them.

Wilson had six meetings with Johnson, all in Washington. Although he frequently complained of what he felt was Johnson's low opinion of Britain's world position, Wilson seemed to have reached a warm personal relationship with Johnson.

But the American president often was incensed over Wilson's steady refusal to back America's Vietnam policy to the hilt-his refusal to send at least a token British force into battle along with the Australians and New Zealanders.

Nixon paid his first visit to Britain as President Feb. 24-26, 1969, a whirlwind, three-day affair during a five-nation tour of Europe just after he took office.

In Brief...

Motion To Withdraw Rejected

WASHINGTON (AP)-A year-long struggle by Senate war critics to force total U.S. withdrawal from Indochina has failed, blocked by a dwindling House majority that backs President Nixon's policies.

But Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana, the chief architect of the effort, vows he will resume it in 1972. "I want to see this war finished."

US Fighters Exchange Shots

SAIGON (AP)-American fighter-bombers exchanged missiles with antiaircraft defenses deep inside North Vietnam on Saturday, military spokesmen disclosed Sunday.

The U.S. Command said no planes were hit in the engagement, about 145 miles south of Hanoi.

Rhodes Scholar Recipients Announced

MIDDLETOWN, Conn. (AP)-Thirty-two U.S. college students have won Rhodes Scholarships for study at Oxford University in England, the Rhode Scholarship Trust announced Sunday.

Khan Promises To Resign Today; 'Peoples' Government Formed

RAWALPINDI, Pakistan (AP) — President Agha Mohammed Yahya Khan will resign as soon as he hands over power to "the representatives of the people" on Monday, a spokesman announced Sunday.

Zulfikar Ali Bhutto, deputy prime minister and foreign minister, is due here Monday from New York to form a new government.

During a stopover in Rome Sunday, Bhutto told reporters President Nixon had reaffirmed U.S. support for the principle of Pakistan's unity and sovereignty.

Bhutto, leader of the largest single party in West Pakistan, seemed certain to play a major role in the new government. Bhutto was arrested under the Ayub regime and accused of inciting Pakistanis to violence. Violent demonstrations forced Ayub to free him.

In an announcement two weeks ago, Yahya had designated Nurul Amin, an East Pakistani politician, as the prime minister-designate and Bhutto as the deputy prime minister-designate and foreign minister-designate in a new government that was to take office early next year.

Amin, a 77-year-old right wing East Pakistani politician, said in an interview Saturday that he could not accept the appointment in view of developments.

Amin was a political foe of Sheikh Mujibur Rahman, leader of the East Pakistan-based Awami League banned by Yahya in March on charges of plotting to break up Pakistan. Mujib was jailed on charges of treason and is believed still held in West Pakistan.

Air Marshall Mohammed Asghar Khan, retired chief of Pakistan's air force who joined in the move to oust the president, said Yahya should be tried for abrogating the 1962 constitution when he took power in 1969.

California Primary Postponed

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — The 1972 California primary election may be postponed at least one week because of a hangup in the state legislature over reapportionment.

Bills were before both houses yesterday containing new provisions to postpone the primary, including the key presidential primary balloting, from June 6 until at least June 13.

The Democratic-controlled legislature failed to pass any reapportionment bills —

MERCURY BOOKSTORE

Astrology and Occult Sciences

549-0910

9 EAST PLEASANT STREET

AMHERST,

GIRLS

Be Appreciated

Join Us Before Vacation

Call H. of R. G4502

Washington Lower Co-Ed Living Community

WMPIRG • WMPIRG • WMPIRG •

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — Nathan Gorenstein
BUSINESS MANAGER — James Gold
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Gib Fullerton
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR — Steve Fine
NEWS STAFF — Rita Tonucci, Janet Hughes
DARKROOM — Barbara Brecher, Steve Schmidt
SPORTS — Dan Kamal
AD LAYOUT — Terry Wonczyk
EDITORIAL — Don Glickstein

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.
Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

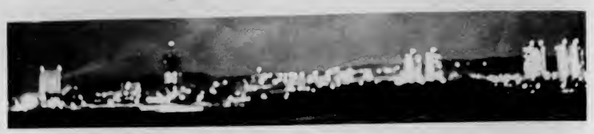
Opting Grades

By now, it should be clear that there is no one best method or non-method of grading. Whether it is the traditional A, B, C or a credit-no credit system, the proponents and opponents should realize that each system has its disadvantages, each its advantages.

We propose that a variety of grading options be made available for faculty and students.

The student headed for graduate school who is unwilling to risk the uncertainties of pass-fail should be given the opportunity to elect grades, just as the student who feels more comfortable without grades should have available an unlimited pass-fail or credit-no credit option.

The teacher who believes that grades are meaningful and helpful should not be penalized by a gradeless policy forced upon him. Likewise, the teacher who prefers not to bother with numbers or letters would not be bound by the "system."



We believe that grading options for faculty and students can be easily administered, and that the computer systems can be adapted without much ado.

It is a sign of a healthy institution to accept diversity. With the very limited grading options the University now has, it is not responding to the individual needs of both faculty and students.

Don Glickstein

People Needing People

"I must be the happiest man in the world."

Gerry Baldasarro is a supervisor in the Berkshire Commons.

"I'm so happy here. These kids make my life. A lot of people don't try to understand them, but when we were young, we were no different. I love the kids. They keep me alive."

Gerry probably doesn't realize it, but he helps keep a lot of us alive, living in the concrete city of Southwest. He's there, every day, kidding us, threatening us, cajoling us, making passes at the girls, picking mock fights with the guys, giving away his life, his happiness, his experiences-to us, for free. The food may be starchy, the tomato sauce perennial, but Gerry helpsmake it go down a little better.

It's not that he has to be there. Sixty-six years old, Gerry could retire on the money he has earned through his life as a "gandy-dancer" (a railroad worker), a foreman on the Boston and Maine, an owner of a liquor club, the head of a brick manufacturing company, and a trucking corporation. But it's hard for a man to retire who's still so young.

To many students, the people who run the University--the janitors, the dish washers, the maintenance people, the power plant men--are merely the proverbial "wombats"--unthinking, unknowing, red-necked fascists.

To many employees of the non-professional staff, students are the opposite--a group of shitty, piggy, slobby, long-haired, dope-smoking thieves.

And then there are people like Garry Baldasarro who don't fit into the stereotypes, because they can't divide up people into something they are less than. To Gerry, there are only people needing people.

****

When do you start trusting someone?

Do you trust a 17 year old kid or a forty year old man?

Roscoe R. is 17 years old and he's in a local county jail. He's pushed heroin and other drugs. He's run away from the "reform" school at Shirley. He's ripped off some stores. His parents are alcoholics, as is his step-mother. He's bitter.

"They put us addicts in here with these criminals," he complains. Looking over a multiplication table, he notes the X sign. "Yeah, I'm doing my times."

Lou H. is 40 years old and this is his fourth time in jail. He's a junkie, too, but is in for breaking and entering. Three times before, he was trusted and released, and went back to shooting up. When he gets out again, January 17, he won't have a job, a winter coat (which even if he had one, he might sell for a fix), and he'll have to wait a week to start methadone maintenance at a nearby hospital.

"That's okay, I'll make it. I have this friend, see, in Boston, who's a millionaire. He'll help me out. I'll just go back to my people."

But he'll end up back in the jail, you know it, and you have to ask, "When do you start trusting someone?" Well, someone has to be cynical, and freeing Angela Davis won't mean much to Lou H. on January 17.

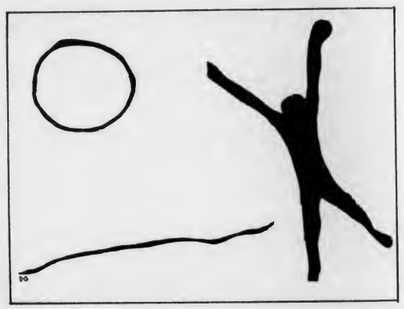
****

"Did you hear about the wampum? Some guy ratted to the guard, and he got wampummed. When he recovers, he won't be able to go to any prison in the state. Everyone else will know. He's dead."

****

This is my last column for awhile; I'll be teaching next semester in Louisville, Kentucky. In a way, I'm glad I'm going. I'm sick of the fighting and the shouting.

I've written the columns, not so much because I was egotripping (although undeniably, my moods and feelings influenced my style and choice of invective), but because it was something that I could do and feel the results of my actions.



People are so powerless in the Seventies, because they don't have any balls any more. Except for the rightest and leftist crazies, and some Student Senate officers, no one ever announces to the world: "This is what I believe, I think you're full of doggy-doo and this is why."

Thus, it's scary to walk down a corridor in a dorm and see a column of yours posted on someone's door. It means that you have the power to move someone, one way or the other, a strange someone who only knows you because of random words made logical on a newspaper page.

It's a lot easier not to shout, fight and effect something of your own by writing spineless news "analysis" or going off on a tirade about such and so or blowing some more dope or turning up Cat Stevens. Well, to each his own, but I'm awfully tired of being "righteous," while the Faculty Senate debates, the Student Senate drones, the administration cowers and the most talented people in the University are wasted by antiquated advising, grading, structures, hiring and tenure procedures, and people.

Knowing me, my depression won't last very long, so getting into the holiday spirit, I'd remind all of you that there are millions of people, each one, needing people, in their own way, sometimes cruelly, sometimes in love, and if only w d harness the power of millions of people, we can do anything.

Every great dream for 1972.

Art Buchwald

Christmas Cards Tell All

WASHINGTON–Christmas cards reveal a great deal more about America than one would like to admit. They show as well as anything what a restless society we've become.

The other day, my wife was opening cards and she was puzzled by one from Hal and Virginia Lark.

"I thought Hal's wife's name was Frieda," she said.

"So did I. Maybe she changed it to Virginia," I suggested.

The next day the mystery was cleared up when we received a Christmas card from the McDowalls.

"We don't know any McDowalls," my wife said.

"We must, or they wouldn't have sent us a Christmas card."

"The handwriting looks familiar," my wife said. "As a matter of fact, it looks exactly like Frieda Lark's signature."

"How could it be Frieda Lark's signature if it was sent by the McDowalls?"

"Maybe Frieda is no longer a Lark!" my wife exclaimed.

"Then that means Hal married a girl named Virginia, and Frieda married a guy named McDowall."

"I wish people would tell me these things before I send out my Christmas cards."

She opened a few other cards and then came to one which she studied carefully. "This photograph is very peculiar. I could swear it was Myrna Tuttle, but the card says it's from the Lindstroms."

I looked at it. "It sure does seem to be Myrna. Wait a minute. Aren't those Myrna's twins on the sailboat?"

"Yes," my wife said. "But I don't recognize the man at the wheel."

"That's probably Lindstrom," I said.

"I wonder what happened to Dick Tuttle?"

"Look through your cards. The answer is probably there."

My wife went through the cards. "You're right. Here's one from the Tuttles. It's Dick Tuttle, all right, but I don't recognize the woman or the children sitting on the lawn."

"They're probably her children," I said.

"Well, at least that takes care of the Tuttle problem," she said.

The next day, when I came home from work, my wife was waiting for me with more cards.

"Helen Coates is now Helen Samovar, Marty Keeler has a new wife named Zelda and we got separate Christmas cards from Lars and Margie Payne. His came from San Francisco and hers came from Fort Lauderdale."

"I got a few at the office," I said. "Apparently Bob Elmendorf got custody of the five children because his card shows him sitting on a fence with a new wife and eight kids."

"Who are the other three?" my wife wanted to know.

"Her kids. I wonder why Lucy Elmendorf didn't get custody of the children?"

"This card," my wife said, "may explain it. It's from Lucy and she says she's living in Guadaloupe with a fantastic penniless young artist whom she met when she went to visit her sister is Los Angeles.

"We also got a card from the Madisons," she added. "They still seem to be together."

"Forget it," I said. "I just received a wire at the office from Bill Madison. It says 'DISREGARD CHRISTMAS GREETINGS. LETTER FOLLOWS.'"

Copyright 1971, Los Angeles Times

Birth of a Nation

Editorial Points

Harvard has turned crimson because of their mortifying win over a group of tough, tenacious, give 'em hell Redmen. It just goes to prove that we're not as hick as everyone in Boston thought.

***

Many thanks to the powers who are paving the path between the C.C. and Hasbrouck. Around Christmas time, even the bureaucracy makes an attempt to respond to basic human needs like dry feet.

***

Are the new library and fine arts centers being sprayed with asbestos? We hope not, for asbestos can be deadly.

***

As if whoever is in charge of the food concession at the basketball games isn't making enough profit, they sell a 15¢ package of peanuts for 20¢. Either that's inflation or piracy.

***

Food machines in dorms have a mind of their own. They rip you off for what others ripped them off.

***

Will it take Tom Campion to break a leg jumping over a mud hole he just stepped in while trying to avoid a tree after tripping over a curb to get the walk in front of Machmer Hall and the Student Union lighted at night?

***

DINING COMMONS MEAL OF THE SEMESTER--A SPECIAL TRIBUTE TO DINING COMMONS STARCH: served daily in all five commons is bread, rolls, scalloped potatoes, mashed potatoes, breaded veal, breaded shrimp, breaded chicken, hamburger rolls, spaghetti, manacotti, American copy suey, macaroni, cereal, French toast, peach brown betty, cake, French fries, breaded fish, more potatoes, and assorted miscellany that insures that you'll never be constipated because you'll have diarrhea.

***

Thanks to the Student Senate Transit Service, who although don't have schedules attached to each sign on the routes, when you do get aboard, they have music on the buses. It's unique and kinda neat.

Letters To The Editor

Sandwen - Only Yourselves To Fear

To the Editor:

I feel the need to explain some of my feelings on the current controversy surrounding the Athletic Council and increased student participation on it.

No one denies that in terms of breadth of program quality of facilities, and intramural participation that the University has one of the finest programs in the East. The coaching staff and intramural office, which consists of men and women not only noted for their skills, but their character and abilities for working with students, are simply near the finest in the country. Certainly Warren McGuirk (outgoing Athletic Director) and George Richason (Chairman of the Athletic Council) have made outstanding contributions to make all this possible. In no way however, does this mean the University can not improve the program.

The Athletic Council presently consists of four faculty, four alumni, the Athletic Director, an administration representative, and myself, as Student Senate President. Its composition and manner of meeting, has tended to keep it isolated from the campus community. Recent overwhelming votes from both the Student and Faculty Senates for Council reorganization are strong indications of this. Central to my view of improving the program and its connections to the entire campus, is the idea of increasing student input in policy decisions, so that the program can more easily and quickly reflect student increases and needs.

This in no way represents a frontal attack on the program or the Athletic Department. The University nor Boyden Gym will disappear if the Student Senate proposal for reorganization passes. The good coaches, of which there are many, who have always encouraged their students to develope themselves in as many ways as possible--academically, socially, and physically--will have no qualms with these new developments. For students to be involved in the important discussions of the Athletic Council is not only a valuable experience for them, but encourages broader participation from all segments of the Student Body. That is the purpose of the program as I understand it; a worthwhile purpose indeed.

The Athletic Council has no real skeletons in its closet, and they do themselves and the program nothing but harm from their isolation. It is my hope that the Senate's plan for reorganization will just bring some fresh air into the way the Council is run. A little fresh air can mean a lot to a patient who's having a hard time breathing.

Lee H. Sandwen
President
Student Senate

Votes and Talks

To the Editor:

With the end of finals will come intercession when many students will go home and relax for ten days. The Amherst Voters Registration Coalition is trying to run a speakers drive during this time. We would like students to give up one hour of their vacations to speak at their high schools. It wouldn't take much time or effort. We can provide the information for their talk, and by the time they go home their principals will have had a letter from us explaining what we are doing. Any students who would be willing to help us out are asked to contact Maggie Houghton at the Student Senate office, 5-0341. If necessary, leave your name and phone number.

Maggie Houghton
Chairman, Amherst Voter Reg. Coalition

Think On It

To the Editor:

Who is to blame: Everyone.

We complain about high campus center fees and say we get nothing for it. Some get lovely seat cushions. Someone has a section of a rug taken from room 804 in the Center. Replacements cost. Fees go up even higher. Student workers waste tons of food each week. Again fees go up. I see ecology rallies knee deep in waste and surrounded by smoke. I see peace rallies screaming, "Kill, Kill!" I see more ground, hard dead soil, on this campus, on which the grass was killed by uncaring feet. We complain about noise pollution and turn our stereos up to full volume. When screaming our hatred at the establishment, shouldn't we include ourselves. Who is to blame, if not everyone?

Dana Phipps

Undocumented Record

To the Editor:

In a recent letter to the editor, I criticized a paper, printed by the Socialist Workers Party, that concerned Senator George McGovern's voting record. The next day, I received an answer from Tom Moriarty, our friendly, neighborhood socialist, calling my letter "vacilating" and "hypocritical."

He then goes on to say that the average defense appropriations bill "maintains American military presence in nearly 3000 bases around the world" and "supplies the dictatorships of Pakistan, Spain, Greece, Brazil, Guatemala, South Vietnam and our other allies with the arms needed to suppress popular movements." By doing this, he implies that Senator McGovern has voted for this type of bill. But the truth is that the only type of defense bill George McGovern has ever voted for was related to research and development. Mr. Moriarty advises us to check these and other bills in the Congressional Quarterly. It seems as though he should take his own advise more often, for if he had, he wouldn't have made the implications I have previously stated.

Mr. Moriarty also has the mistaken impression that I was trying to compare Senator McGovern to Linda Jenness. However, that would be a senseless thing for me to do. George McGovern was speaking out against the war in Southeast Asia before Linda Jenness knew there was a war going on. There is definitely no comparison.

However, the basic point I was trying to concentrate on in my first letter was that the Socialist Workers Party should concern themselves with Linda Jenness' policies and former political record (if they can find one), rather than attacking those of the other candidates.

The other day I went to hear Republican, "Pete" McCloskey speak at Amherst College. As I was walking through the door of Johnson Chapel, Tom Moriarty handed me a piece of paper entitled, "McCLOSKEY VOTES FOR WAR APPROPRIATIONS". I wonder who will be next.

Reid Fishman
Students for McGovern

Montague Landfill

By THE COALITION FOR ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY
By THE COALITION FOR ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY

The re-orientation of our society's attitudes and practices to those which are ecologically sound is an intricate and difficult process. The progression from gross abuse of the environment for short term benefits through succeeding stages to policies which may be costly in the short term, but which benefit everyone, including future generations, through minimum disturbance of the common life support system, is frought with false economies and deceptive practices. Long term costs, because they are not immediately borne by the initiator of the environmental disruption, are doubly important to be considered due to their continuing and accruing burden which is socially undesirable.

The Coalition views sanitary land fill disposal projects as temporary expedients to bridge the transfer to wholly reusable social distribution systems. The concept of totally reusing everything not immediately consumed by a society, is the only sane environmental approach a society can adopt on a finite world.

With respect to the proposed Montague landfill project by the Massachusetts Department of Public Works; the Coalition opposes the destruction of so important a regional resource as that aquifir recharge area commonly called the Montague Plains through removal of its gravel and replacement with compacted trash. The Boston area has been prevented from open burning of its trash and in the process despoiling the common and vital resource of clean air. To shift from fouling Boston air to contaminating ground water resources in a distant river valley Montague in the Connecticut basin, is putting off and literally burying the problem. Thus, the D.P.W. plans will ease the pressure on Boston to comprehensively recycle its trash and reuse the resources therein.

The proper course for the Boston area, as for all Massachusetts cities and towns, is to start planning and implementing comprehensive recycling--difficult and unaccustomed though such efforts may be. It is vital that people become aware of the short-sighted practices imbedded in social systems. The issue of the "world's largest sanitary landfil project" in Montague is the common ground where the larger public concern for a better world meets head on the wasteful and harmfu practices of those who would chose the most expedient "solutions" ignoring long range costs.

It is pressure such as the difficulty Boston has in "disposing" of it trash which has the greatest potential for correcting the wasteful processes our society clings to. The Coalition opposes the DPW's Mon tague dump for its combination of regional ground ware and for the rejection of the recycling alternative it allows.

Is Pass-Fail Marxist??

To the Editor:

Why do we assume that of all human activities, learning alone does not require external as well as internal motivation?

Nobody expects factory workers, or farmers, or business or professional men to work for the sheer love of serving their fellow man. Nobody supposes that basketball or football players, or track stars--even when they are amateurs--will put forth the effort to develop their full potential without some kind of external reward, for collegiate amateurs, scholarships, an opportunity for education, the esteem of their fellow athletes and of the general public, not without some hopes of going professional.

Though Marxist theory is "fro everybody according to his ability to everybody according to hi need," no Marxist state has bee able to operate according to thi theory. Everyone of them has bee compelled to make use of externa rewards and punishments and t differentiate them, just as othe complex society has had to do.

What reason do we have, then, t suppose that of all mankin students alone are so unselfish an idealistic that external reward are unnecessary to them?

Howard O. Broga
Commonwealth Professo of Englis

Bodswitch Needs Your Help

Does your second semester promise to be an academic rerun-a long, dry season of dusted off lectures and endless labs? If so, the kids at Bowditch day care center offer a lively alternative. Students can earn three credits, given by the Modular Credit Office in the School of Education, by becoming a team teacher twice a week.

The center, formally known as the University Day School, is not a very formal place. It's a real children's house, and from eight to five the kids make the noise and mess that goes with painting, cooking, building, singing, thinking, dancing, carpentering, and having a good time. During the second semester, there will probably be about 35 children at each session, and a teaching team of about ten. One of this fall's student teachers claimed that her lessons with the kids gave her enough life to get through the rest of the week.

Almost any University student can be a part of the life at Bowditch. No matter what his background or career plans. The children need a science teacher who can lead them through elementary experiments, and they need a nurse who can develop a health program, and the center could use a nutrition student who could plan and supervise snack.

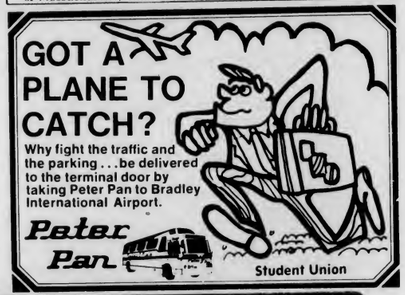
Music, dance, theatre, and art students, as well as anyone interested in photography and media, could all adapt their skills for the pre-school child - who has almost none of the inhibitions that adults have. English and linguistics students might be interested in working with children's language structure, and taped and written recordings of their songs and stories. A Government major might be interested in doing some research in possible state and federal funding programs. Psychology students could be used to do projects and studies with individual children, and, of course, education and Human Development majors would fit right in. This kind of project is particularly valuable to the person who is very definitely not interested in becoming a nursery school teacher; knowledge of the young child is knowledge of the self.

The responsibilities involved in earning three credits are these: each team member works 10 hours a week at the center on a regular, scheduled basis, and each session includes 4 hours with the children, and a one hour team meeting. Each team teacher plans a short lesson for four or five children, to be repeated a few times, and also supervises indoor and outdoor free play, trips, snack, and clean-up.

In order to get to know the children more thoroughly, each team teacher does three case studies of individual children. Observation, evaluation, conferences and workshops are an important part of the teaching. One of the fall student teachers played down all these responsibilities, however, when she described how she really enjoyed working at Bowditch; it was, she said, the only class where she had really gotten to know people.

Anyone who is interested can visit Bowditch any time during January between 8 and 5, or call Betsy Pelz or Connie Hayward at 545-2466. Formal credit arrangements can be made either through Modular Credit in Education, or through Independent Study in other departments. Men and women, graduates and undergraduates, are all very welcome. Arrangements for the course should be made before registration, and the team teaching will begin on January 31.

Music Students Are Inspired



The study of music by young people will be encouraged by a new program just founded by the UMass music department and Division of Continuing Education.

Through the new extension program, known as the Preparatory Division of the Department of Music, junior and senior high school vocal and instrumental music students may study with the artist teaching faculty of the UMass music department.

Registration for spring semester will be Jan. 3 through Jan. 21. Private and class instruction through the preparatory division will begin during the week of Jan. 24. Private lessons will be offered in piano, harpsichord, strings, woodwinds, brass, percussion, and voice. Class study will be available in recorder, piano, music literature- listening; and basic musicianship, which will provide supplemental training in music theory, ear-training, sight- singing, and composition.

Students will have the chance to perform in wind ensemble, chorus, and string ensemble. Solo and chamber music recitals will assist the student in developing stage deportment.

A brochure and other information on the new program is available from the Preparatory Division, Department of Music, c/o Division of Continuing Education, 920 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, 01002; telephone (413) 545-0905.

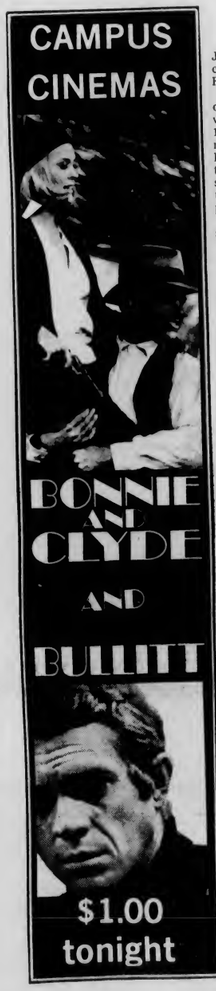
Post Office Xmas Hours

Postmaster Clarence A. Jewett, Jr., has announced the following changes in postal service on Friday, December 24, 1971.

Window service at the main office will be provided only between the hours of 8:15 a.m. and 12:00 p.m. However, the lobby will remain open for the convenience of lockbox holders until 5:30 p.m. At the North Amherst Station window service will be provided between the hours of 8:00 a.m. and 12:00 p.m.

Collection of outgoing mail from street letterboxes will be made following the Saturday schedule as posted on each box.

Full delivery service will be provided this day by both rural carriers and city carriers.



All mail received at this office for delivery on this day will be delivered.

This policy--as enumerated by Mr. Jewett--will enable more employees to enjoy a part of this special day with their families.

J.O.E. Needs Help

A Christmas party is planned at the Detention Center for Tuesday, December 21. The time has not yet been set, just the day and place.

People to help kids and to supply kids with materials to decorate the center are needed, as well as refreshments and entertainment. Anyone interested in sharing their Christmas spirit with others should contact Juvenile Opportunities Extension President Cyndi Dunbar at 253-9353, as soon as possible to make all the necessary arrangements.

Notices

BIBLE STUDY
Bible Study meeting Monday at 7:30 p.m. in CC 904-908. Bibles provided or bring your own. See you there.

COLLEGIATE FLYING CLUB
Final exam tonight. Bring computer and plotter.

COMMUTERS ASSEMBLY
Meeting 10 Feb. Send your subscription to improve commuter situation. RSO box 383.

FINANCIAL AID
Financial aid applications for the Summer of '72 and the '72-'73 academic year will be available in the Financial Aid office, 232 Whitmore, beginning 12/17. Whether or not aid has been received previously, a new application must be filed each year for all Scholarships, loans, grants and work study. Deadline for filing is MARCH 1, 1972.

HILLEL
HAVE A GOOD VACATION.

MODULAR CREDIT
Dec. 22 is the last day on which modular credit forms for the Fall '71 semester will be accepted. The forms should be turned into Rm. 227-C, School of Ed., no later than that date.

POLITICAL SCIENCE 201, 202 STUDENTS
Students in Mr. King's sections are reminded that take-home exams are due Jan. 6.

RUGBY CLUB
Meeting tonight at 9 p.m. in CC 811-815. Discussion on trip financing and other matters.

SENIORS
Important Senior committee meeting Jan. 30 at 7 p.m. in CC 162-175. All seniors are urged to attend.

SKI CLUB
Meeting tonight at 8 p.m. in Mahar Aud. Bring money for intersession trips. Movie and speaker from Mt. Tom. All those signed up for Chamonix, or who want info about it, come to meeting tonight in CC 917 at 6:30 or call 253-9667.

WMPIRG
Want to do Nader-style research next semester?...for credit? Come tonight at 7:30 in CC 168. Also, anyone having info about "Ski America", please contact WM-PIRG - 545-0438.

LOST
Dark brown wallet. Lost Sunday at Boyden during JV gymnastic meet. Need ID and license. Call Tom 6-6991. No questions asked.

Beige wallet near Campus Center and Hasbrouck. If found call 6-5120, Nancy, or return to 424 Cance.

Mt. Mohawk Ski Area
Rt. 2, Mohawk Trail
Shelburne, Mass.
(20 min. from campus)
Special Student Rate $3.00
T-bar, snack bar, Rentals, Ski Patrol
Opens Dec. 26,
Call 413-625-9048

Room To Move Drop-In Center
5-0400, 5-0401

Here's one of those happy tots at the play center. Look at that smile. All he wants for Chirstmas is a little bridge work and he'll be all set.

Plans For Vacation

Residence halls will close for Christmas Vacation after the last class on Wednesday, December 22, 1971, and will reopen at noon on Sunday, January 2, 1972. Residence halls will close again for the Intersession Vacation after the last final exam has been given on Friday, January 14, 1972, and will reopen at noon on Sunday, January 23, 1972.

Hamlin House will be available for students who plan to be on campus during the Christmas and Intersession vacation periods and who desire on-campus accommodations.

Arrangements for these accommodations should be made with the Campus Center Accommodations Office at least three days prior to the Christmas and Intersession vacation periods.

Student Senate By-Elections

On Jan. 24, 1972 the Student Senate will make available in its offices nomination papers for a By-election to fill vacancies in the Senate. All nomination papers must be returned to Wm. Spinn (in the Senate office) no later than 5 p.m. Feb. 11, 1972.

At this time there are the following vacancies:

Commuters (7)	Fraternities (2)
Patterson (2)	Cance (2)
Sororities (1)	Crampton (1)
Melville (1)	Brooks (1)
James (1)	J.Q.A. Middle (1)

Adams-T5 (1)

MDC CLASSIFIED

AUTOS FOR SALE

1965 Chevy Impala, V8, 283, automatic, 2 new tires, good condition, $300. Call 253-7863 after 5 p.m.
tf12-22

1971 Toyota Mark II, 2 dr., 1900 cc, 108 h.p., AM — FM radio, 5 good tires and snos, 14,000 mi., excellent cond., must sell. Call 549-4024.
tf12-22

69 Opel Rallye fastback, snowtires, 23mpg, radials. Asking $1250, Reg. 527-1528.
tf12-21

1971 Fiat 850 Conv., 13,000 mi. $1650. Call eve. 253-7037.
tf12-20

1963 VW Bus, not running - good for parts, 4 new tires. Leave msg., for Bill at 253-7148.
tf12-20

62 VW sedan, $200, religned brakes, rebuilt engine, 253-5221 after 5.
tf12-21

1965 Ford, custom 500, V8, automatic, p.s., new std. tires, excellent cond., $350, Paul Hughes 256-6800.
tf12-21

1967 Mercedes 230s, 4 door, mint condition, low mileage, maroon, black interior. Asking $2,250. Phone Shelbourne 625-6856 after 5:30.
tf12-20

50 VW Bus needs work $150, 253-2475 after 5.
tf12-20

67 VW Squareback in excellent condition; good brakes, engine, body, rack, etc. $900, Call 584-1030.
tf12-21

1963 Chevy Impala, 2-dr. hardtop, 283, V8, auto., 4 good tires, 2 new snows, good condition and reliable. $225. Call 549-6948 anytime.
tf12-21

68 VW, white square b., prof's commuter, 41,000 miles, ten exc. tires studded etc., 6 wheels block-heater, etc. $1485. 5-0661, 625-6484.
tf1221

64 Buick Special, runs well, good tires, $150. Call Peter 549-6574.
tf12-21

Internat. Metro Van, must sell quick. Call Old Weird Harold's 586-3727.
tf12-22

67 Barracuda Fastback, exel., condition air/cond., p.s., gd. snows, 273 V8, 18- 20 m.p.g., must see and drive. Call Dave 586-1321, leave message. $1200 or b.o.
tf12-21

1964 VW Sunroof, black w/black naug., interior, fiber belted tires, 67 rebuilt engine, 53 hp super clean, $525. 1-734-6563.
tf12-21

1963 VW Microbus Camper, radio, gas heater, toilet, ice box, (4) new ww tires, new paint, mech exc., $950 or best offer 256-6480.
tf12-21

FOR SALE

1961 Buick Wildcat for sale. Perfect Condition. Must sell now, $400. Call immediately. Leave message. Lian 549-6216.
12-21

AR (Acoustic Research) Transcription Turntable, Shure M44E Cartridge, six months old, cost $112. Sell $60. 253-9587.
12-22

Wedding gown - velvet, chapel train, size 12, $25 - 549-0058.
tf12-22

Very good '67 Fender Bandmaster and 2-12 in. speakers, very powerful. Need $300.00. Call 634-2273.
tf12-21

Silver, gold bracelets, rings, pendants hand-embroidered blouses, Nacrame handbags, Merchaum Pipes. 256-6660. Call after 8:00.
tf12-21

Bicycle, 10 speed, Phillips Racer $80 or best offer, Call 549-6079.
tf12-20

1962 Chevy Impala convert., with new tape deck, Asking $225, King size H2O bed with liner and finished frame $40, Call Brian 584-7720 or 253-5877.
tf12-21

Gibson GB-3 Bass, good condition, with case $200. Call (617) 544-2921 collect.
tf12-21

